Johnson's body was found in a woods off the south end of Shell Road at 11:30 a.m. Monday by a sheriff's deputy. She had been shot once in the "upper body."

Tuesday, the body of Miss Johnson was flown to Tallahassee to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement crimb lab to be examined by laser light for latent fingerprints. It was the first time the sheriff's department used the technique. Carroll said he was not sure of the results and would not comment further. The woman's autopsy was completed Wednesday.

To Force Loan Repayment

Justice Dept. Files Suit Against SEEDCO

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

The U.S. Justice Department has filed suit in federal court in Washington D.C. to force repayment of $2.6 million in federal loans by the Seminole Economic Employment Development Corp. (SEEDCO).

Jerry Bruen, attorney for the federal department, said today the suit was filed last Thursday after nearly a year's negotiations with SEEDCO proved "unproductive.'

He said while Tersh Boasberg. attorney for SEEDCO, as part of the negotiations offered to turn over the administration of a loan to Dade County made by SEEDCO with $2 million of the money, he also asked the federal government to assume payment of a bank loan made by SEEDCO pledging receipts from Dade County as security.

Bruen said SEEDCO is current wo loans, but the situation is unacceptable since the state Department of Health and Human Services previously declared the loans due and payable in their entirety.

, "As of January, 1983, SEEDCO owed us the entire amount," Bruen said. "If one pays a part of something, that doesn't mean he is up to date.

Meanwhile, Horace Orr. SEEDCO president, said today he's "going to beat the federal government in court."

With the controversy swirling around SEEDCO, prospective grants for administration of other community development agencles in the state are being held up while the state Department of Community Affairs Secretary John DeGrove reviews the applications.

SEEDCO applied for one of those grants of $100,000 to assist with administrative costs of the Sanford-based organization. The recipients of the grant funds were supposed to be announced last week.

Orr said today the U.S. Health and Human Services Department was preparing last year to file a default Judgement on the $2.6 million in loans a year ago without notifying SEEDCO.

"But I have some friends in Washington who let me know ibout it." he said. He said SEEDCO then filed a suit in court secking an injunction.

Orr said he expects the SEEDCO sult seeking an injunction will be combined with the U.S. HHS suit with both suits heard by the same federal district judge at the same time.

Gemayel Seeks New Cabinet

By Hala Khoury

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - President Amin Gemayel began his search today for a new Cabinet and a cease-fire to lead Lebanon toward national unity, but heavy fighting and artillery duels crupted between the army and rebel Moslem militias.

The Lebanese army said its front-line positions around Beirut's Shitte Moslem southern suburbs came under repeated attacks as other Syrian-backed antigovernment forces unleashed an artillery barrage from the hills east of the capital against army supply routes into the beleaguered city.

Shitte Moslem militiainen took control of the main road leading to Beirut's International Airport and the U.S. Marine peacekeeping base there. But the airport remained open and the Marines were not involved in today's fighting.

Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks reported "a certain tenseness" among the 1.200 Marines stationed there but said the base was quiet.

Gemayel, who accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Chefik Wazzan on Sunday. called for a cease-fire and peace talks between the nation's warring factions.

Gemayel held urgent consultations with the country's Christian and Moslem leaders and then appeared on national television to invite Lebanon's warlords to a reconciliation conference scheduled for Feb. 27 in Geneva.

But the opposition, which has demanded a greater voice in the governmen!. dismissed the Gemayel call as a gimmick.

"Unless the president's policy line is changed, there will not be any dialogue with the Gemayel regime." Shitte leader Nabih Herri said.

Gemayel also called on Lebanon's warring factions to observe a cease-fire and a committee made up of representatives from all groups was to meet today.

The Lebanese army reported it was trying to abide by Gemayel's call for a cease-fire but said its opponents were escalating the fighting.

"They launched an attack on our forces around the southern suburbs and are pounding our other positions with artiflery," a military spokesman said.

He said shelling was most intense along the coastal road just north of Beirut. The road is a main supply route for the army fighting in the Befrut area

The Shiftes and Lebanese army troops traded mortar and rocket duels early today around St. Michael's Church in south Beirut where clashes have raged since last week. An estimated 150 people and wounded 561 others have been killed in the fighting over the last several days, according to figures compiled from the Red Cross, hospitals and other sources. No official figures were avail-

Despite repeated calls by Berri and Druze Moslem chief Walld Jumblatt for his resignation. Gemayel pledged to continue to seek "justice and equality" and liberate the land from Syrian and Israeli occupation. Israel has troops stationed in southern Lebanon

Gemayel also vowed to improve ties with Syria, which supports the Moslem militias fighting the government and has demanded the abandonment of Lebanon's U.S.-negotiated 1983 troop withdrawal accord with Israel.

U.S. efforts to soften the Syrian stand have been unsuccessful and Secretary of State George Shultz said in a statement issued in Brasilia Sunday that U.S.-Syrian talks had broken down.

Wazzan said he resigned because of his inability to break Lebanon's 9-year-old cycle of violence.

Moslem and Christian leaders who conferred with Gemayel agreed he must create a national unity government, with fair representation for all Lebanon's various religious groups in the 10-member Cabinet.

School Board To Be Told: Seek New Site For Complex

If the Seminole County School Board listens to advisers it will begin the search anew for a site for a new school transportation, food service and distribution facility.

Benny Arnold, assistant school superintendent for facilities and transportation services, will recommend to the board at its 3 p.m. meeting Wednesday that it give up its option to buy for a 65-acre parcel between U.S. Highway 17-92 and County Road 427 as a site for the combined services complex.

The option, from the Babcock Corp., called for an $840,000 proce.

While the Seminole County Commission, after a three-hour public hearing on Jan. 24, denied rezoning of the property to accomodate the complex. School Board Chairman Bill Kroll said he would try to persuade the commission to change its mind.

The property needed to be rezoned from single family district to public lands and institutions.

Kroll's efforts to persuade County Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn to change her mind on the rezoning failed last week.

A letter from the school board seeking a joint meeting for the purpose of discussing the project was answered by a letter from County Attorney Nikki Clayton to the effect that county regulations require a one-year delay in at: tempts to rezone property after once being turned down.

