Arbor event set for Saturday

SANFORD — The City of Sanford is holding an Arbor Awareness Program tomorrow. The event will be held at Fort Melon Park.

Howard Jeffries, grounds maintenance coordinator for the city will be hosting the event. "This is an opportunity for anyone, clubs, groups, private individuals, to learn about tree planting and care," he said.

"We will have some special guests for the children, including Smokey the Bear, but mostly, we want the people who are concerned about trees and growing them, to be here for what we plan as a very educational session."

The Arbor Awareness Program at Fort Melon Park will begin at 10 a.m. There is no charge for the program.

Jobless claims rise

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits rose for the second week in a row this month, the government said today in a reminder of the unevenness of the economic expansion.

Claims rose by 17,000 during the week ended Jan. 9 to 361,000, the highest level in seven weeks. A week earlier, they had shot up by 53,000, the biggest increase in five months.

In advance, economists were looking for a small decrease of 5,000 to 10,000 claims. But they weren't likely to be unduly alarmed by the latest increase, unless the upward trend continues. Claims have declined during 10 of the last 15 weeks.

Weekly claims numbers are volatile and can soar or plummet in any given week.

A more stable four-week moving average of claims remained near the 3 1/2-year low it had reached during the period ended a week earlier. It was 331,750 in the latest four-week span, up from 331,500.

The latest rise underscores the slowness of the economy to generate new jobs, despite other positive signs such as increased retail sales and rising factory production.

Abortion battle shift

Options fewer here; Clinton eases rules

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

As a pro-choice president prepares to make some changes in abortion laws on the 20th anniversary of its legalization, women in Seminole County may find it increasingly difficult to find a doctor who will perform one.

"There were several clinics in Seminole County just a few years ago," said abortion counselor Alice Fedingham. "But now there is only one in Winter Springs that is still performing abortions."

She noted that several Seminole County physicians will do an abortion on demand, though most will only do one if the pregnancy has put the woman in a high risk situation.

Abortions are not performed at any of the hospitals in the county except in the case of a medical emergency.

"For the most part, you have to go to a clinic to have an abortion," Fedingham explained. "And there's only one here in this county. But there are plenty of places in Orlando."

Fedingham works for Birth Control Center, which is based in Orlando, but which has a satellite office in Altamonte Springs. At that office, women can receive pregnancy testing, birth control information and counseling on options after pregnancy, including abortion. The abortions, however, are done in Orlando.

SANFORD -- Native Floridian Andrew Carraway was the recipient of the annual Topper Award last night, given by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Mother Blanche Weaver received the Luis Perez Humanitarian Award.

The awards were announced last night on board the Rivership Grand Romance, host to the annual chamber awards banquet. Carraway was not able to attend the function.

The chamber's new staff member Joanna "Sam" Silvernell labeled last night's event as a "Rewarding Romance for an Awarding Evening."

Approximately 200 invited chamber members and special guests boarded the Grand Romance at the Monroe Harbour Marina at 6:30 last night, and set sail 30 minutes later for the two and a half hour cruise on Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River.

Carraway is a former Sanford commissioner who twice served as mayor. He has also served on the Sanford-Seminole Development Com. Board of Directors, and for 20 years was on the Board of Trustees of Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Play ball, Lake Mary officials tell league

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission presided over a three way baseball battle last night. When the event came to an end, the Pony League had won.

The fight was over first choice use of fields on the new sports complex. The facility, now in the final stages of construction, has three baseball fields and one softball field. Parks and Recreation Director John Holland explained, "Only one of the baseball fields has lighting for night play, and that seems to be what each team wants."

Seminole Pony Baseball, Inc. had requested approval for first scheduling rights at the sports complex. Representatives of the Lake Mary Little League and the Babe Ruth League were also on hand. Each opposed the Pony League request, and asked that they be given first consideration.

Only Pony League representatives had appeared before the Parks and Recreation Commission. The Little League had submitted a letter to the commission.

At the beginning of the discussion, Commissioner George Duryea commented, "When this sports complex was first proposed, I questioned whether there would be enough use, considering how much money we spent. I was certainly wrong."

3 inmates to testify at trial of Bellamy

By GEORGE DUNGAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Jury selection is expected to end today in the first degree murder trial of George Bellamy, Jr., the Sanford man accused of shooting Isiah Cohen and dumping his body in the parking lot of Rudell's Grocery Store in Midway in February, 1991.

Assistant State Attorney Stewart Stone said he expected that selection of the jurors would be completed today and that the trial would begin Monday.

Bellamy is being defended by the Public Defender's office. Assistant Public Defender James Figgatt is heading the defense effort.

The prosecution is asking for the death penalty in the case.

Both Stone and Figgatt asked potential jurors their views on the death penalty. Most said they either favored it under certain circumstances or either had no strong feelings about it.

Stone also told the assembled potential jurors that not all the state's witnesses would have outstanding reputations. Three witnesses, two men and a woman, were currently serving time in prison.

"They will be brought back to testify. You will learn that they have had run-ins with the law," he said.

Haitian refugee exodus

Governor releases details of state refugee plan

By GUYT ANDERSON
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles released partial details of a Florida plan to handle a possible Haitian refugee exodus, even though the threat has eased for the moment.

Chiles said the plan, involving 17 state and local government agencies, would operate for only 10 to 14 days in an emergency. After that, responsibility for the Haitians would be turned over to the U.S. government.

"It's clearly a federal responsibility," Chiles said Thursday. "The plan will be activated only in an emergency that's threatening the safety and security of Floridians."

The potential for thousands of Haitians to set sail for the United States has been temporarily averted since President Clinton announced he will continue former President Bush's policy of summarily returning them to their homeland.

Clinton had initially signaled a change in that policy, leading to fears that thousands of Haitian refugees would flee soon after Wednesday's inauguration. More than 40,000 Haitians have been intercepted at sea by the U.S. Coast Guard since President Jean-Bertrand Aristide was overthrown by the army in 1991.

Chiles has repeatedly insisted the federal government would have to assume responsibility for handling the refugees, most of whom would logically head for Florida. But he said the state must be ready in case of an overwhelming migration.

Currently, Chiles said the agencies involved are in a state of readiness, but no action is being taken. The governor will only activate the plan if the refugee influx exceeds the federal government's ability to respond.

Under the plan, several agencies will identify temporary sites to provide the Haitians with food, medical treatment and shelter while they await processing by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. Those specific sites were not released Thursday.

Within 72 hours of landing, each immigrant will be transported by the federal government to a federal center outside of Florida.

The Marine Patrol will assist the Coast Guard in rescuing Haitians. There are also trained interdiction teams of law enforcement officials to detain anyone landing on Florida shores.

The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services will handle medical screening, identification and other needs at the shelters, where food and medical care also will be available.

Florida's Corrections Department will handle transportation of the immigrants to the shelters using buses and vans, but any further moves will be the federal government's responsibility. The National Guard will help set up the shelters.

10 arrested in food stamp fraud

MIAMI — Authorities busted nine mini-markets Thursday that paid cash for food stamps and bought stolen traveler's checks, arresting 10 people for grand theft and fraud.

Metro-Dade police recovered about $3,800 worth of food stamps in the sweep, which culminated in a six-month investigation. At one store, police found a box with $2,800 worth of food stamps hidden in the drop ceiling.

Police also confiscated $15,000 worth of traveler's checks. In a joint operation between Metro-Dade police and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, undercover police sold $15,000 worth of food stamps and traveler's checks at the stores for six months.

For food stamps, detectives were paid 80 cents for every dollar. They say food stamp fraud is a multimillion-dollar business in Dade.

"They filter it through the normal channels to get the money from the federal government," said Sgt. Lee Bluman. "While our undercover people were in there, there were lines of people just waiting to sell the food stamps."

On the traveler's checks, the merchants paid $15 for every $100, said Bluman.

"They didn't even ask our undercover people to countersign or show identification," he said. "They just took the check."

Arrested were Mohammed Ashwan, 38; Wasil Asad, 24; Jamal Kaid, 31; Mohammad Jadallah, 30; Amer Shouman, 25; Nabih Shouman, 43; Gloria Morris, 38; Aber Jadallah, 38; Ali Hamid, 38; and Imad Awad, 37.

FBI clerk charged with armed trafficking

DAYTONA BEACH — A speeding violation led to the arrest of an FBI mail clerk and a companion after sheriff's deputies found $100,000 in cocaine and a loaded gun in the clerk's rental car.

The FBI employee, Christina Faulk, 33, of Miami, and the car's driver, Johnny Lee Williams, 38, of Jacksonville, were charged with armed trafficking of cocaine and held on $400,000 bail each.

The Wednesday night arrest near Daytona Beach sparked an FBI internal investigation of Ms. Faulk, who worked in the Miami bureau for 10 months, said FBI spokesman Paul Miller in Miami.

2 plead guilty to drug, weapons charges

TALLAHASSEE — Two South Florida men have pleaded guilty to drug and weapons charges in a federal racketeering trial where two alleged members of a cocaine ring are charged with the murder of a state highway trooper.

Devon Mitchell, 28, of Stuart, and Colin Raddie, 35, of Tamarc, could face at least 15 years in prison for distributing marijuana and crack cocaine from Broward County throughout the Southeast.

Their sentences, however, are expected to be lessened by their agreement to testify against eight remaining defendants in a federal racketeering, conspiracy and murder trial, officials said Wednesday.

Two defendants, Paul Howell and his brother, Patrick, both of Fort Lauderdale, are charged with the murder of Highway Patrol Trooper James Pufford in February on Interstate 10 east of Tallahassee.

