DEVOLVING UPON GOVERNOR
AT THIS TIME VERY SERIOUS AND WEIGHTY

(By The Associated Press)
TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 4.—Hon. Cary A. Hardee became Governor of Florida today at noon when he took the oath of office and afterward gave his inaugural address. Coming just at this time the address is so good that the Herald procured it for the edification of the Herald readers. It is given in full below:

My fellow citizens:
A very wise provision in our State Constitution has placed a limit of time in which one may serve continuously as chief executive of Florida. That he may not succeed himself, finds hearty approval from thoughtful men and women. The inauguration of a chief executive becomes a frequently recurring event, marking the close of one administration, and the beginning of another. In this representative government they who shall administer the affairs of the state, must first be called to service by the sovereign voice of the people, and so today having been thus called, and in obedience to the will of the people of Florida, I am about to assume the high and responsible duties pertaining to the great office to which they have called me. It is my desire, and it seems quite appropriate that I should avail myself of the occasion now presented, to pay grateful acknowledgement of

W. VA. CAPITAL IS DESTROYED BY FLAMES

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 4.—The capitol of West Virginia was destroyed by fire late today. One laborer was killed, a fireman seriously injured and several other fire fighters hurt when a section of the roof, under which they were standing, fell in. The spectacular nature of the fire was enhanced when much ammunition, stored on the third floor of the building, exploded.

The fire broke out on the Lee street side of the building and within four hours after the fire was discovered the capitol and "priceless records" was a mass of smoking ruins. State officials made no attempt to estimate the loss, but they said that the records destroyed, upon which no insurance was carried, could not be replaced and that it was impossible to estimate their value. Some records were saved by clerks, officials and firemen.

The capitol, erected in 1881, at a cost of more than $400,000, is believed to have been the oldest brick capitol in the United States.

NEW POLITICAL REGIME BEGINS IN STATE OF FLORIDA TODAY WITH HARDEE'S ADVENT

Ceremonies Began at Noon Today at Capital in Tallahassee

THOUSANDS ARE PRESENT
Was Made One of the Greatest Inaugurals in the History of State

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 4.—Florida begins a new political regime today, when Cary A. Hardee of Live Oak, will assume the oath of office for a period of four years.

Ceremonies incident to the inaugural will begin at noon today when, in the capitol building, Chief Justice Brown of the state supreme court, will administer the oath of office, following which the new governor will deliver his inaugural address, outlining for the first time in an official way the policies and principles which he will seek to carry out as chief executive.

Governor Hardee's inauguration is expected to be witnessed by perhaps the greatest throng of out-of-town visitors in attendance on an inaugural in recent years, as a testimonial of the fact that he assumes the high office of governor as one of the most popular men ever sworn to that duty in the state.

Governor Hardee's address which is expected to be delivered shortly after the noon hour, will be followed by a lull in the afternoon, after which the governor will hold a reception in the governor's office. The Governor and Mrs. Hardee and all members of the cabinet and their wives will stand in the receiving line to meet the throngs which will file past and proceed to the second floor of the building into the hall of the house of representatives, which will have been cleared for the inaugural ball.

One change will occur in the cabinet which will serve with Governor Hardee, and that will be in the office of attorney general, Rivers Buford of Marianna succeeding Van C. Swearingen, who did not aspire for re-election, having been a candidate for governor in opposition to Mr. Hardee. Mr. Buford will also be sworn in and the cabinet will be then made up of five department heads who served under Governor Catts and the new attorney general.

Governor and Mrs. Hardee have already moved into the governor's mansion which is situated on the northern outskirts of Tallahassee, the retiring governor and Mrs. Catts having turned the mansion over to the new governor Sunday afternoon. The incoming Governor and Mrs. Hardee were guests of the retiring governor and Mrs. Catts at supper for the exchange of residence.

It is probable that Governor and Mrs. Catts will remain in Tallahassee for the inauguration, but will soon depart for DeFuniak Springs, where he expects to reside in the future. Prior to his selection as governor Mr. Catts was pastor of the First Baptist church at that place, and while he expects to return to DeFuniak to reside he does not expect to again enter the pulpit as a pastor.

Old Days In Orange County

By C. E. HOWARD
THE STORY OF W. J. HILL, PIONEER

W. J. Hill, the only sure-enough English humorist, who came straight to Florida in the earlier days, has a real racy story to tell, related to the writer several years ago.

That this jovial gentleman has passed "Over the River" does not detract from the zest of his story, which we let him tell in his own words that nothing may be detracted from.

W. J. Hill, who was until the time of his death the oldest business man in the hardware line in Florida, and who claimed to have lived longer in Sanford than any one else.

"Funny how I came to Florida in the first place," said he. "I was born in London, England, March 15, 1842. I came to New York in July, 1872. I worked as an interpreter in the election race of Grant and Greeley, as most of the people did not understand the Cockney language. Worked at this until the election was over. It was cold and uncomfortable. One day I met an Englishman I knew. Tell me, said I, 'where do all the bloomin' swells go when it gets like this?' 'To Florida, my chap,' said he, and to Florida this well immediately went. 'Our steamer stopped at Savannah

FINE BODY OF MEN WILL GUIDE OUR DESTINIES

FOR FOUR YEARS

SHERIFF AND ONE COUNTY
COMMISSIONER ONLY NEW ONES ON THE JOB.

The officials who will guide the destinies of Seminole county for the next four years were officially inducted into their offices this morning although all of them had already taken the oath and were ready for business at least all of those who had been re-elected. C. M. Hand, the newly-elected sheriff, and Endor Curlett, the new commissioner from the Geneva district, were on hand to receive the official papers that allow them to become new officials being the only new men. The county commissioners were called to order at 10 o'clock prompt by Chairman Brumley and the minutes of the last session were read and the unfinished business of the old board finished. The board adopted suitable resolutions regarding the past services of the retiring member, E. H. Kilbee, which was read and which will appear in the Herald in full. The old board then adjourned and the new board was called to order at this time L. A. Brumley was again chosen chairman of the board by the unanimous vote of the board. Mr. Brumley has made a fine executive officer of the board and the commissioners take up their duties with the feeling that much constructive work will be done in the next four years. The board is composed of L. A. Brumley, L. P. Hagan, C. W. Entaminger, O. P. Swope and Endor Curlett, all of them large property owners, all of them successful business men and all of them vitally interested in the upbuilding of Seminole county and it is probably the most representative, the most self-sacrificing, the most efficient board of county commissioners in the state.

