

New Third Party To Make Bids For Liberal Voters

LaFollette Says Progressives Are Not Given Square Deal

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
WASHINGTON — Ask young Bob LaFollette what this new National Progressive party is all about, and he tells you it is primarily a personal invitation to Mr. Liberal Voter who doesn't feel at home with the Democrats and Republicans. No disgruntled Socialists or Communists need apply.

Senator Bob LaFollette and his brother, Governor Phil, co-founders of the party, are practical politicians; they know the radical stamp is no good for all around vote getting anywhere in the United States.

Then ask Young Bob why the baby party was launched at this particular time, and you'll get a lot of interesting reasons that haven't yet appeared on the record.

"Fact is," explains Young Bob seriously, "a real American liberal is not getting a square deal from either of the major political parties right now. The conservative wings of both the Democratic and Republican parties are playing hob with President Roosevelt's progressive 1936 platform. The Democratic party in particular is divided, and the program the party pledged itself to carry out is in danger."

Young Bob tells you he thinks a majority of voters in this country approved the Roosevelt 1936 platform when they re-elected the New Deal President. He believes the conservatives are sabotaging that program—the same conservatives who pledged themselves to carry it out.

"We are assuming," he goes on, "that the majority still wants a liberal, progressive program and they want it as soon as they can get it. We simply are offering them the opportunity to get the job done."

"Only the broadest outline of a platform has been presented. Details, candidates—all of that comes later, depending on the support we get. Principles we have stated. The program itself must come to us from the people who want this party."

Young Bob takes off his horn-rimmed glasses. He looks for all the world like a business man discussing a sales campaign—not at all like a spell-binder trying to work up the emotions of voters.

"The demand for this party is right here," he says, waving his hand toward the Senate. "It has been growing for a long time. Why, in my 13 years on Capitol Hill, I have seen one single strictly party vote. Ask any Congressman what his politics is, he won't tell you he's a Democrat or a Republican, he'll tell you what kind of a Democrat or Republican he is. When parties get that way, they are no longer hanging together."

"But you can't expect a new political party to grow like Toppsy. Somebody has to write a general outline. We have only made a beginning. We have no specific campaigns in mind. We don't have our eyes glued on 1938, 1940 or even '41. We are not hooked up to any time schedule. We hope and believe that a majority of the voters want to express themselves, want to feel that their vote will count."

So, says Senator Bob, the progressives who supported Roosevelt in 1936 are still for Roosevelt. They merely are against the Democratic party. They think it is killing the Roosevelt program.

You feel the new Progressive party would like to run Roosevelt for President in 1940 if he wants to take the chance. But Young Bob won't talk names and dates. He is aping to a host land of voters and he does not want to give any liberal a reason not to look into the new party plans.

This movement really is the third appearance of a progressive party that began stirring the soil back in 1919, when such Republicans as old Fighting Bob LaFollette, George Steiwer, William E. Borah and Hiram Johnson were throwing political monkey wrenches into their own party's machinery.

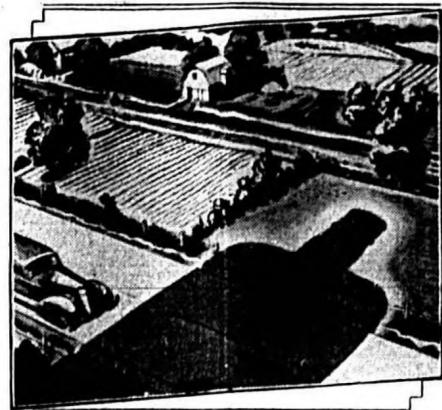

In those days, Theodore Roosevelt, for one, and Woodrow Wilson, for another, saw the ideals of these men making an impression on a broad section of the nation's voters.

Roosevelt warned the Republicans, and Wilson warned the Democrats. Roosevelt was willing to lead the Republicans into progressive channels, and Wilson was a candidate for President under the banner of the "new freedom."

The Democrats heeded Wilson but the Republicans rejected Roosevelt, so he ran as the head of the Progressive party ticket. Wilson won, and the combined vote of the two "progressive" candidates Wilson and Roosevelt was more than 7,000,000 ahead of the regular Republican Taft.

Then came the war and its aftermath of confusing economic ups and downs. It was not until 1921 that the genuine progressive

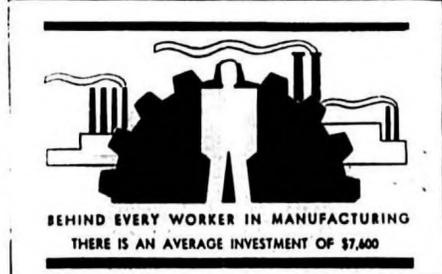

A Dangerous Shadow On Our Highways

Of all drivers involved in fatal accidents last year, 7.3 per cent had been drinking. This is neither worse nor better than the 1936 record.

Of all pedestrians killed last year, 12.9 per cent had been drinking. This figure may be compared with 11.2 per cent in 1936. These figures are based on a broad spread of official state reports and are offered by The Travelers Insurance Company as the best information available on the subject. The accuracy of the picture presented by the statistics will be questioned because reporting methods differ in the various states, and because of differences of opinion as to what constitutes drunkenness.

movement put in its second appearance. This time, old Fighting Bob scorned the two major parties, and carried the banner alone. He polled 5,000,000 votes—a mere drop in the bucket.

In 1938 political confusion comes again. The American Labor party has real strength in New York state. Straw polls indicate Roosevelt popularity falling off slightly in the Far West and South. And here comes that same old progressive movement jockeying its head above the surface, headed by the sons of old fighting Bob.

It looks as though the progressive movement is a perennial on a hardy perennial at that.