Judge odes drugs, bees for downfall

MIAMI — A judge started in a federal corruption case was so addicted to drugs he kept jurors until midnight and threw attorneys out of his courtroom after shouting at defense witnesses said.

Circuit Judge Philip Davis is not disputing the bribery charges growing out of "Operation Court Broom," but is arguing his behavior was so distorted by alcohol and cocaine he was not legally responsible.

Davis and three other current or former judges, Alfonso Sego, Harvey Shenberg and David Goodhart, are on trial for taking $250,000 in bribes for bond reductions, suppression of evidence and confidential police information.

Ghostbusters respond to haunted office

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County administrators have no lack of advice from amateur ghostbusters responding to reports that a downtown office building is haunted.

"I got a call from a guy in Ohio who said it might be static electricity from the carpets," said Phil Allen, the county's administrative services director. "And a radio station from Australia called wanting to know about the poltergeists."

The haunting reports began in October after contractors gutted the county's records division to put in new carpeting, furniture and phones.

A few weeks after remodeling, a copy machine began turning itself on, computers crashed and an unplugged electric typewriter started typing on its own.

Man who dug up millions surrenders $210,000 car

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — A cherry-red, $210,000 Lamborghini that Rene Pellicano bought with part of $7.5 million he dug up from a Puerto Rican mountainside is now the property of the U.S. government.

Federal Judge George Young ruled Wednesday that the Italian sports car seized in July 1990 by U.S. marshals in Casanberry was bought with drug money. As such, it goes to the federal agency that broke up a drug ring.

FBI agents and marshals earlier had seized much of the cash, stashed by cocaine smuggler Ramon Torres Gutierrez, from Pellicano and friends. Pellicano claims that in early 1990, he was walking in the Puerto Rican mountains when he stepped into a hole. Curious whether something was buried there, he returned with two friends two nights later and found about $7.5 million buried in several plastic barrels.

The 30-year-old mechanic and his friends went on a spending spree, buying cars, homes and horses.

Eventually, the FBI learned about the lavish spending and determined that the loot was part of $45 million buried by Torres, who ran a 30-member operation smuggling cocaine from Peru to Puerto Rico, New York and Philadelphia.

Rainfall exceeds normal

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Rainfall on Sanford was almost a 1 1/4 feet above normal during 1992, according to a report released by the St. Johns River Water Management District.

Rainfall exceeded the 30-year normal for Sanford by 1.7 inches, according to the monthly district rainfall and groundwater status report. Rainfall for the last half of 1992 was 14 inches above normal. Rain was about nine inches above normal during the last quarter of the year. Rainfall is recorded by the National Weather Service at Central Florida Regional Airport.

"The central and southern portions of the district got a lot more rain than the northern areas," said Bill Osborne, the district manager who compiles the data.

But rainfall took a dip in December. The district recorded about seven tenths of an inch during the month, nearly 1.5 inches below the monthly normal of about 2.1 inches. The district uses rainfall averages for 1951 to 1980 established by the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration.

The wet year has helped fill the natural underground drinking-water reservoir named the "Floridan Aquifer."

The groundwater in a district-monitored well near the center of the "Geneva Bubble" was recorded at 21.09 feet above mean sea level. That's 0.4 feet below the 11-year record set on Oct. 27, 1992, but still 0.88 feet above MSL a year ago. The Geneva Bubble was healthier condition at the end of the year.

The demand for water in the Longwood area continues to show in district data.

Supreme Court affirms rule to gather evidence

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The state Supreme Court affirmed a rule requiring prosecutors to gather evidence independent of a suspect's own confession to prove guilt in a crime.

The decision drew a strong dissent from Justice Leander Shaw, who argued that the so-called "corpus delicti" rule is outdated and should be scrapped.

"It is a technicality that impedes rather than fosters the search for truth," Shaw wrote.

The 6-1 decision upholds a court rule requiring that prosecutors, even when they have a confession, produce independent evidence linking the defendant to the crime.

The "corpus delicti" rule requires evidence that a crime has actually occurred, that the crime caused some sort of loss and that there be enough evidence besides a confession to prove the identity of the perpetrator.

"It is a good rule to require proof that a crime has been committed by means other than the utterance of an accused," wrote Chief Justice Rosemary Barkett. "The purpose is to avoid innocents from confessing to non-existent crimes."

The rule's main intent, wrote the majority, is to ensure that no one is convicted because of "derangement, mistake or official fabrication."

But Shaw contended that it is enough for prosecutors to introduce evidence that "would tend to establish the trustworthiness of the defendant's statements."

The rule, Shaw wrote, "has outlived its usefulness and should be discarded" because modern criminal law defines when a person is guilty with much more precision than in the past, when the measure was adopted.

In addition, Shaw said very few prosecutors attempt to bring a case to trial without independent corroborating evidence.

The decision came in the case of Calvin Earl Burks, who claimed his DUI manslaughter conviction stemming from a truck-motorcycle crash in February 1990 was improper because it was based mainly on his own admission of guilt.

Burks had told a state trooper that he was driving the truck and acknowledged he had been drinking, but the officer never actually saw Burks behind the wheel.

The 5th District Court of Appeal affirmed Burks' conviction, noting that the driver's supervisor had appeared on the scene and asked if Burks could continue his route after the accident. But the appeals court asked the Supreme Court to decide the validity of the "corpus delicti" rule.

In upholding the rule, the justices also affirmed Burks' conviction.

Cops checking for drivers in violation

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Florida Highway Patrol may establish driver's license and vehicle inspection checkpoints on Seminole County roads during the upcoming weeks.

Troopers will check to assure drivers have current licenses and vehicles are properly-equipped according to state requirements. People found in violation of criminal laws, such as driving with a suspended license or drunk, could be arrested.

The checkpoints may be established at the following locations:

- Jan. 22 to 28: County Road 15, Eden Park Drive, Bunnell Road, Dike Road, Dodd Road, East Lake Brantley Road, West Lake Brantley Road, E.E. Williamson Road, Charlotte Street and Orange Boulevard.
- Jan. 29 to Feb. 4: Gen.

J.C. Hutchison Parkway, Eden Park Drive, Bunnell Road, Dike Road, Dodd Road, East Lake Brantley Road, West Lake Brantley Road, E.E. Williamson Road, Charlotte Street and Orange Boulevard.

Feb. 5 to 11: Celery Avenue, Eden Park Drive, Bunnell Road, Dike Road, Dodd Road, East Lake Brantley Road, West Lake Brantley Road, E.E. Williamson Road, Charlotte Street and Orange Boulevard.

Feb. 12 to 18: Gen. J.C. Hutchison Parkway, Eden Park Drive, Bunnell Road, Dike Road, Dodd Road, East Lake Brantley Road, West Lake Brantley Road, E.E. Williamson Road, Charlotte Street and Orange Boulevard.

Feb. 19 to 25: C.R. 15, Eden Park Drive, Bunnell Road, Dike Road, Dodd Road, East Lake Brantley Road, West Lake Brantley Road, E.E. Williamson Road, Charlotte Street and Orange Boulevard.

Sanford approves bid for new visitor welcome signs

By NICK PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford will welcome visitors and residents home with new signs soon.

The city has approved the low bid submitted for the construction of four new welcome signs.

The large signs are to be erected at the main entrances to the city, on north and south Highway 17-92 and east and west S.R. 46. In addition to the welcome message, they will also have a display area which could be used to announce upcoming events or special honors.

When the construction was put out for bids, the request was for complete and installed signs, and a discount for additional signs.

The design of the sign was part of a contest held last September by the city and the Scenic Improvement Board. The city awarded a $100 savings bond to the person who designed the sign selected as the winner.

The designer was William Swanner, of Geneva. Swanner's connection with the sign is not stopping with the award winning design. The firm, Sutton-Swanner Design, Inc., 655 Harney Heights Road, Geneva, subsequently submitted what became the low bid of $5,195 for the first sign.

With the discount for four signs, the total cost projected is $17,843. The amount does not include electrical connections, which will be supplied by the city.

During discussion of the bids at last week's City Commission meeting, City Manager Bill Simmons explained the financing. "Money for this purchase is not included in this year's budget," he said, "but we have an underrun on expenses versus revenues so far this year, and we have about $300,000 left over in the reserves."

He added, "If you desire, we could pay for the signs out of this fund."

The commission voted unanimously to approve Swanner's bid, and pay for the construction and erection from the reserves.

Swanner's bid indicated construction would start on Feb. 1, and be completed by Mar. 15.

Speak out at city meetings

Citizens speaking out during commission meetings can make a difference. The opportunity is more available than many might think.

In preparing agendas for city commission meetings, Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood, and almost all cities allow time for "citizen participation". Any resident with a problem, is allowed to personally present a matter and request commission consideration and/or action.

Also, by making requests to the city manager or administrator in advance, items to be presented by a specific individual can actually be included in the regular agenda or a workshop agenda.

Many people do not take advantage of the opportunity. This is unfortunate, and not in the best interest of good government.

Citizen participation for items not on the agenda is generally at the conclusion of Sanford commission meetings. Although the meetings generally don't last beyond an hour, some people may not wish to remain that long.

In Lake Mary, citizen participation has been normally scheduled near the beginning of the meeting. It has been well utilized.

Longwood used to have the time period near the end of the meeting, but moved it higher on the agenda during this past year.

Regardless of when the time is scheduled, citizens should have the right to address problems that directly involve their city. Likewise, they have a right to hear a response from members of the commission regarding what action, if any, can be taken in the case of a complaint.

