Stetson Enrollment Expected To Climb

Enrollment this fall at Stetson University is expected to continue its annual climb of the last several years and when classes start Oct. 1 more than 1,500 regular students will be on the DeLand campus. Another 150 will be the fall semester at the College of Law in St. Petersburg on Sept. 24.

Stetson will house more than 500 women students in residence halls in DeLand this year, the largest number ever. Since July 1 there has been a waiting list. Some have already been assigned and others will get room accommodations by the time classes open.

In addition to Chaudoin Hall housing 200; Stetson Hall, 100; and North Hall, 100, Britain Hall has been re-opened for women this year to take care of an additional 20 women students.

A few more spaces remain in the men's housing units and additional space can be made for new students by assigning upperclassmen to fraternity houses. The new residence halls accommodate 250; Conrad Hall, 93; and Conrad Annex, 24.

This largest group of students since the flood of veterans in the late 1960's will return to the campus to find construction crews working on a million-dollar student union building and a new athletic and drill field. They also will find residence halls redecorated and buildings repaired in the most extensive summer work program in many years.

The new field is located between Amelia and Garfield, and Minnesota and University Avenues.

The additional drill space will be necessary this year as one year of military training is required of all entering freshmen who are physically fit.

The enrollment increase also will require more faculty members. Ten or more highly qualified teachers will join the community of Christian scholars who compose the teaching staff at Stetson. Others, who have been on leave for advance study, will rejoin the faculty this fall.

Classes at the College of Law, Florida's oldest, will begin Sept. 24 on the campus at St. Petersburg with an enrollment estimated at 150 or above, upwards of a 10 per cent increase over last year.

Two scholars, Joseph A. McClain Jr., former dean of the Duke University Law School, and Edward L. Platt, former dean at Rutgers, are among those joining the faculty this fall.

The College of Law has building plans in the process of completion too and during the college year construction is expected to start on a $500,000 air-conditioned library building.

Sept. 21 is Freshman Day and registration for new students at St. Petersburg. Sept. 22 is registration for advanced students.

The fall calendar at DeLand includes Freshman Orientation Sept. 24-27, registration Sept. 28-30 and Convocation at 9 a. m. Monday, Oct. 1, with classes scheduled to start immediately after this impressive affair where candidates for degrees and members of the faculty appear in academic regalia for a service to be presided over by Dr. J. Ollie Edmunds, president of the University.

One month after classes start, Nov. 2, 3, and 4, will be observed as Homecoming and the Christmas recess begins Dec. 19.

Democratic Team Heads Southward On Political Tour

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver veer southward today in their cross-country political marathon. But their prime target in the presidential campaign is ignoring the oratorical drumfire.

President Eisenhower — who will hold a news conference today moves to implement his campaign since accepting Republican renomination last week in San Francisco. But the Democratic team plunged on through a back-breaking grass roots tour.

Stevenson had harsh criticism for the Eisenhower administration yesterday on both the farm and labor fronts. Public and atomic power policies seemed assured of a mention at an afternoon conference today in Knoxville, Tenn.

In Sioux City, Iowa, Stevenson said his farming mate flayed the GOP farm policy and accused Eisenhower of having "only a deal for labor."

The Democratic presidential nominee used Tuesday's AFL-CIO Executive Council endorsement as a springboard for the labor statement. The council in a split vote decided to recommend that the 15 million AFL-CIO members support Stevenson and Kefauver and other labor-endorsed candidates.

In Washington yesterday, both Vice President Nixon and Secretary of Labor Mitchell said the council decision does not reflect the sentiment of union members. AFL-CIO spokesmen said yesterday the union expects to collect and spend the biggest labor political fund in history in the 1956 campaign. A goal of three million dollars was set but some sources indicated a million dollar fund would be satisfactory.

Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler estimated Democratic campaign expenditures would be more than seven million dollars. He predicted a "rugged" campaign.

Off-Duty Officer Helps Capture 2 Escaped Convicts

MIAMI—An off-duty patrolman helping fishing today spotted and helped capture two convicts who had escaped into the Everglades Tuesday.

Patrol Cpl. G. B. Stafford saw the men walking along Tamiami Trail about 14 miles west of Miami. He drove on to a roadblock near 40-mile bend, picked up Trooper G. D. Drozen and the two returned and made the capture without resistance.

"We took them so fast they didn't have time to think," Stafford said.

They had apparently hidden in the swampy Everglades.

The convicts were Robert Sykes, 33, of Homestead, and Eugene Wilczak, 30, sentenced from Duval County. Sykes is serving 10 years for armed robbery and Wilczak 15 years on the same offense.

They had been hunted by a large posse since they walked away from a road gang at noon Tuesday. They were wearing prison garb when they escaped but had on new civilian clothes when picked up.

Contributions Are Coming In Rapidly For Crash Victims

The fund for the victims of the Monday disaster continues to grow, said Willis Peacock, vice president of the Florida State Bank, who is receiving contributions for the fund and placing them in trust.

"Contributions began to come in rapidly this morning," Peacock said this morning as he reported the interest being taken already in providing for the families whose homes were destroyed and the enlisted man who lost his life in the crash of the plane.

Although the fund totals only

$139 at the present time, Peacock said today, undoubtedly the people of Sanford have not yet begun to send their checks and donations in as the appeal was made to provide emergency help for the families left homeless and without clothes or furnishings.

Those who wish to contribute to the fund may send them direct to the Florida State Bank or to The Sanford Herald.

Checks should be made payable to the Florida State Bank and marked for the disaster victims fund.

Hundreds of citizens have already expressed a desire to contribute to the emergency help for the families. Every contribution, whether large or small, will be appreciated by the families who not only need the help of their neighbors and friends but who deserve every consideration in this immediate time of stress.

The Chamber of Commerce in the coming year," McKibbin said.

However, he first called attention to the fact that Seminole County, primarily in an agricultural area, also that there are lands capable of improvement and development.

"Our waterways, the Sanford-Titusville Canal, transportation, and cooperation with the Navy," are the important parts of our program for next year, said McKibbin as he outlined each phase of his personal ideas as to what the program of the chamber next year should be.

After LaMarca's indictment yesterday, Harold Spitzer, Nassau County assistant district attorney, said: "We will move to get the case on the court calendar as soon as possible."

LaMarca, 31-year-old mechanic and taxicab driver and the father of two, stood glumly with eyes downcast during a brief court session after his indictment. He showed no emotion when the charges were read.

There was no formal pleading to the indictment. David M. Markowitz of New York City, one of two defense attorneys, asked for a week's postponement to "study the indictment." County Judge Cyril J. Brown set Sept. 5 to hear the defense plea.

