

Ann Miller Is Dancing Find Of 39 Season

Texas Girl On Way To Being Latest Idol Of Broadway

By JACK STINNETT
NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—This is a sob story—with a happy ending.

Here's the ending: The curtain part during the first act of George White's "Sennelocke." A tall, black-haired girl with full red lips and a fetching smile broods out and goes into her dance. Long, shapely legs, dazzlingly white against a half-skirt of whirling black feathers, pounce out a machine-gun tap. Being again to a hammering staccato as she whirls toward the wings.

The barrage of applause is followed by volleys of crackling programs. The audience doesn't know her. It's her first Broadway appearance. She came from Hollywood. Played small parts out there. They let her go. She's from Texas. Her name's Ann Miller.

Comments overheard: "Eleanor Powell plus"—"A tap-dancing Mary Martin"—"A vision of sex in sensuality and style"—"The genius of Fred Astaire in a lovely young lady"—"The first big find of a new Broadway season!"

Doctor's Orders: Here's the story: Fourteen years ago, in Houston, Texas, a physician bent over a puny five-year-old. His expression was grave as he turned to face the mother.

"But, Doctor," said Mrs. Clara Miller, "how about Ann's legs?" The physician bent again at the thin, twisted little legs and knobby knees that knocked together.

"That's rickety," he said. "After we see what diet does, we'll try exercise." And after the diet did begin to help, Ann tried dancing—nothing fancy, just dancing-school dancing—and that helped too.

When the child was 13, her mother and father separated, and although funds were short, Mrs. Miller took her to Los Angeles. There was no more money for dancing lessons, but Mrs. Miller did buy Ann two routines.

Christmas Story: "They were awfully corny," says Ann, today. "I never really need them except as a starting point from which to work out my own dances."

That was the last instruction Ann ever had. There was no more money and the next four years were a struggle to keep from going hungry.

There was the time Ann entered an "amateur night" contest at the Orpheum and Mrs. Miller played home so Ann could see the carfare to have a bowl of soup before she went on with her act.

Night Club Dancer: It was that Orpheum contest and the kindness of the manager, says Ann, that gave her her first break. She won the contest and a two-weeks job at $20 a week.

The Bal Tabarin night club engagement in San Francisco followed that—12 weeks at an increasing salary but in order to get it, Ann had to provide new routines every two weeks.

Even after that it was a bed of roses rather than roses. She got a movie contract, but they didn't give her anything to do but pose for publicity pictures.

Letting back in a chair in the same hotel apartment which Mary occupied before she left for the coast, Ann seems very little like the "vision of sex in sensuality." For the off-stage moments, she's just a "typical Texas girl" (she was born in Childress, Pop. 678) with more than her share of naive charm, but little of the sophistication which has stamped her as a star.

"Hollywood's funny," she says. "You know after all those years of trying to get by out there, I got four offers of movie contracts the opening night and two more after the reviews were printed. It sure was fun to tell 'em I just planned to stay on Broadway for a while."

"To Preserve Memories And Events Of Our Association In Great War"

Quite naturally World War veterans are proud of their honorable service to their country. Every veteran can demonstrate his support of this high principle by affiliating with The American Legion and by supporting its ideals.

PREPARED BY THE AMERICAN LEGION. At first glance, this principle, taken from the preamble to the constitution of The American Legion, might seem like stark militarism. As a matter of fact, it is precisely the opposite. Quite naturally, World War veterans are proud of their service—and who wouldn't be. No sane person, not even the most rabid pacifist, would deny the right of the men to have due pride in the fact that they were the uniform of their nation in the greatest war in the history of civilization, in the fact that they faced death in defense of their country.

Every Legionnaire hopes that his son will be just as ready to accept the same duty and the same risk if the life of the country again should be threatened. The American Legion will bend its fullest effort to preserve peace, but if war does come, then it holds that it is the duty of every citizen to respond to the country's need to fight and even to die, if need be, that America may live.