Mrs. Glenn, Commissioner Bob Sturm, in whose district the property lies, and Commissioner Barbara Christensen voted against the rezoning. Voting in favor were Commissioners Bill Kirchhoff and Robert G. "Bud" Feather.

Kirchhoff warned protestors of the proposed rezoning that ultimate development of the tract might be worse than what the school board was asking for.

Study: Americans Say Bombings worst Crime

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Americans believe terrorist bombings, murders and fatal child beatings are the most serious crimes, but prostitution, smoking marijuana and cheating on taxes are among the least severe, a study

The findings, which could help police and lawmakers decide where to draw the line in fighting crime come from the largest survey ever on how the general public ranks the seriousness of crimes, the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics said.

The "Severity of Crime" study, released Sunday, asked 60,000 adults to rank a list of hypothetical crimes and assign numerical values according to their severity.

Of 204 scenarios, respondents said the most severe crime was the bombing of a public building that killed 20 people. The least severe was a 16-year-old playing hooky from school.

"Numining a narcotics ring was ranked as more serious than hijacking a plane for ransom, and smuggling heroin was considered worse than killing someone by reckless driving.

Murder Suspect Arraigned

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UP!) - A 27-year-old fast food restaurant worker who lived with a minister and had a penchant for girlie magazines is the prime suspect in the slaying of five women in 11 days.

Syvasky Poyner. 27, of Newport News, was arraigned today on a capital murder charge for the fatal shooting of one of the five. Officers said they were confident they can link him to the other four deaths as well.

"We are very confident the same man committed all five murders," said Sgt. Susie Mowry, a spokeswoman for a special 30-member task force that investigated the slayings.

Ballistics tests were being run to determine if the same gun was used in each killing. Police searched for a .38 caliber pistol, among other items, in Poyner's room shortly after arresting him at 1 a.m. Saturday.

Election Change Protest

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) - Opposition leaders, charging President Ferdinand Marcos is insincere about holding clean elections, called on the public to fill the National Assembly today to protest an election law change.

The National Citizens Movement for Free Elections, grouping leading Philippine business. labor and religious organizations, said the "midnight" change was designed to ensure Marcos' ruling party a majority in the parliament even if his candidates lose in the May 14

NAMFREL on Sunday urged a protest of the measure as an estimated 25,000 people in Manila gathered for two separate rallies denouncing the government.

The opposition group asked people to attend today's legislative session called to debate the election bill, submitted last week by the government and denounced by opponents as a move to assure Marcos' ruling New Society Movement (KBL) will retain its majority in the 200-scat legislature.

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., toured military installations in Honduras this weekend which were set up by the U.S. military during the seven-month wargames called Big Pine II.

Sasser told a news conference the next maneuvers, called "Grenadier I." would begin in May and end in June this year, with the participation of 1,700 U.S. troops.

Col. James Strachan, a U.S. military spokesman in Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, would neither confirm nor deny Sasser's report but said "the planning process is going on" for more maneuvers this year.

Sasser said he discovered the new installations "will be permanent" and added he was surprised because the Reagan administration "has not given Congress sufficient explanation" for the installations. He did not elaborate.

Abe criticized the Soviets for walking out of nuclear arms reduction talks with the United States late last year, and urged them "very strongly" to "return to the negotiating table and negotiate seriously."

The Soviet Union broke off the strategic arms limitation and intermediate nuclear forces talks last year in response to the deployment by NATO of new U.S. medium range missiles in western Europe.

Mugging The First Amendment

Government attorneys sometimes get carried away in their pursuit of those they regard as criminals. In one recent tax fraud case, U.S. District Court Judge Fred M. Winner of Denver concluded that several lawyers in the tax division of the Justice Department had gone way overboard, seeking a grand jury indictment in an alleged tax shelter scam. The judge's opinion castigated the attorneys for "browbeating" grand jury witnesses and threatening to "break" a defense attorney unless he divulged confidential client information to the tax men.

Winner's opinion would ordinarily be published in a volume, widely circulated among members of the bench and bar, that includes the latest federal trial court decisions. Instead, in a most extraordinary legal maneuver, the Justice Department, claiming that the opinion was "slanderous" and "scurrilous," obtained a temporary appellate court order that for nearly a month kept the opinion from being reprinted.

Central to the constitutional guarantee of a free press is the proposition that only in the rarest of circumstances should government be able to gag any publication. In the Pentagon Papers case, for instance, not even the assertion that publication of these documents - which detail the American government's role during the early years of the Vietnam conflict - would prolong the war persuaded the Supreme Court to stop the presses.

in the tax suit, there's absolutely no justification for the appellate court's ruling. Winner's opinion criticizes government itself - precisely the sort of commentary central to the First Amendment, which does not give ready aid and comfort to thin-skinned public officials.

The decision reveals no secrets, compromises no confidences. It simply shows the Justice Department being, in this instance, unjust.

When it sought to halt publication of Winner's opinion, the Justice Department doubtlessly hoped to administer a quiet back-alley mugging. But with the wide publicity given to the story, first by the National Law Journal and then in the New York Times, that hope faded. The three appellate judges who acceded to the government's request and temporarily halted publication, lifted that order on Jan. 24.

They had acted without benefit of argument, and with neither legal precedent nor a scintilla of constitutional justification on their side. Curtailing publications that offend the authorities is what the censors in Warsaw or Managua do, not what our Constitution permits.

Reason Returns

The National Labor Relations Board struck a blow for productivity recently with its ruling that employers can transfer work from a union to a non-union plant, provided there is not a labor contract prohibiting such moves. Predictably. labor leaders decried the landmark ruling as being anti-union, and it certainly does represent a major change of course from a half-century of pro-labor rulings. Actually, this touch of common-sense realism confirms that President Reagan's NLRB appointments, now in the majority, are beginning to prevail.

