NO MORE LIQUOR VIOLATIONS

The Herald is in favor of enforcing all the laws on the statute books. If you do not want these laws or if you think they infringe upon your personal liberty, or if you are being "lured" to death then you have the alternative of trying to repeal these laws. But as long as they are laws they are to be obeyed regardless of whether they meet with your personal views or not.

Sanford is growing. Sanford is moving ahead. Sanford is becoming a big city. It is easy seen in the big crowds here Saturday nights and other nights and days. The big thing to do is to wake up to your opportunities and keep things moving.

The law provides that the first offense of liquor law violation shall be punishable by a fine of not less than $25 or not more than $500 and by imprisonment of not less than thirty days and not more than six months.

"Second offenses will be punishable by fines of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 and imprisonment in the state penitentiary of not more than three years.

Automobile accidents are becoming more numerous with advent of more cars. It behooves every driver to drive carefully himself and to watch the other fellow. Ninety per cent of the automobile accidents could be avoided if cars did not run at such breakneck speed all the time.

The Supreme Court has ruled that blinding headlights from another car in the face of a driver is not an excuse for running over a pedestrian on the side of the road. The decision was called forth by a case in Miami where blinding headlights on an approaching car kept a driver of another car from seeing a man walking on the road and he was badly injured.

JUST SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT.

The editor of the Herald has been charged with being an optimist. Sure, we are an optimist. We would rather be an optimist than most any kind of animal we know about.

We dreamed things here for years about Sanford and finally other people dreamed them with us. It costs nothing to dream. Dreams are free to everybody and it is much nicer to dream of big things and finally put them over than to refuse to dream at all.

One of our good friends told us the other day that some of the doubting Thomases were now believing what they say in the Herald as all of our other dreams had come true and they did not call them "dreams" any longer.

Sanford is growing. Sanford is moving ahead. Sanford is becoming a big city. It is easy seen in the big crowds here Saturday nights and other nights and days.

There can be no doubt in the mind of any ordinarily observant person that Tampa has awakened, has become aroused to the myriad neglected opportunities in this city and this section, and is acting to take advantage of these opportunities.

"It is stating nothing more than what everyone knows to say that Tampa and Tampanas are wider awake and more enthusiastic right now than has ever been the case before.

Enthusiasm is a great thing. No big enterprise ever came into being except through the efforts of enthusiasts. No great city ever was or ever will be created if enthusiasm is lacking.

TAX EXEMPT SECURITIES.

Much has been said and written about the growing evils of tax exempt securities. As yet however, but little has been done by way of legislation to check that evil.

"President Harding says: 'The tendency of wealth to seek non-taxable investments, and the menacing increase of public debt, justify a proposal to change the Constitution so as to end the issue of non-taxable bonds.'

"The habit of issuing tax-free bonds," says Secretary Mellon, "is diverting capital which would otherwise be employed in productive enterprises into relatively unproductive or wasteful public expenditure. This is a situation which can not be permitted to continue without grave danger to our economic structure, and the treasury urges the adoption of a Constitutional amendment restricting further issues as the only practical means of correcting the evil."

Prof. Edwin Seligman, of Columbia University says: "We are rapidly getting back to the system of the middle ages. In those days the weak bore the burdens of the strong." Professor Seligman is of the agricultural school of this great university.

With so many millions tied up in non-taxables, these very rich people bear very little of the tax burdens of the country. More than that, they take money out of banks, out of industry and out of agriculture and tie it up in securities that produce nothing except income for the owners of these securities.

This condition of affairs places an unjust burden on real estate, particularly farm lands. These are always in sight and capable of appraisal for taxation. And they must be taxed heavily enough to furnish the revenues for running the government and paying the interest and principal of the non-taxable securities besides.

So too, the average merchant with his goods in sight bears an unjust proportion of taxes as measured by stocks and bonds, warehouse certificates and pipe lines hidden out of sight. All these large business interests and transactions make increased demands upon the public treasury while they contribute but little to that treasury.

