

Soviet President Yuri Andropov Dead

By Steven R. Reed
MOSCOW (UPI) — Yuri Andropov, the former KGB chief who became president of the country branded the "focus of evil" by President Reagan, died after an unspecified illness, the official Soviet Tass news agency said today.

Andropov, 69, reportedly suffering a kidney ailment, died Thursday but it was not announced until 22 hours later.

There was no word on a possible successor.

Andropov had not been seen in public for more than 6½ months of his 15-month rule, which was noted for deteriorating relations with the United States over nuclear arms and the downing of a South Korean jetliner.

He had needed only eight months to grab the triple crown of Soviet leadership: chairman of the Communist Party, commander in chief of the armed forces and president.

His death renewed the simmering Soviet leadership struggle begun when Leonid Brezhnev died of a heart attack Nov. 10, 1982.

It was not immediately known if the ruling Politburo, with 12 surviving members, had already met or would soon meet secretly to select the Soviet Union's next ruler or rulers.

The official death announcement was released by Tass at 2:24 p.m. (6:24 a.m. EST) after a night of speculation that a powerful Kremlin figure had died.

"Everybody knew from early this morning when we heard the (somber) music on the radio that he had died and though we didn't know, we suspected it was Andropov," said a middle-aged woman on a street in the snow-swept capital.

"It's not possible," said a solemn-faced man visiting Red Square from an outlying district. "If it's true, they will elect a new leader. We have plenty of leaders."

As with Brezhnev, disclosure of the death was withheld for one day and no cause of death given. Soviet officials had said earlier only that Andropov had a cold and did not reveal what caused the death. But frequent reports have said Andropov was suffering from a kidney disease and had undergone a kidney transplant.

He had not been seen in public since meeting a U.S. delegation in Moscow on Aug. 18. He had missed several important Soviet functions, including the Revolution Day parade in November and December's session of the Supreme Soviet, the Russian parliament.

Reagan, who was vacationing at his ranch in California, was awakened in the middle of the night by deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver and informed of Andropov's death.

In a speech last March in Florida, Reagan attacked the Soviet Union under Andropov as "the focus of evil in the modern world."

Funeral arrangements were not immediately announced, although Andropov was expected to be buried within 72 hours in the small cemetery between the Lenin Mausoleum on Red Square and the Kremlin Wall.

Soviet leaders normally lie in state for at least one day before burial but the condition of Andropov's body after his six-month illness could not be assumed suitable for such a display.

Today's Tass statement appeared about five minutes before Soviet radio and television simultaneously broadcast it.

That's My Boy

The key to this accident was in the hand of Aaron Woods, being held by his father, Curtis F. Woods of 326 Apopka Lane, Apopka. Aaron's mother, Phyllis Darlene Woods, left the key to the car in the ignition while she went into a store in Orienta Plaza, Altamonte Springs. The two-year-old started the car, put it in reverse and backed over a fire plug. Aaron was not injured. The Altamonte Springs Police Department investigated the incident, which occurred about 5:45 p.m. Wednesday and charged Mrs. Woods with leaving the vehicle unattended.

Schools Seek Exemption From Zoning Regulations

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Still smarting from the county commission's turnaround of a zoning change to permit construction of a multi-service consolidated complex on a tract near Five Points, the Seminole County School Board will seek special law exempting the board from county and city zoning regulations.

And concerned that two Florida court decisions in recent months indicate the school board's elections over the past nine years may have been illegal, the board also agreed to ask the Legislature to pass general law ratifying those elections and authorizing non-partisan elections for School Board members here.

During a work shop session Wednesday, the board instructed its legislative lobbyist Carey Ferrell to contact legislators about both matters and a laundry-list of other proposals.

Ferrell was told to seek either repeal of law requiring the school system to abide by county and city comprehensive land use plans and zoning or to provide in the law a School Board's right to appeal city or county decision to the governor and cabinet. Ferrell, who is also assistant superintendent for business and finance, will also seek the right of appeal of decisions of the St. Johns River Water Management District board to the governor and cabinet.

Under existing state law, Ferrell said the school board has the right of appeal to the governor and cabinet on many other matters.

At its regular meeting late Wednesday afternoon, the board voted 4-1 with Chairman Bill Kroll objecting to notify the Babcock Corp. that the board does not intend to exercise its option to purchase the 65-acre parcel between U.S. Highway 17-92 and County Road 427 which was to be the site for the consolidated services facility.

The property had an $840,000 price tag.

Benny Arnold, assistant superintendent for facilities and transportation, said the board has exhausted all avenues for rezoning the property to a category suitable for "our needs."

Kroll objected, saying that he didn't believe all avenues had been exhausted. "I guess I mean I'm exhausted," Arnold said.

The county commission after a public hearing Jan. 24 turned down the school board's request for rezoning of the tract from single-family residential to public lands and institutions, the category necessary for the facilities the school board wanted.

The board also authorized Arnold to readvertise and seek another suitable site for the transportation-maintenance-food service and distribution facility.

Ferrell during the work shop on legislation surprised the board with the announcement that two recent court decisions in Florida could mean that the School Board's non-partisan elections over the past nine years are invalid.

He said the court decisions say that partisan elections called for in the state constitution cannot be changed except by general law.

In 1975 the Seminole County Legislative Delegation pushed through a special act, applicable only in Seminole County, changing the partisan school board elections to non-partisan ones.

And beginning with the elections in 1976, school board members have been elected in non-partisan contests.

At the general election in November, 1974, the voters approved a referendum question about changing the election by 2-to-1.

The question presented on the ballot said: "At the present time members of the district school board of Seminole County are elected in general elections as nominees of particular political parties or as independents. If authorized by the constitution and laws of the state of Florida, would you be for or against the non-partisan election of school board members in Seminole County?"

Some 14,028 voters cast their ballots for the change while 8,495 voted against.

A special act introduced by local legislators in 1975 became law in July that year without the governor's signature.

The elections in 1976, 1978, 1980 and 1982 were non-partisan for school board members and the superintendent.

Kroll's Speaker Delay Plan Shot Down

School Board chairman Bill Kroll's proposal to require a time delay before persons can appear before the board was killed by his colleagues.

Kroll's fellow members said they wanted to be as accessible to the public as possible and do not want to make it more difficult for parents and others to bring their problems to the board.

Member Pat Telson, at Wednesday's meeting, summed the other's feelings.

"If it's not broken, don't fix it," she said.

Kroll suggested a change in policy to require those wishing to speak to the board to file a written or verbal request 11 working days or two weeks prior to a meeting, rather than the 8 working days now required by policy. In addition, he wanted a change in the policy to require the school superintendent to investigate the subject matter of the request and report his findings and recommendations in writing one week prior to a meeting.

Policy now says that School Superintendent Robert Hughes will report his findings to give "ample" time for review prior to a meeting.

Member Nancy Warren looking at Hughes said "ample" time does not mean an hour or a day.

But she said eight working days is plenty of time for persons to file requests to be on the agenda.

Member Roland Williams said the board should be as accessible to the public as

'I would like to let people know they can get on the agenda.'

possible, adding he doesn't want to discourage anyone from coming before the board. "I would prefer six working days," he said.

Mrs. Telson said, "I would like to let people know they can get on the agenda."

Member Jean Bryant, who said earlier this week if a parent has a complaint and perhaps a child is being kept out of school until that complaint is answered, the delay proposed by Kroll may be too long.

Kroll saw the delay as an opportunity to better solve problems by having all available information in hand prior to a meeting.

In other business, the board approved a parcel in The Crossings planned unit development off Lake Mary Boulevard near Interstate 4 as a site for the proposed Middle School X.

The board authorized a team of school officials -- Hughes, Assistant Superintendent for Facilities and Transportation Benny Arnold, and attorney Ned Julian Jr. -- to negotiate for purchase of an additional piece of property for the site.

Developers of The Crossings have agreed to donate 15 acres for the site, originally planned for an elementary school. An additional 10 acres must be purchased for an appropriate middle school site. — Donna Estes

EDB Ban Won't Bother Local Growers

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

An across-the-board ban of the pesticide EDB may cause problems for some citrus growers and shippers and farmers, but apparently it would not be a major problem for local agricultural interests.

The Environmental Protection Agency, which already has halted its use as a soil fumigant and set limits on its use in prepared foods and grain storage, is expected to impose a near total ban on citrus spraying next September. However, the spraying on fresh citrus has already been suspended in this state.

According to Seminole County Agricultural Extension Agent Frank Jaso, the major use of the pesticide in the county has been in the turf industry with golf courses, such as Mayfair Country Club where several Sanford water wells were found contaminated with EDB.

Jack Russell, owner of Soil Fumigants, Inc. of Sanford, said because of the ban, he is no longer applying EDB, but he had been using it for three years, primarily on golf courses. He had used some on agricultural crops, but said farmers do not use a lot of the custom applications that he does.

Russell said "Any substitutes for EDB now in view are considerably more expensive, and we aren't sure yet what is acceptable or workable. Nemagon, the product used before EDB, was also banned."

The ban on EDB, which causes gastro-intestinal cancer in rats, would cost Florida citrus growers more than $100 million a year in Japanese trade and disrupt fruit imports from Mexico and the Caribbean.

Nelson & Company, Oviedo, the only citrus packing house in the county, does not use fumigants on its fresh fruit because it does not ship to California, Japan or places where it is required, according to company official Arthur Evans. EDB is used to kill nematodes. Evans said the company did not use EDB as barriers around its citrus groves, as many growers do, because they do not have nematodes.

As a matter of fact, according to the State Department of Citrus Executive Director Bernard Lester, Florida is not using the fumigant EDB on any fresh citrus fruit or processed citrus juices sold in any continental U.S. markets.

"It is unfortunate that some consumers may have the impression that Florida fresh citrus and Florida citrus juices sold in domestic markets are being treated with EDB," Lester said.

Fresh citrus packed in Florida for shipment to all U.S. markets (except to the citrus-growing states of California, Arizona, and Texas) has never been treated with EDB. EDB fumigation was previously used on shipments to these citrus growing states at their request to prevent economically disastrous fruitfly infestations. However, use of EDB on shipments to these other citrus-growing states was suspended four weeks ago pending the establishment of a national tolerance level by the Environmental Protection Agency, he pointed out.

Further, he added, fruit used in preparing citrus juices in Florida has never been treated with EDB.

The plan will not pose a problem for local vegetable growers, according to Sanford farmer W.W. Tyre. "We've used it for almost 40 years on farms on different crops in different areas, but not extensively," he said, "and the last few years we've used very little of it. It's a good material and does an extremely

The subject of counterfeiting came under a spotlight last week when two Seminole County teens spotted bogus $20 bills being passed at the fast food restaurant where they worked in Longwood. Two women were arrested in the incident, but about half a dozen Seminole residents have had phoney money foisted on them in the last few weeks. Would you know what to do if you spotted a counterfeit? It could be costly. Herald Staff Writer Susan Loden explains in Sunday's Evening Herald.

NATION IN BRIEF

Liberals, Democrats Are On USIA Blacklist

WASHINGTON — The most trusted man in America in a poll, and 83 others were blacklisted by the U.S. Information Agency from the government's overseas speaking program.

"As soon as I heard about it, I ordered it destroyed," USIA Deputy Director Leslie Lenkowsky said Thursday in a telephone interview. "In my view, it was a terrible error. The director (Charles Wick) knew nothing about this list, and I knew nothing about this list."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the White House "does not condone any blacklist, and we don't believe USIA should have done it."

The USIA, a federal agency that provides information about the United States overseas, sends about 500 speakers abroad each year, paying their expenses and sometimes a fee. Lenkowsky said most people on the list had not sought to make a government-paid speech and doubtless did not know their names were even considered.

Guilty In Child's Death

ALLEGAN, Mich. (UPI) — A woman whose religious sect practices strict corporal punishment has been convicted of involuntary manslaughter for giving her seriously injured 12-year-old son a final beating the night before he died.

Allegan County Circuit Judge George Corsiglia said he was "satisfied Elhet Yarbough performed acts that resulted in the death of John Yarbough" July 4, 1983, at the House of Judah religious camp in southwestern Michigan.

Corsiglia said he could not find her guilty of voluntary manslaughter because he was not convinced the 33-year-old mother of six intended to kill her son. He convicted her of involuntary manslaughter because any mother who "had any common sense" would have known the July 3 whipping would cause "serious harm."

6,500 Walk Off Jobs

By United Press International

Nearly 6,500 longshoremen have walked off the job in four East Coast cities, shutting down two ports and causing officials to fear their shipping business could be irreversibly damaged.

Ports in Baltimore and Boston were shut down Thursday by the strike, which came after workers rejected local versions of a three-year contract with the International Longshoremen's Association.

Workers in Baltimore struck after a 40-year-old clause, which exempts longshoremen from working in the rain, was eliminated from the contract.

Baltimore is ranked third behind New York and Houston among East Coast and Gulf Coast ports, based on the value of cargo shipped in and out. Boston is ranked 37th.

They Met At School Dance

Sanford Man Charged In Rape Of Girl

A Sanford man who turned himself in to face a charge of raping a young girl posted $10,000 bond and was released from the Seminole County jail.

The man was arrested at the jail at 12:15 p.m. Thursday after Sanford police notified his attorney that the girl who named him as her assailant had taken a lie detector test, which indicated she had given a true account of the Saturday night incident.

In the girl's account, she said she met the man at a dance at Seminole High School and he offered her and her cousin a ride home. The man dropped the cousin off at her house, but drove the victim to an open area on Seminole Boulevard about one-quarter mile east of U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

The suspect allegedly told the girl she would have to have sex with him before he would take her home. After she refused, the girl said the man attempted to force her to have sex and she broke away and ran.

The man chased and caught the girl and brought her back to his car. He allegedly threatened her with a gun and told her he would throw her in the water if she did not cooperate, a police report said.

The girl undressed and the man forced her to have sexual intercourse. After the assault, she broke away and ran toward 17-92. When the man chased her, she reported that she hit him with a palm frond, he threw her blouse at her and drove away.

The girl, dressed only in a bra and the blouse, ran to the 7-11 store at First Street and 17-92. Police were called to the scene and the girl was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, where medical tests indicated that she had had intercourse, the police report said.

Michael Devon Tanner, 18, of 2010 Summerlin Ave., faces a charge of sexual battery. He was released from jail Thursday.

BATTERY

A Deltona man accused of hitting another man in the arm with a car door posted $500 bond and was released from the Seminole County jail on a battery charge.

The sheriff's deputy who made the arrest said he saw the suspect jump out of his car on U.S. 17-92 at Lake Mary Boulevard and run to a vehicle parked behind him. The suspect was allegedly arguing with the second man when the suspect grabbed the victim's car door and slammed it into his arm, a sheriff's report said.

The victim, who was not named in the sheriff's report, said he and the suspect were arguing over the suspect's driving habits, the report said.

Brian Keith Melhado, 21, of Deltona, was arrested at 12:41 p.m. Wednesday.