The NLRB first dealt with the question of shifting work from union to non-union plants in 1982, when the board majority was still composed of pro-labor Carter appointees. The resulting ruling sent shockwaves through the nation's boardrooms. The NLRB decreed that Illinois Spring Co. had violated labor laws when, after falling to win wage concessions from union workers at an auto parts assembly operation in Milwaukee, the company moved the work to a non-union facility in McHenry, III., without union approval. The result of the ruling was predicatable: The company incurred such large losses that it nearly went out of business before the union finally agreed to wage concessions.

Now, the Illinois Spring case has been reversed. Under the old ruling, labor could merely turn its back on management requests for wage concessions because it knew the company could not shift operations to a non-union facility. Under the new ruling, unions have an incentive to negotiate in good faith when the financial well-being of a company, and thus that of its workers, is jeopardized by non-productive labor costs, competition, or other factors.

Whether the work is ultimately done in union or non-union plants, the latest NLRB decision means increased productivity. That, most economists will agree, is in the best of interest of everyone: Labor, management, and the nation's economy.

U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park has pushed through the Senate an amendment to the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1983 making the distribution of illegal drugs within 1,000 feet of an elementary or secondary school a federal offense. Under the amendment, repeat adultoffenders would be subject to a mandatory sentence of three years to life.

She said her amendment reflects the recommendations of witnesses who testified at a hearing she held in 1982 on the problem of drugs in the American school system. Witnesses testified at those hearings that an alarming number of school children, of an as young as 11 or 12, are smoking marijuana and drinking

"Even more disturbing is that many of these children are using hard drugs such as PCP. Quaaludes, and LSD," she said.

"Sometimes these drugs are obtained from other students, but they are often sold directly to the juveniles on or near school grounds by adult dealers.

"All the witnesses interviewed believed that threatening pushers who approach our children near schools with stiff penalties will help reduce drug use in schools," Mrs. Hawkins said.

She said her new position on the Foreign Relations Committee will give her the opportunity to work toward stopping international drug trafficking.

As a member of the committee, "I will take whatever action necessary to see that illegal drug producing and trafficking nations cease their activity.

"I give fair warning to any nation that does not take steps to curtail drug trafficking ... they will have a tireless foe in Paula Hawkins," she said.

Hot Bay State Race Shapes Up

BOSTON (NEA) - A political scramble began Just after Democratic Sen. Paul Tsongas' announcement that, for health reasons, he would not seek re-election. Tsongas had a united Democratic Party behind him and was regarded as a safe bet for re-election - so safe that the GOP seemed willing to nominate almost by default businessman Ray Shamle, who opposed Sen. Ted Kennedy two years ago.

All of this was changed by Tsongas' shocking announcement. The decision was indeed a surprise, as was indicated by the fact that almost all of the state's Democratic leaders were out of the country when Tsongas faced reporters.

Just about the only Democrat of any stature at home that day was Gov. Michael Dukakis. Lt. Gov. John Kerry was in Europe at an acid rain conference; former Gov. Ed King was in Spain on business; former Boston Mayor Kevin White was vacationing in the Virgin Islands: Rep. Edward Markey was on vacation in Mexico; and Chester Atkins, chairman of the state Democratic Party. was leading a "fact-finding" delegation to the Middle East. Included on that trip were many top state Democrats, including William Bulger, the state senate president. The news of Tsongas' decision reached the delegation in Israel, where they were staying on a kibbutz.

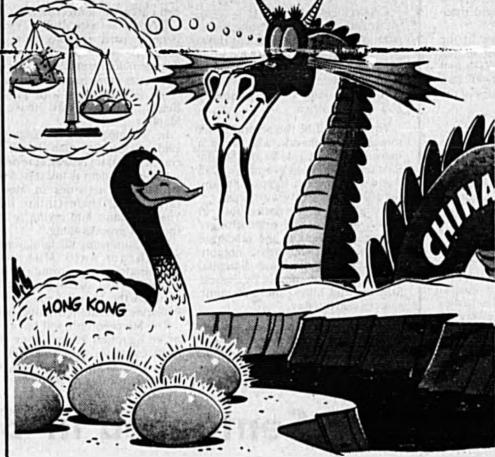

The announcement caused many changes of plans and frantic phone calls to airlines offices. Within hours, countless Bostonians were flying home to a brewing political caldron.

The question is: Who won't be running for the Democratic nomination? Just hours after Tsongas' announcement, Dukakis, King, White, Massachusetts Attorney General Francis Bellotti and Rep. Barney Frank removed themselves from any potential Senate race. This eliminated some prominent Democratic names - but it left an awful lot in.

Four major Democratic figures have already officially thrown their hats into the ring. The first was Markey, the young liberal congressman who was first elected to the House in 1976. Next to announce was William Hebert, retired head of the state teacher's association. His announcement was followed by those of David Bartley, speaker of the Massachusetts' House, and Michael Connolly, the state's secretary of state.

It appears that these four won't be the only candidates - far from it. Almost sure to join the field shortly is the very popular Lt. Gov. Kerry, plus Evelyn Murphy, the state secretary of economic affairs. Also assessing the situation are Rep. James Shannon; former Rep. Michael Harrington, who left Congress for financial reasons in 1978; Evan Dobelle, the former Carter administration chief of protocol; and William Delahunt, the Norfolk County district attorney.

This race could cause innumerable problems for the state Democratic Party.

Farming By Year 2000

By Sonja Hillgren UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With the year require irrigation. 2000 only 16 years away, leaders of American agriculture are identifying forces that will shape the nation's largest industry in the 21st century.

John Lee, who heads the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service, said it would be short-sighted policy to slow productivity growth and reduce investment in agricultural technology to stabilize output, reduce supplies relative to demand and boost

Success of American agriculture will depend then on "whether our technology stays at the leading edge and our policies encourage an affluent and competitive farm industry," Lee said in an article on agriculture of the future in the February issue of Farmline magazine, which is published by his agency.

On one side, applying technology to more intensive farming practices could enable the United States to expand exports faster than previously believed without running into limits on our capacity.

However, economic considerations will play a role, Lee said, so that if growth in demand is as modest as current prospects suggest, research will focus more on using resources more

Irrigation research has shifted from water development to water conservation, and water is likely to emerge as a greater and more immediate concern than soil conservation, although emphasis on soil conservation will continue. Lee said.