Markowitz said he planned to have LaMarca examined by a psychiatrist after the arraignment. The lawyer had indicated the day before that the defense would be "temporary insanity" brought on by "desperation over debts."

Rollins To Have Pension Plan
WINTER PARK (AP)—President Hugh P. McKean of Rollins College said today increased student fees had made possible a funded pension plan for the smart little Central Florida school.

In an informal report which he mailed out, he said also that the endowment had been raised from 1 1/2 million dollars to over 3 1/2 million.

McKean, an artist by profession, said "Dr. John Ross, under a grant from the Research Corp. of New York, is investigating cesium properties of atomic nuclei by examining wave lengths of light."

"Dr. Donald J. Carroll, with the help of a personal grant from the Ciba Pharmaceutical Co., is developing several series of derivatives of alkylcinnoline acids which will be screened for potential use as medicinals in tropical and other diseases."

"I have no idea what all of that means. However, I rejoice in the fact that it is being done in the and especially that it is being done on the campus of Rollins College."

Puerto Rico Sets Pattern For Schools Urged by Ike

These are students in the only CAA-approved mechanics course outside continental United States.

By Central Press Association
SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO.—"Institutions of modern techniques" have been urged by President Eisenhower as a means of combating the spread of Communism throughout the world, but Puerto Rico has had the "pilot plant" in operation for several years.

Its Metropolitan Vocational school in San Juan has trained thousands of young men for jobs in the commonwealth's industrial expansion program and at the 11 vocational training centers throughout the commonwealth courses are keyed to the continuing need for trained industrial workers.

The President's attitude regarding schools was stated in his recent Baylor university address. In it he urged American universities as well as private interests to create such schools through financial help, leaving it to local authorities to select the staff and prepare the curriculum. They would be created, according to the President's thinking, in those world areas where such facilities are needed, but do not now exist.

PUERTO RICO'S "Operation Bootstrap" program of industrial expansion has leaned heavily on the vocational school program which helps to create a labor force pouring some 4,000 skilled graduates a year into the industrial program. Many of the present 400 factories have drawn their workers from "on the job" training programs conducted by the vocational system.

This training program is not limited to Puerto Rico's needs alone. Under the Point Four program initiated and financed by the United States, some 4,000 technicians and scientists from all over the world have come to Puerto Rico, studying here the methods by which the commonwealth has improved its economic status. This spring alone, 63 Point Four students from the French, Dutch and British islands in the Caribbean were among the more than 3,000 attending classes at the San Juan Metropolitan Vocational school.

It is the largest of the 11 and offers 27 different courses, from making "hot rods" cars to baking "hot cross" buns. Woodwork, carpentry, commercial art, construction and drafting are the printing trades are included.

Most popular now is the aviation mechanics course providing two years of study preparing young men for careers in commercial aviation. Graduates qualify for the official Civil Aeronautics administration tests for aviation mechanics certificates in the only CAA-approved course outside continental United States.

Adult education in other directions is adding personnel to the labor pool as new industries get under way here. Only recently, some 30,000 adults in many communities received certification in simultaneous graduation exercises. Ranging in age from 22 to 68 years, they've completed adult education courses directed by the commonwealth's department of education. Courses included primary, high school and college education provided by a staff of 4,000 specially selected teachers in charge of the program.

Puerto Rico's example in combating illiteracy may well be adapted to the principles expressed by the President at Baylor university. If the United States is to strengthen its position against Communism in many world areas, it may well use the implementation of education as the lever. The Soviet, as it is known, are engaged in a broad educational program at home and are making offers, as a government, to extend its education facilities to some areas.

Rollins To Have Pension Plan

WINTER PARK (AP)—President Hugh P. McKean of Rollins College said today increased student fees had made possible a funded pension plan for the smart little Central Florida school.

In an informal report which he mailed out, he said also that the endowment had been raised from 1 1/2 million dollars to over 3 1/2 million.

McKean, an artist by profession, said "Dr. John Ross, under a grant from the Research Corp. of New York, is investigating cesium properties of atomic nuclei by examining wave lengths of light."

"Dr. Donald J. Carroll, with the help of a personal grant from the Ciba Pharmaceutical Co., is developing several series of derivatives of alkylcinnoline acids which will be screened for potential use as medicinals in tropical and other diseases."

"I have no idea what all of that means. However, I rejoice in the fact that it is being done in the and especially that it is being done on the campus of Rollins College."

People Want Additional Taxes Used For Roads Not For Bureau

One of the biggest highway programs in history — the federal road building program — authorized by Congress is getting underway with one aspect of the program, little known to laymen, under serious question.

In the waning day of the last session of Congress, legislation was pushed through creating a new position of Federal Highway Administrator. Just what the duties of the new administrator would be or how much of a staff or bureau he would need or create and for what purpose the entire set-up would serve has not been made clear.

Up until the present time, federal-state cooperation and planning for roads has been handled entirely by the Bureau of Public Roads. The general opinion has been that this agency of the government has worked efficiently and cooperated well with the various state highway departments and agencies.

Then, the question comes up — why is not the Bureau of Public Roads capable of handling the gigantic $2 1/2 billion dollar, 15-year road building program without another agency being created?

Is there a new move afoot to create another federal agency or department establishing top-level jobs that will make nice political plums for some few appointees? What would a highway administrator and his staff do, and do better and more economically than the Bureau of Public Roads could do — and, in fact, has proved that it can do?

Tax monies have been created to build roads throughout the nation on a non-partisan — only for need — basis. The people of the nation are being asked for these multi-billions of dollars to build needed roads — not to sink into deep holes of political greed and huge salaries!

Highway users are not begrudging the tax increases that were made to finance the improved inter-state road system. But, it has come to the point now, that we believe highway users had apperment in their minds that the additional taxes would be used to get the best and most in new and improved roads — that states and communities would be assisted in forwarding programs that would connect with other state systems.

Any efforts to create a new bureau on top of the present Bureau of Public Roads would not likely produce any more mileage of pavement or any better planned highways than the present Bureau of Public Roads, with a necessarily increased staff, could develop.

Highway users, every single motorist of them, want and are willing to pay for the much-needed road improvements, but we cannot believe that they favor the creation of a new super-road or super-highway commission on an administrative set-up for which there appears to be no need.

It seems as if there are some believers in our top echelons of government — on both sides of the political fence — that favor unnecessary spending of money.

The tax payers who are pushing these additional billions of funds into their government for roads want roads in return for they are the users of the highways. And these billions of dollars are hard earned dollars — not some of the gravy scooped off the tops of money sacks that would go unspent. The ordinary everyday motorist who could well use the tax money going for roads for his home improvements and daily necessities.

To be fair to the people of the nation — and the most of them are motorists — any idea of this administrative set-up should be abandoned.

