After leaving Sanford Municipal Airport, the more than 90 pilots and air crew made six checkpoint stops before their final destination at Spruce Creek Airport.

File charges in window shootings

SANFORD—Seminole County Sheriff's deputies expect to file charges of criminal mischief today against 11 Apopka-area boys accused of shooting out the windows of 800 vehicles in the Weeks Springs area in Apopka over the past few months.

The same youths are suspects in 400 other County cases and some in Alamo Springs. The case broke Saturday after Apopka police stopped a van identified as linked to the shootings in a 2-month Seminole County sheriff's stakeout.

Apopka police gave sheriff's deputies the names of 11 youths in the van and said they had possession of two rifles. They led to the identification of 11 suspects.

Longwood recall petitions presented

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD—Recall petitions against Mayor David Gunter and Deputy Mayor Lynette Dennis are scheduled to be turned over to County Supervisor of Elections Sandra Gault today. They were submitted to city clerk Don Terry Monday with more than 100 copies of 429 signatures.

The petition against Dennis has 527 names and the one calling for Gunter's recall has 509 signatures. Gault has 30 days to certify that signatures on the petitions are actually of registered voters in the city. The recall committee has paid 10 cents per signature as required by law.

If Gault certifies the petitions have the required number of signatures, the city clerk will present the commissions being recalled with certified copies of the petition.

Most of the allegations against Gunter are related to the police chief's office. The person being recalled will then have two days to submit a defense statement of not more than 200 words. The defensive statement will then be added to the original petition to be submitted to the recall committee on May 23. The committee will then vote on whether to recall the person.

If there is the required number of valid signatures and the person being recalled declines to resign a date for a recall election would be set by the chief judge of the judicial circuit.

Alvin Lewis, secretary of the recall committee, said Monday night. "We were very careful to get actual registered voters to sign the petitions. There is a lot of people who are not registered voters and we want to see democracy in action. People don't like the way things are being handled and the police chief is just one issue."

The recall movement was sparked by the death of police chief and subsequent suspension with pay of Police Chief Greg Manning and his top aide, Capt. Terry Baker, and an administrative secretary, Val Hockenberry, for mishandling funds. All three have since been reinstated, although Hockenberry is still on leave from the public works department.

Chief Lewis also asked the Florida Department of Law Enforcement to investigate Manning's case. See RECALL, page 10A

Liquori and Polk head for London

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD—Seminole County Sheriff John Polk is scheduled to return to London, England, Sunday on behalf of the Florida Sheriff's Self Insurance Fund.

Polk

Liquori

Liquori, whose department is not self-insured, said he will be negotiating with Lloyd's on behalf of the Florida police chiefs who are. Liquori is president of the Florida Police Chiefs Association and chairman of their self-insurance fund.

Last year, Polk traveled to London to strike a deal with Lloyd's, which he agreed to cover up to $1 million per sheriff in insurance awards that would exceed the coverage the sheriffs provide for themselves. Cost of the coverage is about $500,000 annually or $340 per person.

Polk said if Florida sheriffs weren't self-insured, the basic insurance would cost about $925 per man per year, and he doesn't know if a private company would be willing to provide that coverage. He said the insurance company will provide the excess coverage required, and that is why he must deal with Lloyd's of London.

Since none of the Florida sheriffs have used any of the Lloyd's provided coverage in the last year, Polk said he hopes to get that premium reduced by a minimum of $25,000. He also will be seeking to renew the existing coverage and broadening it.

Liquori said he is not sure what type of deal he may strike with Lloyd's. The chiefs self-

Ball park, county sued by residents

By Joyce Herald

SANFORD—Ten homeowners in Alamo Springs have filed a lawsuit in Seminole County Circuit Court against Seminole County and the owners of a neighborhood ball park.

The suit alleges the patrons of the park trespass, damage their personal property, disturb their peace, and leave litter on their property. In addition, the suit claims homeowners feel compeled to stay home to prevent damage and fear injury from flying balls.