President And LaFollette Go On Yacht Trip

Leader Of 3rd Party Movement Is Guest Aboard Potomac On Weekend Expedition

Hull Ignores Rap Of Il Duce At U. S.

Hugo Eckener Pleads With Ickes For Removal Of Gas Ban

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt invited Senator LaFollette (Progressive-Wis.), a figure in the Progressive third party movement, to accompany him on a weekend yacht trip down the Potomac today.

Mrs. LaFollette, Senator Green (Dem.-R. I.), administration champion, and Mrs. James Roosevelt, the president's daughter-in-law were included in the party leaving in the early afternoon on the yacht Potomac. Meanwhile, Secretary Hull declined to comment today on Premier Mussolini's accusation that the world's great democracies are forming blocs against the totalitarian states.

This government's policies, Hull said, are continuing on the same Democratic principles traditional to United States history. Dr. Hugo Eckener told Secretary Ickes today he did not consider ten million cubic feet of helium to be of "military importance" and said he hoped the latter would reconsider his determination not to sell the non-explosive gas to Germany.

The veteran dirigible commander appeared unharmed at the Interior Department and after a 15-minute chat with Ickes hurried out of the building. Ickes made no comment other than that Eckener had "presented views" already publicly credited to him.

One such expression is that Germany must discontinue dirigible passenger flights unless the seppelin works can obtain helium.

Verdict Returned By Coroner's Jury In Fatal Shooting

A coroner's jury yesterday found that J. T. Wayner, a negro, who died in Fernhill Lighthouse Memorial Hospital Wednesday night, came to his death as the result of being shot by Frank King, another negro.

King, who was arrested by Constable McMillen, is being held in the County Jail for trial. Officers said that Wayner was shot while King and another negro were engaged in a scuffle. King produced a pistol and fired but the shot was deflected and the bullet hit Wayner.

The incident took place about 11:30 Wednesday night at the Chester Allen Shop on Tenth and Cypress Avenue. Witnesses were Clyde Thomas, Chester Allen, Louis Houston, Grant Bacon, William Brown and Bernice Hill.

Composing the coroner's jury were W. O. Woodruff, A. Taylor, John L. Judson, Emmett McCall, Bert Long, C. H. Schaffer and coroner J. C. Roberts.

German Net Star Gets Sentence Of One Year

BERLIN, May 11.—(AP)—Bayer Gottfried von Cramm, Germany's top-ranking tennis star, was sentenced to a year in prison for violation of the Nazi moral delinquency statute.

Von Cramm, son of a highly placed German family, was found guilty of improper relations with an 18-year-old Jewish youth, Menasse Herber, who was sentenced to Jerusalem in 1934.

His Choice: Longer Term And Less Work

James M. Price, of Memphis, Tenn., who accepted a 15 year state penitentiary sentence in preference to five years in the workhouse because he feared the work would be lighter, is shown taking his case in the Shelby county jail at Memphis. In the state prison Price pointed out, "I will not have to work as hard and the hours are shorter. I'll be like a vacation." He pleaded guilty to participating in a $112 robbery.

Half Of State's Crop Revenues Is From Citrus

Florida's Position As Grapefruit Center Menaced By Texas

Florida grapefruit, oranges, and tangerines account for nearly 50 percent of the total income from all crops grown in the state, according to information received today in a bulletin by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Florida has long ranked first as the main center of grapefruit production, the bulletin says. In the five years ending with the 1923-24 season, Florida produced 94 percent of the total United States supply. In the next five seasons, the state produced 80 percent of the total. The proportion of Florida grapefruit fell to 77 percent of the total supply in the 5 years ending with the 1931-32 season.

Texas, the bulletin says, has recently become a serious contender for the title of the greatest grapefruit producing state as very sharp increases in grapefruit production have taken place there. Gains have also taken place in the California-Arizona area.

Figures quoted show that in the 1934-35 season, Florida produced 59 percent of the total United States supply, and in the 1937-38 season the Florida crop is estimated to be less than 50 percent of the total.

The annual net value of the crop in the past six seasons is estimated, has represented about 28 percent of the total value of all citrus fruit grown in Florida. In the period from 1925-26 through 1930-31, the Florida net value of grapefruit averaged $12,150,000. The value of the crop reached a low point in the 1931-32 season, dropping to approximately $4,400,000. Since the 1931-32 season, the net value of Florida grapefruit has averaged about $9,000,000.

United States production of grapefruit during most of the period from the 1919-20 season to the 1927-28 season was fairly stable, averaging around 4,000,000 boxes, the bulletin continued. Practically all of the fruit was grown in Florida and production in Texas and other areas was of minor importance.

The first big crop after that period came in the 1928-29 season when 12,254,000 boxes were produced, of which Florida had 11,314,000 boxes. Texas had around 750,000 boxes of grapefruit. The crop in the 1929-30 season fell to 11,601,000 boxes, but in the 1930-31 season jumped to 13,324,000 boxes.

"Of this amount Florida had 12,100,000 boxes, a drop 75 percent greater than the previous Government Post Office.

Celery Board Discontinues Restrictions

Secretary Wallace May Call Referendum To Decide On Continuation Of Control

In view of the high shipments in prospect for next week, and continuing through the remainder of the season, members of the Celery Industry Control Committee at their final meeting last night recommended to the Secretary of Agriculture that all restrictions of celery shipment be ended for this season.

The committee also voted to end the work of the committee for J. C. Lottice, secretary, and to let the control committee offices remain open for several more weeks pending final report on the operation of the committee and on the Florida celery industry for the past season.

Whether or not the Celery Marketing Agreement will continue in effect for another season is a question which has not as yet been definitely determined.