Political Binge Over

The nation's quadrennial political binge is now over, and all the people who were a little punch-drunk with speeches and platitudes and delegates' votes can settle down and think about a few other things.

For sheer drama — and drawing power even in the undramatic moments — those conventions must get top rating by any living room standard. People who have been known to flip off the switch at the sight of the country's best comedians and finest musicians sat glued to their television sets hour after hour, then got up the next morning to read practically every word in their newspapers — and clamored for their afternoon editions to find out what happened in the interim away from home. They stopped office work for the best speeches and most exciting balloting. They ignored friends, meetings, and household chores to watch and listen and read all about it.

The political talk and maneuvering they disapproved of gave them a fine chance to complain. The parts they liked gave them happy opportunity to praise and quote and ally themselves with some of the country's most skillful conventioners.

Except for election night, there's nothing quite like the big shows of the political parties. The politicians just wish they could find that much enthusiasm for working for their candidates.

The only thing that we haven't heard explained — either as the shows went on — or in the columns written by the political analysts — is: What went on in the rooms behind the platform as the conventioners took time out to take a looksee?

The explanation from every side — in Chicago and in San Francisco is that "our conventions are open" — that is the front door and the box seats to the arena. We didn't get any views of the meetings that were being held elsewhere.

The Merchants Association appeal to all of the downtown merchants to help keep the city clean is a good thing. That's how we show off!

Spivey Says Russians Never Had It So Good

LAKELAND (Special) — The vast majority of the Russian people are fanatical in their support of communism and its leaders and outside hopes for any internal uprising within the Soviet Union are merely wishful thinking.

This is the considered opinion of Dr. Ludd M. Spivey, president of Florida Southern College, who has just returned to Lakeland after an European visit which included 14 days behind the Iron Curtain.

"The great mass of Russian people never had it so good before," Dr. Spivey stated.

"Contrary to what I had believed, the 'new freedom' allowed the Russian people since the death of Stalin is not a sign of communism party weakness, but rather is a positive symbol of strength.

"The communist leaders are now permitting the people greater liberties because they believe strongly that they have now converted everyone to communism and they are no longer afraid of any dissension from within."

Emphasizing that he did not believe that anyone could interpret fully a nation or its people during a relatively short visit, Dr. Spivey said that he based his opinion on the solid support of the communist party from within after talks with hundreds of Russians — from peasants to professors, and from his personal observations of the Russia of today as compared with 21 years ago when the educator previously visited in the Soviet Union.

"By our American standards," he said, "food and clothing are scarce and expensive. But in comparison with the situation as I saw it in 1935, the Russians today have more and better food and clothing — an important factor in the overall support of the communist party."

The Florida Southern College president said that he came and went at will while visiting in such cities as Moscow, Kiev and Leningrad and in the towns and on the collective farms, finding the Russian people friendly and eager to talk with an American. On the overall, he commented:

"There isn't any doubt in my mind that communism has, from a material point of view, improved the Soviet Union. There have been some profound changes in the way of life for the Russian. It is amazing to see the amount of building activity, not only in large housing projects but also in huge business buildings. One of the great improvements I noticed in Moscow was the widening of the principal streets.

"The whole center of Moscow, except Red Square, has greatly changed in the past 21 years. Under the communists, there have also been great improvements in transportation, bus and rail."

Dr. Spivey said that he neither saw nor sensed discontent with the communist party program, excepting a relatively few malcontents. He noted that on his previous visit to the Soviet Union, at which time Stalin was in power, there were huge pictures, bunting and flags everywhere, designed to inspire enthusiasm for the communist cause.

"There are no such external signs now," he stated, "the party leaders feel there is no need for them."

Although the food and clothing situation could be improved, the educator noted not only that conditions were better than in the yesteryear, but also that the people know that great effort is being put into the production of armaments and heavy industry.

The lack of modern machinery is holding back food production on the collective farms, he said. A second factor is that the peasants are each allotted about three acres of land which they are permitted to cultivate and sell the products on the open market.

"As a result, the peasants concentrate more on working their personal acres of land than increasing food production on the collective farm itself."

In comparison with the Stalin regime, Dr. Spivey said that there is no doubt that the people have greater freedom under Khrushchev and Khrushchev and that they believe the outside world misunderstands communism and its objectives.

"On my previous visit, almost no Russian dared speak with me. But this time, when I arrived in Kiev, a whole host of people gathered around, asking my opinion of Russia. None seemed afraid when I openly criticized their way of life. Those who spoke English were anxious to answer my criticisms of the communist philosophy. At times, there were so many people gathered around me that the police asked me to move on because I was causing traffic tie-ups.

"At the great University of Moscow, so many fanatical students surrounded me that I was afraid to tell exactly what I thought of communism. I asked the young interpreter not to tell the group because I was afraid I might be overwhelmed.

"The students wanted to know why America surrounded Russia with so many fortresses and air bases. I frankly told them we were afraid of their leaders, pointing to the fate of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and the other captive nations.

"They laughed and said that my conception of the whole setup was all wrong — that all of the captive nations had come running to Russia for protection against the western powers. When I told them further that the communist leaders were trying to interfere with the governments of the free world, they derided this.

"I talked with a great many school teachers and educators in Moscow, Kiev, Leningrad and elsewhere. I found none who wasn't enthusiastic about communism and each felt sure that I had misunderstood about Lenin's ideas."

Dr. Spivey said that he was greatly surprised in Moscow to find large delegations from Poland, North Korea, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and the other captive countries. Each group that he talked with, the educator added, emphasized the great prosperity enjoyed under communism.

"I realized full well that communist leaders in those various countries would permit only their nations who were thoroughly indoctrinated to come to Moscow. These groups seemed better dressed and better fed than the natives in Russia."

The Russian people, the college president said, are well aware that Stalin in death has been "demoted" by the party leaders and there is apparent relief that the Stalin regime is no more. All say that Stalin committed a great many "errors," but nothing more.

Dr. Spivey said that when his party (of 22 business and professional men) went to Red Square to see the tomb of Lenin and Stalin there were long lines of Russians waiting to file past the glass-topped coffins of the two former Red dictators.

"We had to pass by these long lines of Russians, and we were applauded from beginning to end. They did not seem to resent in the least our party being given preference over them. The violations to the tomb are a form of worship. As one approaches there is great quiet and a mysterious atmosphere.

"I asked one American newspaperman how long he expected Stalin would lay side by side with Lenin. He answered that he believed Stalin eventually would be taken out for repairs and would not be returned to the tomb in Red Square."

The Florida Southern president also reported that he saw long lines of Russians waiting to visit the Kremlin itself for the first time, since it was closed and closely guarded in the days of Stalin. Describing the Kremlin as the real beauty spot in Moscow, Dr. Spivey said he sought to enter a second time without a ticket of admission. He told the guard he was an American and the guard waved him on in.