But the American Legion does not want posterity to glorify war for war's sake. It holds that war can and should be avoided. It remembers that it was not the fault of the veterans, war did come in 1917. The flower of American manhood answered the call to arms; close to 4,000,000 men went to the defense of the United States. Many of them died for the sake of their country; many more were maimed for life. It emerged from that war without the marks of war in some form.

Legionnaires will not forget those who laid their lives upon the altar of sacrifice; they will not forget the maimed; they will ever remember the heroism of American manhood on land, on sea and in the sky. Who thinks they can forget the comrades who risked his own life to crawl

Bitter Battle Is In Progress On West Front

Continued from Page Three and as night fell the Germans apparently still were holding the heights of Schneeberg north of Aachen on western slopes that each into France.

The U. S. P. M. (3:05 P. M. EST.) communique of the French high command said merely "to the north of Aachen" after penetrating the village.

Although the German attack covered a front of four miles, the main force of the blow was delivered at the junction of the French-German-Luxembourg frontiers on the extreme northern flank of the western front.

Here the French established positions during the first month of the war to prevent the Germans from driving through neutral Luxembourg territory to out-flank the whole French front.

Since the French had been holding advance positions some two miles inside German territory at this point, it appeared to military observers here that yesterday's German attack obviously had driven the French back that distance.

The first real shock of the German attack hit the French on the Schneeberg heights, which form a bastion east of Aachen.

Immediately, however, the French said, French artillery found the range of the advancing Germans and forced them to halt on the outskirts of the little Lorraine village.

The French reformed their lines and drove the Germans back to positions 400 yards north of Aachen, which left the Nazis holding a line 100 yards inside French territory.

This would mean a total advance of between a mile and a quarter and a mile and a half for them during the day.

Unconfirmed reports said that in other sectors on the northern flank the French withdrew their most advanced posts to main line positions on German territory to be better prepared to repulse German attacks.

Yesterday's fighting undoubtedly was the heaviest on the Western Front, although no figures were available immediately on the number of men involved or the number of casualties.

Closer Control Of Passports Is Government Plan

All Travellers To Be Fingerprinted As Sure Identification

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Sweeping measures designed to afford closer control over passports and incidentally prevent their use by foreign spies, are being perfected and will go into operation early next year.

Their principal feature involves the use of fingerprinting to make sure that the man or woman traveling under the protection of an American passport is really the one named in the document.

The existence of war in Europe and the Dies Committee's disclosures about passport abuses have led to the determination to tighten up on regulations. Officials estimated recently that 1,500 American passports which were borne by American volunteers on the Loyalist side in the Spanish civil war are now in the hands of foreign governments, principally Moscow.

A drive will be made to withdraw from circulation as many American passports as possible. As Americans return from Europe their passports are being taken up by customs and immigration officials. Some 20,000 already have been collected.

These are being filed away in the passport division of the State Department, of which Mrs. Ruth Shipley is chief. Incidentally, they are being compared with the original application and records to see if any alteration (an illegal act) has been made in them.

New passports for travel to Europe are being issued sparingly. They go only to persons who have a professional, rather than personal, reason for going there, such as important business.

In September some 2,150 passports were issued and valuations stamped on existing ones, compared with 2,138 in September last year, itself a very meager month owing to the Sudentland crisis at that time. Study is not considered a valid reason for travel in war time. More than 1,000 students wanting to go to Europe this year were turned down. Other personal reasons not regarded as sufficient include a desire to go to Europe to get married, to see if the war has touched relatives of their properties, and to take medical cures.

Passports issued are good only until January 1. In future they will be good only for six months. At the end of that time the bearer, if still abroad, must present himself to an American consul for renewal of the passport. Up to the present passports have been good for two years and could be renewed for another two years. The necessity for a personal appearance at the consulates will give American authorities a closer check on the passports and their bearers.

As the passports are issued they are validated for travel to Europe (and existing passports are also similarly validated) if the bearer has sufficient reason for going there. The validation now consists of a rubber stamp. Later it will be more formal and will include finger-printing as an additional identification.

