U.S. Jobless Rate Remains Unchanged At 9.8 Percent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment remained unchanged at a post World War II high of 9.8 percent in August, the Labor Department said today. Some 10.8 million Americans were jobless at the advent of the Labor Day weekend.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that virtually all major job categories showed no significant change between July and August despite fears from many union leaders and some industry officials that the rate would climb to 10 percent or higher.

With only a slight 15,000 increase in the number of persons out of work in August, the total remained at about 10.8 million. All figures were adjusted for seasonal fluctuations, the bureau said.

The largest monthly increases occurred among minorities, with the rate for black workers rising from 18.5 percent to 18.8 percent, and for Hispanic workers, climbing 0.7 percentage points to 14.6 percent.

The rate for black teenagers, which had dropped slightly in July, rose to 51.6 percent in August.

Labor Statistics Commissioner Janet Norwood, in remarks to a congressional hearing, said that employment declines continued in several important manufacturing industries, and the jobless rate for auto workers increased sharply in August to 20.8 percent, up from 15.9 percent in July.

"The decline in factory jobs occurred almost entirely within the major metals and metal using industries — primary and fabricated metals, machinery, electrical equipment and transportation equipment," she said.

Florida's Rate Up To 7.7%

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida's unemployment rate increased four-tenths of a percent in August, ending the summer's steady decline, but state economists aren't too worried.

The August jobless rate was 7.7 percent, up from July's 7.3 percent, the state Department of Labor reported today.

State labor department economists are huddling this morning to try to figure out why the rate in Florida rose last month.

industries have accounted for more than half of the 1.9 million overall decline in nonfarm payroll employment since the pre-recession peak in July 1981.

"At the same time, the factory work-week, after having risen in the last few months, fell by 0.3 hours after seasonal adjustment, returning to the April level (of 39 hours)," she said.

One economist for the Legislature, Dr. Tim Zingale, says he doesn't believe the increase was significant.

It is clear, Zingale said, that the recovery from the recession that was supposed to occur both nationally and in Florida in the July-through September quarter isn't happening and the decline in the Florida jobless rate is a further sign of that.

Mrs. Norwood also told the congressmen that the transportation equipment industry has been hard hit.

"The unemployment rate for auto workers, which had been moving downward since January, increased sharply in August to 20.8 percent," she said.

The department said total employment was 99.8 million in August, an increase of 107,000 over July, but still about 1 million below a year ago.

Despite the respite from bad news on the total figures, the department said the number of persons who lost jobs in August rose from July. Among the unemployed, all those who have lost jobs now account for 58 percent of the total, and the average duration of unemployment rose in August to 16.2 weeks.

The July and August 9.8 percent overall rate is the highest since the 9.9 percent annual average in 1941 — before monthly figures were kept.

The Labor Department reported Thursday more than 4.5 million

Americans received unemployment checks during the week ending Aug. 14, a slight decline from the previous week, but still well above the 2,034,600 number during the same week a year ago.

At the same time, the department's Employment and Training Administration said initial claims in the week ending Aug. 21 showed 511,900 applicants, a drop of 29,500 from the week before.

The figures reflect actual numbers of workers involved, and are not statistically adjusted for seasonal factors.

Other high percentages were recorded in: Pennsylvania, 6.6 percent; Michigan, 6.4 percent; Washington, 6.2 percent; Idaho and Oregon, both 6.1 percent; Mississippi and Rhode Island, both 5.9 percent; South Carolina, 5.6 percent, and Alabama and Alaska, both 5.5 percent.

Lake Mary To Vote On New Charter

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary city councilmen and members of the community's charter revision committee plan to have a new charter on the December city election ballot for voters' consideration.

But the way the document will be presented on that ballot is plaguing City Attorney Robert Petree who said he must get advice from the state elections office and research the law before a decision can be made.

The revision committee had envisioned breaking the charter into several ballot questions so the whole result of their labor will not be defeated because of several controversial sections.

The controversial sections include:
— Changing terms of office for councilmen and the mayor from two years to four years.

— Requiring four of the five council members to run and be elected within geographic districts, rather than at large. The mayor and a fifth councilman would run at large. The idea, according to Burt Perinchief and Harry Terry, former councilmen and members of the revision committee, is to bring the government closer to the people.

Other changes, which are not considered controversial, are changing election times from December to the first Tuesday after the first Monday in September, the first primary, election time and changing the name of the governing body to a city commission.

With four-year terms, elections would be held only once every two years, such as is done in Sanford, the only other Seminole County community which has four-year terms for its governing body.

The proposed charter also adds the city clerk and city attorney to the list of charter officers and provides a method whereby each can be removed by the council if desired. Other housekeeping measures are included and the section of the old document calling for a mayor to be elected every year and to serve a two-year term has been removed.

Petree said he would "be happier if the entire document with all its changes could be adopted with one vote." But, he added, with the entire charter on the ballot in one question, the entire charter could be defeated.

Members of the revision committee want the controversial sections pulled out and voted upon separately.

And Perinchief said the more issues on the ballot, the more likely the proposed charter will fail. He added that expecting the electorate to read the entire proposal is "ludicrous."

Perinchief also urged Petree to check with other Seminole County cities to determine how they adopted new charters.

Election Tuesday

3 Candidates Running For School Board Seat

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Three candidates, an incumbent, a former school board member and a parent who has been active in school activities, are running for a seat on the Seminole County School Board.

Allan Keeth, a four-term member of the board, is running for re-election against Jean Bryant, who served on the board from 1966 to 1974, and Kenneth Patrick, a man who has five children in the schools and has been active in PTA and school advisory groups.

Keeth, 55, of 205 Crystal View St. Sanford, said he views school facilities as the major local problem. "I've been saying for years the biggest, most pressing need is the housing of students," he said.

Of the county's efforts to meet what was described in a 1979 report as a need for $55 million in new construction, Keeth said, "I'm reasonably satisfied that within the means we have we're doing the best we can."

Keeth said county school boards are always "behind the 8-ball" because of Florida law which doesn't give counties funds for construction until state officials see they've needed it for several years, he said.

Keeth, an engineer, said he feels the district must work to streamline its administration. "Our management study will help us in getting work done with fewer people. Any organization like this gets top heavy."

He said local residents should be proud of the high quality of education in Seminole schools. A good relationship has been maintained between board members, school administrators and teachers which has kept the quality of education high, Keeth said.

But a problem which has plagued school officials across the county for years — salaries — remains a problem. "I'm appalled that teachers do not appear on the wage ladder where I think they ought to be," he said. In comparison to computer operators and other technical occupations, teachers with masters degrees are still paid very low salaries, Keeth said.

But overall, Keeth claimed Seminole County pays its teachers pretty well. "Salaries are always a problem in the background. I'm not ashamed of our salary schedule at all."

Mrs. Bryant, 56, who lives at 1807 Paloma Ave., Sanford, said she is running for the school board seat because "I feel I have the time to devote to the job."

Vote Absentee Ballot Deadline Saturday; Voter Interest Up

The deadline for picking up absentee ballots for those planning to vote in Tuesday's primary election is 5 p.m. Saturday, but apparently few voters care.

An official of the Seminole County Supervisor of Elections office, Frances Leahy, said today 392 people have either voted or have had a ballot mailed to them.

All absentee ballots which are received in the elections office by 7 p.m. Tuesday, election day, will be counted, Ms. Leahy said.

Elections Supervisor Camilla Bruce expects the turnout for Tuesday's primary election will be 40 percent. "Only because I don't like to say 30 percent."

The county has 74,457 registered voters. Of these 37,803 have designated themselves as Democrats, 30,680 as Republicans and 5,974 designated themselves as non-partisan or other parties.

The primary elections will be held Tuesday. Polls will be open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. In cases, such as the school board, where three or more candidates seek a nomination, if one does not receive 50 percent of the votes, plus one vote, a runoff election will be held Oct. 5 with the top two vote-getters.

The ballot Tuesday will be a small one.

Democrats will select nominees for governor, attorney general, comptroller and state senator. Only registered Democrats can vote in the Democratic primary.

Republicans will nominate a U.S. Senator, governor and lieutenant governor and Florida House of Representatives member. Only Republicans can vote in the Republican primary.

All voters, regardless of party designation, may vote in the non-partisan races for one school board seat and two circuit judgeships.

The race for the governor and lieutenant governor in the Democratic camp pits incumbent Bob Graham and Wayne Mixson against Fred Kuhn and Jeffrey L. Latham and Robert P. Kunst and Gary Bryant. Other candidates seeking the Democratic nomination are: Fred Goldstein, who is vying with incumbent Jim Smith for attorney general; Ralph Haben, who is running against incumbent Gerald Lewis for comptroller; and Gary Barnhard, running against Florence M. Hunter for the District 11 state Senate seat. State Senate district 11 includes parts of Seminole, parts of Lake and other counties.

The GOP has three candidates for the party nomination for U.S. senator — David H. Bludworth, Van B. Poole and George Snyder. Other races for the GOP nomination are: Skip Bafalis and Leo Callahan for governor and lieutenant governor respectively, challenged by the team of Vernon Davids and Wendell Davids, while Jim Lavigne and Carl Selph are competing against each other for the District 34 seat in the Florida House. This district includes parts of Winter Springs, Longwood, Casselberry, Sanford and a piece of Brevard County.

The non-partisan ballot, with all registered voters eligible to vote includes the following races: Irving B. Gussow and Kenneth M. Leffler (incumbent), Seminole-Brevard Circuit Court, Group 1; Eugene Collier, Edward M. Jackson, Franklin M. Kelly and Jere E. Lober, circuit judge, Group 3; School Board, Jean Bryant, Allan F. Keeth and Kenneth Patrick.

In the races with two candidates, the highest vote-getter will receive the respective party's nomination, or in the case of circuit judge Group 1, will win election automatically.

In the three-way contests, the candidate must receive 50 percent plus one vote to win the primary. If none of the three is able to garner that many votes, the two highest vote-getters will square off in the Oct. 5 second primary.

Mrs. Bruce said the number of people asking for absentee ballots "is actually pretty good. It's better than I thought."

She said the 1978 primary election had 275 people vote by absentee ballot. But Mrs. Bruce said some of the people who have picked up ballots may not vote.

The Zoo Society Board Gives Opinions On Moving Facility

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

(Sixth in a Series)

Seminole County residents on the Central Florida Zoological Society board are divided in their opinion on moving the zoo out of the county.

Polled this week, most said they personally would prefer the zoo stay here. But there is a tendency among zoo board members to wait for the results of a feasibility study to be completed and to do "what is best for the zoo" in the long run.

Those polled were almost unanimous in wholehearted endorsement of Executive Director Al Rozon and his management of the zoo.

Most of the directors polled were not aware of the decision to conduct a $5,000 feasibility study on whether the zoo should move to Turkey Lake Park in Orlando at the time it was made. The zoo is funding half of the study's cost and the city of Orlando is funding the other half.

Although some members were critical about inadequate community support, the directors said the financial situation has improved with recent support. They said they feel as long as the zoo operates without a steady income source or subsidy, it will be at the mercy of the weather, attendance and public generosity.

Here are the six directors reached for comment and their opinions:

"On a personal basis, I want the zoo to stay here," said Vice President of Operations Joseph Orrit, of 223 Forrest Drive, Sanford. "But you must realize in the six years I have been on the zoo board this zoo has not received any cooperation from the city, the county, or the chamber of commerce. Now that there is a possibility that the zoo may move, they're saying 'Oh, my gosh! We don't want to move the zoo.' In my own organization, the Kiwanis, 90 percent of the members have never been to the zoo. What is all the hollering about?"