C. M. Hand, the newly-elected sheriff, was the first sheriff of Seminole county and served two terms as such when he was replaced by E. E. Brady, who served the past four years in this office being in turn supplanted by Mr. Hand at the election in November. Thus the sheriff's office is to be filled by an experienced and able official and one who will give general satisfaction.

The other officials of the county are men who held offices during the past four years and were elected with or without opposition being E. F. Housholder, county judge; A. Vaughn, tax assessor; Jno. D. Jinkins, tax collector; E. A. Douglass, clerk of the circuit court; T. W. Lawton, superintendent of public instruction; L. G. Stringfellow, justice of the peace; Claude Whitten, constable; Theo. Aulin, justice peace; J. H. Lee, constable; O. H. Train, justice peace, and D. H. Hooker, constable.

DR. J. F. RAY, OF JAPAN, WILL SPEAK HERE

It is with pleasure that the announcement can be made that Dr. J. Franklin Ray, of Japan, is coming to Sanford for a visit and while here to lecture three times on the country of his adoption. Dr. Ray is the pastor of the Church at Kure, one of the large and important cities of Japan. The chapel in which he delivers his message over there is the gift of one of the trustees of the Baptist Church of Sanford. The church here in Sanford also pays the salary of Dr. Ray. He was well educated in this country before sailing to Japan. He holds both A. B. and A. M. degrees from college and theological degree from the Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky. He was a class mate of Dr. Hyman in the last named school.

Sunday, January 9th, he will occupy the pulpit at the 11 a. m. and the 7:30 p. m. services. Also he is to Frnaklin Ray, of Japan, is coming to night, Jan. 10th.

FLORIDA CAN SUPPLY THE WORLD IN SUGAR STATES DR. BLACKMAN

IN ADDRESS BEFORE ASSOCIATION FOR ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE

TALKS AT CHICAGO

AND CALLED ATTENTION TO WONDERFUL POSSIBILITIES OF THIS STATE

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Addressing the Association for the Advancement of Science here Thursday, Dr. W. F. Blackman, of Jacksonville, Florida, declared that Florida not only has the natural advantages to supply the sugar for the United States, but could with the proper development of the industry, supply the entire world. After going into the different kinds of soil and telling of the climatic conditions, Dr. Blackman said:

"Taking these various types of soil together, I have no doubt that it is well within the bounds of truth to say that Florida has 15 or 20 million acres of land which is either already adapted to the growing of sugar cane or which can readily be prepared for this use by clearing and drainage, and that on half this acreage, allowing thus for crop rotation, two hundred millions of tons of cane could be grown in a fairly favorable season. And two hundred million tons of cane of good sucrose content, would make as much sugar as the whole world now produces, both cane and beet. Of course this statement is only theoretical, for no one supposes that more than a fraction of this enormous area will ever in fact be devoted to this or any other single crop.

"It may be added that the average sugar content of Florida cane is considerably greater than that of Louisiana and at least equal to that of Hawaiian or Cuban cane. Dr. H. W. Willey, then chief of the bureau of chemistry, reported in 1906 that the richest cane ever analyzed in the bureau was grown in Florida. And good cane land in Florida can still be bought at a very low price.

"After climate and soil, the next most important question is that of an adequate supply of labor. The lands of Florida are level, free from stones and otherwise especially adapted to implemental cultivation. It is only in the harvesting of the cane that a large amount of hand labor is required. We may have some difficulty at this point, but the harvest fortunately extends from early November in northern Florida to late spring in the south, so that labor can be shifted from one region to the other. Moreover, a large amount of migratory labor has in recent years been attracted to the state for the picking and packing of citrus fruits, and to a less extent for the growing and harvesting of truck, just as has happened in the wheat growing sections of the west. Florida is specially attractive in the winter, and it ought to be possible, if the need should arise, and if the effort were properly organized, to bring into the state a multitude of 'hands' from the north where agricultural operations are largely suspended during the winter, for the cane harvest. Meantime, a considerable amount of native negro labor is available at reasonable wages."

STATE CAPITOL NOW IS IN GALA ATTIRE

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 3.—The old state capitol now stands in gala dress awaiting the great day of the inauguration of Florida's new governor, Hon. Cary A. Hardee of Live Oak.

Professional decorators have been at work on the stately building for several days and the arrangement of the national colors, the colors of the Confederacy and brightly colored bunting is very artistic and festive in appearance.

The ballroom is in readiness. Everything in the house of representatives has been removed and the floor is being put in excellent condition. The music for the day will be the very best, three different bands and an orchestra having been engaged.

Governor and Mrs. Catts and family vacated the mansion on Sunday afternoon and at that time the family of Mr. Hardee arrived.

Governor Catts has announced that he will return to his former home in DeFuniak Springs.

GOVERNOR-ELECT AND PARTY REACH CAPITAL

OATH WILL BE ADMINISTERED BY CHIEF JUSTICE BROWN

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 3.—With the arrival in the city yesterday afternoon of Governor-elect and Mrs. Hardee and party, the stage is all set for the inauguration of Florida's new governor Tuesday.

Governor Catts and family have vacated the mansion and are now domiciled at the Leon hotel until Wednesday or later.

In spite of the fact that the ceremonies do not begin until Tuesday, Tallahassee is already beginning to fill up, and every train brings scores of Floridians who come to attend the inaugural.

The county commissioners yesterday received a telegram from Perry stating that about 100 automobiles would come from that town Tuesday and asking that the roads be inspected and put in shape. The commissioners are already at work on the roads and it is probable that no difficulty will be encountered by motorists in Leon county at least. The chamber of commerce replied to the telegram indicating the best route for the Taylor county visitors. Since no special train will be run from Live Oak, it is also probable that a great number of automobile parties will come from that city, as it is understood that a general holiday for Tuesday has been declared in the city of the governor-elect's legal residence.

Chairman J. Stuart Lewis of the arrangements committee announces that all plans have been finally made and that everything is in readiness to handle the program of the day smoothly and promptly. Practically all the decorations have been completed and the capital city presents a gala scene.