The suit also says the high intensity lights at the park adjacent to the Lake Harris Estates subdivision remain on all times of the night.

The suit filed against Forest City Community Association Inc. asks the court to award $200,000 in damages and contends the owners of the park have not

Senior center plan proceeds

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD—The city commission decided to proceed with a proposal to establish a senior citizen center Monday.

Three members of the commission, Bob Thomas, Herbert Whitey, Jackson and Mayor Bettye Smith voted to put the proposal on the agenda for next week's meeting and proceed with the hiring of a design architect.

Commissioners V. A. M. Chapman and John Meyer were absent from the afternoon work session.

The proposal calls for the remodeling of the meeting rooms in the current wing on the southeast side of the Civic Center and an addition to the wing.

The construction of project financing is $175,000 in the 1988-89 fiscal budget earmarked for the senior citizen center. In addition, a $150,000 grant for cultural improvement, which has been received, and money to be spent on improvements in the Civic Center will help pay for the project.

City Engineer Bill Simmons proposed that similar capital budget of senior citizen activity already takes place at the Civic Center, that the senior citizen center be built as an addition to the existing structure.

Also, shuttleboard facilities and the visitor program located nearby.

The senior citizen center would cover nearly 6,000 square feet. In addition to the existing wing, now housing the youth section, would include a kitchen and restrooms. The senior center would also include two rooms for arts and crafts, and a first aid room. Access for elderly handicapped and their vehicles would be provided.

Further commission action:

• The Senior Improvement Board's proposal for a community ball park with playground equipment designed by Robert

Proposal favored

• Remodeling the existing youth wing on the civic center, and adding to it.

• Finance $175,000 in current budget and a $150,000 grant for improvements to the civic center.

• Facilities: Kitchen, arts and crafts facilities, first aid room parking, access for handicapped.

• Next: Approval of a search for an architect will be on the May 23 commission meeting agenda.

Leathers of New York met with approval by the commissioners in attendance and will also be placed on the May 23 agenda. Commissioners will then decide if they are to proceed and enter into a contract with Leathers.

The park, estimated to cost $4.4 million, will be built by community residents with city help from design money. The park, to be located between Light and North streets near Park Avenue, will include a lot for small children's playground and sports area.

The commission heard a request from Willie King, chairman of the Code Enforcement Board, that the city look into ways to expedite permit for cleanup of illegal lawns and stopping the dumping of garbage on vacant lots.

The commission decided to wait for an ordinance revision currently in progress before taking any action on vacant lot cleanup by owners.

The commission discussed several garbage pick-up options before deciding that Simmons and City Manager Frank A. Larson should examine possible grant programs that might help all-vote a percentage of the cost for garbage pick-up on low-income residents.

Five-Day Forecast

For Central Florida

Proper observing requires watching

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

Several of you have inquired concerning the incredible accuracy of forecasts found in this section. Since there is intense interest in weather and so many of you seem interested in trying to figure it out, the following is suggested.

The basis for forecasting, in meteorological jargon, lies in "ops." Call the weather service and they're either just completing the ops, or just getting ready for ops, most often given as a reason for not answering the telephone. Therefore, proper preparation for weathercasting is obvious, you can observe a lot of weather just by watching it. Thus, watch during all observations.

Take today. It's cloudy, therefore you say with confidence "there's weather outside and it is cloudy. Say it with confidence. You know the temperature will be in the 80s (somewhere), so predict it. It'll drop tonight after sundown (night generally follows sundown) to the 60s. Sure, it'll probably be low 70s in Altamonte Springs but you can count on Sanford being 4 to 5 degrees cooler. Thus, your prediction has about a 15 degree margin for error—and you'll still be right.

No rain for a couple more days, probably, except for possible scattered afternoon showers (that will always protect you).

Now neighbors you is most near as ignorant as any died-in-the-wool meteorologist, and the above forecast is about as accurate as you can come. In fact, it is exactly on the money. Probably. Maybe. Perhaps.