A little understood fact about Russia is that only a small percentage of the people are members of the communist party, Dr. Spivey said. He added that party discipline is so severe and dress and other standards so rigid that many young men and women give up and drop out of the organization. This, in addition to the great competition for party advancement, definitely limits membership.

"The leaders have made it so deliberately. They want to keep the racket for themselves."

Communist leaders in Russia have fully sold the Russian people on the theme of peace, Dr. Spivey reported. He noted that peace buttons were in evidence everywhere, and that often he returned to his hotel with a lapel sold with buttons presented him by the natives. There is no belief that there will be war between Russia and the United States — in fact the reverse is true.

"I felt that if anything the Soviet chiefs might be just a little embarrassed on over-selling their people on the peace idea. I was told by one observer that an enemy would have to drop a bomb on Moscow before the people would fight."

Religion is virtually at death's door in Russia, Dr. Spivey stated. He said that he failed to meet one young man or woman who professed any belief in God, or at least in the Russian conception of God.

"For one thousand years, the church was the chief instrument of the government in the suppression of the people," the college president pointed out. "The reason I believe that there is no hope for the church in Russia today is because the communist party forbids the church from having any kind of social interpretation.

"Religion in Russia is still just the opiate. This is true not only in the Russian Orthodox Church but in the Baptist Church there as well. No Baptist pastor is permitted to instruct the children. Only the parents are thus permitted and they mostly are atheists.

"If a man like Billy Graham were permitted to go into Russia today, he perhaps could revive religion in the people. But the Russian leaders are not about to allow anything like this.

"The churches are filled with grandfathers and grandmothers. There is a great sea of old faces." Dr. Spivey said that the Russians by and large are looking forward to a great future, a feeling shared by both party members and non-members. He concluded:

"There is no doubt but what the mass of people are caught up in a sort of a dream world. They still believe that communism will bring a heaven on earth. None seem to think this will come by force. But rather the rest of the world will some day find out the wonders of communism.

"That is their belief" the president pointed out. "The reason

Neither Party Will Repeal T-H

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (U)—When politicians — like former President Truman — promise repeal of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act if the Democrats win this year, it's strictly pie-in-the-sky stuff. Labor leaders know better.

Although top AFL-CIO leaders strongly recommended that the big labor organization endorse the Democratic presidential ticket, one thing can be predicted with certainty: No matter which party wins this election — Democrats or Republicans — T-H will not be repealed.

T-H was passed by a Republican-led Congress, but with Democratic help. In 1947, Ever since then — in their party platforms of 1948, 1952 and this year — the Democrats have promised repeal of T-H.

And ever since then — in their party platforms of 1948, 1952 and this year — the Republicans have promised changes in T-H. In spite of all the promises by both sides only one change, fairly small, has been made.

The reason is simple enough: Not enough members of Congress were willing to vote for repeal on either side. And labor leaders don't expect this election to produce enough congressional changes to bring about repeal.

As an example: Recently the AFL-CIO made a survey in the House of Representatives to find out the sentiment on repeal. They found only 100 members — consisting Democrats and Republicans — who could be counted on to support repeal.

That was so far short of the majority needed in the 435-member House that no attempt was even made to find out the sentiment of the Senate.

That the labor leaders have no illusions in the way of big favors if the Democrats win, was expressed by George Meany, AFL-CIO president.

He said the Democrats' labor plank is better than the Republicans' and he agrees the Democratic plank given the AFL-CIO even "more than we asked for."

But he added: "The Democratic labor plank holds out more promises 'than we'll probably get.'"

Why then did the AFL-CIO Executive Council vote 17-5 to recommend that its 15 million members back the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket? Meany's explanation: 1. Organized labor has more friends among Democrats than Republicans.

2. The labor leaders favoring endorsement argued it would weaken the cause of other Democratic candidates meaning those running for congressional, state and city offices friendly to labor if the AFL-CIO gave no formal support to the top of the ticket.

In 1948 the Truman administration made an effort to make good on its T-H repeal promise of the 1948 election. It was moved under. An amendment, eliminating a vote requirement for union shop contracts already in effect, was approved in 1951.

That ended all hope of repeal under Truman. There were no changes while the Republicans ran Congress in 1953-54. Eisenhower in 1954 recommended 14 changes. They did as recommendations. The Democrats, who have controlled Congress since 1955, have sought either for repeal or for changes.

Truman's latest promise of repeal was made in his speech at the Democratic convention in Chicago. But, since he's out of office he couldn't do much to bring it about, even if the Democrats won this year.

One AFL-CIO man who knows Congress well says: "The politicians don't kid us. We can't expect repeal until we again get a Congress like the one we had in 1933."

That was the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress which, in the midst of depression, passed the Wagner Act, the first really major legislation definitely weighted on labor's side. It was the Wagner Act which the Republican Congress of 1947 supplemented with T-H.

Sept. 12 Is Set As Day Of Prayer

WASHINGTON (U)—President Eisenhower Wednesday proclaimed Wednesday, Sept. 12, as a national Day of Prayer.

The proclamation called on Americans to observe the day as one on which "all of us, in our places of business, in our places of worship, in our homes, and in our hearts, may beseech God to continue to watch over us in our daily lives and in the conduct of our national affairs."

The President acted in conformity with a 1951 congressional resolution providing that the President shall set aside a day each year, other than a Sunday, in which Americans "can return to God in prayer and meditation."

The GOLDEN WITCH

By ZOLA ROSS

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

ON NOVEMBER 8, 1930, Seattle looked off her petticoat and her crimson mink, dug flags of all sizes from the post-fourth-of-July settlements, scrubbed houses from attic to cellar if a son or husband was expected and prepared for a three-day celebration to prove that Seattle knew how Welcome Homes were handled.

Sunday, though of necessity a prologue, had its own glitter. Didn't the Portland Battery of the state militia get into the depot? Important men from Oregon crowded the place.

Tim O'Brien said they looked like the silk-hat brigade. "The papers'll have to rest a spell after this," Tim said. "Any fool reporter who claims Seattle's streets are dangerous by night ought to take a gander at the light display on Second Avenue and Fifth Street. Fireworks aren't in it!"

Meg, keeping her head bent over the hat-shop ledger, wondered what Uncle Tim was after now. Ever since Meg had bought Magnolia street property when the army got to town, Uncle Tim had considered her an easy source of funds when he was short.

"I didn't see a sign in the window of the Portland Battery," Meg admitted. "If you think I'm going to waste time and energy on a sign with 'Welcome Soldier' or 'There's a Light in the Window for Thee,' you're crazy!"