It is understood that a petition signed by disinterested growers has been sent to Secretary Wallace calling for a new referendum of celery growers to find out whether they wish to operate under the agreement for another year.

According to the terms of the plan, the marketing agreement could be in force until the growers vote otherwise.

Mr. Lottice stated that it is more probable that the Secretary of Agriculture will call for public hearings on the matter and a new referendum of growers following the petition, in order that the growers may decide on the continuation of the agreement or of any changes they wish to make in the present pact.

Mr. Lottice also indicated that a meeting of those interested in the celery industry may be called for Lakeland if the continuation of the agreement is desired by a majority. At this meeting those engaged in the industry will be allowed to make suggestions for amendments which would be sent to Washington for approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

R. B. Chapman, grower member of the committee, presided over the meeting here last night in the absence of Chairman J. C. Hutchison.

Blaze Behind Store Impairs Telephones

A fire about 8:25 last night behind Riley's Grocery Store was extinguished before it could do any real damage. Fire Chief Mack Cleveland reported today. However, a phone cable was damaged disrupting service in a number of phones.

The Fire Department was called to put out another fire this morning at the Sanford Novelty Works. Sawdust and trash had become ignited and threatened to damage the shops, it was said, but after about an hour flames managed to quell the flames.

Habits Of White Pelican Are Told By Audubon Head

Mason Throws Side-Lights On Zoo's Recent Addition

The white pelican was reported yesterday to be in Florida but the record books have not been checked, declared C. R. Mason, president of the Florida Audubon Society today throwing new side-lights on the Zoo's recently acquired white pelican.

Mr. Mason asserted in a letter to The Herald that it is certain that the bird breeds only in the western state now.

However, he said, it is a regular, though not common, straggler to Florida where it is found mainly along the coasts in small flocks, and not only is it found in winter but non-breeding birds come through the summer, so that this interesting bird has been reported in Florida practically every month of the year.

"The nesting range of the bird is the latter end of the Florida coast, from south of British Columbia, Great Slave Lake, and south-western Keewatin to Manitoba, North Dakota, Utah and Southern California. White pelicans are a common sight along the Snake River in Idaho, in the Klamath Lake region of Oregon, and may be found in Yellowstone Park as well as in a limited area in Texas."

Florida residents and visitors may sometimes find a few of the white pelicans, Mr. Mason explained, at the Brown Pelican rookery on Merritt Island east of Titusville, for many years under the protection of the sanctuary of the Florida Audubon Society.

While the brown pelican dives for his food, the larger white bird scoops up fish as he swims along in the shallow water.

Mr. Mason asserted that one of the largest flocks ever reported in Florida was seen by a party of Sanford and Winter Park bird observers as they searched for birds during the Christmas season of 1934, a magnificent flock of about 180 birds.

"The white pelicans," the letter continued, "often visit fresh as well as salt waters and consequently may occasionally reach the lakes of Seminole County. There are but three records printed in the Seminole County bird list available at the Chamber of Commerce. These report four birds seen by John Dighton on Lake Jessup in January, 1933, as indicated report from Lake Harney by Francis Riley; and a flock of 16 birds observed flying over Sanford during the winter of 1933 by Sam Dighton and Francis Riley.

So many stars in the infant space—
So many worlds in the light of God's face.
So many storms are the thunders

So many paths to the portals of peace.
So many years, so many tears—
So many sorrows and pangs and

So many ships in the desolate

So many harbors, and only one

So many creeds like the weeds

So many temples, but only one

But left me none the wiser,
For all she had to say.
I walked a mile with Sorrow,
And never a word said she;
But, oh, the things I learned from her.

JOY, SHIPMATE, JOY

Joy, shipmate, joy!
(Pleased to my soul at death I cry)
Our life is closed, our life begins.
The long, long anchor we leave,
The ship is clear at last, she leaps!
The swiftly courses from the shore,
Joy, shipmate, joy!

—Walt Whitman

Sanford's new lake front park

were wrong.—Phil Barney, Tampa

Security Act assured us would be possible, we preserve them as a convenient refuge for sweepers and small business men.

A prominent Sanford business man tells us that he expects business will be better in Sanford this summer than last. Not many farmers will be able to go away this year, he says, and while they will not spend much except for necessities, they have got to eat and buy, and thus will actually spend more here than when they go away for the summer after a prosperous season.

There'll be no American bel-liever to fly German eagles over London and Paris in the next war. Secretary Ickes in effect tells Dr. Ekerhart where to head in when he says Germany wants it for non-military purposes attly, and without American helms, they have to use hydrogen, a highly inflammable gas which explodes when hit by incendiary bullets. Americans, however, could fly dirigibles with helium.

City Beautification

With most of the pipe for the sprinkling system in place, and about half of the muck already laid, work is progressing rapidly on the City's new Fort Mellon Park located on the lake front. Within a short time the planting of some 2,300 trees and shrubs on this 11 acre plot will begin and one of the City's outstanding beauty spots will be created.

This particular project involving an expenditure of $30,000 does not include all of the land lying between Sanford Avenue and the Mayfair Hotel, but only the western end. Plans are being made for a new project involving the beautification of the rest of it so that the entire area between the Avenue and the Hotel will eventually be one magnificent park.

Such beautification is an asset to the City which is invaluable. Not only does it provide a pleasant place for residents to gather and enjoy the fresh air, sunshine and flowers, but it is an attraction for tourists without which no city can expect to develop into a resort. Every winter visitor wants to spend his vacation in a place which is beautiful.

In connection with the development of the remaining part of this area, Heyward Walker has made what seems to us an admirable suggestion. It is proposed to construct a pool somewhere in the park and Mr. Walker recommends that instead of the regulation quadrangular concrete tank, a small pond, or artificial lake, something on the order of Sanlando Springs, with a white sandy beach, be created.