For Tampanas to back their enthusiasm with their dollars; the man who waits, who hesitates, is the man who a few years from now will be saying "I remember when I could have bought that whole block for $350." And then he will most likely "borrow" a cigarette from the fellow to whom he tells his hard luck story.

The Atlantic Coast Line Railway will do some big things here this fall in the way of new terminals, new shops and other big improvements. The Coast Line is a big feeder for Sanford's commercial interests, and should be fostered in every way possible.

GIVE THE NEGRO JUSTICE.

In discussing negro migration at a meeting in Jackson, Miss., called for that purpose, Mr. W. W. Stone, former State Treasurer and a large plantation owner, is quoted as saying:

"I have lived in the delta for sixty years. I have lived among and handled negroes, and the reason why the negro is leaving Mississippi is because some white men are swindling them. I know lots of folks who have become rich in this way. They think they are fooling the negro, but they are not."

And in further reference to the subject Mr. Stone said: "Strict observance of the golden rule among but races is the only solution to the problem."

The last statement of Mr. Stone gives the only solution to world problems. Until the golden rule guides men in all of their relations with other men there will never be peace and harmony between individual men or between nations.

That negroes have been swindled by unscrupulous white men is true. They have likewise been swindled by sharp, tricky men of their own race; but that does not have the same influence upon them as being swindled by a white man. The white man who swindles a negro, or robs him of his pay, or cheats him in a trade, is meaner in soul than is the mangy, flea-bitten cur that slinks into the back alleys of Constantinople and lives on the garbage of that unclean city.

In one sense the negro race is a child race. It has many of the peculiarities of children, good and bad, needing firmness at one time, kindness and consideration at another time. Rightly treated, negroes look to the better class of whites with the same kind of feeling that the child looks to the man or woman who treats it rightly.

And yet we have had such conditions in parts of the South. There has been a disreputable, dishonest, scoundrelly element there, as elsewhere, which thrives upon robbing the inferior race not able to protect itself. It is the duty of the white people of the South of honor and integrity and morality to drive out of the South, if they can not be reformed, every white man who swindles the negroes.

THE COUNTRY EDITOR

The editor of the Herald in telling the Rotary Club about the newspaper business the other day called the Herald a country paper and some of the Rotes took exception to the "country" part of it.

"In peace or war," said Mr. Chessnut, "in prosperity or adversity, the conscience of the country press is the bulwark of the nation, and to the country editor I give all praise."

"May he and all his tribe live forever and may his spirit of optimism blossom into perpetual youth. 'As long as the country editor lives we know that all of us may enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, for he is the watchdog of our virtues, the bull elephant in the protection of the American home."

"That's saying it in the language that the country editor talks. 'That semi-serious, semi-humorous tone is right in tune with the mood in which the country editor faces the problems of each recurring week."

"But the job he works at is one of the most serious and one of the most important in the whole scheme of things. 'Go into any community that is engaged in this common task of trying to live together and you will find him the most forward looking citizen in the town."

"He is the town prophet, the seer of visions and dreamer of dreams, the inspirer of the town leaders, the strengthener of the weak, the thorn in the flesh of the town knucklers."

"Without ceasing he says to his people: 'Fear not, little flock, only have faith.' 'With wrath and indignation he denounces the doubters: 'O ye of little faith!'"

"There is not a big city in the United States that was not once only the dream of a country editor. 'There is not a metropolis that was not at one time merely 'the substance of things hoped for' by some country editor."

"There is not a great industrial center which today pushes its towers toward heaven and blackens the blue sky with the smoke of its factories which is not the magnificent validation of what was once merely the vision of some country editor."

"Wherever the country editor dwells there is at least one citizen who has his face to the rising sun. 'And to the degree that his fellow-citizens catch something of his vision and become imbued with something of his enthusiasm, to that degree is there progress."

"And yet he seldom owns much of the town for which he labors, for he seeketh not his own. 'He labors for other men and for the coming generation; for that's the way he is built. 'He joys in other men's prosperity and proclaims it to the world with rejoicing."

"For his own he cares little—a crust and a roof and an old suit of clothes for himself—and with the hope of a better lot for his children—these suffice. 'Well may President Chessnut utter the prayer that God shall love the country editor."