Tim gazed at her. "Aren't you glad the soldiers are coming home, Meg? I thought you liked Michael Dark. And 'tis lucky he is to be coming home whole, after his being wounded in the battle that killed Captain Fortson."

Meg closed the ledger with a snap. "Of course I'm glad Michael wasn't hurt. Of course I'm glad the war's over and the soldiers are coming home. But I don't have to make an unbolty run over it for a week ahead of time to be convincing, do I?" She looked directly at Tim. "What do you want?" she asked bluntly. "I have to finish these accounts before the bank closes."

Tim flushed but he didn't refuse to answer. "I'm a little shy of money. I figured if you could let me have twenty, say."

Meg rose, went to a cash box on a table and took out twenty dollars and handed it to him. He took it heartily. Her silence forced him to a need for more than casual thanks.

"I've been a wonder, Meg. Wouldn't one woman out of ten be so smart as you are. I suppose you've bought more lots since you got rid of the last batch?"

"Yes," Meg was short.

"I reckon you'll have the best wedding outfit in town once you set the day," Tim stammered on, feeling uncomfortable before Meg's uncompromising gaze.

"Good grief!" Meg almost yelled at him. "Everybody in town expects me to marry Jason Ten Eyck before the next sunrise. I haven't set a wedding date. I haven't even said I would marry him."

Tim stared at her. His first astonishment changed to reproach. "Well, I never thought you'd keep Jason dangling this long and then throw him over, Meg Beaumont. His expression softened. "It was womanly of you not to marry him so soon after Kemp died. I know Honora appreciated it too. He wouldn't want you to mourn him; he'd want your happiness."

Meg's attitude did not soften. "I'll send you an invitation when I feel there is a wedding, Uncle Tim."

"Why, sure, Meg," Tim barely stopped himself from backing to the door. He found himself outside the house with no clear notion of how he arrived there. Meg was a Stratton all right, took the bit in her teeth just like her old man. Why in time didn't she marry Jason? In February, Jenny would marry Nathan Grundy and quit the hat shop. Why didn't Meg get some sense in her noggin and take Jason? If he knew Jason Ten Eyck, Meg had better grab him before he got tired of waiting for her. Why didn't she marry Jason? He had always attracted her and certainly he shared her ambitions in a way no man she had ever known shared them. Jason would become even richer than he was; he would be powerful.

There wasn't any fortune to be made in hats, Meg knew. Why, for all her hard work, she'd made more in real estate in a month than in hats for a year! She thought up a comfortable how her real estate venture had been made possible and squirmed.

A month after her refusal to return to her father, she had received a package and a letter from him. The letter informed her coldly that he no longer considered her his responsibility and that his lawyer had been advised to cut her off "with the proverbial dollar" in his will. Since Meg had fully expected this, it not surprise her. The package did. Her father had sent her mother's jewelry to her. "Some of this was given to her by me. The bulk of it was inherited from her female relatives. It was your mother's wish that you receive her jewelry."

Meg did not unwrap the package for days. Finally, one evening she opened the package, with Nathan Grundy, Mattilda, Jenny and Gretchen about the table watching.

Meg stared at the glittering heap. Her breath came more quickly. "Nathan, could I sell them? And get money enough to buy lots in Magnolia Street?"

Jenny gasped in protest. "Oh, Meg, you should keep them for Honora!"

Meg's jaw set in the way she knew they all dreaded.

"I'm a lot more interested in seeing that Honora and Johnny get educations and chances than I am in keeping jewelry for Honora to wear twenty years from now. Nathan, can I sell them?"

Nathan, Meg remembered, had not argued. He had said calmly that she could sell them here in town but that he believed he could make a better deal for her if he sent them to a man he knew in California.

Meg asked him to send the jewelry to his California friend.

Nathan agreed. "Jason would not like you to wear jewels bought by anyone but him."

Meg scowled at him. Even Nathan expected her to marry Jason when she got around to it. Well, Nathan and all of them could watch her take her own sweet time.

She came back to the presents with a start. No one could control the destiny of another, even in marriage. Perhaps it was because she felt that Jason would control her that she hesitated.

For the first time in months, she thought seriously of Michael Dark. Michael was good at advice and he was never insulted if the person who asked it didn't take it. She wondered if eighteen months of war had changed him much. Probably not.

Tomorrow at ten in the morning she would know, for Mattilda was bound and determined that they should all be down at the docks to greet Michael.

"We're the nearest he's got to a family," Mattilda said.

"We're going to be right in plain sight when that boat docks!" Meg stirred restlessly. She had a premonition that Michael's return was going to bring to a head lots of things. She wondered maliciously if Charlotte Linden would be at the dock too.

Teams Say Burdette Is Pitching 'Spitter'

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

"Spit," the word Ted Williams hoisted out of the gutter into $5,000 headlines, now becomes a controversy in the already hectic National League pennant race—does Lew Burdette use it, or doesn't he while pitching the Milwaukee Braves into championship contention?

The second-place Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati's third-place Redlegs and the fourth-running St. Louis Cardinals have insisted all along the big righthander throws the outlawed "spitter." And now Pittsburgh has taken up the cry.

Manager Bobby Bragan, pitcher Dick Hall and infielder Dick Cole bellowed so loud and long in demands that the umpires take repeated looks at the ball that they were thrown off the bench and out at last night's game. The umpire did investigate the ball, several times, but kept it in play and Burdette, losing his shutout in the ninth after a 63-minute rain delay, won his 17th (4) in Joe Adcock's tie-breaking three-run homer.

Burdette denies the "spitter" charge. But if he does use and should be caught at it, he would face an automatic suspension for 10 days. That could be a killing slip up for the Braves in their run for the pennant.

At the moment, they're just 1 1/2 games ahead of the Dodgers, who disposed of the Chicago Cubs 11-4. Cincinnati is only three games back after fighting off the New York Giants 4-3.

Philadelphia and Robin Roberts outlasted the Cardinals 8-5 in the other NL game.

In the American, Mickey Mantle made up for a three-run error with his 6th home run and a game-winning ninth-inning single as the New York Yankees defeated Kansas City 7-4. Second place Cleveland stayed eight games back with a 3-3 decision over Baltimore. The Chicago White Sox defeated Washington 8-7 and Boston's Red Sox beat Detroit 4-2.

The Pirates, who rallied to upset the Braves Tuesday night, had just four hits off Burdette with two out in the ninth, then got three straight singles from Dale Long, Roberto Clemente and Dick Groat to tie it at 1-1.

Ed Mathews' 33rd homer, off Vernon Law, gave the Braves a 1-0 edge in the second inning. In the ninth, Hank Auro and Mathews were on base when Adcock unloaded his 54th homer against losing reliever Elroy Face. Burdette, who struck out five and didn't walk a man, has lost eight.