"The bottom line is money, if people want a zoo, they're going to have to pay for it," he said. "The directors have been dipping into their own pockets for money for the zoo for some time and it can't go on forever. We have to do something and what it will be will be decided in the future by all the board, Mr. (Newman) Brock (zoo society president) and Mr. (Al) Rozon (executive director)."

Orrit said he thought he was out of town when the decision was made to conduct a $5,000 feasibility study funded equally by the zoo and the city of Orlando.

"I just got back from a trip to Philadelphia to see the zoo. It's quite a zoo and it's operated pretty much on the order of our zoo, but in addition to donations from the citizens it gets money from the city and state," Orrit said. "I talked to the president and he couldn't understand how our zoo can keep going without subsidy. If you have two weeks of bad weather, you're dead — animals have to eat, employees have to be paid and electric bills paid."

"With proper financing," he added, "We can have one of the best zoos with what we've got. The name of the game is money."

Orrit said in his opinion the zoo is absolutely managed properly. "We have one of the finest executive directors in the country," he added.

Debbie Abramowitz, vice president of operating funds for the zoo, who lives at 109 Wild Fern Dr. in Longwood, joined the board the first of this year. She said as a member of the feasibility study committee, "They told us not to comment (on moving the zoo). There's no sense speculating, there's a lot of ideas and rumors going around that in the end won't mean anything. Now's not the time to comment."

Although the zoo has had financial problems in the past, Mrs. Abramowitz said it is not having any now. "We have had a tremendous response recently from the public," she explained. "There seems to be an awareness that we are self-supported and need the support of the community behind us. It was a matter of making the public aware of the zoo and its location."

As to correcting or eliminating the zoo's anticipated $100,000 deficit, she said she was not qualified to answer that question. As a member of the study committee, she said she was aware of the $5,000 feasibility study being done by the University of Central Florida.

Asked about the alleged adverse effect of the terrain and environment on some types of animals, Mrs. Abramowitz said the curators and veterinarians had said it was bad for split hoof animals "As for keeping the inventory as it is, I don't know," she added.

"Hopefully, the feasibility study will tell us what we are doing right as well as wrong and whether we should move or stay where we are. I'm taking a wait and see attitude. We have a great chance to grow with the community."

She said Rozon is doing a good job managing the zoo. Board member William MacLaughlin, 316 Satsuma Drive, Sanford, said "I would certainly be willing to look at anything about this, but in my heart I would like it (the zoo) to remain in Sanford. I understand we can't have all the animals we want, but I love it where it is."

"Maybe we ought to be a good little zoo before we become a big one," he commented. "Financially, we are in better shape now than we were five years ago, partially because of debt reduction."

NATION IN BRIEF

Labor Day Crackdown On Drunken Driving

United Press International
Police in several states vowed to crack down on drunken drivers as the Labor Day weekend arrived to spell the official end of summer—complete with parades, fireworks, picnics and end-of-the-season camping trips.
The National Safety Council predicted as many as 560 people may die in traffic accidents over the three-day holiday weekend which begins at 6 p.m. local time today and ends at midnight Monday. Last year, 473 people were killed and 21,000 seriously injured in traffic accidents.
City, state, county and federal offices were expected to be closed throughout the nation Monday, freeing thousands of people to enjoy a respite from their daily labors.

Inmate Escapes Thwarted

WARTBURG, Tenn. (UPI)—Prisoners used women hostages in separate escape attempts in Tennessee Thursday but both tries failed without harm to the hostages.
A convicted killer armed with a sharpened screwdriver took a woman counselor hostage at a state prison in Wartburg in east Tennessee, about 40 miles from Knoxville.
And seven prisoners on a work detail from the DeKalb County jail at Smithville in middle Tennessee, about 50 miles from Nashville, commandeered a bus, stole two cars and took their guards and two women hostages during a wild, five-county escape attempt.

Farmland Prices Plummet

ATLANTA (UPI)—The price of southeastern farmland has plummeted sharply during the past year, following a nationwide trend, the Federal Reserve Bank in Atlanta reported Thursday.
But economist Gene Sullivan, reporting in the bank's Economic Insight publication said the southeastern decline has been less dramatic than the trend in other parts of the nation.
Georgia farmland prices have retreated 8 percent or $73 per acre and Florida's dropped 5 percent or $75 per acre. The smallest decline in the southeastern district's six states apparently came in Louisiana, where oil exploration held the reduction to 0.5 percent or $8 per acre, Sullivan said.
Sullivan said average U.S. farmland prices declined 1 percent from February 1981 to April 1982. But he said some farm real estate agents estimate that southeastern land prices skidded 10 to 20 percent in the past year.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Lightning touched off a refinery fire in New Mexico and intense thunderstorms from Michigan to Mississippi flooded streets, wrecked homes and cut power to thousands. Los Angeles suffered 108-degree temperatures in its "smoggiest day of the year." A string of brief but rugged storms Thursday downed a pontoon plane in Michigan and snarled rush-hour traffic on flooded Detroit expressways. Torrential 2-inch rain hit Columbus, Ohio, but drier air began moving into Kentucky and Tennessee, bringing relief from three days of relentless rain and threats of flooding. Showers and thunderstorms lashed the Atlantic and Gulf coasts today. Northwest winds pushed Canadian air through the upper Great Lakes but the desert Southwest sweltered in record-setting heat. Thermal, Calif., reported 121 degrees — the hottest of the summer — and the temperature hit a scorching 120 at Palm Springs, Calif. Phoenix tied a record with 112. The heat — 102 at Los Angeles and 108 at suburban Burbank—combined with stifling smog turned thousands to the comfort of their air conditioners. Power consumption soared to a record high and 20 first-stage and three second-stage smog alerts were called in the metropolitan area. Lightning sparked a blaze in a 20,000-gallon gasoline storage tank at the Navajo Refinery six blocks from the central business district of Artesia, N.M. A nearby tank blew up 5½ hours later and one firefighter was injured.

Youth Steals Altamonte Woman's Purse

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Police are continuing their search today for a youth who stole an Altamonte Springs woman's purse from her car while she and her husband were stopped at North and Jackson streets.

Valerie King, 26, of 700 E. Alpine St., told police that she and her husband, Howard, 25, were stopped at the intersection of North and Jackson streets when a boy walked up to their car, reached through the driver's window, grabbed Mrs. King's purse and ran. King jumped from the car in pursuit of the thief as Mrs. King went for help, police said.

King caught up with the thief near Ford and North streets and a struggle ensued with the boy hitting King in the face with his fist and fleeing, police said.

King told police there were 15 - 20 boys and men standing nearby who cheered the thief and told him to run.

Police, led by Mrs. King, arrived at the scene and searched the area for the youth without success. However, an investigation of the robbery is continuing.

MAN CHARGED WITH ARSON

An Indiana man has been charged with setting fire to his own 1982 Cadillac in May and was being held in the Seminole County jail today on $8,000 bond.

Gary Lewis Sager, 46, of Columbus, Ind., turned himself in to sheriff's deputies at 11:30 a.m. Thursday to face arson charges, deputies said.

Sager is charged with setting fire to and totally destroying his new car in Altamonte Springs last May.

About $60 cash and an undisclosed amount of jewelry was stolen from a Longwood man's home between 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday.

ALTAMONTE BURGLARY

Thieves stole about $4,400 worth of property from the home of three Altamonte Springs musicians between 1 and 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Florida Taking Its Drug Fight To Overseas Source

MIAMI (UPI)—A key member of the South Florida Task Force Against Crime says marijuana fields in Colombia may soon be sprayed with Paraquat to combat Florida's problems with drug smugglers.

Coast Guard Adm. Daniel Murphy, Vice President George Bush's liaison to the task force, said he met with government officials in Colombia last month, said the use of Paraquat on a marijuana field in the Florida Panhandle last week will help convince the South American nation it isn't dangerous.

The use of the deadly herbicide in Florida this year and in Mexico in 1972 led to strong protests. Government officials have long disputed claims that use of Paraquat is a health hazard.

"We did it in Mexico and we can do it in Colombia," Murphy said.

Murphy also said he has hopes for a pending agreement between the United States and Bolivia, where coca plants are grown and processed into cocaine. He said the two nations will complete the pact "any day now."

FHP Firings Challenged

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—Jim York's house cleaning of the Florida Highway Patrol may have come at the expense of some FHP officials' constitutional rights, a special review board says.

The panel, convened Thursday under the 1974 "Policeman's Bill of Rights" statute, said acting Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles director York has no basis to fire Maj. A.P. Floyd, a 29-year FHP veteran who currently is deputy inspector in charge of field operations for south Florida. The board's recommendation is not binding.

Floyd is the fifth FHP official to lose his job or be in danger of losing it in a scandal over misuse of state planes, motor vehicles and funds. He is the only one fighting York and if he is dismissed, he will appeal to the state Career Service Commission, whose decision in the case would be binding.

LAPAZ, Bolivia (UPI)—The Bolivian peso plunged to a new low, and banks halted trading in dollars nationwide as a reputed cocaine czar offered a unique proposal to save his country from economic collapse.

Roberto Suarez, alleged to be the world's top cocaine dealer, published an open letter Thursday to President Reagan offering to turn himself in if the United States paid Bolivia's $4 billion foreign debt and police released his son and other relatives arrested recently in Switzerland. ...3 Vying For School Board Post

She has three grandchildren enrolled in Seminole County schools and has worked as a volunteer at Midway School. Mrs. Bryant is married to O. G. Bryant, who works for the county's roads division. She has three sons and is a Purdue University alumna.

"I don't have a business to operate and would work as a full-time school board member," she said. The biggest need in the school district is to deal with the continuing growth that is taking place here, she said.

"The biggest problem is keeping up with the increases in school population," she said. "When there is a need for more space we should build more buildings."

But Mrs. Bryant said the board seems to have met the current needs of new construction in the district. "There aren't any schools that have double classes now."

Another problem is equalizing opportunities for all students, she said. Mrs. Bryant said the problem is not one of black vs. white or South Seminole vs. Sanford but one of different classes being offered at each school.

She proposes a standard curriculum to be offered at all schools. "Take a look at the high schools. Some schools have some classes and some have others. The offerings at the schools aren't equal." Mrs. Bryant also feels the school district could do a better job of keeping drugs off the school campuses.

"I back the teachers who want to remove the spaced-out and disruptive students from the classrooms," she said.

Mrs. Bryant said she was defeated for re-election to the board in 1974 in what she described as "a political situation."

"I would work with this superintendent (Robert Hughes). I hope he'll get elected," she said.

Patrick, 46, has five children in Seminole County schools and is married to Donna Patrick, a teacher. Those children, he said, are the main reasons he is running. "I've seen enough turmoil in the schools over the past 15 years," he said.

He said the School Board has not provided enough leadership. "Curriculum and long-range planning are what it's all about. There is no articulation between the elementary and secondary schools."

Patrick, who works for McDougal Little Publishers, which sells school textbooks, said schools in the north end of Seminole County have been neglected by the board.

"I really believe the north end has been neglected," he said. "Look at Lawton, Southside, even Seminole High School. Lake Brantley High School was built long after Seminole High but Brantley is getting renovations."

He said the policy of constructing inexpensive schools in the county has backfired. "The inexpensive schools turned out to be cheap schools."

Patrick, who lives at 110 W. Greentree Lane in Sanford, said the county could have passed a bond issue a decade ago with 6 percent interest rates, rather than the high rates they face now.

"We need to take the county planning department and use it to plan schools," he said. "We should find out what's going to be happening and plan for it."

Patrick has served on the county's PTA council, was volunteer girls basketball coach at Lake Brantley High School, and currently is chairman of the state AAU girls basketball team.

Midway Woman Is Found Guilty Of Murder

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A 30-year-old Midway woman is facing life imprisonment after being found guilty of second-degree murder in the shooting death of her estranged husband.