"God does love the country editor, for he is the very salt of the earth."

DONNELLY WRITES TO HERALD ABOUT THE PROPOSED BULKHEAD SAYS OUR GREATEST ASSET

Sanford's Finest Friend Speaks About Our Many Advantages

One of the best friends that Sanford ever had is William T. Donnelly of New York, a consulting engineer who is listened to when he speaks upon subjects with which he has been familiar for the past forty years. Mr. Donnelly is a Sanford booster for he likes Sanford and her people. He is a Sanford booster because he sees possibilities here that he sees in no other city in this country. He has spent several winters in Sanford with his beautiful yachts and enjoyed our lakes and rivers, our climate and our people and while taking his vacation was not idle. He was looking at Sanford's water front, he was looking at the river transportation, he was wondering why the people could not have the vision that he has and that other people have when they come here the first time.

FIVE ACTS OF LEGISLATURE AFFECTED INSURANCE COMPANIES ENDORSED BY TREASURER LUNING

Laws That Look Good for Policy Holders and Better Protection

TALLAHASSEE, June 18. — Five acts of the 1923 legislature, affecting insurance subjects, have been approved by the governor, and are now in effect. All of these acts were endorsed by the Insurance Department, of which Treasurer J. C. Luning is ex-officio commissioner. The first of the new measures requires that all insurance policies or bonds executed upon risks in this state by insurance companies covering liability, workmen's compensation, plate glass, steam boiler, fly wheel, engine and electrical insurance, and all bonds covering performance of contracts and judicial or fidelity instruments, bonds or policies in this state, shall be executed only by a duly authorized and licensed resident agent, the applications to be made through such agents, who shall collect the full premiums thereon, and such Florida agent shall receive the full and entire commission thereon.

STATES RIGHTS ARE UPHELD IN SPEECH AT BUNKER HILL BY REP. GARRETT, OF TENNESSEE

Would Render Unto Nation Things That Are the Nation's and Also the States

BOSTON, June 15.—A plea for a halt in the "mad rush" toward centralization of governmental functions and absorption by the federal organism of governmental power was made here today by Representative Finis J. Garrett, of Tennessee, speaking at the celebration of Bunker Hill day. The battle of Bunker Hill, nearly a century and a half ago, did not precipitate the revolution, Mr. Garrett pointed out, but, he said, it properly may be said to have initiated the revolutionary war. "It is asserted very earnestly by many historians," Mr. Garrett continued, "and by many people believed, that the seeds of the war of secession—or war of the rebellion as you may wish to call it—and except in the interest of correct governmental definitions it is not of the slightest consequence which you do call it, for the term rebellion need not be offensive to any since rebellion is simply resistance which falls; if it succeeds it is revolution; the seeds of that war were sown 250 years before the first gun was fired upon Sumter, and sown too, on the other side of the Atlantic ocean, in the contest brought on by the efforts of the stupid James I to force upon his subjects a belief in the divine right of kings, which resulted in Cromwell becoming a lord protector of the English commonwealth. "In like manner the tap root of the revolutionary war ran deep into the nearly two centuries lying behind it. After sketching the history of the revolution and the formation of the first confederation of states, Mr. Garrett declared there were two major reasons which brought the people of the new states to form the federal entity—one the realization of its necessity for the preservation of liberties so dearly purchased as against foreign aggression and the other the necessity of assuring prosperity by the free and easy exchange of commodities between the scattered commonwealths. "I am wondering," he declared, "if it be not appropriate here on this spot sacred to every lover of American institutions, hallowed forever to all to whom liberty is precious, to adjure a recollection of just what that battle was fought for and to plead for a halt in the mad rush toward centralization of governmental functions and absorption by the federal organism of governmental powers. "Disclaiming any intention of entering upon a disquisition of state's rights, the speaker said he did want to emphasize the performance of state duties by the states. "I would render unto the nation the things that are the nation's and unto the states the things that are the states, or to put it more exactly, I would have the people do through the states all the necessary governmental things that can be done there, and would have the federal arm extend only to those things and themes which the state cannot reach. "This is not, so far as I am conscious, the result of any sentiment fostered by tradition or environment, but it is because of the forged belief that any other course is fraught with danger to all our forms of freedom and threatens the bed rock of that liberty which beginning at Bunker Hill, was clinched at Yorktown. "I do not like to think of this mighty republic, fruit of the precious blood such as was spilled on this earth as, as a painting upon canvas, whose fibres if exposed to the storm of heaven will rot, or the colors of which will fade in seasons of burning sunlight. I rather wish to think of it as a great mosaic, composed of slight and yet imperishable gems, possessing all the beautiful colors and wondrous tints of nature, so cemented together with law and love and patriotic zeal as to make the great work itself indestructible, however vigorously the rains of riot may beat upon it; however fiercely the blasting sun rays of envy may seek to destroy it, however vigorously the rains of riot may beat upon it; however fiercely the blasting sun rays of envy may seek to destroy it, however strongly the tempests of human passion may assail it."

