Senate Approves Reagan's Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A compromise budget patterned after President Reagan's blueprint for austerity in government sailed through the House, but hit some temporarily rough seas in a stormy Senate.

Calm returned today, however, allowing final congressional passage of the $655.5 billion fiscal 1982 budget. A vote by the Republican-dominated Senate came shortly after 11 a.m.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts has served notice that House Democrats won't "roll over and play dead" while the budget digs into several social programs.

But there was little fight Wednesday as the House approved the measure on a 244-155 vote, with some conservative Democrats again jumping ship to join the Republican minority.

The Senate had been expected to immediately follow suit, but Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee postponed a final vote until today.

The Senate then debated the budget until late into the night, with tempers flaring.

"I have said it is cruel, unjust and inhumane — and it is," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, R-Ohio. "This budget is dishonest, phony — a fiction."

Metzenbaum said it was fair neither to the poor nor the middle class, shouting they don't have "well-paid lobbyists."

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, charged the budget was based on unrealistic economic assumptions.

But Budget Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., faced Hollings and charged the real mistake occurred one year earlier when the committee, controlled at the time by Democrats with Hollings its chairman, claimed to have come up with a balanced budget.

He said the deficit grew from zero to an estimated $58 billion to $63 billion now.

"We didn't accuse you of fraud and chicanery because it came out wrong," Domenici said.

The compromise budget was drawn up from target figures established by House and Senate negotiators last week after each chamber had approved slightly different budget plans.

Shortly before the House approved the compromise, O'Neill said Democrats would try to reverse some of the cuts, especially in food and education programs, in later budget-related votes. House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Okla., complained the package "does not meet the test of fairness to our society as a whole," but conceded it "represents the will of the House."

Although the blueprint approved Wednesday mandates large spending reductions, congressional committees still must decide exactly what programs will be cut.

That means House Democrats will have another chance to modify the proposals they find most offensive.

Report Says Condo Was Substandard

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A report by the Southern Building Code Congress says the collapsed Harbour Cay condominium was designed below standard in several areas, including roof, balcony and wind-resistance criteria.

The five-story building collapsed March 27, killing 11 workers and injuring 23 others.

Meanwhile, a consulting engineer, developer and architect of the partially completed building have denied in court accusations of negligence in lawsuits filed by victims of the collapse.

Engineers with the Congress are awaiting word from the designers of the project to see if acceptable alternatives were used that would mitigate what experts say were design miscalculations that could have caused structural weakness.

"The code allows for alternate systems to be accepted if they can prove they will provide adequate safety," said Bill Tangye, SBC director of engineering services.

Cocoa Beach building officials requested the investigation after the accident.

Water Crisis: Casselberry Gets Tough

An emergency ordinance, which the Casselberry City Council is expected to pass at a 1 p.m. special meeting today, will put teeth in enforcement of the city's outside water use ban in the face of a crucial water shortage.

Mayor Owen Sheppard said the emergency meeting was called on the advice of the city attorney, who felt an ordinance would be more enforceable than the emergency resolution passed at Monday night's meeting.

The resolution replaced a previous ban imposed in mid-April to include the hours from 12 noon to 6:00 a.m. and all weekend hours. During these hours, the city's water customers are not allowed to sprinkle lawns, wash cars, fill swimming pools or engage in other outside water usages.

The ordinance will be effective as of today, Sheppard said.

Violators will be subject to fines of up to $300 rather than receiving a warning as was previously the case.

Sheppard expressed concern Monday for the thousands of dollars residents have invested in landscaping, but contended that the city has no other choice until rain comes. City fire officials have expressed fear that the pressure in the system is dangerously low.

Although there have been some complaints about the restrictions mostly from residents who have been watering their yards before going to work, Sheppard said he does not expect opposition at today's meeting.

"They know this ordinance is for the safety and welfare of the public, he said.

"Besides wanting to conserve water, they don't want their homes to fall in a sinkhole."

Adding to the water shortage problem, two of Casselberry's large storage tanks are presently under repair and will be out of use until June 30, handicapping the city's pumping capacity.

CREATING A PROTEST

The Rev. John Butler Book, wearing a "we want no monkey business from this board" sign demonstrated with a small band of picketers outside the Seminole County School Board meeting Wednesday. The group is demanding creationism be taught in local classrooms. However, school board members told Book and his group that the curriculum advisory committee, which is responsible for investigating the creationism vs. evolution controversy, will not have time to address the matter at least until fall. Book accused the board of stalling and promised to continue his efforts to introduce the Biblical story of creation into the classroom.

Murderer Didn't Know It, But He Killed Both

How Minnie Died Of Lonely Heart

By BRITT SMITH

Herald Staff Writer

The death certificate said arterial sclerosis — hardening of the arteries. But don't you believe it. After her husband died, possibly beaten to death in an alley behind the couple's modest Sanford home, Minnie Olley simply had nothing left to live for. So, she died.

Oh sure, she had been sick for quite awhile. After 67 years, her body had grown frail, weighing a scant 70 pounds; her mind was usually a little one side of reality. But that only made the dying easier.

Minnie Olley could probably have lived a while longer if she had wanted. For all her ills, she was forever the quintessential Irishwoman, feisty of spirit and quick of tongue. The problem was, Minnie didn't want to go on. She had lost the man she had loved enough to spend 52 winters with. After all that time, she wasn't going to spend one without him.

And so, almost immediately after Henry died January 23, Minnie started her long slide to the bottom. On April 26, exactly three months and three days later, she joined him. Their earthly remains, a couple pounds of gray ash, are together now, sealed in matching cremation urns in a Schenectady, N.Y. cemetery.

After her husband's death, Minnie entered Sanford's Lakewood Nursing Home. She seemed to like it at first, regaling the nurses with stories about Henry — how he, like herself, had come to America around the turn of the century on the "Baby Bona" as sort of indentured servants, how they met in New York and married, how Henry had worked in a locomotive factory for years, then retired to Sanford in 1968.

He was a dignified Englishman, Minnie would say, a tad eccentric perhaps, but a good husband. Thinking about him made her happy and she would lead nurses and patients in sing-a-longs of her native Irish songs, conducting her "choir" with bony arms tucked into the flapping sleeves of floral print pajamas.

Perhaps if she had known how Henry died she wouldn't have been so gay. Son Stephen and daughter Maryanna Sherry never could bring themselves to tell her. Minnie thought her husband died of pneumonia. She kept telling him he was going to come down with something if he didn't quit working in the garden so much.

It was a noble lie. The truth might have killed her quicker than the loneliness did. "You could see it happening," Mrs. Sherry said. "She just withdrew from life. She wouldn't sing. She wouldn't talk. She wouldn't even chew her food. The doctors had to put her on a liquid diet. She slept more than usual. At night, she would cry for my father. She literally willed herself to die."

"When whoever it was who beat my father killed him, they killed my mother too," Mrs. Sherry said. "They didn't know it, but they did."

Since Mrs. Olley's death the police have reviewed the circumstances surrounding her husband's possible slaying, but still have found no evidence to warrant an arrest. The investigation continues.

If Henry and Minnie Olley had lived, they would probably have been in New Mexico now enjoying the warm, dry desert air. Stephen has a little gold mining operation there, and when he came down for Christmas last year, he and his father were going to finalize plans for moving Minnie out West.

They never made it, of course. On Dec. 8, on the way back from a trip to the store (for socks and shaving cream), Henry Olley met Death in that alley behind his house. Death, it appears, came in the form of a mugger(s) who stomped the old man's head into a puffy, blue-black mess. Then again, says Seminole County Medical Examiner Dr. G.V. Garay, Olley could have died of a stroke and injured himself when he fell.

Stephen and Mrs. Sherry think not. They are convinced that their father was murdered by a gang of young toughs who continually harassed him; threw rocks at him, slashed his porch screen, and broke the glass in his front door. But the police have no proof.

We may never know exactly how Henry Olley died. Likewise, many of us will never know, the way Minnie knew, what it means to grow old and alone, to slowly melt from within, then finally to curl up in bed one night and quietly pull the plug on a lonely heart.

With Schools' Promise

Feds Drop Bias Probe

A promise by Seminole County school authorities to find suitable classroom space for handicapped students was apparently good enough for the U.S. Education Department which has agreed to end its investigation of charges local school officials discriminated against handicapped students.

In a letter to Seminole School Superintendent Robert Hughes, the Education Department's Lamar Clements, director of the Office for Civil Rights, said that the district's promise that handicapped students "will be housed in appropriate classroom space" by the beginning of the 1981-82 school year, "forms the basis for us to close this complaint."

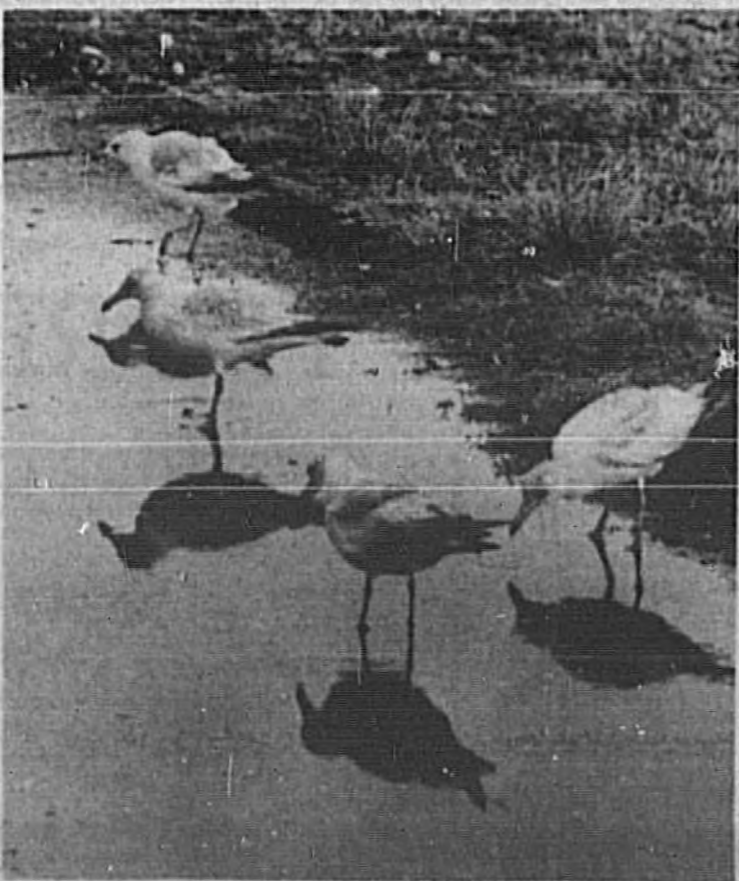

As evidence that the district has fulfilled its pledge, Clements requested that a report be submitted 30 days after the new school year begins listing the "schools with exceptional education programs and a description of the classroom facilities for the special education classes in each school."

The discrimination complaint was lodged by Linda Goddard, mother of a non-handicapped Casselberry Elementary School student, who claimed that 33 handicapped students at that school were forced to attend classes in the school auditorium due to overcrowding, a situation she contended was discriminatory. — BRITT SMITH

REFLECTING ON THE RAIN

Grounded temporarily in Wednesday's thunderstorm, these seagulls stopping at Sanford's Holiday Inn, reflect on the situation as they wade in a puddle left by the welcome rains. Although only .15 inch was recorded at the Sanford Sewage Treatment Plant, Casselberry's plant recorded 1.08 inches and the National Weather Service in Orlando, 1.23 inches. # WORLD IN BRIEF

New Round Of Riots As 4th Hunger Striker Dying

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — IRA hunger striker Raymond McCreech died today on the 41st day of his fast and two more of his fellow hunger strikers, Patrick O'Hara and Brendan McLoughlin, were reported in serious condition.

Rioters showered police with gasoline bombs following news of the death of McCreech, 34, the third IRA man to starve himself to death this month in Maze prison in a campaign to obtain political prisoner status rather than treatment as common criminals.

O'Hara, 24, who began his death fast on the same day as McCreech, was thought to have "only a few hours to live" by his supporters.

A statement by the Republican press office said O'Hara's mother Peggy was telephoned by the chaplain at Maze prison at 2:15 p.m. today "to come quickly to the hospital."

"The priest believed that Patsy has only a few hours to live," the statement said.

Pope Almost Out Of Danger

ROME (UPI) — Doctors today considered declaring Pope John Paul II completely out of danger from his gunshot wounds and a papal envoy optimistically said the pontiff would be back at his world travels by the fall.

A Vatican spokesman said official announcements about travel would have to await John Paul's release from the hospital but in Madrid, Spain, papal envoy Monsignor Antonio Innocenti told priests the pontiff would go ahead with a scheduled visit to Spain in October.

Giscard Snubs Inauguration

PARIS (UPI) — Francois Mitterrand took power today as France's first leftist president in 28 years and proclaimed "a new alliance of socialism and freedom" in a ceremony, snubbed by the man he defeated to enter the Elysee Palace.

Mitterrand, 64, the veteran leader of the Socialist Party, assumed office in a ceremony this morning attended by prominent leftist who gathered for the inauguration in the ornate 18th-century ballroom of the presidential palace.

Departing President Valery Giscard d'Estaing broke tradition by not attending the inauguration and after bidding farewell to Mitterrand on the palace steps he walked unsmilingly through the Elysee gates.

In his inaugural address, Mitterrand expressed his hopes of using the presidency to move France toward a more socialized society.