Seminole sheriff's deputies had made three attempts to serve the man with Orange County's warrant after a Jan. 27 crackdown against contractors who allegedly made home repairs and additions without being registered with or licensed by the state. Four Seminole County men were arrested on similar charges in unrelated cases on Jan. 27.

Dawson Wise Jr., 31, of 101 Altamonte Drive, #1615, was arrested at 2:55 p.m. Tuesday and charged with three counts of contracting for construction without a license.

SHADY DEAL

A thief took $2,220 worth of sunglasses, 495 pairs, from the car of Erwin Leon Bellinkoff, 30, when his car was parked at his home at 1061 Nodding Pine Way, Casselberry. The front passenger side window of the car was broken and the break-in occurred between 7 p.m. Monday and 9:01 a.m. Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

BURGLARIES

Lillian Hill Johnson, 32, of 2420 Rightway, Sanford, reported that someone took the battery, a tire and the carburetor from her car, which was parked in a carport at 2121 Brissan St., Sanford. The theft occurred around 6 p.m. Wednesday and the items taken had a total value of $200, a sheriff's report said.

Maribell L. Russ, 46, of 210 Raintree Cluster #16, Casselberry, reported that a thief pried open her sliding glass door, entered her home and took $150 worth of jewelry, including pearl earrings. The house was broken into around 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

A thief who removed a screen and forced open an unlocked window entered the home of Bernard Kristoff, 55, of P.O. Box 729 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford, took $60, a pocket knife, a pocket watch, a wedding ring and a socket wrench set. The house was entered between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

Four shotguns with a combined value of $215, were reported taken in a break-in at the home of Robert Whitaker, 46, of 207 Ridge Drive, Sanford. A suspect has been named in that burglary, which occurred between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

A rifle, a shotgun, a microwave oven and a color television, with a combined value of $1,195, were taken from the home of Brenda E. Petterson, 37, of 202 Markham Woods Road, Sanford. The thief entered a bathroom window of that home between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

John Martin, 51, of Route 2, Box 24, A.R. Ruff Road, Sanford, reported that someone took tools valued at $150 from his truck while it was parked at his home Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

Charles Fields, 32, of Bank's Boarding House #21, on Sipes Avenue, Sanford, reported that someone entered his room through an unlocked window and took a $546 television. The theft occurred sometime Tuesday or Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

Paula Cox, 38, of 576 Orange St., Altamonte Springs, reported that someone broke into the office of Sable Point Properties, 601 Long Meadow Lane, Longwood, between Dec. 7 and 15 and took $1,738 worth of items including a beeper charger, a beeper, a camera, a television and a video recorder. A report of the theft was filed with the sheriff's department Wednesday.

Cough And A Twitch Keep Two From Grave

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — A sudden cough from a lifeless body alerted medical technicians preparing for organ-removal surgery that 20-year-old Alan Supergan was still alive.

Supergan was reported in critical condition late Thursday while the condition of the other man, from Tennessee, and what hospital he was in could not be learned.

Both had been declared dead by doctors earlier this week and were being prepared for organ donor surgery when it was discovered they were still alive.

"He's improving. I'm a positive thinker. I'm hoping for a miracle," his mother told the Chicago Sun-Times. She had signed death certificate papers when her son was pronounced dead Monday.

Supergan suffered massive brain injuries in a one-car car accident Feb. 2. Police said he ran through a stop sign and hit a tree. He was charged with drunken driving.

He was taken to Condell Memorial Hospital. Doctors said his situation was hopeless and the family ordered his life-support systems cut off and his organs donated.

But Tuesday, as doctors and nurses prepared to remove Supergan's heart, kidneys and liver, he coughed.

Supergan's case marked the second time in the same day organ donor surgery was halted by signs of life.

Doctors at a Memphis, Tenn., hospital canceled surgery to remove a "dead" man's liver when his feet started twitching involuntarily. The patient, who had been in a car accident, was declared dead nine hours before surgery at the University of Tennessee's Howard F. Bowld Hospital began.

Attorney Removed From Case

The State Attorney for the 18th Judicial District has for ethical reasons been removed from a case involving a priest accused of lewd and lascivious assaults on a 12-year-old girl.

Chan Muller, a Winter Park attorney, successfully had the Seminole-Brevard State Attorney Officer removed from prosecuting the case of Father Eamon O'Dowd, 53, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Winter Haven, who is charged with two counts of lewd and lascivious assaults, according to assistant state attorney Angela Blakeley.

Ms. Blakeley said the State Attorney's Office was removed from the case because one of the attorneys for the office working in the juvenile division used to work for Muller before she became an attorney.

While the case will still be tried before Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr., a new prosecutor will be appointed by Gov. Bob Graham, she said.

No new trial date has been set.

O'Dowd, born in Ireland, is charged with committing the assault on the girl in her Seminole County home during January 1983. The girl's mother told investigators the assaults took place about a week apart and that she heard one and saw the other.

O'Dowd turned himself in to Seminole County authorities Sept. 7. He was released the same day from the Seminole County jail on pre-trial release without posting bond.

Defendants Sentenced In Various Court Cases

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Defendants guilty of various charges from forgery to theft of a gas generator were sentenced Wednesday by Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis. Sentences given ranged from six months' jail time to five years of probation.

—Vincent Lee Pudak, 21, of 771 Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs, three counts forgery, adjudication withheld and placed on three years of probation. The defendant was considered for a harsher sentence but he stated his intentions were to return to New York.

—Terry Wayne Berkley, 21, of 1050 Park Drive, Casselberry, grand theft, conspiracy to sell marijuana, and resisting arrest with violence, adjudication withheld and placed on five years of probation for grand theft, 250 hours community service, and 10 weekends in the county jail starting Friday, and one year probation for the other two charges.

—Dennis Paul, 33, of Palm Beach, also known as Sammy Lee McKell, Johnny Williams and Tommy Williams, food stamp fraud, placed on five years probation, restitution of $1,713, rehabilitative counseling and to maintain full-time employment.

—Gwendolyn Taylor, 32, P.O. Box 2397 Eatonville, uttering a worthless check and violation of probation, six months in the county jail to be served concurrently with a Marion county term.

—Anna Maria Rakes, 40, of Orlando, grand theft, adjudication withheld and placed on five years probation, restitution of $1,012, and 147 days in the county jail with credit given for 147 days served.

—Alan James Barant, 25, of 1018 Landmark Lane, grand theft of a gas generator in 1982. He received three years probation, has to finish his high school education or get a GED certificate, remain employed, make restitution of $504, and perform 200 hours of community service.

In other court action: —John Curtis Elias, 21, of 119 Reel Court, Sanford, pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of aggravated battery.

According to court records, Elias and Cheryl Cartwright, of 2525 Sanford Ave., were sitting in his car on W. 13th Street Oct. 25 waiting to purchase marijuana, when a man stole Ms. Cartwright's purse. Elias got out of his car and fired two shots from a .357 caliber handgun, wounding Walter Nathaniel Dixon, 30, of 1707 W. 16 St., Sanford, who was treated at the Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Elias was arrested Dec. 8 at his home and had bond set at $1,000.

He could receive up to 15 years in prison for the crime. He has been released from custody pending his sentencing March 9, at 2:30 p.m.

—Melvin Dean Orr, 18, of no known address, but originally from Indiana, was tried before Judge McGregor and was found guilty by jury Wednesday of burglarizing a car and petit theft.

He will be sentenced March 9 at 2 p.m.

According to court records, on the morning of Nov. 5 a clerk at a market asked a Sanford officer to follow him to a bank while he made a deposit. En route, the clerk stopped and told the officer his car had been burglarized and gave him a description of someone he saw near his car just before leaving to deposit the money.

Orr was stopped a short time later while riding a bike near the Pinehurst Baseball Park. He was identified by the clerk and placed under arrest at 3:11 a.m.

—James Willis, Berry Jr., 21, of 311 Pinewood Drive, Fern Park, pleaded guilty Wednesday before Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. of robbery and grand theft.

According to court files, Berry coaxed a woman into his car Aug. 27 and then ripped a $400 gold chain from her neck, causing minor injury. He was arrested Sept. 1 at the Kmart store in Fern Park.

He will be sentenced April 13, 8:30 a.m., and, according to records, the court is considering a sentence of six months in the county jail and two or three years on probation.

—Kenny Love Washington, 21, of P.O. Box 1531 Geneva Drive, Oviedo, pleaded no contest Tuesday to the charge of attempted second degree murder before Judge Mize.

Washington had been charged with attempted first degree murder.

On May 29, according to court records, he approached Maebell King, of 57 Taylor Street, Oviedo, near her home and struggled with her. During the fray, he produced a chrome-plated pistol, pointed it at Ms. King, and shot her at least twice. She was taken to the Winter Park Memorial Hospital and treated for a wound in the left shoulder, an abdomen wound, and an injury to her right arm. Washington was arrested at 1 a.m. May 30 by a sheriff's deputy across the street from the Winter Park hospital while he was with Ms. King's family.

Cox-Parker Funeral Home, Winter Park, is in charge of arrangements.

House Subcommittee Kills State Lotteries

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — A constitutional amendment that would have set up a state lottery was unanimously rejected Wednesday by a House subcommittee.

"I suggest to you that money spent on lotteries might come from the milk and egg money of people who can least afford it," Bob Flora, a lobbyist for greyhound owners, told the parimutuel subcommittee of the House Regulated Industries and Licensing Committee.

Wilbur Brewton, representing Calder and Tropical Racecourses, said state-run lotteries have hurt parimutuel industries in the 17 states that have them. He said 37 parimutuel license holders have invested some $42 million in tracks and employed thousands of Floridians.

Rep. art Simon, D-Miami, sponsor of the constitutional amendment, said he did not mind the parimutuel lobbyists defending their industry from competition. He said, however, a state lottery would produce $200 million to $300 million in new state revenue for education, social welfare programs or law enforcement.

Congressman's Son Dies

LITTLE DUCK KEY, (UPI) — The only son of Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., was killed in a fiery car crash on the Seven Mile Bridge, which the elder Fascell had secured funds for and dedicated when it opened 22 months ago.

Dante Jon Fascell, 27, was killed on his way to work Thursday in a head-on collision that also killed an Illinois man and injured his wife and two daughters.

Fascell, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, learned of his son's death when he was called out of a committee meeting at which Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was testifying, an aide said. He returned to Miami Thursday.

The younger Fascell, a construction worker, was driving to work at a building site in Marathon when the accident occurred 7:07 a.m. EST Thursday, the congressman's aide said.

He was driving northbound on the bridge in his father's 1981 El Camino when he "crossed a center line due to an unknown reason" and smashed head-on into a 1983 Pontiac, said John Bagnardia, spokesman for the Florida Highway Patrol in Marathon.

The car overturned and exploded into flames, burning the younger Fascell so badly his identity was confirmed only by his wedding ring.

Pigs Trample Lawns

APOPKA, (UPI) — A band of 200-pound pigs escaped from their pen and went on a four-day rampage through an affluent suburb where police are using trained dogs to track the fugitive porkers.

Police corralled three of the animals Thursday with the aid of local pig farmers whose dogs had been taught to track errant hogs. Six pigs remained at large late Thursday.

For four days, the pigs have rooted through manicured lawns and flowerbeds in the Errol Estate subdivision, where homes sell for $80,000 to about $150,000.

Police Chief Tom Collins said the animals already have caused $1,200 worth of destruction.

At the sight of the 200-pound pigs, some of which have 2-inch tusks, frantic homeowners called to report wild boars were running through their yards, Collins said.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Light rain and dense fog blanketed much of the Midwest and Mississippi Valley today, light snow spread into the West, and sub-zero cold gripped northern New England. The weather literally stank in Minneapolis because a long-lasting temperature inversion trapped sour smells near the ground. Thunderstorms crossed the Mississippi Delta and showers reached north to Illinois. Dense fog cut visibility to near zero from southern Minnesota into northern Missouri and eastern Kansas. Showers on the West Coast turned to light snow in the mountains from northern California to Washington, and in Idaho and Nevada. Cold weather clung to New England, where Houlton, Maine, was 18 below zero early today and Limestone, Maine, was 14 below. Freezing temperatures were scattered over the middle Atlantic Coast states while southern Florida remained in the 60s. Thunderstorms poured nearly 2 inches of rain on Baton Rouge, La., Thursday night, and small hail fell at Fort Smith, Ark. More than half an inch of rain fell at Fresno and Eureka, Calif.

AREA READINGS (9 a.m.): temperature: 60; overnight low: 49; Thursday's high: 72; barometric pressure: 30.34; relative humidity: 77 percent; winds: east at 6 mph; rain: none.

SATURDAY TIDES: Daytona Beach: highs, 2:18 a.m., 2:38 p.m.; lows, 8:59 a.m., 8:39 p.m.; Port Canaveral: highs, 2:08 a.m., 2:30 p.m.; lows, 8:30 a.m., 8:30 p.m.; Baysport: highs, 10:08 a.m., 7:28 p.m.; lows, 2:45 a.m., 1:27 p.m.

BOATING FORECAST: St. Augustine to Jupiter Inlet out 50 miles — Wind easterly 10 to 15 knots today becoming southeast 15 knots tonight and 15 to 20 knots by Saturday. Seas 2 to 4 feet today and 3 to 5 feet tonight. Seas higher Saturday. Partly cloudy with a few showers.

AREA FORECAST: Today partly cloudy with a slight chance of showers. Highs mid 70s. Wind east to southeast around 10 mph. Rain chance 20 percent. Tonight partly cloudy with only isolated showers. Lows mid 50s. Wind southeast around 10 mph. Rain chance less than 20 percent. Saturday partly cloudy with a slight chance of showers. Highs mid 70s to near 80. Rain chance 20 percent.

EXTENDED FORECAST: Partly cloudy Sunday becoming mostly cloudy with a chance of showers and thunderstorms Monday and Tuesday more likely north half. Turning cooler north Tuesday. Lows averaging upper 50s north to around 70 extreme south. Highs mostly 70s but near 80 south Sunday and Monday and 60s north Tuesday.

Sanford Woman Wrong Person In Drug Case

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Just two weeks after being sued for falsely accusing a woman of theft, the State Attorney's office was forced to drop a drug-selling charge Thursday because the Sanford officer in charge of the investigation said the defendant before the judge was not the woman who sold him drugs.

Thursday, Alice Mea Franklin Hampton, 49, of P.O. Box 3032 Center St., Sanford, appeared for trial before Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. on a charge of sale or delivery of a controlled substance. The charges stemmed from an alleged buy of marijuana made by Sanford police June 30 at the home of Mrs. Hampton and her husband, Albert Hampton.

In court, however, the officer in charge of the case told assistant state attorney Angela Blakeley the woman, Mrs. Hampton, was not the woman he bought marijuana from in June.

In view of that, Ms. Blakeley said she had no choice but to not prosecute.

She said the state based its case on information provided by the Sanford Police Department.