He said agriculture must adjust to loss of resources such as fertilizer minerals and groundwater supplies and basic scientific, research should focus on development of plants that thrive in native or dryland conditions and do not

Lee also predicts that U.S. agriculture will remain heavily involved in world

Withdrawal from international markets to serve domestic markets would be unrealistic as it takes fewer and fewer acres to supply domestic needs. He said the United States could require as little as half of its current cropland base to meet domestic needs by the year 2000.

Yet trade poses special problems as it is unlikely to expand as rapidly as it did in the 1970s and foreign markets are flercely competitive, less stable than domestic markets and more unpredictable.

"This instability is the price we must pay to trade in world markets," Lee said.

American farmers also will continue to have a substantial stake in domestic economic policy. Lee said, citing problems of high interest rates that increase farmers' costs of doing business. create cash flow problems for farmers with large debts and reduce foreign demand by pushing up the value of the dollar and imposing credit costs on nations that must borrow to buy.

Lee said that the nation's large federal budget desicit must be reduced sooner or later by increasing taxes, reducing government expenditures or some comhination, all with consequences for agriculture.

"How all this is resolved, or not resolved, could have more impact on U.S. farmers in the long run than the 1985 farm bill, as important as it is."

Shrinking Middle Class

WASHINGTON (NEA) - One of this country's most popular institutions the seemingly ubiquitous and supposedly indestructible "middle class" -

After decades of remaining a relatively constant proportion of the total population, the middle class has contracted alarmingly in recent years - and the vast majority of the people stripped of that status have gone down rather than up the socio-economic scale.

Even more disturbing are indications that the trend is likely to accelerate in the future, producing an increasingly stratified - and possibly polarized -

Much of the strength of the middle class is derived from the fact that virtually everybody wants to be a member of it. We live in a society in which egalitarianism mitigates against people classifying themselves as rich while pride discourages people from # describing themselves as poor.

Even serious analysts who have attempted to examine the middle class have found a precise definition of it to be clusive.

Thus, Fortune magazine in a recent article defined the middle class as 1 composed of families with yearly in-comes ranging from $15,000 to $35,000. That article warned that 'economic forces are propelling one family after another toward the high or low end of the income spectrum."

Others prefer to rely upon a formula developed by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics to characterize income levels for typical urban femilies of four - two adults and two children.

Under that definition, a "low budget" family has an annual income of $17,000 11 or less while a "high budget" family has a yearly income of $41,000 or more. The middle class then includes families with earnings between those two fig-

Using that BLS formula, Dr. Stephen J. Rose, a Baltimore research economist and college teacher, recently concluded that the middle class shrank substantially during the past five years.

In 1978, approximately 55 percent of ¹ the country's population had annual earnings between the BLS low and high budget lines. By 1983, however, that figure had fallen sharply, to slightly more than 40 percent.

About three-quarters of those displaced fell into a lower income category while only one-quarter rose to a higher income classification, says Rose, whose findings are vividly illustrated on a 3-foot-by-4-foot poster called "Social Stratification in the United States."

"This downward change represents a significant change in the nature of the American social fabric," he adds. "More and more people are finding it difficult to maintain a decent standard of living. Many who were once comfortably middle class are now scraping by with severely reduced incomes."

Justice To Eye Kids' Response To Porn

WASHINGTON - Recently I helped shoot down a $500,000 Justice Department proposal to identify "future criminals" by examining 9-to-12-yearold kids for such ominous signs as lefthandedness, odd-shaped toes and earlobes, and failure to sweat when given electric shocks.

My disclosure caused a storm of protest, and Justice dropped the idea like a hot potato. Now, two months later, the department has agreed to spend about $800,000 on yet another scheme that stinks of voodoo science.

My associate Indy Badhwar has learned that the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention is spending the money to evaluate the biological, hormonal and neurological responses - if any - of juveniles as they read such magazines as Playboy. Penthouse and Hustler, and watch pornographic films. Studying these expected changes is intended to help the department's researchers figure out whether exposure to pornography will cause juveniles to become criminal offenders.

Depending on the results, Justice will decide whether to recommend guidelines to deal with the effects of porn - and of the "mass media" - on juvenile behavior.

In the research proposal, pornography was defined as "commercial, public space, sexual displays involving male and/or female data which would be coded by the animal biology literature as solicitous of copulation and/or violence."

The researchers are to fan out across the country, where "media scenarios will be located and collected from public sources - stores, newsstands, etc.," according to the research proposal. "These depictions will include murder. mutilation. bloody confrontation, adolescent, inter-generational and promiscyous sex, individual and gang rape. sexual battery, incest, child-sexual abuse, sadism, forced anal/oral copulation, etc. The sample will be submitted to our expert team of professionals for analysis."

The analysts will include sociobiologists, primatologists lape specialists), neurologists, anthropologists, psychologists, endocrinologists. "victimologists" and, of course, experts in Justice's apparently unremitting nightmare, lefthandedness (called "brain hemispheric stratification"). The project has also added another ology to these disciplines: "pornology."

The researchers hope to shed light on just about every ill that afflicts American youth except acne. The study promises to find out whether "sexually explicit materials cause Juvenile delinquency, runaways, teenage pregnancy, mayhem, rape in gangs or as individuals, murder, alcohol and drug abuse, child prostitution ... incest, rape, torture ... mutilation."

The project director. Dr. Judith Reisman of American University, "has a broad background in this area," according to a Justice Department document. She is credited with discovery of a th "new phenomenon on the youth scene: H boyfriend rape' while the girl is under A the influence of alcohol-drugs."

At press time. Dr. Reisman had not at returned my calls for comment.

The project report says that sexually the explicit material "tends to be used by @ the offender as visible, authoritative th support" for coercion of very young girls ? into sexual acts.

The project documents allude to it experiments, but a Justice Department of official said there will be none - at least the this time around. He explained that the raw data is already available from &. experts who have conducted expert- & ments in the past, possibly financed by at the government. The current project of will collect this data and synthesize thele results, he said.