"What higher demand for our country than to achieve a new alliance of socialism and liberty?" asked Mitterrand, who shunned formal attire for a dark gray business suit and burgundy-colored necktie. "What more beautiful ambition than to offer the world of tomorrow?"

Dealers Stop Dollar's Rise

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar was lower at the opening of European foreign exchanges today due to heavy intervention by central banks, dealers said. Gold picked up as the currency markets became cautious.

In Zurich gold opened at $481.50 an ounce, up $2 from $479.50 Wednesday. In London it opened $3 higher at $482.00 from $479.00.

"Gold picked up about $3 as caution developed in currency markets," said a dealer for bullion brokers Samuel Montagu.

The pound opened at $2.0910, up from $2.0810.

"The dollar seemed a little nervous and showed a nixed pattern," said a dealer for Barclay's Bank International.

Dealers said foreign dealers, mainly from Singapore and Hong Kong, and foreign banks actively sold dollars and bought yen. Short covering pulled up the dollar from the opening rate, traders said.

Congress Rebuffs Reagan On Social Security Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the face of mounting opposition to proposed Social Security benefit cuts for early retirees, Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker told Congress today the administration is willing to "entertain other ideas."

The Republican-dominated Senate, on a unanimous 96-0 vote, Wednesday took a stand against "precipitous or unfair" reductions in early retirement benefits. House Democrats — 63 of whom backed President Reagan on the budget — approved a similar resolution.

As the Senate began debate early today on a $21 billion supplemental funding bill, Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., proposed an amendment that would keep funds for the current fiscal year from being used to implement a cut in Social Security benefits.

At the same time, Schweiker, whose department oversees Social Security, made his maiden trip to Capitol Hill to defend the bailout package announced by the White House last week.

Schweiker appeared before the House Committee on Aging, which in a report predicted the Reagan plan would hurt retirees much more than the administration acknowledges.

"If strong actions are not taken, the system faces financial insolvency," Schweiker warned.

But Schweiker, recognizing the recent congressional votes said, "We recognize there are other possible ways to deal with the financial problems in the Social Security system, and we are willing to entertain other ideas."

Schweiker's destination was the House Committee on Aging, which in a report projected the Reagan plan would hurt retirees much more than the administration admits.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging opened hearings today by calling the magnitude of Reagan's proposed cuts "staggering... cold and outrageous."

He said under Reagan's proposal no age-62 retiree single or couple, "no matter how much he or she paid into the Social Security system, would receive a benefit above the poverty line."

The unanimous Senate resolution expressed opposition to action that would "precipitously and unfairly penalize early retirees." A pleased Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said,

"That's clearly a rejection of the administration's proposal."

Earlier in the day, Senate Republicans barely averted an embarrassing rebuke of Reagan with the 49-48, party-line defeat of a Democratic resolution branding the Reagan plan a "breach of faith" that would "precipitously and unfairly" deny people approaching retirement the benefits on which they have planned.

The version passed by the Senate, offered by Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., deleted the accusatory language, but carried the same basic message.

The White House clearly was unhappy, but had little of substance to say. Acting press secretary Larry Speakes called the vote "an attempt by the Democrats to politicize an issue that is too important for partyline politics."

"What's at stake," said Speakes, "is the survival of the Social Security system."

The Senate resolution said Congress should not "support reductions in benefits which exceed those necessary to achieve a financially sound system and the well-being of all retired Americans."

City Considers Charter Changes

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

If the voters go along, the Winter Springs City Council will no longer be a council; it will be a commission. And commissioners will serve three — instead of the present two-year terms.

Those were just two of the changes to the city's charter adopted by the city council Tuesday night.

However, perhaps the most sweeping change suggested by the city's charter revision commission — switching the method of electing councilmen from the present at-large system to a series of five single-member districts — was discarded as unnecessary.

The council also retained the council-manager form of government, but gave itself the option of not having a city manager if for some reason council wants to do away with the post.

The recommended changes will be the subject of a public hearing and will then go to the voters for approval in a special election sometime before Sept. 15, the qualifying deadline for city council candidates wishing to appear on the November ballot. A specific referendum date will be set later.

The primary objection to the districting proposal was that the city isn't ready for it yet. As councilman Martin Trencher pointed out, "We are growing so rapidly and the population is constantly shifting, we could wind up with one commissioner representing 4,000 people and another representing only 1,000. We must wait for the city to stabilize," he said.

Also, under the districting plan, although commissioners would serve a particular district, they would run at-large, meaning they could be elected by citizens citywide, not just from their district.

Under that set-up, "you could lose your district and still win the race," said council member Maureen Boyd.

The existing at-large election method has a similar fault — theoretically, all five councilmen could be elected from the same neighborhood, the same street, or even the same block. But that is so unlikely, councilmen said, they decided to stick with the present system.

In other business, the council voted to retain the Leedy Corp. of Orlando to study the feasibility of purchasing the North Orlando Water and Sewer Corp., and then putting together a financing package to buy the facility.

North Orlando is a private utility serving residents primarily on the city's west side.

Acquisition of its own utility would allow the city to keep water and sewer bills down, according to Mayor Troy Piland.

"The city would qualify for federal funds a private utility wouldn't. And there wouldn't be a profit motive for the city, so we could provide the best service at the lowest cost," he said.

If the city decides to buy the plant, and bonds are issued to raise the necessary funds, Leedy would be paid one-half of one percent per $1,000 of bonds issued for its part in the deal.

Restraints Lifted

Carter Arms Sales Policy Junked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration raised the curtain today on its new policy on worldwide arms sales — a set of principles that effectively junk the restraints laid by the Carter administration.

In a speech to the board of governors of the aerospace Industries Association, Undersecretary of State James Buckley said the new overriding principle will be that arms sales "can supplement our own defense efforts and serve as a vital and constructive instrument of American foreign policy."

Where the former administration treated arms sales as "something evil," Buckley said the Reagan administration believes they "can be an important adjunct to our own security by helping deter acts of aggression ... and facilitating access by American forces to military facilities abroad."

He said detailed guidelines of the arms sales policy will be published soon, but laid out the general framework.

This administration, unlike the last one, "starts with no illusions as to Soviet purposes," he said, and will use sales of weapons to other countries as a means of "facing up to the realities of Soviet aggrandizement."

One of the principles will be that the United States will give highest priority to requests for arms from "members of our major alliances and from those nations with whom we have developed cooperative relationships."

It will use those sales to those countries, he said, "to revitalize alliances ... and to buttress our own defense production capabilities."

There will be some restraints, Buckley said, including whether the arms requested suit the needs of the country involved and whether the proposed sale "can be absorbed by the recipient without over-burdening its military support system or financial resources."

On the matter of ability to pay, he said the administration will ask Congress for low-interest loans for some countries.

Appeal Planned In Pa. Lottery Scam Convictions

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A Pittsburgh TV celebrity and a state lottery official were found guilty late Wednesday of masterminding a $1.2 million Pennsylvania lottery scam using weighted pingpong balls. Their attorneys immediately vowed to appeal.

"The game isn't over until the final whistle blows," said the attorney for television celebrity Nick Perry.

Perry, 64, a former announcer for WTAE-TV in Pittsburgh, which broadcast the state lottery drawing, and Edward Plevel, 52, who was suspended from his state lottery bureau post, were convicted of fixing the April 24, 1980, Daily Number drawing.

The winning number 666 produced a record payout of $3.5 million, arousing the suspicions of law enforcement officials. A grand jury later charged Perry, Plevel and six others tried to win $1.2 million by betting on the rigged number.

In the trial, one witness said Plevel and Perry planned to fix the lottery every six months if their original scheme succeeded.

A Dauphin County Court jury of six men and six women deliberated 6 1/2 hours before reaching their verdict.

Perry stared straight ahead when the verdict was announced, showing no emotion. However, Plevel seemed stunned.

"I didn't expect it," he said.

Perry was convicted of all charges against him — two counts of rigging a publicly exhibited contest, five counts of perjury and one count each of criminal conspiracy, criminal mischief and theft by deception.

Plevel was convicted of one count each of the same charges, but was acquitted of one count of unsworn falsification. He had been charged with signing false statements submitted to the state Revenue Department.

Perry faces a maximum 66 years in jail and $140,000 in fines, while Plevel faces 33 years in prison and $67,000 in fines.

Four others, who pleaded guilty to fix charges, agreed to testify for the prosecution. Two received five years' probation and two are awaiting sentencing. Charges were dismissed against two other co-conspirators.

The usual damaging testimony of the 25 prosecution witnesses came from WTAE stagehands Joseph Bock and Fred Luman. They admitted to weighting and switching pingpong balls used in vacuum-selection lottery machines in which the winning numbers are randomly chosen by being airblown into selection spouts. They both testified they were recruited for the job by Perry.

Peter Maragos, a business partner of Perry's in Forbes Vending Inc., admitted to the court he arranged the other end of the scheme, betting $14,000 on the numbers fixed to win. He also testified he paid Perry $35,000 in winnings.

Maragos' brother, Jack, testified he also had placed heavy bets on the winning combination.

Man Confesses In Sanford To 1972 Georgia Slaying

Making a murder arrest is rarely as easy as the way Sanford police detective Donnie Anderson did it early this morning. A suspect in a nine-year-old shotgun slaying practically fell into his lap.

According to police reports, this is the way it happened: Shortly before midnight, an unidentified man telephoned the Seminole County sheriff's office and said he wanted to confess to a crime. Deputies were willing to oblige, but since the caller said he was in Sanford, waiting at 1st Street and Sanford Avenue, the case was turned over to city officers.

So, Anderson drove to the given address, and sure enough, there stood 34-year-old Alvin William McCord, also known as Robert Jones and Donald Lamb, of Ft. Lauderdale, who claimed he killed a man in Jefferson County, Ga. nearly nine years ago in June 1972.

Anderson called the Jefferson County authorities to verify McCord's story and found that it checked out.

"He gave information that no one else could have known except someone involved in the crime," Anderson said.

Action Reports

- ★ Fires
- ★ Courts
- ★ Police

The dead man's identity is unknown. Georgia police just recently found his remains.

McCord told police that he shot the man three times with a shotgun after he picked up McCord hitchhiking. McCord said he dumped the body in some woods and stole the man's car.

Why McCord chose to confess in the crime nine years after the fact was unclear this morning. Georgia authorities were scheduled to be in Sanford sometime today to interview McCord and begin extradition proceedings. McCord has been charged with murder and is being held without bond.

GROCERY STORE ROBBED

Sanford police were continuing their investigation today into Wednesday's robbery of Bob's Grocery store, 630 Cypress Ave. The store was broken into between 4:30 a.m. and 6 a.m. by thieves who scaled a ladder to a window 15 feet off the ground, smashed the glass and crawled through.

Taken was $290.87 worth of cigarettes, sausage, lunch meat, and cash.

EVERYTHING BUT KITCHEN SINK

Thieves who burglarized a home at 1307 Williams Ave., Sanford, this week took just about everything but the kitchen sink.

The theft was discovered about 10 p.m. Wednesday by Lois Bevin who was in the process of selling the house and everything in it. Today, there is a little less in it.

Bandits stole approximately $2,000 worth of furniture and appliances including a sofa, chair, double bed, chest of drawers, night table, lamp, washing machine, and electric mower. —BRITT SMITH

NATION IN BRIEF

Safety Council: 550 May Die This Holiday

CHICAGO (UPI)—Some 650 to 950 people could be killed and another 22,000 to 26,000 could suffer disabling injuries in traffic accidents during the long Memorial Day weekend, the National Safety Council says.

Traffic accidents during last year's three-day Memorial Day weekend killed 447 people and left 21,000 with disabling injuries.

Council officials projecting the death toll for the weekend, which begins at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ends at midnight Monday, said the holiday users in the deadliest driving period of the year.

Doctors Probed In Deaths

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—Four doctors are being investigated for possible negligence and incompetence in the deaths of more than two dozen elderly patients at two rural hospitals, state health officials say.

Art Kanady, senior special investigator at the state Board of Medical Quality Assurance's San Bernardino office, said Wednesday the physicians were on the staff at San Geronimo Pass Hospital in Banning and Community Hospital of the Valleys in Perris, which was closed last week as a public hazard.

Twenty-seven people died under suspicious circumstances last March and April at the two hospitals.

Bomb Threat Disrupts Play

NEW YORK (UPI)—The audience at a hit Broadway musical performance and scores of shoppers and commuters were evacuated onto Manhattan streets as the rash of bomb threats reached a new high.

The phony bomb threat blitz that has harried bomb-squad members for five days numbered 202 calls on Wednesday, and police today continued to check out tips and threats.

All of the threats proved false, police said. The only authentic report of explosives occurred as workers dredged the East River under the Brooklyn Bridge and found two live, World War II artillery shells about 10 a.m.

Among the evacuations caused by the bomb scares, the standing-room-only audience of the Broadway show, "42nd Street," and its scantily-clad cast were forced onto the street. No device was found at the Majestic Theater, and after about 25 minutes the show went on.

A Piece Of Art?

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—An artist upset over an unflattering review by a Los Angeles Times art critic says he considers the truckload of horse manure he dumped in front of the newspaper "a piece of art."

About the only people who didn't know Lee Waizer was planning to dump the manure were the police, who arrived after the artist drove his red dump truck up to the Times, unloaded it in the street and left.

Waizer had sent announcements to the press he planned to dump the manure May 13 "to clear the air" over a review by critic Suzanne Muchnic, but he had the good taste to postpone the event when the pope was shot that day.