When an arrest is not made at the time of a drug deal, a complaint is filed with the state attorney's office — in this case by the Sanford Police Department — requesting that the accused be arrested, she explained. The state attorney's office then processes the case based upon the information given and issues a warrant to the sheriff's department, which arrests the person named in the warrant.

Although the woman named in the warrant was Mrs. Hampton, and Mrs. Hampton did appear in court, she was not the one who sold the drugs, according to the officer, Ms. Blakeley said.

Mrs. Hampton's attorney, Chris Ray, used to be an assistant state attorney.

The officer in charge of the case could not be reached for comment.

According to the form submitted to the state attorney's office, Sanford agents on June 30 at about 9 p.m. went to the home of Albert Hampton to buy either marijuana or cocaine. The report said a woman, known as Hampton's wife, invited the agents in whereupon they said they there were to buy some cocaine and asked if any was available. The woman reportedly said no but offered to sell them a small amount of marijuana, which they bought with a $50 bill, receiving $45 in change.

Mrs. Hampton entered a plea of not guilty Dec. 14 and on Dec. 19 asked for a continuance during a Christmas visit by her son.

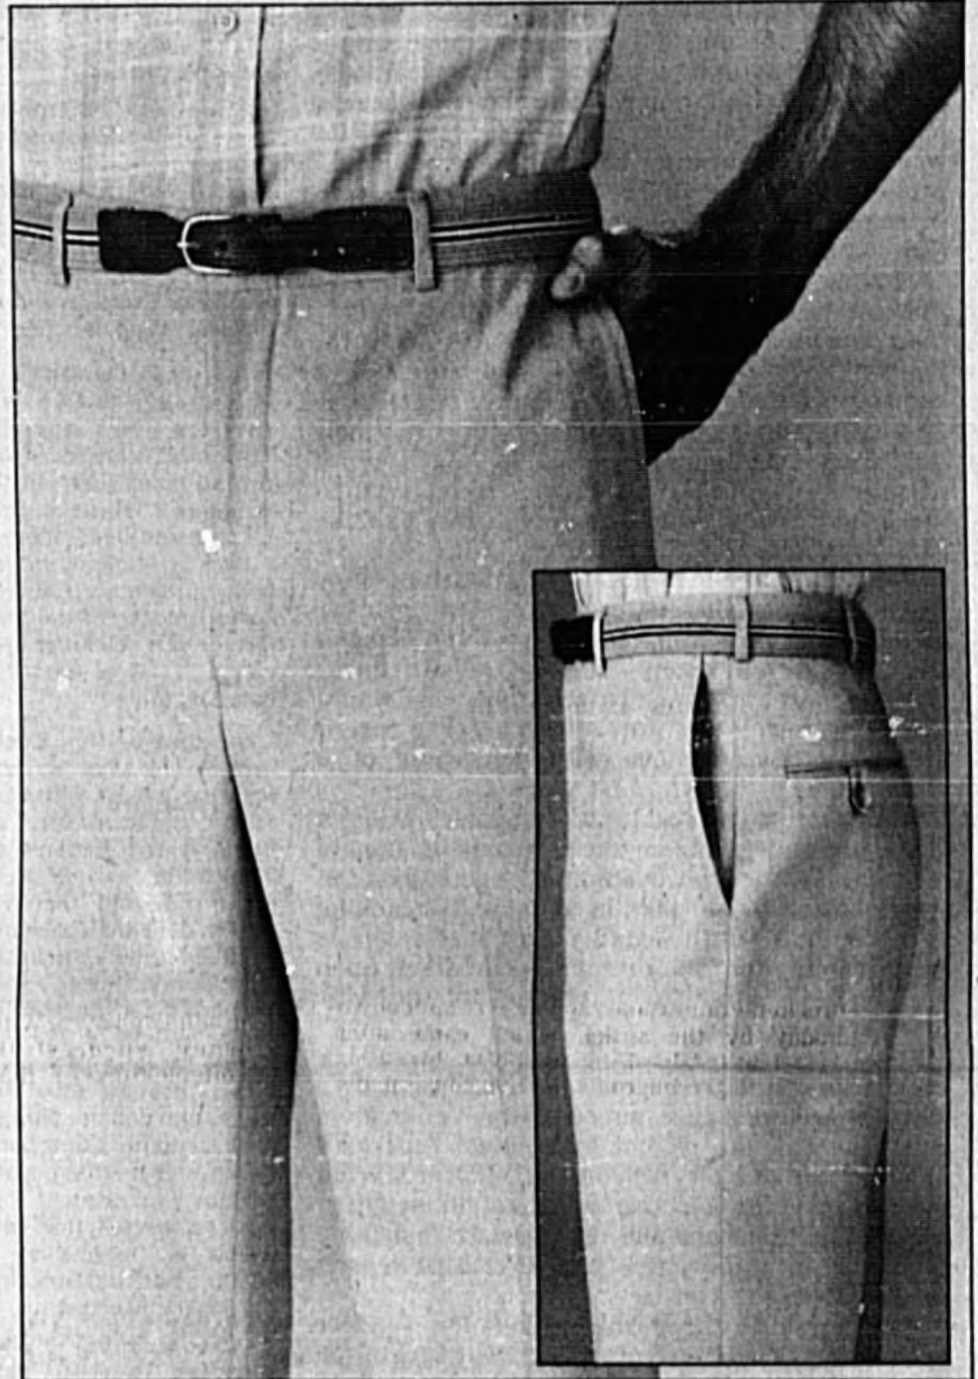

On Jan. 24, in an unrelated case, Joan Ann Johnson, of Orlando, filed suit against the state attorney's office after her name was used by a woman arrested in December 1979 for theft by Sanford Police.

Big Lies From The Soviets

Nazi propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels propounded the theory that big lies were more readily believed than small fibs. Goebbels is gone but his doctrinal heirs live on in the Kremlin. How else can one explain Moscow's bald-faced assertion that the United States is cheating on arms control agreements but the Soviet Union is not?

The Soviet charges, registered in a formal note delivered to the State Department, are so patently false as to be laughable. For the record, department spokesman Alan Romberg rebutted them one by one. But no one took them seriously and recounting the accusations in detail here would be a sheer waste of space.

Consider but one, however, as typical of the fictional web spun by the Soviets. Some years ago, construction crews doing repair work on several Minuteman missile silos in the Midwest erected weather screens over the sites. This "camouflage," prohibited by the 1972 SALT I accords, was detected by a Soviet spy satellite. When the Soviets complained, the screens were removed.

This incident, which the Soviets now cite as a possible ruse concealing replacement of Minuteman IIs with more powerful Minuteman IIIs, is the fanciful stuff of which this bill of attainder is composed. In fact, of course, the precise composition of the American nuclear deterrent is routinely published and discussed in detail in such secret documents as The New York Times, Aviation Week and Space Technology magazine, and the federal budget.

The most common assumption in Washington is that Moscow's charges were cobbled together merely as a pro forma reaction to the Reagan administration's recent 50-page report documenting Soviet arms control cheating. That would help explain why even the Soviets seem to regard their counter-accusations with something of a yawn.

Still, it must be said that the Soviet charges further poison a diplomatic atmosphere already inhospitable to even resuming negotiations on arms control, to say nothing of actually reaching an agreement worth signing. This fact suggests the possibility that the Kremlin is embarked upon a deliberate effort to intervene in the U.S. presidential election.

If so, the obvious Soviet objective would be Ronald Reagan's defeat and his replacement by a more compliant figure, presumably Walter Mondale. The Kremlin cannot manipulate America's inflation rate or slow its economic recovery. What the Soviet leadership can do is act to heighten international tensions and then declare that there is no hope for improvement until President Reagan is out of office.

More crudely, they can exploit the nuclear hysteria they have so vigorously encouraged in the West. Prominent Soviet propagandists are already saying that nuclear war is the only alternative to "arms control" and that the Reagan administration opposes any effort to reach arms agreements with Moscow. The message: A vote for Reagan is a vote for nuclear war.

But, of course, it was Soviet intransigence at the bargaining table that effectively sabotaged two years of arms negotiations with the Reagan administration in Geneva. And it was the Soviets, not the Americans, who recently walked out of all three current arms negotiations: the Euro-missile talks, the strategic arms reduction talks and the decade-old discussions on reducing conventional forces in Europe.

We can hope, and expect, that the American people are too sophisticated to be hustled by such a transparent scam. Mondale and the other would-be Democratic presidential candidates could make this plainer still by jointly denouncing Soviet interference and by declaring that Americans, not Russians, will select the next president.

BERRY'S WORLD

"It's OK, honey — Grampy is just gearing up to work on his income tax return."

By Donna Estes

The 36-member Republican caucus of the Florida House of Representatives has come up with two proposed constitutional amendments as alternatives to Proposition 1, commonly known as the "Citizens' Choice Amendment."

Proposition 1 authored by Lake County Property Appraiser Ed Havill calls for city, county and state governments in Florida plus the school board to reduce taxes and fees to their 1980-81 level and allows annual increases of 5 percent, or 10 percent pegged to the consumer price index.

Other increases must be approved by the voters in special elections.

Seminole County governmental bodies have estimated a loss in revenues of more than $48 million the first year, if the constitutional amendment passes in the November general election.

State Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, said the amendments proposed by the Republican caucus in the House as alternatives to Proposition 1 do not speak to the issue of controlling spending on the local level.

The first proposed GOP amendment deals with taxation, Selph said. It calls for a three-quarters extraordinary vote of the 120-member House and the 40-member state Senate before the rate of state taxes can be increased or new taxes proposed.

The proposal also forbids appropriations to exceed the estimated rate of growth of the economy without the three-quarters vote, Selph said.

"The issue would have to have popular support to get a three-quarters positive vote," Selph said. "It is too easy right now to pass a tax increase and appropriate money."

The second proposed constitutional amendment would limit the number of state employees, except elected officials, Selph said.

The number of state employees would be limited to 1 percent of the state population of the preceding year and expenditures for part-time state employees would be limited to 10 percent of the total expenditure for salaries and wages of all state employees.

"We are running close to the 1 percent mark for total full-time state employees now," Selph said. "But the number of part-time employees and consultants seems to be running wild."

"Part-time employees seem to be where most of the waste in state departments is now. Departments will take money allocated for other things and hire part-time people," Selph said.

Trimtabs And The Edsels

The problem with this country's national security policy, as Harold Willens sees it, is that we have built ourselves an Edsel.

The Edsel, Detroit's bomb of the century, should require no introduction. Willens, however, may. He is a businessman (California, factory equipment), anti-war activist (Vietnam, nuclear freeze) and most recently author ("The Trimtab Factor: How Business Executives Can Help Solve the Nuclear Weapons Crisis").

It is the last which concerns us for this writing and before we proceed any further, you should know that "trimtab" is an aeronautical term referring to small flaps on the stabilizers of airplanes. Trimtabs enhance a craft's balance and steadiness.

Back to Willens, he has summarized his arguments on security policy in a special report for the Washington-based Center for Defense Information, of which he is a founder and advisory board member.

He makes the Edsel comparison because, he says, we have allowed our security policy to become excessively reliant upon nuclear weapons which threaten the nation's economic well-being today as that auto, developed at great cost and then rejected by the public, did Ford's back in the '50s.

Willens cites estimates that more than $1 trillion has been expended to date in preparing for nuclear war, with additional outlays of $450 billion projected during the next six years.

But the cost must be measured in more than dollars. Military and economic strength are interrelated. True security requires a strong economy. Yet, says Willens, investment in an immense nuclear arsenal that must remain unusable — "unless we are willing to commit national suicide" — is eroding the American economy.

"The enduring myth that military spending is good for business has blinded us to this reality," he says.

The myth is rooted in misunderstanding of the difference between military products and other products.

"Dollars spent on tanks, bombers and submarines are dead-end dollars," Willens argues. "They consume enormous amounts of valuable resources but return nothing to the economic system."

And while military spending in the short term may stimulate employment and purchasing power, in the long run it not only drains the economy but contributes to the classic inflationary syndrome of too much money chasing too few consumer goods. The heavy military expenditures on Vietnam in the '60s, without compensatory reductions in domestic spending or increases in taxes, fueled the inflation that raged throughout the '70s.

There is also the costly competition for technological resources. The military sector's claims on manpower — 30 percent, to 50 percent of scientific and engineering talent in recent decades, according to Willens.

Charity Is No Stranger To Woman

WASHINGTON — The remarkable thing about Joann Jones is the way she smiles through the tears. Her neighbors in Paris, Ark., can tell you she has been dogged by hard times. Yet her whole personality always seems to smile.

Left with three children to support, Joann found work as a cook and eventually opened her own small restaurant. But her 22-year-old son was stricken with a rare disease. He lost a leg and, because she couldn't keep up with the medical bills, she lost the restaurant.

Yet these tragedies didn't dampen her spirit. All that mattered, she told friends, was that her son was alive and preparing to become a missionary.

The financial squeeze left her with no money to pay insurance premiums. Then the inevitable happened — her small home burned down. Though all her worldly possessions were reduced to ashes, she remained cheerful. At least the family was still together — almost too close together, cramped into a cheap, second-hand trailer.

Then the other day, a cold front sent the temperature plunging below zero in western Arkansas. Joann stopped at a country store to use the pay phone. Across the road in a frozen field, she noticed four Mexicans huddled under a cedar tree. They were shivering in shirtsleeves in the cruel cold, with only one blanket to keep them all warm.

She put down the phone and strode over to the freezing men. She couldn't speak Spanish, and they didn't understand English. But with gestures and a few words in common, they let her know they wanted to return to Mexico. But they had no money, no food, no warm clothing.

The irrepressible Joann, though impoverished herself, brought the migrant Mexicans home. The family took two blankets off their beds, and the afflicted son gave up his wool coat so each Mexican could wrap himself against the cold.

Joann remembered that her church was holding a fireside service that evening in Fort Smith. She carefully counted out enough quarters to buy gas for the 65-mile round trip. She drove the forlorn four to the Latter Day Saints church, where she found two dozen members still assembled.

Interrupting, she announced that she had four destitute Mexicans who needed help. The church members rustled up more warm clothing and collected enough cash to buy four bus tickets to Dallas, with pocket money for food along the way. The members also put through a call to Dallas and arranged for some Spanish-speaking members to meet the bus.