'Potato Game' Fools Raines As Varsity Surprises Alumni

By Lou Stefano Herald Sports Writer

This year's members of the Seminole High baseball team will have at least one good story to tell their grandchildren years from now. They can say that they were on the high school team that beat the Tim Raines-led Alumni, 9-8.

Imagine how Seminole pitchers Chad Brades and Drian Sheffield felt pitching to an honest to goodness major league all-star. It was only the second time the high school has beaten the Alamni in seven years.

"It's a fun type of game, said Seminole baseball coach Bobby Lundquist. "It gives the 'old guys' a chance to come out one more time and play some ball."

Lundquist went on to say that the game was good for this year's team because, "It was a win against some good competition, seeing as how we do have some good players from the past, it makes a difference. Anytime you get to play some good competition before the season starts it's good.

The Alums started on the right foot and looked like they would make the game a run away. Jeff Anderson singled and Donnie Williams walked to set the table for a two-run double by Terry Smith.

Raines, who didn't start as he was "fashionably late," came on in the fourth inning to the apparent displeasure of Seminole coach Lundquist. Lundquist protested that Raines shouldn't be allowed to play because he was

This was in reference to the contract problems that Raines and the Montreal Expos are having and his decision to go to arbitration. The scheme was actually cooked up by Alumni manager Wes Rinker and wasn't the last of the ribbing the ex-Seminole standout would take during the game.

Raines drew a walk and promply stole second and third. Then Seminole pulled a con game on the National League veteran. With Raines leading off third, catcher Steve Dennis overthrew third baseman Tony Cox which sent Raines trotting home.

Baseball

The only problem for Raines was that Dennis threw a potato over third base and had the ball tucked safely in his glove. From there t was easy to tag Raines out. But the play was disallowed because the pototo wasn't a regulation major league potato.

Once back to third base, Raines stole home for a 3-0

The Seminoles came back in their half of the fourth as Kevin Smith. Ron Clippard, and Brian Rogers ripped RBI hits to put the "kids" ahead, 4-3. in the fifth. Seminole picked up two more runs on a double by Clippard, his second hit, and a single by James Hersey.

Alumni Chip Senders came around on Levi Raines' single to make the score a more respectable 8-4.

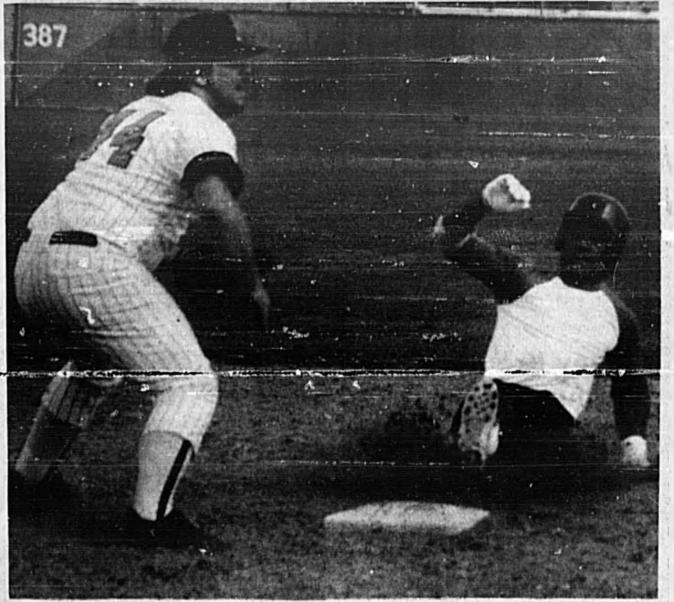

Back-to-back doubles gave Seminole a 9-4 lead before the older guys finally got the kinks worked out of their old moving parts.

An error on Tim Raines popup drove in two runs to bring the Alumns to within three runs with one at-bat

In the top of the ninth, with Ned Raines threatening his teammates of what he would do if they didn't save his at-bat, the Alumns scored two runs on Brett Von Herbulis' double to make the score 9-8, where the game ended as reliever William Wynn nailed down the save.

Lundquist and the "kids" were happy with the outcome. "Overall, our hitting was much better than I expected. I didn't think we'd come out and hit the ball

"Brian Rogers and Ronny Clippard did a good job at the plate," said Lundquist. "And James Hersey hit one

The Raines — A Family With Baseball In Its Blood

By Lou Stefano Herald Sports Writer

Thomas Wolfe once said, "You can never go home." That may be true in other places but it isn't true for Sanford, Florida and it isn't true for native Sanford citizen Tim Raines, who now lives in Palm Beach Gardens, came home Saturday afternoon to once again play on the field where he first turned baseball heads. He played in the annual Seminole Alumni baseball game with old teammates and three of his brothers, Levi. Ned Jr., and Sam.

A good crowd of relatives and friends turned out for the seventh annual game at Sanford Memorial Stadium. And watching from the stands was his still youthful looking father. Ned Raines Sr. and a few other coaches from years gone by.

You have to do some pretty deep digging to find a baseball family like the Raines family. Including father Ned Sr., the Raines have had 4 family members who played professional baseball. If a cliche was ever appropriate it is here: the Raines family have baseball in their blood. While carrying on a conversation around the baseball dalmond, they never take their eyes off the fleid, studying the ongoing play. They all have athletic looking bodies: thick at the thighs, and broad at the chest with meaty looking hands that only seem at home when wrapped around the handle of a baseball bat. They all even share in the same vice - dipping snuff. The other thing the three brothers have in common, among themselves and with their father, is a shared concern and care for each

Their favorite play of the afternoon wasn't Tim stealing home or Levi's run scoring single. It was when the infield consisted of Tim at shortstop, Sam at second base, Levi at first base, and Ned in centerfield.

On separate plays, Sam threw to Levi for an out, and Tim tossed one to his older brother at first for another out. Lastly. Ned hitting Tim with a cutoff throw after a base

The family dream come true would be a major league team consisting of three Raines brothers

"It would have been great," said Ned Sr. through an ever present smile. "I would have liked to see all three of them on the same team. But it would have been great to hall of fame, in the least have seen them play on opposite teams. It Glenn Price is someone who has known wouldn't matter; just that they were playing pro ball.'

