Reapportionment

Reluctant Brantley Says He Would Back Hattaway's Plan ...If

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

"If the mayors of Lake Mary, Longwood, Altamonte Springs and Casselberry are happy with the Hattaway plan or prefer it, I would support it."

This was the view Friday of State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, to a House districting proposal for Seminole County, drawn by State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs.

Brantley based his promise of support on the opinions of the four mayors because he said their cities stand to be split among districts in the Hattaway proposal. And all four cities have adopted resolutions asking that their boundaries be kept intact in single districts.

The Hattaway proposal was approved by the House of Representatives Legislative Reapportionment subcommittee in the week.

The Hattaway plan calls for: — A district for Brantley in the western portion of Seminole; to have 16,273 residents, 31,267 in Lake County; 14,920 in Volusia, and the balance of 8,700 in either Putnam or Marion. Called the "river district," the Volusia portion would include DeBary and Deltona, both Republican areas. Hattaway noted that Brantley already is running in Seminole and Lake. "As I view it, he can win reelection in this district," Hattaway said.

— A district for Hattaway in the middle part of the county, east of Interstate 4 and west of U.S. Highway 17-92 from the Orange County line. The district boundary would run west on State Road 436 to County Road 427, right on 427 through Longwood toward Five Points, turn right on County Road 15 (Country Club Road) through Lake Mary to State Route 46A at the Mayfair Golf Course and back to Sanford, including downtown Sanford, and then move back to County Road 15 to the Osteen bridge and follow the St. Johns River to the county thereafter.

The district would include Sanford, Lake Mary Longwood, Altamonte Springs and Forest City.

— A new eastern district, to include Winter Springs, Casselberry, and Geneva, with about 1,450 residents from Orange County around the community of Christmas and about 17,500 from Brevard County.

— About 17,932 persons around Lake Howell would be joined with Orange County in a district for State Rep. Tom Drage, R-Orlando.

Brantley said he personally does not like the Hattaway plan, noting that other proposals for carving the county into House districts are not dead, nor is the Hattaway plan certain of legislative approval.

He said a plan is scheduled to be passed out of the full House committee Friday or the following Monday. Brantley said Lee Moffitt, D-Tampa, chairman of the House Reapportionment Committee will be discussing the plan with him on Monday.

Brantley said he preferred the Sanford-North Seminole County area — or about 15,000 of its residents — being included in a Volusia, Lake and Marion counties district, because there is a communal common interest among those areas.

And he questioned whether it is feasible for the Legislature, after this year, to continue having reapportionment responsibility.

He noted that he filed bills three years in a row to take that responsibility from lawmakers and give it to an appointive committee. But he added, he isn't all too sure an appointed committee to handle reapportionment is feasible, either.

Brantley said that districts all over the state are being drawn for political reasons.

Under Hattaway's reapportionment plan Brantley said he could win re-election and that he plans to run this year for re-election to the House.

Brantley said that the Legislature is under court mandate to draw House districts containing as close to 81,219 people each as possible based on the 1980 census figures.

Brantley noted that by the time the final reapportionment plan passes, the census data will be out of date.

Mayors Say They Like It

Three of the four mayors of Seminole County cities, which are to be split between state House of Representatives districts under a plan proposed by State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, are content with the proposal.

Only Mayor Owen Sheppard of Casselberry refused to give the plan his endorsement Friday.

Noting the Casselberry City Council adopted a resolution asking that the county be divided into "no more than two districts and that all cities be kept intact," Sheppard said he could not disagree with that position.

He said he could see the value in Hattaway's plan which could give Seminole County three state representatives. Sheppard said his concern revolves around the 17,000 south Seminole residents, some of whom live within Casselberry, who will be represented by an Orange County legislator.

At the same time, Mayor Ray Ambrose of Altamonte Springs said that Altamonte Springs is totally intact in Hattaway's district.

"From what I see in Hattaway's plan, I like it," Ambrose said. "I was impressed with the support Hattaway received for his plan at the meeting (with community and political leaders) Friday."

Mayor June Lormann of Longwood said simply, "It is the best of the alternatives and I would endorse it."

And Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson said the Hattaway plan is basically a better plan than any of the others proposed for representation in Seminole County.

"I would prefer that none of the cities be split between districts, but some splitting appears inevitable," Sorenson said.