Gloria Jean Harrison Neal, 2301 Dollar Way, was convicted Thursday, of the Dec. 26 killing of Ronald "Doc" Neal, 34, formerly of State Road 46, Midway, after a nine-man, three-woman jury deliberated almost eight hours over two days. She had originally been charged with first-degree murder in the slaying and could have been sentenced to death.

Mrs. Neal was also convicted of aggravated battery and probation violation and could face an additional prison term of 15 years and five years, respectively, on those charges. Because a

Mrs. Neal was arrested in connection with her estranged husband's death after an argument between the couple at the Club Two Spot bar in Midway. When a male friend of Ms. Neal intervened, Neal hit him and then struck Ms. Neal, knocking them both to the floor, prosecutors said. Ms. Neal and her friend left the bar but Ms. Neal returned about 20 to 30 minutes later with a gun and fired at Neal, prosecutors charged.

Neal grabbed a bystander, Bernice Golden, 46, of Broad Way, and pulled her in front of him as a shield as Ms. Neal fired the gun. Ms. Golden was shot in the wrist with the bullet fragment finally lodging in her hip.

Ms. Neal continued firing at Neal sending the fatal bullet into his body, perforating his lung and liver, according to the county medical examiner. Ms. Neal's attorney, Assistant Public Defender Marlene Alva, said there may be an appeal of the verdict because of the playing of Ms.

Neal's taped confession of the murder in court. Ms. Alva argues that the interview was conducted by deputies after Ms. Neal asked for a lawyer three times.

However, deputies said Ms. Neal changed her mind about waiting for a lawyer before beginning the interview and asked three times to tell her side of the story.

deadly weapon was used in the murder of her husband and wounding of a bystander. Ms. Neal must spend at least three years in jail before becoming eligible for parole.

A Victory For Military Wives

The newly passed federal legislation overturning the U.S. Supreme Court decision which had prohibited divorced wives from sharing in the former husband's military pensions was a victory not only for the thousands of women adversely affected by that perverse ruling.

It was, more important, a victory for fairness and common sense.

The decision in question, handed down by the Supreme Court just over a year ago (in McCarty vs. McCarty), held that divorce courts in community-property states could not require retired military personnel to share that part of the pension earned during the marriage with their former wives, as the state courts had been ordering.

In effect, said the U.S. Supreme Court, military pensions were not part of community property (as nearly all other pensions are) but, absurdly, a sort of remuneration for current services.

The court's reasoning for that conclusion was that retired military people were always subject to involuntary recall and were thus being compensated for that possibility.

The fact that none have been so recalled for many years and that everyone else in the society is, in the event of a national emergency, subject to a similar call was conveniently ignored.

The law passed by Congress overturning the decision — it's part of a military authorization bill — in fact puts ex-wives of military pensioners in a somewhat better position than they were before McCarty.

It permits divorced wives to ask the Defense Department to pay them their court-ordered share of pension payments directly, provided that they were married at least 10 years while their husbands were on active duty, thereby guaranteeing prompt and certain payments.

In addition, it provides certain divorced spouses for the first time both continuing military health care and commissary provisions.

The law, of course, remains limited. It applies only to those states which have community-property laws and it protects only those arrangements that are ordered by the courts as part of a divorce settlement.

Which is to say that it returns to the states the prerogatives they had before McCarty was handed down.

It is, nonetheless, a substantial victory and, not coincidentally, a major triumph for the organizations of ex-military wives who had fought for this legislation.

As one leader of such a group pointed out, it demonstrated to women who had never been politically involved before just how much could be done at the right time in the right cause with the proper organization.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Maybe we would be more optimistic, too, if we watched 'Leave It To Beaver' reruns!"

By MICHAEL BEHA

I recently discovered a fascinating new book about Florida. And it's published in, of all places, West Virginia.

The book, "A Panorama of Florida," edited by David Bice, and published by Jalnap Publications Inc., of Charleston, W.Va., is one of those travelogue style books filled with interesting tidbits of information about Florida's history.

It tells about the diversities present in Florida, the wide variations in climate, culture and lifestyles and explains how those diversities came into being.

Florida's history from the early Spanish explorers to the latest space explorer's from Ponce deLeon to Jack Mattingley, is chronicled in the book.

From the Spanish barons like Hernando de Soto to the northern robber barons like Henry Flagler who came to retrieve the riches of Florida, the story of the Florida Experience is told.

Florida's history is laden with conflicts between France, Spain, Britain and the United States and between Europeans, Hispanics and Indians over its sovereignty.

For the newcomer, the book is a must. It makes the contradictions that make up Florida more understandable. And for the lifelong Floridian, the book will undoubtedly dredge up information they've not thought of since their fourth grade Florida studies.

Bice has received contributions from numerous Florida historians in the book which not only tells what Florida is but tells how it was and how it got here from there.

The book has lots of pictures taken from state archives and will be available soon at bookstores around the state.

One of the most pleasant parts of my Florida Experience so far has been in meeting so many folks from my home state.

With that in mind, I'd like to spread the news to other West Virginia refugees of the 24th annual West Virginia Day, planned for Sept. 29 in Titusville.

The picnic and festivities for Mountaineers will begin at 10 a.m. at Fox Lake Park. Formal festivities including singing, dancing will begin at 1 p.m.

Information can be obtained from Billy Rice in Titusville at 267-3570.

Bifocal Contact Lenses

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved the first bifocal contact lens for general use and two other companies are seeking a similar federal okay to market their own varieties.

The first approved bifocal contact lens, called BI-SOFT, comes from Ciba Vision Care and is made in Atlanta.

It has two specific correction zones. The central zone corrects distance vision. Around that is a concentric zone for correction of near vision.

"The patient is able to focus on an object either near or far without special movement of the eyes or head," said a Ciba Vision Care spokesman. "In comparison, bifocal spectacles and other methods of correcting presbyopia necessitate this so-called gaze adjustment."

"The brain quickly becomes accustomed to selecting the desired image through the (contact) lens without the need for special gaze adjustment."

The patient just looks straight out the center for distance and he or she looks a little to the right or left or slightly up or down for near vision.

The bifocal contact has the advantage other contacts have. That is, unless you know for sure, you can't tell a person has the lenses on.

Bifocals are needed as persons age. The condition called presbyopia causes the eye to lose its ability to focus at near distances — to read, for example.

Estimates are that more than 65 million Americans require bifocal correction. The BI-SOFT bifocal contact is available in a full range of powers.

FDA spokesman Bill Rados said before approval is granted to a particular brand of bifocal contact lens, the manufacturer must submit information on studies showing the lens is safe and effective.

BI-SOFT has had extensive clinical evaluation in the United States, a spokesman for the company said. Clinical data was collected from studies conducted by eye care practitioners.

Rados said two other companies have submitted information to the FDA on clinical trials with their brands of contact bifocals — the last step when seeking approval for marketing.

Once approved, a lens no longer is just used in investigational studies or clinical trials. Any eye doctor can prescribe it.

Soft contact lenses, bifocal or one power, cannot be used by persons who also have astigmatism. In astigmatism, there is an irregular curvature of the eye and vision is blurred. Forty million Americans have astigmatism.

The company that brought out the first bifocal contact lens says it will be introducing another new FDA-approved soft contact lens later this year. It is supposed to correct astigmatism.

Cuba Can't Pay Loans; Banks Burned

WASHINGTON — Mexico isn't our only insolvent neighbor. Fidel Castro's Cuba is in even worse shape financially.

Castro owes a total of nearly $10 billion to foreign creditors. That's about 200 times more than Cuba owed when he seized power in 1959. Approximately $7 billion of that is owed to Big Brother in Moscow.

But Castro owes $2.5 billion to Western bankers. Of that amount, $1.1 billion comes due for payment in the next 12 months.

International banking sources say Castro has only two choices: rescheduling the loans or defaulting. Either way, Cuba may be cut off from these loan markets. Some Western bankers, belatedly wising up, now say they won't lend Castro any more money because they can't be sure what it's being used for.

And Castro can't count on a bailout from the Kremlin. Moscow gold is stretched pretty thin these days — what with grain imports, the costly adventure in Afghanistan and bailouts of such other clients as Poland and Vietnam.

U.S. banks are probably the only major international lending source that hasn't been pouring money down the Cuban rat hole. That's because we got stuck early in the game, when Castro expropriated nearly $2 billion in U.S.-owned assets following his revolution. The resulting U.S. embargo applies to American banks as well as other businesses.

Who has been underwriting Castro's extravagant economic, political and military experiments? His foreign loans have come from banks in Libya, Japan, Canada, France, Spain, West Germany, Italy and the Arab countries — even a bank controlled by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Amazingly, many of the Western loans to Cuba were of the "general-purpose" variety, not earmarked for specific projects. This meant that Castro didn't have to tell the lenders what the money would be spent on, unlike you and me when we approach our friendly financier, hat in hand.

The ironic result is that these pillars of capitalism may have subsidized Castro's foreign subversion — a startling illustration of the cynical Leninist prediction that capitalism will supply the rope for its own hanging. Cuban troops by the thousands began deploying in Angola and Ethiopia at about the time of the influx of cash from Western banks.

At any rate, there is no evidence that Castro used the money for the laudable goal he suggested he needed it for: diversifying the

ROBERT WAGMAN

Rozelle Drives For Victory

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle has his offense in high gear as the National Football League tries to accomplish in Congress what it has failed to accomplish in the courts over the past year.

Both the House and the Senate have begun work on legislation that would grant professional football a limited exemption from federal antitrust laws.

Major-league baseball already has an antitrust exemption, and pro football has argued for years that it needs one, too.

But the catalyst for the current legislation was the Raiders' decision to move from Oakland to Los Angeles this season over the opposition of most NFL owners. The league's efforts to stop the move were barred on an antitrust grounds last May by a federal court jury.

The NFL says that it deserves the exemption because professional sports leagues are unique economic enterprises in that their member teams must operate in concert although they are individually owned and operated.

If a league is to survive, says the NFL, it must be able to control its members — whether that involves the manner in which players are acquired or the cities in which the teams are based.

The NFL seems to be playing a smart game on Capitol Hill.

First the league explored the possibility of a blanket exemption similar to the one received by baseball in a very different era. That would have allowed the NFL's teams to be viewed as a single economic entity rather than as 28 separate ones.

But when congressional leaders resisted the broad exemption, the NFL quickly backed off and asked for a limited exemption that in effect would permit the league to control the movement of franchises.

(The league says that its bill would simply require that antitrust principles be interpreted differently when applied to professional sports. The result, though, would be the same: The NFL could force the Raiders to remain in Oakland.)

The NFL has amassed an impressive array of lobbying talent to push its cause, including Robert Strauss, former Carter administration official and Democratic national chairman; Marlowe Cook, former Republican senator from Kentucky; Anne Wexler, former high-ranking Carter aide; and Paul Kirk, former aide to Sen. Edward Kennedy and a behind-the-scenes force in the Democratic Party.

This was not the first antitrust exemption that Rozelle has obtained.

In 1966, he won the exemption that allowed the merger of the NFL with the upstart American Football League — and produced a decade and a half of great prosperity for the team owners.

Rozelle arranged for that exemption to be pushed through Congress by two of its leading figures of that day — Sen. Russell Long and the late Rep. Hale Boggs, both Louisiana Democrats. Although all involved would have denied any kind of quid pro quo, when the NFL got the exemption, New Orleans got the Saints.

The commissioner may be trying this maneuver again. He recently announced that the NFL is ready to expand to 30 teams and that franchise applications are pending from Indianapolis; Jacksonville, Fla.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Birmingham, Ala.; Memphis, Tenn.; and San Antonio, Texas.

