Calm Prevails, But Tense

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) - The renewed flow of oil — Iran's lifeblood — generated hope today for an end to the nation's political turbulence and one observer said the shah had won "the battle of the streets."

A tense calm prevailed Sunday in Tehran where a week ago rampant rioting was touched off by military gunfire that killed as many as 65 students attempting to topple a statue of the shah.

The anti-shah National Front, whose leader was jailed Saturday night, claimed its strike against the government was still effective. But members of the five party coalition conceded that many anti-shah strikers would return to their jobs today and resume production of Iran's most precious com-

Altamonte Springs voters are being soked to go to the pelle again Tuesday — the second time in eight days — to select a new city commissioner in a runoff election. The rinner will take office Nov. 21. The candidates are Peggy Childress, 26, 623 Hattaway Drive, Barcley Woods, and Dan Dorfman, 46, of 364

Arlington Blvd., Glen Arden Heights. The selection is for the district 4 sent beis oner-elect Sandra Glenn after two terms in last week's election, Mrs. Childress came in first in a four-candidate contest with 1,462; Dorfman came in second with 1,687. However, Mrs. Childrens did not receive the 10 percent-plus-one vote necessary to win. Tuesday's election will also be a first of a kind in Altamonte Springs in more than 15 years. Since county voting machines, under state law, cannot be touched for 10 days after an election, the city will be using paper ballots. City Clerk Phyllis Jordahl said today she has borrowed ballet begen from Orange County for the city's three polling places — the city hall, civic center and the Spring Oaks recreation center. Eight curtained booths are being constructed at the three polling places for voter privacy.

A total of 6,376 voters is eligible. Polls will be open 7-7.

Immediately after the election, votes will be counted at city hall by a convening board composed of Mrs. Jordahl, Mayor Norman Floyd and election cierts, Marcella Hamon, Pat Chisamore and L.H. Andrews.

The turnout in the city's election last week was 4,043, or ground in accounting. 63 percent. However, nearly 600 persons who voted in the election did not cast ballots in the district 4 contest. ### Carter And Money Policy

Vacillation, a tendency to temporize and large doses of wishful thinking have long characterized the Carter administration's formulation and pursuit of fiscal and monetary policy.

It's been apparent all the while that the hardeyed realists who operate in the world's money markets were not impressed

In recent months, their hourly votes of no confidence have resulted in a vash hemorrhage in the value of the dollar abroad.

Foreigners holding dollars have been dumping them on the market in exchange for sounder German, Swiss, French, Japanese and Dutch currencies.

Even Britain's less-than-robust pound sterling began to look attractive next to the sagging dollar. The dollar's value sank to such unprecedented depths that the administration was compelled to abandon its graveyard whistling act and do

Fortunately, the steps the administration took provide some basis for hope that the White House has been brought to its senses.

The dollar's chief affliction has been the chronic, worsening inflation plaguing the economy.

By steadily draining the dollar's purchasing power, the current 9.6 percent inflation rate rendered the dollar much less attractive than, say, the German mark which suffered from a mere 2percent inflation.

The core of the administration's campaign to rescue the dollar is the Federal Reserve Board's dramatic increase of a full percentage point in the discount rate of interest it charges on short-term loans to member banks. Despite the Fed's theoretical independence, the discount rate hike presumably reflected White House pressure.

This unprecedented increase will hike interest rates throughout the economy and thus help curb the unwarranted and inflationary growth in both credit and money. Inevitably, it will also restrain economic growth; a price that must now be paid.

Assuming it is maintained, this tight money policy will do more to reduce inflation than all the voluntary wage and price guidelines the White

The other ingredients in the president's dollarrescue operation - additional sales of U.S. gold reserves and the borrowing of $30 billion in foreign currencies to be used for the purchase of surplus dollars — will help in the short run. The key remains the Federal Reserve Board's tighter monetary policy.

If he is to restore fully the dollar's health, Mr. Carter will also find it necessary to reduce further the anticipated federal budget deficits of the next two years.

Finally, we would draw attention to a most revealing comparison. Following President Carter's announcement of the voluntary wage and price guidelines proposed as the antidote to inflation, the Dow Jones Industrial Average plummeted amidst panic selling.