In time, the various governments in Europe will be notified that only American passports bearing the necessary validation should be honored. Thereafter, if a person travels with an American passport not having the validation, the border or other police in Europe will stop him and turn the passport over to the nearest American consul for verification.

European police, rendered doubly and triply suspicious by the war, can be counted upon to cooperate to the utmost in eliminating the possibility of use of American passports by spies.

The special validation already in use is necessary not only for the European nations at war but also for the neutrals. An American wishing to go to neutral Italy has to justify his trip on the grounds of essential business just as one who goes to Great Britain or Germany.

Still in the wreck of the Fannie & Jennie, Confederate blockade runner lying off the beach at Wrightsville, N. C., is a gold and jeweled award sent to General Robert E. Lee by British sympathizers.

Leroy Hill Dies As Train Crashes Into Automobile

Accident Occurs On West First Street Railroad Crossing

Leroy Hill, 26, who resided near the ice plant west of Sanford, was instantly killed about 10:30 o'clock this morning when a through passenger train of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad struck and demolished the auto which he was driving when it apparently stalled on the West First Street crossing about two miles west of Sanford.

The elder Mr. Hill stated that he was certain neither the auto stalled or whether his son became excited with the approach of the train. He believed to his "jump" just before the train struck into the auto at the spot where he was sitting. The auto was dinged approximately 60 feet down the track and the body of the driver was thrown from the car between the two mainline tracks about 10 feet from where the auto came to rest on its left side.

London wants the U. S. to take over British and French Caribbean possessions and to be the one to deal with them. Don't they see that they are already?—Just kidding.

A Serious Blow

Lieutenant Commander Prien, captain of the submarine which sank the British battleship Royal Oak lying at anchor in the harbor of the great naval base at Scapa Flow, performed a remarkable exploit of professional skill and daring.

The German submarine slipped by the anti-submarine nets, dodged the mines, which protected the harbor and under water in the dead of night, picked out two battleships, believed to have been the Royal Oak and the Repulse, two of Britain's greatest, and let fly with torpedoes which sank the former in short order and is believed to have seriously damaged the latter. Then the submarine sneaked out of the harbor and got safely home.

The loss of one or two battleships will not seriously alter the relative superiority of Britain's navy over the German navy, but Nazi officials in Berlin are celebrating the feat as one of their major successes, excelled not even by their quick conquest of Poland. They are confident that if one battleship can be sunk by a submarine, others can.

There are more ways than one for Germany to achieve naval equality with the British. They might build more battleships until they have as many as the British have. But this is a long and expensive procedure. A quicker and cheaper way would seem to be sinking British ships until they have whittled the British navy down to the size of the German navy.

But from all appearance it does not seem to make much difference which has the larger navy, Britain or Germany. Waging a war with giant clumsy battleships is about as medieval a practice as launching an infantry attack with bows and arrows. Why was the Royal Oak anchored in Scapa Flow? It, together with the rest of the British navy, had already surrendered the North Sea to German submarines and airplanes.

There are, of course, naval brass hats in London, just as there are in this country, who continue to believe that the battleship is a formidable weapon of defense. Like the Russian Cossacks during the World War who refused to admit their horses could not outrun machine gun bullets, the sendogs of the British navy cling to the antiquated belief that supremacy of the seas means something. In Napoleon's time the nation that ruled the seas could control the world. One hundred and thirty years later we find that it is far more important to rule the air over the seas and the water beneath the surface. No navy, however modern, is worth much if its nation does not also have a superiority in airplanes and submarines.

Those War Debts Again

Critics of Great Britain, isolationists, and the generally uninformed like to refer to our former Allies in the first World War as "welters" on their war debts. The fact is that Great Britain and France have not paid the debts they owe this country because we would not let them. We did not lend them money in the first place. We lent them guns and ammunition, wheat, cotton, and beef, shoes and clothes and similar commodities which they needed at that time. For these they gave us their notes. When payments on the notes began, we raised our tariffs, blocking their commodities, accumulating most of the world's gold supplies in our own country and preventing them from paying.