"Hattaway said some of the district lines could be changed to flow around precinct lines. If this is done the split in Lake Mary will be infinitesimal. If just a couple changes are made, Lake Mary will be pretty much covered," Sorenson said.

A bi-partisan committee of Seminole County leaders who have been closely observing the reapportionment process in the Florida Legislature are scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Altamonte Springs law office of Bill Wack in Crane's Root Office Park to review the various reapportionment proposals.

Wack is chairman of the committee which is composed of all the county's mayors, two county commissioners, a School Board member, a member of the League of Women Voters, and former State Senators Mack N. Cleveland Jr. of Sanford and Douglas Stenstrom of Longwood.

THE COLORS OF DAWN

Dawn breaks over Lake Howell in Casselberry, and a copper-colored sun, poised in the gate of the East, turns the morning from black to red. The fiery orb rises slowly, coloring the lake water a glimmering orange. Tiny waves lap gently at the shore. It's peaceful, the start of another day.

HERE COMES GARFIELD

Garfield, a feisty feline with an affinity for overeating and oversleeping, has become the fat cat of the comic strip world.

Created by Jim Davis, the cartoon has soared to success since its introduction in 1978. The strip, which appears in more than 600 newspapers worldwide, will begin running in The Evening Herald daily starting Monday, and in color on Sundays starting Feb. 7.

Readers recently voted Garfield the No. 1 comic strip in some of the largest newspapers in the United States, and People magazine called it one of the most promising strips of 1980.

Two Garfield books — "Garfield at Large" and the more recent "Garfield Gains Weight" — made the New York Times bestseller list of trade paperbacks and for months were on the list at the same time, with the first book maintaining the No. 1 spot for 12 weeks at a stretch.

Garfield, the cynical yet endearing lasagna-loving cat with a dominant personality, lives with his owner, Jon Arbuckle, a quiet cartoonist; Jon's roommate, Lyman, and Lyman's dog, Odie. Preoccupied with being ornery, Garfield sprinkles his master's food with cat hair, destroys his plants and furniture and terrorizes Odie.

"After all," Garfield says, "cats are just small people with fangs and fur."

Be Careful How You Carry Them

Ruling Clarified On Concealed Guns

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Hunters are resting a little easier these days since Florida Attorney General James Smith's office issued a statement clarifying recent state Supreme Court ruling concerning carrying firearms.

The court ruled that a person could be arrested for carrying a concealed firearm even if a portion of it is protruding so it is in view of another person.

"The prudent thing for hunters and others to do is carry a weapon (firearm) unsheathed in open view if within reach," the statement said. "If the weapon is to be concealed, it should unquestionably be out of reach, as in a locked trunk."

"The statement from the attorney general's office came as a result of a flood of inquiries to their office from hunters and other people who carry guns for whatever reason," said John Spolaki, Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

"There appeared to be some confusion as to what the state Supreme Court meant when it ruled in a recent case that an individual was guilty of carrying a concealed weapon when officers saw the weapon protruding out from under the vehicle's floor mat. The defense argued that if the officers could see the weapon then it could not be considered concealed," he said.

Chief Assistant State Attorney Chris Ray said there has been "confusion concerning concealed weapons and concealed firearms in past cases, although possession of either is not an uncommon charge."

First, weapons are defined as "any dirk, metallic knuckles, slingshot, billy club, tear gas gun, chemical weapon or device, or any other deadly weapon except a firearm or a common pocketknife," Ray said.

A firearm, on the other hand, is defined by law as "any weapon (including a starter gun) which will, is designed to, or may readily be converted to expel a projectile by the action of an explosive..." he said.

"A weapon or firearm becomes concealed when it is carried on or about a person in such a manner as to conceal the weapon or firearm from the ordinary sight of another person," Ray says. "Carrying a concealed weapon is a first-degree misdemeanor punishable by a fine not to exceed $1,000, or a term of not to exceed one year in the county jail. The penalty for carrying a concealed firearm is a third-degree felony punishable by a fine not to exceed $5,000 and confinement in the state penitentiary not to exceed five years."

Ray said the confusion over the state's gun laws arose when several of Florida's five district courts of appeal issued conflicting rulings in similar cases.

"In District 3, the court determined that someone was carrying a concealed weapon if it was found in the glove compartment of the car," he said. "However, District 1 said the gun was not concealed."