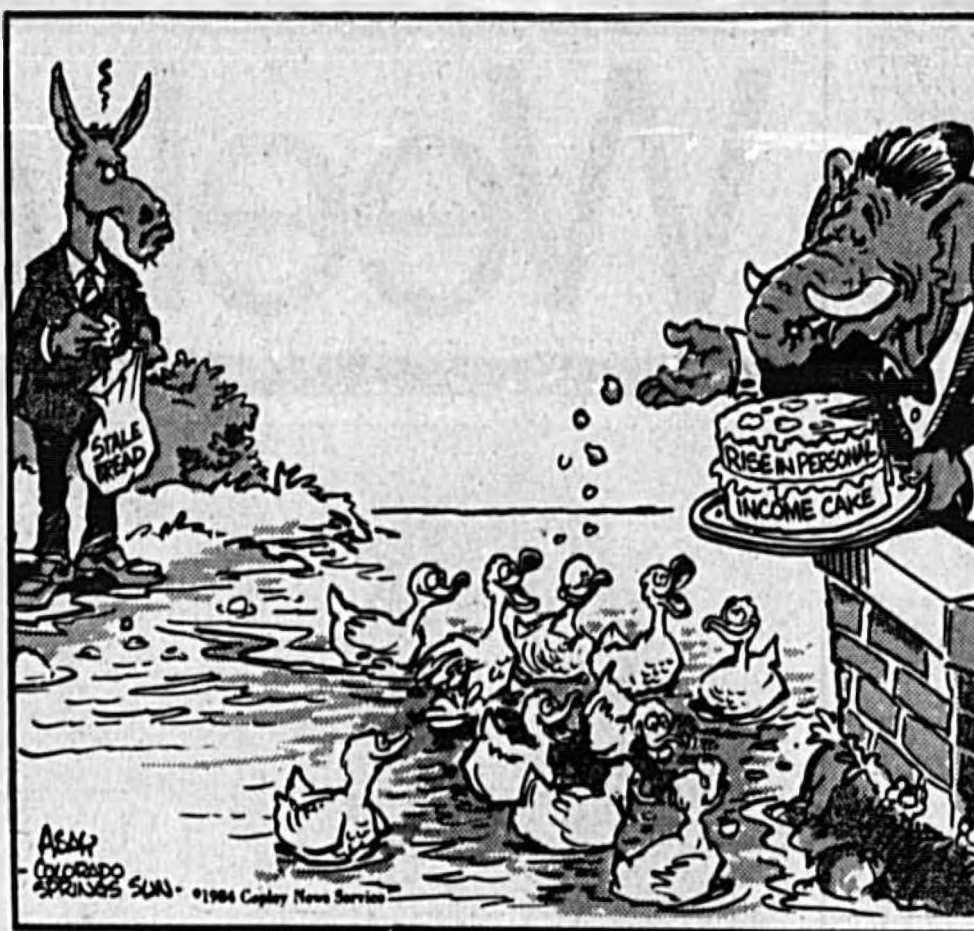

Joann Jones gave her widow's mite expecting nothing in return. I learned about her act of kindness from others. Because she cannot afford a telephone, I reached her at the diner where she now works. She didn't want to talk about her good deed; it didn't seem right, she said. "Charity should be given in secret," she said. "Anyway, it was no big deal. Anyone would have done the same thing."

Footnote: This story could have an even happier ending if something nice were to happen to Joann — something real nice, say, like getting back into a house of her own. I almost know what she would say; she would protest that others are more needy. But I am setting up a building fund for Joann Jones. Donations can be made to the Drew Pearson Foundation, Box 2300, Washington, D.C. 20013.

CRUISE CONUNDRUM: Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., wrote President Reagan a letter pointing out an apparent contradiction in the administration's deployment of cruise missiles in Europe while simultaneously testing the same kind of missiles over Canadian terrain that resembles Eastern Europe. If it needs testing, he pointed out, it shouldn't be deployed.

"Why run the risk of alienating our NATO allies and expending scarce dollars with the deployment of an inadequately tested weapon?" he asked the president, adding: "Surely the U.S.S.R. will not be deterred by an ineffective weapon."

JEFFREY HART

Foreign Policy Issue

With the economy effectively removed as a Reagan vulnerability in the coming election, the Democrats have re-focused on foreign policy, but it is not at all obvious that they will flourish there.

There is a deep isolationist strain in the American character, a let-us-alone attitude, that has its admirable side, but there is not much of a constituency out there for a weak or morally defensive America. Yet virtually all of the Democratic presidential contenders, as well as the most prominent Democratic congressional spokesmen, have sounded weak and morally defensive.

Almost always, they blame President Reagan for U.S.-Soviet tensions. If a prominent Democrat has mentioned the Soviet SS-20 intermediate range missile, now installed in huge numbers in Europe, and designed to intimidate NATO, well, I have not heard it.

When the Soviet Union mounted an international campaign, in coordination with the European peace movement, to block the deployment of the Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe, the Democrats went along with the ploy. Even John Glenn felt constrained to favor delaying the deployment of the cruise missiles — a move that would have convinced dubious European opinion that the United States was not fully committed to NATO.

The Democratic candidates, in differing degrees, move to the left of Reagan on the defense budget. In the past, congressional democrats have agreed upon defense increases of 5-6 percent, still backed by Glenn. But the Democratic-controlled House in its most recent vote approved only a 3 percent increase, and the most leftward Democrats — Hart, Cranston, and McGovern — actually advocate cuts in real expenditure.

The reaction of leading Democrats to the invasion of Grenada tells us something about the growing isolationist mood of the party.

The American medical students there, the native Grenadians, and the other vulnerable mini-states in the area, welcomed the Reagan move. Captured documents indicated that the Cubanization and militarization of the island were moving ahead.

But the spokesmen for the Democratic Party said no. Gary Hart wanted to invoke the War Powers Act. McGovern called it "irresponsible" and Cranston "reckless." House Majority Leader Tip O'Neill called it "gunboat diplomacy." New York Senator Daniel P. Moynihan denounced it. Walter Mondale took refuge in a series of questions that effectively indicated that he would have done no such thing.

Almost to a man, Democratic candidates and spokesmen are opposed to putting pressure on the Nicaraguan junta through aid to the revolutionary movement in the jungle there.

Almost to a man, the Democratic candidates and spokesmen want to separate the presence of Cuban troops in Angola from the question of South African administration of Southwest Africa. This cannot be done, since Savimbi's Angolan guerrillas, with South African backing, are scoring major successes against Angolan and Cuban forces. With the military picture tipping against the Angolan and Cuban Marxists, Pretoria has no incentive to bargain, unless the Cuban presence is on the negotiating table.

One of the most passionate speeches made by Walter Mondale at the Dartmouth candidates' debate was a denunciation of South Africa. He apparently thinks that South Africa is a more serious threat to American well-being than the USSR or Castro.

What the Democratic leadership seems to be saying, again and again, is that no U.S. use of force is tolerable outside of direct assault upon the territory of the United States.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Now It's All Vs. Mondale

MANCHESTER, N.H. (NEA) — Most of the Democratic hopefuls have switched tactics since their televised debate at Dartmouth — and they've done so primarily because of Walter Mondale's lead.

This strategy change is evident in both how and where the candidates are campaigning. The Iowa caucuses will take place a week before New Hampshire's primary, so the candidates should be splitting their time between the two states, perhaps with a slight tilt towards the first contest.

However, for almost a full week in early February, not a single Democratic candidate was seen in Iowa. This was due to the growing belief that Mondale already has won — and won big — in Iowa thanks to his organizational lead and support from big labor.

They won't admit it publicly, but most of the other candidates have written Iowa off. They'll make a few visits there before caucus day, but their interest seems limited to who will come in second — or, to put another way, to whether any of the dark horses can beat the lagging John Glenn for second place.

The strategy also seems to be changing here in New Hampshire. Many of the candidates believe that if any one of them is to overtake Mondale, they'll somehow have to deny him a major win here. Most experts believe that if Mondale can get something approaching 50 percent of the total vote, he will have made such a strong showing that the rest of the primaries will be mere formalities.

Therefore, the campaign has developed into an "everyone vs. Mondale" effort. The other candidates hope that Mondale will have peaked in early February; some of their private polls showed that Mondale had a 45 percent support level around the first of the month, with a very small "undecided" percentage remaining.

According to some strategists, this means that Mondale has nowhere to be but down — and the hope seems to be that there will be some movement away from Mondale in the weeks before the vote. Some private polls already show a very slight movement towards Gary Hart and Jesse Jackson, and Jackson has become something of a sensation here.

Strategists in several camps believe that Hart and Jackson will be able to chip away at Mondale from the left, while Glenn will draw from more conservative Democrats on the right; Askew will gain support from the pro-life Democrats, a significant force in this state. (Cranston and Hollings will have no impact on the outcome.) Should this happen, Mondale may be held to 40 percent or less and at least some of the others will survive into the second round of primaries — the 12 taking place on "Super Tuesday," March 13.

One of the biggest strategy changes seems to have occurred in the Glenn camp. In an acknowledgment that his campaign was flagging badly, Glenn replaced campaign manager William White with Robert Keefe, who had been the campaign's senior political advisor.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Syria Says It Repulsed Two United States Planes

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Syrian air defenses Thursday forced two U.S. warplanes off the Lebanese coast and American warships off the Lebanese coast, Syrian military spokesmen said.

"U.S. forces escalated premeditated aggressive acts against the Lebanese people for the second consecutive day," the spokesman, quoted by state-run Damascus Radio, said.

American warships bombarded "civilian targets in the areas controlled by our forces," the spokesman said. He said the bombardment of the Meta mountains east of Beirut began at 6:50 p.m. (11:50 a.m. EST) and lasted for 55 minutes.

The spokesman said Syrian air defenses drove two American F-14 Tomcat fighter planes back toward the sea prior to the bombardment. He gave no further details except to say that Syria had sustained no losses during the attack.

The Pentagon declined to comment on Syria's claim to have driven off the two American planes.

Israel Hit With Rockets

JERUSALEM (UPI) — For the first time in almost seven months, guerrillas fired rockets across the Lebanese border into Israel, which placed its troops in southern Lebanon on increased alert and warned it would retaliate against such attacks.

The military said Thursday two Soviet-made rockets exploded in Metulla, Israel's northernmost town, digging craters but causing no injuries. It said a third rocket landed north of the border in the Ayoun Valley.

The radio identified the projectiles as 107mm Katyusha rockets, which have a range of 4.8 miles.

The military said it was the first strike against western Galilee from southern Lebanon since July 21, 1983, when Katyushas were fired at Israeli settlements.

Israel radio said it was also the first time Katyushas have landed in Metulla since Israel invaded Lebanon in June 1982 to rid the country of Palestinian guerrillas attacking its northern border.

Cosmonauts Orbit Earth

MOSCOW (UPI) — Three cosmonauts clad in green and red military fatigues orbited the Earth today in their new space home, the Salyut-7 space station, where they found flowers and a letter from the laboratory's former occupants.

"There's so much space here, it's just like a palace in orbit," Commander Leonid Kizim said Thursday as he stepped for the first time into the Salyut-7 orbiting space laboratory that will be home for an indefinite period.

Kizim, a veteran cosmonaut and rookies Vladimir Solovov, an engineer, and Oleg Atkov, a physician, docked at the orbiting research center Thursday after a 26-hour flight in the Salyut T-10 space capsule.

Kissinger: Reagan Should Not Attend The Funeral

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski said today President Reagan should not attend Soviet President Yuri Andropov's funeral but should make clear to the Kremlin that America stands ready to improve relations.

"I do not think Ronald Reagan should go to Moscow six months after the shooting down of the Korean airliner, three months after they walked out of all [arms control] talks," former Secretary of State Kissinger said. "I think it would show an eagerness that would be inappropriate for the occasion."

But Kissinger said, "I think the United States should be very receptive to a peace offensive," that could come from a new Soviet leader.

Brzezinski, who was national security adviser to Jimmy Carter, said that Reagan should not attend Andropov's funeral, but that either Vice President George Bush or Secretary of State George Shultz should go and use the occasion to signal "some initiative from us ... careful, prudent probes ... sober conversation with them. And I would suggest to them that the time has come for a top-level dialogue."

Both officials predicted the Kremlin will name a successor to Andropov quickly.

But Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., a Democratic presidential candidate, told CBS News. "I think the president should take this opportunity to attend those services for Andropov in Moscow and talk with the Soviet leadership there and make them know we are ready to discuss both arms control and peace in the Middle East."

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also said Reagan should not attend Andropov's funeral.

"If it's clear that there may be a possibility of having constructive talks, there ought to be a substantive group that goes over there. Otherwise it can be ceremonial. I wouldn't think the president should go at this stage."

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., among the last American officials to see Andropov, said the United States should "keep a steady hand" and take care not to alarm the Soviets at this time.

Pell, ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that Andropov's death gives the Reagan administration a chance to demonstrate whether its toned-down rhetoric means a real change in attitude.

Somber Mood Behind Iron Curtain

By United Press International

World leaders expressed condolences and regret today at Soviet leader Yuri Andropov's death, with the Japanese saying they doubted Soviet foreign policy would change but with Israel hoping his successor would be more positive on Middle East issues.

China, Moscow's giant neighbor and ideological rival, reported the death but made no comment.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, one of the last world leaders to meet with Andropov before he dropped from public view Aug. 18, described his July talks with Andropov as constructive and said he would attend the funeral in Moscow.

Kohl's comments were in a cable to Nikolai A. Tikhonov, chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office said she learned "with regret" of Andropov's death Thursday.

A statement from her 10 Downing St. said, although Andropov led the Soviet Union for a relatively short time, "His loss will be widely felt."

Israel, however, said the Soviet leader failed to improve Israeli-Soviet ties and hoped his successor would play a more positive Middle East role.

"During Andropov's time, there wasn't any progress in the Israel-U.S.S.R. relationship," Foreign Ministry spokesman Avi Pazner said.

Then it abruptly broke off the newscast and played somber music.

Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu, informed of the death while at Athens Airport waiting for French President Francois Mitterrand, said, "Andropov was reasonable and consistent and would have been able to do a lot more if he had had more time."

China's official Xinhua News Agency reported Andropov's death about one hour after it was announced by Soviet officials, quoting the Soviet announcement and giving only a few biographical details in a five-paragraph report.

Western diplomats predicted the death would have little immediate effect on strained Chinese-Soviet relations.

Era Of U.S.-Soviet Testing Seen

By Jim Anderson
United Press International

The death of Yuri Andropov ends one period of drift and uncertainty in U.S.-Soviet relations and begins a time of mutual testing and experimentation.

The surprising and encouraging element of the relations between the two world giants is that the system of communications between them has proved remarkably stable and durable despite periods of crisis and darkness.

But the new period of probing the political unknown in the Soviet Union will coincide with a time of uncertainty and distraction in the United States — the 1984 presidential elections.

The non-appearance of Andropov for nearly six months was unprecedented, although Soviet officials insisted he merely was suffering from "a cold" and still was very much in charge.

But there was increasing evidence, beginning with the shooting down of the Korean airliner on Sept. 1 and its aftermath, that Andropov was out of touch with daily events and the Soviet military leadership was exercising a major role not only in carrying out Soviet policy — but creating it.

Western analysts believe the Soviet Union has evolved in the past five years — for various reasons — into a form of collective leadership.

Beginning with Leonid Brezhnev's long, terminal illness and continuing through Andropov's term as general secretary, the Politburo continued to operate. The only observable change was the emergence of the military, but some Westerners feel that was a predictable reaction to the more militant line taken by the Reagan administration in Washington.