Dr. John H. Sherman, president of the University of Tampa, in a talk before the Tampa Civitans yesterday, put it this way: "The Allies fought for us, using their men and our materials. After the war we demanded they pay us for the materials. They tried, but we wouldn't let them. Instead, we raised our tariffs, keeping the Allies from accumulating enough credit to pay off the debt."

Dr. Sherman might have added that during the war the United States was willing to give the Allies free of charge all the supplies they needed; after the war was over, we figured out how much they owed us at prices about twice as high as most things were worth. We forget that England and France, to whom most of our loans were made, also made loans during the war (to their smaller Allies) and that none of these loans has ever been paid. To say that England and France "welched" on their war debts is as unfair and as unwarranted by the facts as to say that the United States "welched" on the field of battle.

(Continued from Page One) last year, have resulted in growers receiving substantially more for their fruit. This does not take into consideration any f. o. b. sales, because of difficulty in obtaining accurate figures of such transactions. However, such sales are unusual, considered to be slightly higher than would be the return on fruit sent to the auction markets.

With so increase in packing or transportation charges from year to year, the better auction price this season means the grower has received that much more for his fruit "on the tree." One comparison puts the "tree" price for grapefruit at $1 this season compared with less than 50 cents at the same time last year. The difference is even more marked with oranges, with growers estimated to be receiving around $1.25 per box on the tree this year, compared with less than 60 cents on the corresponding date last year.

The federal government's recent estimate on grapefruit shows a substantially smaller crop for the coming season, indicating no problem will develop due to surplus. Canneries are expected to start operations soon, and will require large quantities of fruit to meet consumer demand with practically no canned fruit left over from last season.

Mrs. Yelvington Is Honored On Birthday

Honoring her granddaughter, Mrs. Melton Yelvington, the former Miss Billy Wright, on her 25th birthday, Mrs. Henry Wright entertained with a birthday dinner yesterday at noon at her home on Park Avenue.

This birthday party was in part a repetition of a party given 25 years ago when Mrs. Yelvington was one month old and made her first bow to society assisted by Miss Camilla Deas and Mrs. Ross Anderson.

The right home was decorated exclusively with flowers from the gardens surrounding the home. A novel arrangement of ixora was placed in the living room along with a red gerbera, a yellow rose, gladioli and pansies, which attractively decorated the rooms of the home.

The dining room table was set with a Richelieu embroidery luncheon set and centered with a colonial crystal chandelier which held a novel vase filled with pansies, a delicate pale rose and lavender flower. White China with gold trimmings and gold odd pieces were used.

Favors were dainty gold and black vanities with mesh bottoms. Following the dinner, afternoon coffee was served with the birthday cake.

Enjoying the lovely affair with Mrs. Yelvington, honored, and hostess, Mrs. Henry Wright, were: Mrs. Ross Anderson of Winter Park, Miss Camilla Deas, Miss Lucille Bolt, Miss Julia Higgins, Mrs. Chandler Sharon, Mrs. Hal Wright, Mrs. C. R. Kirtley and Henry Wright.

The following is an account of the party given 25 years ago as it appeared in the local newspaper of that time.

"Unique and original in its conception and delightfully pleasing in its fulfillment was the reception given by Mrs. Henry Wright Saturday afternoon to the grandmothers of her acquaintance, in honor of her granddaughter, Miss Billy Wright.

"The attractive home was so pretty in gala decorations, for flowers were everywhere, emphasizing the sweetness and charm of a gracious motherhood.

"In the reception hall, where the two grandmothers, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Gowdy received together, the grass jordanians were filled with gorgeous red dahlias and poinsettias, making an exquisite glow of color against the background of ferns, white and yellow chrysanthemums and potted plants were used effectively in the parlor, while in the library only delicately tinted pink roses were used, with charming simplicity.

"It was here Miss Billy Wright, cutely excoiced among the pillows of her dainty blue and white bassetette received with her mother, Mrs. Deas and Mrs. Hurt.