Can you believe, Bullshead, Arizona recorded the highest high in the nation yesterday: 106 degrees. Needless to say, Gunnison copped honors for lowest low, 25 degrees. It was partly cloudy with temperatures in the 80s at Lenox, N.C., and also at Pascagoula, Miss. It rained 2 1/2 inches on Key West. Storms dominated other parts of the nation.

Showers and thunderstorms continued today to rumble across New York, New England and the South Atlantic coastal states.

Rain was also expected in the late mountain West, parts of the northern and central Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Northwest with winds whipping from Idaho across the northern Rockies to the northern and central Plains, according to the National Weather Service.

For most of the nation, high temperatures were expected in the 70s and 80s. But the mercury was predicted to soar to near 100 degrees in southeast Texas and the desert Southwest and dip to the 50s in the northern Rockies and northern Minnesota.

Lightning struck and killed a college student on a golf course in Athens, Ga., Monday and one worker died when a building under construction collapsed during a thunderstorm in Decatur, Ga., officials said.

Five workers at an apartment complex under construction took refuge in one of the units when Decatur was lashed by high winds and heavy rains, said Dekalb County Fire Dept. Capt. Tom Tracey.

Golfball-size hail fell at Naples, N.Y., Branchport, N.Y., Hancock Md., Germantown, Md., Berkeley Springs, W.Va., and Fayetteville, Ga.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

PTL trustee announces plan to sell nearly all assets

FORT MILL, S.C. (UPI) — Court-appointed PTL trustee David Clark filed a new bankruptcy reorganization plan Monday, one that would sell off nearly all assets and crown him the head of the bankrupt television ministry.

Disgraced founder Jim Bakker expressed immediate outrage, saying the proposal is a power grab and violates the constitutional principle of separation of church and state.

"To me, it's the most shocking event in the legal history of Christianity that a court-appointed trustee could be head of a ministry he was appointed trustee over," said Bakker. "It means the federal government is now in the business of appointing heads of ministries."

Bakker, scheduled to appear with his wife Tammy Faye on Fox Broadcasting's "Late Night Show" Monday night, said his appearance would be brief because he is distraught over the proposed dismantling of PTL.

"We're just doing a sort of greeting," he said. "We plan to be on their show later on, but right now we're just too deep into Heritage being sold to go on a comedy show. There's no way we can go in and laugh and be funny. It's too serious a time for us."

PTL has been in financial straits ever since Bakker resigned last year in a sex scandal. Donations, once averaging $10.5 million a month, dried up, and last June the Rev. Jerry Falwell placed it under Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

Falwell, a Baptist from Lynchburg, Va., became chairman of the Pentecostal ministry after Bakker resigned, but he quit in a dispute with the bankruptcy court last October and Clark was named trustee.

By April, it was obvious PTL would not be able to begin paying off a debt now estimated at $125 million, including back taxes claimed by the Internal Revenue Service, which last month revoked the ministry's tax-exempt status.

The latest reorganization plan blames both Bakker and the IRS for PTL's problems.

"PTL's contributor base (is) extremely fragile because of the concern of some that PTL could not survive, particularly in light of the aggressive and highly publicized conduct of the Internal Revenue Service and the disgust of others for the transgressions of the former leaders of PTL," the plan states.

"The debtor had been so ravaged," the plan said, "that it was unable to consummate ... a [previous] plan which envisioned the continued existence and operation of all Heritage USA under the ultimate control of the religious organization."

Bakker, who wants to return to PTL, has maintained that the ministry must remain intact — including its resort and water theme park. But the plan said the ministry's financial condition makes the sale of nearly all its assets inevitable.

"The purpose of this plan is to render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's and to provide for the preservation of the original seed of PTL, that being its ability to be a source of religious outreach and caring," the plan states.

The sale would include 1,700 acres of undeveloped land, the ornate Heritage Grand Hotel and a giant waterslide made famous by Falwell, who last October took a plunge to fulfill a fund-raising promise.