Tomorrow will be given over by Tallahasseeans to welcoming and accommodating the hordes of visitors which will in all probability throng the city. Older residents of Tallahassee declare that there has never been so great an interest shown throughout the entire state in the inaugural as centers around Tuesday's program. The story sent out from Tallahassee recently to the effect that the justices of the supreme court would on Tuesday hold a drawing for chief justice was an error. The misapprehension arose from the fact that such a drawing was held four years ago just preceding the inauguration of Governor Catts, when Chief Justice Brown was chosen. It is now learned that in such cases the members of the court chosen as chief justice holds that office during the term of justice. As Judge Brown was just entering upon his duties when chosen, he accordingly, will administer the oath of office to Governor-elect Hardee on Tuesday.

DECLINE IN PRICES INCREASES UNEMPLOYMENT THROUGHOUT COUNTRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Further decline in prices, coupled with increased unemployment, accompanied the country's continued progress of business readjustment during December, according to the monthly review of general business and financial condition issued today by the Federal Reserve Board. The price decline during the month was placed at 8 1-4 per cent by the board, which added the observation that the decrease in prices was mainly confined to commodities which had shown a decline previously rather than an extension of price cutting.

The decline was reported as most marked in agricultural products, textiles, hides, leather and iron and steel products, while coal, petroleum, gasoline, paper, brick and cement remained largely unaffected. Some reductions were reported in the open market in the latter group of commodities, but contract prices appeared to be at the same level as earlier in the month.

Reduced business activity, the board stated, cut operations in many lines from 40 per cent to 75 per cent of normal and brought accompanying unemployment. The shrinkage of demand, the board reported, also was responsible for wage cuts running as high as 25 per cent in some lines.

Banking power, on the other hand, was well maintained, the board asserted, normal credit accommodations extending to legitimate business, the reserve ratio growing stronger and inter-reserve borrowing in part liquidated. With liquidation at the member banks beginning, the board forecast better conditions. Business in wholesale and manufac-

TRUCKERS ORGANIZE TO CONTROL LABOR SITUATION

The truckers of Lee, DeSoto and Manatee Counties are compelled to reduce their acreage of truck crops for this year, principally on account of the labor shortage. While the labor situation is slightly better than a month ago, the present situation will bring about some important changes for securing sufficient labor to handle the usual crops.

Sometime ago the truckers of Seminole county organized and decided on a definite wage scale. In order to carry out the same plan in Manatee county, County Agent W. R. Briggs and a number of local truckers called a meeting at Bradentown to establish a similar system throughout Manatee County. Reports indicate that sufficient labor can be secured to handle a much larger crop than is being planted, but without some definite plan of organization the uncertainty makes the situation difficult to handle.

The farmers of Manatee county fully realizing the situation, have determined to better their conditions by co-operative action. The business interests of the county also see the need of such action and this effort is sure to bring results.—The Florida Grower.

Good time for lettuce to get better.

The old town is some lively, some lively, bulleive me.

When our neighbors comment on the town picking up it must be so. And then outsiders can see changes in our town before we can.

What a wonderful future stretches out before us on this fourth day of January. We should all be thankful every day of our lives that we are living in a city with such fine prospects.

Daytona journalism has risen to a higher plane. The lynching of Arthur Hames took place over a week ago, and so far neither Daytona paper has accused the other of committing the crime.—DeLand News.

No, Pauline, the editor of the Herald does not expect to leave Sanford, now or ever. We are here to stay although several very flattering offers have been made to us to come to other cities. We are staying right in Sanford where there are brighter prospects, where the air and water are purer, where the people are all friendly like and know our past and present history and where we began at the bottom and made the Herald—our child—what it is today.

The Herald management wants the public to know that they are invited to come in and inspect our fine plant any time of the day or night and when you see it our statements about it will be verified. The Herald plant is one of the best in the state and yet there are but few of the Sanford people that have ever taken the trouble or time to look it over. We really mean what we say in extending this invitation to the public. A real up-to-date printing office is one of the most interesting places in the world, and we want the people here to know what makes the wheels go round. You will have some idea of what the Herald is doing in the way of giving Sanford a real printing plant.

"Young man advertises a reward of ten dollars to anyone who will find him an apartment between Oak and Palmetto avenues, from First to Tenth street," says the Sanford Herald. "He should get what he wants. He deserves success. He evidently understands the value of printers' ink and has gone about getting his desire in the proper way." The item is quoted to suggest that the talk about Florida having a great many visitors is not merely propaganda. It is a fact, and it would be almost a shame to tell of the way in which the crowds have come, except for the reason that Florida is every day adding to her accommodations. Never in the history of the state has there been such a splendid maintenance of construction work as is shown in the reports from all parts of the state. This is usually the season when but little work in that line has gone on, but there has not even been hesitation this season—the builders are as busy as bees, and they have work planned ahead for months.—Times-Union.

THE GROUCH FLOURISHES

Stories of snubbings from persons whose positions bring them daily face to face with the public, is astonishing. Disagreeable, ill bred people are encountered so often in public that they sometimes seem to be the rule rather than the exception. Just why this is true it is difficult to imagine. Surely it requires no more effort to answer a question politely than to reply gruffly and ill naturedly. It would seem that there would really be less nerve strain to the individual who replies pleasantly to every inquiry than to the one who, seemingly, works himself into a wrath at the mere idea of being addressed by a fellow man. The question naturally arises, how do the grouchy ones act in their own homes? If their conduct in public is any criterion, those who live in the same house with them are to be sincerely pitied. But the public grouch is with us, and all the courtesy drives in the world, seemingly can not change him.—DeLand Record.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR RESOLUTIONS

As the new year approaches it might be well for folks to take stock of the resolutions they made at the beginning of this year—and most of them probably will discover a deficit.

In most cases the books simply won't balance. In the average life resolutions broken far exceed resolutions kept. Resolution is the most difficult of enterprises.

It's easier to wink at one's faults than to fight them off; to compromise rather than to insist on the strict letter of the new year contract one makes with one's self.

A man making a business agreement with another, demands a strict interpretation of every comma, and semi-colon. But he is much easier with himself.