'With the ability we had," said Levi. "It could have been like the Cruz Brothers up in the big leagues (referring to major leaguers Julio, Hector, and Jose).

"It could have been the Raines brothers in the big leagues. If one major league team had the three of us they would have a helluva team. That's one thing that I really wish could come true; you never know, that day might come...," he added with his eyes looking and voice trailing off into the distance.

Levi, the oldest at 27, was the first to play professional ball, if you discount the semipro ball his father played when he was younger. Levi signed right out of high school in 1975 after a tryout with the Minnesota Twins.

He played two years of A ball and one year of AA ball before a knee injury cut short his career. The Twins released him in 1978. Ned, 25, signed with the San Fransisco Giants organization after playing at Seminole Community College. He was with the Giants for two years before he was

Tim, 24, has had the most successful career among the brothers. He signed with the Expos right out of high school (Seminole class of '78). He became a regular player with Montreal in 1981 after being named the minor league player of the year while playing at Denver in AAA ball.

His career, and salary have sky rocketed since then. He has played in two All-Star games and one National League playoff' series. He is also the first modern day player to steal 70 bases and drive in 70 runs in a

If his health stays with him, and looking at him one can't see why it won't, he is sure to go on to better things and end up in the all three brothers. The grizzled veteran, who has coached baseball for over 40 years, had Ned and Tim on the same team one year and Levi on another.

"What Tim had going for him was his speed." Price said while chewing his tobacco. "When he got on base we never did have any signals; he was on his own." According to Price, back in those days Tim wasn't known for his hard work.

"We were playing a tournament down in West Palm Beach," said Price. "And he was loafing. So I got up in the stands during games we weren't playing and sat with the scouts, looking through their reports.

"At night when we were in our hotel room said to Tim, 'Tim let me tell you something, you know what those scouts got in their report? They got good glove, good bat, no hustle."

"Our next game was in Sarasota and that Tim come out of that dugout, he was the first one on the field, the first one off and he really hustled. After that he really hustled."

According to Price, Levi was a "damn good ballplayer. But he let his temper get him. Everybody in the world tried to calm him down but they just couldn't do it."

Price remembers Ned another way. Ned was the one who, "... ran into that wall out there." Price said pointing to the left field wall. "He played that way every day."

All three brothers agree that it wasn't a difference in ability that has Tim today in the majors and the other two brothers working 40-hour-a-week jobs in Sanford. It was opportunity.

"I felt that they were better players than me." Tim said. "I was just trying to keep up with them. Things just worked out for me. I was in the right place at the right time. It was just the opposite for them.'

Raines' father intimates the same thing. "I thought that Ned would beat Tim (to the pros). I always told the guys that Ned was a powerful hitter and had a good glove.

"I bet a coach a dinner that Ned would beat Tim to the pros. I just figured that; he was good. Somewhere along the way he lost the enthusiasm to get to the pros. He got up there so far and didn't realize the sacrifices he would have to make it the rest of the break than Ned. I think the Expos really gave him a chance. The Giants just didn't have a plan for Ned."

Even though Tim was the one to hit it big. he's still the same brother that Ned, Levi. and Sam used to play "automatics" baseball with on the side of their house while

"After school was out," said Levi."We'd go out in the side of the yard and anything that looked like a ball we'd play with it... Go out in the woods and get a stick play stick ball. We used to make up our own World

"We still go out now," he said, emphasizing that things haven't changed. 'Last year we got out in the back yard. We had a top from the detergent bottle, get a little stick and that's all you need.'

"It's always been that way (the closeness)," said Tim quietly. "I guess because we played together a lot of years. Me and Ned played together from Little League through high school.

"The closeness between us will always be there. We have respect for each other and for our talents and that's what you have to have in any family," he added.

Perhaps it's apropos that Levi knew that Tim had been drafted by Montreal before Tim knew it. "I was playing ball in Burlington, Iowa, and I heard it from one of the league offices so I called him at home." said Levi.

Even when pressed, neither Ned nor Levi would admit that Tim has a better life than either of them. They both look to their brother as having settled something for

In Tim, Levi has a gauge that he can compare himself to. "It (Tim's success) means a lot. That lets me know the prospect of what kind of ball player that there really is in the major leagues.'

At 27 and with four children, Levi works "Deep down I feel that Tim got a better at a local steel company and is looking forward to buying his own home next year. "You reflect on the little successes," Levi added thoughtfully, "Me and Ned had a little bit of success. I can say now that I really enjoyed the years I played. You can't change those years back."

> Ned on the other hand still has the major league flame burning in the window. With Tim's help, he got a try out with the Expos last year but didn't make it. But he is considering another shot at the bigs this

> "I thought I did good with that tryout." Ned said, "But they never called, I still think I can make it, all I need is the opportunity.

"And if I got signed and was in the minors. I'd stick with it until I got called up or released: I wouldn't quit.

Ned. Levi and their father all agree that success hasn't affected Tim. "He's the same," said his dad. "No matter how long he is away, he comes home and it's all the

Raiders, Johnson Trim DBCC In OT

DAYTONA BEACH - Artis Johnson is in grave danger of losing his role as the Seminole Community College's super sub. After the performance the 6-3 freshman put on Saturday night, he's too good to play sixth man.

Johnson hit 8 of 9 field goals en route to 19 points and collected nine rebounds to lead the Raiders to an exciting 77-75 overtime victory over Daytona Beach in junior college basketball at DBCC's gym.
"Artis carried us." said SCC coach Bill

The Raiders opened Saturday's game like they weren't going beat anybody. Daytona jumped to an 11-0 lead and SCC didn't score for the first five minutes. Freshman Linny Grace then ignited a flurry with a dunk and the Raiders started to come around. They railled behind aix points each from Grace and Johnson to pull within 29-24 at halftime.