To the extent the Soviet leadership is collective, the physical death of Andropov makes little difference.

Americans Evacuated

Israeli Warplanes Bomb Palestinian Targets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli warplanes bombed suspected Palestinian guerrilla targets east of Beirut today and the United States evacuated American civilians and embassy employees from the embattled capital.

Even as the American evacuation was underway, Moslem rebels skirmished with Lebanese army troops along the "green line" that divides Moslem-held West Beirut from the Christian east.

A U.S. Marine CH-46 Sea Knight helicopter lifted off from a waterfront road near the U.S. Embassy in early afternoon with the first 10 American citizens donning helmets and life preservers for the brief flight to ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet waiting offshore.

While the first helicopter skimmed above the Mediterranean to the ships, the rest of the approximately 100 U.S. citizens waited in groups for more helicopters.

The evacuation of American civilians began a few hours after British citizens began withdrawing along the same coastal road.

Lebanese military sources and radio reports said at least 10 Israeli jets were involved in the mid-morning air strikes on an area around Bhamdoun, a Palestinian stronghold 12 miles east of Beirut in the heart of the Druze Moslem-held Metn mountains.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli military command claimed the jets scored accurate hits on "terrorist headquarters" used for guerrilla operations. It said the planes returned safely to base.

Reports said two buildings and artillery pieces near the stadium in Bhamdoun were hit.

There were no reports of casualties in the raid, which came a day after a sniping attack on Israeli troops in southern Lebanon and the firing of two rockets across the Lebanese border into northern Israel. There were no injuries or damage reported in those attacks.

Druze radio said the jets were driven off by intense anti-aircraft fire but it claimed no hits.

In Washington, State Department officials today announced a further reduction in the staff of the U.S. Embassy and offered to evacuate any American civilians who wanted to leave.

"Because of the unsettled conditions in Lebanon, the United States Embassy is further reducing its staff and advises that it is prepared to facilitate the departure of any of its citizens who wish to leave Lebanon at this time," spokesman Brian Carlson said.

He said U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew and "essential staff" would remain and the embassy would stay open for "essential functions."

Crew Ready; Weather Looks Good For Shuttle Landing

By AL Rossiter Jr.
UPI Science Editor

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The shuttle skipper, both disappointed and elated after a week in orbit, said today his crew is ready and forecasters said the weather should be good for the first dawn descent to Florida Saturday.

Maj. Donald Greene, Air Force forecaster for the spaceport, said there is an 80 percent probability that conditions will be acceptable for the first landing of a ship from orbit on the Cape's 3-mile-long runway.

"In summary, we're quite optimistic for a Kennedy Space Center landing tomorrow," Greene said. "We're going to have partly cloudy skies, good visibilities and winds should be out of the southeast at around 5 knots."

Challenger is scheduled to land from the north at 7:16 a.m. EST, 13 minutes after sunrise.

"I am fairly confident that we are going to come in there tomorrow," said flight director Gary Coen.

Mission commander Vance Brand said the eight-day, 3.2-million-mile mission has cleared the way for April's attempt to capture a broken sun-watching satellite, but said he and his crewmen were upset about the twin failures of the two communications satellites they launched.

"The major disappointment is the fact that although they were deployed OK, the satellites did not get into orbit," he said in a news conference with reporters in Houston. "That was what I'd call an extreme disappointment."

"I think we feel there has been some adversity but a lot has been accomplished," Brand said. "We accomplished what was needed to be accomplished to set the next mission into motion for satellite repair."

Asked to comment on what he saw and felt during the historic flights beyond the safety of the shuttle, Stewart said:

"I guess my impressions were of the immensity of the entire universe and looking around here just seeing the circle of the Earth, the horizon, thinking what a beautiful Earth, what a beautiful flying machine, what a lovely MMU."

...EDB Ban Won't Bother Local Growers

good job, but it's a little bit expensive so when possible we used other materials that were less expensive."

Tyre said EDB is very effective against the root knot nematode.

Tyre, who is a member of the advisory committee to the Seminole County Commission and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Agricultural Committee, said the ban would cause more of a problem for citrus growers.

EDB, ethylene dibromide, was developed in 1948 as a no-knock additive for leaded gasoline and a decade ago emerged as a miracle ingredient in 200 pesticides for fruits, nuts and vegetables and a general-use spray for grain and flour mill machinery.

Traces have been detected in groundwater and the food supplies of 20 states and scientists have identified it as one of the most potent carcinogens in experiments on laboratory rats fed excessive amounts of the substance.

Bobby McKown, executive vice president of Florida Citrus Mutual, said his group is looking for alternative methods to fumigate fruit but needs to keep using EDB until it finds one to keep from losing Japanese trade revenues.

"We are not dilly-dallying around," he told United Press International. "We are firmly committed to finding alternatives because we are looking down the throat of a Sept. 1 cutoff. We are not taking this lightly."

Because of the sudden concern over

EDB, all the states recently dropped that requirement. But Japan, which pays Florida growers $112 million for grapefruit, continues to insist on its use.

"We're hopeful that an integrated pest management program using a number of methods will be allowed," McKown said.

In Washington, Agriculture Secretary John Block told reporters Tuesday his greatest concern over a full EDB ban is its potential impact on citrus imports from Mexico and the Caribbean at a time the Reagan administration is trying to remove trading impediments.

Block said a ban would be a "tremendous imposition" on these nations. He said that while there are fumigants they might be able to use rather than EDB, "the information I have is that none of them are very good."

"It's kind of unfortunate that the whole issue reached such a state of hysteria," he said, predicting it will settle down.

EDB was introduced into the agricultural industry in the 1970s as a substitute for the hazardous fumigant DBCP, banned when workers in Colorado, California and other states became sterile.

"By every medical standard, a bad product was replaced with a product that was much worse," said Marvin LeGator, a University of Texas-Galveston professor who is considered a leading authority on environmental toxicology.

"It's a disgraceful story. Somebody should have stopped the process before the damage was done."

Wholesale Prices Up In January: Optimism Holds

By Denis G. Guilno

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices jumped 0.6 percent in January, the most in more than a year, because severe winter weather damaged fresh produce and hindered food deliveries, the Labor Department said today.

The first government inflation index of the year likely would have gone up even more if it had reflected the full extent of January price increases for heating oil, private analysts said.

Instead, the index captured mostly late December price breaks for gasoline and heating oil that pulled the overall January energy index down 1.2 percent to cancel some of the effects of more expensive food.

A different data collection system used for the Consumer Price Index is expected to send the index up sharply when it is next reported on Feb. 24, a suggestion that 1983's moderate record of price increases cannot be taken for granted this year. The wholesale price index went up only 0.6 percent all of last year — a 19-year low.

The January increase in the index of prices businesses pay each other was up more than any single month last year and equalled the increase for November 1982.

The overall index for food prices was up a strong 2.7 percent and even then did not reflect any Florida citrus prices. The Florida Citrus Commission had shut down shipments during the survey period to prevent any damaged fruits from being sent out of the state.

The increase for foods ready to be sold to consumers was up the most since August 1980.

The weather also was a factor in sending pork prices up 9.2 percent.

Prices for beef and chicken also went up but not by as much as in December.

The measure of fuel prices showed its sixth decline in the last seven months although natural gas prices were higher. The index gathers energy prices with a month's delay.

The producer price index for January was 289.4, equivalent to a price of $2,894 for goods for which business paid $1,000 in 1967.

Outside of the food and energy categories prices were up for tobacco products, magazines, alcoholic beverages, tires, electric lights, curtains, automobiles and boats, the department said.

But nearly balancing those increases were price declines for clothing, mobile homes, sporting goods, jewelry and soap.

The index for factory equipment, including machinery, tools and trucks, was up only 0.1 percent, less than December's 0.2 percent increase.

Raw materials prices, the part of the index most sensitive to demand in the economy, went up 0.7 percent, less than December's 1 percent.

The projections for inflation by most leading forecasters see only modest acceleration for all of 1984. However, factors like weather damage and the possibility of interruptions in the oil supply cannot be included in such projections.

In addition, officials of the Federal Reserve have warned that industry is within a few months of hitting some road blocks in capacity and may be unable to supply the demand of a continuing recovery without some price increases.

Nevertheless, optimism about inflation at both the wholesale and retail level still dominates the inflation outlook inside and outside government.

Gardening

It's Not Too Late To Plant Trees For A Cool, Shady Summer

There are over 50 different species of trees growing in our area. About half of these are suitable for shade in the home landscape. If you don't have your fair share, it's not too late to plant some now. Some varieties of trees take a lifetime to develop a canopy, others may develop in five to 10 years — enough so you won't need to keep moving your lawn chair around to keep the hot summer sun off your tender skin. Keep in mind, though, when you plant a shade tree, usually you're providing shade for the next generation of kids. Properly placed shade trees in your landscape will enhance the monetary value of your property, too.

Some of the more desirable broadleaf evergreen trees include, Cherry Laurel, Live Oak, Laurel Oak and Southern Magnolia. For energy-conserving deciduous trees (these drop their leaves in the winter to let the sun warm your home), plant Red Maple, Tulip Poplar, Rosewood, Sweetgum or Sycamore.

Most of these trees can be purchased already started in containers at your favorite nursery or garden center. A little extra care and preparation for planting your tree will definitely be a plus for future growth. Start by digging a hole at least a foot wider and deeper than the size of the container in which the tree is growing. If the soil you remove from the hole is very poor, discard it and locate some good topsoil to backfill the hole. Mix the planting soil half and half with compost or peat moss. Then, shovel a foot of the prepared soil mix into the hole then carefully remove the tree and ball of soil from the container. Discard the container and set the tree in the planting hole so it will continue growing at its original growing depth, or slightly higher. Add more soil around the root ball tamping and watering until the hole is filled.

In sandy, well-drained soils, leave a saucer-like depression around the base of the tree to make future watering easier. Two inches of mulch, such as wood chips, or pine straw, around the base of the tree will keep the grass away. Water your tree at least once a week after the initial application for the first year. For sandy soils, water a little more often. Be sure to apply it slowly and deeply, shallow watering encourages shallow rooting.

If your new tree is planted in an exposed area, you may want to stake it with a couple of 2x2 wood stakes driven two to three feet into the ground. Then tie the trunk to the stakes with wire strung through cut sections of old garden hose. Usually no pruning is needed for the first couple of years. Do remove the plant label attached to the tree to prevent accidental girdling.

Crabgrass, the bane of Florida lawns, generally moves (along with many other weeds) in turf areas weakened or destroyed by insects or disease. The freeze took care of most of the live crabgrass and this is a good time to rake out the brown remains. Bahia lawns attacked by mole crickets, and St. Augustine turf destroyed by Brown Patch, chinch bugs or nematodes are especially susceptible to intrusion of weeds.

If little turf grass remains it is best to re-seed the problem areas. Application of a pre-emergence crabgrass killer may help salvageable turf. The use of "weed and feed" fertilizers generally will kill growing crabgrass and other broadleaf weeds in the lawn. Use caution to avoid flower beds. Always follow instructions for application shown on the container. Generally, our lawn grasses begin active growth when the night temperatures get into the 60s. This year it may be early March, considering the freeze damage and cold nights we've been experiencing.

Is your grocery bill getting too high for your pocket book? You can lower it by investing in a few packets of vegetable seed or even started plants from the garden center. If you're new at this game, start small, so it won't overwhelm or discourage you. A small plot of ground near your kitchen door or containers that will hold soil can provide almost a year-around supply of fresh produce.

Sure, it may take a little care and effort on your part to get started and keep it going. But, it is one of the most relaxing, pleasurable and profitable hobbies. It soothes the soul.

Start with one or two tomato plants if you're a real novice or even cherry tomatoes in a hanging basket on your patio — you never know, you may become a real urban farmer! Now is the time to get started with most of your spring vegetables. Some, such as tomatoes, are susceptible to frost damage and should be planted after the danger of frost has passed — possibly by the first week in March.

If you are sincerely interested in starting a vegetable garden, call or stop at the Agricultural Center in Sanford, for a copy of Circular 104, "Vegetable Gardening Guide." This will get you started in the right direction.

Happy gardening.

Mr. Legs Contest Sparks BSP Valentine Ball

In addition to the crowning of the Valentine Queen, Mr. Legs will also be crowned at the Beta Sigma Phi Valentine Charity Ball Saturday at the Sanford Civic Center, beginning at 9 p.m. Over 25 area men are showing their legs in the second annual contest for charity. Ball patrons will vote

Husband Prescribes Female Dr. For Wife

DEAR ABBY: I am 38 and my wife is 37. We've been married for 18 years and I love her with all my heart. So here's the problem: It bothers me that she goes to a male doctor. I have asked her to find a woman doctor, but she says she likes her doctor and doesn't want to change.

I can't stop thinking about the fact that another man sees my wife's body, and it's tearing me up inside. I know it sounds sick, but I can't help it. We have two children, and I don't know how I ever got through it. I try to hide my feelings, but I always end up hurting her.

I can't for the life of me understand why a woman would want to go to a man doctor. I would never have a woman for my doctor. Never!

Help me deal with this, Abby.

Dear Abby

UPSET IN BALTIMORE

DEAR UPSET: Pity you would never have a woman doctor because one examination by a competent female physician would convince you that her interest in your body is strictly professional.

I assure you, your wife's physician gets about as "turned on" looking at your wife's body as an automobile mechanic looking for a leak in the radiator. If you can't overcome this hang-up without professional help, I advise you to get it.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this away thinking it's from some foolish little girl because I'm 22 and consider this a serious problem. My boyfriend is a Seventh-Day Adventist and he says his religion doesn't approve of jewelry of any kind, so I shouldn't expect a wedding ring!

Maybe I'm silly, but I can't imagine being married without one. Does it say somewhere in the Bible that wedding rings are a sin? I know I won't die without one, but all my married friends have wedding bands, and I won't feel really married without one.

WANTS A RING
DEAR WANTS: It's true, there is no "wedding ring" in the marriage ceremony of Seventh-Day Adventists.

The church frowns on jewelry, but some members do not consider the wedding band "jewelry," and after they are married they wear them on their own. It is not a sin.

You are apparently not a Seventh-Day Adventist, so I advise you to talk to a local pastor of the church and ask for some educational material about what is expected of members.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old single female and also an agent with a large insurance company. I am in a predicament facing many single women my age.

My boyfriend and I live together, and because of a previous bad marriage (mine), we have decided not to include marriage in our future. However, we would like to have children. I'm afraid that my company would frown upon motherhood without marriage, but I feel I am within my rights to have a child if it will be brought up in a stable, loving home. We've considered saying we are married to ensure company approval, but we prefer to be honest.

If we choose to have a family, can I be legally terminated for this reason? I can't afford to jeopardize my career. I am paid strictly on a commission basis and nowhere in my contract is anything concerning this matter mentioned.