Conscience says: "But you promised me faithfully to do this."

The man answers: "Oh, well, what's the difference?"—and breaks the contract with conscience.

The trouble is the average resolution is a sort of secret treaty. If resolutions were open covenants, openly arrived at, more resolutions would be kept.

One man realized this. So whenever he decided to make a resolution, he told his wife about it. And what his conscience would not compel him to do, pride would not permit him to evade. He didn't want his wife to think him a weakling.

Other might copy his example.—Dayton Journal.

"I SEE BY THE PAPER"—HOW MANY SAY IT?

"I see by the paper"—ever stop to think how much of the conversation of the average person begins with Mr. Dooley's favorite phrase?

"I see by the paper," says Mrs. Smith when she's ready to debate the latest social happenings.

"I see by the paper," booms Mr. Jones when it's on his mind to discuss the state of the nation.

Even when one doesn't actually say it, consider what a big proportion of our talk is based on what we've seen in the day's news.

Says a local business man: "What we see in the paper is the mainspring of our interests. It governs a good deal of our conduct."

"We have the newspaper habit—and it's more than a habit. It's a fundamental condition of our ability to keep up with the times."

All this, perhaps, everybody knows. But now let this correspondent make the direct application of it to the reader's own affairs.

If folks have learned to look in the paper for their knowledge of what's going on around the world, they've also learned to look there for the things that concerns them as individuals.

Who's invented something new that's to their wants.

Who's selling the things they want to wear and to eat and to enjoy in other ways.

How do they find out? They read the paper.

"I saw by the paper" is in the back of Mr. Customer's head—and Mrs. Customer's—when they line up at the counter.

Moral: Mr. Advertiser, you better make sure that they "see by the paper" what you offer them.

"ENCHANTED ISLAND"

Cyprus, fairy land of the Mediterranean, which Greeks have been urging Great Britain to turn over to them, has a history no less strange than the fiction of Shakespeare's "Othello," for which the island, in part, is the setting.

Richard Coeur de Lion wrested it from a ruler who had won it by forging letters in his monarch's name after that ruler, Isaac Comnenus, had refused to let the Crusader's ship wrecked and seasick lady-love land there the first time she arrived.

Richard married Berengaria there and went his way, after turning over the island to a penniless adventurer Guy de Lusignan, who founded a "feudal state amongst spice gardens and silken luxury," and thus established a dynasty which has been described as the most romantic European history.

Cyprus bulks large in the crotch of Asia Minor, like a huge fat with a lean finger pointing straight at Antioch. Historically, one may imagine the finger should be crooked a bit more, in perpetual accusation of the sultan, the degenerate Selim II, whose generals captured the island, impelled in part, at least, by the fact that Selim's favorite wine came from there. Geographically, the promontory marks the line of Cyprus' prehistoric connection with Asia's mainland.

There too, reigned the beautiful Queen Catherine Cornaro, adopted "daughter of Venice," who, though grief-stricken by her husband's death struggled against intrigue that the throne might be saved for his unborn child.

Early came to Cyprus those "Yankees of the Levant," the Phoenicians Sargon, the king of Assyria who, as Isalah had prophesied, led "the Egyptian prisoners and the Ethiopian captives," also conquered Cyprus.

Esrhaddon, the Caesar and Carnegie of Assyria, who left at Nineveh an indexed library of many thousands of clay tablets, received tributes from ten Cyprian kings.

Pausanias, Benedict Arnold of Sparta, liberated Cyprus from Persian dominion, and Evagoras, one of the island kings, hero of the world's first known biography, penned by Isocrates, who united the scattered principalities, is the King Arthur of island tradition.

Thus Cyprus reeks with composite memories of eastern, Grecian, Roman, and even Anglo-Saxon civilization. No less was it a focal point for religions.

At Koukila, where certain tides still pile masses of soap along the shore, Aphrodite is supposed to have been born of the waves. Here are ruins of a temple for her worship, where originally fetes were held which, as one writer puts it, "were the scenes of a too literal worship of Venus," and where until recently it was the custom to immerse maidens in honor of the goddess' birth.

Koukila is on the site of the ancient Paphos. The Paphos of today was the one-time Neapaphos, where St. Paul struck blind the sorcerer, Elymas, and converted Sergius Paulus, the Roman deputy.

The present-day Larnaka is on the site of the biblical Chittim, whose ships are mentioned by Daniel, and whose ivory is referred to by Ezekiel. In Larnaka is the tomb of Lazarus, who, after being raised from the dead, is said to have become bishop of the renowned city.

The area of Cyprus is about equal to the combined areas of Delaware and Rhode Island, while its total population is about half that of the latter state.

Florida furnishes the great bulk of phosphate rock used by fertilizer makers in the United States. Heretofore the method of converting the rock into fertilizer was by treating a fixed quantity of rock with sulphuric acid on a "50-50" basis, the result being commercially known as acid phosphate. The Bureau of Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture announces a new and better system of converting this rock into fertilizer by heating mixtures of the rock, coke and sand to the smelting-point. The new method is claimed to result in a much higher percentage of phosphoric acid, the fertilizing element, than was possible by the acid treating and washing process.

Few regrets are heard over the passing of one well-known character about Daytona and vicinity. That character is "Jack-a-Knife" O'Brien, also known by a string of aliases, who decreased the wiretapping gang of that vicinity by one—by up and dying several days ago in a Savannah Hospital, and who has now gone to whatever place wiretappers go when they die.

If tombstone epitaphs were reliable satan would be out of a job.

GOOD NEW YEAR

By EMORY J. HAYNES, in the Boston Globe.

It was foretold forty years ago. The New Year shall be a good one. This is the story of the prophecy. It depends upon you to believe it. Forty years ago a lone skater upon the glassy surface of a lake in northern New England celebrated his solitary holiday. At the far end of his ten mile dash he rested in the noonday sun, sitting at the base of a towering cliff.

He was a stonemason's apprentice, a mere boy workman. He habitually carried his steel chisel in his pocket. Climbing high and with much hazard, up the face of the towering rocks, he cut this legend in the face of the mountain:

"The New Year Will Be Good."