Since that well-publicized plunge, things have gone rapidly downhill at PTL.

Goodyear workers may join strike

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — About 4,700 United Rubber Workers picketed Monday at Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. plants in six states, while 15,000 more URW members prepared for a possible strike against Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

The Goodyear strike was scheduled for noon Tuesday, pending the outcome of a meeting between URW and company officials in the morning.

The URW reached a tentative agreement on a three-year contract with Goodyear last month and it was endorsed by union leaders, but the membership voted it down.

The strike against Firestone started Sunday morning at plants in Indiana, Iowa, Illinois, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Ohio.

Negotiations broke down Saturday and URW spokesman Curt Brown called Firestone's actions in the negotiations "adolescent posturing" and said the company was using a federal mediator as a "messenger boy."

"They were to be at the table Monday, but they decided to play hardball and not come to the table, and now they have a strike on their hands," he said. "And, unfortunately, now we have a strike on our hands."

Firestone spokesman said resumption of bargaining was "pretty much in the hands of the federal mediator."

"We are hopeful that the union and the company negotiators can get back in and get these plants back in operation," he said, adding that no talks were scheduled.

The presidents of Goodyear locals are to meet at 8 a.m. Tuesday with Goodyear officials "to see if we can do something before that strike deadline," said Brown.

"Unlike Firestone, we haven't seen an overwhelming desire to go on strike," Brown said. "We have the opportunity to talk again, which is something we certainly didn't have with Firestone."

There was a possibility some Goodyear locals would refuse to follow a call for a strike. Members of Local 2 in Akron were voting Monday on whether to strike and results were expected late Monday.

Local 2 President Bill Breslin urged members to vote against a strike, saying he would resign if a strike were called.

"I recommended that we do not go out on strike," he said. "Some of the executive board members do not agree with me, so I'm going directly to my membership. I honestly feel (board members) are just playing politics here. I'm bitterly disappointed that they would mislead our membership that way."

Brown said the URW policy committee determines whether there will be a strike and "if there were a strike and there were locals that didn't participate, they would find themselves in kind of a renegade position." Brown did not, however, predict a strike.

John Gaudlin, vice president of Local 831 at Goodyear's plant in Danville, Va., said Monday his local's 476-339 vote against reconsidering Goodyear's proposal "was closer than expected," but, "the people spoke clearly (Sunday) that we do not wish to reconsider."

Four other locals voted last week not to reconsider: Marysville, Ohio; Madisonville, Ky.; Union City, Tenn.; and Gadsden, Ala.

Much of the controversy over Goodyear's contract proposal, which contains no direct wage increases, centers around cost-of-living increases, pensions and health insurance coverage, Brown said.

Also at issue, Gaudlin said, is a clause that allows the company to negotiate wage issues at financially troubled plants. Such proposals would need the approval only of local membership and international officers and not, as in the past, require approval of all Goodyear locals.

Court's action sets back clock

The rumblings coming from the U.S. Supreme Court these days signal an ominous narrowing of civil rights protections. So ominous, in fact, that racial minorities may have to ask Congress to protect rights long taken for granted.

The latest indicator was the high court's announcement that it will consider reversing a 1976 decision that expanded protections against racial discrimination in private schools, employment, housing and other services.

The court's 5-4 decision to reconsider that ruling doesn't mean reversal is automatic, of course. But the fact that the justices, without prompting, decided to rehear old arguments suggests an inclination to overturn.

The five justices in favor of rehearing the 1976 case expressed concern about its implied extension to a racial harassment suit now before the court. But such concern seems disingenuous. The court could have decided the harassment case on its merits without threatening to rewrite history.

If the five-member majority makes good on that threat, it will be up to Congress to plug the holes left exposed by existing civil rights legislation. Lawmakers could explicitly bar racial discrimination in private schools, for example, and strengthen the remedies against employment bias.

However, the Congress displayed a danger in this approach in passing the so-called Civil Rights Restoration Act in April. This legislation broadened an issue considerably, and into areas well beyond racial or sexual bias.