Scores of people, including several Times employees, cheered as Waizer emptied his truck, jumped on the running board and gave the thumbs up sign. A large sign on black canvas bearing the words "The Critic's Choice" was on top of the pile.

Jobs Tough For Liberal Arts

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—College graduates should find it a bit easier to land jobs this year overall but students with a traditional liberal arts degree will find it harder, Northwestern University says.

On the whole, employers surveyed by the university said they planned to hire 15 percent more bachelors' degree candidates and 10 percent more master's degree candidates than they hired from the pool of 1980 graduates.

But the demand for graduates in liberal arts and other non-technical fields had decreased 25 percent, the university said Wednesday.

Schmidt To Meet Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, leaving some of his political problems at home, will try to persuade the United States to hasten negotiation with the Soviet Union on reducing nuclear missiles stationed in Europe.

Schmidt and his wife, Hannelore, were to be officially greeted on the South Lawn of White House today by President and Mrs. Reagan.

The German leader went immediately to a meeting with Secretary of State Alexander Haig after arriving Wednesday at Andrews Air Force Base.

Close Call For Planes

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Federal Aviation Administration said an Atlanta-bound Eastern Airlines flight and a private jet came within a few hundred feet of each other near Ormond Beach, Fla., Wednesday.

FAA spokesman Jack Barker said a twin-engine, turbo-prop Piper Cheyenne made a 40-degree turn to avoid the Eastern 737, flight 942 from Daytona Beach, Fla. to Atlanta.

The incident took place about 20 miles north of Ormond Beach at an altitude of 15,500 feet.

Marine Held In Shooting

FORESTVILLE, Mo. (UPI)—State police today held a 21-year-old Marine corporal for the shooting death of a young woman during a series of sniper attacks in the suburbs of Washington, D.C.

Four sniper attacks were reported Wednesday, three in northern Virginia and one in suburban Maryland. Mary Montecarlo, 24, was killed and two men were injured, one seriously. Phillip Joseph Steeves of Bandon, Ore., was held in the Forestville barracks awaiting extradition proceedings in Prince George's County Circuit Court and murder charges in Virginia.

Truman Sidekick Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ma. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, who as President Harry Truman's military sidekick and close personal friend survived influence-peddling charges and some unsavory associates, is dead at age 87.

Vaughan died Wednesday at DeWitt Army Hospital in nearby Fort Belvoir, Va. The cause of death was not given.

Legislature Rapped

Violent Crime Up 14%

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—Violent crime has jumped 14 percent so far this year over the same period of 1980 and yet the Legislature still refuses to provide additional money for the crime fight.

Attorney General Jim Smith and Florida Department of Law Enforcement Director Jim York said Wednesday they find the Legislature's unwillingness to deal adequately with crime hard to believe.

"Somehow they have lost sight of funding those crucial, basic needs like law enforcement, education and transportation," Smith said.

Smith and York held a news conference to comment on, among other things, a report showing a 14.4 percent increase in violent crime in the first quarter of 1981 compared to the first quarter of 1980, with robbery jumping 32.7 percent and murders increasing 28 percent.

Overall crime rose 8.3 percent, while arrests decreased 1.3 percent, compared to crime report figures for January through March, 1980.

The report shows a continuation of the trend that resulted in an 18 percent increase in total major crimes for 1980 over 1979.

Under-equipped police agencies and a criminal justice system "that can't handle the load" contributed to the dramatic increase, York said, but the Legislature is unwilling to deal with the problem.

"Violent criminals are not taking our system seriously because we don't have a system... We have a bastardized version of the system and that's another area where we're fiscally conserving ourselves into big trouble."

Handguns were the major weapons used to commit murder, statistics showed. Pistol-related killings rose from 169 to 222—a jump of 31.4 percent for the quarter.

Breaking and entering, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft increased 7.5 percent over first-quarter 1980 figures. Of the nonviolent crimes, breaking and entering and burglary showed the greatest increase with 15.5 percent.

The value of property stolen in Florida in the first three months of 1981 was $163,508,179, an increase of 30.4 percent. Law enforcement agencies recovered 16.9 percent of the loss, or $28,019,137.

Crime increased 10.3 percent in the cities, 9.4 percent in suburban areas, 7.1 percent in non-suburban areas, 6.1 percent in metropolitan areas and 1.6 percent in rural areas.

"From the figures, crime appears to be still increasing, but looking back a few years, we see that the increase is leveling off," said Alan Knudson, FDLE bureau chief charged with compiling the figures from city, county and state law enforcement agencies.

York said drugs were a major cause of violent street crime. He said the increase would probably continue because of "an underfunded criminal justice system."

"In Dade County, we estimate that 50 percent of the murder rate in terms of either the 'cocaine cowboys' killing each other, traffickers fighting among themselves or people venturing out into parts of the county or city that they are unfamiliar with in search of drugs," York said.

Rain it Came, But Is It Enough?

MIAMI (UPI)—Rain, virtually unseen in Central and South Florida for months, finally fell. It fell with hail, spawned at least one small tornado, flooded streets. It fell in windstorms that blew off awnings and roofs. But it also brought temporary relief from the drought.

"Most important of all," said Larry Nunn, spokesman for the South Florida Water Management District, which controls the water supplies of half of Florida's nine million people, "is one to one and a half inches of rain have fallen on Lake Okeechobee, and it's still raining."

But Bill Bell, state Division of Forestry director in central Florida, said the rains will only "help us for the next day or two" with the drought that has caused a record wildfire year and at least nine large sinkholes.

"About two days under that hot sun and low humidity and we'll be right back where we started. As far as our muck fires, it won't help us a bit," he said. "But we're thankful. We're 15 inches of rain below normal (for the year) and every month since May of last year has been low."

A blustery line of storms moved into Central Florida Wednesday afternoon, and hit the tip of the peninsula before dark. Wednesday night, heavy rain was still falling on Lake Okeechobee, reservoir for South Florida.

That brought at least a week's postponement to the district's decision on whether to raise to 50 percent the week-old 25 percent water-use cutback order

4.5 million South Floridians have been living with, district officials said.

However, the Southwest Florida Water Management District board, meeting at Brooksville, ordered the first mandatory water-use cutback for the 16 counties, with 2.2 million people, around Tampa Bay.

Starting June 1, the general population must reduce water use 20 percent; industry—including the phosphate industry, a major user of the district's 1.6 billion gallons daily—must cut back 10 percent.

By 8 p.m., the National Weather Service in Miami reported 2.05 inches had fallen in Hollywood, in southern Broward County; 1.23 inches in Orlando; 1.30 inches in West Palm Beach,

Florida Orange Juice: Less Sweet

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI)—Florida's sugar content standard for frozen concentrated orange juice will drop to the lower federal level Dec. 1 unless an industry push for a higher federal standard is successful.

Florida processors now pack FCOJ at a 43.2 degree Brix sugar content, or the sweetness of natural fresh oranges. The federal level currently is 41.8 degree Brix, which at one time was the natural fruit juice level but which Florida citrusmen contend is too low. They claim natural fruit now has a higher sugar content as a result of improved fruit quality.

Florida processors have always packed a sweeter concentrate than the federal regulations called for, using a 44.8 degree Brix standard, or about the equivalent of an extra orange in each can of concentrate.

But last year the commission adopted a processor-supported move to lower the Florida standard.

It settled on a 43.2 degree pack for this season, with the standard to go to whatever the federal requirement is on Dec. 1.

At the same time, the commission and other Florida citrus groups petitioned the Food and Drug Administration to raise its standard from 41.8 degrees to 43.2 degrees.

Wednesday, the commission listened to nearly eight hours of discussion before rejecting a move to delay going to the federal level until Dec. 1, 1982, and to keep the Florida standard at 43.2 degrees until the FDA acts upon the petition.

Another proposal to have Florida go back to the 44.8 degree standard was withdrawn.

The proposal to keep the Florida standard at the current level until the FDA acts was supported by Florida Citrus Mutual and the Indian River Citrus League, two major grower organizations.

Florida processors have supported the bid to go to the lower federal standard, contending increased amounts of orange juice are being sold throughout the nation by out-of-state packers who can conform to the lower federal requirement.

How To Curb Food Stamp Use

There was recently another of those sensible developments taking place in Washington these days which American taxpayers can applaud. The agriculture committees in both House and Senate approved President Reagan's plan to curb the runaway food stamp program.

Food stamps have become a casebook example of how a modest, well-intentioned welfare program can become a rampant rogue. Initially, 15 years ago, an estimated 442,000 impoverished persons were receiving food stamps at an annual cost of $31 million. Now, 23 million persons — one out of every 10 Americans — receive food stamps at an annual cost of about $11.5 billion, not counting another $1.2 billion in administrative costs for the states and federal government.

Benefits are obviously no longer confined to the very poor. Roughly one-third of the families on food stamps own a home and a car. College students and striking workers may qualify. Food stamps are, in fact, so far from poverty today that families with incomes of $14,000 or more a year are eligible. Indeed, unless Congress approves its committee actions, food stamps will soon constitute the largest, most costly of all welfare programs, excelling Medicaid and Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Both agriculture committees voted a food stamp ceiling for 1982 of under $11 billion, which, while still unacceptably high, is a step at long last in the right direction. Also, a ban on food stamps for striking workers was approved by the House committee. And, moreover, Senate action went significantly further by allowing states the authority, heretofore denied them of requiring able-bodied food stamp recipients — estimated at more than 2 million persons — to work in public service jobs.

Thanks to some commendable pioneering in San Diego, Calif., that community's pilot workfare program, largest in the nation, played a significant role in the food stamp reform now working its way through Congress. Workfare there proved how worthwhile and practical it can be in operation. Of those eligible to participate in workfare in San Diego County, two of three gave up their stamps rather than go to work.

The difficulty is that federal restrictions about who can participate in workfare are so broad and generous that all too many are ruled out, including for example persons receiving unemployment compensation, students enrolled half-time, and those participating in drug or alcoholic rehabilitation. Even so, enough of the 12,000 food stamp recipients in San Diego County surrendered their stamps in preference to work that almost a quarter million dollars was lopped off the program. Although the initial costs of setting up workfare there were high, they were much lower than studies had forecast and are now at about the breakeven point.

Workfare has had even more spectacular results in general relief cases, which, thereby, have been cut by 42 percent in that county. As a consequence of what is being accomplished, the general relief rolls in San Diego County are 200 percent smaller than those, for example, in Sacramento, Calif., with less than half the comparative population.

The need for reform and reorganization of the multitude of federal welfare programs has been recognized for a long time and much debated to little avail. No one can believe that it will be easy to correct the accumulated abuses and chaos of nearly half century of welfarism, but it is getting no sooner and no easier to undertake that enormous task. The Reagan administration is right on track, therefore, in addressing this necessary reform so early and so vigorously.

BERRY'S WORLD

"This is really a tense time of year for colleges — waiting to see how many high school seniors have accepted them!"

Around

The Clock

By BRITT SMITH

Dear President Reagan:
This will be the first of many letters I will write to you in the next four years (almost) telling you how to run the country. You'll be very happy to know that there is no charge for this service, since I feel it is my duty as a loyal American to help the president solve the many problems of the day.

Now, the first thing, I think you're going to have to do, Mr. Reagan, is stop crying. I recall that post-election speech to your campaign workers in which you got all choked up because you had won. On television a little earlier, Mr. Carter got choked up because he lost. I got choked up both times.

I wasn't going to mention that teary episode until I read a recent interview in the Washington Post in which you said the brotherhood and esprit de corps you experienced on the gridiron during your football-playing college days was so emotional it used to bring tears to your eyes.

There you were admitting in one of the most prestigious newspapers in the country to being little more than a drippy jock; a pathetic preppy in pads. I couldn't believe it, particularly after watching you take that slug in the chest without so much as a whimper. Why, I half expected you to take a shot of red-eye and dig the thing out with a red-hot knife like you used to do in all those old westerns.

But if, as I suspect, your macho constraint manifests itself only in connection with things physical, I'm afraid, Mr. President, you're in a heap of trouble. I mean, if you break down every time you have to do something emotional like declare war or throw a couple million people out of work, you're going to cry yourself into a manic depressive blue funk before the Congressional summer recess.

The trouble with being President and crying a lot is that by the third or fourth time you've done it, everybody in the country is all sobbed out.

I'm not saying you shouldn't have emotion and tears in your administration, because heaven knows the country could use a little humanity. But I think you should turn this problem over to your vice president, Mr. Bush, or if worse comes to worse, your wife Nancy.

As a matter of fact, there are many people in Washington, including Congress, the Supreme Court, HHS, and the Pentagon, which could provide some good reasons for the nation to cry without you having to shoulder the responsibility alone. It's a strain to come up with good soba every day, and while there is no doubt in my mind you could do it, I don't want you to feel obligated. Warren Harding and Calvin Coolidge did tremendous jobs as president and I doubt if you'll find a record of a single tear they shed.

I must admit I was really shook by that interview in the Post. How you had developed such a loving respect for your opponent on the gridiron. How you could empathize with those players the TV camera picks up on the bench sometimes, their faces in their hands sobbing like children. How you had done that yourself. The only time I didn't know how to react was when you said you would play the same hardnose game in the White House you learned between the hash marks.

Did you want me to cry then? It must seem awfully gratuitous for me to discuss crying with you. But I thought I'd mention it now and save you some headaches later on. No one can keep up a steady weeping pace for long, especially four years.