The bold lettering is visible for miles. The lake in summer is a favorite resort of pleasure parties. Each year thousands of eyes have spelled out the cheery monograph, while boats passed, and many a hearty laugh has rung with a heartier joy as old and young have approved the sculptured promise.

It will long endure, for the steel cut deep, and the mountain will not remove, nor the pretty lake pass away. The boy did not date it. Fortunately so, for that makes it fit every year and every reader. Why not for a century to come?

A thousand times the question has been asked: "Who wrote it?" And no one knew. So it seemed some eternal truth of nature that the very rocks had miraculously inscribed upon themselves.

It was true to any one who would take the trouble to lift his eyes and read it. In storms the snow silvered the lettering. In the sun the words gleamed with lines of living light. A sentence by no means elegant, but crude and boyish rather. Yet what rhetoric could add to the abrupt and simple prophecy from a hopeful healthy spirit?

The New Year was to be just plain "good." Was that enough? Is it not enough for us all?

One good to you, another good to me, still another good to others. But always to all who will grasp it, written on the very face of the turning globe, the next year will be "good." Last summer a wealthy visitor at the lakeside hotel drew the proprietor to the corner of the veranda, and lifting his glasses, asked: "Do you see those letters on the rocks? I am the boy who cut them, January 1, 1847. You seem glad to know the author. I never revealed the fact. Why should I?"

"It is not because I said it that it is true. No matter who says it, on a Happy New Year the New Year will be good. It is true in itself. Happy the man or boy who says it, who feels it, and who will have it so.

"The mere freak of a moment, yet somehow later I awoke to the fact that I had written a life creed on my heart out of the hopefulness and daring of a boy."

Let us take the hope and courage of youth as the truth of this latest of our years. The New Year must be good. Can you not see those lettered cliffs? No visitor ever was dull to their magic spell, and many have read them through grateful tears.

COMMISSION MANAGER FORM OF GOVERNMENT

TAKES PLACE IN TAMPA TODAY MARKING NEW EPOCH IN HISTORY OF CITY

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 4.—Marking the close of a fight which has been waged for more than ten years, the city of Tampa today goes under the commission-manager form of government, with Charles H. Brown, one of South Florida's leading business men, as mayor-commissioner, and W. J. Barritt, Henry Snow, V. V. Sharpe and W. A. Adams as commissioners. Each member of the commission is a successful business man and received the backing of the Commission Government Club of Tampa—the slate of candidates put out by this club having received overwhelming majorities in the primary of November 15th, and the election of December 7th.

Efficiency in government, with wise economy in every department of the city administration, has been pledged by the commissioners and supporters of the new form of government are united in the belief that under the commission-manager form Tampa will enter upon an era of prosperity greater than she has ever experienced. Immediately following the election some of the leading business men of the city stated they considered that property values had advanced at least 25 per cent because of the change. Tampa is a city of more than 50,000 population and with the development of its port facilities is expected to make a strong bid for leadership in South American trade in the next few years.

Although no announcement has been made by the commissioners as to who will be made city manager this matter has been the subject of much speculation. The general favorite for the post seems to be E. D. Lambright, for years a close student of commission government, and one of the leaders of the effort to change to that form. There is also some talk of an outside man getting the job, which is expected to pay from $8000 to $12,000 per year. Next in importance, in the minds of most citizens, and even transcending the managership in the minds of many, is the post of chief of police. The chief will be appointed by the city manager, as will other heads of departments, with the approval of the commission. The commission will appoint the city clerk, city attorney, comptroller and certain other similar officers, and the members of certain administrative boards.

It is believed that the new charter by its provisions making imperative the advertising of proposed sales of city property, save in very small matters, the allowing of competition in letting contracts, and the advertising of proposed new ordinances, will result in safeguarding the interests of the citizens.

In order to take the municipal government as far as possible out of politics the fifteen men who framed Tampa's new commission-manager charter fixed the salaries of mayor-commissioner and commissioners at $1800 and $1200 respectively. They reasoned that such salaries would make the commissionerships unattractive financially, and only those men having the good of the city at heart would seek the positions. They thought it preferable that the "jobs should seek the men" than that the "men should seek the jobs."

During the three-month period in which the new charter was being framed the charter board consulted the leading authorities on commission government, and took what they considered the best features from other commission-manager charters. Following the approval of the charter and the selection of commissioners, the entire board of commissioners spent some time visiting commission-manager cities and studying the practical working of the new form of government.

COURAGE OF SAMURAI TESTED

Boy of Twelve Forced to Show He Was Not Afraid of Death by His Own Hand.

Sato told us stories—the young man who wanted the sword that he might disembowel the Russians and not have to bite their throats in the hand-to-hand fighting.

Then the story of the samurai boy who must once in his life face death—make up his mind that he is to die. His own case, at the age of twelve, coming home from school, to find his great uncle and his mother all serious, a naked sword or a little wooden rack, the house all in order.

To be told that he had disgraced the family, he had dishonored his father's sword and killed a dog. He would be given the privilege of committing harakiri, for he was a samurai's son.

His great uncle gave him an object lesson, showed him how it was done and told him to proceed, wrapping the blade in paper, that it might not cut his hand, and telling him that he must do as he had seen his great uncle do, in earnest.

The boy begged for mercy. His kinsman and his mother were immovable. Was he afraid to die? If so, they might help him, and the uncle put his hand on his sword.

The boy's tears stopped. He knew his time had come and bowed. He opened his dress, rubbed his abdomen three times. He put out his hand and grasped the sword. He knew no more till a cry of "Mate" (Stop) brought him to his senses.

The reprieve at last. An instant more and he would have been dead by his own hand. He waited, dazed in a death sweat. His courage had been tested. He had faced death.—Ask Magazine.

ACCORDED PALM FOR BEAUTY

Miss Harriet Lane Acknowledged to Have Been the Prettiest Lady of the White House.

Historians are inclined to give to Miss Harriet Lane, niece of President Buchanan, the palm for being the prettiest woman that ever ruled the White House social life. She was a blond with hair of a rare gold, deep-blue eyes, and her mouth was said to be one of the most beautiful ever owned by a Washington belle. Her beauty was so noticeable that at the dawn of womanhood, when she accompanied her uncle, then America's representative in England, to Oxford, where he was to receive the degree of doctor of civil laws, that the student body greeted her appearance with terrific cheers, inspired entirely by the smile of her lovely lips as she turned her flowerlike face toward them.