Most people who use the privilege of free speech during public meetings, have had success.

In Lake Mary, a Timacuan resident complained in December about aircraft noise during landing approaches. Thursday night, the Lake Mary City Commission began a study of the situation.

Early last year, a private citizen, Sheila Sawyer, complained about the city commission eliminating a call for run-off elections in its proposed charter changes. As a result, the matter was placed on the ballot in November, and approved by a majority of the city voters.

A Longwood resident, the late Bo Simpson appeared many times before the Longwood City Commission. Most of his concerns was over flaws in zoning ordinances. As a result, many decisions by the commission were changed and a number of ordinances were re-written or better clarified.

The actions of these people, and the results they have obtained for the benefit of their fellow citizens, are proof that the system works.

Citizens who have problems that cannot be resolved by phone calls to city officials or department heads, should not hesitate to speak out. Stand up and be counted at the next city commission meeting.

Take David Letterman - please!

It was one of those exquisitely ironic moments in television. Carol Burnett was on NBC's "Tonight Show," bemoaning to her host, Jay Leno, about the temporary life of a television show if it wasn't an immediate hit.

"They expect you to get a high rating in three months," she said, "and if you don't, you're out of there."
"TELL me about it!" Leno shot back. The audience exploded with appreciative laughter and applause. Leno's angst had finally boiled over.

For weeks, he had had to suffer while the emperors of the Holy NBC Empire kept him twisting in the wind about David Letterman as a possible replacement - not that this should have been a major event on the Richter news scale. After all, it was competing with the incoming Clinton presidency, Saddam Hussein's death wish, and Charles and Di's penchant for indiscreet telephone assignments.

But the media faked out the public. It quickly transfigured the double-L (Leno-Letterman) tautonymy into a globe-shaking event. After suffering through weeks of, "will NBC or won't NBC," you felt as if you had been watching a man threatening to jump off the ledge of 90-story building. In spent tolerance, you finally yell, "For crying out loud, jump!

The pecuniary enticements CBS offered Letterman to switch networks were obscene - $16 million a year. Fortunately, NBC seems to have enough brain power to know that Letterman isn't worth anything remotely approaching that stratospheric figure. But NBC was also nervous and didn't relish the idea of a budget-draining night-time head-to-head dogfight, hence, the exploratory notion of replacing Leno with Letterman.

During this silly struggle, you kept wanting to pull NBC's coat and demand, "Be real!"

Well, the tumult and the shouting have died, the captains and the kings have departed, Leno is staying with NBC, and who really cares - other than Letterman's most devoted viewers - whether he jumps to CBS, PBS, ABC, BCC or TTC (the Tasmanian Television Corporation).

The pecuniary enticements CBS offered Letterman to switch networks were obscene.

Yet, many of my colleagues are Letterman fans, preferring him, as well as Arsenio Hall, over Leno. That they are still my friends attests to my broadmindedness. Besides, (LTH)GT)de gustabus non est disputandum(LTH)GT).

Letterman's success still baffles me, because I think he is one of television's most rigidly limited comics. I watched him when he started his "Late Night With David Letterman" gig. After a few weeks, I was appalled by four things: (1) his mediocrity as an interviewer (only Larry King is as limited); (2) his adolescent capacity to screw up the simplest of jokes; (3) his inexplicable paucity of black guests; and (4) that I had wasted several good hours watching him.

Granted, Letterman has made one valuable contribution to our lore of humor: his lists of "10 reasons why." And in the very-late-night time slot he has occupied, superiority is not a requisite.

As for Leno, he's the thinking person's comic: Funny, literate and knowledgeable.

I'm relieved that NBC came to its good senses and is sticking with Leno. And now, take David Letterman - please!

Lobbyists win big at Senate charity

WASHINGTON - If congressional lobbying were an Olympic event, some corporate titans might have won a gold medal last weekend at the seventh annual Senators' Ski Cup. After all, it's a no small coup to corral one-fourth of the Senate for three days of skiing, schmoozing and exotic dining.

Recently retired Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, says he launched the event to raise money for the Primary Children's Medical Center in Utah, which provides care regardless of a family's ability to pay and once treated his diabetic daughter. Garn dismisses suggestions that the event's corporate sponsors may have an ulterior motive as "inside the beltway negativism."

But based on how the weekend is organized, access to prominent politicians ranks high on the agenda. Even Garn acknowledges that the prospect of mixing with senators is a drawing card.

"You get a two-fer," said one prominent financial services lobbyist. "You get the charity and the access."

American Express, Coca-Cola, U.S. West and some 30 other corporations sponsored the junket at a posh ski resort in Utah. For a $50,000 cover charge, the larger corporations were each allowed to send a maximum of six "representatives" to ski with the senators. Smaller corporate donors, who kicked in $6,000 each, were limited to two skiing lobbyists.

Each of the 24 senators was then matched up with four lobbyists to form teams of five skiers for the big race on Saturday.

Although the Senators' Cup is expected to raise $250,000 for the medical center, that figure represents approximately 80 percent of the event's purse. The balance is earmarked for the care and feeding of each senator and a guest, both of whom were flown in from anywhere in the country by Delta Airlines.

Senators stayed in deluxe accommodations ranging from one- to four-bedroom condos, which usually fetch up to $820 a night. Lift tickets and private lessons were tossed in at the resort, and two local ski shops pitched in skis for anyone who needed to borrow them.

Food was catered by a private club, whose owner, Hans Fuegy, told us he had been working on the menu since November. Fuegy estimated that the Friday night dinner, dubbed "Caribbean Night," cost upwards of $6,000. It featured green bananas, smoked marlin, curried black muscals, chicken spare ribs, roasted baron of beef - plus island parfaits and guava pie for dessert.

A generous portion of politics was at least a side-dish.

"It's very charitable, but it's also (un-)seemly by its very nature," one congressional source said of the Senators' Cup. "These are members of Congress who make decisions that directly impact the corporate sponsors they're skiing with. Without question, it's going to have some effect on policy."

Some congressional insiders see the ski junket as a sign that it's business as usual on Capitol Hill, despite vows of reform.

"Obviously, the old adage 'the more things change, the more they stay the same' applies here," said one Senate source, whose boss was one of the invitees. "It's an indication of how entrenched special interests are, and how effective they've become at currying favor."

"I can honestly say in the years I've been out there I've never known a lobbyist that's mentioned one issue," one skier, Sen. Kit Bond, R-Mo., told our associate Ed Henry. But one former lobbyist, who attended a previous Senators' Cup, described it as a "wonderful way to start the year if you're interested in what Congress is doing and are interested in influencing the outcome."

ROBERT WAGMAN

Is there a job for Hillary Clinton?

WASHINGTON - The Clinton transition's legal team, in consultation with experts in the government's Office of Personnel Management, has prepared a detailed examination of the so-called "Spiky Kennedy Law" in an attempt to determine if there is any job besides first lady possible for Hillary Clinton.

After President Kennedy's appointment of his brother Robert as attorney general, Congress included in The Postal Review and Federal Salary Act of 1967 a provision severely limiting a government official's ability to appoint a relative to a governmental position.

The law covers not only the executive branch, but also the legislative and the judiciary, and defines "relative" not only as immediate family but also aunts, uncles, nephews and nieces, cousins and even step-relatives.

Since the president has authority over the entire executive branch, it would seem to rule out completely any kind of formal position in the government for a president's wife.

However, even with the law, a president's wife could still exercise authority. Although the law does not specifically speak to salary, past interpretations have been that a relative can hold a non-paying position. Rosalynn Carter, for example, headed a presidential commission on mental health, while Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" anti-drug program had a large staff and budget.

Likewise, members of Congress have obtained an opinion from the House Counsel's office that a spouse may serve on a member's staff in an unpaid capacity. Heather Foley, Speaker of the House Tom Foley's wife, is effectively his unpaid chief of staff and among the most powerful people on Capitol Hill.

Among insiders, the best guess is that Hillary Clinton will act as an unofficial, unpaid adviser to her husband, one who is likely to hold significant policy-making clout in domestic affairs.

She may also end up only a few feet from the Oval Office. Bush White House sources say that when the Clinton transition team was commissioning space, it approved one of their tasks was to find a West Wing office for Hillary Clinton. Traditionally, first ladies have their office in the East Wing; for Hillary Clinton to have covered West Wing space would send a powerful message about her role in the Clinton White House.

Among Democratic insiders the Cabinet appointment that has caused the most talk is that of corporate lawyer Zoe Baird as attorney general.

According to highly placed transition sources, the selection of Baird greatly surprised even those very close to Clinton. Baird was not among those on any of the original short lists. Reportedly, on the original list were about nine names, three of whom were women. All three noted that their names were removed from consideration.

In the transition scramble and assembled a new list of a half-dozen women. Baird's name came from her former law partner, transition head and now Secretary of State designate Warren Christopher.

But the odds on favors for the job was Washington lawyer Brookslay Barn, a top partner of Arnold & Porter. She was being pushed very hard by almost every women's organization, and was the all but unanimous choice of the transition staff.

So sure were they that she would be chosen, that the transition had ordered a full FBI background check on Barn. It was already under way when she and two other women, including Baird, traveled to Little Rock to meet with the president-elect and his top brain trust.

The next day Clinton told his advisers his choice was Baird. The stunned group then had to rush an FBI background check so she could be named before the Christmas deadline.