Besides, we taxpayers would be stuck with the bill for all those handkerchiefs. And that would (sniff) be a crying shame.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Start Of A Bitter Campaign

WASHINGTON (NEA)— "Terry Dolan, you're a liar." That not-so-subtle message is at the heart of a series of campaign advertisements being aimed at voters in Maryland, Oklahoma and Massachusetts. The appearance of these ads a full year and a half before the 1982 congressional elections may well be a harbinger of the most vicious campaign in recent political history.

Who is Terry Dolan? And who is saying such nasty things about him?

Dolan is the chairman of the 6-year-old National Conservative Political Action Committee, the principal New Right organization dedicated to defeating liberal members of the House and Senate.

NCPAC (pronounced "nik-pak") was extremely effective in 1980, largely as a result of its massive advertising campaigns against certain liberal senators. Many of the conservative Republicans elected to the Senate last year were beneficiaries of campaigns financed and directed by NCPAC.

NCPAC is already at work on 1982, having so far targeted three Democratic legislators for defeat and launched advertising efforts against them. The three are Sen. Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Rep. Jim Jones of Oklahoma. The hard-hitting ads reflect the proven strategy of allowing Republican candidates to take the high road while the "independent" NCPAC does the mudslinging.

In 1979 and 1980, NCPAC's viciousness caught its opponents by surprise. But this time the Democrats say they are prepared to fight fire with fire. Among the new groups that have already come out swinging are Democrats for the '80s, which was launched by establishment Democrats such as former party Chairman Robert Strauss, and PROPAC, an effort by members of liberal and labor groups.

It appears that part of the strategy of these groups is to make NCPAC and its chairman the issue. In radio spots and newspaper ads, both organizations have emphasized Dolan's statement that "a group like ours can lie through its teeth and the candidate it helps stays clean. The message to voters is clear: Don't believe what NCPAC says."

Take, for instance, the spot that Democrats for the '80s is running on radio stations all over Maryland. (The ad was intended to counter a NCPAC spot labeling Sarbanes as the biggest spender in the Senate.)

"In the summer of 1979," begins the commercial, "an extremist right-wing organization calling itself NCPAC accused a United States senator of voting to increase his own salary. In fact, he voted against it." The spot ends with the statement: "So, Terry Dolan, if you're listening... we're going to fight your lies and distortions with a political tactic that you will find amazing. It's called the truth."

Dolan says he is not concerned about the Democratic ads. The early campaigns in Maryland and Oklahoma, he explains, are designed "to send a shiver down the spines of every liberal in the House and Senate; they know that they cannot oppose the Reagan economic plans if we are going to hold them responsible, which we are."

JACK ANDERSON

Senator's Coporate Links Cloud Position

WASHINGTON — Profits and politics are old bedfellows, and it's not easy to discern the motives behind an elected official who acts in ways that benefit his friends and campaign contributors. It could be a matter of principle, a coincidence or a conflict of interest.

Such an official is freshman Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., a 38-year-old member of the New Right who has been enthusiastically trying to clip the wings of the controversial Consumer Product Safety Commission. Without making a judgment on the senator's motives, I think the public is entitled to know about Kasten's links to corporations that have reason to want the commission weakened or eliminated.

For example, the commission has ordered installation of certain safety equipment on power mowers by next year. Frederick

ROBERT WALTERS

Flaws In Reagan's Tax Plan

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Among the numerous deficiencies in President Reagan's tax-cut proposal are two potentially fatal flaws: It is inequitable and unfocused.

Notwithstanding the president's persistent claim that "we have tried to be as fair and even-handed... as was humanly possible," the White House package is unmistakably skewed in favor of the nation's wealthiest taxpayers.

There is, in fact, no way to avoid that bias as long as Reagan persists in embracing the untested "supply-side" economic theory, which holds that increased capital formation is the key to the country's economic renewal.

Because many low- and middle-income families either are in debt or barely able to meet their current expenses, the most logical source of fresh investment capital is the wealthy, for whom a tax cut would provide additional discretionary income presumably not susceptible to being diverted into acquisition of consumer goods or payments on earlier purchases.

But Reagan's approach — drastically slashing marginal tax rates at the upper end of the income scale while reducing these rates only modestly for those who aren't rich — goes a long way toward destroying the egalitarian tradition of a progressive tax system under which the wealthy bear a large part of the country's personal income-tax burden.

Despite the president's personal popularity and his dazzling success in gaining initial congressional approval for his package of reductions in the federal budget, the nation's populist proclivities provide continuing resistance to Reagan's unbalanced tax package.

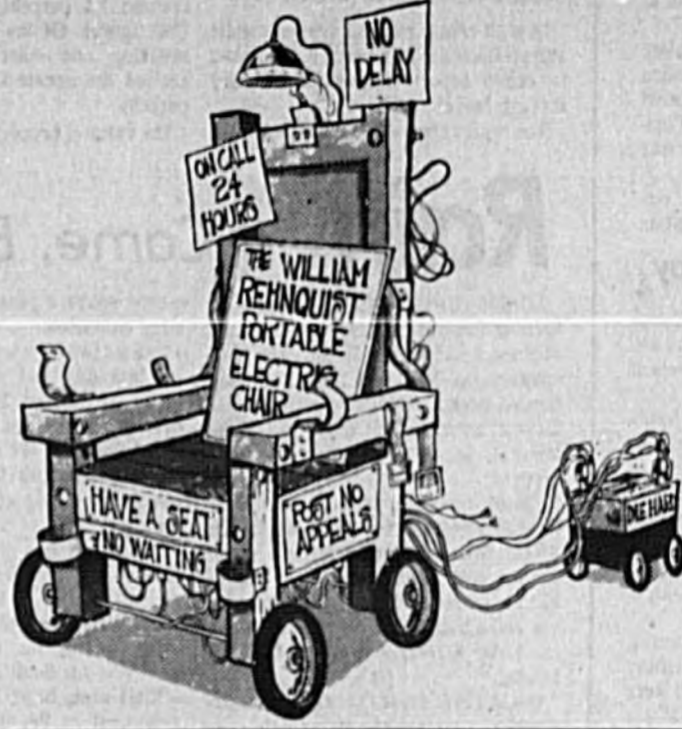

A nationwide public-opinion poll commissioned earlier this year by the Los Angeles Times, for example, found that 48 percent of those surveyed believed a tax cut should be designed to help those earning less than $10,000 annually.

Another 40 percent favored relief for middle-income taxpayers — those earning $10,000 to $30,000 yearly — while only 3 percent preferred a plan that would help those earning more than $30,000 per year.

But when asked which income group they believed would, in fact, benefit most from the Reagan tax program, 52 percent of those interviewed identified the wealthy (over $30,000), 33 percent said the middle class ($10,000 to $30,000) and only 4 percent said the poor (less than $10,000).

Although the Reagan administration repeatedly has bemoaned the relatively low rate of personal savings in the United States compared with other industrialized nations, the White House has displayed virtually no interest in promoting a carefully targeted tax-reform package that would be likely to assist middle-income families to increase their personal savings, thus providing new investment capital.

There are, for instance, scores of bills pending in Congress that would eliminate or defer the tax liability on interest or dividends earned on money invested by families to pay for their children's college education or purchase a new home.

EDUCATION WORLD

1981 Teacher Of The Year

By United Press International

"A teacher must give extra time to those students who need it," says Jay Sommer, the nation's "teacher of the year" for 1981.

He believes "kindness and understanding" are the most potent forces in learning.

He might have added that "extra time" by a teacher also extends to extra-curricular activities. In addition to teaching Spanish, Russian and Hebrew at New Rochelle High in New Rochelle, N.Y., Sommer heads the Ski Club and is faculty adviser to the French club. Finding extra time for the boys and girls who need it in a one-to-one relationship with the teacher is difficult, Sommer allows.

But he insists that without such sessions and an opportunity to discuss problems that interfere with learning, many students flounder.

"I have always felt being a teacher is a unique and challenging experience," he said. "To work with young people and to influence them is a responsibility and a privilege."

Sommer is a foreign language teacher. He speaks 10 languages, was born in Germany in 1927 and raised in Czechoslovakia. His father died when he was in the fourth grade. He dropped out of school to earn money the family needed.

When he was 12, he was put in a Nazi labor camp for the duration of World War II. In 1948, he came to America, resuming his education at night.

Sommer knows — probably better than most — what it is to be a student, having attended classes at night for 21 years in a row.

"The flow of warmth and affection between teacher and student as well as between student and student creates an atmosphere of mutual acceptance in which teaching and learning flourish," he said.

"I have learned that to create such an environment is one of the most important goals a teacher can pursue."

The announcement of Sommer's selection was made at a White House ceremony in which the first lady, Nancy Reagan, presented him with the traditional symbol of teaching — an apple.

The non-edible apple is crystal and the symbol of the "teacher of the year" award. Sommer was selected from more than 150,000 teachers in the annual awards program that focuses on excellence in teaching. The competition is sponsored by the Encyclopedia Britannica Companies, the Council of Chief State School Officers and Good Housekeeping magazine. Semifinalists in this year's competition were:

— Patricia Oyeshiki, an English teacher at Samuel F. B. Morse High in San Diego, Calif.

— Shirley J. Gillis, a kindergarten teacher at Horton School, New London, Conn.

— Shoshana Herzog, an economics teacher at Moanalua High in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Excerpts from Sommer's "philosophy of teaching:"

—"The teacher's kind disposition, aside from being a good educational tool, has an importance beyond the mere teaching of subject matter. The demonstration of love, understanding, and forgiveness is a human lesson profoundly vital to the education of each pupil in growth toward maturity and humanity."

—"The interaction between the teacher, students, and community members is of paramount importance in teaching and learning. A teacher who knows the community in which he works possesses a better understanding of his job and of his students. It is, therefore, very important that the teacher becomes involved in the life of the community."

—"Most important in the teaching process is the relationship a teacher establishes with his pupils. A responsive, supportive relationship between teacher and student establishes the best kind of atmosphere for learning. Not persistent punitive measures, but kindness and understanding are the most potent forces in learning."

—"Strained relationships in the classroom make learning unpleasant, and may, in fact, produce in students an intense and lasting dislike for education. On the other hand, inspiring students with a sense of their own worth gives them the confidence to express themselves more freely, to explore and learn through their mistakes and to regard learning as an adventure."

Stratton, president of Briggs and Stratton, a giant in the mower engine industry, is an old friend of the senator. Kasten's father sits on the company's board of directors.

Furthermore, Kasten received thousands of dollars in campaign contributions from executives and political action committees of Briggs and Stratton, John Deere, Toro and other manufacturers. Kasten insists he hasn't made up his mind on the safety equipment issue.

Another example: The product safety commission has proposed a ban on the use of formaldehyde in home insulation because the chemical is a suspected cancer-causing agent. Kasten received thousands of dollars from companies that produce either formaldehyde or dependent products. Five of the biggest contributors generously to Kasten's campaign: Georgia-Pacific Corp., $1,500;

Tenneco, Inc., $3,500; Hercules, Inc., $500; Getty Oil, $1,000, and International Minerals and Chemical Corp., $1,000.

Wisconsin firms that have had products recalled by the product safety commission include John Deere, Briggs and Stratton, Ariens and the Kohler Corp. Kohler, whose executives gave Kasten $4,050 last year, was the subject of a commission order recalling 3,622 whirlpool tubs for safety reasons.

In all, Kasten received at least $36,200 from executives and PACs of corporations that would stand to benefit directly if the CPSC is killed or crippled.

There is another source of pressure that could be brought to bear on Kasten in his role as chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee's Consumer Subcommittee: Wisconsin Republican National Committeeman Ody Fish owns a company that manufactures cellulose insulation. At one point, his product not only flunked the commission's flammability tests, but 24,000 bags of the product were seized to prevent its continued sale.

As I noted earlier, it isn't easy to tell what motivates a politician's activities. And indeed, Kasten has made no secret of his hostility to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Footnote: Asked specifically about his father's presence on the board of a company that has had trouble with the commission, Kasten told my associate Tony Capaccio: "It doesn't make any difference at all. It won't affect my vote. The problem isn't in having the relationship. The problem occurs when I use my influence in some way to improperly influence legislation that would be to my benefit or the benefit of others."

Parents Help Pregnant Teens With Difficult Decision

Editors Note: The rise in pregnancies among the unmarried American teenagers has been described in some surveys as "epidemic." Among the people most concerned, but usually overlooked, are the parents of the teenagers who produce these pregnancies. The following story is based on interviews with some about-to-be grandparents involved in a program for such cases in Ohio.

While the cases described are real, the names have been changed, except for that of the doctor in charge of the program.

By SANDRA L. LATIMER
Last Of Two Parts

When a teenager gets pregnant, many parents immediately wonder if they did something wrong.

Abigail feels she had a good relationship with her daughter, although she has had to work to keep the family going financially, and feels she had successfully handled sex education at home.

"I told her that, if she didn't think she could live without sex, to let me know and I'd take her to the doctor and get her put on birth control," she said, wiping away a tear from her eyes.

She doesn't blame her daughter for getting pregnant, and thinks the problem lies with the man. But she still puts a little blame on herself.

"I blame myself somewhat. I didn't devote the time to Marilyn that I should have when she needed me," she said. "But I'm glad it happened while I'm alive. I thank God she didn't get hooked on drugs." She said Marilyn is all wrapped up in being a mother, but says she'll graduate first and become the first woman in the family to get a high school diploma.