Not only was she beautiful in line and curve, but in addition she was a picture of perfect health, an athlete of no mean order, as many a young gallant discovered after she had challenged him to a race and benten him so badly that spectators of the race unmercifully chaffed him. She played many games with skill and vigor, and there was not a woman in Washington that could compete with her in any game calling for strength and great activity. In spite of this she was not unwomanly, and excelled as a harpist, wrote poetry, and, as the young people of the capital reported, "danced like a feather."

Look Out Upon the Desert.

Come to the eastern side of the peak and look out once more upon the desert while yet there is time. The afternoon sun is driving its rays through the passes like the sharp-cut shafts of searchlights, and the shadows of the mountains are lengthening in distorted silhouette upon the sands below. Yet still the San Bernardino range, leading off southeast to the Colorado river, is glittering with sunlight at every peak. You are above it and can see over its crests in any direction. The vast sweep of the Mojave lies to the north; the Colorado with its old sea-bed lies to the south. Far away to the east you can see the faint forms of the Arizona mountains melting and mingling with the sky; and in between lie the long pink rifts of the desert valleys and the lilac tracery of the desert ranges.—"The Desert," by C. Van Dyke.

A Flying Chariot.

... All Paris, I think, myself among the rest, assembled to see the valiant brothers, Robert and Charles, mount into the air yesterday, in company with a certain Pilatre de Rosier, who conducted them in the newly-invented flying chariot fastened to an air-balloon. It was from the middle of the Tuilleries that they set out, a place very favorable and well-contrived for such public purposes. But all was so nicely managed, so cleverly carried on, somehow, that the order and decorum of us who remained on firm ground struck me more than even the very strange sight of human creatures floating in the wind; but I have really been witness to ten times as much bustle and confusion at a crowded theater in London, than what these peaceful Parisians make when the whole city was gathered together. ... —Mrs. Floss (1784).

GOVERNOR CARY A. HARDEE AFFIRMS OATH CHIEF EXECUTIVE MAKES MASTERFUL ADDRESS

my indebtedness to the people of our state for the confidence reposed in me as evidenced by my election to such an exalted station. I am not unmindful of the great honor conferred and am not lacking, I trust, in the fine sense of gratitude which fills my heart today. As I read the fundamental and statutory laws of Florida wherein are prescribed the duties and obligations of the chief executive, any possible sense of self sufficiency seems to grow less and my feelings of dependence upon the patient good will of the people and upon the co-operation and assistance of my associates in office more pronounced.

I seriously question if the present is propitious for one to assume the governorship of the state, if perchance he expects to bask thereafter in popular favor. We are today in the wake of a great world conflict which taxed to the utmost the productive forces of the nation. During its continuance and immediately following the armistice which marked its conclusion, private business and public affairs have been administered in keeping with such profligacy of expenditures as was never before known. Individual thrift and frugality have been largely discarded, and erstwhile luxuries are now being classed as necessities. Thoughtful men have known that such an orgy of inflation and expenditure could not continue, and with prophetic voice have all along wooed the people back to safer ground. Unfortunately we have not listened to more conservative counsels, and as a result we are in the midst of a period of industrial deflation which in magnitude, our country has never experienced before. There is rapidly accumulating a vast army of unemployed and the farms and manufacturing find difficulty in disposing of their products. If the people of Florida, forced by stress of circumstances need to take stock of themselves and learn again the lesson forgotten during the great war, even so must the state "set its house in order" against the perils of changing conditions. I desire to call upon the people to exercise a spirit of charity towards us, who shall attempt to lead during the critical period of readjustment and likewise I call upon them to practice individually those wholesome principles—perseverance, industry, economy and sober thinking.

We have no cause for gloomy foreboding, no reason for discontent, if only we are filled with a consciousness of our inherent power, and a realization of the matchless resources which a kind Providence has bestowed upon us. The future is big with promise, and Florida may if she will, come into her own. Ours is a rising state. Her people are not lacking in vision, and in natural resources she is rich indeed. The sturdy character of American citizenship is a result of the admixture of virile elements of varied nationalities. In a similar sense the amalgamation of those ever increasing streams of population, coming to us from every section of this broad land, must mean a citizenship of spiritual power and material achievement. The courageous spirit of the people, given fair opportunity and materials with which to work, will make Florida one of the greatest states of the union. Do I need to call your attention to the vast resources, granted us by a beneficent Creator. Nearly 1500 miles of sea coast, dotted here and there by splendid harbors. The commerce of the world finds facilities for trade and the wealth of the waters of the sea belong to us. Millions of acres of splendid agricultural lands, rich and fertile, specially adapted to agriculture, horticulture and live stock development, with little more than five per cent of it under cultivation. The wealth of our timber supply upon the face of the land and the hidden treasures beneath its surface speak of potential wealth of untold millions, and above all God's eternal sunshine affords us a climate which is attracting the peoples of less favored climes. I am tempted, perhaps to speak too much at length while contemplating the greatness of Florida. Let us set ourselves resolutely to the task of utilizing the proffered opportunities and building here on this heaven favored peninsula a commonwealth whose laws and institutions shall be so just and so efficiently administered that men everywhere will be attracted to us.

In its distribution of powers, the Constitution has divided our government into three departments. As the head of the Executive Department I shall not forget the intent of the fathers who wrote and published that great instrument and who saw therein each of said departments free and co-ordinate. A free untrammelled and independent judiciary must ever remain the bulwark of individual liberty. An enlightened, and incorruptible legislature is the absolute essential in governmental progress. By reason of supposed particular knowledge of our laws and policies, acquired through the administration and execution of them, it is made the duty of the governor to cooperate with the legislature and assist, if possible in its law making functions. I shall propose measures and policies but shall not attempt to influence their adoption through the improper use of executive power.

We are to be congratulated in that men of experience, ability and patriotic consecration to the public good have been chosen as head of the constitutional departments of our state government. For my part I am greatly pleased to be associated with them in the work ahead of us and can but feel that the official family, which I may with propriety call the cabinet, will, from the abundance of their experience contribute much towards the success of our administration. The occasion is quite opportune for me to bring them assurance that executive interference will not be indulged. And only in keeping with the spirit of the law shall I concern myself with their departmental affairs.