In District 3, the court said a gun carried under the seat of a vehicle is concealed, while District 2 said that if that same gun is holstered it is not concealed," Ray said.

In the case cited by the state court when a derringer pistol was found under the floor mat of a car but partly protruding, the court said the gun was concealed because although it was protruding, it was hidden from the ordinary sight of the average person. The court ruling further said that an officer's view is not the same as the observation of an average individual.

Justice Joseph A. Boyd wrote in his dissenting opinion in the case that the gun was not concealed and that it could have been seen by anyone looking through the windows or doors of the automobile whether the individual is an officer or not.

"I think that instead of trying to save the statute by stating our own views of what the law should provide, we should firmly urge the Legislature to define what acts and circumstances constitute carrying a concealed weapon," Boyd wrote.

Area law-enforcement officers said they thoroughly agree with Boyd's opinion.

"We don't need stiffer laws on gun control," said Sgt. Herb Shea, assistant to Sanford

Police Chief Ben Butler. "What we need is for the present law concerning concealment to be more accurately defined."

Shea said too much guesswork is left to the individual officer in determining when concealment has occurred.

"Each case must be considered on its own merits," he said. "However, because the law lends itself to police interpretation, there is the possibility a person could spend the night in jail because of such ambiguity in the law that it might not have been necessary."

"The firearms laws in this state are antiquated and the weapons laws are too broad," Shea said. "We need further definition in law will be clear for the officer to know what he can change before he starts enforcing it."

"The law is too vague," Spolaki said. "We need a tighter definition, although I understand that to spell it out precisely would take volumes. However, the officer is left to decide each case on its own merit, which can tend itself to error. What one officer may consider concealment under his interpretation of the law, another officer may not."

So what does all this mean to those charged with prosecuting cases involving weapons and firearm concealment?

"I'm not sure," Ray said. "I would just say that a person should use just good old common sense in carrying a weapon and, likewise,

Scientist Says Meteor May Have Created Continents

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A meteor the size of Delaware smashed into the Earth eons ago, touching off stupendous volcanic eruptions that caused the continents to form, says a researcher.

Klaus J. Schulz of Washington University surmises the collision started the chain reaction that turned Earth, at the time an enormous glob of interstellar putty, into a shining sphere and the meteoroid planted the fiery seeds of what are now the continents.

Schulz, a fellow of the university's McDonnell Center for Space Sciences, also said he believes he has found evidence of a 1,700-mile-wide crater far beneath the forests and lakes of central Canada.

"The problem with gathering direct evidence of ancient meteoroid impacts is that Earth, being so hot, took surface material and reprocessed it," said Schulz. "Earth melted the rock and regurgitated it many, many times."

Schulz and two other researchers at Western Illinois University and the U.S. Geological Survey say they believe a crater resembling the enormous scars on the moon lies far below the area between the mouth of Hudson Bay and the Great Lakes.

Schulz's group recently assembled a "gravity" map — which charts subsurface rock formations — combining the geology of Canada and the United States.

"We saw this pattern that had not been visible before,"

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Sunday, Jan. 31, 1982—1A

Schulz said in a recent interview with UPI

Schulz, 33, says numerous meteoroids the size of mountain ranges may have crashed into Earth about 4 billion years ago. Their impacts ruptured the fragile crust, unleashing the molten material below.

He says the Canadian meteor fractured the Earth's crust and triggered gushers of volcanic activity in the surrounding region. The age of rocks that comprise the granite "shield" spread across Canada support the view that cooled material from the volcanoes formed the continents, he said.

The current theory that the continents are plates that "float" across a fluid underlayer is left undisturbed by Schulz's findings.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Leak Causes Nuclear Plant To Shut Down

CRYSTAL RIVER (UPI) — A leak in a weld on a pipe that is part of a reactor coolant pump seal package will keep Florida Power Corp.'s 825-megawatt nuclear generating unit shut down for about two weeks.

The unit was shut down to a hot standby status Thursday to enable technicians to repair a leak in a connection in an auxiliary cooling system within the containment building. It was expected to be back in service over the weekend.

Hanging Ruled Suicide

TEQUESTA (UPI) — The pathologist who performed an autopsy on the body of the estranged wife of the government's chief witness in the ABCSCAM bribery prosecutions says she took her own life.