Even so, it's tragic that such patchwork should be necessary at all. Not too long ago, blacks and other minorities could count on the federal courts to administer equity when legislative remedies had failed. That citizens once again may have to entrust basic rights to the shifting whims of elected majorities says something chilling about the climate of justice in America.

NRA wins again

There has been a great deal of commentary recently regarding the support by the National Rifle Association of a bill passed by the Senate Judiciary Committee on weapons control. The measure deals with plastic weapons and the NRA supported passage which includes a five year ban on the weapons.

The NRA spends most of its money and personnel resources on a number of activities of a constructive nature: Boy Scout merit badges, safe weapon handling programs in the schools, and especially, competitive shooting events nationally and in the Olympics.

It also maintains a very efficient lobbying program in Washington, and in all state capitals, and has established an evil reputation as viewed by many, especially the more liberal politically.

The weapons control bill supported by the NRA pertains only to plastic handguns. There are none in existence and testimony before the congressional committee supports the conclusion that none will be in existence within the next five years. The legislation does not affect any member of the NRA, thus the lack of opposition. The ban ends in five years, and Congress will take up the matter again.

Lobbyists for the NRA support or oppose measures based on the wishes and opinions of the membership of that association. You may agree with their position, or disagree but you must give them credit. They are effective, and represent their members well.

Need for Senate ethics bill obvious

By: Anthony Harrigan

WASHINGTON—During his more than three decades of service in the U.S. Senate, Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has never been afraid to stand alone in defense of a vital principle. In early May he again demonstrated his principled concern and forthrightness in defending his strong government ethics bill before a House Judiciary Subcommittee.

Sen. Thurmond's bill, which passed the Senate on a voice vote last month, would tighten restrictions on lobbying by former government officials. For the first time, it would apply similar restraints on members of Congress and their staffs.

In other words, Sen. Thurmond's bill would deal with one of the worst scandals in Washington—the revolving door process whereby former government officials and elected representatives leave government service and become lobbyists, many of them for foreign governments and companies. They use their influence gained in government service for personal advantage.

Sen. Thurmond put it four-square when he told the House subcommittee that "It is time that public service be just that—not merely a stepping stone for future employment or profits." The American people surely agree with that statement. The only people who object are lobbyists and would-be lobbyists in the Executive and Legislative branches of government.

Why, for instance, should the American people tolerate a situation wherein a member of Congress or a former National Security Adviser to the president leaves his duties and signs up to serve foreign interests? That certainly isn't in the interest of the United States. Inside knowledge and contacts should not be used for personal profit or the advantage of foreign interests. This town is unfortunately full of types who prosper on the basis of their former public service. It's a disgrace.

Americans have a right to lobby Congress and the Executive Branch but those who have been given the privilege of serving the American people should not be given a license to profit from this opportunity. Today, unfortunately, lobbyists for foreign interests form an immense power bloc. This was illustrated very clearly in the recent Toshiba case. This Japanese corporation betrayed the security interests of the United States by selling sensitive equipment to the Soviets for use by their submarine force. The sale will cost the American taxpayers billions of dollars as the U.S. Navy seeks to regain a lost advantage.

Initially, Congress insisted on the toughest penalties against Toshiba. However, Toshiba and American companies using Toshiba equipment conducted one of the biggest lobbying campaigns ever seen on Capitol Hill. The penalties against Toshiba were reduced.

WILLIAM RUSHER

South Africa's changing

Under the rules of engagement laid down by our liberal media for reporting news from South Africa, no good news is permitted. For that, you see, would run counter to the official liberal version of the situation in that beautiful country: i.e., that it is ground under the heel of a white racist regime that is determined to deny political rights to its black majority forever.

The truth, however, is far otherwise; and as the South African government makes cautious progress toward a multi-racial policy (in the teeth of bitter opposition from its right-wing foes, incidentally), the strain of squaring liberal mythology with the developing facts becomes ever greater.