NAMELESS, OF COURSE

DEAR NAMELESS: If you want to know your legal rights, consult an attorney, and/or the women's rights advocate in your area. But if you can't afford to jeopardize your career, I advise you to live according to society's prevailing rules and get married before having a family.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stan-ped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

LBHS Senior State Junior Miss Finalist

Shana Fruman

Shana Rochelle Fruman, a Lake Brantley High School senior, won the title of Seminole County's "Junior Miss" in a contest held Nov. 12, 1983, at Lake Mary High School.

The contest, a preliminary to the American Junior Miss Program, was sponsored by the Altamonte South Seminole Women Jaycees. It is sponsored nationally by major businesses with more than $100,000 awarded in scholarships.

Shana participated in the state Junior Miss program in Pensacola Saturday where she was selected the second runner-up and she also won a scholarship.

Shana is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marshall Fruman of Longwood. A member of the national Honor Society, Shana is a straight A student whose interests include membership in the Junior Classical League, captain of the varsity cheerleaders and she is on the gymnastics team. She also attends jazz, tap, ballet and voice classes, plays the piano and flute and is interested in drama.

Grey Turns Red-Hot As Seminoles Crunch Patriots

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Three years ago, Crooms High had a little guard that used to shoot the eyes out of the basket. He teamed with Willie Mitchell, William Wynn, Steve Alexander and the rest of his now senior teammates to help Crooms to a championship season.

Since then, however, the eyes haven't been so good for Steve Grey, still a little guard who specialized more in defense and ballhandling the past two years for the Seminoles.

That may all have changed after Thursday, though. Grey, who took over at point guard a few games back, fired in 5 of 6 field goals — all medium-range jumpers — to help the Tribe smother Lake Brantley, 83-57, at Lake Brantley High School in Five Star Conference basketball.

"Steve has always had the talent," said Tribe coach Chris Marlette. "But I think confidence has been a factor the past two years. He just played super tonight."

If confidence was the missing factor, the Tribe could have that much-needed outside threat which has been inconsistent all year. "Steve has been playing real well in practice," said Marlette. "Tonight he concentrated on taking good, percentage shots."

Which computes to 15 footers. Grey hit 4 of 4 in the first half as the Noles, 16-9, finally pulled away from a pesky Brantley bunch in the closing minutes.

The Patriots, 7-17, had played heady ball in the first quarter to salvage a 14-14 stand-out. Austin Hodges, in particular, boxed out well and controlled the defensive boards with five rebounds. Hodges and Dennis Groseclose accounted for most of the Patriot scoring until Seminoles applied some full-court pressure to rattle the Pats.

"We were right with them in the first quarter," said Patriot coach Bob Peterson. "Then the wheels came off. Their press knocked our timing out of whack. That's about the first time all year a press has really bothered us."

With Jimmy Gilchrist clearing the glass, the Tribe unleashed a torrid running game which has been under wraps since the Kingdom of the Sun Tournament. Willie Mitchell, Gilchrist and Kenny Gordon joined Grey in a scoring explosion which put Tribe up, 41-24, at halftime.

The second half was showtime as both coaches cleared their benches and everybody got into the act. Gilchrist finished with 15 points and nine boards. Mitchell had 17 and eight. Gordon (13), James Rouse (12) and Grey (10) were also in double figures. Todd Hill tossed in 11 for the Pats.

SEMINOLE (83): Mitchell 17, Gilchrist 15, Grey 10, Rouse 10, Gordon 12, Hill 11, Courtney 8, Alexander 3, Robinson 4, Brooks 8. Totals 30 23 38 82.

LAKE BRANTLEY (57): Groseclose 6, Hodges 9, Trombo 9, Black 2, Brown 2, Hill 11, Courtney 8, Evans 2, Frakes 9, Brantley 2. Totals 25 12 57.

Halftime — Seminole 41, Lake Brantley 24. Fouls — Seminole 12, Lake Brantley 26. Fouled out — Hill.

Seminole JV.....69
Lake Brantley JV.....54

In the junior varsity game, Daryl Williams, who will join the varsity next Tuesday, scored 17 points and handed out nine assists as the Seminoles rolled over Lake Brantley, 69-54. It was their fifth win in the last six games.

Dexter Franklin had eight assists.

Lake Mary.....72
Wymore Tech.....59

In other county basketball Thursday, Darryl Merthie poured in 23 points as the Lake Mary team broke a 31-31 halftime deadlock in trip Wymore Tech, 72-59, at Orlando.

Merthie received solid scoring help from guard Fred Miller with 17 points.

LAKE MARY (72): Merthie 25, Miller 17, Dumb...

WYMORE TECH (59): Johnson 8, Sparks 8, Manual 12, Mobley 18, Alexander 6, Laury 6. Totals 23 39. Halftime — 31-31. Fouls — Lake Mary 16, Wymore 21. Fouled out — Manual. Technicals — none.

Unroe: A Player Of Many Moves

How many of you know Allen Unroe?

It shouldn't ring too many bells, unless you're a pretty avid basketball fan. And then, you'd have to get around. Because Unroe does get around.

If you want a critique of the Lake Brantley, Lyman and Oviedo basketball programs — Allen is your man. Tonight at 8, Unroe will make his debut for the Oviedo Lions against Osceola at Kissimmee.

Unroe, a 6-3 forward-center, is playing for his third school in the past two years. A year ago, he was a standout performer on the Lake Brantley freshman team.

Then, he and the family moved, unknowingly, to the Lyman district. "He came up to me and said he moved," said Lake Brantley coach Bob Peterson. "When I found out where...I was sick."

So Unroe took his cage talents off to Lyman this past September. He was a key member of coach Norman Ready's junior varsity — scoring 30 points one game — and earning a varsity promotion later in the year.

About two weeks ago, the Unroe family moved to Winter Springs and Allen packed his basketball bag again. "I was happy to see him," said Oviedo coach Dale Phillips. "He looked great in practice and we can sure use him."

Oviedo's basketball team could take on an interesting new look if the hardship of Orlando Cepeda Jr. is approved Saturday. The son of the ex-major league slugger is living with the Bill McCartney family, but hasn't been at the residence for a year. The word is Cepeda is "as good as anyone in the county," according to one insider.

A hardship waiver earlier this year was denied by the Florida High Activities Association Board.

In other action tonight, Seminole takes on Stuart Martin County at home. Lake Mary entertains Apopka. Lyman hosts DeLand and Lake Howell puts the welcome mat out for Seabreeze.

In girls games, Seminole is at Lake Brantley, Apopka goes to Lake Mary and Lyman hosts DeLand.

The county wrestlers begin the District 4A-9 Tournament at Apopka while the county track and field performers go to Winter Park's Hi-Y Games Saturday.

Chad Braden, Seminole right-hander, blanked the Oviedo Lions in his first varsity starting assignment Thursday, allowing just four hits in going the distance. Seminole moves into the championship game Saturday against Lake Mary or Lake Howell.

Braden's Clutch Effort Shuts Down Lions, 3-0

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

The 1983 prep baseball season may be getting underway a little early, but for Seminole High pitcher Chad Braden, it definitely started at the right time. Braden, a junior varsity pitcher last year, not only picked up a victory, but hurled a four-hit shutout in his first varsity start.

Seminole erupted for three runs in the top of the first inning and rode the strong right arm of Braden to a 3-0 blanking of Oviedo's Lions Thursday in the opening game of the Seminole County Preseason Tournament at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

The Tribe advances to Saturday's championship against the winner of today's game between Lake Mary's Rams and Lake Howell's Silver Hawks. Today's game starts at 3:30 p.m. The loser of today's game will meet Oviedo in the consolation game Saturday at 1 p.m. with the championship to follow.

"He (Braden) was a little shaky in the first four innings, but he pitched extremely well in the clutch," Seminole coach Bobby Lundquist said. "Chad's pitching definitely won the game for us. Our hitting has to improve though, we hit like we're capable of in the first inning, but didn't do anything after that."

Seminole jumped on Oviedo sophomore starter Craig Duncan for three runs in the top of the first inning. Kevin Smith drove the first run home with a solid single up the middle and, with runners on first and second, Duncan balked, sending the runners to second and third. William Wynn then followed by slapping a two-run single for a 3-0 Seminole lead.

Oviedo got its first two batters on in the bottom of the first as Tony Belflower drew a walk to lead off and Dave Wood followed by drilling a single to left. Jeff Greene then popped out for the first out and Braden then struck out Mark Hofmann and Larry Grayson to end the inning.

After Duncan's roughing up in the first, southpaw Kevin Kewley took the mound for the Lions in the second. Kewley set the Seminoles down in order in the second and the Tribe got just three baserunners the rest of the way.

Oviedo came up empty after another scoring opportunity in the bottom of the second. Lester Cabrera led off with a double to right center and moved to third on a wild pitch. Braden, though, came through in the clutch again as he struck out the next three hitters in order.

The Lions led another golden opportunity slip away in the third. Belflower led off by drilling a grounder to third, but Tony Cox's throw sailed over the first baseman's head and Belflower wound up at second. Wood then drew a walk to put runners on first and second and Greene followed with a check swing grounder that was headed up the middle.

However, Seminole shortstop Brian Rogers went into the hole and gloved Greene's grounder and stepped on second for the force out. Rogers' defensive gem was all Braden needed to get out of the inning as he struck out Hofmann and Grayson again to end the Lions' threat.

Oviedo got its first two runners on in the bottom of the fourth, but again came away empty. Cabrera led off with a single and Pat McCartney reached on catcher's interference. Braden then caught John Lowrie looking at a third strike for the first out and followed by striking out Kewley. Belflower popped up to second for the final out of the inning.

Braden set the Lions down in order in the sixth and allowed only a two-out walk in the seventh. The big righthander struck out nine for the game and walked just three.

Kewley pitched four and one-third scoreless frames for the Lions while Jim Barrett came in and shut down the Seminoles in the last two innings.

Lady Patriots Try To Kick Losing Habit To Lyman

By Lou Stefano
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Brantley, using a pressure offense in the second half, moved into the finals of the District 3 tournament with a 3-0 victory over Lake Mary at Lake Mary High School. The Lady Patriots will face undefeated Lyman, a 6-1 winner over Trinity Prep, Saturday at 1 p.m. for the right to move into the regional tournament.

"We just had a very good second half," said Brantley coach Nancy Jay. "We got a couple forwards to go forward with the ball instead of pulling back. We made some adjustments — got some speed on the front line, and we're there."

Kristen Payne scored the first Patriot goal with eight minutes gone in the game when she knocked a rebound past Lake Mary goalie Debbie Howell for the score. "We gave them a mistake goal and it kind of took the air out of the ball for us," said Lake Mary coach Bill Eissele, about his 5-12 club.

After the goal, the game turned into a defensive struggle as both teams tried to push the ball down field. Lake Mary's Kristen Jones blazed past the Lake Brantley fullbacks a couple times but could not drive home a score.

Brantley came close to scoring at the 22:00 minute mark when sophomore Pam Anderson hammered a shot that would have been an easy score had not Howell dove and blocked the shot out of bounds. "Debbie played outstanding tonight," Eissele said. "She's played well for us all year."

Not three minutes later, the Pats missed another goal opportunity when a shot in close hit the goal post and bounded off.

Both teams exhibited good passing throughout the game. Lake Mary's Vicki Warner hit a nice cross field shot from the right corner to the middle of the field but she couldn't get any support and the opportunity went for naught.

Behind 1-0 at the half, Lake Mary came out fired up after getting read the riot act by Eissele. The Rams had the first three shots on goal in the second half but came up empty each time. Jones came close to scoring with nine minutes gone in the half but a good save by Brantley goalie Donnette Rowland, just a freshman, kept the Rams off the board.

At the 3:02 mark an obstruction called against Lake Mary in front of their own goal gave the Pats the ball three feet from the goal. Anderson seized the opportunity by touch passing to Jennifer Joseph who kicked the ball over the defensive wall.

Down 2-0, Eissele had to pull his goalie out of goal but that couldn't muster the offense needed.

Chris Lieretz scored Brantley's last goal with just 47 seconds left in the game to ice the victory.

For Lake Brantley, 13-3, it's on to the team that has handed them the only three losses this year. Jay for one is looking forward to it.

"It'll be a grudge match, sure, no team wants to lose," she said. "I'm good friends with their coach (Cathie Well) and most of my players know their players. It's always fun to play them."

It's also fun to win and Jay has a strategy to try and do just that. "Our main objective is to try to frustrate because they have such a strong team. We'll do that with our defense."

That strong team, Lyman, beat up on out-of-manned Trinity Prep, 6-1. For the Saints, it was a better outing than the last time they played the Greyhounds. That time, last month, they lost 7-0.

Lyman, 18-0, was led by Alyson Barnes who had three goals in the game. According to Barnes, the three-goal effort was uncommon for her but her team's success was not.

"It feels good to be undefeated," she said. "We just have to play like we aren't. There's a lot of pressure because we are favored in every tournament so we just have to live up to our record."

Stacey Roy, Karen Abernethy and Dawn Boyesen chipped in with goals to further prove Lyman's dominance.

For Well, being 18-0 is as much a burden as a joy. Prior to Thursday's game, she was concerned about her team. She emphasized that the tournaments are a new season and anything can happen. Even with the win, the pressure is still on.

"Every game is a challenge," Well said. "Every game we have to keep playing better and better. The competition is always there. It is always stiff; it's not gonna stop."

Especially not Lake Brantley, which is one win away from something that is bigger than the district championship: beating Lyman.

'No-Hoper' Draws Attention As Winds Blow Away Downhill

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (UPI) — One of the coaches with the Italian team had just returned from the top of Bjelasnica Mountain, using the chair lift instead of his skis to make the trip down because the wind and visibility were so bad at the summit that the men's downhill had to be cancelled for the day, when Lamine Gueye asked him how it was up there.

"It's just like hell, only colder," the Italian told him. "It's so windy, you can get blown away up there."

Gueye, the only Olympic black skier here, the only one anywhere in the world for that matter, frowned.

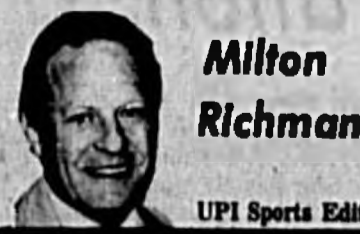

With the snow starting to fall, and the fog getting thicker by the minute, he saw how quickly they were producing a whitout, an atmospheric condition especially treacherous for skiers because it makes it impossible for them to see or judge any objects in front or in back of them or on either side.

"It's crazy," said Gueye, the snow powdering his dark, tight curly hair like so much granulated sugar. "With this kind of weather, we might not even be able to go tomorrow."

Not that Lamine Gueye really has anything to worry about if there should be a postponement as there was Thursday when winds blasting away at 81 miles per hour made the starting point seem as if it were in the teeth of a hurricane.

The 6-foot-2, 202-pound Gueye is what the skiing people call a no-hoper. That means he has absolutely no hope of winning the men's downhill, or any other competitive race on the regular circuit, no matter what day they run it.