I wish to welcome, as co-partners the men and women who have been chosen to fill their respective positions incident to the administration of the law. There should exist between such officials and the Chief Executive a spirit of co-operation and mutual helpfulness. Each of us may well feel honored that we have been called to service. That our fellows have such confidence in our fitness that they trust their business in our hands. We can best repay them by a conscientious regard for the important duties of our respective offices.

The laws of Florida must be enforced. Private property must be respected. The rights of the individual safeguarded in his legitimate aspirations, but at no time and under no circumstances must the individual whether in a personal or in a corporate capacity, be allowed to assert himself to the detriment of the superior rights of the public. The obligation of law enforcement is upon the executive department. I trust that all of us who may be thus associated will somehow hear the call of the people for real service and for high ideals in the administration of the law. Permit me further to indulge in the hope that it will not be necessary for me as Chief Executive to resort to that instrumentality of the Constitution, carrying the power of removal of subordinate officers, in order of force a proper execution of the laws. The incorporation of this high prerogative in the hands of the Governor contemplates, however, a necessity at times for its use. I would have everyone clearly understand that I shall not hesitate to use it when there appears wanton disregard of the oath of office or gross incompetency in the performance of official duties.

Perhaps no greater service can be performed than that of caring for our state institutions. Florida has not been backward in making provision for her unfortunate, who by reason of infirmity of mind and body have become legitimate charges upon the state. She has also provided institutions corrective in character for those who have violated the laws, the State Hospital for the insane at Chattahoochee and the Institution at Gainesville for the epileptic, and feeble minded. Adequate provision for their maintenance and humane treatment of the inmates must always be observed. The Industrial School for Boys at Marianna and the School of like character for girls at Ocala, while incarcerating wayward youths, must somehow lead them back to a respect for constituted authority and obedience to law, and especially at these two institutions, the plication of effective methods and humane treatment upon plastic minds will largely redeem and reform them. Our Prison Farm at Ralford should be operated only by that class of convicts not physically able to work upon the public roads. I am in sympathy with every practicable humane method used in handling the convicts of the state. He who would mistreat them, or who would lose sight of a possible reformation is utterly unfit to deal with the problem, but I am unwilling for an ultra-humanitarianism to dictate our policy to that extent that we lose sight of the economic and disciplinary questions involved in incarceration. I believe the Farm should at least be self-sustaining and that the people should be relieved of taxes for its maintenance. The convicts physically fit must work. That was "the judgment of the law and the sentence of the court." Our system of working them upon the public roads must be maintained, and we will never I trust, go back to the private lease. As a prudent business man would handle his own affairs even so should we endeavor to manage the various state institutions. Remembering always that economy as well as efficiency must be kept constantly in mind.

What should be our aim for the future? Speaking very generally because this is not the time or place for very specific treatment of existing problems, I would suggest that we begin to give care to the conservation of our natural resources. The timber supply upon which the state is so dependent, must be intelligently conserved, not only conserved, but made sufficient for all times through reforestation. The fish and game of the state, now quite plentiful, must be preserved, and propagated. This to my mind, will be most effectively done, when we have taken the matter of enforcement of our fish and game laws away from local influences. And inasmuch as those resources belong to all the people, there should accrue to the people a fair and reasonable revenue through the operation of the laws. Conservation of resources is not enuf. We must build up and develop. That great tract of fertile land known as the Everglades, is a potential empire within itself. The very important work of drainage and reclamation, undertaken years ago must go on. Utilizing the funds derived from the sale of public lands after paying to the school fund the amount as required by the Constitution, we will, I trust continue the task until completed.

We must co-operate with the National government in the construction of roads and highways. We must match the Federal appropriation, always with an adequate state appropriation. A system of public roads, connecting every county site in Florida should be laid out, and eventually, I believe, the state should actually, take over, construct and maintain main thoroughfares connecting different sections of the state as distinguished from localities. We have dreamed and planned sufficiently long. Now has the time arrived for actual work and construction. It is our great problem today. I trust that the highway commission for the next four years may set themselves to the task of actually building roads.

Our aim for the future should be to give to the people of other states, some conception of the greatness, the attractiveness and beauty of Florida through truthful advertising. To keep in mind and foster every movement which will develop and benefit our agricultural, horticultural and live stock interests. The development of our marketing bureau, and the encouragement of co-operative movements to the end that the farmers and producers may receive the highest possible price for their products.

Our aim for the future should express itself, in improved methods in assessment and collection of revenue. An amendment to the Constitution permitting the assessment at proper rates of the great class of intangible properties; a more equitable assessment of property as between the different counties; co-ordination of the various departments of the state; an

THE BERMUDAS

The Bermuda Islands suggest the adventures of Robinson Crusoe in their colonization and present in their later chronology a curious parallel to United States history, with the events predated by a number of years.

The Robinson Crusoe comparison obtrudes because the island was discovered and later settled as the direct result of shipwrecks, and the settlers had to build themselves a bark to set sail again. As for the anticipation of American history on a miniature scale, it may be noted that the colonization took place seven years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, Mass.; that witches were burned, Quakers were persecuted, and miscreants were ducked before similar occurrences are recorded in New England, and that slavery was abolished in 1834. The Bermudians protested long before 1776 against the mother country's rule, until the island prisons were overfull; but relief came in their case not through a declaration of freedom, but by the accession of Cromwell.

But the essential point of contact of the American with the Bermudian arises from the all-but-forgotten fact that while the immortal Lafayette gallantly helped the colonies conclude their war of independence, the Bermudians supplied the ammunition to begin it.

So acute was the need for powder in 1775 that George Washington wrote to the governor of Rhode Island that "no quantity, however small, is beneath notice." Learning that there was a store in Bermuda, and that the islanders were anxious to have the embargo lifted upon shipment of food supplies from the colonies, Washington addressed a letter to the people of the island, who had shown themselves sympathetic with the American revolutionists, promising them ample supply of provisions and "every other mark of affection and friendship which the grateful citizens of a free country can bestow on its brethren and benefactors" if they would make this ammunition available for the Continental army.