The two remaining insurance laws of the session, both departmental bills, affect the state fire insurance fund. The first limits the fund to $50,000 on any single risk, while the other, provides for the payment of premiums earned by the fund and not paid by the various state institutions in the earlier days of its establishment. Mr. Luning feels that this enactment puts the fire fund upon the proper financial basis, while the act authorizing the treasurer to issue single risks above $50,000 in fire insurance companies and associations authorized to transact business in Florida, relieves the fund of any reasonable possibility of a loss beyond its ability to pay. Mr. Luning is taking steps already for placing the excess insurance on the state capital and the supreme court building, as well as the principal buildings at the Florida State College, the Florida Farm Colony for Epileptic and Feeble Minded, the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind, the State Hospital and the University of Florida, which are the only institutions having single risks of more than $50,000. Another important feature of the law making appropriation for payment of past due premiums, is a provision, authorizing the treasurer to invest surplus moneys of the state fire insurance fund, above $50,000 cash balance, in the same classes of securities as are now purchased by the State Board of Education and the Sinking Fund Commission, that is, bonds of the United States and of Florida counties and municipalities. This will keep the insurance fund active.

The treasurer's report for the year ending December 31, 1922, showed net earnings of the fire insurance fund since its creation May 25, 1917, of $110,140.42. Fire losses incurred during that time amounted to $25,100.71. During the current year there have been no fire losses to date, and the profits of the fund have increased another $20,000 making net earnings the first six years of its existence of more than $130,000. One other act was passed at Mr.

However, he stated yesterday that the big advertising agency has been in progress of formation for months. He had the plans well in hand at the time of his departure from the newspaper. In an article just published in the Indiana University Alumni, Mr. Carr briefly explains his motive in these words: "A desire to serve Florida in what I consider a larger capacity in the establishment of a national advertising agency which shall assist in broadening the advantages of this state and its products and resources, has actuated me in this undertaking."

Frank K. Anderson, vice-president of the company, who will be closely identified with it in an advisory capacity, is one of the pioneer advertising men of the state. Last fall he resigned his connection with the Thomas Advertising Agency to go with the American Fruit Growers, Inc., with which he continues active. He has been an active, constructive factor in much of the advertising which has gone out from the state for the Florida Citrus Exchange and other institutions. The C. C. Carr Agency already is assured about $150,000 in accounts of Florida institutions, municipalities and other advertising sources to spend in newspapers this coming season, according to its president. "We believe Florida has only started its great development and that the next ten years will witness an expenditure of money to advertise our advantages on a scale not even dreamed of at present. We are not intending to antagonize any other agencies but are confident that we can assist the good ones already in the state by developing accounts which are not now spending advertising money in sufficient quantities or are not spending it at all," the president continued.