There are two schools of thought within the Clinton camp as to why Clinton chose Baird over Barn. Some believe that since Clinton knew neither woman, Baird simply had a more impressive resume and Clinton felt more comfortable with her. Another, widely believed, is that in rejecting their No. 1 candidate, Clinton was sending a not so subtle message to the groups supporting Barn that he cannot be pushed too far.

However, in the haste to appoint Baird, the transition staff did not spend much time looking into her record. Democratic Senate Judiciary Committee staffers have been more than a little stunned to find that she is a big fan of Vice President Dan Quayle's regulatory reform movement and of President Bush's last reform program.

Said one top-level staffer, "She would have been a terrible Bush appointment. I would say she is going to have to significantly modify some of her views, or she will have some real difficulties with Democrats up here."

However, even with the law, a president's wife could still exercise authority.

'92 housing starts highest in three years

By JOHN B. McGLAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Housing starts rose 18.5 percent last year to the highest level in three years, the government said today. It was the first increase in six years as the industry rebounded from its post-World War II low in 1981.

All regions of the country posted double-digit increases as housing found itself buoyed during a crawling economy by some of the lowest mortgage rates in two decades.

The Commerce Department said construction of new single-family homes and apartments totaled 1.30 million in 1992, up from 1.01 million in 1991 when construction dropped to its lowest level since World War II as the economy struggled to emerge from the recession.

Housing starts in 1992 were boosted by a 5.5 percent advance in December, to a 1.30 million seasonally adjusted annual rate. That was the highest level since last March when they reached a 1.34 million rate.

Construction then bounced around until August, when it jumped 12.1 percent to a 1.23 million rate and then leveled off. For the year, starts rose in eight months and fell in four.

Analysts attributed the overall improvement largely to mortgage rates that dropped from 9.03 percent in March to 7.84 percent in September after the Federal Reserve sharply cut other interest rates.

The 7.84 percent rate was the lowest since mortgages reached 7.78 percent in June 1973. Rates averaged 8.03 percent during the week ended Jan. 15.

Starts, which had totaled 1.19 million in 1990, plunged to 1.01 million the following year as the recession touched bottom. It was the lowest level since 326,000 in 1945, the final year of World War II. Starts totaled 1.2 million in 1948.

The 18.5 percent increase last year was the largest since a 60 percent advance in 1983 as the economy was emerging from the previous recession.

Construction of new homes and apartments had topped 2 million during much of the 1970s and reached a 1980s peak of 1.81 million in 1986 before starting an annual decline as the economy weakened and construction of apartments outpaced demand in many areas of the country.

In fact, single-family starts rose 23.6 percent in 1992, to 1.03 million units, while multifamily starts fell 1.5 percent, to 171,000 units.

In December, single-family starts jumped 3.7 percent, to a 1.13 million annual rate, while apartment construction moved up just 1.9 percent, to a 172,000 rate.

Mortgage rates averaged 8.21 percent in December.

Applications for building permits, which some economists consider a barometer of future activity, surged 7 percent in December, to a 1.21 million rate. For the year, permits jumped 16.5 percent, to 1.11 million.

Regionally, starts in 1992 rose 11.9 percent, to 126,500 units, in the Northeast, including a 32.8 percent advance in December to a 154,000 rate.

In the Midwest, starts were up 23.6 percent for the year, to 287,800 units, including a 7.9 percent gain in December to a 299,000 rate.

New construction in the South posted a 20.2 percent gain in 1992, to 497,800 units, including a 4.3 percent increase last month to a 556,000 rate.

Starts in the West advanced 14 percent last year, to 289,600 units, held back by a 4.9 percent decrease in December, to a 293,000 rate.

GOP appointees for unemployment

By JOHN B. McGLAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — After years of drawing a government salary, hundreds of George Bush's political appointees are eligible for a government unemployment check. And some are applying for it.

"It's an insurance policy that's been paid for," said one outgoing official at the Treasury Department who said he was thinking of applying for unemployment insurance.

"It's something to tide us over until another job comes along... something to keep the groceries on the table," said the official, who asked that his name not be used.

But the money won't come close to matching the salaries most appointees are leaving behind. The average benefit for out-of-work government employees is $173 a week for about 18 weeks.

Elected officials — including former President Bush — aren't eligible for the benefits, according to Mary Ann Wynoch of the Labor Department's Employment and Training Administration. But most ranking Bush administration officials do qualify for benefits while they look for other jobs, she said.

Eric Vautour, executive director of Russell Reynolds & Associates Inc., an executive search company, estimated that 1,500 political appointees lost their jobs when Bush's term ended at noon Wednesday.

"I get the sense that a quarter of them are retiring, that government service was a career capper for them," he said. "Another 25 percent will step back" to previous positions.

Vautour said the remaining 750 probably are looking for jobs, including 400 to 500 who want to stay in Washington. When combined with congressional staff turnover, the job market gets pretty crowded.

"Those with expertise in specific areas will do well for themselves," Vautour said, noting demand for those with experience in health care, taxes, energy matters and environmental regulation.

"Some who are generalists and who spent much of their lives in government are going to have a more difficult time," he said. "A deputy assistant secretary for public affairs, who was probably making $110,000 or $115,000, simply is not going to be able to command that in the private sector right now."

Wynoch said unemployment insurance for federal workers, the program for out-of-work U.S. government employees, averages $173 a week.

Benefits vary, usually depending on prior earnings. The average benefit in the District of Columbia is $328, $180 in neighboring Maryland and $164 across the Potomac River in Virginia.

Truck loaded with explosives burns; highway closed

By Associated Press

SANTA FE, N.M. — A tractor-trailer rig carrying 40,000 pounds of explosives and 10,000 detonators caught fire while traveling on Interstate 25 early today, authorities said.

Police closed the highway for 90 miles from Albuquerque to Santa Fe for a time, then reduced the closed area to a four-mile stretch southbound between the Santa Domingo Pueblo and Cochiti Lake exits.

The truck was loaded with 60-pound cardboard cases of pentrite, a solid industrial chemical explosive, and 30 boxes of non-electric detonators, state police Capt. Bill Kuehl said.

No injuries were reported in the 1 a.m. accident, Kuehl said. The fire was extinguished within three hours, but a state police bomb squad had to work into the morning to stabilize and remove the detonators, which were spewed across the highway and onto the median and shoulder.

Kuehl said the detonators could explode in someone's hand if they were picked up and ignited.

He said the extensive highway closure was aimed at keeping traffic from backing up near the fire.

Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees and Elks.

In Oct. 1990, Carraway received the prestigious Randall Chase Award from the Kiwanis Club of Sanford.

Mother Blanche Weaver, last night's recipient of the Luis Perez Humanitarian Award, was born in Atlanta in 1923, and moved to Sanford in 1966 where she soon opened a day care center, paying most of the expenses from her own pocket.

In 1986, Mother Weaver spoke to her members at Rescue Church of God regarding the need for a homeless shelter, and the Rescue Outreach Mission came into existence.

In 1991, she started another new project, a shelter for women and children. Groundbreaking on this latest project was held on Dec. 28, 1992.

Mayor Betty Smith made the Luis Perez award presentation, and chamber member Janice Springfield presented the 1993 Topper Award.

During the evening, Wayne Albert announced that Reggie Branch, who started at Seminole High School and ended up with the Washington Redskins and performed in two Super Bowl games, has been named as the changer's Sports Hall of Fame for Seminole County.

Outgoing President Bobby Douglas extended his appreciation to chairpersons who served during this past year.

Incoming President, Larry Strickler, recognized recently appointed chairpersons for the various committees and task forces for 1993. The following persons have been named for specified committees: Todd Williams, Bankers; Bill Simmons, Transportation; Jane Lane, Education; Chuck Volk, Midge Task Force; Bob Boyd, Small Business Council; Bobby Von Herbulis, Economic Development.

Also, Kim Townsend, Golf Tournament; Bud Laver, Sports Hall of Fame; Karen Copp, Cultural Arts; Steve Dickinson, Legislative Affairs; Tina Carter, Ambassadors; Charles Rowe, Minority Business Council; Andrea Farmer, Image; and Bob Hopkins, Tourism.

The prosecution is claiming Bellamy stole stereo speakers from the car Cohen was driving and killed Cohen in the attempt. Cohen's body was found on February 8, 1991.

Figgitt said his client will plead not guilty but said he will make no further comment on the case.

If the jury is picked today, Judge Alan Dickey will probably begin the trial Monday morning.

Field

play," said Commissioner Gary Brewer. "My concern is that the commission should be certain everybody and everything is being addressed. We should explore who else may want to use it rather than jump right in and approve this request."

Rick Scharia of Longwood made the first presentation on behalf of the Lake Mary Little League. He requested first bid for use of the field, and the exclusive right to use the concession stand.

"The Babe Ruth and Pony leagues have other places to play," he said. "We don't. I suggest you have each league submit rosters, and find out which one has the most children from Lake Mary parents, and give them first choice."

Scharia said his league had over 110 children of Lake Mary on the roster, for the league that was just formed last year.

"As for the concession stand," he said, "we would use all money to build batting cages that could be used by all. And we would put older youth to work at the stand, which would keep them off the streets."

Rod Ferguson, a Seminole High School coach, spoke on behalf of the Seminole Baseball, Inc., which manages the Pony League. "This league wasn't just formed in December," he responded. "We have been operating for 15 years. At latest count, we have 231 children of Lake Mary parents on our roster."

"Time is running out for us," Ferguson said. "Our league play is to start on Feb. 18th. We don't want exclusive rights, and we don't need rights to the concession stand, but we do want first choice over the use of the fields."