Abigail's husband has calmed down, too. "The other night Marilyn said there was a little bit of money in the house and asked him if he wanted a beer. He said 'No, we'll probably need that money for gas to take you to the hospital.' That's the first time he's ever refused a beer."

Abigail is looking forward to the baby — her first grandchild — and promises not to try to interfere with raising the child.

Marilyn opted to keep her baby and not marry the father.

Rose, pregnant at 13, made the same decision.

"Abortion is murder. You give puppies

Waiting for the baby to be born is often a period almost as eventful for the teen's parents as it was when they themselves were 'expecting.'

and kittens away. You keep babies," Rose's mother Fran recalls her saying. "On the other hand, Vicky, pregnant between her junior and senior year in high school, decided to place her baby for adoption.

"I made my decision. I could keep it, but not when so many people out there want them," her mother Helen quoted her.

Peg and Stewart's decision was to get married.

"We didn't bury our heads in the sand," said Peg's mother, Eleanor. "Within a few days after learning my daughter was pregnant, we had gotten her to a doctor for the first time, fixed up a couple of rooms in our basement for them to live while Stewart finished high school, and got them married."

Dr. James Bozzoli, who has run a program for adolescent pregnant girls in Marion County, Ohio, for the past five years, says 98 percent of the cases in Marion County decide to have and keep the babies. But there are some who decide on abortions.

Olivia, as mentioned, was one of those. Her mother Catherine, who "had been raised that abortion is a sin — you're killing a life," said that "since she made that decision, I would stand by her. If she was going to the abortion clinic, I was going to go with her."

Catherine said Olivia wasn't mature enough to have the baby, and the father, even younger, wasn't in any position to raise the child.

Now that Catherine has seen Olivia through the abortion, the highly nervous woman just throws her hands in the air and says, "I don't think about it now. I have no feelings. I don't what I feel" about abortion.

Most parents interviewed don't want to accept the fact that their daughters were sexually active. They tend to put the blame on the boy, say it was a "one-time deal" or that the girl was forced into relations.

Helen, divorced from Vicky's father, Isaac, blames herself and raises some questions.

'How do you tell a 15-Year-Old how to bring up a baby?'

"Hadn't I taught her enough? Had I failed? Was it because there was no man in the house?"

Eleanor feels she was thorough in her sex education in the home.

"I did everything except crush them (birth control pills) and put them in their orange juice," she said.

Bertha, the wife of a minister whose daughter Nancy was their second teenage daughter to become pregnant, felt Nancy got "in the wrong crowd at the wrong time and the wrong place."

Catherine repeated an oftheard phrase, "Boys get by, it's the girl who gets the problems."

Bertha said she talked to her children so much "my husband says I should hang out a sign that says 'counselor.'"

"My mother didn't talk to me, and I decided when I had kids I would talk to them," she said.

Judy said her daughter Yvonne once told her she "didn't want to get in that situation" when she learned her brother's girlfriend was pregnant. When Yvonne herself became pregnant, Judy cried and screamed.

What about the boy's parents? Larry and Karen, parents of a boy whose girlfriend became pregnant before they finished high school, insist they weren't blind to the possible problem.

"I didn't feel it couldn't happen to us. There's the possibility it could happen," Karen said.

Husband Larry says, "When you get a boy and girl together, you know what they're going to do." His wife added, "It takes two."

Karen said if you have a daughter discussions about what happens if she becomes pregnant include marriage, keeping the baby, giving it up for adoption, or abortion, but with boys, it's different.

"You can't get them on birth control," said Karen, who added that when they talked options to their son Walter, "I told him he'd support the baby."

What's ahead for pregnant teenagers? Fran said Rose has a friend over every weekend "so she won't feel left out."

Bertha said Nancy refuses to let her pregnancy stop her plans.

"She knows she's hurt me and wants to make it up," she said. "She sees this pregnancy as a lesson and won't let it stop her in what she wants to do. She'll probably think twice now about things. It has helped her the hard way."

Eleanor says it is easier for the boys to continue with their education, noting her son-in-law Stewart finished his last year in school, but daughter Peg didn't.

"She could be tutored only in two classes, but she needed four to graduate. She couldn't even get those two classes at a night school in another district," she said. "The school systems don't make education easy, but they should make it easy to get."

She said Peg would probably have gone back to school, "but the timing was wrong." The baby was born shortly after the new school year began.

"She'll probably wind up with a GED," Eleanor said.

(A GED is a General Educational Development test high school dropouts take after their class has graduated from high school. A passing grade gives the dropout a Certificate of High School Equivalence which takes the place of a high school diploma and is accepted by many colleges and employers.)

But Helen, from another school district, said she couldn't praise Vicky's school system enough.

"The guidance counselor told Vicky she wanted her to finish her senior year," she said.

Waiting for the baby to be born often is a period almost as eventful for parents as it was when they themselves were "expecting."

"You're never through the anxiety until the baby is born," said Helen, who went through natural childbirth classes with her daughter Vicky and was in the delivery room when the baby was born.

"Vicky doesn't talk about the baby. She wanted to know if it was all right, and the next day she asked whether it was a boy or girl," said Helen. "Is she blocking it out and will it come day hit her? I hope not."

"I'm looking forward to the classes," she said. PARENTS, Page 6B

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Worst Tourist Season Reported In Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, (UPI) — Resort tax revenues for Miami Beach were down 13 percent during the December-to-March winter season, a drop that reflects $14 million in lost business and makes this the worst tourist season in more than 30 years, officials reported Wednesday.

In March alone — when tourist-related business was off 33 percent at the Beach — the revenues plunged more than 23 percent.

"This season has been off as much as a third," said Leonard Baker, executive vice president of the Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce, who added business had not been so bad since "the big freeze in 1958."

Officials blamed high interest rates and a decline in the number of domestic tourists for the drop-off.

Suspect Tied To 30 Rapes

TAMPA, (UPI) — Police say a man charged with rape and burglary Wednesday is a suspect in at least 30 other rapes in the same general area of town in the past 30 months.

Theodis Beckwith, 29, of Tampa, was arrested in Bartow and returned to Tampa where he was booked on charges of burglary and rape of a woman in east Tampa April 14.

"Beckwith is being questioned in connection with a number of additional offenses which have occurred on the east side of Tampa in recent months," police said.

Dentist Jailed For Smuggling

LAKE PLACID, (UPI) — Dr. John J. Morgan, a 51-year-old dentist, has been jailed on marijuana smuggling charges.

Morgan was arrested by federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents at his office Wednesday morning, just as his first patients of the day were arriving.

Morgan was indicted by a federal grand jury in Orlando May 8 in connection with a marijuana-laden plane that was abandoned in a field in Volusia County last February.

Return Of Alligator Shoes?

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — The Florida alligator, protected from hunters through the 1970s, proliferated to the point that legislators are now thinking of lifting the ban on selling alligator shoes, bags and other products.

"I know there's a ton of alligators everywhere," said Sen. Dempsey Barron, D-Panama City, who sponsored the bill.

Jack Homer Named SSDC Vice President

Jack Homer, executive manager of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, has been named executive vice president of the Sanford-Seminole Development Co., (SSDC) filling the position left vacant since the death of civic leader John Kridler.

Prior to his appointment by the board of directors of SSDC, Homer had been a director of the organization. The SSDC, organized in 1961, is composed of business and civic leaders and provides financing, assistance, site selection and general expertise to light manufacturing companies wishing to locate in the area.

Homer, who has been executive manager of the chamber since 1973, was with Martin-Marletta Corp. for 13 years previously. He retired from the U.S. Navy in 1960. At the time of his retirement he was public information officer at the former Naval Air Station in Sanford.

Homer said today the SSDC will be using the Sanford chamber of commerce building as its headquarters again. The SSDC was originally founded under the auspices of the chamber of commerce to provide jobs and to assist in the economic well-being of the community, he said.

Hamburgers Precede Intra-Squad

Seminole(s) Clash Friday

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole High School's yearly foot and food festival kicks off Friday with hamburgers at 5:30 p.m. followed by Orange-White intra-squad clash at 7 p.m.

The Seminole Athletic Boosters will be playing gourmet and for $2 can partake of the ground beef. To a view of the "1981 Fighting Semi Beef," it cost you $1. The food-foot package comes for $3.

Impressive thus far in early season drills for Jerry Posey's Seminole been 5-foot-10, 180-pound linebacker Antonio Davis. "Antonio has looked good defensively," mused Posey, putting the evenly split squad together Wednesday.

Davis' impressive showing—plus solid work of co-linebackers Greg Register and Byron Washington—allowed Posey to move senior-speedster Lenny Sutton to fullback.

"We'd like to utilize Lenny just fullback," Posey said about the muscled Sutton's 10.2 100-yarddash speed. "I we have to, we'll work him some ways."

The Tribe has always been defensively the past few years, until Posey's coordinator of the defense—Roger Beathard—moved to the head job at Lake Mary this year.

"Potentially we should be all right on defense," predicted the likeable Seminole coach. "But we're hurting number wise. We just don't have the bodies we've had in the past."

Another move to offset the depth problem was sprinter Vince Edwards going to defensive back. Edwards, one of the top 440 men in central Florida, was a running back last year.

Posey is looking to Bill Painter to anchor the defensive line from his tackle position.

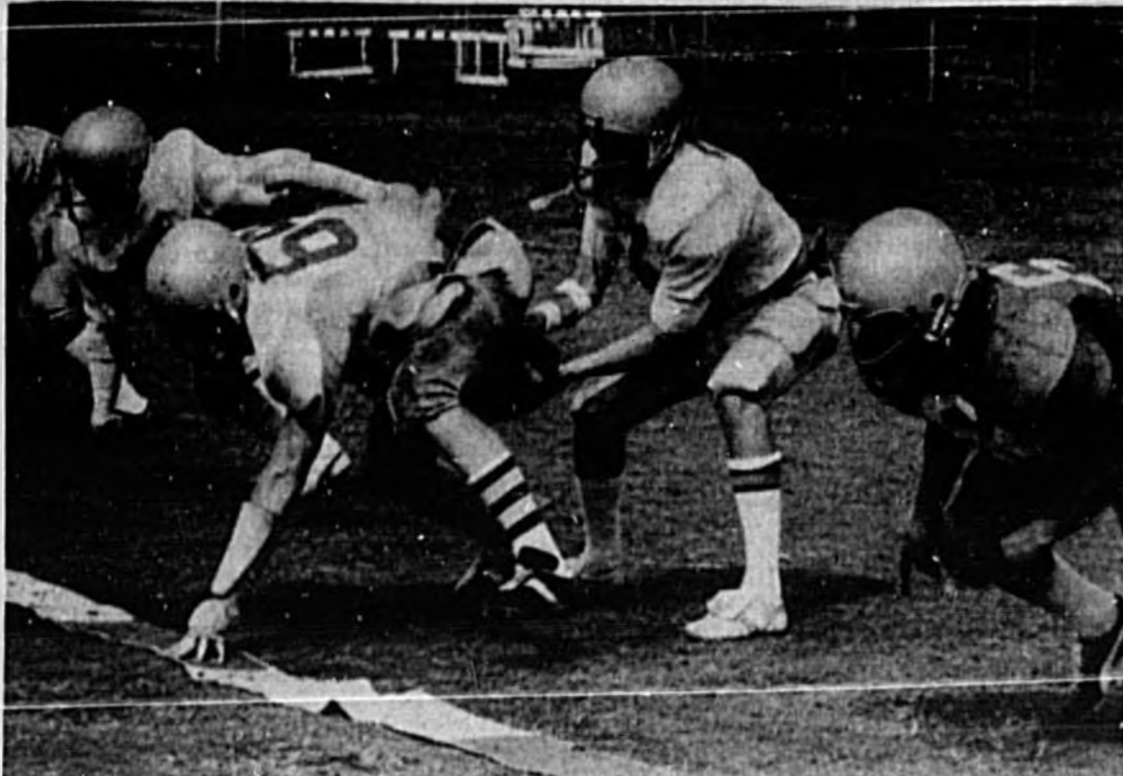

Offensively, 6-foot-0, 170-pound Jeff Litton is the number one quarterback. Litton received a baptism under fire last year when Clarence Sippio was sidelined by injury for part of the year.

Joining Litton in the backfield will be two 6-foot-8, 180-pounders—Jornia Little and Victor Williams—at the running backs. Up front two returning blockers are guard Don Croslyn and tackle Isaac Williams.

They will be joined by Jay Hauck at center, Frank Rowe at tight end and Brian Curtis or Frank "Quarter" Pounders at wide receiver. Rowe will see some duty as side receiver too.

David Williams or Doug Sanders will fight for the other tackle spot.

"We'll divide them evenly for Friday," said Posey. The Orange team will be bolstered by the junior varsity offense, while the White gets help from the JV defense. Elsewhere in the county, Lake Brantley and Lake Howell will have their intra-squad games Friday too.

At Howell, Mike Biaseglia makes his first showing before the home crowd. Biaseglia was a successful high school coach at Haleah before coming to the Silver Hawks to replace Sam Weir. Weir, who led the Hawks to a district title last year, took a co-head coaching position with Don Jonas at Central Florida.

Biaseglia is coming off two district titles and a Miami "Coach of the Year (1979)" honor. The highly-organized Biaseglia has suffered just one losing season (his first at Haleah) in his athletic career.

While the Silver Hawks return some quality players in running back Scott Grant, tackle Dan Rae and quarterback Mark Frick, the losses were substantial.