"The infant honoree knew instinctively that it was a notable event in her life for they believed with the grace and dignity of their grandmothers. In the course of the afternoon, a charming group of songs was rendered by Miss Lucille Aspinwall, whose beautiful voice was never heard to better advantage.

"The inspiration of those baby forms, the happiness of the grandmothers and proud delight of the young mothers, added to Miss Aspinwall's singing, a depth of sympathetic interpretation that was very alluring. "His Lullaby" by Carrie Jacob Bond; "Where

Personals

Mrs. Claude Herndon and Mrs. G. E. McKay were the guests yesterday of Rev. and Mrs. Paul Redfern in Daytona Beach.

Mrs. J. Fleischer has returned from New York where she spent the summer with her son and daughter, Louis Fleischer and Mrs. Esther Krown.

Walter Denzel of Cairo, Ill. arrived Sunday to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lingie for a short time. Mr. Denzel is Mrs. Lingie's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Schleeter of Redding, Pa., and Sanford arrived Monday to make their home here during the winter months. They are residing at 1000 Park Avenue.

Mrs. Jack Pardon, the former Miss Agnes Brinkley, is visiting a few days here with her parents before returning to her home in Charlotte, N. C.

Forming a party which spent last weekend at Coronado Beach were Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Kypke, Mr. and Mrs. Al Mooneyhan and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Milligan of Orlando.

Mrs. Mary Wright and Miss Martha Wright left today for Jacksonville where they will represent the Robert E. Lee Chapter of the Children of the Confederacy at the state convention being held there at the George Washington Hotel. Miss Mary Wright will read the report of the Robert E. Lee Chapter tomorrow noon at the Children of the Confederacy luncheon. They will be accompanied by their mother, Mrs. R. B. Wright, and Mrs. H. H. Pope. While in Jacksonville they will stay at the George Washington Hotel.

Did You Come From, Baby Dear, Neidinger; and "Mighty Like A Rose," Nevin, formed a group that delighted all present.

Refreshments were served in the dining room which was prettily decorated with red and white flowers and ferns. The table was very attractive with its appointments of dainty china and silverware centered by a tall vase of white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Allan Jones poured coffee from the handsome brass coffee urn Miss Lillian Higgins assisted in serving.

Grandmothers invited were Mesdames Alice Robbins, Malas Ward, A. E. Phillips, Archibald, Charlotte Smith, C. E. Walker, J. C. Essinger, Easterby, Ferguson, Purdon, Theodore Miller, N. H. Garner, Higgins, A. W. Fitts, Sr., and Gowdy. Other guests were Mesdames Deas, Hurt, Hal Wright, M. F. Robinson, S. O. Shimbler, Minnie Jones, Miss Lucille Aspinwall and Adelaide Higgins.

"The reception was greatly enjoyed by all present, the babies admitted to the complete satisfaction of the adoring mothers and it was quite evident that Grandmothers Wright and Gowdy were inordinately proud and felt the importance of Miss Billy Wright's first introduction to Sanford society."

LONGWOOD The October meeting of the P. T. A. was held at the school auditorium Thursday night. Mrs. Crosby, the president, presided.

Mrs. Levi North was in charge of the program "Citizenship" in which Mrs. L. J. Hartley and Mrs. Maud Tupper also took part. The association has planned a box supper for the night of October 27. Proceeds will be used for the lunch room fund.

A Little Theatre Guild has been formed by several of the younger set. Members will meet Monday nights at the library rehearsing for a play to be produced in about two weeks.

The president, Mrs. Henry Smith, is experienced in theatricals, as is Joseph M. Marjorie Blankenship, secretary and treasurer, Norton North.

The names of the members will be announced later. Mr. and Mrs. John Matheson have returned from their summer home in Plainfield, N. J. to their Longwood home.

Mayor and Mrs. George H. Bridge Jr. left Saturday for Boston, Mass. to attend the funeral of Mr. Bridge's father.

The annual meeting of the Home Demonstration Club is being held today at the library. On Thursday, Oct. 26 a special party will be given by the local club.