Cynthia Marie Weinberg, 50, was found hanged from a stair banister in the townhouse apartment of a neighbor Thursday afternoon. She had been reported missing Tuesday afternoon by her son, Melvin, 16.

Cleric Jailed For Forgery

MIAMI (UPI) — A 79-year-old Miami clergyman has been charged with forgery and insurance fraud in the third arrest by agents of the state Insurance Department of persons allegedly involved in buying life insurance on others without their knowledge or consent.

Bishop Julius Cesar Castleberry, 79, pastor of the New Jerusalem Mt. Zion Holiness Church of God in Christ by Faith, was arrested at his church Friday.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Syria Calls For U.N. Embargo Of Israel

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Syria urged the U.N. General Assembly to impose a military, political, economic and cultural embargo on Israel and suspend its membership in the United Nations because of its annexation of the Golan Heights.

Leading off the assembly's emergency debate Friday on the annexation, Syrian Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Halim Kaddam also suggested an appeal to the United States to cease its aid to the Jewish state.

U.N. legal experts said, however, the assembly had no power to suspend a resolution admitting a state to the U.N. as Syria proposed in the case of Israel.

Kidnap Victim Rescued

CERVINIA, Italy (UPI) — Italian police burst into an apartment in the resort town of Cervinia today and freed a kidnapped industrialist in a precision raid similar to the rescue of U.S. Gen. James L. Dozier from the Red Brigades.

Police identified the industrialist as Giuseppe Pasini, 71, who was kidnapped for ransom in Milan Dec. 18 by a gang called Kidnaps Anonymous.

SHA Has New Executive Director

The Sanford Housing Authority (SHA) has a new executive director. Willie H. King Sr., 52, of 141 Bethune Circle, Sanford, general manager of the Orlando Times newspaper, was appointed to the post by the Sanford Housing Authority Board of Commissioners Friday night.

Joseph Caldwell, board chairman, said when the commissioners could not agree on a new director at the Friday night meeting, he appointed King to the post. The commissioners then ratified the appointment. King's salary was set at $20,000-$21,000 a year.

Caldwell said King is to assume the office Feb. 15. King today said he will meet with SHA commissioners prior to formally accepting the job in order to learn what they expect of him.

King also said he anticipates working closely with Linda Williams, who has been employed in various positions with the housing authority over the past 10 years and who is currently interim executive director. Mrs. Williams was a candidate for the post and Caldwell said she has done an excellent job for the authority.

King, a retired Air Force chief master sergeant, received his associates degree while in the service. Upon retirement, he received his bachelor's degree in human resources administration from St. Leo's College and his master's degree in public administration from Golden Gate University.

He has been general manager of the Orlando Times since July, 1981.

He and his wife Berneice have three children, Willie Jr., Sheila and Kenneth.

King said a plan to reduce the Housing Authority staff by up to four administrators, as ordered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, will be prepared after his conference with SHA commissioners.

We're All 'Human Beans,' Scientists Say

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — Human beings may be distantly related to soybeans, some scientists say. Research conducted by microbiologists is beginning to show that we as a race may be "human beans."

The relationship may be tied to small nodules that grow on the root system of soybean plants, said Ray Valentine, professor of agronomy and range science at the University of California at Davis.

These nodules contain a fluid similar to blood pigments in humans, Valentine said this week. He added, the similarities were discovered by scientists researching the plants because of their ability to produce their own nitrogen food.

Prosecution In Williams Murder Trial Winds Down

ATLANTA (UPI) — The young policeman sat squarely in the seat on the witness stand and didn't move a muscle when the prosecutor showed him the full-color picture of his little brother lying dead on a gravel path.

But when the prosecutor murmured 'You may cross examine,' the courtroom was still as death and the defense had no questions to ask.

Kerry Middlebrook contributed nothing in particular to the evidence amassed in five weeks of the murder trial of Wayne Williams, but when the prosecutor murmured "You may cross-examine," the courtroom was still as death and the defense had no questions to ask.

The state neared the end of its case Friday and was expected to rest by the middle of next week, after it has presented the fiber evidence on the 10 uncharged murders it is trying to link to Williams.