Gone are QB Bob Capobianco, without Chuck Scott (both at Vanderbilt University), tackles Jay Drivas and Brian Lepak, fullback Carl Carlson, guard Chris Stone and Defensive backs Charlie Miller and Jerry Winterhalter.

Another major loss was tight end Mark Layton, who decided not to play spring ball.

Friday, the number one offense will go against the number one defense with a point system used to determine offensive and defensive thrusts. Game time is 7 p.m.

At Brantley, the Patriots will preview the night's activities with a junior varsity slash at 6 followed by the Big Blue at 8.

Coach Dave Tullis is having quarterback problems. He had the best one in the county, and possibly the Five Star, in Jay Poag coming back, but the classy junior is moving back to Georgia.

Poag moved to Florida the summer before his freshman year and attended Lyman where he was part of the Greyhounds undefeated freshman basketball team.

He moved into the Brantley area as a sophomore and enjoyed success in football, basketball and baseball for the Patriots the past two years.

Tullis thought he had Poag's replacement with Al Rollinson, but he went down with an injury.

Now, Tullis has turned, ironically, to Poag's good friend Fred Baber to run the offense. Baber, like Poag came to Brantley after his freshman year at Lyman.

Normally a running back and defensive back, Tullis says Baber has adapted quickly to the signal caller position. He better, since gone from the monstrous offensive line is Rick Campbell.

SPRING FLING — One week from tonight, Oviedo will host the annual Spring Football Jambooree involving the Lions, Lyman, Lake Brantley, Lake Howell, Seminole and Apopka.

Each team will play two quarters of football with action getting underway at 6:30 p.m. Prior to the football, a dinner will be served in the Oviedo Commons.

A bar-b-que dinner served by Uncle Jones Bar-B-Que of Altamonte Springs will be the pickins. The dinner is accompanied by a "Pop Concert" from the Oviedo band and dance students.

For tickets, contact any band member or call 365-5671 and ask for extension 29.

Warren, Derr Crack Krayola 9-7 For Chevron's 3rd Straight Win

Steve Warren and Jeff Derr combined to pitch and hit Butch's Chevron to a 9-7 win over Krayola College Wednesday night for the team's third consecutive Sanford Little American League victory.

Seminole Petroleum topped Flagship Bank 14-9 in other action Wednesday. Triple I.I.I. Trucking won by a forfeit.

After a leadoff walk, Warren, Derr and Paul Harkness rapped consecutive one-out singles in the bottom of the first as Butch's Chevron took a 2-0 lead.

Krayola College picked on a single run in the second after Ronald Cox led off with a single and then added three runs in the third, using singles by Tim Cover and Sherrick Knight.

Warren belted a one-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the third to tie the score. Derr walked and Ronnie Hayes stroked a two-out triple. Hayes scored on a passed ball.

Butch's Chevron added three runs in the fourth, with Warren and Derr both hitting doubles. Krayola College scored three runs in the top of the sixth, but a comeback effort fell short.

Warren finished the game with a home run, double and single, while Derr had a double and single and Hayes had a double and triple.

Warren pitched the first four innings and scattered three hits while fanning nine. Derr struck out three and allowed one hit over the final two innings. Seminole Petroleum scored eight runs in the top of the first and coasted to the win.

Scotter Leonard belted his first home run and added a triple, both in the first inning, for Seminole Petroleum.

Patrick Williams was the winning pitcher, boosting his record to 6-2. Williams was also the leading hitter with a home run and triple in a three for three performance.

In today's action in the Sanford Little National League, first place First Federal battles Sunland Corporation at 3 p.m. at Fort Mellon Park, while Poppa Jay's plays Sanford D.A.V. at the same time at Westside Field. The Railroaders play Clem Leonard Shell at 7 p.m. at Fort Mellon Park.

Shell Tangles With Adcock

The top two teams in the Sanford Pee Wee League tangle for the second time this season at 8 p.m. today at Chase Park.

Clem Leonard Shell carries a 3-0 record into today's game, including a 6-2 win over its opponent, Adcock Roofing. Adcock is 4-1.

Today's game marks the beginning of the second half of the season. Last year Clem Leonard Shell beat Adcock 8-3 the first time they played, but Adcock won the second game 3-2 and then won two straight games in the city playoffs for its third consecutive city championship.

Michael Merthie, 3-0, will be on the mound for Clem Leonard Shell today, while Anton Reid, 3-1, is expected to start for Adcock Roofing. The number two pitchers on each staff, Bill Shaw of Clem Leonard Shell and John Bryant of Adcock Roofing, are each 2-0.

First baseman Jeff Derr leads Clem Leonard Shell at the plate with a .778 average, while Merthie is hitting at a .769 clip and Shaw is batting .613.

Bryant leads Adcock at the plate with an .800 batting average, while Reid is hitting .500.

In today's first game at Chase Park, Butch's Chevron plays Rinker Materials at 4:30 p.m.

Reardon Snaps Met Skid

ANDRE DAWSON
...two home runs

By United Press International
Jeff Reardon, who pitched two shutout innings to snap a nine-game losing streak for the New York Mets with a 4-3, 10-inning victory over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday night, sounded relieved by the outcome.
"It meant a lot to me to be able to finish it and get the victory," he said. "This hasn't exactly been a dream year for me or the club."
It was almost another nightmare for Reardon and the hapless Mets, who have the major leagues' second worst record, 9-24. The Giants put runners on first and third with two outs in the 10th, but Reardon got Jerry Martin to line out to left to end the game.
Reardon, 1-0, said, "My shoulder began to tighten up ... but it was the first chance I've had this year to win a game, and I wanted to win so badly they would have had to drag me off the mound."

The Mets won the game in the top of the 10th when they loaded the bases with one out against Giants' ace reliever Greg Minton, with a walk to Lee Mazzilli and singles by Joel Youngblood and Dave Kingman. Alex Trevino followed with a fly to center, and Mazzilli beat Martin's throw home for the game-winner.
New York starter Greg Harris, making his major-league debut, went the first six innings and yielded four hits and two runs and Mets' Manager Joe Torre said, "I liked what I saw."

Miller Single Drops Oakland

By United Press International
Although the Oakland A's haven't quite been shot down from first place in the Western Division, they have dropped 14 of their last 22 games.
A two-run, two-out single by Boston's Rick Miller in the seventh inning snapped a 3-3 tie in Fenway Park Wednesday night and dealt the angry A's their seventh straight loss, a 5-3 defeat.
"It's the manager's credit when you win and it's his fault when you lose, so I'll take all the blame," said Oakland Manager Billy Martin, who then proceeded to give homeplate umpire Terry Cooney a evenwale.
"He was even worse than we were," cracked Martin.
The Red Sox were no-hit for five of the sixth inning they batted and managed just seven hits, all off loser Steve McCatty, 4-4.
McCatty, who disagreed with many of Cooney's ball-strike calls, proved Martin doesn't have the only barbed tongue on the A's.
"I want everything I can get and the hitter wants everything he can get. I understand that," McCatty said. "But I'll be darned if I'm going to get burned every time."

drove in two runs each to lift the Orioles to their eighth straight triumph. Dennis Martinez, 5-1, notched his fifth straight win.
White Sox 6, Blue Jays 5
Carlton Fisk went 4-for-5 and singled in Ron LeFlore in the eighth inning to break a 3-3 tie for Chicago. Darnaso Garcia clubbed his first home run of the season for the Blue Jays.
Martinez 3, Indians 1
Brian Allard combined with Shane Rawley on a five-hitter and Tom Paciorek doubled home the go-ahead run to lead Seattle to victory. Jeff Burroughs homered for Seattle.
Tigers 5, Rangers 4
A two-run single by Al Cowens in the sixth inning and two-run doubles by Richie Hebner and Lance Parrish in the seventh rallied the Tigers.
Brewers 6, Twins 1
Ed Romero lofted a seventh-inning sacrifice fly to snap a 1-1 tie at home and Jim Ganter had four hits to spark the Brewers to their fifth straight win. The loss was the Twins' seventh straight.

North Stars Look To Boggle Minds

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — After dropping the first three games of the Stanley Cup finals, the Minnesota North Stars surprised a lot of people Tuesday night by winning Game 4 in Bloomington to stay alive in the best-of-seven playoff series with the New York Islanders.
The North Stars may be simply delaying the inevitable, but they plan to do that three more times, beginning tonight at the Nassau Coliseum.
"We didn't think about winning four in a row. That would be mind-boggling," said Coach Glen Sonmor after the North Stars' 4-3 victory. "We just said, 'Not tonight,' and Thursday night we'll say, 'Not tonight' again, and see what happens. This team doesn't concede anything."

If the North Stars can say, "Not tonight," three more times, they will pull off a rare feat; but the heavily favored Islanders, defending champions as well as this year's regular season champs, aren't about to let them.
"It's history," said the Islanders' Bob Bourne of Game 4, "just like our three wins are. We've got to concern ourselves with winning the next one."
The Islanders, who can become the 11th team since 1928 to win two or more consecutive Stanley Cups, won their first one at home last year, when they went the full seven games before conquering Philadelphia.
The North Stars became the first team since 1967 to deny a team a sweep after it had won the first three games of the final series.

"You hate to admit it and you really want to talk about it, but with a 3-0 lead, you tend to get a bit lax," said defenseman Mike McEwen. "We were ready physically, but we might not have put every effort into the game."
Naturally, the North Stars don't agree. "The way we played is the way we played to get here," said Brad Maxwell, a 23-year-old defenseman. "It's no fluke that we're here."
One of the best things about the Stars Tuesday night was rookie goaltender Don Beaupre, who turned aside 33 shots.
"Don Beaupre gave us an absolutely superb game, and the rest of the team really gave it everything," Sonmor said. They will have to do that again tonight.

Bantam Tumin Rolls 515, State Tournament Bound
Sanford's Ken Tumin, a 13-year-old Bowl America Bantam League competitor, rolled an outstanding 515 series in his Saturday Morning League.
Tumin, who is the son of A.F. Tumin Sr., strung together games of 190, 173 and 152. Just two weeks earlier, Tumin sandwiched a 195 game among a 483 series.
The sixth grade "A" honor roll student at Lakeview Middle School has been selected to represent Bowl America in the State Bowling Tournament May 30 at F. Lauderdale.
Strikers Trim Rowdies 3-2
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The Fort Lauderdale Strikers have maintained their lead in the North American Soccer League Southern Division — but they were hardpressed to do it.
Trailing the Tampa Bay Rowdies by a point with less than seven minutes left, the Strikers got a goal from Gerd Mueller to send the game into overtime, then pulled out a 3-2 victory with a goal by rookie Robert Meschbach Wednesday.
Meschbach, of Indiana University, crossed in front of the goal, took a pass from Thomas Rongen and kicked the winner from about 12 yards out in the foul-filled game before 14,441 fans at Lockhart Stadium.
The victory kept the Strikers on top in the Southern Division with a 7-3 record and 51 points.
The third-place Rowdies, who fell to 3-7, scored first at 9:21 on a goal by Washington Olivera with an assist by Peter Roe.
Fort Lauderdale didn't score until 23:06, on a free kick by Teofilo Cubillas, his fourth of the season. But Tampa Bay took the lead again at 36:12 when Canadian Wes McLeod took a pass from Olivera and went one-on-one with Striker goalkeeper Jan van Beveren, booting in a six-yarder from the left side.
Tampa Bay had 15 fouls in the game and Fort Lauderdale 19.

Brewer 'Igniter' Molitor Not Satisfied With Charcoal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some guys have the life. Like Paul Molitor. He sits in his own backyard soaking up the sun in peaceful solitude, barbecuing a steak or simply letting the rest of the world go by. And he hates every single minute of it.
That's because he'd much rather be playing baseball for the Milwaukee Brewers.
The Brewers call their 24-year-old converted center fielder "The Igniter" and the description fits perfectly. Milwaukee has any number of extraordinarily talented players, including Robin Yount, Ben Oglivie, Cecil Cooper, Gorman Thomas, Ted Simmons, Lerry Hiale and Rollie Fingers. But Molitor is the heart that pumps the blood into the club. He's the one that makes it go.
For the past three weeks, however, the fourth-place Brewers haven't been going particularly anywhere and it has to be more than sheer coincidence this is exactly the same period Molitor has been sidelined. He snapped a ligament in his left ankle in a game with the California Angels May 3 in Anaheim and underwent surgery in Milwaukee two days later.
Originally, the doctors reported Molitor wouldn't be able to play again for a month. Then they revised that estimate and said it would be more like 10 or 12 weeks. That was an especially severe jolt for someone like Molitor who lives to play baseball but had to miss 43 contests plus the All-Star game last year because of a pulled ribcage muscle.
He has been getting around with the help of crutches lately and Tuesday, Molitor, who has been wearing a walking cast since his operation, got some heartening news from Dr. Paul Jacobs, the Brewers' team physician. He was told he could discard one of his crutches.

Milton Richman

Milton Richman
UPI Sports Editor

out. Partly because of that, he suffered the injury he's recuperating from now.
"I hit a ball up the middle and (Fred) Patek made a helluva play on it. I could see it was going to be one of those bang-bang plays so I kinda surged forward to give it a little extra as I approached first base. Instead of coming down on the front of the base as I should've, I hit the bag dead center with my left foot. My cleats didn't catch and my foot slid across the base. Suddenly, I felt a pop and looking down, I could see my ankle literally crumble ... and knew it was a bad injury."
"They carried me off the field and I don't think I was in the clubhouse more than three minutes when (Brewers' President) Bud Selig called from Milwaukee to ask about me. I don't know how it is with other clubs, but on this one, the players are made to feel more like family than like employees."
Molitor started out at shortstop with the Brewers three years ago, then was moved to second to make way for Yount and was shifted to center this spring, Thomas moving over to right.