Woman's Club Group Sponsors First Party

The first party of the season sponsored by the social department of the Woman's Club was held last night in the club house in the form of a Halloween bridge and Chinese checkers party for club members and their escorts.

Mrs. Endor Curlett, chairman, and assistants, Miss Irene Hinton and Mrs. H. W. Rucker, met the guests dressed as scarecrows in keeping with the Halloween theme which was carried out effectively with black cats, pumpkins and spoons.

The stage was converted into a cornfield with corn husks, pumpkins growing and scarecrows. One scarecrow which balanced itself against the piano finally fell and when the gentlemen rushed to pick up the fallen piece of stage setting, it was discovered that Mrs. Endor Curlett was posing as the scarecrow.

Piano music was played by Mrs. Russell McCracken as the guests assembled.

High ladies bridge prize, however, was won by Mrs. Martin Bram, and high men's bridge prize, a tie, by Frank Langson. The screen prize, during the party, was awarded to Mrs. Ralph A. Smith and Chinese checkers prize, a pumpkin pie, to Mrs. G. E. McKay.

At the conclusion of the games refreshments of hot gingerbread and coffee were served to the guests.

Enjoying the affair were: Mrs. G. I. Gorky, Mrs. J. A. Bennett, Mrs. Fred Williams, Mrs. E. J. Holly, Mrs. Lerman Middleton, Mrs. J. W. Lyles, Mrs. L. E. Spencer, Mrs. M. C. Swingle, Mrs. H. E. # St. Johns Upsets Florida Powermen; Lemmond Is Winner

Reel - St. Johns, Lemmond, Kilgore To Play Tomorrow

St. Johns softball team pulled a decided upset last night by defeating the highly rated Florida Power and Light club 13 to 1 in the second game of a doubleheader at the lake front diamond which saw Lemmond's classy outfield continue his winning ways with a 14 to 5 victory over Osceola.

There are no games tonight but tomorrow there is a doubleheader with Reels and St. Johns tangling in the first game and Lemmond and Kilgore mixing it up in the second. The games will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Some of the glory for the St. Johns win must be taken away from a couple of Florida Power's most valuable players were unable to play, thereby necessitating several shifts in the lineup and injections of substitute players.

However, St. Johns must be given due credit for playing heads-up ball. They garnered the lead off three Power's pitchers, meanwhile Johnny Cooke let the Power team down with three hits, two of which he gave up in the first inning.

Florida Power got their only run in the first frame. Cordell singled and went to third on an error but Kinlaw singled to left field to bring him across the plate.

St. Johns rushed two runs across the plate in the first inning and it was not until the fifth frame that they were able to hit the real offensive that let them drive seven runs home. They added four more in the sixth for their total of 13.

Robert Howell paced the St. Johns outfit at the plate with a double and single-out of four times up. The Florida Power team committed six miscues to aid the St. Johns club in racking up their score. St. Johns was guilty of two errors.

The first game between Osceola and Lemmond provided plenty of excitement with the Lemmond team finally running away after the third inning.

Osceola scored its five runs, four in the second and one in the fifth. Lemmond pushed two runs across in the first, two in the second, one in the third, seven in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Bylana pitching for Osceola permitted 14 hits while Williams and Swofford for Lemmond gave up three, one coming off Swofford and two off Williams.

Leading batters for Lemmond were Kridler who banged out four singles, and Cole with one hit out of two times up.

Score by innings:

Lemmond	2	2	1	7	2	0	x

Batteries: Osceola—Bylana, Farley and Patrick; Lemmond—Williams, Swofford and Odham.

St. Johns—2 0 0 0 7 4
Fla. Power—1 0 0 0 0 0
Batteries: St. Johns—J. Cooke and R. Howell; Fla. Power—Hodge, D. Ferguson, Kinlaw and Howell.