Miss Etta Kilma, secretary of the company, who will have direct charge of the New York office, is an experienced agency woman in executive position in agency work. A fine beginning for any day. Batter Cakes made with MERRY WIDOW Self-Rising Flour are uniformly light and good, and it is just as easy as any breakfast you can prepare. Try this recipe: 3 cups of MERRY WIDOW Flour, two well beaten eggs and sweet or buttermilk to make a thin drop batter. Bake at once on a hot griddle. Be sure and make the batter thin and beat well. MERRY WIDOW Self-Rising Flour is made by the Ford Flour Company, millers since 1895, the originators of self-rising flour. In spite of the many imitations, it is holding its old friends and making new ones every day. Here's the proof—over 600,000 more bags of MERRY WIDOW were used in 1922 than in 1921. Try it. You will never change. Ask for it by name. Ford Flour Co., Nashville, Tenn. Made in England. If your jobber doesn't handle MERRY WIDOW Self-Rising Flour, write us for name of jobber nearest you who does. "The Flour Without a Doubt!"

Firpo Knocks Out Hibbard in Second

MEXICO CITY, Mex., June 18.—Luis Angel Firpo yesterday afternoon knocked out Jim Hibbard, an American heavyweight, in the second round. The fight, which was to have been twenty rounds, hardly gave the large crowd which had gathered in the bull ring, a chance to warm up from the chilly rainfall. The rain fell heavily before the boxer entered the ring and the fight promoters decided they would call off the bout. There was a riotous demonstration by the spectators, however, and the fighters were forced to carry out their part of the program.

THE STRIKE TRAGEDY.

In cautioning iron and steel workers against over-use of the strike, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis says:
"Let us be slow to use the strike weapon. The tragedy of every strike it seems to me, is that ultimately it is settled by negotiation or compromise. After men have been idle for months, after women and children have been brought down to the last crust of bread, the representatives of both sides get together around the counsel table and reach settlement. They go right back to where they were when the months of misery began and in almost every case both the worker and the employer have lost by the conflict. Instead of conference after months of industrial battle, I would have counsel before the strike is called."

More Than One Hundred Million Pounds of Food and Seed Grain a Month Has Been Shipped to Russia for Famine Aid

No single figure can give a better idea of the magnitude of the operation of the American Relief Administration than the tonnage of food supplies and seed grain that it has bought from the American producer and shipped in American bottoms since the beginning of its operations late in August, 1922. In less than 18 months that figure was very close to one million tons, or two billion pounds. The exact tonnage was 912,121 up to March 26, 1923, which, reduced to pounds, would give 1,824,242,000, or an average of more than one hundred million pounds a month.

Corn-Fed Russian Waifs Are Living Testimonials to Success of American Relief Administrations Activities

These round-faced, plump cheeked boys and girls are all American-fed salvage from the Russian famine. They come from the Ufa district in the Ural region where last year famine conditions were at the worst. The photograph, taken in March, 1923, in the Central children's home at Sterlitamak, was recently received by the American Relief Administration from W. L. Bell, the American supervisor of the district. "A year ago," Mr. Bell writes, "these children were sleeping six to eight in a bed, without clothes, without blankets, and many were starving for want of food or freezing for want of fuel. This year they are clothed, warm, fat and happy. The home was supplied with wood collected by adult famine victims who received an American corn ration in return for their labor, food was furnished for the children by the American Relief Administration, as was also the bedding shown in the picture."

FINED TRIBUTE TO OUR GLORIOUS FLAG.

The annual flag day exercises conducted by the Elks may be justly acclaimed as among the most potent agencies in our national life in the culture and maintenance of the spirit of patriotism. These exercises are always held in public in order that the good influence may extend beyond the membership of this intensely patriotic organization. The very foundation of the order is based and firmly built on the ideals which the glorious old flag—the flag which has never been unfurled in an unworthy cause and which has never faded in defeat—typifies. The ritual for these services is beautiful and impressive, and the ceremonies were conducted by the officers of Tampa lodge Thursday evening very creditably. The organization had provided a most appropriate setting for the ceremonies, and it was evident that the large audience enjoyed and was in hearty sympathy with the occasion.

from all quarters by the American Relief Administration under the direction of Herbert Hoover, for distribution in Russia under its agreed control will, up to the close of the present program after the coming harvest, amount to upwards of $60,000,000. No money went out of the country.