But, Rozelle says, the league will not even consider expansion unless it can control the movement of its franchises.

WILLIAM A. RUSER

Peking Saves Face

NEW YORK (NES)—The text of the long-rumored and much-debated "Shanghai Two" Communique, agreed on by the governments of the United States and Communist China, has now been published and can be studied in detail. Those who favor Peking will stress certain phrases in it and ignore others. Those friends of Taiwan whose support for Free China takes the form of insisting shrilly at every opportunity that it is being sold down the river by the Reagan administration will emphasize many of the same points.

But the truth is that Ronald Reagan has kept his word: Taiwan will keep right on getting the arms it needs to defend itself. As a government official in Taipei put it to an American newsman there just a few days before the communique was published, "If Peking gets the face and Taipei gets the substance—enough military supplies to defend ourselves—that will not be so bad."

As matters turned out, that is exactly what happened.

America's commitment to let Taiwan have the arms it needs for its defense is embodied in the Taiwan Relations Act, which was passed by Congress in 1979 after Jimmy Carter's cowardly rabbit-punch de-recognition of Taipei during Congress' Christmas recess in December 1978. This commitment, however, has never been endurable to Peking, which insists that (1) Taiwan is simply a rebellious province of China, to be absorbed by the mainland by peaceful means of force without anybody else having a say in the matter, and (2) U.S. recognition of Peking in 1978 makes any military aid whatever to Taiwan absolutely unacceptable.

That is why Peking's reactions to continued U.S. aid for Taiwan under the Taiwan Relations Act—which reached a level of $835 million in 1980—have ranged the gamut from tantrums to near-hysteria as further aid entered the pipeline, and above all as the date neared for reauthorizing continued co-production of Northrup's F-5E fighter planes right on the island of Taiwan itself.

According to Reagan administration sources, what made final agreement on the language of "Shanghai Two" possible was a major concession by Peking concerning the nature of its intentions toward Taiwan. To quote Section 4 of the communique:

"The Chinese Government reiterates that the question of Taiwan is China's internal affair." (The usual "volter-plate.") But then: "The Message to Compatriots in Taiwan issued by China on Jan. 1, 1979, promulgated a fundamental policy of striving for peaceful reunification of the motherland." Ah! Those words "fundamental policy," using the Chinese characters "da-zheng" which literally mean "great" and "governing" in effect commit Peking to seeking the reunification of Taiwan by peaceful methods only.

And the final sentence of Section 4 simply nails the point down: "The nine-point proposal put forward by China on Sept. 30, 1981, represented a further major effort under this fundamental policy"—note the re-use of the same portentous words—"to strive for a peaceful solution of the Taiwan question."

Faced with Peking's major concession that it will seek Taiwan's reunification by peaceful means only—Washington felt obliged to acknowledge that a "new situation... has emerged with regard to the Taiwan question (which) also provides favorable conditions for the settlement of United States-China differences over the question of United States arms sales to Taiwan. Having in mind the foregoing statement...—i.e., Peking's pledge to use only peaceful methods—"the United States government states that it does not seek to carry out a long-term policy of arms sales to Taiwan," that its sales would not exceed recent levels, and that it intends to reduce these sales gradually.

In so stating, The United States acknowledges—and, one gathers, rather forcefully stresses its reliance upon—"China's consistent position regarding the thorough settlement of this issue": namely, that the attempts at unification shall be entirely peaceful.

Well, really, what's so wrong with that. To reduce U.S. aid to Taiwan, Peking's methods must remain wholly peaceful. If she breaks her word—as of course she may at any time—all bets are off and the United States is free to arm Taiwan to any desired extent. Meanwhile, co-production of the F-5Es goes forward in Taiwan, and the flag of Free China continues to fly over the island. As long as Ronald Reagan is president, you can bet that it will.

Young Passes Rebels Dizzy, Cougars Clobber UNLV, 27-0

United Press International
Brigham Young university's football team has a good memory.

Steve Young passed for 271 yards and a touchdown and ran for a second TD Thursday night to lead the 19th-ranked Cougars to an easy 27-0 victory over the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

The win avenged a 45-41 BYU loss to the Rebels in the last 20 seconds of their 1981 meeting and spoiled the coaching debut of UNLV's Harvey Hyde. The last time a Rebel team was blanked was in the third game of the 1978 season.

"Physically, up front, we're very tough," said BYU Coach LaVelle Edwards. "That was the difference tonight. I also felt the defense played an exceptional game."

Young, who played behind All-America quarterback Jim McMahon last year, hit on 19 of 36 passes. He was 7-for-8 for 110 yards in the first quarter, including a 3-yard TD strike to Scott Pettes with 5:33 to play.

"Based on an opening game, I was very pleased with the performance of Steve Young," Edwards said.

Two plays into the second quarter, Cougars safety Kevin Walker intercepted a Steve White pass on the Rebel 28. Following a 19-yard pass, Young handed off to running back Casey Tiumalu, who scampered off-tackle for 9 yards and a touchdown.

Junior quarterback Eric Krzmarzick replaced Young with 59 seconds to go in the second quarter and tossed a 5-yard pass to running back Jimmy Jones, upping the Cougars' lead to 20-0 at the half.

Eagles Acquire Pastorini

United Press International
Some old familiar names are going to be back in the NFL this year.

The return of veteran quarterbacks to the NFL continued Thursday with the announcement Dan Pastorini has agreed in principle to terms with the Philadelphia Eagles. Pastorini, who will serve on the Eagles' taxi squad, came aboard following the signings of Vince Ferragamo with the Rams and Ken Stabler with the Saints.

Meanwhile, Stabler's return has prompted New Orleans' Coach Bum Phillips to consider a two-quarterback system for his squad. Playing time might be split this season between Archie Manning, a 12-year Saints veteran, and 15-year NFL veteran Stabler, who was impressive in Saturday's preseason loss to Cleveland.

"I never have had that (two-quarterback system) before, but I never have had two experienced quarterbacks that close together," Phillips said.

The coach said Manning and Stabler are both capable of playing in any situation, and they might be alternated based on who is having a good game.

Manning will start tonight against Minnesota in the Saints' last pre-season game, Phillips said, but Stabler will play half of the game.

Pearson On Darlington Pole

DARLINGTON, S.C. (UPI)—David Pearson, the "Silver Fox" of NASCAR racing, wheeled his Buick around the 1.366-mile oval at Darlington International Raceway in record-breaking time to win an unprecedented 13th pole position, Thursday, the first day of qualifying for Labor Day's Southern 500. Pearson came up with a record 155.739 miles per hour.

The Spartanburg, S.C. driver's 10 grand national victories at Darlington and 12 pole positions on his home-state track make him the raceway's all-time winner.

"The speed is a little faster than I thought we'd run, but the conditions were just perfect — cloudy and a little cooler than it's been," Pearson said.

"I'm happy. You always try a little harder when you qualify," he said.

Phillies Finally Get Molinaro

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—For the second time this week the Philadelphia Phillies have acquired outfielder Bob Molinaro from the Chicago Cubs, and this time it's legal.

The Phillies said Thursday they purchased Molinaro's contract from the Cubs for an undisclosed amount, but he will not be eligible for post-season play.

The Phillies first acquired Molinaro Tuesday, as the player to be named later in last year's trade of Dickie Noles, Keith Moreland and Dan Larson to the Cubs for Mike Kruczek.

But that deal was canceled Wednesday by the commissioner's office because it violated an obscure league rule that said the acquisition of Molinaro could only be made if he "had not been on the active list of any club in the league during any part of a (regular) season between the date of the agreement and the date of the assignment."

Molinaro had been with the Cubs since opening day.

The Phillies said Molinaro's purchase was approved by the commissioner's office and the two teams were fined an undisclosed amount for violating the rule.

The team also said Molinaro's purchase will conclude the earlier trade.

Buccaneers Claim End Cobb

TAMPA (UPI)—The Tampa Bay Buccaneers claimed defensive end Bob Cobb on waivers Thursday from the Los Angeles Rams and waived fullback James Mayberry.

The Bucs also announced running back Jerry Eckwood, the club's rushing leader last season, will undergo back surgery Saturday and probably will miss the entire season. A spokesman said Eckwood has a protruded lumbar disk.

The club took no official action to change Eckwood's status on the roster and is expected to wait until Monday to place him on the injured reserve list.

Cobb, a second year player, is 6-foot-4 and 250 pounds. He was a third round draft choice of the Rams last year out of Arizona. He spent most of the season on the reserve list with a non-football injury.

He rejoined the team in the 11th week of the season and played mostly on special teams.

Mayberry was obtained from the Atlanta Falcons Monday in exchange for a future draft choice. The trade was contingent upon Mayberry making the squad so the Bucs will retain the draft pick.

Martina—Too Famous, Too Fast

NEW YORK (UPI)— Sometimes people get "too famous" too fast, and that's the big mistake Martina Navratilova is making now. She's nominating herself as the best women's tennis player in the world and one of the best in history, and even if she is, it would mean much more coming from others instead of herself. She could show a little patience. At least until she wins the U.S. Open title just once. Chris Evert Lloyd, who has won the title five times is not too thrilled over Martina's self adulation and is needing her. It isn't a very good idea taking sides when two ladies get into a hairpulling match, but I'm with Lloyd in this one ...

Billy Martin wasn't fooling when he said he's going to do some heavy winter housecleaning among his fifth-place Oakland A's, who have nose-dived from last year when they won the division title in the American League West. He has informed the other club every one of his players is available for trading with the exception of Rickey Henderson, baseball's new stolen-base king...

Shortly before Tommy John went to the Angels, George Steinbrenner had only the nicest things to say about him, much the same as he's saying about Graig Nettles now. The Yankees are offering their 38-year-old third baseman to everyone but there haven't been any takers. If they can't make a deal for Nettles, they may be faced with releasing him at the end of the season.

Milton Richman

Nobody fools around with Frank Kush, the hard-nosed new coach of the Baltimore Colts. Not on his time, anyway. Zack Valentine found that out in a hurry. Traded by the Steelers to the Colts earlier this week, he was late showing up for practice with the Colts Wednesday after driving five hours from Pittsburgh. He couldn't believe it when they told him he had no job. Kush had put him on waivers ...

Harvey Kuenn, who's doing such a good job as interim manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, has the perfect answer for those who ask him if he feels somewhat unappreciated about his "interim" label. "Not at all," he says.

"Every manager in the majors is an interim" one, anyway....

The behind-the-scenes rapport between National Hockey League President John A. Ziegler, Jr., and H. Alan Eagleson, spokesman for the players, was a key factor in the recent settlement achieved by the NHL owners and players. Ziegler took an active part in negotiations as opposed to last summer's baseball strike when Bowie Kuhn wasn't allowed to participate.

I'm sorry to see Reggie Buckner saying goodbye to the Cleveland Browns. He gave the fans their money's worth and I always enjoyed watching him pull in those passes. He didn't drop many he got his hands on....

Steve Garvey is keeping his options open in case he doesn't sign another contract with the Dodgers. One of the cities he'd consider is Chicago, which doesn't make Dallas Green mad because he wouldn't mind seeing Garvey in a Cubs uniform.

Right now, if my life depended on one game, Jim Palmer would be the one I'd want pitching it for me, and if I needed one hit, Rusty Staub would be the one I'd pick to get it for me. Nobody has any better idea of the strike zone, nobody handles the bat better than he does and nobody has any better idea of what hitting is all about than Staub. He may be hitting only .258, but to me he is the best pure hitter in either league at the moment.

Sutton Serves Up Homer To Spoil Milwaukee Debut

United Press International
Don Sutton, making his first AL appearance Thursday night, served up a three-run homer to Von Hayes with one out in the ninth inning Thursday night, and gave the Cleveland Indians a 4-2 victory over the Brewers for a split of their doubleheader at Milwaukee.