The Dodgers needed no last minute heroics. Roy Campanella, win five runs batted in, knocked a two-run double off Brooks scored the first against rookie Don Kaiser, and then smacked his 16th homer with two on in the fifth. Carl Erskine won his 12th, tottering through an 11-hitter that included Don Hoak and Gene Baker homers. Duke Snider busted his 37th for the Brooks, upping his NL lead.

Roy McMillan and Johnny Temple, the last robust second baseman in the ninth, each drove in two runs to beat the Giants and Johnny Antonelli. Art Fowler, relieving Johnny Klipstein when Bill Sarni's two-run homer tied it 3-all in the fifth, won his 10th with three-hit ball.

Roberts, trailing 4-0 after two frames, hung on for his 15th victory with a 12-hitter. Del Ennis' three-run 23rd homer triggered a five-run fifth that did it. Kay Scott homered for the Cards.

The A's grabbed a 4-0 lead

Spider Webb Wins 10-Round Decision Over Rory Calhoun

CHICAGO—Spider Webb, a clever sharpshooter who once was a national collegiate boxing champion at Idaho State College, is the newest sensation to burst upon the middleweight scene.

Webb, 24, scored a unanimous 10 round decision last night over previously unbeaten Rory Calhoun of New York, 22-year-old son of an Atlanta, Ga., Baptist minister.

The scrap was a slam-bang affair from the opening bell, with the powerful Calhoun wading in for knockout blows and the nimble Webb using his rights and lefts like an ape.

The victory, before a whooping Chicago Stadium audience of 1,849 which contributed to a gross gate of $2,228, earned Webb a late October shot at the winner of the Bobby Boyd-Joy Clardis, last in Cleveland Sept. 21. The bout will be at Chicago Stadium probably Oct. 31, with the winner being lined up for a title chance.

Lookouts Clip Barons 5-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The seventh-place Chattanooga Lookouts are all but mathematically out of the Southern Assn. pennant race, but Cal Ermer's boys could prove to be the key to the championship battle.

The Lookouts clipped the stumbling Birmingham Barons 5-3 last night. It was Chattanooga's third straight decision over the second place team and left Birmingham one and a half games off the pace.

The victory gave Chattanooga an 11-10 edge in seasons play.

Against the front running Atlanta Crackers, the Lookouts have seven triumphs and 11 defeats. They meet the Barons for the last time this season tonight but still have four games left with the Crackers.

Atlanta again failed to gain ground, taking a 4-4 setback at the hands of Nashville. The loss was Atlanta's third in four games. Memphis climbed to within 4 1/2

Motor City Open Gets Under Way

DETROIT (AP)—A bulky field of 126 professional golfers took off in quest of $20,000 in prize money as the sixth Motor City Open gets under way at the Western Golf and Country Club.

Cary Middlecoff will not be on hand to defend the title he won in 1934, but such ranking performers as Mike Souchak, Doug Ford, Julius Boros and Ed Furgol assure an all-out battle for the top prize of $4,000.

Middlecoff, who won the Motor City the last two years it was held and has shared another crown, is resting up from the tough tournament grind.

Fourteen amateurs will join the pros for the 72-hole competition over the tricky, 6,770-yard Western layout. Entries will play one round daily through Sunday.

As an added inducement, tournament officials have offered $2,500 for each hole-in-one scored in tournament play. Bob Walling, 23-year-old Detroit pro, turned the trick a day too early yesterday, sinking an ace on the 300-yard, par-3 third hole in a preliminary round.

Don Whit, 23-year-old pro from Alameda, Calif., tied the course record of 67 yesterday in a pro-amateur best-ball event.

His five-under-par card gave him a one-stroke edge over Boros and Mike Fetick of Mahopac, N. Y.

Homes Being Built On Low Ground Will Be Flooded

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Homes being built on ground which is dry now because of Florida's long drought will be flooded when normal rainfall returns, the Central and South Florida Flood Control District warned Monday.

In a letter to county commissioners, Chairman J. Abney Cox said, experienced staff members of the FCD, who for years have watched the flow of waters, see houses being up among dried out burrhuises and shake their heads in apprehension.

The district offered its water level records to county commissioners who may want to regulate building sites in the 17 counties that make up the district.

Cox's letter pointed out that Florida is in the grip of a two-year drought in which swamps, ponds, lakes, the Everglades and rivers have reached new lows.

"The water will rise again and homes and buildings set up on too low ground by the unwise or the unscrupulous will be flooded," the letter said.

The district would be unable to prevent the flooding, Cox said, although it might take some measures to alleviate it.

"We cannot overemphasize the fact that the completed flood control works will never prevent periodic inundation of many low areas," he said.

State Legislatures Asked To Establish Strict Speed Limit

NEW YORK — In an effort to halt the nation's headlong rush into the most calamitous traffic toll of all time by the end of 1956, the National Committee on Uniform Traffic Laws and Ordinances, for the first time in its history, is calling on state legislatures throughout the country to establish absolute maximum speed limits and give law enforcement officers more sweeping on-the-spot arrest powers.

This action was taken at a meeting of the Committee in Chicago and was announced by Thomas N. Beate, a committee member and Accident Prevention Department manager of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies.

The committee's approval of these changes in the Uniform Traffic Code coincided with the National Safety Council's announcement that traffic fatalities in the nation have consistently increased for the sixteenth consecutive month and are threatening to reach an all-time high of 48,000 deaths for 1956. This action is considered as particularly significant by traffic accident specialists because the committee membership consists of the official representatives of federal, state and municipal traffic law enforcement executives as well as business and industry interests.

The first of the two major changes calls for the abandonment of prima facie speed laws in favor of absolute limits and would greatly simplify enforcement of speed laws. Under the newly recommended system, any motorist exceeding the maximum speed established by law would be guilty of a traffic violation. Under the prima facie law, a motorist charged with speeding can be judged guilty of a violation unless the arresting officer is able to prove that, under the conditions existing at the time of the arrest, such speed was unsafe.

At the present time, 19 states have established maximum speed limits, 21 have prima facie limits and eight have limits designated only as "reasonable and prudent." To "facilitate enforcement, increase the safety of the highway and bring about uniformity of traffic laws," the committee voted to urge all states to adopt absolute limits. It further recommended that under the most favorable circumstances, the maximum speed should not exceed 50 miles an hour in rural areas or 30 miles an hour in built-up areas, with downward zoning to meet local conditions.

The second major change recommends broadening the authority of enforcement officers to allow them to make on-the-spot arrests of persons who are reasonably believed to have committed such violations as reckless driving, negligent homicide, driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, leaving the scene of an accident, refusing to give information, or refusing to aid accident victims.