Thus, when State President P.W. Botha recently affirmed his belief that recognized black leaders should be included in the electoral college that chooses the state president, our liberal media faced a serious problem. How could that bare fact be reported, yet be instantly minimized to maintain the impression that nothing substantial had happened, or would ever happen as long as the present government remains in power?

Botha had begun with a brief review of the rights South African blacks already have — rights, incidentally, that not one American in a thousand today knows they have.

"As regards the various black communities outside the self-governing territories, we believe that provisions should be made for their political participation inside the republic. For this purpose, provision has already been made for autonomous local governments for these communities... Through these authorities, they also participate meaningfully in regional services councils. At the provincial level, they are represented on the provincial executive committees, in the same way as the other population communities.

"A logical step that should follow, is to consider further forms of self-government and autonomy for these communities. Black communities outside the self-governing territories increasingly demand structures that would afford them participation in governing processes. The government also deems it important that progress be made with the constitutional development of these communities."

Papandreou covers all of Greece's bases

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear
WASHINGTON — No matter which nation emerges victorious in the Iran-Iraq war, Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou will be prepared. His government has been selling munitions to both sides in the Persian Gulf conflict.

We reported in December 1986, that Greece was regularly selling weapons to Iran for cash or bartering them for crude oil. The payment was being delivered to a high-level official in the Greek Ministry of Defense. The oil was either refined in Greece or sold on the world market at a large profit.

Now we have documentary evidence that the state-owned arms company in Greece has branched out to do business with Iraq, too. It has been scouring the world on both sides of the Iron Curtain in search of munitions to fulfill contracts with Iraq. Ironically, some of the munitions were bought from Israel for later sale to Iraq, one of Israel's deadliest enemies. And some of the arms ending up in Iraq apparently came from the United States.

VIEWPOINT

Sixties Idealism

By: Herbert London

Wherever one travels on the Democratic campaign trail, one hears lamentations from seasoned warriors of the 1968 primary season that the insurgent youths who strutted their stuff for Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy twenty years ago are nowhere to be found today.

If one were to believe the rhetoric, thousands of earnest, idealistic, selfless young men and women were galvanized into changing the electoral landscape two decades ago. With the draft looming large in the lives of college males, these young people dove into the ranks of the "new" Democratic army believing that their actions would save the country and save themselves.

Presumably, today's college students are concerned with little more than their grades and tomorrow's bank account. In comparison to the college warriors of yesteryear, this new age cohort is considered dull, pragmatic and self-centered. The view that today's younger generation is devoid of passion and principle is not new. Surveys of college freshmen have demonstrated for several years that about 75 percent of the first-year college crop feel that being financially well off is "essential" or "very important," while only about 40 percent of those respondents—the lowest in two decades—believe developing "a meaningful philosophy of life" is important.

The prevalent contention at the moment, an echo from the past, is based on Rousseau's admonition that "as soon as public service ceases to be the chief business of the citizens and they would rather serve with their money, the state is not far from its fall." But it is time to challenge the mythology that has evolved over the "idealistic" students of the 1960s who were engaged in public service. Many of those young people attached to the McCarthy campaign wanted to beat the draft. Their antipathy to the Vietnam War was manifest in the tribal beat of the 1960s generation, but at its root was a personal desire to avoid fighting in the war. So much of the expressed dismay with the American policy in Vietnam was due to the concealment effort of young men who simply did not want to fight in a jungle 10,000 miles away from the shores of this nation.

To argue that these youths in the 1960s were idealistic while today's youths are not is either to misunderstand the past or to rewrite it intentionally. It is hardly an "unhealthy" sign for young people to seek financial solvency. More can be accomplished to assist the American people with new business, not wealth and new jobs, than all the demonstrations for the fashionable cause. In a sense, the pursuit of wealth is representative of the real idealism in the nation since one is obliged to put off consumption today so that an investment can be made tomorrow.