Milton Richman
UPI Sports Editor

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday or Washington's Birthday. Still, he's drawing tremendous attention from both the media and the spectators.

The reason is fairly obvious. You don't see too many black skiers from Senegal, West Africa, who are fashion models and do some acting and interpretive dancing also. You don't ever see an Olympic skier from Africa, period. Gueye is the first one.

"Where can a black man ski in Africa?" asked Gueye, who first learned how in Switzerland when he was sent to boarding school there at the age of nine. "There's no place that I know of, so you've got to go elsewhere, and that's what I did."

Another reason Gueye is getting so much of a play here is that his personality isn't entirely unlike Muhammad Ali's. He likes to talk, and does so fluently in French and English. He also bears more than some slight resemblance to the former world heavyweight champ.

"I admire him very much," Gueye said. "He was a great boxer and a great showman. I've never met him, but I'd certainly like to. I've done some acting and when they were going to make a picture about Ali, I was considered to play him in the movie. Nothing came of it, though."

Gueye has been skiing on the regular circuit only four years and, in a way, it's rather remarkable how he got to be Senegal's lone representative in the Winter Olympics. Senegal never had taken part in the Winter Games before. But a few years ago, Gueye went to the Senegalese president and talked him into establishing the country's first ski federation. The resourceful Gueye then got himself appointed president of the federation. Not only does he head the group, but he is its only member and competitor.

All still has the gold medal he won in the 1960 Olympics in Rome, but Gueye has no illusions whatsoever about his chances of taking home any kind of medal in Sarajevo. He knows his limitations. When someone asked him if he felt he had even an outside chance of winning anything here, he only laughed.

Raider Renaissance

Fast Start Prompts Pantelias Enthusiasm For '84 Season

By Lou Stefano
Herald Sports Writer

The weather might still be cold but it's baseball time at Seminole Community College. And that means head coach Jack Pantelias is back, ripping grounders to his infielders and nagging at his pitchers to keep the ball down.

The season is only a week old, but the Raiders are well on their way to improving on last season's subpar record of 21-23. They have a 3-1 record, having split with St. Petersburg Junior College (4-5, 17-7) and whipped South Florida Junior College (5-2) and state power Indian River (5-3).

The infield is anchored by sophomores Tim Sims at shortstop, Eddie Looper at second base, and Tom Veazey at first. Sims and Looper hail from Brooksville, Hernando where Pantelias has drawn a lot of talent from in past years.

"In the early years I had at least one guy from Brooksville and word got around about the program here at Seminole," said Pantelias. "Sims is a complete player and Looper is outstanding. We'll also have Mike Sawyer (Lyman) sharing first base with Veazey," he added.

Third base will be handled by part of Seminole's Canada connection. John Bell, just a freshman is down in the Sunshine State from Canada and will man the hot corner. The Raider have three players from Canada on their roster.

Pantelias explains, "A couple of years ago I had some kids from Canada down here and they were so impressed with the job we do at Seminole that they recommended the school to their friends back home."

Jack Smith, a utility infielder from Tavares, will handle the utility infielder's job, spelling the starters. He jacked a homer in Wednesday's big win over Indian River. Ovidio's Brett Thayer, the top hitter in the county last year with a .449 average, is backing up at second base and designated hitter.

Daryl Badger and another Brooksville native, John Ed Hull, will be part of an outfield that according to Pantelias is loaded with talent. "We've got 4 or 5 outstanding outfielders so we'll have to do some rotating out there," he said. Sanford's Alton Davis, who Pantelias said is finally fully recovered from an leg injury two years ago, had a double Wednesday and solidifies an already strong outfield.

Ed Connelly from Edgewater and Winter Park's Mike Conway will share the catching duties. They'll be in charge of a pitching staff that Pantelias characterizes as "...kind of weak and inexperienced." DeLand's Ron Harris and Todd Abernethy lend more strength.

Chuck Brant, a freshman from Zephyrhills who turned in a super game against Indian River, will be counted on to be one of the ace pitchers. He'll be joined with Canadian Kevin Pearce and Greg Hill (Seminole High, 5-7, 2.88 ERA last year with the "Noles"). Hill can also get some batters out by way of the "K". Last season with the Tribe, he struck out 80 batters in 82 1/3 innings. DeLand's Kevin Rood will also be counted on as a starter.

Long relief will be handled by Jeff Barefoot who played with Lyman last season, where he went 6-4 with a 1.94 ERA. Short reliever will be Billy Stripp, a Lake Howell graduate, has a fine curveball.

Though Pantelias' program has been long on success, he doesn't have a "baseball is everything attitude."

"Our big concern is to get all our sophomores graduated," the veteran coach said. "Last year we had nobody that signed by the pros but all the sophomores went on to play at Division I or II schools."

As far as baseball goals are go, Pantelias said, "Our season's goal is to win our division. Our game to game goal is to strive for excellence."

The weather may be cool, but look for the Seminole baseball program to get hot.

Tar Heels Rout Virginia, 85-72

By United Press International

Add Terry Holland to the ever-lengthening list of North Carolina basketball admirers.

"I think you saw what kind of basketball team North Carolina has," the Virginia coach said after the Tar Heels battered his team 85-72 Thursday night. "I (Sam) Perkins and (Michael) Jordan were awesome. I don't think I've ever seen two players play as well on the court at the same time."

"I can't conceive of a better college team than they are," Holland continued. "We did play hard tonight. We played as hard as we could. We were just overmatched."

Also Thursday night, Purdue moved into a tie for first in the Big Ten with a 79-58 rout of Iowa. Jim Rowinski scored 20 points and keyed a second-half surge that helped Purdue improve to 16-4 overall and 9-1 in the league to pull even with Illinois.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, San Diego State received 35 points from Michael Cage to knock off No. 6 Texas-El Paso, No. 3 Georgetown crushed Seton Hall 78-54, No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas smacked Utah State 97-75, No. 12 Tulsa hammered Indiana State 87-70 and No. 16 Washington defeated Arizona State 70-61.

In nonconference games involving ACC teams Saturday, 11-8 Clemson will play at South Carolina; No. 17 Wake Forest, 15-4, hosts North Carolina Wilmington and Virginia travels to Louisville.

Alton Davis, left, and Greg Hill are two former Seminoles on the SCC baseball roster. Davis is a starting outfielder and Hill is a pitcher.

Mike Sawyer, left, should give SCC coach Jack Pantelias some punch in the lineup. Sawyer, a Lyman product, will play first base and dh.

'We've got 4 or 5 outstanding outfielders, so we'll have to do some rotating there.'

Cats Top Division Dog Fights

— Watkins, Daunic Honored

The Inter-County Basketball Association moved past the halfway mark in 1983-84 league play and both boys divisions remain dog fights. However, there are "Cat" teams very much in contention.

The South Seminole Tomcats won a pair in JV (6-7th grade) action to remain one game behind the undefeated leading Winter Park. The Cats topped the Eatonville Lakers 36-28 and took the Jackson Heights Bruins, 50-26. Danny Rubin led the way against Eatonville with 10. Brad Bolton added nine, Willy Daunic seven and Rob Crager five. Andre Johnson topped the Lakers with 10, Chris Beauford had six. Against the Bruins, all nine Tomcats scored led by Rubin 10, Daunic nine, J.J. Miller seven, Bolton six and Ron Roux six. Danny Phillips was high for the Bruins with seven followed by Chad Duncan and Rick Hampton with six each.

In another JV game the Eastmonte (Milwee) Greyhounds ran up a big 80 points — season team high — to drop the Jackson Heights 78ers. Jarvis Watkins had 20, Mike Whittington 18, Frank Dixon 16, Darren Marshall 8 and Anthony Bailey seven. Jim London's five led Jackson Heights.

Winter Park knocked off second place Eastmonte 49-38 in Varsity (8th grade) American division play to build a full one game lead. Terry Dixon fired in 19, Charlie Herman 13, Ed Simmons seven, Frank Freeman six to lead the way. Craig Radzak had 12, Willie Brown and Mark Dublin eight each for Eastmonte.

The South Seminole Bobcats defeated the Jackson Heights Lions 52-39 to come back from a 55-32 defeat at the hands of Eastmonte, and stayed one game in front of the Jackson Heights Knights in varsity National division action. Willy Daunic was high for South Seminole against the Lions with 18. Garth Bolton scored 10, Eric and Rick Wright six each. Andy Devine led the Lions with 19. Gallagher added 10. Eastmonte received 14 points from Radzak, 12 each from Ike Felder and Shawn Martinson. Daunic, Garth Bolton and Eric Wright highlighted South Seminole's attack with 10, eight and eight respectively.

Inter-County Basketball

The South Seminole Kittens won two more in Girls' play to build a two game lead over the Jackson Heights Blue Bandits. The Kittens defeated Trinity Lutheran 23-8 and took the Walsie Ward Girls Club of Pine Hills, 36-16. Eva Miranda was a passing wizard for South Seminole in the first game with eight assists on pin-pointers. Bobbie Kelley led the scorers with eight, Miranda had six and Erica Cain four. Gail Veal and Tamara Lewis joined Miranda in the "passing game" and played fine defense. Kelley erupted with a league-season high of 20 points against Walsie Ward. Lewis added eight, Cain four. Miranda had six more assists. Rodriguez led Ward with 10.

Burger King "ICBA Player-of-the-Week" awards for week five went to Jarvis Watkins of Eastmonte (Milwee) Greyhounds in JV Boys play and Willy Daunic of the South Seminole Tomcats and Bobcats for his double duty-four game output over the weekend. Watkins fired in 20 in Eastmonte's win over the 78'ers. Daunic hit double-figures in three of the four games he played.

The girls winner was Eva Miranda of the South Seminole Kittens for her outstanding floor play over the weekend's game. — Mickey Norton

Disasters Continue To Plague U.S. — Koch, Hockey Team Fail

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The snowbound Winter Olympics continued to be a disaster area for the United States, with medal hope Bill Koch being beaten badly this morning in the 30-kilometer cross country.

Koch, silver medalist in this event at the 1976 Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria, was far back in the pack, finishing 21st as the Soviet Union raced through a severe snowstorm to capture the top two places. Nikolai Zimiatov, winner of three gold medals at Lake Placid in 1980, repeated his victory in the 30-km, followed by Alexander Zavlalov and Sweden's youthful Gunde Swan.

Zavlalov is the current World Cup champion, but his condition was suspect because of a recent lung problem that caused him to miss both World Cup races in December.

Koch, too, had his training program interrupted by illness. He was sidelined for almost two weeks at Christmas time with a sinus infection, and then suffered a recurrence last week.

Zimiatov had a time of one hour, 28 minutes, 56.3 seconds while Zavlalov was timed in 1:29:23.3 and Swan 1:29:35.7. Koch, who now lives in Eugene, Ore., trailed the leader by almost five minutes with a time of 1:33:44.4.

Dan Simoneau, also of Eugene, placed 29th. Jim Galanes of Brattleboro, Vt., was 36th, and Kevin Brochman of Stillwater, Okla., was 48th.

Koch flopped badly in the 1980 Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y., but since then had given every indication of being able to return to the medal stand.

In 1982 he became the only American ever to win the Nordic World Cup overall title. He also won

Winter Olympics

The Sarajevo pre-Olympic 30 kilometer competition.

Only hours before Koch's wipeout, the United States hockey team was all but eliminated from medal contention when it suffered a 4-1 loss to Czechoslovakia.

Two other medals — the women's 500-meter speedskate and the men's 500-meter speedskate, were up for grabs. The second run of both the men's and women's luge, the first and second runs of the two-man bobsled, and the compulsory dance and the short program in the pairs figure skating also were scheduled.

For the second day in a row, the men's downhill had to be called off because of atrocious weather conditions, postponing once again Bill Johnson's attempt to become the first American male skier to win a downhill medal.

Violent snowstorms with winds gusting to 130 miles an hour and nearly 20 inches of new snow fell overnight on Mount Bjelajnica, site of the men's downhill. Conditions were so bad that ABC had trouble finding its television cameras and the gates were blown away on the upper portion of the slope.

Officials first rescheduled the downhill for Sunday morning, then decided to try it again Saturday morning. Johnson finished first once and second twice in three training runs for the downhill, the glamor event of the Olympics.

The storm began Thursday night just as the United States hockey team was being all but blown out of medal contention by Czechoslovakia.

"Sure we're disappointed and sure we cried but there are still games to play and we won't quit now," forward Ed Oleszyk of Chicago said.

The U.S. hockey team's Miracle on Ice of 1980 would be nothing more than a prayer in the park compared to the miraculous turn of events that would be required for the Americans to even qualify for the medal playoffs in these Games.

A light failure at Zetra Arena greeted the first goal by Czechoslovakia, and for all practical purposes, the power was zapped out of the United States. With two losses in two games, the Americans now are four points behind Finland, Czechoslovakia and Canada in Group B, and only an incredible sequence would prevent those two of those teams from advancing into the medal round. Two teams from each group qualify.

'Snowbirds' Find Warmth, Comfort

While Wintering In Seminole County

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Sun-loving campers often flee the cold north in the fall and winter and head for warmer climes. Many of the "snowbirds" come to Florida to spend the entire winter. Often returning to the same "nest" in their favorite campground each year. The Seminole County-west Volusia area is host to its share of these sunseekers.

But for retired Presbyterian minister Jack Thomas and his wife Evelyn it wasn't a question of coming here to escape the snow, because their hometown is Costa Mesa, Calif. They retired two years ago and after camping at Katie's Wekiva River Landing twice last winter for a week at a time, returned there in October in their fifth-wheel trailer to spend the winter.

They chose a campsite just as close to the river as they could get. "In Southern California there are no year-round streams so it's quite different from here. After coming here last year we even bought our own canoe," said Thomas. They like camping here because of the central location. "We went to see the last shuttle launch and it's only an hour away, and we can go up to Blue Springs to see the manatee," they said. "We like camping in a natural habitat rather than the cement type. We had a raccoon in our campsite and we've seen bald eagles and wood storks along the river."

Most of the campers at Katie's Landing have been coming for years for the winter, according to Katie Moncrief, co-owner. "We are the smallest campground in the area with only 55 sites on six acres and have a lot of esprit de corps," she said. "Most come here because of the river and the fishing, boating and canoeing. It's very casual and we have over 600 trees providing plenty of shade. We call it the "real Florida."

They also have tent camping.

Some of the snowbirds leave their trailers on southern campsites permanently, building porches, patios and other comforts to remind them of home. They have permanent electrical and sewer hookups and oversized LP gas tanks for stoves and showers.

The Thomases even have their own phone connection.

Clyde and Roma White started coming to Katie's in September 1977 and the first year they towed their 35-foot fifth wheel trailer back to Decatur, Ill. with them. Since then they have left it at the campground year-round. Even though they still have a home in Decatur, they now come south the first of October and stay through May. They have added a room with windows on three sides overlooking the river and have put up a wrought iron fence and a flagpole.