It so happened that the powder had been procured before the letter was delivered, and with it the Continental army compelled the British to evacuate Boston.

Not only the sale of the powder, but the fact that Bermuda allowed the colonies to have salt, so incensed its governor that he upbraided the citizens for treason, and feeling ran so high that he was removed. His successor was a native of Salem, Mass., whose loyalty to the mother country was such that he gave up large estates in the colonies rather than join the revolutionists. He was connected, both by blood and by marriage, with the Winthrop family. Under his rule the island's full allegiance to England was restored.

Browne was succeeded by Henry Hamilton, during whose administration the town of Hamilton was founded and named for him. This town today is the seat of the island government. It has a population of less than 3,000. It did not become the capital of the islands until the time of Sir James Cockburn, lord chief justice of England, and before that time one of its most famous lawyers, Cockburn, nearly three quarters of a century ago, made the plea of insanity, which saved the life of Daniel McNaughten, who shot Sir Robert Peel's secretary.

The Dress Problem in the Orient

The Yokohama Reform association recently sent a communication to the mayor requesting his co-operation in endeavoring to prevent coolies and workmen appearing in public places with insufficient clothing to conform with western ideas of propriety. The association's spokesman stated that the reason for the request is the presence of a large number of foreigners in the city, and the sight of the scantily clothed persons on the streets and in the tramcars will tend to give them an unfavorable opinion of the city.—From the Japan Advertiser.

Knocking a Tradition

Turkey is a tradition. Because the Pilgrim parents were rotten shots and couldn't kill a quail on a bet, turkey was all they could find for meat on that memorable day. They had been on a diet of clams so long that manly even turkey tasted like food to them. But that is no excuse for wishing the blamed thing onto posterity and making it a sacred duty to gnaw a bundle of concentrated fiddlings on the last Thursday of every November.—Tapeka Capital.

(Continued from page six) elimination of expense incident to duplication of work, and finally the systematizing of our work so that many positions, now hardly necessary, may be abolished.

As a component part of this great republic we must give serious consideration to educational problems, if we would preserve for all time the democracy of our institutions.

Let us adequately support our institutions of higher learning. I glory in the great work they are doing and am much impressed with the ever widening fields of activity which they are opening up to the lasting good of the state.

pect. A government that guarantees to every citizen, the weakest and the strongest alike, equal and exact justice before the law and that stands always ready to make good that guarantee; a government, too that offers to every citizen, the weakest and the strongest alike, a fair and impartial opportunity to exercise his inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness circumscribed only by a just consideration for the rights of his fellow men.

I have spoken perhaps too much at length, but now that the obligation of a great office is mine, I find much difficulty in giving full expression to my views on so many important questions within a given time.

BESSARABIA: A CONEY ISLAND OF HISTORY

Bessarabia, recently assigned to the suzerainty of Roumania, has long been a racial catch basin. Her population was more than 2,000,000 before the war, and included Moldavians, Little Russians, Jews, Bulgarians, Greeks, Armenians, Tartars, Germans, and Gypsies; but that list is short compared with the encyclopedic procession of Getae, Goths, Avars, Huns, Bessi (whence her name), Ugrians, Kumans, and Mongols, to mention but a few, since the days of the original Cimmericians.

For Bessarabia, sloping southward from the westward foothills of the Carpathians, between the Dniester and Pruth, down to the Black sea and Danube delta, lay in the normal geographical pathway of tribes pushing westward from Asia and southward from the bleak Russian steppes toward the warmer seacoast lands.

Among the most harrowing of the invasions was that of the Mongols in the fourteenth century. They came across the Volga under Batu, grandson of that Mongol Charlemagne, Jenghis Khan, and though there is no complete story of their depredations in Bessarabia, that region probably suffered atrocities similar to others which are recorded in harrowing detail.

A picture of peaceful, pastoral Bessarabia prior to the renewed ravages of the World war, furnishes a pleasing contrast. A delight to the few tourists who went through the region, were the Moldavian homes. A Moldavian interior was immaculate and vivid. Brightly-colored curtains and hangings were used. An inevitable decoration were rows of yellow gourds, the raising of which is one of the minor Bessarabian industries.

Moldavians constituted about half the inhabitants of Bessarabia. Roumania, it will be recalled, was formed by the union of Moldavia and Wallachia; hence the adjoining Bessarabia, with its large Moldavian population, long has been the "Irredenta" of Roumania.

AZORES MAY BE AERIAL HALF-WAY HOUSE

The Azores islands, in years to come, may be an established mid-Atlantic rest station for airplane flights across the ocean.

Farthest from a continent of any Atlantic island group, the islands lie 830 miles west of Cape da Roca, Portugal, and more than a thousand miles southeast of Newfoundland, nearest North American land.

Volcanic eruptions and earthquakes, while the former were active, made the Azores objects of scientific interest akin to that evinced in the now famous Mount Katmai region in Alaska. Suboceanic eruptions, sometimes piling up islands which soon disappeared, were characteristic phenomena.

The Azores comprise three groups of islands. Their total area is less than that of Rhode Island; their population about equal to that of Kansas City, Mo. Most of the inhabitants are Portuguese. The rest are Flemish and Moorish, with a few immigrants from the United Kingdom.

Fruits and fish constitute the principal exports. Oranges are supplanting pineapples, but the other products—lemon, citron, Japanese medlar, and bananas—maintain their popularity.

Saint Michael, largest island of the group, has lava beds, caves which may be traversed for miles, and a mammoth crater with two jeweled lakes—one azure, the other emerald—at its bottom.

On Santa Maria is the church where Columbus knelt. Of Terceira a submarine volcano made its appearance as recently as half a century ago. On Corvo have been unearthed coins which suggest Carthaginian visits, and an Arabian geographer of the twelfth century described islands of the "Western Ocean" thought to have been the Azores.

In 1829 supporters of Maria da Gloria against Miguel, in the struggle for the Portuguese crown, established themselves on the islands, and for the three years following Queen Maria lived at Angra, one of the seaports of importance. Others are Ponta Delgada and Horta.

Farm bureau work in Palm Beach county is attracting much attention here. The membership in the Community Councils has increased more than 100 per cent. Enormous quantities of truck have been shipped from this county this season.