This it seems to us would enhance immeasurably the beauty of the park. There is nothing particularly attractive about an ordinary swimming pool, but we believe everyone who has seen Sanlando Springs will agree that it is one of the outstanding beauty spots in the county. A miniature Sanlando Springs in Fort Mellon Park would prove an attraction which few could resist.

While on the subject of beautification, we would like to add that our efforts should not stop with the park on the lake front. Other parks should be developed, and to this end Mrs. Henry Wight has already made a splendid beginning. Something should be done to beautify the grounds around the Big Tree. And every resident should take a personal pride in beautifying his own grounds.

There is a lot to this subject of beautification when it comes to attracting tourists and helping business, as our sister city to the south can well attest.

The RFC Loan Policy

The Herald is indebted to Senator C. O. Andrews for the latest bulletin of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on information regarding loans to business enterprises.
In view of the fact that much of this information might be of interest to local businessmen we submit the following brief resume:

Loans will be made by the corporation for the purpose of buying materials required in the business and for the payment of labor employed therein, for the purchase of machinery, for new business enterprises, or for the expansion of old ones under certain circumstances, for industrial construction, for the liquidation of indebtedness where reasonable assurance is given of continuous operation.

Applications for loans are considered whether from a corporation, partnership, or individual. The interest rate is fixed from time to time by the corporation. The maturity dates for loans are established by the corporation in each particular case. A program of payments is also established by the corporation according to individual needs.

No loans are extended by the corporation which could be procured elsewhere. No loans will be made except in cases where in the opinion of the corporation's board, the business enterprise is solvent. No loans will be made except when in the opinion of the board they are of sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure retirement or repayment.

The corporation is also empowered to make loans to cities, counties and other political subdivisions in aid of financing projects authorized under federal, state or municipal law for the purpose of "maintaining and promoting the economic stability of the country or encouraging the employment of labor."

In this connection it is interesting to note that in the six years of its existence the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has lent approximately six billion dollars;
$3,198,000,000 to banks; $1,402,000,000 to agriculture;
$581,000,000 to building and loan associations; $344,000, 000 to railroads; $435,000,000 to cities and counties; and $121,000,000 to business organizations.

The corporation's headquarters in Florida are located in Jacksonville.

CANDLELIGHT

By NINA OLIVER DEAN

"Animal crackers and cocoa to drink
That is the finest of suppers.
I think,
When I'm grown up and can have what I please
I think I shall always insist upon these."

Most of us have gone a long way up the gustatory road since we agreed with the small boy in Christopher Morley's poem that animal crackers and cocoa is the finest of suppers. Not long ago in a rather lyrical justification of "finest suppers," some one asked me, "What's the best place you ever ate?"

Naturally this very provocative question set us all rambling and before the evening was over we had come to the conclusion that the world "best place to eat" is a difficult phrase to define, for it can mean so many things. It is made up of so many elements—from just the amount of devotion with which the chef rubs the wooden salad bowl with garlic to the color of the table cover, and the number of stars you can see through the window, and how you happened to feel about life on that particular day.

I know that my reverence for the famed "Louisiana" is made up partly of the joyful excitement felt when I was taken as a child on shopping trips to New Orleans. To this day, when I think of good food, I think of the "Louisiana" of the lame old waiter, "Louis Philippe," with his welcoming smile of the savory kitchen redolent with bay leaves and wine sauces which we invaded to make our compliments to the chef, and of that superb dish, a glorious offspring of the union of the cuisinier tradition of cookery with the deep South—shrimp creole.

Louis Philippe brought in the platter with just the proper mixture of dignity and flourish, a mound of snowy rice—gilded with shrimp made ruddy by the "Louisiana's" special sauce, and the air all around was filled with the titillating accents of mushrooms, almonds, ripe olives, butter-fried onions and shrimp. Of course, as a youngster, I was only allowed a taste, but that was unforgettable. It was here at the "Louisiana," and at Antoine's and Gatolot's too in New Orleans
that I first tasted Grenouille's Mariniere, frog legs cooked golden brown with a sauce of white wine and chives. But some how be they ever so glorified, I have never acquired the taste for frog legs.

In Charleston, at the big rambling yellow-painted Fort Sumter Hotel with its slow unhurried charm and its inevitable exhibitions in one of the old drawing rooms, there can be had another honored dish, shrimp pie. An imported Alsatian chef, Achilles, is the presiding genius here, and the secret of shrimp pie is—don't be horrified—hot hominy! The idea is closely akin to the old Charleston custom of serving spoon bread with shrimp.

A New England dinner that I remember with particular joy was the Saturday night ritual of baked beans and brown bread observed at the Wayside Inn in Sudbury, Massachusetts. Some of the perfection of this old place of Henry Ford's must have added zest to the meal because although I love Boston dearly from the time I was in the Public Garden to the purple pages on Beacon Hill, I have never been able before or since to work up such a glow over baked beans. Perhaps it was the charm of the quaint old kitchen with its mellow wood and its pewter plates around the wall; perhaps it was the prim pattern of the early American glassware on the table or the honest gaze of the square dance we had in the little music room where Mr. Ford doesn't allow round dancing. It may be that what put the final bloom on those beans wasn't even in the house at all, but outside under the young May moon in the blossoming lilac in a high walled garden.

A bon party at the Wayside Inn was memorable for the Walden's Pudge cake. Of course, it was too heavy for tea, but what do school girls care? It was dark, crumbly, and delicious, with an icing so rich and thick that it was almost like candy.
The cake was added the benefit of candle light on fresh young faces, an open fire, warm comfortable tea, gay chatter, and frothy gusts of air occasionally as the door opened and let in groups of red-headed students with a fine powder of snow on their shoulders.