Just before the fateful first pitch to Hayes, Milwaukee pitching coach Pat Dobson paid a visit to Sutton on the mound.

"Dobson asked me if I felt OK. I said I felt good. He said, 'Go and get him,'" Sutton said. "Unfortunately, I got the pitch a little out over the plate more than I wanted to, and you can't do that against a hitter like him."

Sutton, who allowed only four hits through eight innings, gave up singles to Andre Thornton and Ron Hassey before Hayes hit his 12th homer of the season. Dan Spillner, 11-8, was the winner.

Baseball
Indians' Manager Dave Garcia was impressed with Sutton, who had spent all his previous years with National League teams before being traded to Milwaukee, Monday.

"He is outstanding. He doesn't have one real outstanding pitch, except for maybe his curveball. It's his knowledge of pitching that is his bread and butter," Garcia said.

In the opener, Ben Oglivie and Gorman Thomas each collected an RBI single to spoil a four-hitter by Rick Sutcliffe and gave Milwaukee a 2-1 victory. Moose Haas improved his record to 10-8 with hitless relief help from Dwight Bernard, Rollie Fingers and Pete Ladd.

Milwaukee built its lead to 2-0 in the third on a walk to Robin Yount and back-to-back singles by Cecil Cooper and Thomas.

Hayes cut the margin to 2-1 by belting his 11th home run in the fifth.

In other AL games, Chicago nipped Texas, 6-5, in 10 innings, and Detroit handed California, 6-3. There were no games scheduled in the NL.

Tigers 6, Angels 5
At Chicago, Vance Law doubled in Mike Squires from second base in the 10th for the White Sox. Jim Kern, 1-0, gained the victory with 2 2/3 innings of perfect relief. Harold Baines had tied the score, 5-5, with a two-out homer in the ninth.

Tigers 6, Rockies 3
At Detroit, rookie Glenn Wilson broke a 3-3 tie with a single that extended his hitting streak to 19 games and Lance Parrish slugged two home runs to set a record for a Detroit catcher. Aurelio Lopez pitched six innings of strong relief to raise his record to 2-1.

Garvey Says, 'Strike Almost Inevitable'

NEW YORK (UPI)— While the head of the players' union was saying the first NFL players' strike in almost a decade is "almost inevitable" sometime this year, Commissioner Pete Rozelle was expressing his hope that it can be avoided.

"The way it is going, there is going to be a strike," said Ed Garvey, head of the NFL Players Association. "As soon as the executive committee calls for one, everybody is going to walk."

Garvey's comments came as the opening day for the new season approached with each side in the dispute accusing the other of refusing to negotiate. He spoke before members of the Sheet Metal Workers union in New York.

Garvey accused the league owners of refusing to meet for negotiations and denied allegations that it was the players who were refusing to meet.

"We don't want to strike, but it's almost inevitable. You can't have negotiations when the other side won't come to the bargaining table," he said.

Garvey said a strike, if it occurs, would probably not come on the season's opening day Sept. 12. He said it would be "safe to assume" a "secret" strike date had already been chosen.

"We know at what time a strike would be to the greatest advantage of our players. There has been discussion and we have a pretty good idea when it would be," he said.

The key difference in the dispute has been wages. Garvey said the players, whose salaries range from $24,000 to $600,000 and average $53,000, want 55 percent of the league's revenues put into a special fund for players.

They also want the creation of a wage scale and unspecified raises.

"If it's a case of money, maybe they can find another way to settle it," Rozelle said at a news conference in Chicago. "Perhaps there's another formula, an obvious compromise."

Garvey said the players also want

Rockets Aren't Giving Up Fight On Malone

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)— The battle is on over whether Moses Malone will be snaring rebounds for Julius Erving and Company or staying right where he has spent the last 5 1/2 seasons.

The Philadelphia 76ers Thursday signed the 6-foot-10 Malone, the two-time NBA Most Valuable Player and the league's leading rebounder last season, to an offer sheet providing a six-year contract worth a reported $13 million.

At a crowded news conference, Sixers Owner Harold Katz appeared confident the Rockets would not match the 76ers' offer for business reasons.

But in Houston, Rockets' owner Charlie Thomas said he wasn't giving up the fight, even though his final offer to Malone over the same six-year period was $4 million short of what Katz offered him.

Under NBA rules, the Rockets have 15 days from the time they receive Malone's offer sheet and contract to either match the offer or keep Malone, or match it, then trade him. Thomas said he would use up much of that time examining it and seeing how much money the Sixers would pay Malone up front.

"I wouldn't rule out paying the $13 million," Thomas said. "I would have to look at the situation and see what I would have to charge in ticket prices in order to pay those dollars."

"I sat down and started thinking that extra $4 million isn't in real dollars.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the ability today to turn unprofitable situations into something personally rewarding. Your chance to use your gift may come in the p.m.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are not likely to put forth your best efforts today unless you are subjected to challenge. This will be especially true in sports and romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Those who seek your assistance today could be surprised when you turn them down. However, if the idea originates with you, it's another matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try not to make snap judgments about persons you meet for the first time today. They might turn you off initially, but not when you know them better.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be too eager to toss in the towel in competitive or trying developments today. Everything could suddenly twist around to your advantage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When discussing important issues today, keep your mind on what is being said. You're likely to grasp the essence, yet miss the major message.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not be afraid to ask questions today if you're involved in a matter that you don't fully understand. Clarify all fuzzy areas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Better understandings can be established today between you and someone who could be a helpful ally, once he or she is swayed to your cause.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In fulfilling your ambitions today, strive to be imaginative and resourceful. You can accomplish your aims if you turn up your thinking cap.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be too hasty in turning down invitations to social happenings today. What might not appeal to you in the a.m. will be desirable later.

Not Wise To Mix Sedatives, Alcohol

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have Meniere's disease and take one tablet of Benadryl (50 mg) each night, which seems to keep the symptoms under control. I have never been a pill taker and rarely ever resort to aspirin. I dislike having to take this medicine on a continuous basis and worry about its side effects. I voiced such a concern to my doctor but his response seemed so casual to me.

Can you help me a bit with this? Does the Benadryl just keep the symptoms under control, or does it have any sort of "healing" effect on the disease? Also, although I don't drink on a regular basis, sometimes on weekends I'll drink two or three beers or a mixed drink. Then I am afraid to take the Benadryl. Please tell me what the effect of mixing these is.

DEAR READER — Antihistamines such as Benadryl are sometimes prescribed to help control motion sickness. And Meniere's disease, causing dizziness, ear noises and loss of hearing, is sometimes associated with swelling of the balance canals of your ears. If there is an allergic component then the antihistamines may help.

In any case, it is important to recognize that antihistamines are sedatives. Benadryl is an effective sleeping pill for many people. Some people notice more drowsiness than others from antihistamines.

Alcohol is also a sedative or depressant to the brain. It follows that neither you or anyone else should use alcohol at the same time they use antihistamines. Since we are approaching the ragweed and hay fever season that is important for antihistamine users to know.

Benadryl and other antihistamines also interact with various tranquilizers, sleeping preparations and sedatives. The more common ones of these that interact are included in The Health Letter number 12-2. Sedatives, Hypnotics and Tranquilizers: The Pill Problem, which I am sending you. Don't take any of these in addition to Benadryl without your doctor's approval.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your opinion concerning bottled water compared to tap water. Also, what about the use of a tablespoon of apple cider vinegar in a glass of water. I read in a folk medicine book that the vinegar is supposed to help balance the pH of the body.

DEAR READER — I hesitate to say that all tap water is perfectly safe any more because of some alarming reports about substances in some city water supplies and the effects of outdated water treatment methods. But on the whole most people enjoy good water. If there is a problem I usually recommend drinking and using distilled water, as is done in many parts of the world. Other bottled water may contain minerals that may not always be helpful either, such as too much sodium.

Vinegar will have no effect on your pH, the acid-alkaline balance of your body. That is regulated in such a way that you can eat or drink many acid or alkaline substances and your body eliminates excess acid or alkaline chemicals to maintain a very exact balance. Your kidneys and lungs both work to maintain this balance. The claim about cider is utter nonsense. Anyone who proposed such an idea is not well informed on body chemistry and physiology.

would have time to ruff two clubs in dummy and get his 12 tricks without getting any mileage out of dummy's hearts.

We are sure there is some way to get to six hearts in some system, but we feel that in a 100-table tournament the odds are that not one pair would get there. Anyway, we are showing a standard way to get to six spades. Now you have to find the best line of play.

There is no reason not to try to win the first trick with dummy's eight of spades. You play it and it holds. Now you can take the club finesse. If it works you are home. If it loses — and it does — you are in trouble since West leads a second spade. The suit fails to break and if you play on hearts West can trump the third heart.

Is there a better line of play? There is an unusual one that will succeed if hearts break 3-2 or if trumps break 2-2.

You lead a diamond from dummy and chuck a top heart. Suppose East wins and leads a club. You refuse the finesse and take your ace. Play a second trump to see if the suit breaks.

It doesn't, but now you cash your last two hearts, enter dummy with the 10 of trumps and discard all your club losers on the rest of the heart suit.

Deanna Will Wear Dazzling Designs In Miss America Pageant

By DORIS DIETRICH
PEOPLE Editor

A parade of glittering fashions highlighted a gala gathering Saturday night at the home of Barbara and Bob Allegro in Erroll Estates.

The model was Miss Florida Deanna Pitman triumphantly showing the elegant gowns she will be wearing in competition for the Miss America crown next week in Atlantic City.

About 150 invited guests observed Allegro, owner of a McDonald's franchise, presenting Miss Florida with a complimentary gold card from McDonald's to use during her year's reign.

Deanna and her mother, Hilda Pitman arrived at their Apopka home the previous night from Greenville, S.C., where Deanna's Miss America pageant gowns were being created at Joseph and Stephens. They were designed by Steve Eurick at a cost of about $3,500, a Miss Florida Pageant spokesman said.

"They are gorgeous," Hilda said. She added that six other Miss America contestants are wearing gowns from the same salon.

Jim Hutchison, a member of the 1982 Miss Florida Pageant Board of Directors, Altamonte Springs, confirms that about 80 known supporters of Miss Florida will attend the Atlantic City festivities next week. Hutchison explained that five dancers will be in competition with Deanna.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Deanna will out-dance any of the girls," Hutchison said. "It's super a girl is that confident in herself," he adds. "She will give it 150 percent of her ability and walk away with it (the title)," he speculates.

Of all the luxurious fashions in her Miss America competition wardrobe, Hutchison says Deanna's favorite is a white jumpsuit all contestants will wear for the opening number. "She is very comfortable in it—it's very elegant," he acknowledged.

Television screens across the nation will see beauty, poise, talent and America's finest gowns on parade on Sept. 11.

Deanna, sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford when she won the Miss Sanford Scholarship Pageant directly leading to her becoming Miss Florida, will be among the best-dressed Miss America candidates in Atlantic City next week. Her original gowns are exquisite.

Her jade green chiffon parade gown, Grecian inspired, features a dropped torso, lavishly embellished in leaf designs with bugle beads and also silver, pale pink and aqua beads and pearls. The slim skirt is accented with a side front slit.

Enhancing this brilliantly beaded parade gown will be a colorful feathered boa when Deanna rides in the official Miss America Pageant parade.

For her runway appearances, Miss Florida will wear a long-sleeved red chiffon gown over taffeta, fashioned along the slim silhouette and adorned with white bugle bead clusters, white pearls and rhinestones.

Miss Florida's competition gown, again slim and fitted, is elegantly designed of platinum silk chiffon and richly embellished with a melange of bugle beads, iridescents, silver white and pale pink beads and also pearls.