What's Mears Done Lately?

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — What has racing done lately for Rick Mears?
One might be inclined to say, "not much," after the Bakersfield, California's 1980 season, in which he won only one race and earned less than half the $408,078 he collected in 1979 when he won three races — including the Indianapolis 500.
"Actually, racing has been good to me," says Mears, 29, who will start from the eighth row in Sunday's classic, the richest auto race in the world with a purse reaching $1 million. "Racing has opened a lot of doors for me, mainly in appearance work. There's also a lot of business opportunities when I get ready to take them on."

One good thing about this injury compared with last year's is that I've been able to do some sit-ups and some weight lifting," Molitor explained. "I couldn't do anything like that when I was hurt last year."

In the evenings when the Brewers are at home, he sometimes goes to County Stadium where he watches them with Selig from the owner's private box.
"Just sitting and not being able to do anything is tough," Molitor said. "It was more enjoyable the last few days because we were winning."

PANKHURST IN SECOND YEAR

Pankhurst, a women's organization in Seminole County named for the founder of Britain's suffrage movement, is unique — so unique, in fact, that this group of energetic women may be the charter group of similar organizations throughout the United States. Now in its second year, a new slate of officers was elected at the final luncheon meeting of the season at Seminole Community College. Installing officer Seminole County Commissioner Robert Sturm and Pankhurst president Marion Giannini, left, of Longwood admire pen set given to the retiring president, Ann Neiswender, right.

Lee Family Gathers For Reunion

Eighty-five descendants of Wiley and Mary McDonald Lee of the Lake City area gathered at the Charles S. Lee ranch near Chulucota for a family reunion Saturday.

Charles Lee is the youngest son of James Hiram and Laura Barnett Lee who moved by wagon from Lake City to pioneer in Oviedo in 1874. They were the parents of 10 children, 8 of whom were born and reared in Oviedo.

Mr. Lee served 12 years on the Orange County Commission from Oviedo prior to the formation of Seminole County.

The oldest family member present was Mrs. Charlotte Lee Lawton of Oviedo, widow of the late Seminole County school superintendent, T.W. Lawton.

The youngest member present was Clayton Lee, 4-month-old son of Robert E. Lee Jr., and great grandson of Charles Lee. He is of the sixth generation to be born in Florida and the fourth generation to be born in Seminole County.

Charles S. Lee Jr. of Clarksville, Tenn. traveled the longest distance. Other members came from Jacksonville, Orange Park, Titusville, Longwood, Orlando, Plat City, Miami and Sanford.

Gamma Lambda Elects Officers

Gamma Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met at the home of Donna Frank. Guests were Valerie Taylor, Suzon Lake and Suzie Beadles.

B & P City Council had a special meeting to vote on the following officers for the upcoming year: Donna Frank, president; Carol Law, vice president; Carol Ann Smith, recording secretary; Diane Gail, treasurer; and Vertis Sauls, corresponding secretary.

Service and Sunshine Committee reported that BETA house will be receiving items collected by members. One of the members of Gamma Lambda is very ill. All members sent her a card and a yellow rose. Also, members will supply dinner once a week until she is on her feet again.

The social in May will be combined with the last scheduled meeting of the year. Each member will bring her "specialty" food and dinner will be served while members find out who has been their "Beta Buddy" (secret pal) all year.

Donna Frank gave the program for the evening. Members were taught how to make a fruity tropical drink. Darcy Bono won the hostess gift.

Mom Who 'Left' Not To Blame For Family's 'Ruin'

DEAR ABBY: You said, in defense of divorce, "I think it's more important to save people than marriages. And often, in an effort to save a marriage that isn't worth saving, people have destroyed themselves and-or each other."

I disagree. After 29 years and three grown (and left-home) children, my wife walked out. Her reason: "I want to do my own thing in my own way."

By your logic, Abby, she saved one person (herself) and ruined four (our three sons and me).

One son stood in our home and said, "I am the product of a broken home and I always will be." Then rivers of tears streamed down his face.

Need more be said?

M. INOHIO

DEAR M.: Yes. Much more. It's difficult to understand how your wife could "ruin" a husband and three grown (and left-home) children by walking out after 29 years.

Every day thousands of people who are "left" by death and-or divorce manage to survive. It's not the end of the world. And if your son is going to blame whatever inadequacies he has or may have in the future on being "the product of a broken home," he will never be a man — no matter how tall he grows.

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the "genius" who found a system to beat the crap tables, I nearly died laughing.

The gambling establishments have special red carpets they roll out for "system" players.

The only ones who have the edge on the house are "black-jack counters," and once they are known, they are barred from playing blackjack.

Systems for craps are as good as systems for horses. There aren't any that work.

Take it from one who knows.

I.S. (BEEN AROUND)

DEAR LS: As my father used to say, "If a man with money tells the casino owners in Vegas that he's figured out a way to beat the crap table, they'll send a plane for him."

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the woman who has had it with baby sitters. I happen to be a 15½-year-old baby sitter and I want her to know that not all sitters go through all the drawers, smoke pot, try on clothes, talk on the phone, entertain their friends and eat everything they get their hands on.

Here are a few of the things some baby sitters have to put up with:

Kids who won't mind.

Kids who scream and fight with their brothers and sisters.

Pets who make a mess on the rug.

Parents who say they'll be back by midnight and don't get back until 2 a.m.

Adults who drive the sitter home and are in no condition to be driving. (They're drunk.)

People who don't pay the sitter and run bills for a couple of months. And by the way, I'm paid $1 an hour and I'm glad to get it.

Thanks for letting me tell our side of it. Sign this...

HAD IT WITH PARENTS

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and have a problem. Softball starts soon, and it falls on the same day and time as my clarinet lesson. My parents want me to continue my clarinet lesson, but my softball coach can't change the practice time.

My clarinet instructor can't change my lesson time either. I want to play softball. Your reply will help us decide.

L. WAGNER, ELKHORN, NEB.

DEAR L.: Appeal to your clarinet teacher again. Surely there is one pupil who will change the time of his (or her) lesson to accommodate you.

While sports is as important as music, a town the size of Elkhorn can't afford to lose a clarinetist to the softball team.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OGL

For Friday May 22, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY (May 22, 1981)
Your possibilities for success this coming year are very good. However, your progress might not come as quickly as your impatience demands. Be satisfied with steady growth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
This is not a good day to offer unsolicited advice. Even if others ask for your comments, weigh what you have to say with care. Romance, travel, luck resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10018. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
For expeditious reasons you may feel obligated to make promises to associates today. Keep in mind: Commitments you make now will have to be kept later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
There are certain tasks which should be attended to today and, even though you're aware of their importance, you might look for reasons to postpone doing them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
At a social gathering today one may be present who has a tendency to gossip. Try to avoid this person. He or she may attempt to pry information from you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Be very careful today regarding with whom you discuss family secrets. If you talk to the wrong person, it could be broadcast to the neighborhood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)
Someone who is a taker may try to appeal to your more compassionate instincts today in order to get you to part with something that he or she wants.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Should you be selling a product or service today, don't be afraid to ask for what you deem to be a fair price. If it's worth it, they'll pay.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Today you may have to cope with negative impulses which could hamper your best efforts. Act first. Worry later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Normally, you enjoy getting out and mixing with others. Today, you could spoil your fun by being a trifle withdrawn and reclusive. Go where the action is.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Don't be afraid of competitive involvements today. Above all, don't view yourself as the underdog. Your chances for winning are just as good as those of others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Listen carefully to what others have to say to you today. You could read meanings into their words which actually weren't intended.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Check all financial receipts or business documents with extra care today. The possibilities for small mistakes in these areas are strong.

Sleep Convulsions Form Of Epilepsy

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—In my mid-30s I started having periods of noisy breathing during my sleep. Most disturbing to my wife was that sometimes I would stop breathing for a while and then gasp for air.

At about age 40 I would wake in the middle of the night with the feeling of smothering. I could gain air by rolling to a face down position. At age 56 I had a grand mal seizure. I was put on anticonvulsant drugs and warned to limit coffee and liquor. I still had seizures about every six months until three years ago after I mastered the art of sleeping face down. All of my seizures have been at night and I can start one by sleeping on my back.

Recently I read about sleep apnea. How can doctors classify me as epileptic when I have such a history?

DEAR READER—When you were first diagnosed, sleep apnea was not described. I can't be sure that is your problem but your story certainly sounds like it.

Everyone who has convulsions does not have epilepsy. A person with a very slow involuntary involuntary block may have a seizure from lack of oxygen supply to the brain. The treatment is a heart pacemaker, not anticonvulsant medicines. There are many other causes of convulsions, too. If there is a failure to supply oxygen to the brain for any reason, it can cause convulsions.

I would like to suggest that you ask your doctors to send you to the nearest sleep center for studies. They may be very interested in your unusual case.

Sleep apnea has been popularized in recent years because it is new but it is a relatively infrequent cause for problems in sleeping. I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-6. Sleep and Insomnia, for more details. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10018.

I would like to see anyone who has a history of stopping breathing during sleep have a careful study. It may be one factor that causes men to have heart attacks more frequently than women. Men seem to be more prone to the problem. It is related to the respiratory reflex center in the brain.

DEAR DR. LAMB—My son was extremely heavy but with careful dieting he lost more than 100 pounds. His flesh has firmed up very well except for fatty breasts. Our family doctor has approved weight lifting but was at a loss to suggest a particular exercise to reduce the breasts. We would appreciate any help or exercise program you can suggest.

DEAR READER—Rarely some medical problems can cause this condition but I am sorry to tell you that there is no such thing as spot reducing. Exercising the chest muscles alone will not eliminate breast fat. It is still the old story of a balance between calories in and calories used. As your son continues to increase his use of calories through a generalized exercise program and diet control, he will eventually eliminate those unwanted fat deposits.

Many people know that when you lose it tends to disappear last from the places where you want to eliminate it the most.

For localized breast fat, which some men are prone to have, if a reasonable exercise and diet program does not work, one can consider simple surgical removal of the fat pad.

WIN AT BRIDGE

The bidding in the box took place at table one. South elected to respond one spade. He knew that East and West held a lot of hearts and saw no reason to give them a chance to preempt before he could show spades. From then on there was no trouble getting to four spades. It made sense since all the defense could collect were two clubs and a heart. Of course, East-West could have tried five hearts. That contract would only be down two and minus 300 is better than minus 420.

At the other table East and West wound up with a plus score. The bidding started the same way, but South chose to redouble.

West bid the same two hearts. North passed. East jumped to four hearts and South tried five diamonds. The defense collected three tricks for a delightful 30 point plus.

We don't blame the redouble entirely for this debacle. North might well have tried two spades over two hearts and South might also have bid four spades rather than five diamonds, but the redouble got North-South off to the bad start that led to their immersion in the soup.

MISS USA TO BE CROWNED TONIGHT

Elke Sommer and Bob Barker (above) are co-hosts, and Donny Osmond will perform, on "The 1981 Miss USA Pageant," to be broadcast, live, from Biloxi, Miss., tonight (9-11 p.m., ET) on the CBS Television Network.

Miss New York Sues To Get Back In Pageant

NEW YORK (UPI) — Miss New York is seeking a court order allowing her to compete in tonight's Miss U.S.A. Pageant, claiming a contestant with silicone-enlarged breasts turned her in for padding her swimsuit.

Beauty queen Deborah Ann Fountain said she used inch-thick falsies to compensate for a 15-pound weight loss that followed the death of her brother.

Miss Fountain, 25, was booted from the competition Tuesday after her fellow contestants voted 29-21 in favor of her oyster. Her attorney, Gerald Posner, said that was "like having the wolves decide if the rabbit should live."

Posner said he would ask for her reinstatement today at a state Supreme Court hearing in Manhattan.

Miss Fountain is the only contestant to be booted out of the 38-year-old pageant, which selects a winner to vie for the title of Miss Universe. The Miss U.S.A. Pageant will be nationally televised tonight from the Mississippi Coast Coliseum in Biloxi.

"I wanted to be famous, but not like this," Miss Fountain said.

She said she was suing the pageant "for the terrible humiliation they have caused me." She said in court papers that a beauty pageant official, tipped by a contestant with silicone implants, ripped down her swimsuit, exposing her falsies backstage.

At least four other women in the contest had silicone implants to boost their bustlines, Miss Fountain said. She said she knew "from seeing the scars" on their breasts when

Stacey's Cafe:

The Cash Drawer Is Always Open

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (UPI) — It isn't because the service is bad customers pour their own coffee at Stacey's cafe. And the owners don't fear a ripoff by patrons rifling through the unattended cash drawer.

Whether it's tourists from Chicago or a lifelong customer from Traverse City, nearly all the diners who eat at Chuck and Julie Stathakis' restaurant make their own change at the cash register — just as they have for more than 23 years.

"If they don't know how to work the cash register, we show them how," Mrs. Stathakis said. "People have made a mistake and then came in the next day and said, 'Hey Julie, I took a dollar too much out of the register yesterday.'"

"We've never had anything stolen. If they know you don't trust them, then they'll just see what they can get away with."

The open cash register isn't the only thing that makes Stacey's a retreat from the outside world.