Williams is on trial for the murders of Nathaniel Cater, the last of the 28 young blacks abducted and murdered in Atlanta, and Jimmy Ray Payne, the 26th. But the state has been allowed to introduce evidence of 10 other killings to show Williams' "pattern, plan, scheme and bent of mind."

The jury of eight blacks and four whites, sequestered throughout the trial, pressed for a session today, but Judge Clarence Cooper told them lawyers for both sides had convinced him the trial would be concluded more quickly if they were allowed to work on evidence in the case over the weekend.

The last of the 10 "similar transaction" murders the prosecution presented was that of Eric Middlebrook, 14, who was slain in May, 1980.

His brother Kerry, now an Atlanta policeman, was called to testify on their family life. A short, muscular, young black, he said, "My brother and I never lived with our natural parents. He was given up at the age of four months," Kerry said, and both brothers moved in with foster parents, Robert and Lucille Miller.

"We grew up as a family," he said. "Things went pretty well — it was a pretty good setup."

"In 1973 I left and joined the Marine Corps," he said. "I'd call home and things seemed to be going pretty well. I'd talk to Eric, and he'd tell me about playing baseball and basketball. He said he wanted to play football, but they told him he was too small."

"He had a bike that he rode a lot, and he was always needing parts for it. He'd hang around the shop, wanting to work for the parts. He told me he was doing whatever kinds of jobs he could get."

Prosecutor Jack Mallard took an 8x10 color print of the child lying twisted in a pool of blood in a rain-wet graveled area behind a store, and held it up in front of Kerry.

"That's my little brother Eric," was all he said. "You joined the force after Eric's death, didn't you?" Mallard asked.

"Yes, sir," Kerry replied. Mallard didn't ask him why.

officer should use good old common sense in making an arrest."

"I'm not saying don't carry a weapon or firearm, just be careful in how that gun is carried or displayed," Shea said.

"If you're stopped for whatever reason by a law-enforcement officer, don't be afraid to tell him, up front, that you have a gun in the glove compartment if you're reaching for your registration which is also in the compartment," he said. "I know I'd rather know it then than to have it fall out while you're getting the registration."

Shea added that if you have a gun or other weapon in the vehicle but it is "completely out of sight, just leave the weapon alone."

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Sunday, Jan. 31, 1982—1B

'I'm terrific!' members of the Sanford Junior Woman's Club Inc. chanted in unison as a new club year got underway. The 12-year-old club, an affiliate of the Woman's Club of Sanford, has chalked up outstanding community projects since its inception in 1970.

Junior Woman's Club: You've Come A Long Way, Baby

By DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

Just as love, the butterfly is a many splendored thing. The colorful and graceful insect reflects hope, freedom, a new beginning ...and Nancy's Crawford's symbol as president of the Sanford Junior Woman's Club Inc., 1981-82.

But all good things come to an end, including butterflies and president Nancy's reign which terminated Saturday in a flurry of excitement and emotions at the club's Annual Awards and Installation Luncheon at Aggie's, Sanford.

The club was chartered in February, 1970 and was admitted to the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs at the Spring Convention that year in Jacksonville.

Eight charter members attending the Saturday festivities and receiving a yellow silk long-stemmed rose were: Jean Clontz, Beas Edwards, Julie Hall, Carol Kirchoff, Charner Leone, Linda McKee, Jan (Vihlen) Bogdany and Linda Reck.

The remaining charter members are: Louise Gill, Joann Berry, Margaret Nice, Wanda Kirkland, Pam Reynolds and Miss Ann Sieczkowski.

Jan Bogdany was the first president and Mrs. J.J. Sieczkowski was the first interim sponsor followed by Doshia Brown as the junior sponsor representing the parent club, the Woman's Club of Sanford.

Saturday was the day for awards, recognition, laughter, tears and reminiscing.

Two community leaders—and the only two men attending the fete—received honorary membership into the club. Education chairman Gail Smith presented engraved key rings to John Carlil and Tom Hunt.

Outgoing president Nancy Crawford was in the limelight. She presented hand-painted butterfly plaques to the following outgoing board members: Sharon White, first vice president; Bonnie Albers, second vice president; Gail Berger, third vice president; Beverly Rotundo, recording secretary; Cindy Doyle, corresponding secretary; Meg Newman, treasurer; Gail Stewart, leadership chairman, Gail Smith, Education chairman; Lynn Newman, Home Life Chairman; and Debi Shannon, Public Affairs chairman.