Mike Callen represented the Babe Ruth League. "We have been operating for about five years," he said, "and we have about 80 local youngsters. We may not be as big, but we need this facility primarily because of older age groups. We aren't asking for exclusive use, but we do want your consideration."

Duryea stressed, "This is the first year of operation, and I believe we can go ahead with approving the Pony League's agreement, but that's not to say we couldn't give others first choice next year."

Duryea added, "But we should have the wording of any contract written in such a way so as to be certain the operation of the concession stand remains completely with the city."

The commission voted unanimously to accept the agreement with Seminole Pony Baseball, Inc., and granted it first choice on scheduling games for this season. The league has two seasons, the first beginning in February for 16 weeks, and the second in September for 10 weeks.

Holland said the approval does not mean the other two leagues would be restricted from using the sports complex. "It's just that they may not be able to schedule night games on the exact dates they may want." He added, "As for day games, I don't see any problem with those at all."

Regarding the softball field, the commission voted unanimously last night in favor of a request submitted by the Lake Mary High School Girls Softball team. The school asked for approval to use the field for practice as well as home games by the varsity and junior varsity teams.

Abortion

on demand through the first 20 weeks of pregnancy despite being the target of anti-abortion demonstrations by Operation Rescue pro-life activists last year.

"Yes, we do abortions through the first 20 weeks of a pregnancy," said a clinic spokesman who did not want to be identified yesterday.

She refused any other comment on the issue of abortion or on the services they perform at the clinic.

Crisis Pregnancy Center of Seminole County is a Lake Mary clinic which describes the information it gives out as "abortion alternatives."

A spokesman, who preferred not to use her name, said they offer support to pregnant women and assistance where needed. Information on adoption and parenting alternatives is also offered, the spokesman said.

"We also offer maternity and infant supplies, job training, job placement and financial assistance. We provide them with parenting classes, GED instruction and even housing," she said. "We don't just advise women not to have an abortion and then leave them to fend for themselves."

Several Orlando clinics confirmed that they will perform abortions to 23 weeks and stated that there are no clinics in the state of Florida which will perform an abortion after that point in a pregnancy. Most clinics will do an abortion up until the 15th week of pregnancy.

The Central Florida Phone Book lists a clinic in New Jersey which will perform an abortion up to 24 weeks.

"I think that's as far as any doctor will go," Fedingham said. In Orlando, abortions can be had for as little as $250 and as much as $400. Most of the clinics demand cash up front for their services, though some will take credit cards.

This evening in Maitland, Central Florida Right to Life will be hosting "Central Florida's Biggest Baby Shower" at 7 p.m. at the Maitland Civic Center.

The annual event is being held in honor of and in support of the 11 crisis pregnancy centers in Central Florida that offer abortion alternatives and help mothers who have chosen to have their babies rather than to have an abortion.

Those who wish to attend the "baby shower" are being asked to bring a gift for a baby or a mother-to-be.

Meanwhile, at 8 p.m. at the First Unitarian Church of Orlando, Planned Parenthood of Greater Orlando will be hosting the area's first celebration of the 20th anniversary of Roe vs. Wade, the landmark Supreme Court decision making it legal for a woman to have an abortion on demand.

A $5 donation will be suggested at the door, with the a portion of the proceeds going to benefit the Women's Emergency Network, a non-profit, tax-exempt organization that provides financial assistance to needy women seeking an abortion. The money collected at the event will be earmarked for use in Central Florida.

In Washington, President Bill Clinton will mark the 20th anniversary of legal abortion in America, by revoking his predecessors' restrictions on abortion counseling at federally supported clinics. No spokesperson for government assisted clinics in Seminole County could be reached for comment this morning.

In contrast, both presidents Reagan and Bush annually delivered, by telephone hookup, messages of support for the anti-abortion marchers.

Clinton's scheduled action Friday, striking down what he and other critics have called the "gag rule," the ban on giving abortion advice at federally-funded clinics, was celebrated in advance Thursday by congressional leaders and the pro-choice movement.

But "it's a real insult, a real slap in the face of Americans who hold pro-life views," said Nancy Myers, communications director of the National Right to Life Committee. "He's going to be signing a death warrant for unborn children."

Pro-choice advocates, however, couldn't be happier.

"This year we've turned the corner," declared Kate Michelman, president of the National Abortion Rights Action League. "Last year, we were battle fatigued. We were losing ground steadily day in and day out."

President Clinton has promised not only to suspend the "gag rule," but also to lift bans on fetal tissue research, the French abortion pill RU-486 and restrictions on U.S. foreign aid for family planning or population control organizations that perform or promote abortions.

Abortion: By-lad views 20 years after Roe v. Wade

Emotional issue of life, choice

By Vicki Robinson
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — As in most of the nation people in downtown Sanford are divided on the issue of abortion. The 30th anniversary of the Roe vs. Wade decision which gives a woman the right to an abortion on demand, public opinion is no more united than it was in 1973.

And everyone, it seems, has a strong opinion on the issue.

"I am a Christian and I don't believe in abortion," said Maggie Green. "The Bible says that life comes from God and only God should take that life away."

Green, 67, said she only had one child, but she would gladly have taken 10 if God had given them to her.

"I thank God every day for my daughter," she said. "I pray that people will not keep taking lives with abortions."

Lee Goodwin believes, on the other hand, that a woman has the right to choose what she does with her own body.

"I think that it is the woman's choice," Goodwin, 30, said.

He noted, also, that the government has no place legislating medical issues.

Elizabeth Jennings and Kathryn Hickman believe that far too many women are using abortion as a form of birth control and that, they believe, is wrong.

"I think it is a mistake," Jennings, 32, who is the organizer at All Soul's Catholic Church, said. "Most people are not getting an abortion because it is medically necessary. They are getting it because they don't have time to spend with their children. I have two children and I have time for them."

Hickman, 34, is the mother of two. She believes that abortion is wrong. It is not the government's place to say so, she said, however.

"Personally, I think that it's wrong to have an abortion," she said. "It is used entirely too flippantly as a means of birth control, but I don't think that it is up to the government to tell women what to do with their bodies."

Hickman, who holds a doctorate in molecular biology said she is "not a woman's liber," but she believes that the issue is a personal one that should not be made by the government.

Glenn T. Jackson, 90, who describes himself as a "pulpit man" believes that neither government nor individuals should place themselves between a woman and what God has given her.

"Only God's will can cause one to come into the world," he said. "Only God should be able to take that away. Abortion is not right. It is against God's will."

Bill Richards, 61, owner of Billy Boy's on First Street, said he may not personally agree with the concept of abortion, but it is certainly not the government's place to make such a choice for a woman.

"I may not think it's right, but it is definitely up to the individual woman to make her own decision," he said. "It is up to her own situation."

Alice and Harold Sundvall, are opposed to abortion, though they feel there may be some situations where it could be necessary.

"We're against it. We're Catholic," said Harold, 46.

His wife, who is 43, agreed. "I'm against it unless the woman's life is threatened. Or if there has been incest or rape."

Some disagreement on the issue even comes in couples.

Marti Moaley, 25, believes a woman has the right to choose an abortion for herself. Her husband Jerry, 33, thinks there are other options.

"I think every woman has the right to choose what she does with her body," Marti said. "I think it depends on the individual. I wouldn't have an abortion, but the government shouldn't choose that for me."

Her husband believes many women choose abortion because they don't want to care for the children they would be bringing into the world.

"I never have believed in abortion because of my religious background," he said. "But if I have time to take care of and love my four children, people could love one child. There are plenty of other options out there. People don't need to be having abortions."

Clinton accepts Baird withdrawal as nominee for attorney general

By STEVEN KORAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Zoe Baird bowed Thursday to public furor over her hiring of two illegal aliens, asking President Clinton to withdraw her nomination as attorney general. Clinton accepted the request "with sadness."

"Ms. Baird is a gifted attorney, and a woman of decency and integrity," the president said in a statement released by White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers. He blamed the review process before Baird's selection for failing to completely evaluate the illegal alien issue.

"For that, I take full responsibility," Clinton said.

Baird told Clinton that "the continuing controversy" surrounding her nomination would impede her ability to reinstate the Department of Justice.

"With sadness, I have accepted her request that the nomination be withdrawn," Clinton said in the statement.

In a personal letter to Baird, Clinton called her "an exceptionally gifted attorney, and a person of great decency and integrity."

"You are highly qualified to be attorney general," Clinton wrote. "I believe you would have been a fine attorney general."

The president, facing the first crises of his fledgling administration, also told Baird that he hoped she would "be available for other assignments for your country in my administration."

Gloria Allred, president of the Women's Equal Rights Legal Defense and Education Fund, called Baird's action "a wise decision" that was in the best interest of the nation and the administration.

But Allred also said it was "important ... that this position be filled by another qualified woman attorney."

Earlier, a combative Baird had rejected calls to withdraw despite rising public and congressional opposition. The Clinton administration had offered muted support.

"Right now, Zoe Baird is his nominee," White House spokesman George Stephanopoulos told reporters Thursday afternoon as Baird underwent a second day of grilling by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Several senators announced their opposition, including two Republicans on the Judiciary Committee, the lone Republican among the Senate's six women, and five moderate Democrats.

A possible swing vote on the committee, Republican Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, said her prospects for confirmation are "very much up in the air."

Baird, though, had sought to put the issue behind her.

Women in senior public positions

Nearly 40 percent of those in high-level state and local government jobs in Louisiana are women — the highest such percentage in the nation.

"I think that my overall record gives me the potential to be a great attorney general," she testified. "The potential that I have to serve this country ... should override the particular incident."