Within the sacred portals of the Algonquin Club, that citadel of gourmet, I had supper of Crisp's cream from Portland, the finest I ever ate, and the
"Crabapple" and the "Vinegar" were also excellent.

Down in Greenwich Village several years ago, I used to live a little while in the "Crabapple,"
the finest I ever ate, and the
"Crabapple" and the "Vine-
gar" were also excellent.

WHO SHALL CALL THE TUNE?

By WALTER LIPPMANN

It is evident that what interests
Congress in the new spending bill is whether the President is to have the final say in each Congressional district about how much is to be spent and for what.
There will be speeches denouncing the extravagance and the deficit.
But in so far as there is effective opposition to the program, it will come from those Republicans and Democrats who object to letting the President spend the political power that flows from being able to give and to withhold large sums of money. If each Congressman could control the spending in his own district, there would be very few Congressmen in either party who voted against it.

This is a pork barrel, and the real issue is whether it shall be a Presidential pork barrel or a Congressional pork barrel.

There is no doubt that there is a great issue. The practices in Alabama and in Florida show that every practical politician knows that whoever controls the allocation of billions of dollars is virtually unbeatable in an ordinary election. Thus it is no accident that the decline of the Roosevelt administration in Congress, in the period from the defeat of the reorganization bill, coincided with the exhaustion of PWA and other federal funds. The revival of his authority in the Alabama primary coincides with the decision to revive the spending program.

For whatever the voters may feel about spending in the abstract, there are very few voters who do not insist on having their share of it as they can. If they think the whole thing is wrong but they expect the money to be spent anyway, they realize that it must contribute to it in some way. And so they want to get as much of it as they can. If they are to get their share, they must elect a representative who can get it, and since representatives who stand well at the White House are sure to get more than those who do not, the President's men have every advantage.

Within a constituency the pressure to get Federal money when Federal money is to be had is stronger than almost any other pressure. It does not come merely from the direct recipients of relief and Federal jobs. It comes overwhelmingly from the local politicians in the cities and the counties who for years now have been balancing their budgets with grants from the White House.

The conference of mayors in one of the greatest lobbies in the history of the country. It has been created by the Federal spending program which from the point of view of any mayor is a politician's dream of paradise: To get great sums of money for schools, bridges, sewers, highways, swimming pools without having to raise the local tax rate, to be able to spend magnificently without asking the local voters to pay for the magnificence, is what a politician can do at last where a politician can do his cake and eat it too. As long, therefore, as this spending power is under Presidential control, the local Democratic machines must be under Presidential control, and the local Republican machines cannot afford to make too bold a fight.

The indirect and more or less unconscious effects of the Presidential pork barrel are perhaps even greater. For consider the practical demonstrations of the past eighteen months. In 1936 huge spending, great apparent prosperity, and a Presidential landslide; in 1937 reduced spending, renewed depression, and a Congressional revolt. Give only the ordinary capacity of human nature to prefer the own interest, it is hard to see why the political beneficiaries of spending in 1936 are not able to become deeply interested in the kind of recovery which would make public spending unnecessary.

To promote a true recovery based on a resumption of private industry, the chief of the Mayor at Richmond Center can send in Sigmund Freudian that would make even Hitler cry for it.
Some Palmer's Opium Bill seems the way from the International Building house orange rolls that any Florida housekeeper would be proud to serve, and of course there's always the hot judge sundae and chicken pie of Schmitt's.

The very spectacle of the gourmet's come to be Theodore Tilton, a quiet well-served place where the food is perfection. The chef Duchene and the small plous-ant head waiter Josef are high priests in the temple, and you can have galathea of goose, Strasbourg foie gras, sautee Trompeur or anything else and know that it will be poetry.

What is the best place you ever ate? It's a difficult question but after all, it isn't so hard to answer. Don't most of us like best what we had when we were little at home? Suppose the food is glorified by many other things connected with it. I do think the
"Crabapple" and the "Vine-
gar" were also excellent.

D.A.R. Chapter Given Luncheon Yesterday

Mrs. L. P. Hagan and Mrs. Gordon Cherry were hostesses yesterday at a luncheon, honoring the Sallie Harrison Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which they gave at their home on Park Avenue.

The rooms where the guests were received were a lovely setting, being adorned with roses and ferns, and the hostesses assisted by Mrs. Robert Hagan and Mrs. Byron Stephens, served luncheon to about 25 members and guests.

During the business session which followed the luncheon, presided over by Mrs. W. B. Ballard, several officers were elected for the coming year.

The new officers of the chapter are as follows: president, Mrs. Ballard, vice-president, Mrs. H. D. Caswell, recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Ray, treasurer, Mrs. L. P. Hagan, corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. H. Ray, Miss Irene Hinton, reporter, Mrs. Martin Beam, librarian, Mrs. W. L. Henley, chaplain, Mrs. J. F. Lehman, and financial chairman, Mrs. W. C. Hill.

On the advisory board are Mrs. R. L. Dean, Mrs. M. S. Wiggins, and Mrs. Val Lovell.

An interesting report and letter were read from Mrs. S. P. Poffett, who is representing the chapter as delegate to the Continental Congress, held in Washington recently. Annual reports of the officers and committee chairmen were read.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Miss Julia Madden, beautiful and willful ward of General Bogardus, gives a reception at her home during Mardi Gras week to entertain her engagement to Fred Dillard, a young banker. She does many things to anger him and to shock society. He refuses to take her to the Proteus Ball dressed in red and she tries to get back control — a former actor who has just fought a duel for her sake — to take her, but he refuses. She goes to the ball with Fred and afterward an infatuated film star that he leaves town. He comes back in a year when yellow fever is raging in New Orleans. Julia rushes to him to beg his forgiveness but he introduces the wife he has brought from the North. Outraged, Julia decides, by fair means or foul, to win back his love.