The past president also presented the appointed chairmen with mementoes and recognized special guests attending.

Nancy received a past president's pin and engraved gavel from incoming president Bonnie Albers who also presented Nancy with an embroidered butterfly pillow bearing club members' names and quilt squares depicting the club's activities which will be completed by Mrs. Erna Douglas, Nancy's mother, who also attended the festivities and was titled "Queen of Spades."

The club scrapbook for 1981-82 was presented to Nancy by Kathy Miller. The book was designed and assembled by Darlene Horn, assisted by her husband, Danny.

Nancy also received the five-star Leadership Award from Leadership chairman Gail Stewart. This honor is voted by the entire membership and is awarded to the club member displaying the most leadership qualities.

Membership chairman Gail Berger presented the following plaques: Outstanding Brand New Member, Joan Edwards; Outstanding New Member, Meg Newman; and Outstanding Old Member, Nancy Crawford.

Past junior sponsor Bill Gielow presented the Annual Bill Gielow Award to Gail Stewart. This award originated after Mrs. Gielow served as the club sponsor for two years and is given by her each year to the member for outstanding leadership in community improvement.

This year's junior sponsor, Irene Brown, received a silver candy dish in appreciation as well as a framed picture of the club members.

Other junior sponsors have been Betty Davis, Dorothy Karns and Martha Yancey.

Two junior members, Eve Crabtree and Jan Freeman, each served as Junior Director, District VII, Florida Federation of Women's Clubs.

One of the highlights of the program was Betsy Craig reading a humorous poem, "A Husband's Point of View," which struck a happy chord to the clubbers before luncheon.

Using "Unite To Form a Rainbow," Irene Brown installed the following officers for 1982-83: Bonnie Albers, president; Debi Shannon, first vice president; Joan Edwards, second vice president; Meg Newman, third vice president; Judy Osborn, recording secretary; Gail Berger, corresponding secretary; and Carole Pegram, treasurer.

One of the first projects undertaken by the club was toward conservation, "Save Our Parks."

Their other community involvements include:

Served as judges during Cracker Days, sponsored by Downtown Business Association. Cracker Day was to honor city forefathers and Downtown Sanford merchants dressed in old-fashioned clothing.

Handed out city maps with city parks circled with red hearts in "Take a Park to Heart."

Participated in a Children's Art Festival — plays were performed by children and presented to area schools.

Sent letters to area churches asking them to ring their bells for one minute on National Citizenship Day, Sept. 17, 1975.

Collected 800 Books of Green Stamps valued at $2,400 for the Central Florida Zoo 1976.

Worked jointly with Woman's Club on the "Beautification of Lakefront," 1976, and helped acquire three guinea baboons for the zoo.

Sponsored a Jr. Miss club for ladies in the 10th — 12th grades.

Started a Parent Resource Center (1977-1978).

Provided kits containing necessities for abused and neglected children in shelter care. Established Sanford Heart Park in 1979-1980.

Annie Riggins with high school diploma.

At 67, She Earns A GED Diploma

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Correspondent

The desire to better educate herself always has remained in the heart and mind of Mrs. Annie B. Riggins of Sanford. So at the age of 67, she received her GED diploma at the graduation ceremony held at Seminole Community College on Jan. 22 after attending classes at Midway Community Center.

Mrs. Riggins last attended public school in 1931 where she completed the eighth grade. She admits that many obstacles prevented her from continuing her education.

In 1965 she heard about the GED program and immediately enrolled. She attended classes for a few months and had to drop out because of transportation problems.

The prospect of her accomplishing her goal seemed hopeless, she said, but the opportunity knocked at her door again in 1980 when the GED Study Center at the Midway Elementary School, just a few short walking distance from her house, opened for classes in the evening.

She enrolled and attended classes for a year, admitting that the studies were difficult at times. But she was determined to succeed, she said and in December with the strong support and guidance of her instructor Morris M. Brown, Mrs. Riggins achieved her ultimate goal.

During the years, Mrs. Riggins also attended the Sunlight Beauty School and received a degree in cosmetology. She is now the owner of her own beauty shop.

Now that she has her high school diploma, Mrs. Riggins plans to enroll at Seminole Community College and take some courses in the Vocational Education Department.