Baird, 40, a $500,000-a-year lawyer for the Aetna Life & Casualty Co., has since her nomination paid $3,900 in fines and roughly $12,000 in back taxes and penalties for employing a Peruvian couple. The wife cared for her son while the husband served as her driver and performed household chores, she said.

An ABC News-Washington Post poll said 58 percent of the 515 people interviewed by telephone Thursday night opposed Baird's confirmation, while 32 percent supported it and 10 percent voiced no opinion. The survey carried a margin of error of 5 percentage points.

One Senate Democratic source, speaking anonymously, said if Clinton wanted to save the nomination "he better be prepared to personally fight for it."

Quizzed about Clinton's knowledge of her lawbreaking before he nominated her, Stephanopoulos said the details and timing were "rather murky."

"I don't know the nature of his exact discussions on this. Zoe Baird ... did disclose this to the transition team," he said. "I do not know what level of detail he knew about the situation. ... We can find out absolutely."

Baird told the committee it didn't come up in what she called her "general" interview with Clinton. But she volunteered the information when a senior transition official asked if she was interested in the job.

Recalling her earlier testimony, Baird on Thursday continued to say she takes full responsibility for her actions.

"I've said that I believe that what I did was wrong, and I apologized for it," she said.

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., a member of the committee, said he believed her behavior would diminish her effectiveness as the nation's top legal officer, especially when it came to enforcing immigration laws.

And Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., a senior committee member and the Senate's deputy GOP leader, said that as an author of the nation's immigration laws he could not support the nomination of someone who broke them.

The Democrats calling for withdrawal of the nomination were David Boren of Oklahoma, Richard Shelby of Alabama, Bennett Johnston and John Breaux of Louisiana and J. James Exon of Nebraska.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole's office said it had logged 1,798 calls against Baird and seven in favor of her. Dole had not announced his position.

Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, Christopher Bond, R-Mo., Slade Gorton, R-Wash., and Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., who are not on the committee, also announced they would vote against Baird. They and other senators said the calls and mail from constituents was running heavily against the nomination.

Early study results show high U.S. exposure to tobacco smoke

By LAURAN HERRGARD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — Scientists conducting a large federal study of exposure to tobacco smoke were surprised to find signs of nicotine in all 800 of the first people tested, whether they smoked or not.

"We really weren't expecting that," Dr. James Pirkle of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said Thursday.

The CDC is testing 25,000 Americans over age 4 for cotinine, a byproduct of nicotine found in the blood. The first 800 tested all showed some cotinine.

The preliminary results came two weeks after the Environmental Protection Agency labeled secondhand smoke a carcinogen and said it kills about 3,000 nonsmokers a year from lung cancer alone. Critics have said the EPA failed to document how many people are exposed to secondhand smoke and at what levels.

"What we're doing will meet that objection head-on," Pirkle said. "We have a very sensitive method of measuring exposure that separates active from passive smoke. It will allow us to figure out the extent of the problem using an objective measure — that's a pretty rare thing."

In contrast, many earlier studies relied on participants to describe their exposure to smoke.

People with more than 10 to 15 nanograms of cotinine per milliliter of blood serum are usually smokers or use nicotine patches or gum, the CDC said. Levels below 10 to 15 nanograms indicate a person has breathed secondhand smoke. A nanogram is a billionth of a gram.

The 800, ages 4 to 91, had levels that ranged from less than 0.1 to 850 nanograms.

"In smaller studies, researchers haven't been able to find cotinine in about 20 or 30 percent of the people," Pirkle said. "It could be that we're using a much more sensitive method to measure cotinine."

Revamped Greyhounds win third straight title

By TONY DESORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — It's not enough that the Lyman High School girls' soccer team has won 50 of its last 51 games as well as two consecutive Class 4A state championships. On Thursday, the Greyhounds displayed another facet of their ability.

After learning that goalkeeper Cheryl Roberts might be lost for the season to mononucleosis, the Greyhounds made a major change in their lineup and, playing like nothing had happened, went out and beat the Lake Brantley Patriots 2-1.

So what if the game was played at Lake Brantley? So what if the Patriots may be the second best team in the state? So what if the game decided the Seminole Athletic Conference championship?

"When we talked before the game, I told each of the girls to ask themselves what part they played on this team," said Lyman coach Gary Barnett has players like Danielle Garrett, Danya Harris, and Sara Kane. Garrett scored both goals, Harris turned in a stellar performance in goal, and Kane kept the Patriot defense occupied with repeated attacking runs.

"We knew we had to play big tonight," said Barnett. "We had to have different people come through.

And the players showed they could come through under difficult circumstances."

Lyman carried most of the play early but didn't score until Garrett put a foot to Deborah Larsen's line drive free kick and redirected it past Lake Brantley goalie Alyssa O'Brien at 21:26.

The Patriots equalized at 30:19 on a fine individual play by Katie Tullis. On an inbetween ball 10 yards into Lyman territory, Tullis shielded the ball from a Greyhound defender, spun, and was in alone on Harris. After a couple of touches, Tullis played the ball by Harris, who had charged off the goal line.

Sport Wear, Bamboo Cafe in first place

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Florida Sport Wear used defense. Bamboo Cafe used offense and Gator's used a comeback to post wins in Sanford Recreation Department Men's C Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball League action at Chase Park Thursday night.

Florida Sport Wear took an early 3-0 lead while the defense turned double plays in each of the first three innings to stop R.E. Templeton threats as FSP went on to win 9-3.

Bamboo Cafe broke open a 4-2 lead with a five run third and went on to a merey rule 17-5 victory over Meyers Tree Service and Gator's came from behind four different times to finally win 13-12 over First Baptist of Sanford on a double by Chris Wire with two out in the bottom of the eighth inning.

Florida Sport Wear and Bamboo Cafe are both 2-0, while R.E. Templeton and Gator's are 1-1 and First Baptist of Sanford and Meyers Tree Service are both 0-2.

Next week, First Baptist plays Florida Sport Wear at 6:30 p.m., Meyers Tree Service faces Gator's at 7:30 p.m. and R.E. Templeton takes on Bamboo Cafe at 8:30 p.m.

Pacing Florida Sport Wear were Steve Woodley and Brantley Brumley (three singles and one run each), Randy Yates (double, single, run), Mitch Burke and Paul Pratt (two singles and two runs each), Randy Rawlings (two singles, run), Dave Nobles (double, run), Norman Roberts (double) and Wes Tanksey and Lee Hood (one single each).

In the hit column for R.E. Templeton were Ken Perry (double, two singles, two runs), Rick Bradley (double, single, run), Mike McCoy and Dale Yates (two singles each) and Todd Christensen, Tommy Holland Jr., Tom Holland Jr. and Kevin Toast (one single each).

Doing the damage for Bamboo Cafe were Brian Poe (double, two singles, two runs), Ed Dominguez (three singles, run), Scott Meck (double, single, three runs), Carl Stephens (two singles, three runs) and Danny Spivey, Rick Moreland and Kenneth Moore (two singles and one run each).

Also, Duane Carlson (single, two runs), Cliff Cohen and Dennis Chris (one single and one run each), Kenny Sterner (single) and Kenny Collic (run).

Doing the hitting for Meyers Tree Service were Denny Miller (three singles), Larry Hirt (triple, single).

Alumni hold off Arrow Force One

By DEAN SMITH

SANFORD — And a good time was had by all.

Thursday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium, the Seminole High School boys' varsity basketball team got the thrill of playing against some of the biggest names in Sanford athletic history and the former high school stars had a chance to relive past glories in a Varsity-Alumni game.

In the end, the Alumni survived a late comeback effort by Arrow Force One 79-71, but seeing players like Tim Raines and Jeff Blake in a Seminole uniform again and watching a young and rapidly improving Seminole squad play was worth the price of admission, no matter what the score was.

The game was a tuneup for Arrow Force One, which will host the defending Class 4A state

Seminole girls run past Oviedo

From Staff Reports

OVIDO — Since this is where it ended, it only seems right that this is where it begins again.

Last February, the Seminole High School girls' basketball team's 53-game winning streak against Seminole Athletic Conference opponents was snapped by the Oviedo Lions at Oviedo High School.

Including that game with the Lions, Seminole has won only one of its last seven conference games.

On Thursday night, Seminole returned to Oviedo for the first time since that night nearly a year ago and romped to a 67-37 win over the Lions. Leading 30-25 at halftime, the Tribe came out and outscored Oviedo 15-2

Frosh heavyweight caps Ram win

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Freshman Jason Frazier, a newcomer to the Lake Mary High School varsity wrestling lineup, provided a fitting ending to a most satisfying 47-17 dual meet win for the Rams over Titusville Thursday night.

"The match of the night might have been out ninth grade heavyweight," said Lake Mary wrestling coach Doug Peters. "We have been forgetting there, but we recently moved Jason up to the varsity.

Courier, Seles advance with straight set wins

By PAUL ALEXANDER
Associated Press Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia — It was business as usual today at the Australian Open, where the sun returned and top seeds Jim Courier and Monica Seles extended their winning streaks.

Courier, a former resident of Sanford, was back to his usual quiet self, two days after an outburst that cost him $1,000, while Seles made her usual grunts, which could lead to a confrontation in the next round.

Her 6-1, 6-0 rout of American Patty Fendick in only 47 minutes — her 17th straight victory over three years here — set up a fourth-round meeting with 13th-seeded Nathalie Tauziat, the woman who complained about Seles' trademark grunting at Wimbledon.