CHAPTER VI

"Good morning, ladies! What got you up so early?" Julie burst radiantly into the drawing room where Aunt Belle and Amy waited so anxiously. She wore an attractive gown and carried flower shears and a basket of roses, and Zetta, the mulatto girl, followed her.

Will... I must call you, Fred... for Amy...

"Why should I?" Young Ted Dillard suddenly stood in the doorway, stacing with grim accusation at Julie, the smiling pistol still in his hand. Behind him loomed General Bogardus, and Dick, one of the guests. Amy ran to the bed crying out his name, and he gripped her arm reassuringly for a moment, and then crossing to Julie, tossed the gun on the table before her.

"I believe my guests have decided to stay a little longer!" The grim company was at the evening meal when a wildly disheveled negro staggered in to say that Fred had been arrested and that old Dr. Livingstone had taken him to the General's home. The negro had hidden in a case-brake, he said, till nightfall, and made his way down river on a stolen boat.

Locals Drop Contest To Gainesville By 8 to 6 Score

Holland's Homer In Eighth Scores 3 Lookout Runs

G-Men Tally Five Runs In Initial Inning To Take Big Lead

By JULIAN SPENSTROM
Herald Sports Editor

Friday 13 proved to be an unlucky day for Bill "Red" Mead, Rodgers as his charges, under his direction for the first time, bowed to the Gainesville G-Men last night by a score of 8 to 6 in a thrill-packed ball game.

The fans got their money's worth in the eighth inning when Big Fred Holland cracked one over the left field wall with two mates on board to reduce the lead of the G-Men.

Charlie Atwater started for the Lookouts but was knocked out in the first inning when the G-Men combined three hits, one error and three walks for a total of five runs. Pinder came in to relieve Atwater and hurled the remainder of the game, allowing the G-Men only six hits which proved good for three runs.

Art Bloom started for the visitors and hurled six innings of hitless baseball before he could be reached for a bingle. Bloom was taken out in the eighth frame and replaced by McNamara who pitched to the remaining four men and ended the game.

Baiting honors for the evening went to Jack Devincenzi who hit safely three times in four trips to the platter. The three hits included a single, double and a triple. Holland took second honors with a double and a circuit clout in four times to the platter. He scored two of the Lookout runs and batted in four.

The feature play of the game was by Pinder. In the ninth frame when Devincenzi tripled Bloom attempted to squeeze him in, but Pinder made a diving catch of the ball and threw to the plate in time to nab Devincenzi. Win Brown made two neat catches in the right field when he went into the deep portions of that territory to rob the G-Men of extra base blows.

The scoring activities began in the initial inning when the visitors secured five runs. Gray walked, McMullen fled out to Ruggiero, Gallagher singled to right, Bray was safe when Watts misused a ground ball, scoring Gray. Livingston walked to fill the seats, Devincenzi walked to score Gallagher and Rodgers fled out to Carlock for the second out. Staub singled to center to score Bray and Livingston and Bloom's single to left scored Devincenzi.

The G-Men scored again in the half of the seventh when Gray tripled and scored on Devincenzi's single. The Lookouts came back in their half of the seventh and brought the stands to life.

Holland doubled to left field to Sanford's first hit of the out game. He scored when Carlock singled to center field and Carlock scored when Hudson doubled to left field. Watts doubled to right field to score Hudson but Watts was abbed at third attempting to make an extra base on the play.

The G-Men tallied another one run in the eighth when Rodgers walked with two out and scored when Hudson dropped Gray's pop fly. The Lookouts again came back to life in the eighth. Ruggiero led off with a single to left field. Clark singled to right field sending Ruggiero to second.

Brown fled out to McMullen and Mihalic fled out to left field. Holland then clouted a home run over the left field wall and three runs crossed the plate.

However, the G-Men scored one in the ninth on a single by McNamara and errors by Pinder and Carlock.

Sanford Theater News for the Coming Week

'Jezebel' Finds Most Pleasure In Having Men Fight Over Her

No young actress of the screen seems to be quite so excellent in the portrayal of selfish, impetuous, but-tempered (and sometimes even nasty) girls, as Bette Davis, the blonde Warner Bros. star.

She comes to the Ritz Theatre tomorrow and Monday where she appears in "Jezebel," colorful drama of the old Deep South, the locale being New Orleans of the early 1850's, a decade before the Civil War.

The audience which will view "Jezebel" should find it even more exciting than her recent "Marked Woman" or "Dangerous" for which she won the 1936 Academy award, or even her celebrated "Of Human Bondage" with Leslie Howard.

She plays the part of Julia, completely spoiled and self-centered young socialite of the Southern city. She is given the same name as the notorious, wicked woman of Biblical lore because she defies all the traditions of the place and age. She drinks, she smokes, she toys with men's hearts, and her greatest pleasure lies in having men fight over her.

The chief suitor, played by Henry Fonda, quarrels with her over this and goes to the north for other admirer, George Brent, a reckless young blade carries on with his courtship.

The great epidemic of yellow fever strikes New Orleans a year later. Fonda is sent back to the city from New York to take charge of a bank. Meanwhile, he has married, his bride being the lovely, dark-haired Margaret Lindsay. He has always been Julia's best enemy and when he is killed in a duel, all of his affection goes back to Fonda.

His wife, realizing this, steps into his shoes in favor and it is the latter who accompanies him to a quarantine island in the Mississippi when he is stricken by fever.