Dazzling.
There she is...

Gardening

Fill Causes Serious Damage To Trees

The addition or removal of soil around the base of a tree may seriously disturb the delicate relationship between roots and soil and may considerably damage or kill the tree.

In many areas, fill is often added to a building site and no precautions are taken to minimize the shock of placing the roots in a new environment.

When fill is added over existing soils, air and water, which are essential for normal functioning of the roots, are partially excluded. As a result, the roots die and the symptoms soon become visible in the above-ground parts.

Symptoms may appear within a month, or may not appear for several years. The visual symptoms are small yellow leaves, presence of numerous suckers along the main trunk and branches, many dead twigs and in some instances, large dead branches.

The extent of injury from fills varies with the kind, age and condition of the tree; the depth and type of fill; drainage and several other minor factors. Maple, oak and evergreens are most seriously injured, while elm, ash, willow, sycamore and locust are least affected.

Desmond Hastings

Urban Horticulturist

Obviously, the deeper the fill, the more marked is the disturbance to the roots. Clay soil fills cause most injury because the fineness of the soil shuts out air and water most completely. The application of only an inch or two of clay soil may cause severe injury. Sandy fills may be added to a depth of four inches. Gravelly fills cause least damage, because both air and water penetrate them more readily.

As a general rule, the application of a layer of several inches deep of gravelly soil, or even of the same type of soil in which the tree has been growing, will do no harm. The roots will eventually become accustomed to the new situation by producing additional roots near the surface.

Little can be done to save trees that have been suffering from grade fills over an extended period. However, much can be done to prevent damage to trees by excessive fills.

The initial cost of proper precautionary measures is high and replacement of the tree may be more economical, particularly if the tree is young, in poor condition, an undesirable species, or very susceptible to insect and disease pests.

Where fills are placed around a tree, four or six inch agricultural tiles are laid in a wheel-and-spoke design with the tree as the hub. The radical lines of the tile near the tree trunk should be at least one foot higher than the ends joining the circle of tile. An open-jointed stone or brick well is then constructed around the trunk up to the level of the new fill. The radical tiles extend into the well.

The inner wall of the well should be two feet from the tree trunk. Six-inch bell tiles are placed above the junction of the two tile systems, the bell end reaching the planned grade level and coarse gravel or stone added to hold the bell tile in place.

All tiles are covered with small rocks or cobble stones, then a layer of gravel, to a level of 12 inches from the final grade. A thin layer of straw or hay should be placed over the gravel to prevent soil from sealing the air space. Then good top soil should be spread over the entire area except in the tree well and the bell tile. To prevent clogging, gravel should be placed inside the dry well over the opening of the radical tile.

Jazz Musicians Planted 'Big Apple' Seed

DEAR ABBY: How did New York City come to be known as "The Big Apple"? Everyone I've asked has a different version, but nobody seems to know for sure. Do you?

BIG QUESTION

DEAR BIG: No, but I decided to get to the core of it, so I asked Roger Wood, my editor at the New York Post, who passed the assignment on to his assistant, Sonia Reyes. Here's the juice:

In the early 1930s, American jazz musicians who toured the country playing one-night stands coined the slang expression "apple," meaning any town or city.

Charles Gillett, president of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau at that time, commented, "There are many apples on the tree, but to play New York City is to play the big time — The Big Apple!"

Henceforth, New York City was known as "The Big Apple."

P.S. If the above turns out to be applesauce, please write to Sonia. (Roger?)

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16 and female, and haven't done much serious dating, but last weekend at a picnic the son of some family friends started moving in on me, and I let him go a lot further than I should have. (He's 17 and much more experienced than I.) I have to admit I was having fun and didn't put up any resistance.

Since that time, we've talked on the phone but we have yet to go out on a date. Now I'm worried that if we start dating, or if we're alone again, he will expect what he got the first time, and

Dear Abby

I'm not ready for that. He's a nice, intelligent person, but he could be moving too fast for me.

I know he would stop if I said "Stop," but I like him so much, it's next to impossible to get that one little word out of my mouth. Are there any alternatives? Please help soon. And don't send a personal reply to my house.

ONLY HUMAN

DEAR HUMAN: The cardinal rule is: Don't set yourself up for any situation you feel incapable of handling. And the next time you're alone together, tell him you have no intentions of repeating your previous performance because you're not ready for it. And say it with conviction and authority, as though you are calling the signals — and you will be!

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of parents who arrange to have their bodies cremated immediately after death so there will be no body for a funeral?

One of our parents is hopelessly ill and can go anytime. They live on one coast, and most of their children live on the other. I was home for a visit within the last month, and it would be a big financial drain to go back again to attend a funeral service for a can of ashes!

If the body were there for a viewing, I can see going home for the service, but not for a can of ashes. I also feel that viewing the body after death has therapeutic value for the family. It makes the "goodbye" more realistic and final.

I believe my parents made these funeral arrangements without considering us children. What can we do? Or more to the point, what should we do? We are heartbroken and confused.

GRIEVING CHILDREN

DEAR CHILDREN: I suggest you talk frankly with your parents now. In all probability their first concern was you — their children. It is important that you know how they feel, and they know how you feel.

DEAR ABBY: Another reason for securing youngsters in car seats: We always know where their little fingers are when we slam the car doors shut.

...Should Zoo Move? Board Responds

"It's no secret, I'm opposed to moving the zoo and as a businessman, I'm opposed to spending the $2,500 right now for a feasibility study on moving to Turkey Lake Park. I knew nothing about that, it did not come up at any board meetings I've been at."

As to whether the zoo is being managed properly, MacLauchlin replied, "There's always room for improvement."

A zoo board member for 18 months, Dr. Earl Weldon, president of Seminole Community College, said, "Living in this area, I'm concerned. The zoo has been so much a part of Sanford from the beginning. I've been here since December, 1965, and my wife, Jerry, was born here."

"When facing any kind of a decision, the concern is the welfare of the zoo and this specific area where we live. I knew they were examining prospects, but I was out of town when the board last met. I hoped they would give every consideration to examining all the possibilities for keeping it in its current location."

Weldon said that the reason for the zoo's financial problems is the lack of a primary steady source of income such as a tax agency. He said he is aware of the $100,000 anticipated deficit, but added it is, "like everything else, it would take additional funding either in small amounts from many donors, large amounts from public-spirited organizations or a tremendous increase of gate receipts."

As for the present management, Weldon said, "In terms of dollars spent I think we are getting excellent returns."

When asked how she feels about moving the zoo from Seminole County Commissioner and zoo board member Sandra Glenn replied, "It's a Central Florida zoo and depends on the public for support. My first concern is the zoo itself."

"We have a unique opportunity for Central Florida to have a good facility. I haven't seen a concrete proposal (on moving the zoo) and it would depend on what it contained. It would be premature to make a comment on it now."

Mrs. Glenn said the zoo's past financial woes were caused by a combination of circumstances such as inflation, weather and expansion.

"Anytime there is a lag in the economy, an entity like the zoo that depends so heavily on the public, has problems," she explained, "but we have been successful in getting the public behind the zoo."

About the $100,000 anticipated deficit at the zoo, she said, "It's the practice the zoo has followed as to budget procedure and if the money doesn't come in, expansion just doesn't occur. As any non-profit organization we set our goals at a certain level and if the money doesn't come in we reduce our goals."

Although she didn't remember voting on the feasibility study, Mrs. Glenn admitted there were special meetings which she had not been able to attend and it could have come up in her absence.

"I'm not against the zoo participating in the feasibility study from a business point of view. Obtaining proper planning and information are how you make decisions," she said.

She said with proper promotion, the zoo can maintain the present inventory and be put on a break-even basis. "To my knowledge, the zoo is presently being properly managed," she added.

Bill James of 101 Lauren Court, Fern Park, has been on the zoo board for 2½ years. How does he feel about a possible move out of Seminole County?

"We need to do research. I don't have enough information at this point," James said. "But when a large corporation is willing to underwrite expansion of the zoo and if it can serve more people and have more room for expansion, we would have to consider it. I think it is a beautiful zoo where it is and if it could be made more lucrative in many areas it would be feasible to stay where it is."

"The zoo is trying to run on donations and admissions and it is very difficult," he said. "We need significant contributions or raise admissions and I am against that. We need to see fees so that families can afford to come to the zoo."

"Historically, there has been a shortfall during the slow seasons," James said. "The interest on the zoo's $100,000 note is one of the reasons we can't get out of the hole, even though we are operating in the black right now, thanks to substantial gifts from individuals."

James said he thinks the zoo can operate on a break-even basis with its present inventory as long as support continues from the community. However, he would like to be able to add open area exhibits with such animals as zebras, elephants, and giraffes.

He said in his opinion the zoo is being managed properly.

Proposed Move May Render Zoo's 30-Year Plan Moot

When the Central Florida Zoo opened its doors in 1975 at its current site south of U.S. Highway 17-92 along Lake Monroe outside Sanford, long-range objectives for the zoo's development were announced.

Zoo Executive Director Al Rozon earlier this year submitted revised objectives to the Central Florida Zoological Society membership.

The objectives for the first 15 years were as follows:

FIRST 15 YEARS:

Build, operate and improve a zoo as a public service, community action project; establish credibility and maintain broad-based community support.

Phase I — 1971-1973

- Obtain ownership of collection from the city of Sanford.
- Organize a public body into a unit called the zoological society.
- Establish credibility in community.
- Fund drives to accumulate $250,000 to build a zoo.
- Federal matching grant to build public park and facilities.
- Long-term lease with county (30-year lease).
- Expand support to obtain broad-based community support.

Phase I-A — 1973-1975

- Build a new zoo — basics emphasized — refinements added in later phases.
- Build a new public park with features already approved by the County Commission.
- Hire a staff and train employees.

Phase I-B — 1975-1980

- Open the zoo and park to the public.
- Sustained operations to begin.
- Maintenance of efforts.
- Add new exhibits.
- Add new specimens.
- Prepare for future phases.

Phase II — 1980-1985

- Continue to restructure old exhibits into newer and more modern features.
- Apply for accreditation.
- Seek funding for operations and develop new programs through grants and appeals to foundations.

- Plan, develop and improve a viable, logical master development plan to be followed and implemented during the next 20 years which is consistent with the planned growth of the surrounding community (the zoo's growth will be slow, gradual transfer from a wholly self-sustained zoo to one which is partially public funded by annual subsidies contributed by the surrounding counties, governments and municipalities.)
- Improve visitations and admissions by 23 percent.

Since those early days, Rozon updated the plan further, looking ahead even more.

SECOND 15 YEARS:

Expand the zoo to twice its present size through natural environmental concepts integrating botanical and zoological specimens in a landscape which reveals the ecological relationships among plants, animals, terrain and people, emphasizing living things in a natural setting; these efforts will contribute to the propagation of endangered species, offer research facilities to the scientific community and make accessible to the public important educational and recreational facilities and opportunities.

Phase I — 1985-1990

- Obtain an additional 130 acres of land contiguous to the existing zoo both north and southeast to allow for long range, orderly development of the zoological park between 1990 and 2005.
- Obtain title to all land given or used by the zoo.
- Continue property tax exemption.
- Transfer selected utilities to public works (water and sewage).

- Greater area representation on governing board consistent with surrounding community financial support (members of various County Commissions providing monetary support to the zoo are sitting members of the Board of Directors of the Central Florida Zoo.)
- Referenda for permanent tax support from surrounding Seminole, Orange, Volusia, Lake, Brevard and Osceola counties with reciprocal public agreements included in support agreement.
- The full scope of the project's potential begins to become a reality.