Writer Praises Florida Gators After Defeat Of Boston College

GAINESVILLE, Oct. 18.—University of Florida's football victory over Boston College was summed up by Arthur Siegel in the Boston Herald when he wrote that Florida gave "the Eagles a lesson in tactics." R. C. Siegel wrote, "was out-hustled all afternoon and they were out-determined, if there is a word like that. And not since No. 11 brought his centenary team to Boston to play—some of the boys never saw a football—has a team of youngsters ever shown more knowledge of the more advanced theory of defensive football."

Between the halves of the game Florida presented an all-time record to Boston College. During the halves the Florida team presented Boston College with opportunities. The Gators also presented the Eagles with a defeat and with a football lesson in fundamentals, especially in defensive play, and also with a severe headache. And the Eagles learned to their distress that these Gators know how to play football; were tough, fast, and slick.

Referring to B. C.'s five big scoring opportunities, Siegel wrote: "It was almost tragic the way Boston College would cross into Gator territory, come so close that they could spit into the end zone and then find themselves back down the field. For these Floridians may be young, but they must have started playing football at an early age. Defensively, they were immense.

"They would apparently pick any number from five to eight, for their defensive line arrangements and a guard by the name of 'Mush' Battista would be the floater. If Battista is any relative of the gentleman in Cuba, it's easy to understand why Battista runs that tight little republic.

"Mush is not a towering young man; being built more on compact lines. He does everything but play roving reporter. Some of his stuff savors of the showboat variety but he is a flight-talking player and he can play football. So the Eagles would look up and call for a play against those openings presented by a five-man line and when the interference started rolling there would be no hole and the interference was piling into one another.

"Then again the Gators had a long, hungry-looking left end, a 20-year old fledgling from Stuart, Fla., named Forest Ferguson. Granting that 'only God can make a tree', the Fenway Park made 'Forest' Ferguson couldn't have been bothering the Eagles more if they had owed him money. He refused to be blocked out of plays and he was always taking care of plays in his area. By the time he becomes a senior he really should know something about football."

Council Is Named For Administering Compensation Law

TALLAHASSEE, Oct. 18.—The appointment of a State Advisory Council to aid in the administration of the Unemployment Compensation Law was announced today by Harold C. Wall, chairman of the Florida Industrial Commission.

Upon the recommendation of Governor Cone, the Commission appointed the following persons, all of whom have signified their intention of accepting: Vernon Bronson, Miami; M. D. Lambert, Pensacola; T. J. Davis of Jacksonville; W. E. McMillan, Perry; R. O. Riddle, Jacksonville, and W. P. Smith of St. Johns as employer representatives; Mrs. Thurston Robert, Jacksonville; William T. Bates, Lake City; J. M. Sikes, Fort White and E. G. Kilpatrick Jr., of Pahokee to represent the public.

An advisory council is provided for in the Unemployment Compensation Law and is expected to aid the Commission in formulating policies and solving problems related to the Act and in assuring impartiality and freedom from political influence in the solution of such problems and policies. The council serves without compensation but will be reimbursed for necessary expenses.

A meeting of the members will be called shortly in Tallahassee at which time the organization of the council will be perfected and a chairman and vice-chairman elected to serve for one year.

At this meeting the Commission will recommend that the council appoint a committee on public information to promote an interest in the law among various groups within the State. From time to time the Commission will undertake special studies in various problems affecting the agency and the council will be asked to establish a committee to assist in these studies. The council will also be asked to appoint a committee for the promotion of placements. This committee would undertake to advise on matters of public relations affecting the Employment Service, giving special attention to the use of the Employment Service by the public.

The primary function of the council will be to promote a better understanding of the provisions of the law and the policies and practices of the agency among employers, employees, and the general public and to obtain estimates of public sentiment in local communities as it is the intention of the Commission to consult with the council on many of the administrative policies.

Florida's victory over Boston College is still drawing comments from reporters who saw the game. Most important of all, they point out two players in particular, freshman Forest Ferguson at end and Mush Battista at guard. Mush is a sophomore. That is good tidings for Florida supporters. Both will be back next year, and both will be all the better for Florida may not win all the rest of their games, having to get by such formidable opponents as Miami, Georgia Tech and Auburn, but we believe they'll give a good account of themselves in every game.