SCC finally caught the Scots when Johnson flipped in a jumper from the left win with 5:20 to play in the game. Both team exchanged leads down the stretch until Jimmy Payton popped in a jump shot to put SCC on top, 63-61, with just

Maxwell's 45-Point Explosion Tips Tribe Herald Sports Writer

GAINESVILLE - The Seminole basketball team and coach Chris Marlette were in Gainesville Sunday for the Florida-Auburn basketball game. However, Seminole will probably argue that neither the Gators Ronnle Williams nor Auburn's Frank Ford was the best player they saw this weekend.

Instead Gaineaville Buchholz' forward Vernon Maxwell would probably be the unanimous choice. All Maxwell did against Seminole Saturday night was score a career-high 45 points including the winning basket with three seconds left to hand the Tribe a 66-64 non-conference loss

"I'd never seen Maxwell shoot, I'd just heard about him." Marlette said. "I heard he was going to shoot the ball and he sure showed me he could. He can put on a show." Unfortunately for Seminole the 6-3 Bobcat senior, who's averaging 30.3 points a game. decided his show Saturday night needed a With 1:39 left Maxwell had scored 15 of launched an 18-footer and the Seminoles had their second narrow defeat in as many nights.

"It was obvious he was going to get the ball but their was nothing we could do about it," Marlette said. "You can try and deny a guy like him all night but he is still gonna get the ball and score.

Maxwell showed the Seminoles early that there was going to be little they could do to stop him. Bruce Franklin scored a pair of baskets to give Seminole a 6-2 lead two minutes into the game but Maxwell scored the next 12 Bobcat points for a 14-13 Buchholz first-quarter advantage.

"I've been in basketball a helluva long time and I've never been around anyone better." Bobcat coach Rick Swain said of Maxwell. who has narrowed his college choices to Nebraska, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Auburn, Florida and Kentucky.

"If he doesn't get All-America I'm going to Kansas City to see who's better," added

On the other side of the coin. Seminole's Willie Mitchell, who along with Maxwell was nominated Friday for the McDonalds All-America team, scored 26 points in a losing effort. He had eight in the second quarter to keep Sanford within 34-30 at intermission.

Maxwell, however, showed Seminole that it would have fits covering him the rest of the night. He had 22 points at the half but more importantly Sanford's James Rouse and Steven Grey both had three fouls trying to

'We tried just about everybody we could," Marlette said. "When James got his third foul we knew we didn't have anyone else who could match up with him."

The loss dropped Sanford to 15-8 on the year but Maxwell was impressed with the Seminole inside game.

'They're one of the best rebounding teams we've played this year." Maxwell said. "I was also surprised the way they shot in traffic." Swain agreed with his star.

"It was too bad somebody had to lose. Sanford was every bit as good as Killian." Swain said in comparision with the seventh-ranked Miami school who beat Buchholz two weeks ago.

Marlette said he was pleased with Sanford's performance against the 15-5 Bobcats. "They're as good as Mainland and Spruce

Creek." Marlette said. "I'm proud of the way we came back tonight after shooting so poorly against Deland last night (Friday). Ken Gordon Joined Mitchell in double figures with 16 points while Jimmy Glichrist had 10 rebounds for Seminole. Walker added 13 points to the Buchholz cause but it was Maxwell's 16 for 20 performance from the floor and 13 for 17 from the line that will make Mariette cast his vote for Maxwell as player of the weekend. "I think it would have been a different game without him," Marlette said.

Lions Roar To Conference Title With 6 Champions

ORLANDO - Oviedo's Lions were in a familiar position Saturday going into the consolation round of the District 3A S wrestling tournament at Bishop Moore High. The Lions, who got behind by a big margin to Orlando Jones In the Orange Belt Conference tournament last Saturday, trailed Bishop Moore by 27 points going into the last two rounds.

However, unlike the Orange Belt tourney, the Lions picked up some points in the consolation round and then went on to win 6 of 6 matches in the finals while Bishop Moore won just 1 of 7, as Oviedo claimed the district championship with 156 points, compared to 148.5 for Bishop Moore.

BMX: All You Need Is Bike, Pads And Number

Bicycle Motocross, or BMX, is fast becoming one of the hottest sports around for both kids and adults alike and it doesn't have to be expensive.

There have been a lot of misconceptions about BMX being expensive. That is not true. BMX can be expensive if you let It, but all any rider needs is a dirtbike with pads and a number plate to get

BMX riders race small 20-inch diribikes with lightweight equipment on them around a supervised, clay track. The track is a series of wide berms (steep curves), long jumps, and small hills called "whoop-de-doos."

Riders are required to wear protective gear when racing or practicing on the track such as long sleeve shirts, long pants, shoes, and a helmet with a

Some of the more serious riders invest in special padded pants and jerseys made for racing, but jeans and a long sleeve shirt will do fine.

Racers are divided into different motos (races), according to age and class. The classes are: beginner, novice, expert. powder puff, and cruiser.

The beginner class is for people who have never even seen a BMX track. Usually, the only time a rider races beginner is the first three times racing.

The novice class is for riders who are experienced, but not enough to become expert. This is usually the largest class.

The expert class is for riders who really know what they are doing. In order to become expert, a rider must first earn 20 first, second, or third place novice trophics.

The cruiser class is a class by itself. Instead of racing 20-inch bikes, it races 24- to 26-inch bikes. Usually the riders in this class are older because the bike is so

Although BMX is predominantly a male sport because it can get rough. there is a division for girls gutsy enough to it. The powder puff class is for girls of all classes. Because there are so few girls racing, they are not divided up according to ability, just age.

The initial 1984 registration and racing took place Saturday, Jan. 29 at Barnett Park in Pine Hills. There were quite a number of racers present, many from the Sanford-Lake Mary area. All of the racers from this area belong to the Bicycle Connection race team of Sanford. The ages and classes varied, but all in all, the area racers showed great talent.

Here are the results from the Saturday

In the beginner class. John Connelly, a new resident of Lake Mary, came in second place in the 12-year-old division. John races a Raleigh bicycle.

In the 13-year-old beginner class. Brian Lane, also of Lake Mary, did nicely in his second beginner race by coming in third place.

Jimmy Williams, a 15-year-old beginner from Sanford, raced his third and last beginner race on his Mongoose bicycle, and finished off with a first place. Jimmy will now graduate to novice racing.