Under most existing systems, these offenses are considered misdemeanors rather than felonies. Under the common law rule, an officer can make an on-the-spot arrest of a felony suspect, but must get a court-issued warrant for the arrest of a person suspected of committing a misdemeanor. The time lapse in this system often allows suspects to sober up (if drunk) or to leave the scene of the accident. If the suspect is from out of state, he can often escape trial completely by returning to his home before a warrant can be issued.

The new law allowing officers to make on-the-spot arrests of persons charged with misdemeanors, traffic safety leaders pointed out, would thus make possible the apprehension of many violators who now frequently escape prosecution. This system is already in effect in several parts of the nation.

The Uniform Traffic Code is a set of "pattern" laws designed for adoption by state governments in order to provide uniform and more effective traffic regulation throughout the nation. The National Committee periodically revises the code to keep it abreast of changing traffic conditions. The recent meeting was timed to allow revision of the code to be completed well in advance of opening sessions of 1957 state legislatures, which may adopt or reject the recommendations.

Commenting on the important new revisions, Beate said, "The recommended laws will discourage traffic violations and will make law enforcement more effective. Both changes have long been favored by most of the nation's courts and enforcement agencies and have been backed repeatedly by capital stock casualty insurance companies and their representatives.

Cabinet Member Urges Education to Limit

By MARION B. FOLSOM
Secretary, Department of Health, Education & Welfare.
(Written Expressly for Central Press Association and this newspaper.)

ONCE AGAIN, all over this country, children and young people will soon be taking their seats in classrooms, filling the elementary schools, the high schools and the colleges.

To most students, the words "back to school" will have a happy sound. They mean resuming studies and renewing friendships. They mean football, basketball, clubs, student government, and school dances—the whole host of activities that contribute to learning and health and happiness.

To other young people, however, "back to school" will have a different sound. Pupils who feel this way can give many reasons for not wanting to return to their books and teachers.

Their reasons go something like this: "I hate school... never makes good marks, no matter how hard I try... I've got all the education I'll ever need... Nobody seems to care whether I do good in school or not... I've got a swell job. My boss wants me to stay. Why should I go back to school?"

SOME of the reasons young people don't go "back to school" or don't give their best effort in school are frivolous — not real reasons for concern. Other reasons have their roots in serious and very real problems. Perhaps a teen-ager's earnings are needed to help support the family. Or his hatred of school may be related to some deep psychological hurt. Parents in such a good case should seek help from someone other than their own.

One of the grave problems that concerns education is the fact that everyone interested in children and youth — in the young person who does not go on to absorb the full amount of education he is capable of absorbing.

Marion B. Folsom

The failure of the young person to go on—or the failure of our society to provide him the opportunity to go on—not only is a deep personal loss to the individual but is a tragic waste of a great national asset.

The goal for all of us should be education to the full capacity of each individual. If that goal is sought by parents, teachers, educational leaders, government officials—and by the young people themselves—there will be trained people to do the jobs where shortages now exist: in science, engineering, medicine, nursing, teaching, and in the many other fields in which special knowledge is required.

I should like to say to every child in elementary school and to every teen-ager in high school, "Don't stop until you have that high school diploma in your hand—and then don't stop. Give yourself the best alert you can muster." Remember your earning capacity, your personal development, and your enjoyment of life all increase proportionately with every year you spend in school and with every increase in knowledge and understanding of the world today.

Veterans Corner

Young men and women planning to attend school this fall under the new War Orphans Education Law, were urged today by the Veterans Administration to file their applications as soon as possible, to avoid unnecessary delays in receiving their first monthly allowance check.

Application forms are available at all VA offices.

Persons eligible for schooling are those whose veteran-parent died of injuries or diseases resulting from military service during World War I, World War II or the Korean Conflict. Students generally must be between 18 and 23 years old, V. S. Parker, manager of the Pass-a-Grille VA Regional Office, explained.

Prompt action is needed, he explained because normally it will take about three months from the date of application to the date the initial allowance check is placed in the mail. So in the case of young men and women who apply now, the earliest that VA could mail out checks would be mid-November.

When the first checks do arrive however, they will cover the entire period during which the students were in school after October 1 — the beginning date on which the law authorizes payments to be made. Thereafter, checks will be mailed regularly to cover each month the student has been in school.

The money usually will be sent to the student's parent or guardian, rather than to the student himself.

The three-month period between application and receipt of the first check is necessary because of the processes required by the law, Mr. Parker said. Here's what is involved:

After the application is filed, VA must check its records to make certain that the young man or woman meets basic eligibility requirements for schooling. If so, VA will issue a "provisional approval."

Next, VA will schedule vocational counseling to help the applicant, along with his living parent or guardian, to plan a program of education best suited to his aptitude, abilities and interests. Also, the parent or guardian, with the help of VA counselors, must work out an "educational plan" showing the student's goal, his program of education, what school or schools he plans to attend and the estimated cost.

Only after this plan is submitted may VA give its final approval for the training.

And even after the student enrolls in school, he can't expect his Government check immediately. For the law calls for payments to be made some time after the end of each month of training completed.

'Ike Most Popular Man In World' Says U.S. Postal Chief

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., (AP) — Postmaster General Summerfield is convinced President Eisenhower is "the most popular man in the world."

Summerfield, resting here after the Republican National Convention, made the comment Sunday. Because of the President, he said, confidence has replaced fear and apprehension throughout the country.

The postal chief, who managed the 1952 Eisenhower campaign, described last week's GOP convention as the finest he had ever attended.

Summerfield also got in a plug for his departure. He said the haltpoint pens now in use in post offices are less expensive than the old pen and ink bottles system.

After the month has ended, the student and his school must submit a certification to VA stating that he has been in attendance all month. The law, then, allows VA up to 30 days after receipt of the certification to get the student's check in the mail.

For young men and women who want to begin fall terms at school before receiving VA's final approval of their courses, VA suggested that they enroll in school courses that have been State-approved for Korean veterans under the Korean GI Bill. Any VA regional office can inform a student whether the course he has chosen is GI-approved, which is necessary for students enrolled under the War Orphans Education program.

It's advisable, however, that they receive VA vocational counseling before they enroll. This way they will know that their course will best prepare them for their future careers.

Ike Will Consider State If National Speaking Tour Set

If President Eisenhower embarks on a nationwide speaking tour, Florida is one of the states that will be considered. In a letter to Arnold Lund, Republican nominee for the Congress of the Fifth District was so informed today by Lyle O. Snader, chairman of the speakers bureau of the Republican National Committee. "It is my intention to help you in every possible way to obtain the victory you so richly deserve and which we anticipate. If the president embarks on a nationwide tour, you may be certain that I shall do everything possible to see that Florida is one of these states he visits," Snader wrote. In another communication received by Lund from Ann C. Whitman, personal secretary to the president, Lund was assured that his suggestion of having Eisenhower visit the State would be given early and personal consideration. At the request of the National Committee, Lund is leaving next Wednesday, to interview the President personally. It is planned to take pictures of the two of them jointly as well as to have a meeting to discuss the political situation of the Fifth District. While in Washington, Lund will meet and discuss all phases of his campaign with Leonard Hall and members of his staff.