Seles has toned down her on-court noise since then, so it remained unclear whether it would become an issue here.

"If it disturbs me again, I will complain. If it doesn't, I won't," said Tauziat, who also won easily in straight sets.

Courier, cruised past Frenchman Guillaume Raoux 6-4, 8-3, 6-4 in virtual silence, although he complained afterward about the new court-side scoreboard that keeps track of service speeds.

"I think it's stupid. I think it creates a thing where you say, 'Gee, I hit that one at 200, let's see if I can hit this one at 202.' What's the point?" Courier said. "So long as my serve is effective, I couldn't care less how fast it is going."

and figured it did him some good.

"Sometimes it's very productive to blow off some steam because the pressure is building," he said.

Temperatures were broiling again, hitting 108 degrees at court-side a day after rain delayed play and kept the high more than 40 degrees cooler. Courier didn't mind at all.

"I'm actually hoping it gets hot. I like it," he said. "I'm from Florida. I'm used to the heat, and it's to my advantage."

Courier, who now has a 10-match winning streak here, next faces No. 15 Sergi Bruguera, a Spanish baseliner who won a five-setter over Dutchman Jan Siemerink.

Most Florida water is hard

Mechanical water softener is the most common method

I get frequent calls on water softeners and "special salts" that may be used for softeners. Many consumers are skeptical. If you have additional questions after reading this article, you will find out where you can get additional information if you need it.

Hard water is water that requires a large amount of soap to form a lather. Soap combines with the hardness minerals in hard water to form an insoluble soap curd instead. Usually waters from lakes and streams (surface waters) have few hardness minerals. Waters from surface sources are relatively soft, whereas water from wells (ground water) is usually hard. Most water in Florida comes from deep limestone aquifers and is very hard.

The harder water is, the problems encountered in using it are more difficult, and more softening will be required.

Hard water problems
Hard water can cause two types of problems. 1) Hard water neutralizes or ties up soaps and detergents. More soap and detergent is used in hard water and hard water does a poorer job of rinsing laundry, so clothes may become dingy looking. 2) Hardness minerals precipitate out when water is heated. Some specific effects of hard water are:

- Clothes can become dingy.
- Glasses, dishes and stainless or silver tableware look spotted and cloudy unless they are towel dried each time after washing.
- A hard film can form on shower walls, doors and bathtubs.
- A gummy bathtub ring can form when soap, hardness minerals and body oils combine.
- A film can form on floors, countertops, etc. from a buildup of hardness minerals when even a small amount of hard water is left during cleaning.
- Scale can form in hot lines and water heaters, causing them to use more electricity or gas and shortening their useful life.

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Very hard water can cause a film buildup in dishwashers.

Hair can become sticky and dull looking.

The softening process. The most common method of removing water hardness is with an ion exchange water softener, sometimes called a cation exchange or mechanical water softener. During the softening process, water flows through a tank with synthetic resin beads which have been saturated with salt (sodium chloride). The resin has a stronger affinity for calcium and magnesium in the water than for sodium. When water flows through the resin bed, the calcium and magnesium become attached to the resin and the sodium combines with carbonate or other anions and stays in the water. The water still contains dissolved solids, but the solids will not react with soaps and detergents to form insoluble compounds. The solids in water will still leave spots when the softened water dries on surfaces but the spots will be "soft." They can be brushed away or will redissolve in water.

Iron, in amounts more than about 0.3 ppm can cause a staining problem. An ion exchange water softener will remove small amounts of soluble iron (up to .5 ppm for every gpg hardness or up to 3 ppm if the softener is heavy duty). It is necessary to check with your softener dealer for the capability of various softeners to remove iron. However, insoluble iron in water (the water appears red or brown), excess soluble iron (more than 3 ppm) or the presence of iron bacteria can foul the resin bed and make the softener ineffective. A special salt to use when water has iron includes an additive that prevents iron from precipitating in the resin bed and fouling it. Correction for a fouled resin will require in-plant cleaning of the resin bed.

The regeneration process. Once the resin beads in the softener are saturated with hardness minerals, the softener must be regenerated. In the regeneration process a saturated salt solution (brine) is washed through the resin. This strong brine replaces the hardness minerals with sodium. Excess salt is rinsed away and the softener is again ready to continue the softening process. Timer operated softener systems are usually set to soften in early morning hours or other times when water is not likely to be used by the family.

The brine solution and excess water from the backwash of a water softener will not harm most septic systems, although they could dictate the need for a slightly larger tank and drainfield.

There are some concerns people have had with their water softeners. Because of the sodium that replaces the hardness minerals in the water people on sodium restricted diets might have a problem. Softened water is not recommended for watering plants or the lawn.

The cost of owning and using a water softener depends not only on the purchase and installation costs, but other costs as well. Our Extension Service has a great publication that gives extensive information on water softeners and a chart that can help people figure annual costs of water softeners. Call our office at 323-2500 ext. 5559 and ask for the publication "Hard Water — When to Soften" circular 918.

RSVP often ignored by guests

DEAR ABBY: Our granddaughter, "Claudia," invited eight guests to her ninth birthday party. She and her mom sent homemade invitations and planned the refreshments and a trip to a children's museum. Only one child showed up. Claudia's best friend, "Doty," the others were apparently busy with other activities. We really don't know because no one acknowledged the R.S.V.P. Of course, Claudia was disappointed, but she and Doty had a wonderful time — just the two of them. Now I am wondering if seven out of eight children are being brought up by parents who are so caught up in themselves that they can't spare a minute to acknowledge an invitation for their children. A phone call or a note from the mother saying her child was unable to attend would have saved a lot of hurt feelings and disappointment.

ADVISE

If you put this in your column, it might save other moms and children from the disappointment we had.

SYMPATHETIC GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: It is not enough to send an invitation requesting a response (R.S.V.P.). Several days before the birthday, one should contact those who have not responded and ask if the guest is planning to attend or not.

You would be amazed at the number of people who do not respond to an R.S.V.P. because they think it means, "Let us know if you cannot attend." Others think R.S.V.P. means, "Let us know if you plan to attend." A response is required either way!

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor I have known since our girlhood days. We are both in our 60s now. I lost my husband two years ago, but she still has hers. She has a large family, I have nobody.

She called me up the day after Thanksgiving and said, "How would you like to come over for leftovers tonight?" It did not occur to her to invite me for Thanksgiving dinner. She had a houseful of relatives.

HURT
DEAR HURT: Don't dwell on it. You don't know what the circumstances were. She may not have thought of it with all the commotion of preparing for her houseful of relatives.

CLAUDE R. ADAMS
Marine Pfc. Claude R. Adams, a 1992 graduate of Seminole High School, Sanford recently completed recruit training and was promoted to his present rank.

During the training cycle at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., recruits are taught the basics of battlefield survival, introduced to typical military daily routine and personal and professional standards.

RICHARD S. YOUNG
Navy Seaman Recruit Richard S. Young, son of Carol J. Allred of 404 W. 17th St., Sanford, recently reported for duty at Naval Station, Norfolk. He joined the Navy in July 1992.

RYAN JOSE ORTIZ
Ryan Jose Ortiz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Parrett of 1144 Naomi Lane, Sanford, has joined the Navy under the Seaman Apprenticeship program and will travel to the Recruit Training Center in Orlando in July 1993 to begin his Navy training. Under the Seaman Apprenticeship program Ortiz will receive general on-the-job training in various general and nautical-related skills until he decides on a permanent specialty.

After successfully completing basic training and apprenticeship training Ortiz could be assigned to any one of the Navy's duty stations around the world.

ROBERT D. FIELDS
Marine Lance Cpl. Robert D. Fields, son of Clara M. Fields of 1413 W. Seventh St., Sanford, was recently promoted to his present rank while serving at The Basic School, Support Battalion, Marine Corps Combat Development Center, Quantico, Va.

The 1991 graduate of Seminole High School joined the Marine Corps in Dec. 1991.

DAVID M. COLLIER

He joined the Marine Corps in Sept. 1981.

Teen must change self to cope with dad's drinking

DEAR MARY: I'm in seventh grade and I've got a problem. My dad drinks a lot and acts weird whether he's drinking or not. Sometimes he'll be real quiet for a long time, then he'll go nuts over nothing. Other times, he's just his regular old self even when he's drinking. Needless to say, I can never bring any of my friends home when he's around because you never know what kind of mood he'll be in.

Once I asked my mom if dad was an alcoholic and she went nuts too. She said I should just ignore dad when he's in one of his "moods" and not to mention it again. It's pretty hard to ignore someone who's going around the house bullying people, cursing and yelling, and generally scaring everyone else, but Mom made me feel like I'd done something wrong by trying to talk to her about it. Sometimes I feel like I'm going to explode inside. Please help me.

CRACKING UP KID
DEAR CRACKING: First, let's be absolutely clear about one thing. You did not do anything wrong by trying to talk to your mom about the problem in your family. My guess is that by denying the situation exists, she's hoping thinking it will go away. You, however, have taken the first difficult but essential step in making things better for yourself — you have openly acknowledged that you have a problem. Since we can't change your parents' behavior or denial, let's focus on the one person we can help — you.

DRUG COUNSELOR

You must find a trusted adult, either in your family, school, or church, whom you can talk to safely about your fears and your feelings. Many guidance counselors have special training in working with kids who have problems like yours, and some schools even offer support groups for young people whose parents have problems with alcohol or other drugs. The important thing is for you to find a safe place to talk about your fears and express your feelings. Remember, that while you can't change the situation you're in right now, you can cope with it and even learn some real good lessons about how to stay sane in crazy situations. Don't explode, give up or pretend you don't care; keep searching until you find the help and support you need, and you can come through this stronger and wiser.