Phase II — 1991-2001

- Continue development in accordance with master development plan.
- Accrue funds to implement alternative plans or develop new expansion plans.
- Install and operate ride attractions; construct docking facilities on Lake Monroe's shores.
- Plan the construction and operation of a Museum of Natural History to be built and completed in the second thirty-year phases.
- Establish national recognition.

Loafing Or, How Dawdling And Doodling Can Waste Your Workdays Away

EDITOR'S NOTE: Normally, articles on these pages deal with hobbies, recreation, sports; in short, things we enjoy doing AWAY from the workaday world. That's why this magazine is called "Leisure." But today, we deviate a bit to give you some ideas on how to create some leisure ON the job.

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Between the time you land your first job and the day you retire gold watch in hand, there's a good chance that sometime, somewhere you will engage in the slothful practice of loafing at work.

"Not me," you may protest. "I'm a hard, conscientious worker — I never loaf on the job."

But think again. Would you swear on a stack of timecards that you've never taken an extra five minutes on your coffee break or pored over the sports scores while the boss was out of the office? Would you stake your next paycheck on never having slept an extra 15 minutes and gotten to work late on purpose? Would you place your hand on the head of your first-born child and bear witness by all that's holy that at no time have you ever idly shot the breeze with your co-workers when there was something more important you could be doing?

Unless you're a terminal workaholic, odds are you can't reply in the negative to the above questions. But even if you can't, there's nothing to be ashamed of — everyone loafs at one time or another. And since you're going to do it, you might as well enjoy it while at the same time avoiding detection and retribution.

It's important not to waste your time feeling guilty about loafing; most likely you're underpaid and have earned a few carefree moments to break the monotony of the day's drudgery.

The fact that everybody loafs, however, doesn't make it right, particularly in the eyes of your employer who is shelling out corporate dollars and cents for your skills. Bosses probably loaf more than anyone, but they don't take kindly to it among their underlings, and some have been known to inflict punishment ranging from simple rebukes to flogging with a length of heavy, wet rope.

With this in mind, then, here are a few tips on how to loaf successfully. Most are geared toward people with office jobs, but the same principles can be applied anywhere.

The main thing to keep in mind when loafing is that you have to be sly about it. If you put your head down on your desk to catch 40 winks, you might wake up with a couple of fat leeches on your neck. Or, you may be castigated in front of your fellow workers who will doubtless snicker at your plight while getting in a moment of loafing themselves. Or, worst of all, your pay might be docked. In other words, don't flaunt it.

The key to effective loafing is to develop the ability to can always hide reading material like pornography or See GOOF OFF, Page 2

The disadvantages

For Scott 'Happy Days' Baio, being a teen idol means money, travel and glamour. But there are also drawbacks, like being hounded constantly by his adoring public and picked on by macho types who want to impress their girlfriends with how tough they are. Page 2.

Soapy review

TV critic David Handler is not what you would call an ardent soap opera fan. In fact, he hadn't watched a single episode of CBS' hit 'Falcon Crest' until recently. When he finally did, he loved it. The romance didn't last long, however, and Handler strayed. Page 7.

A classic

Ingrid Bergman, the Academy Award-winning actress who died Sunday at 67, was unknown to a large portion of today's movie-going audience. But films like 'Casablanca' and 'Gaslight' made her immortal. Some of her contemporaries remember the Swedish star in a story on Page 8.

...If You're Going To Goof Off, Don't Get Caught

best-sellers in portfolios or folders. Furrowing your brow and occasionally mumbling to yourself will give your peers and boss the impression that you are hard at work. Good facial expressions can be cultivated at home in front of a mirror.

When reading or perusing obscene material on the job, look up from time to time as if you are mentally working out a difficult problem. A glance around serves two purposes: It furthers the impression that you are working, and at the same time gives you a chance to keep an eye peeled for higher-ups or stool pigeons.

If you work in an office, a telephone, particularly if you have access to a WATS line, is an invaluable tool in making the day go faster. Calls to friends, relatives, bookies and even people you hardly know can result in stimulating conversations guaranteed to break the tedium of the most grueling day. Again, subtlety is a must. Make it look like you're working. Talk low enough so you can't be overheard and make lots of notes, even if they're merely doodles or gibberish.

If you're one of the gifted few with the ability to sleep with your eyes open, you're lucky indeed. Slumbering with lids up, however, does have its dangers, particularly if you snore or talk in your sleep. A short doze with open, glazed eyes can also be risky because it might be mistaken for a trance induced by a four-martini lunch supplemented perhaps by a couple of Quaaludes for dessert.

If you're in a position where you have subordinates to do your bidding, you can make them perform many of your chores, thus gaining valuable time to catch up on reading or meditations on hoary problems like appearance vs. reality, man's inhumanity to man, and the invention of a perpetual motion machine.

Using your time valuably is an integral part of dawdling on the job. With a little effort, a 10-minute coffee break can easily be stretched into a 20- or 30-minute recess from the daily grind. Conspiracy can also be of assistance. Talking to a fellow worker about interesting work-related subjects or merely gossiping about the sexual habits of other employees can give others the impression that you are hashing out weighty problems. The same principle can also be applied to lunch breaks.

Since the desire to loaf usually springs from the desire to avoid unpleasant work, it follows that the longer you spend on tasks you like, the less time you will have to spend on those you don't. Double check, triple check and in general pore over all work you enjoy. You'll gain a well-earned reputation for thoroughness and be the envy of careless employees who allow errors to creep into the work that flows across their desks.

Be careful, though, not to spend TOO long on chores you like. If you take five hours to do something that shouldn't take more than 15 minutes, you may come in one morning to find electrodes wired to your chair to spur your productivity.

There are countless other ways to loaf on the job, and with a little effort you should have no difficulty discovering them. However, this story has run long enough, and more important things beckon... a cool soft drink, a couple of discreet phone calls, and the last 500 pages of "War And Peace."

There's Been More Of Moore Than You Think

DEAR DICK: I enjoy watching Roger Moore in his movies, especially as agent 007. But I never heard of him before 1973, when he did his first James Bond film, "Live and Let Die." I have seen him in movies since then but what did he do before 1973? J.P.W., White Pigeon, Mich.

By 1973, Roger Moore had only been working in films for 20 years. He did such films as "The Last Time I Saw Paris," in 1954, and "The Sins of Rachel Cade," in 1961, and many more. He'd been in four or five TV series, including "The Saint" and "The Alaskans." And he'd even popped up as an English cousin on the original "Maverick."

DEAR DICK: Do you know how to get in touch with Richard Arlen, the movie actor? I named my son, Richard Arlen, after him. I am 75 years old and I saw about every movie he was in and I just thought it would be nice if he knew he had a namesake who is now 45 years old. MRS. L.W., Peru, Ind.

Richard Arlen died in 1976.

DEAR DICK: The actress who plays Heather Webber on "General Hospital" (her name escapes me at the moment) greatly resembles an older actress named Joanne Linville. There is enough of a likeness to be mother-daughter. Are they related? J.A.J., Michigan City, Ind.

Robin Mattson, who plays Heather, is not related to Joanne Linville.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if the guy in the Hamm's Beer commercial is the same guy who played

Ask Dick
Kleiner

Trampas on "The Virginian." I think he is but my father doesn't. M.A., Stotts City, Mo.

Yes, that's Doug McClure. He doesn't play the bear (the bear is a better actor) but the other fellow.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know who plays Asa Buchanan on "One Life to Live." And, is the short, dark-haired girl who was on "Gilligan's Island" now playing Janet on "Three's Company"? F.V.F., Quincy, Ill.

Philip Carey plays Asa Buchanan. Dawn Wells was on "Gilligan's Island" and Joyce DeWitt is on "Three's Company" and they are two different ladies.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if there was a movie actor named Jack Richards, about 1910. I named my son after him, and so I say yes, there was, but my daughter-in-law says no, she has never heard of him. I named my other two after Sylvia Sidney and Jeanette MacDonald. MRS. G.L.C., Rock Hill, S.C.

I've never heard of Jack Richards, either, and he is not listed in any reference book I have. It's possible he was a bit player, but certainly he was not a star. My regards to Sidney and McDonald.

DEAR DICK: Is it true that Hank Williams Sr. is Charlie Pride's father? P.H., Webb City, Mo.

No.

DEAR DICK: Did DeForest Kelley (the doctor on "Star Trek") play a gunman in the movie "Apache Uprising"? Or was that some relative, because they look so much alike? What year did "Apache Uprising" come out? B.H., Altus, Okla.

Yes, Kelley had a long career in film before "Star Trek" and he was in the '66 release, "Apache Uprising."

DEAR DICK: Would you please give me some information about the actors in the classic movie "The Wizard of Oz." How many of the main characters are still living? KRIS HUSTON, Ridgefield, Wash.

Just two — Ray Bolger, who was the straw man, and Margaret Hamilton, the wicked witch. Both are semi-retired, although they make occasional appearances.

DEAR DICK: Would you please tell us the name of Bing Crosby's first movie, and who his leading lady was? M. LEE, Chili, Wis.

As a member of The Rhythm Boys, in Paul Whiteman's orchestra, Bing appeared in "King of Jazz" in 1930. The leading lady in that film was Laura La Plante. Bing's first starring role was "The Big Broadcast," two years later, but there was no real leading lady in that, as it was primarily a revue. In "College Humor," in 1933, he played opposite Mary Carlisle, his first real on-screen romance.

Scott Baio Enjoys Being A Teen Idol

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — You think it's easy being a teen-age idol? Well, it is. But there are a few disadvantages along with all the goodies.

Take it from Scott Baio. (In case you've wondered about the correct pronunciation of his name, it's Skot.) All the young girls like him, and have since he began fluttering his long eyelashes as part of the "Happy Days" ensemble.

Now he has his own show and can flutter even more. It's called "Joanie Loves Chachi," and is a spin-off of "Happy Days" with Baio (that part of his name is pronounced Bay-o) and Erin Moran playing the same characters they played on the original show.

Only now the two have supposedly moved to Chicago and are actively trying to become rock stars. It airs on ABC immediately after "Happy Days."

By one of those not-so-curious non-coincidences, the decision to have Chachi (Baio) starting a musical career just happened to occur at the exact same time when Baio (Chachi) was actually trying to start a musical career. He has signed a recording contract and says he is studying with Rod Stewart's teacher. (You mean somebody actually taught him to sing that bad?)

Anyhow, Scott Baio is a 20-year-old now, so his teen-idol years are technically behind him. But he was a teen-age idol for most of his teen years, so he can speak with the voice of experience about how it was. And how it still is.

He would like to go to college, he says, but he can't. He would have liked to have gone because he has a big brother who went (and studied journalism) and a big sister who went (and studied X-ray techniques). Scott went for a semester.

"The problem was security," he says.

"Scott can't go anywhere alone," says his father, Mario. "We have to send somebody with him everywhere he goes. He's always running into these guys who are 7 feet, 5 inches and want to impress their girlfriends by showing how tough they are."

Scott toured for a while, doing personal appearances with Lou Ferrigno — "The Incredible Hulk" itself — and the local yokels picked on him, too, to show their mucho macho.

"Lou is a pussycat," Scott says. "But these local toughs would try to pick a fight with him. He'd walk away."

Scott says he has learned to cope with all the adulation. When you grow up with it, coping comes easier than if it hits you all at once. He says the only thing that bothers him is when he encounters rudeness.

"Otherwise," he says, "it doesn't bother me. The way I figure it, if a person doesn't like the public, he shouldn't be in this business."

Baio is a Brooklyn boy. His father ran a string of pet shops — Pick-a-Puppy — on Long Island.

"I sold 55,000 puppies,"

Mario Baio says.

"And I cleaned 44,000 cages," Scott Baio says. But he says he loved every cage of it. And, actually, for a while he wanted to be a vet when he grew up.