School Bus Patrol Will Continue

"Motorists must comply with laws regarding the stopping of their cars approaching or behind school buses as they stop to load or unload," Sheriff J. L. Hobby warned this morning as he revealed his plans to patrol the school buses as they bring children to school each morning and return them to their homes each afternoon. "This law will be strictly enforced," Sheriff Hobby remarked as he said, "We will continue our school bus patrol during the coming school year beginning next Tuesday morning." Sheriff Hobby reminds Sanford and Seminole County motorists that school bus drivers will give motorists ample time to stop with their signals and that they will be required to stop when buses stop to load or unload children all over the county. Whether motorists are approaching the buses of following them, they will have to stop, said the Sheriff. "We intend to make the next school year the safest year in the schools' history," the Seminole County Sheriff said. "The entire staff of Seminole County Sheriff's will be following Seminole County school buses during the 1956-57 school year in order to strictly enforce the laws concerning the safety of our school children," Hobby said. "We hope that the motorists of our County will comply with the safe driving regulations designed to protect the school children," Hobby said. School buses begin their daily operation next Tuesday morning bringing children to every school in the county. Buses operating and bringing children to Pinecrest School will be on a double schedule because of the increasing number of students attending classes there. All bus drivers have received their final instructions from Walter Teague, administrative assistant to Superintendent of Public Instruction R. T. Milner and in charge of transportation. Teague said that buses have been put in perfect condition for the coming year's operation.

President Says More Powerful

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower announced today the Russians have touched off still another atomic explosion. He said this one was more powerful than the test a week ago which had the force of almost one million tons of TNT. Eisenhower made the announcement at a news conference after recalling that last Sunday he disclosed that the Soviet Union had resumed tests of nuclear weapons. On that occasion, while he was still in California, Eisenhower said a blast on Aug. 24 had the force of almost a megaton, or a million tons of TNT. Today the President said the Russians have engaged in what he termed another large test in the accustomed place. That would be in Southwest Siberia, as reported for the first time officially in Eisenhower's announcement last Sunday. The new test, Eisenhower said, took place yesterday in that area. Then he went on, in effect, to criticize Soviet leaders for talking peace and at the same time continuing tests of nuclear weapons. Eisenhower said Soviet diplomats talks of abolishing atomic weapons but go right ahead testing them without prior announcement and in secrecy. A reporter reminded Eisenhower that last Sunday's announcement talked about a blast with a yield of something less than a megaton. Noting that Eisenhower spoke today of the new blast being even more powerful, the newsman asked the President if he could be more specific about that. Eisenhower replied he could not—that he could only say at this time that it was more powerful. The Atomic Energy Commission, he added, apparently is not ready to go into more detail. Responding to another question, Eisenhower said the latest Soviet nuclear tests will not bring any change in U. S. national defense plans. We still are going on the assumption, Eisenhower added, that the Soviet objective is such that we must maintain our own security. At the news conference—his first since he was nominated last week for a second term—Eisenhower also dealt with these matters.

Sale Of 1956-57 Drivers Licenses Begins Tomorrow

The sale of 1956-57 drivers licenses begins tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock under the supervision of Judge Housholder's office in the lobby of the Seminole County Court House. Cost of operator's license is $1.25 and chauffeurs license at $2.25, the same as last year. All applicants for the renewal of drivers license are required to surrender their present license. Applicants may secure their license by mail by sending the original license, accompanied by the fee and a return stamped envelope. The applicant keeps the duplicate of the original license until the new license is received. Judge Housholder said this morning that he has a good staff of assistants to serve applicants applying for driver license renewal and urges everyone to secure their licenses as early as possible to avoid long waiting lines. No hours of sale for licenses at present will be from 9 to 12 and 1 to 5 each week except Saturday which will be only from 9 to 12. There will be no drivers licenses sold Monday, Labor Day. Judge Housholder said, "I will visit the outside precincts with helpers to issue licenses for those who find it more convenient to purchase them in their own locality." The schedule for the sale of drivers licenses in the outside precincts will be announced later, said Judge Housholder. The Seminole County Judge "urges everyone to secure their license early."

Stevenson Assured Of Winning Votes In Southern States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Adlai Stevenson and Southern leaders beat the drums for Democratic unity yesterday, while President Eisenhower heartily endorsed a "Republican registration roundup." Democratic leaders from 19 Southern states, meeting in Knoxville, Tenn., gave Stevenson unanimous assurances that the South will stick with him and his vice presidential running mate, Estes Kefauver, in the November election. In Washington, Eisenhower was described as "very happy" about a nationwide Republican women's campaign to register qualified voters. Mrs. Bertha Adkins, assistant chairman of the GOP National Committee for women's activities, told newsmen Eisenhower is concerned about a drop in voter registration. "We know a big vote means a Republican victory," she added. In Knoxville, Stevenson said the Southern assurances "meant a great deal" because of the importance of a united party. He added: "I feel a strong Democratic current is running in the land, and it has been gaining very rapidly in the last six months. We still have a lot of work to do." He said he received a telegram from Sen. Russell of Georgia, a leader of the Southern bloc, in which Russell said "unless there is some unforeseen development, I believe you can safely count on the Southern states once more giving an overwhelming majority in a restoration of the old, solid South."

Nation's Labor Day Holiday Death Toll Estimated At 480

CHICAGO (AP)—The only three-day holiday weekend of the summer lured millions of motorists to the highways today. Some were taking a final fling to beaches or fishing spots. Others were closing up summer homes for the season and heading home. Some were collecting their children in camps and resorts for the trek back to classrooms. Others are hauling their college age ouths and luggage to faraway campuses. And for some 480 drivers, passengers and pedestrians this may be their last weekend. That was the death toll for the Labor Day holiday period estimated by the National Safety Council. The period covered by the estimate will extend from 6 p. m. tonight until midnight Monday. Only immediate deaths are included in the estimate. Many others will die later from injuries incurred in the holiday traffic. For comparative purposes the Associated Press conducted a nationwide survey of traffic deaths on the nonholiday weekend of Aug. 17-20. In the 78-hour period from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Monday traffic killed 366 persons. As the Labor Day traffic tide began to roll the Safety Council reported that last month's toll of 3,570 was the greatest of any July in history.