Marital Troubles Of Newlyweds Is Depicted In Film

Starring Ginger Rogers and James Stewart as a new romantic team, "Vivacious Lady," a sparkling, fast-moving comedy, plays Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre and should prove to be one of the screen's gayest recent offerings.

The film, a vehicle for blon-haired Ginger Rogers, whose recent triumph was in "Stage Door," and for James Stewart, who scored decisively opposite Simone Simon in "Seventh Heaven," and later in "Wife versus Secretary," "After He Thinks of Her," "Reas Marie" and others.

The breezy story concerns itself with the early marital troubles of two newlyweds, one of whom is a brilliant professor of law at a small college, and the other a vivacious night club beauty born and reared in the dizzy whirl of Broadway. Their contrasting personalities, backgrounds and ambitions back them to each other, and after a hasty marriage, they return to the young man's home town to settle down. But the shy instructor loses his nerve when it becomes time to introduce his intolerant father to his bride, so she agrees to pose temporarily as a friend of her husband's playboy cousin.

The efforts of the young couple to keep up the deception is the theme of this hilarious story, which is counterpointed by the plans of the groom's former fiancée to have an early wedding, and the irresponsible cousin's frank campaign to seal the affections of the lonesome bride. The complications which result build to a convulsive climax, with the frantic professor and his heretofore submissive mother openly rebelling against the tyranny of the old man—to provide one of the funniest sequences in the picture.

In addition to the stars, the RKO Radio cast includes James Ellison, as the playboy cousin, Charles Coburn, as the domineering father, Evelyn Knapp, as the weak-willed mother, Frances Mercer, as Stewart's jealous fiancée.

CORN-ON-THE-COB COMRADES!

This is not a candid camera shot of a corn-eating contest, but a scene from "Vivacious Lady," in which Ginger Rogers and James Stewart are thus engaged. Ginger and Stewart are the co-stars of the RKO Radio comedy, which concerns itself with the hectic courtship, and still more hectic after-marriage adventures of a night-club lady and a young professor from a small-town college—the same being, of course, Ginger and James, respectively.

Soda Jerker Joe Gets Into Tangle With Gangsters

There aren't many people as funny as Joe E. Brown can be when he puts his mind to it. And he really concentrates in his latest picture, Columbia's "Wide Open Faces," which comes to the Ritz Theatre Thursday and Friday.

As a soda jerker, Joe is a scream. As an amateur detective, he's just too good to be true. At the beginning of the picture, Joe is the "Maitre D'Squirt" (soda dispenser, to you) at the Willow Springs Drug Store. A notorious gangster in the person of Stanley Fields alights from a bus one day and asks Joe to drive him out to a deserted inn. Joe is just about to do so when G-men grab Fields.

The story of Fields' attempt to get to the old hotel breaks in all the newspapers of the nation, and soon gangsters, hoping to discover the loot they are positive Fields hid in the inn, descend on the small town from every section of the country. Joe, thinking they're just transients, directs them to the hotel, which has lately been taken over by Betty Mathis, a young girl who inherited the place, and her aunt.

Well, a large order of desperate gunmen, each intent on finding the same thing before anyone else does, is apt to bring some insanely comical situations. Feeling responsible for the mess in which girl hotel-owner finds herself, Joe sets out to correct matters. Of course, for a time he only manages to tangle things more horribly until toward the end of the picture he proves himself quite a hero.

There is sufficient comedy in this picture for the most comedy-hungry fan. As a matter of fact, you'll probably laugh yourself silly. Joe E. Brown is in fine fettle, and that calls for dancing in the streets and a holiday spirit in every home in town.

If you don't mind laughing until you start making queer, hollow sounds, "Wide Open Faces" is the picture to see right away.

Life, Love, And Marriage Among Advertising Agency Folk Shown

Proving herself to be one of the screen's most delightful comedienne, in addition to her other talents, Kay Francis gives one of her best performances in "Women Are Like That" which plays Thursday and Friday at the Ritz Theatre. It is delightful comedy, not so frothy that it isn't warmly, touchingly human at times, and yet so gay that the spectator has never a let-down of spirits.

The story concerns life, love and marriage in New York's gayest, liveliest set, the advertising agency folk. As it opens, Ralph Forbes is waiting at the altar for Kay, daughter of the senior partner of his advertising agency. But Kay at the last moment, has eloped with Pat, the firm's second writer.

A year later, Ralph and Kay's father (Thurston Hall) are attending the paper wedding anniversary of Kay and Pat. Kay's father is a glib old dog, so his "paper anniversary present" is a note which Pat opens next day, confessing that he has embezzled most of the firm's money to finance a little European trip.

Forbes tries to dominate the company which is badly shaken up financially. Pat, unable to get along with Forbes, resigns.

Kay, thinking to help him, turns on her sex appeal to all an account he has failed to sell. Then they have a family blow-up, and separate. Kay joins Brush (Forbes) and with feminine wiles lures Kay, daughter of the senior partner of his advertising agency. But Kay at the last moment, has eloped with Pat, the firm's second writer.

THE WICKEDEST WOMAN

A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week. But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by careful spending.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need... where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements... today, and tomorrow, and every day after... will help you to do something that we'd all like to do:

Buy what you want—and have money left over!

Farley Backs Candidates In Penn Election

Postmaster General Says Action Prompted By Struggle In Democratic Ranks

'Dead' Measures May Be Revived

Action On Reorganization Bill May Be Asked This Session

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Openly entering into the controversial Democratic political situation in Pennsylvania, James A. Farley, postmaster general and chairman of party's national committee, announced his support today of Tom Kennedy for governor and George H. Earle for senator.