In the 11-year-old novice class. Mike Davis of Sanford, made it to the main event by placing fourth. He then went on to place sixth in the main.

Jason Overall, a 12-year-old novice from Sanford, raced tough competition and placed second for his efforts.

David Sanborn and John Boatwright. both of Sanford, raced in the 13-year-old novice. David finished off with a second place, and John placed third.

Lake Mary's John Poole, a 15-year-old novice, raced his CW Lightning Bolt frame against two experts. John beat one expert, placing secound in the race, earning him a first place novice trophy. In the cruiser class, 16-year-old Mark Koch, of Sanford, raced his Champion 24-inch cruiser across the finish line for an easy first place win.

In the 11-year-old powder puff class. Susan Koch of Sanford, had stiff competition from Michelle Carnes and Carrie the "Flame." Susan did very well on her Hutch by placing secound.

In the 12- to 15-year old powder pull. Christy Davis of Sanford competed against Debbie Moss and Michelle Lee. Christy placed first in the 14- and 15year-old class, while Debbie claimed first in the 12 to 13 with Michelle coming in These and other riders displayed a great deal of enthusiasm and talent. Congratulations, Sanford riders.

Temperatures were below zero across the northern Missisippi Valley early today, with freezing temperatures expected to reach the Gulf Coast by daybreak. Snow fell across the northeast quarter of the nation, and south to Alabama and Georgia. Reagan Leaves For Hometown

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan celebrates his 73rd birthday today, bathing in the nostalgia of the small town where he grew up and recalling a Depression era when government was the solution to economic crisis, not the problem.

Reagan, the oldest man to serve in the presidency, is scheduled to visit his hometown of Dixon, Ill., and speak at his alma mater, Eureka College, on the changes time has wrought in the American economy.

Spokesman Larry Speakes released a preview of Reagan's Eureka speech, sponsored by Time Maga-

"The president will offer his thoughts on the changes in America in the last several decades and how those changes served the cause of human freedom - to inspire, not burden, those who come after us."

"He reviews his boyhood experiences and some of the economic conditions of that period," Speakes said. "At the start of that era, he says, government was consuming a dime for every dollar earned. Twowas going to state and local governments with Palm Springs, Calif. only a third to Washington. Today, government is collecting 24 cents from every dollar, and the proportion is completely reversed, with two thirds of that money going to the federal government."

Reagan "points out the frony that a federal government called upon to solve an economic emergency in the 1930s should now become an obstacle to economic progress." Speakes said.

In his last appearance at Eureka, its May 1982 graduation, Reagan laid out his proposal for the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks in hopes of agreeing with the Soviets on limiting long-range missiles. The Soviets walked out of those talks in December and negotiations on medium-range and conventional weapons in November in response to the deployment of new U.S. missiles in Western Europe. Reagan graduated from Eureka.

brother, Neil, and their wives were to visit the first of five homes their family rented in the small town. They also will view a parade in the president's honor, and Reagan will speak at a birthday party at the high school built the year after he graduated from the old one.

The president, born Feb. 6, 1911. in Tampico, III., lived in several places in the state before his father. Jack, settled in Dixon in 1920. The first house, at 816 S. Hennepin Ave., recently was renovated by the Ronald Reagan Home Restoration Foundation.

They were to review a parade down Dixon's main street from a hotel built in 1853. According to local legend, Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant, Theodore Roosevelt und William Howard Taft stayed at the hotel.

About 4,000 townspeople were expected to attend the birthday party at the high school.

After the Dixon visit. Reagan was to fly to Las Vegas. Nev., to address a convention of high school principals and then spend the rest of the week at his Barbara. Calif. He was scheduled to In Dixon, Reagan, his older return to Washington late Sunday.

500 Potential Jurors Pooled In Bar Gang Rape Of Woman

FALL RIVER. Mass. (UPI) - Attorneys start questioning 500 potential jurors today in the trial of six men charged with the gang rape of a woman on a barroom pool table.

Feminists have vowed to monitor the case to see that "the victim is treated with respect."

The accusations of the 21-year-old mother of two, who is expected to testify, have attracted wide attention, with the trial hailed as the most sensational in the area since Lizzie Borden was acquitted of hacking her parents to Superior Court Judge William Young is presiding over the separate trials, divided into morning and afternoon sessions because lawyers fear the testimony some give is likely to implicate the other defendants.

The six are accused of taking turns assaulting the woman on a pool table at the now-closed Big Dan's Tavern in nearby New Bedford on March 6, 1983. The victim screamed for help and patrons allegedly yelled. "Go for It. go for It."

The woman told police she had stopped at Big Dan's to buy a pack of cigarettes. When she tried to leave, she claimed a bar customer pulled her to the floor, stripped her below the waist and dragged her to the pool table.

For the next two hours, police said, the woman was beaten and raped repeatedly while other patrons cheered until she managed to flee half-naked and hysterical into the street and flagged down a passing motorist for help.

The six men are charged with aggravated rape, which carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

The defendants - Daniel Silvia, 26, John Cordeiro. 26, and Victor Raposa. 23, all of New Bedford, and Joseph Vieira, 26, of Pomfret, Conn. - were scheduled to be tried in the morning sessions.

Virgilio Medeiros, 23, and Jose Medeiros, 22, both of New Bedford but unrelated, were being tried in the afternoon.

Lawyers for the men acknowledged that while some of the accused were in the bar, they did not assault the woman. At the time of Silvia's arraignment, his attorney said Silvia and the woman had a "prior relationship" and she agreed to go home with him.

The trials were moved to neighboring Fall River because of pretrial publicity with leaders of New Bedford's large Portuguese community accusing the media of overemphasizing the fact the defendants were l'ortuguese immigrants.

Elizabeth Bennett, spol-eswoman for the Coalition Against Sexist Violence formed after the Big Dan incident and which will monitor the trial, said Sunday. "Traditionally rape victims have been traumatized by

"I hope the victim is treated with respect in the courtroom, that her word is taken into account as much as the word of the defendants. That's why we're monitoring the trial. We're there in the interests of all rape victims."