After last Wednesday's news that the Federal Reserve was tightening the money spigot, the Dow scored its largest one-day gain in history.

The problem with the dollar is that it is no ne problem but several. There is the problem of the dollar as the domestic currency of the United States. Inflation is steadily and rapidly diminishing its value — certainly no revelation to any American wage Christi, Tex.

I compare him to no other runner because he has his own style. I would call it a cross between the acrobatics of Walter Payten, the quick moves of O.J. Simpson and the power of Jim Brown. In short, I think he's a fantastic prospect, already up there with Payten and Simpson as a man who can bust for extra yardage. But he's get to do it over a period of time, without injuries, before I put him up there with the all-timers.

Celtic Pride In Short Supply

It keeps getting worse for the Boston Celtics.

After a whirlwind of offseason maneuvers, the Celtics were looking to reverse the dangerous downward slide of the past few years. Last season they lost 50 games and missed the playoffs for the first time in seven years. And the feeling of "Celtic pride" that in one stretch helped carry them to eight consecutive championships appears in short supply these days.

On Sunday night the Celtics lost 128-123 to the Detroit Pistons for their 12th setback in 14 games this season. There was a time when the Pistons would have considered a trip to 50-year-old Boston Garden a it a victory.

"It seems like someone is messing with my mind," said Boston's Dave Cowens. "I keep asking myself what's wrong. But obvioulsy, I keep coming up with the wrong answer, because nothing works."

The Celtics thought they had several answers when they acquired the likes of Nate Archibald, Billy Knight, Marvin Barnes and Chirs Ford. And in the one of the league's most bizarre twists, the housecleaning extended to the front office and Irv Levin swapped franchises with John Y. Brown and then moved the Buffalo Braves to San Diego.

But as was again the case Sunday night, the Celtics have are turning the ball over far too

There was little comment on the proposed long-range Health Systems Plan but plenty of internal strife in the Scminole County Health Systems Council Monday. The public hearing at 7:30 p.m. in the Seminole County mmission Chambers was attended by few , other than nembers of the council — several of whom made ecommendations on the plan.

The strife erupted at an explosive meeting of the counci ollowing the hearing. Anita Montgomery, director of the Migrant and Com-munity Health Center in Sanford, pointed out problem areas of hespitalization and housing for migrant workers.

"There is a definite need to look into funding for

1st Femme Laborer Cleaning Up

By MAX ERKILETIAN

No one raised a stink when Barbara Pitts, 21, of 60 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford came to work in the Sanford Department

Sanitation last Wednesday. Miss Pitts is not only the first member the sanitation department's work crew to be offered the services of other employees as escorts, she is the first female laborer the city has ever had, according to Equal Employment Officer Francie Wynalda.

Miss Pitts, who considers herself a feminist and supports the equal rights amendment said she learned of the opening through her brother, also a city employee. "My brother works for the city and when used to pick him up from work I asked a lot of questions about the work," she recalled. "It sounded like very interesting work and I decided to put in my application."

Her sex was not considered when her application was reviewed, according to her boss lanitation Supervisor Aaron Keith

"When you're looking through a set of applications you don't have time to look at sone's name," said Keith. "You look for slifications and she had the qualifications. She had some vocational training and she was by far the most qualified applicant. When I vent back to look closer at the application ! had pulled out, I saw it was a woman."

"She catches on and learns things real a quick," he commented. "There is no reason

Longwood Votes To End City Trash Collection In 1979

The Langueod City Council Monday night said no to topion duncing in the city and so to continued trush collection as a city service after Jan. 1.

Voting 4-to-1, the council segled on second and final seeing an ordinance bearing after similar love in effect in Altamente Springs, Orange County and a Lee County or-leased constitutional by the Florida Supreme Court derice as well as in county and at other locations.

The decision to halt city-wide trush collection, a city service for more than 30 years, was on a 3-2 vote with council Chairman J. R. Grant and Councilman mann, Larry Goldberg and Lathanapurger voted to hait the service noting that privately-owned garings collection firms rating in the city also pict sp tresh as a service to their period as an economy move by a former city council but was restored after numerous citizens remplained.

Grant said $25,000 was budgeted in the contingency fund to operate the service over