Farley said he did so because he thought the struggle within the ranks of the Democrats "imperils the success of the party in the November election."

Kennedy, now lieutenant governor, has the backing of John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, and United States Senator Joseph P. Tierney, Pennsylvania Democrat. The state Democratic committee's candidate for governor in tomorrow's primary is Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer.

On the other hand, Earle is the committee's candidate for senator while Caffer and Lewis are backing Mayor E. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia for the post.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—Revival of Administrative strength in Congress, it was learned today, may encourage President Roosevelt's lieutenants to try to push through the controversial government re-organization bill before this session closes.

The House pigeonholed the measure last month but two Democratic members now are conducting a survey to determine whether there has been any change of sentiment among the opponents.

R. J. Holly Tells Rotarians About Air Mail Service

Describes Stamp That Has Special Advertising For Sanford

Postmaster R. J. Holly told Rotarians at their regular weekly luncheon today that air-mail planes flew 2,329,583 miles in this country last year as compared with only 10,000 miles during the first year of federal service. This is the twentieth anniversary of air mail, Mr. Holly said in a talk at the National Air Mail Week.

Next Thursday is a day particularly set aside for Sanford to participate in the Air Mail Week. Mr. Holly said in urging everyone to go to the aviation field to see the mail planes take off at 4:00 o'clock with a special collection of Sanford air mail.

A special stamp has been designed for this occasion, Mr. Holly pointed out, giving fine advertising for Sanford and Sanford celery. The stamp contains a picture of a stalk of celery and the slogan, "Eat More Celery."

Air mail service is now available in every American state except one, in Mexico, Central and South America, the West Indies, the Philippines and the Orient, it was stated. A total of 62,826 miles now represents the routes of air-mail service in this domestic and foreign system.

Air mail letters now total approximately 70,000,000 letters annually as compared with less than one million a few years ago, Mr. Holly said.

25 Killed And Many Hurt In Atlanta Fire

Terminal Hotel Scene Of Conflagration Called Deadliest In City's History

ATLANTA, May 16.—(AP)—Flames, which started in the basement kitchen, killed 25 persons at the Terminal Hotel, left 13 injured and an undetermined number of missing.

More than a dozen persons were rescued or leaped to safety. The number of victims unaccounted for was a matter of conjecture.

Reports of firemen and police indicated that from 50 to 65 persons were registered in the 62-room, five-story brick and frame building.

High wind from the west fanned the flames. City sanitary crews went to work about mid-morning, removing debris.

With tractor power barred because of danger of pulling down the walls, engineers estimated two days would be required to clear out the wreckage.

Many of the dead were found in charred timbers and steel which dropped from the roof, carrying away burning floors.

Police Chief M. A. Hornaby expressed the belief that "ten or fifteen more" bodies would be found in one mass of debris piled up on the street level.

The fire was described by Fire Chief O. J. Parker as the "deadliest in the history of Atlanta."

One of the known dead was Mrs. O. E. Colby of High Springs, Fla.

Chief Cleveland Says Improvements Are Needed In Sanford

Fire Chief Mack Cleveland declared today that he will cooperate with the International Association of Fire Chiefs in an effort to secure funds from the Public Works Administration for improvements to municipal fire departments.

The Public Works Administration at Washington, Chief Cleveland said, plans to lend $1,000,000 to municipalities for local improvements, and it is likely that loans will be made for periods up to 50 years without interest.

"There is a possibility," Chief Cleveland asserted, "that municipal fire departments may be allotted some of the money if it can be shown that there is a real demand for purchase of fire apparatus, erection of fire stations, and other general improvements."

A letter from Daniel B. Tierney, president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, has just been received by Chief Cleveland requesting his cooperation in furnishing information which would be of aid to the Association in securing allotments of the money for municipal fire departments.

Mr. Tierney requested Chief Cleveland to answer three questions: 1. What motor apparatus (new and replacement) would be needed to bring your department up to full strength? 2. How many fire stations, (new and replacement) do you believe your department needs? 3. What fire alarm improvements are needed?

The letter asserted that total figures will be prepared from the answers received from all departments reporting and that only the totals will be used. The information, the letter read, is needed to build up a case for federal financing of fire department improvements.

"The association's officers," the letter added, "intend to make every effort to secure authorization of federal funds for fire departments."

Labor Act Wins Point In Ruling By High Court

Decision Given Upholding Board In Action Directed Against Telegraph Company

Fruit Canners Win Review Of Ruling

Supreme Court Will Pass Upon Decision Of Lower Tribunal

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today that working men who strike as a result of unfair labor practices by their employer are entitled to protection of the National Labor Relations Act.

The decision was given in upholding the order by the National Labor Relations Board that the Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company is to reinstate employees who had gone on strike in San Francisco.

Justice Roberts, who delivered the opinion, stated the strikers' contract with the employer under the Labor Act was protected against unfair labor practices determined by it.

Roberts announced his dissent. Justice Brandeis and Justices Douglas and Frank did not participate in the vote.

The P. O. Company of Haines City, Fla., has won a Supreme Court review of its order on the constitutionality of the 1937 Florida law requiring citrus fruit canners to sign contracts, the name of the state in which the product is grown.

The high court agreed to pass on the decision of the three-judge federal court in the Southern Florida District holding an injunction against the enforcement of the law.

The law provides fines, imprisonment and confiscation of mislabeled goods in case of violations. The statute contended the state was not within the police powers of the state and was enacted solely for the purpose of advertising the products of the State of Florida.

The three-judge court found that in the past, large quantities of canned juice packed in other states had been shipped to Florida, labeled there as a Florida product, and shipped to buyers in the month who presumed they were purchasing the Florida product.