Regular Church Attendance

Our Hearts' Delight

God sends no churches from the skies. Out of our hearts they must arise.
-Anon

Everyone has a favorite season. Ice skaters skim through winter, yet swimmers soak up summer. Romantics relish spring, whereas football fans fancy fall.
God created variety in our world, resulting in encouragement as we go through our days anticipating those times of personal fulfillment.
Just as the seasons vary, so do our choices of worship. Our choice of worship is an important one ... the choice resulting in our greatest personal encouragement and fulfillment.
Whether God's house is vast or compact; whether it be ornate or more simply structured, no matter what it is called ... a church or a synagogue ... it is the one time and place to which we may all look forward ... and through this most precious time we shall all go forward each day of our lives.

IN BRIEF

Board to celebrate anniversary

SANFORD — The Deacons Board celebration of Zion Hope Missionary Baptist Church, 8th Street and Orange Avenue, will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. The annual anniversary service will feature the dynamic artist, Vernon "Poppa" Jones and the Community Workshop Choir. Bernice King is president and the Rev. Elias Calley is pastor.

'Family and Friends Day' planned

SANFORD — The officers and members of Reddick Memorial First Born Church of The Living God, 3155 Kings Rd., cordially invites the public to its Annual "Family and Friends Day" on Sunday, Jan. 31, at 11 a.m. Speaker for the occasion will be Minister W. Miller of El Bethel Church, Sanford.

'Wedding Made In Heaven'

SANFORD — Members and friends of Second Shiloh M. B. Church, 2150 W. Airport Blvd., will be renewing their vows on Valentines Day, Feb. 14, during a "Wedding Made In Heaven" event.

A reception will immediately follow the services. Anyone who would like to participate, or for information, call the Rev. R. T. Davis, pastor, at 321-6765.

First Baptist to celebrate 109 years

SANFORD — On Sunday, Feb. 7, First Baptist Church, 519 Park Ave., will commemorate its 109th Anniversary with a Homecoming Celebration. The Rev. Paul Murphy, a former pastor, will be speaking in the 9:15 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. services.

The day will be marked with inspiring Bible study, exciting worship services, an old-fashioned covered dish dinner and a historical display chronicling the church's rich heritage.

The covered dish meal will be held at the Sanford Civic Center, beginning at 12:15 p.m. Following the meal, there will be a time of special music. There will be no evening services. Everyone is invited to celebrate with the congregation.

Adult bible study begins

SANFORD — The Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, 2525 Oak Ave., has begun a new adult bible study series, "Luther Table Talks." The dramatized occasion of Luther lead into a discussion of four topics, the power of Islam, the supernatural, marriage and divorce, and marriage and the family. The study begins at 9:15 a.m. each Sunday and the public is invited to attend.

Ecumenical Sunday celebrated

LAKE MARY — Christian Fellowship Church, United Church of Christ, will celebrate Ecumenical Sunday this Sunday, with Pastor A. Arthur Arvey preaching on the topic, "We Are One in The Spirit." Visitor are welcome. Worship services are 10 a.m. at the Lake Mary Community Bldg., 300 N. Country Club Rd. For more information, call 323-1118.

Williams featured at crusade

SANFORD — The Rev. Mark L. Williams, nationally known evangelist, will be the featured speaker at the 1983 Spiritual Life Crusade on Jan. 31 through Feb. 7, at Sanford Church of God, 801 W. 23rd St., Sanford. Evening services will begin at 7 p.m. with Sunday services at 10:45 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The Rev. Mark L. Williams

According to the Rev. Donald E. Wiggins, pastor of the church and host of the Spiritual Life Crusade, each service will feature anointed singing, spiritual worship, powerful preaching and dynamic altar services.

Rev. Williams is a bold and dynamic communicator of the gospel, and is a much sought after speaker for revival campaigns, camp meetings, and spiritual breakthrough rallies throughout the United States.

Praising Him for all He has done

Residents throughout the community gathered together Sunday during the Inter-Faith Religious Observance at the Sanford Civic Center in honor of the Martin Luther King, Jr., Celebration. Musical presentations, heartfelt prayers for the community and families and scriptures filled the airways of the auditorium and hearts of those in attendance. The Martin Luther King, Jr., Celebration Choir, right, performed a number of musical presentations. Cynthia Brown and Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, members of the choir, bottom left, listen intently between performances.

Western evangelism competing with Russian churches

By GREGORY W. CORWELL
AP Religion Writer

At an Orthodox seminary in St. Petersburg, Russia, an American church visitor observed several U.S. evangelists trying to implant their particular brand of Christianity on students training for the Russian church's ministry.

"A variety of Western evangelists would corner students in the dormitory hallways or other places, trying to proselytize them," said the Rev. Elaine Stanovsky, head of the Greater Church Council of Greater Seattle, Wash. "I was appalled," she added in an interview. "It broke my heart."

She said such activity underscores indigenous Russian churches, both predominant Russian Orthodox and also Baptist, Pentecostal, Methodist and other Protestant churches that have survived 70 years of oppression.

Underactive thyroid may cause dry skin

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from extremely dry, flaky skin. My dermatologist has suggested Eucerin or petroleum jelly, but they don't appear to help. Can you tell me what's causing this and how I might be able to treat my condition?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Far be it from me to second-guess a dermatologist about skin diseases. However, as a practicing general internist, I often see dry skin as a consequence of an underactive thyroid gland, which also can produce constipation and lethargy.

Therefore, just to touch all the bases, ask the dermatologist if he's checked you (with a blood test) for hypothyroidism. If you have this affliction, the addition of a thyroid supplement will cure your dry skin.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 77-year-old female and have always been very fastidious. However, for the past two years, I've suffered from an offensive body odor. I shower, use a vinegar douche and change my underwear daily, yet the odor persists. Could my problem be an infection?

DEAR READER: As we age, our body odors often change. This is probably due to hormonal changes. On occasion liver and kidney diseases will cause offensive body odors; these disorders can be diagnosed with blood and urine tests.

If the odor appears to be emanating from your reproductive tract, you could have a low-grade infection. Also, women after menopause may develop odoriferous vaginal secretions caused by the change of life. These can be helped by estrogen cream.

You should bring this symptom to your doctor's attention. With proper therapy, your problem can be solved. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Vaginal Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 9199, Cleveland, OH 44101-3399. Be sure to mention the title.

The biggest puzzle in life is life itself. Why are we here? Why am I not rather than someone else? I have seen various answers to these questions, including those from religion and science.

As you contract mirror life, sometimes you feel as if they do. You are playing a hand that needs a winner to succeed, but sleep down you are sure it's going to be. And when it does be, you and your head knowledge. However, do you ask yourself if there was another way to play the hand to avoid losing on that finish?

On today's deal, North's response of two no-trump was the Jacoby Forcing Raise. South liked his sixth trump but didn't like his doubler's honor, so he settled for the weakest rebid: game in spades.

West led the diamond two.

East won with the ace and returned the suit to West's king. West switched to the heart two. Declarer finessed the heart queen. It lost to East's king, and back came a heart. South ran all his trumps, the defenders each keeping three clubs. Then South guessed to finesse West for the club queen. But East produced that honor too: one down.

"I knew West had started with 1-4-4-4 distribution, so it was 4-to-3 that he held the club queen," explained South.

"True," replied North, "but you didn't need to guess. Just win trick three with the heart ace, draw the trump and exit with a heart. East must either lead a club or concede a ruff-and-discard. Either way, you don't lose a club trick."

As Kit Hubbard once said, "Lots of folks confuse bad management with destiny."

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Jan. 22, 1993

Advancement in your chosen field of endeavor is very likely for the year ahead, although it might come about in a circuitous manner. Keep an open mind and deal with developments in a flexible fashion.

AGUARUS (Jan. 30-Feb. 19) Success in your affairs is indicated today, provided you look out for the interest of those with whom you're involved as well as your own. Being self-serving reduces your probabilities. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $8 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91499, Cleveland, OH 44101-3499.

PISCUS (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be luckier than usual today in situations over which you have no direct control than those you personally manage. Don't get in the way of things that are running smoothly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An old relationship should not be allowed to suffer today because of your enthusiasm for someone new. In fact, tried and true pals should be given precedence over new acquaintances.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Conditions look favorable today for both your financial and career affairs. Knowing and operating where you are most effective could make this a rewarding day.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) If you meet either triumph or disaster today, treat these two situations equally. Success in your affairs is indicated if you view life from a philosophical perspective.

Cancer (June 21-July 23) Financial indicators look favorable for you today, especially in a situation which you consider a second source of earnings. It looks like you will be able to tie down an elusive arrangement.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) Your methods for doing things are likely to be faster and more effective than the procedures of people you'll associate with today. However, for best results, don't move too rapidly.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to be successful in material ways today, you must have clearly defined objectives to focus on. Once you know where you want to go, you should have no trouble getting there.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) People you're involved with today aren't apt to be as lucky as you are. This is why it is important that you handle the critical assignments yourself instead of delegating them.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Several matters you haven't been unable to finalize to your satisfaction can be dealt with effectively today, provided you make them your top priorities. Keep your desired end result in mind at all times.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Owing to your ability to see the brighter side of unexpected developments, you won't be overwhelmed by any surprises today. You will know that what seems difficult is manageable.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It is to your advantage to be a little stiff-necked in business matters today. Don't ask for more than you deserve, but don't accept less than what you're entitled to.