"We came to Florida to stay one month and would look around and if we didn't like it here we'd go someplace else," said White. "and after seven years, we're still here."

The main attraction is the river. "We own a boat and enjoy fishing and sightseeing in it. Yesterday Roma and I caught six bass," said White, who retired at the age of 60, after 35 years as a foreman for A.E. Staley Co. "I wish we could have gotten into this living 20 years ago, but we couldn't afford it then."

Clyde and Roma White of Illinois enjoy their camping retreat overlooking the Wekiva River

Town & Country RV Resort, located on Orange Boulevard west of Sanford, has 230 campsites for travel trailers and campers. Although they have some overnighters, most of their campers are retirees who return each winter staying from November to May, according to social director Zell Jacobsen. They come from New England, Canada, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and many other states, but she said they are a "big family" at Town & Country.

They enjoy activities such as a swimming pool, horseshoes, shuffleboard, bingo, breakfasts, dinners, bowling and golf with a tournament banquet at the end of the year where winners in the various sports get their awards.

Not all of the winter campers coming here are retired. Many are younger couples with pre-kindergarten children who want to spend their off-season vacations in campgrounds near such family resorts as Walt Disney World and Sea World. With high hotel and motel rates around such attractions, such a vacation would probably be prohibitive for young families were it not for camping.

Twelve Oaks Campground on West State Road 46 with its 250 spaces is virtually full this time of year with campers here for the winters in their travel trailers and motor homes. The campground offers full hook-ups and a swimming pool. Entertainment and activities are led by a social director.

Keeping warm in Florida is usually not a problem, except when the temperature drops unusually low as so much, they spend most of the year there.

it did at Christmas time, and cold spells do not usually last long. Campers who own travel trailers or mini-motorhomes can keep their RVs (recreation vehicles) at a comfortable temperature by using central heating. But they must maintain their RVs properly to prevent their water lines from freezing.

There are other savings for those who spend their winter months in a warm campground. Their home back in the snowy north can be winterized thus saving on the conservation of heating oil and costly natural gas. But the warmest feature of winter camping, especially among repeaters who stay at the same campground, is the good neighbor feeling.

Rates at these private campgrounds range from $9 to $13.50 per day with full hook-up and $150 to $180 per month, but are scheduled to go up in the near future.

Seminole County Parks and Recreation Department has two parks that are available for campers. Lake Mills County Park can be reached from State Road 419 in Chuluota by taking Lake Mills Road and going one mile east. The park is located on Tropical Road. Permits for tent camping are available from the park attendant. There is a $5 a family fee per campsite per night. The group campsite at Lake Mills is available without charge to Scouts, YMCA, churches and other organized groups. There is a seven-day camping limit. Activities available include fishing, canoeing, playground, swimming and nature trails. There are restrooms and showers.

Stacy Keach Is A Hammer Fan

By Julianne Hastings
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stacy Keach took the role of Mike Hammer in the new CBS series because he is a great fan of Mickey Spillane's tough-talking detective. If Hammer could ride a horse, he'd get a 10 in Keach's book.

A veteran of 19 motion pictures and numerous television performances, Keach said he had no preference for either of the two media.

But he wasn't particularly interested in doing another television series when he took the part of Mike Hammer in CBS' two-hour movie last season, "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer: Murder Me, Murder You."

"We had no idea that it was going to be a pilot. It was just a two-hour movie. I think it's one of the few times CBS took a two-hour movie and made it into a pilot. The only other time was 'Cagney and Lacey.'"

"In fact, if it had been offered to me as a series pilot, I probably would have turned it down. But having played the character — I really had a good time with this guy. I saw the possibility of spending some time just working on a series."

Keach said he's been a little gun-shy of series since he did "Caribe," a police drama that ran on ABC in 1975.

Executive producer Jay Bernstein talked to Keach about making Hammer into a series, and a year later CBS launched the show on Jan. 28 with another 2-hour movie, "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer: More than Murder."

How long Keach might stay with the series depends.

"If it were to be so successful as to last for five years

— I'll worry about it when the time comes. You know, the fear that a lot of actors have of getting tied up with something that's going to isolate them and exclude everything else from their career.

"I just feel this is a good time for me to do something like this. Having established my identity in the theater and movies, I know it can only enhance it more."

Keach said the movie was a bit like a miniseries and he saw it as running more like a year or two — long enough to give him the financial freedom to spend more time in the theater, which is his first love.

The actor said he thought the 9-10 p.m. EST Saturday time slot CBS has given his series is just right.

"It feels like a Saturday night show to me. It's escapist entertainment. A little bit more risque. More fanciful. It's not 'Hill Street Blues,' certainly. It's a combination of 'Dirty Harry' and 'James Bond.'"

Keach said he was uncertain how feminists might take the program, which features plenty of skin-tight dressing, thighs and cleavage.

"I know that Hammer himself is certainly not chauvinistic in the traditional sense of the word. He's very vulnerable as far as women are concerned.

"But the genre is chauvinistic in that 'He women come on to him as they do with James Bond. But he doesn't treat them as sex objects.'"

Keach noted there are women psychiatrists and CIA agents in the series — very substantial roles.

"But we do have what we call affectionately the bimbettes, as well as the bimbos."

Keach said the show's producers and writers were taking great pains to keep the scripts from being sexist — humorous, not insulting.

Keach sees Hammer as a romantic. "If he was just tough he'd be boring."

A natural athlete, Keach enjoys the brisk pace he must maintain to play Hammer, doing chase scenes, fight scenes, the works.

He only regrets the character doesn't ride horses. A horseman since the age of 4, Keach has done all his own riding for such parts as the Union cavalry officer in the CBS miniseries, "The Blue and The Gray," and his characters in the motion pictures "The Long Riders" and "The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean."

He even played all the polo scenes in the NBC miniseries "Princess Daisy," in which he played Daisy's dashing father Prince Stash.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Who Is St. Eligius Of St. Elsewhere?

DEAR DICK: On the television series "St. Elsewhere," I am interested in finding an answer to these questions. On the hospital entrance it says "St. Eligius," who is St. Eligius? Is he Catholic, Greek Orthodox or possibly a saint of the Episcopal Church? Where did this saint live and for what did he earn his sainthood? What is the building shown in the introduction and where is it located? — Rev. C.J.L., Mikado, Mich.

In the first place, the program's production people tell me they had to have a saint whose name began with an E and this was the only saint they could come up with. St. Eligius is the Latin form of the saint's real name, which was Eloy. He was a seventh century Frankish (an ancient German people) goldsmith who was Bishop of Noyon. I can find no record of what he did to qualify for sainthood, but he is still patron saint of goldsmiths. The building is Franklin House, a home for senior citizens in Boston.

DEAR DICK: Where are all the TV shows we don't see on TV any more? Can any television station bring back any television show? — R. Constantine, Mich.

That's really a complicated question. When a show goes on the air, it faces a dubious future. Most shows last a season or less and, for them, that's all there is. If a show lasts long enough for the producers to put together what they call "a package" — enough shows so they can sell a bunch to independent stations to be run in syndication — then there is a chance you will see it again. So the shows that you no longer see on the networks may pop up again on independent stations — if those stations feel the viewers want to see them again.

DEAR DICK: Please settle a bet between a friend and myself. I say Audrey Hepburn played in the movie "My Fair Lady." He says Julie Andrews did the movie. I think Miss Andrews did it on Broadway. — J.C. and P.S., Stuart, Fla.

You win. Miss Andrews did the musical on Broadway, but was passed over for the movie version. At the time, Hollywood didn't think she was a big enough name.

DEAR DICK: Here's a real toughie for you: Can you possibly find out how many rounds of ammunition were fired during the movie "The Gauntlet," starring Clint Eastwood and Sondra Locke? — O.C.F., Saginaw, Mich.

If I said 21,383, would you believe me? No, that's one I can't answer, for the simple reason that nobody keeps statistics on that sort of thing. Even The Guinness Book of World Records doesn't have a category for "most rounds of ammunition shot during the filming of a motion picture." So 21,383 is as good a guess as any.

DEAR DICK: How does one land a part on a video aired on MTV? I'm interested. — B.D., Jones Creek, Texas.

You and a few thousand others. Videos, like any other film work, are cast through the usual channels. They have casting directors or the equivalent, who audition potential performers. Some come in through agents, some just walk in off the street, some are friends of the stars or others involved. You just have to find out when one is being made and apply for the job.

DEAR DICK: Some time ago, while traveling, we saw a movie about Robinson Crusoe on TV. It starred Michael Caine and was very funny. We didn't see the beginning and would like to know the name and when it was made. — D.B., Eureka, Calif.

I think you have your English actors mixed up. Michael Caine says he never made a movie about Robinson Crusoe, but maybe you are thinking of Peter O'Toole, who made "Man Friday" in 1975.

Don't Look For Laughs In New CBS Sitcoms

By David Handler

"Domestic Life" and "Empire" are stabs in the dark — oddball, off-center sitcoms that CBS has thrown at us mid-season in the hope that one of them will become an overnight sensation. So far, neither of them has.

Steve Martin is executive producer of "Domestic Life," which is a star vehicle for Martin Mull. Mull plays Martin Crane, a commentator who dispenses homespun platitudes on domestic life for a Seattle TV station.

His own domestic life, however, isn't nearly as simple as he'd like it to be. Money is scarce. The wife and kids are on the impossible side.

Wife Candy (Judith-Marie Bergan) has just brought home a living room rug she picked up at a police garage sale — complete with chalk corpse outline. He kind of shrugs and smiles. Teenaged daughter Didi (Megan Follows) is gossipy and greedy and a real pain in the neck.

Ten-year-old son Harold (Christian Brackett-Zika) is a pint-sized wheeler-dealer with his own IRA and an executive's desk in his room. Martin has to borrow $20 from him so he can take the family to dinner. "Gee, dad," says Harold as he forks over the dough. "you must feel like two cents."

There's a strange, calculated blandness to "Domestic Life." It's a send-up of ordinariness that doesn't quite click. At least not with me. I'm too busy watching Martin Mull thumb his nose at me. I can't think of anyone else on TV who's so consumed by loathing for himself and his audience, with the possible exception of Richard Dawson.

Camping is free at Mullet Lake County Park, but permits must be obtained from the Parks and Recreation office at the county's Five Points complex at 4300 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford, which is open Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. A 14-day permit can be obtained and can be renewed for another 7 days by coming back into the office. There are restrooms available and the main activities are fishing and boating.

They are utilized by both area residents and travelers.

Across Lake Monroe on the St. Johns River is Volusia County's Lake Monroe Park which usually stays full of campers during the winter, but there is plenty of room in the summer. The ranger said he turns away about 20 would-be campers a day during the winter. There is a two-week limit for camping and the fee is $5 a night for two persons and $1 for each additional person. Air-conditioning is available for an extra $1 fee. There are electric and water hook-ups, but no sewer connections. There are showers and restrooms. There are campsites for tents as well as RVs. Boating and fishing are the camp's activities.

Most campers are tourists rather than area residents and most come in "drive-aways, campers and Winnebagos.

State parks in West Volusia that offer camping include Blue Springs, DeLeon Springs, and Hooton Island. The latter is in the middle of the St. Johns and is reached by boat or ferry (no vehicles) and has cabins for rent as well as spaces for tents.

The speed and excitement of alpine skiing's most dramatic race, the Downhill, will be seen as part of ABC's 63 and one-half hour coverage of the 1984 Winter Olympics from Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, Feb. 6-19

Nielsen Names ABC Top-Rated Network

NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC has been named the top-rated prime time network, winning the opening round of the February sweeps contest used to adjust ad rates for the next quarter.

The A.C. Nielsen prime time ratings for the week ending Feb. 6 gave ABC a 19.6 rating with a 30 percent share of the viewing audience; CBS a 16.2 rating with a 25 share and NBC a 16.0 rating with a 24 share.

Four times a year — November, February, May and August — the networks roll out their best in an effort to win the ratings sweeps.

Typical of what happens during a sweeps month: On Sunday night viewers had to choose between the Oscar-winning movie "On Golden Pond" on NBC, the Oscar-winning movie "Charlots of Fire" on CBS, and Lonnie Anderson playing a prostitute in ABC's "My Mother's Secret Life." The winner: Hollywood's "On Golden Pond" starring Henry Fonda, Katharine Hepburn and Jane Fonda. Hollywood's Miss Anderson came in second and the acclaimed British picture was third, ranking a poor 53rd among all the prime time programs for the week.

Among programs coming up during the rest of the month are ABC's Winter Olympics coverage through Feb. 19; the NBC miniseries "Celebrity" beginning Sunday; and "Star Wars" on CBS.

Evening news ratings ran as follows: "CBS Evening News with Dan Rather," a 14.3 rating with a 24 share; "NBC Nightly News," an 11.4 rating with a 19 share and ABC's "World News Tonight," an 11.2 rating with a 19 share.

Magnum (Tom Selleck), Rick (Larry Manetti), TC (Roger E. Mosley) and Higgins (John Hillerman)(clockwise from center) find themselves in another tight spot, on "Magnum P.I.," Thursday, Feb. 16 on CBS.

(Stations reserve the right to make last-minute changes.)

Steve Martin, returns with, "The New Show," Feb. 17.

To Keep On Truckin'

Stick To The Ribs Meals At Old Time Prices

Harold Tersigno is no copycat. He has been around Sanford long enough to know what people here enjoy eating.

Succulent barbecued ribs, deep fried Swiss steak or chicken and dumplings ornament the "working man's" luncheon menu at Cindy's Country Kitchen as occasional specials. Or the special may be deep fried pork chops in special breading, Salisbury steak or fried perch. A different dish prevails each day at 1500 S. French Ave., Sanford.

Other choices for lunch can be made from the menu.

Now if those entrees sound substantial, you haven't heard everything. Each luncheon and dinner comes with choices: potatoes, home fries, mashed, hash browns or French fries; and two vegetables from a selection of six, such as, cauliflower with cheese sauce, deep fried okra, French style green beans, cole slaw, applesauce and cottage cheese. Vegetables vary according to season and market availability.

Cindy's Kitchen keeps roast beef and roast turkey dinners as standards on their menu.

Now all that food is going to be expensive, right? Wrong. Luncheon specials cost from a whopping $2.95 and up and dinner specials start at $3.95. Great for the budget-conscious family.

Another good deal for the family is this latest Country Kitchen noteworthy item. During this week and next, a junior hot dog and potato chips will be 35 cents when combined with the purchase of one adult dinner after 4 p.m. Regularly 75 cents, no limit has been put on the number of children per purchase.

Five days a week, lunch is served from 11:30 until 4 and dinner, from 4 until 9:30 six days, the exception being Sunday when the Kitchen shutters at 9. The restaurant remains open 24 hours a day Friday and Saturday.

Breakfast begins at 5:30 at Cindy's and prices start at 99 cents. Eggs may be ordered around the clock.

The gospel according to Cindy's Country Kitchen is to feed the hungry working person with interesting and substantial fare at a minimum price.