The waitresses are always nearby and the conversation is free flowing. Each diner gets dessert with dinner, even if it wasn't ordered — just part of the regular fare at Stacey's. Coffee is there for the taking.

The neon sign out front and the display windows on each side of the front door are reminiscent of the 1950s. Inside, a counter runs the length of the long, narrow restaurant on one side, booths line the other wall, and tables are sandwiched in between.

Mrs. Stathakis comes in before sunup to prepare for breakfast and is usually there long after dinner, coffee pot in hand, ready to offer a bit of advice to a friend or her opinion on the evening's dinner conversation.

Her husband comes in about noon and sits in the last booth, talking to friends and joking with the busboy and waitresses. He waxes nostalgic when a newcomer asks about his years as a restaurateur in Traverse City.

"People call you by your first name when you walk out the door. You see people come in, maybe they came in when they were kids and now they are bringing their kids in... it's more than a living or working, you're dealing with people," Stathakis says.

"The people who live in big cities don't know what they're missing. If I tried it (allowing customers to use the cash register) in Chicago I'd be busted in a half an hour," he said with a laugh.

Chuck and Julie bought the restaurant, then called Keke's, in 1957. The only thing they changed was the name.

Harry Bradford, owner of a shoe store down the street, said he has been eating lunch in Stacey's ever since the Stathakis bought the place.

"It's the only place to come," he said. "I come here so often Julie just fixes me up. I never order — it's like a home away from home."

...Parents Help Pregnant Teens

said Fran, and Georgina added that she is also looking forward to the birth of her grandchild this summer. But Georgina shuddered and wiped away tears from her reddened eyes when Helen said she saw her first grandchild put up for adoption.

For Tammy, Georgina said, the decision to go through with the pregnancy was difficult.
"The boyfriend urged abortion and he had taken her to the abortion clinic," she related. "But when she got there, she backed out, probably when she saw all those youngsters there."

"The boyfriend yelled and screamed at her all the way back," she went on timidly and in a choked voice. "He dropped her. I'm glad he left her now. That way I know what kind of a boy he is."

She managed a broad smile that tried to hide her tears when she said she had been to the doctor with Tammy and had "heard the baby's heart beat. It's wonderful."

Karen said as the parent of a boy, she felt left out in the decision the kids made. "The girl's mother called the shots," she said. "The girl's mother said no abortion and even said when the wedding would be."

"I felt the kids were too young to have this baby and wondered why the girl's doctor didn't talk to her more about abortion," Karen said.

Thinking about the girl raising the child makes the parent wonder how to act.

"Nancy has been around babies all her life," Bertha said, noting she had come from a large family. "She's been caring for nieces and nephews and they call her 'little mother.'"

"Nancy knows her responsibilities of being a teen mother," she said, adding her daughter attends pre-natal classes offered at MAPP.

What do these parents think about sex education in school?

Those interviewed were quick to say that sex education should be taught at home and when the children are young. But, they said, something should be taught in the schools.

Bazzoli said when he goes into the schools to talk about sexuality, he gives a quiz with simple, basic questions taken right from books.

"There are no trick questions," he said. "And most kids flunk. Kids don't know. Kids think they know."

Fran, who has become very defensive and calls her pregnant daughter a single parent rather than an unwed mother, said she thinks sex education in school should include a film on the birth of a baby.

Georgina says sex education at home should "include a package of birth control pills."

Judy wants her husband to handle the sex talk to the younger boy in the family, the one who informed her of her daughter's pregnancy. She says seeing two pregnancies in the family already has had a "bad effect" on the boy.

Judy's older son got married a week before the baby was born and the young parents lived with Judy and her husband.

The younger son "resented that baby in the home and his grades dropped," she said. She also said she thought her daughter-in-law was too immature to handle the child.

"How do you tell a 15-year-old how to bring up a baby?" she asked.

Karen said their younger son was also affected by his older brother getting married and becoming a father.

"The younger one had had girlfriends since the fifth grade," she said. "Since this happened, he's practically teetotal girls."

Parents who have gone through this traumatic experience offer advice to others facing this same problem.

"It's not the end of the world. You can cope," said Helen. "Don't blame yourself. You only make yourself more miserable."

"You've got to look forward. Take the right attitude and you'll get through," said David. "When there is a problem, it has been exposed and a decision has been made, support it."

"We didn't bury our head in the sand and that helped," chimed in his wife Eleanor.

Judy passed along a statement of her daughter Yvonne when her older brother married shortly before the baby was born: "Don't fight it or you'll lose him."

Bertha, Nancy's mother, relied on her religious upbringing.

"I was hurt, floored. I didn't realize she was sexually involved. At first I couldn't talk to her. I didn't hate her even though she said, 'You don't love me.'"

"I went into my room and prayed for strength to overcome these feelings," she said tearfully. "Then I went out and told my daughter I loved her."

Judge Pleads Guilty

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (UPI) — Suspended Alabama Judge Thomas B. Coggin will be sentenced June 19 for smuggling marijuana.

Coggin, arrested with 90 pounds of marijuana in his light plane when he landed at the St. Lucie International Airport January 31, withdrew his plea of not guilty Wednesday and pleaded no contest to marijuana smuggling charges.

The plea change came after Circuit Judge Hoyce Lewis denied a defense motion to suppress certain physical evidence and statements taken from Coggin at the time of his arrest last Jan. 31.

Coggin, 41, was charged with possession of marijuana, importation of a controlled substance and carrying a concealed firearm while committing a felony.

Lewis set sentencing for June 19. Coggin faces a maximum 30 year sentence.

In Alabama, Coggin is scheduled for trial May 27 on charges he misapplied state evidence by allegedly taking a gun and some marijuana that were used as evidence in his court.

Coggin has been disqualified from carrying out his judicial duties by the Alabama Judicial Inquiry Commission because of the felony charges.

Cambodian Unity Is Sought To Oust Vietnamese

PEKING (UPI) — A burst of diplomatic and military maneuvering is drawing the battle lines in Indochina more sharply than at any time since the Vietnam war.

The United States, China and non-communist Southeast Asian nations have achieved what diplomats describe as a "working coordination" aimed at driving Vietnamese troops and their Soviet supporters out of Cambodia.

They are attempting to nudge rival Cambodian rebel factions into a "united front" that would receive Chinese and perhaps American weapons to fight the Vietnamese and the Heng Samrin government they installed in Phnom Penh.

In addition, the five members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand — have requested a U.N. conference in July in New York to demand Vietnam's withdrawal from Cambodia. With U.S. and Chinese support, the conference is certain to be held whether or not Hanoi and Moscow attend.

For its part, Hanoi has attempted to legitimize its control of Cambodia by staging national elections that showed overwhelming support for the Heng Samrin government. Hanoi opposes the international conference as interference in Cambodia's internal affairs and says the Cambodian situation is "irreversible."

Another apparent sign of the hardening of positions are reports of new skir-mushing along the China-Vietnam border, with each side accusing the other of intrusions and provocations.

Western diplomats are cautious about proclaiming the formation of an "alliance" among the anti-Hanoi forces, saying there are still some key differences, particularly among the Cambodian rebels.

But they acknowledge the efforts of these countries are coalescing in a way that could bring real diplomatic and perhaps military pressure on Vietnam.

"We do have a working coordination among the parties," one diplomatic source said. "We all support the formation of the united front and we all support the convening of an international conference. Beyond that, I'm not prepared to speculate."

Few diplomats underestimate the difficulties of forging a united front among the unpredictable Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former Prime Minister Son Sann and forces of the Khmer Rouge (Red Cambodians), the country's ruthless, home-grown communist movement that, under former Prime Minister Pol Pot, forced the mass evacuation of Cambodian cities.

The Cambodians are deeply mistrustful and resentful of each other from long years of experience. Sihanouk, But the Cambodians appear to recognize that some semblance of unity will be required before they can expect large scale military assistance against the Vietnamese.

Students Doing Better With Literacy Testing

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Seventy-eight percent of the high school students taking the functional literacy test for the first time last month passed, the best showing in the five-year-old program, officials said Wednesday.

Fifty-one percent of the blacks tested passed, better than a 100 percent improvement over the original testing in 1977, Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington reported.

"These are the highest scores, basically, that we've ever had, especially in mathematics," Turlington said at a news conference.

The results released Wednesday were from the literacy exam given to high school sophomores during the week of April 1-8. It is this group that must pass the exam to get a high school diploma if the state is able to convince a federal judge in Tampa that its testing program is fair.

This group of students will have four more shots at the test before their June 1983 scheduled graduation. Turlington predicted that 95 percent of the blacks eventually will pass, getting a diploma instead of "a certificate of completion" and that the passing rate among all students will be "98 to 99 percent."

Turlington reiterated his belief the state will convince Judge George Carr that material on the exam is taught in the public schools and remedial education programs have aided blacks suffering from inferior early-childhood education they received in the old desegregated schools.

The showing was ordered recently by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, which concluded that the testing concept isn't unconstitutional on its face, but the test as currently structured is potentially discriminatory.

The test, which measures 8th grade reading, writing and computation skills, was first given to 11th graders in 1977. Of that group, an alarming 78 percent of blacks failed, compared to only a 25 percent failure rate for whites. The failure rate for all students was 37 percent.

Lane Kirkland Attacks Administration's Tax Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a sweeping attack on the administration's "grossly unfair" tax cut plan, AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland Wednesday urged Congress to reject the president's three-year proposal in favor of a one-year reduction.

"The administration program is presented with a facade of 'equity' for individuals and 'neutrality' for corporations," Kirkland told the Senate Finance Committee in prepared testimony. "It is neither."

The finance panel is conducting a series of hearings before drafting its own tax cut blueprint.

Kirkland said President Reagan's call for a 30 percent cut in personal income tax rates over the next three years "would risk further inflation, exacerbate fundamental economic weaknesses and waste essential government revenue."

Kirkland said the AFL-CIO supports a plan that would give tax credits to offset the recent increase in Social Security taxes, thereby benefiting mainly people earning less than $30,000 a year. The administration's plan would give the biggest tax cut to those who pay the most in taxes — wealthy Americans.

The AFL-CIO-supported plan would refund to taxpayers 20 percent of their Social Security payments during the year even if they paid no income tax, with equivalent reductions to those not covered by Social Security.

It would cost $18 billion, compared with the $30 billion cost of the first year of the administration program, Kirkland said.

"By contrast, the administration's tax package is grossly unfair and much too costly," he said. "It would add to inflation, exacerbate basic economic problems and dissipate funds needed for their resolution."

"Because we are also concerned about the consequences of locking the economy into a three-year tax cut, the AFL-CIO supports a one-year tax cut," he said. "Any further changes should be based on experience, not guesswork."

Teen Drug Use Dropping; But It's Still A Problem

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Teen-ago use of marijuana and "angel dust" leveled off in 1980 after a 17-year rise but drug use by the young is still "a major national problem," a researcher says.

Dr. Alfred S. Friedman, director of the Drug Treatment Program at the Philadelphia Psychiatric Center, said Tuesday that 1980 was the first year since 1962 that the use of cigarettes, marijuana, inhalant-solvents and PCP, known as "angel dust," leveled off among high school teens.

He said, however, that 1980 showed an increase in the use of stimulants and methamphetamine among teen-age girls.

Among adults, the use of hard drugs such as heroin, cocaine, hallucinogens and inhalants increased from 3 percent to 33 percent during 1962 to 1980, he said.

While 37 percent of high school students reported current use of marijuana in 1979, Friedman said the number dropped to 34 percent in 1980.

"However, 60 percent of the class of '80 still reported that they had used marijuana some time in their lives, the same as the previous year's class," he said. "Obviously drug use among teen-agers, as well as alcohol use, is still extensive and constitutes a major national problem."

Friedman said the 1980 figures were developed by the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research.

5 Historic Preservation Boards Get Committee's Ax

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Senate governmental operations committee, ignoring pleas by Tampa officials, Wednesday voted to abolish five historic preservation boards — but spared boards in three other old cities.

The committee also approved creation of an urban redevelopment fund, although the sponsor of the bill said the $10 million proposed for rebuilding downtown areas is not in the budget this year. Sen. Edgar Dunn, D-Daytona Beach, said he wanted to set up the legal framework for making grants to cities for urban rebuilding, when money becomes available.

At the request of Attorney General Jim Smith, the committee also approved a bill allowing city and county police agencies to enter into mutual assistance contracts. Smith said Florida's existing law on the topic is so unclear he has been "discouraging" mayors and police chiefs from asking him for a legal opinion — because he might have to tell them it is technically illegal for police agencies to help out across city and county lines.

The committee approved a "Sun-down" bill abolishing the Tallahassee, Boca Raton, Tampa-Hillsborough, Broward and Volusia-Flagler County historic preservation boards.

Those agencies were given a year to switch to city and county support, at the request of the Secretary of State's office.

The committee approved continued state funding of the St. Augustine, Pensacola and Key West preservation boards. Those seven-member boards, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate, would operate museums.

In addition to the five historic preservation boards getting the ax, the Ybor City Historic District and Barrio Latino Commission would no longer exist by statute — but could be turned over to county operation immediately.

Sen. Malcolm Beard, D-Tampa, argued unsuccessfully for continued state operation of the Tampa-Hillsborough preservation board. He said many "dedicated, selfless citizens have given of their time and money" for preserving historic parts of the Tampa Bay area.

Mercer Fearington, representing Tampa Preservation Inc., fully told the committee, "As fast as Florida is growing, we ought to do all we can to keep the condominiums from swallowing up the historical areas that we have."