"I used to keep all kinds of pets," he says. "I had an alligator and snakes and everything. But now I only have one dog (a Maltese) and I think I'm going to have to get rid of it. We travel so much and we can't take the dog with me, and that means having to arrange for a dog sitter all the time."

His career began when he was 9 and he saw other kids on TV commercials and said he could do that. So his mother took him into New York and got him an agent and he began to work.

"For a while," he says, "I didn't like it as much as I thought I would. It conflicted with my play time. So I quit for a year but I missed it, so I went back. My career really took off when I did 'Bugsy Malone.'"

It hasn't stopped yet.

'Goober' Got His Start In Broadway Theatre

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — For George Lindsey, there's no greater thrill than going to Sardi's on opening night of a Broadway play and hearing the applause. He only did it once, but it launched him on a career that has spanned two decades and touched millions of people.

George Lindsey is "Goober," the dumb but likeable gas station attendant on the "Andy Griffith Show" and "Mayberry RFD." He had that role for eight years, or 300 television episodes. He has played a similar character as George Lindsey on "Hee Haw" for 10 years.

"America sort of grew up with me," said Lindsey during a telephone interview from his home in Pompano Beach. "We had about 20 to 30 million people who watched Griffith every Monday night. Now, 'Hee Haw' has a viewing audience of about 35 million."

"Somebody in one article likened me to Mrs. Olsen, Mr. Whipple, Goober and apple pie," he said. "Who the hell are Mrs. Olsen and Mr. Whipple?"

He's danced on Broadway, staged a nightclub comedy act for years, appeared in countless dramatic roles and raised $1.5 million for charities through shows and celebrity golf tournaments in Montgomery, Ala. But through it all, Lindsey can't seem to shake the "Goober" image, even after his 50th birthday.

"Maybe I have the Goober syndrome on me," he said. "I go to New York and cabdrivers holler out the window, 'Hey Goober!'"

"You like to get away from the Goober thing because it no longer exists. I much prefer being George Lindsey. I take any non-Goobar part I can get."

The Jasper, Ala., native said "Andy Griffith" and "Mayberry RFD" haven't helped his bank account since their initial network runs.

"We don't get any money, which is a travesty. We don't get a penny."

Years of shows on the nightclub circuit gave him enough polish to be able to record his first comedy album, "George Goobar Lindsey Goes to Town."

"The thing I'm most proud of right now is that album," he said. "It's my first comedy album. Maybe I'm 10 years late, but I didn't think I was ready any earlier." Lindsey played high school football and basketball in rural Jasper. He received a football scholarship to Florence State Teachers College and wound up with a B.S. degree in biological science and physical education.

"I won every talent show there was in college," he said.

In 1956, freshly married, Lindsey packed his bags and headed for New York. He promptly landed the comedy lead in the Broadway musical "All American."

"My obscurity was relatively short," he said. "I was one of the few hillbillies that started in New York on Broadway."

"I loved Broadway," he said. "There's no bigger thrill than to go into Sardi's on opening night and have everybody stand up and applaud."

There were a couple of bad years in New York when he made less than $500 a year, but then came "Goobar," a character he molded from his life in Jasper and everything he's "ever done, or known, or seen, or felt."

A Guide To Who's Who In The Carradine Clan

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Let us now consider the Carradines. If you have been confused by all of them — who is related to whom, and how — you are not alone. There is an epidemic of Carradinus Confusianus abroad in the land.

And so, to untangle all that confusion, I went to a prime source of Carradinology, one of the cream of the current Carradine crop, a fine young actor named Robert Carradine. It is appropriate that he step forward at this time, because he is starring in an interesting film now, the campus-oriented thriller "Tag."

"Tag" is one of three movies Robert Carradine has coming out in the reasonably immediate future. "Wavelength" and "Heartaches," the latter with Margot Kidder and Annie Potts, are the other two.

"The Carradine family," he says, adopting an almost professorial air as befits a subject as complex as that, "has eight sons, two fathers three mothers."

It begins, of course, with the very distinguished actor, John Carradine. His first wife was named Gail and she had a son by a previous marriage, and John adopted him. His name is Bruce. Then John and Gail had a son of their own, who is officially John Carradine Jr. but prefers to be called David Carradine.

Next, John Carradine married a lady named Sonia and, eventually, they had three sons — Christopher, Keith and our hero of this account, Robert.

When that marriage ended, John next married a lady named Doris, who had two sons of her own by an earlier marriage. They are Dale and Michael Grimshaw.

"We all grew up together," says Bobby Carradine. "And, actually, Chris and Keith and I were closer to Dale and Michael than we were to Bruce and David."

Meanwhile, Sonia, after divorcing John, married a man named Bowen and they have a son, Michael Bowen, who is Bobby's half-brother (same mother, you see) and thus considered part of the family. Bobby says that Michael Bowen, who is 24 now, "is an actor and he's going to be a big star one day."

So there you have the Carradine clan. There are, of course, more coming — when you ask Bobby about the next generation, he has to stop and figure it out and says that, as far as he can tell offhand, there are eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild already.

'Falcon Crest' Soap Churns With Intrigue

By DAVID HANDLER

I somehow managed to make it through almost the entire TV season without watching one episode of "Falcon Crest," the only hit show. Staggering, isn't it? Doesn't say much for its pulling power.

Anyway, I sat down recently to watch a few episodes. I had a couple of reasons. One, I wanted to see whether its success is solely attributable — as some have intimated — to the luck of the draw. It is on after "Dallas" on CBS. Even "Jessica Novak" would have been a hit in that slot.

Two, I wanted to see whether it's actually possible to jump into a nighttime soaper mid-season without being totally confused. Daytime serials progress so slowly you can stay away for a month without fear of missing a plot turn. Would this be true of prime time?

As it happens, "Falcon Crest," which was created by Earl Hamner of "The Waltons" fame, is a frisky, fast-moving look at a warring Northern California wine clan. It is performed with brio and humor, some of it intentional, I think. And I had no trouble whatsoever jumping in mid-plot.

No after-dark soaper is complete without its resident baddie. In this case it's Angela Channing (Jane Wyman), who controls the county's biggest winery, the government, the water and most of the citizenry, especially her family. Miss Wyman plays her with a cool, delicious deadpan.

Angela shares a large white Victorian mansion (which bears a striking resemblance to the "Fantasy Island" house) with mousy daughter Julia (Abby Dalton), nutty daughter Emma (Margaret Ladd) and lunky grandson, Lance (Lorenzo Lamas), who has greasy hair, a Ricky Nelson upper lip and an arrogant disposition.

Emma likes to wander off dreamily down the road. Sometimes she makes it all the way into San Francisco, where she steals things from finer jewelry stores. A kleptomaniac.

"Why must you embarrass the family like this?" hollers Angela, all sympathy. "Mother, I'm disturbed, aren't I?" sobs Emma. "You're fine," she replies. "Go have some tea."

Emma seems to have either witnessed or participated in the recent and very mysterious death of Angela's brother, Jason, with whom Angela once had to share control of the empire. Apparently, Jason burned to death in his truck. Apparently, Angela "persuaded" the coroner not to perform an autopsy.

How Jason died is an obsession with his son, Chase (Robert Foxworth), a decent sort who has returned to the valley from New York to challenge his aunt's power. He runs for the Board of Supervisors and wins. Chase has a beard, a jeep, a wife, Maggie (Susan Sullivan), who writes, and a grown son, Cole (Billy Moses), with a short fuse and a police record.

Yes, just your typical, loving, happy-go-lucky, American soap-opera family. And I must say that "Falcon Crest" deserves its success. I enjoyed the first episode I watched, was into it by the second week, totally hooked by the third.

By week four I wasn't watching it anymore. I have found this to be true of all of the prime-time soap operas I've enjoyed, from "Dallas" and "Knots Landing" to "Flamingo Road" and "Dynasty." My romance with them is often heated but invariably short.

I get the four-week itch. I stray.

Ingrid Bergman — A Classic Star

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ingrid Bergman was part of a vanishing Hollywood era of superstars who outlived most of her contemporaries but those who worked with her and those who only saw her films remember her as a classic.

Miss Bergman, the fresh-faced Swedish actress whose powerful screen performances and tempestuous private life made news for 35 years, died of cancer Sunday on her 67th birthday, but her performances in such films as "Casablanca," "For Whom The Bell Tolls" and "Gaslight" will live on.

Gary Cooper, her co-star in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," Humphrey Bogart, her lover in "Casablanca," and Bing Crosby who played her priest in "The Bells of St. Marys," are dead — as are many of her directors including Alfred Hitchcock and Michael Curtiz.

Her death, however, was felt in the film capitals of Europe and in New York and Hollywood.

Miss Bergman spent little time in Hollywood, preferring to live in Europe and eventually in London.

As a result, few of today's stars knew Bergman personally. One of them is Leonard Nimoy, of "Star Trek" fame, who starred with the three-time Oscar winner in the 1981 television movie "Golda," her final acting role.

"Working with Ingrid was a special experience," Nimoy said. "She was obviously sick and in pain while we were working."

"But she gave no sign and refused to let her pain affect her work. I developed enormous respect for her as a person and talent. She was a marvelous lady and actress. She had great energy, charm and a wonderful sense of herself."

Nimoy said he spoke to the actress last month on a trip to London and added, "She had asked her doctors to take her off the medication because it made her sick and she didn't want to spend the little time she had left feeling ill."

Actor Yossi Graber, who played Moshe Dayan in "Golda," said Miss Bergman knew her death was near when filming the television movie.

"... She didn't say the word cancer or anything, but said, 'I'm extremely ill and hope I can make the movie,'" Graber said.

Ailing Joseph Cotten, who appeared in two movies with the actress, said:

"Miss Bergman was one of those gifted people who come along now and then. I consider myself privileged to have worked with her in 'Under Capricorn' and 'Gaslight.'

"Certainly she has made a place in the history of motion pictures for all time and will be remembered during our lifetime as a personal friend and as a great actress."

Cary Grant, stricken by the news of her death, refused to comment. Grant's wife said the actor, who starred with Miss Bergman in "Notorious" in 1946, chose not to express his feelings.

Paul Henreid, who played her husband in "Casablanca," was deeply distressed by news of the actress' death.

Henreid, along with Bogart, Claude Rains and other members of the cast have been immortalized by their performances in "Casablanca."

"She certainly put up a fantastic fight against this dreadful disease," Henreid said. "She was a great gal, an enormous fighter for all the good things in our profession and a dear person to work with."

In New York, Liv Ullmann, who starred with Miss Bergman in her last film, "Autumn Sonata," for Swedish director Ingmar Bergman, said, "I can only say I will mourn her. She made me very proud to be a woman.

"I would have wished her more privacy. She suffered so from the public and the press ... (But) she never looked back. Although she played my mother in 'Autumn Sonata', I felt she was my sister."

Real Cut Up On Cable TV

Just when you thought it was safe to get a haircut "Sweeney Todd," the former Broadway musical about a cutthroat barber (in the literal sense), has been resurrected on cable.

George Hearn and Angela Lansbury recreate their Broadway roles as the "demon barber of Fleet Street" and his bawdy accomplice in a videotaped version of the award-winning play, premiering Sept. 12 on The Entertainment Channel.

Sweeney Todd was a 19th-century barber sent to a penal colony by a lecherous judge who had designs on his wife. In the play, Todd returns to London to vent his anger at society and seek revenge against the judge. In one fell swoop, he slits the throats of his patrons as they sit unsuspecting in his barber's chair.

The chair then becomes an ejector seat—as Todd presses a pedal, a trap door opens to receive the corpses, which slide into a meat pie shop. The baker, Neille