That nations may fall because citizens are not actively engaged in public service is one of those hoary bromides that university officials are fond of repeating at commencement exercises. In the present milieu, public service invariably takes the form of peace activism and environmental pronouncements. Yet it is hard to envision how service for Common Cause, the Sierra Club or Educators for Social Responsibility can prevent the nation's fall. Moreover, since public service is often characterized by zealotry—not so different from the student movement in the 1960s—it is hard to justify this activity as a required dimension of the state's well-being.

JEFFREY HART

Our new political parties

The names remain the same, Democratic and Republican, but at some point in the recent past their identities have been transformed. They both used to be ideological coalitions. Now we have a party of the Left and a party of the Right, new wine in old bottles.

Within living memory, the Democratic Speaker of the House was Sam Rayburn, Mr. Sam of Texas, not of the Left and not even a liberal. His successor, John McCormack of Massachusetts, was a conservative New Dealer. President Harry Truman was a domestic liberal and a foreign policy hard liner. The Democratic Party was a mixed bag, and contained its own contradictions, strong for doing so.

During the same period, roughly, there were conservative and liberal Republicans—for shorthand, let us say Robert Taft and Earl Warren.

Since the failed 1972 campaign of Sen. Henry Jackson—I recall his forlorn Miami headquarters full of antiquated labor leaders—and then his premature death, the Democratic Party has moved relentlessly leftward. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan was supposed to be Jackson's heir, but he lacked the stomach for it. Now, rather pathetically, we have another Democratic Jackson, Jesse, the most leftward major candidate since the 1948 campaign of Henry Wallace, and perhaps further to the left. Jackson has made himself a major voice in the Democratic Party, which does not dare repudiate him.

After the 1984 election, in which Reagan carried 49 states against Mondale, a faction of the Democratic Party make a determined effort to move toward the national center. This was the point of Super Tuesday, which was supposed to magnify the supposed centerism of the South. But the process has issued in three candidates who are probably more leftist than Walter Mondale. Of the three, Gore is trying to run as the "moderate" or "conservative." One study has found him more liberal than 74 percent of the Senate on economic issues and 81 percent on foreign policy issues.

During the same period, the Republican Party has moved strongly to the right. There is today no Rockefeller, Lindsay, Scott, Saltoull, Javits, Scranton. The only prominent Republican on the left is Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, whom many suspect of being insane, or at least a freak.

In other words, what the left-right polarization has produced is automatic position-taking in both parties. And, therefore, a spreading sense of inauthenticity.

been granted permission to resell U.S. munitions to Iraq. No record of any such action could be found.

This may explain why the two official approvals for the purchase of American munitions don't mention Iraq. When PYRKAL asked for permission from the ministry of defense to buy from the United States, the applications specified Iraq. When the defense ministry sent back the permission, it said only that the munitions were for a 1985 contract with a "foreign country."

We can say with certainty that the destination was Iraq because we have copies of both the applications to buy from the United States for the contract with Iraq, and the defense ministry purchase approvals to buy from the United States for an unnamed foreign country. The terms match in all specifics.

All items mentioned in the documents we have seen were components for 105mm howitzer rounds. The applications from PYRKAL include one dated March 21, 1986 to buy 240,000 detonators for the 105mm shells from the United States "for the program for Iraq."

PYRKAL also asked permission to buy 366,000 units of fuse components and 160,150 fuses from the United States in April, May and July 1986.

In June, PYRKAL asked to buy 35,000 smoke projectiles from Israel to fulfill "the contract with Iraq."

The documents also show that PYRKAL arranged purchases from Italy, Spain, Holland, England, Germany, Albania and Bulgaria. All of the applications specified that the munitions would go to Iraq. They included shells, cartridge cases, gunpowder and other explosive materials.

We attempted unsuccessfully to reach George Halofits in Greece. We also asked the Greek Embassy in Washington for a statement from Halofits and for a Greek government response to this story. An official spokesman would say only this: "In its export transactions, Greece fully complies with its obligations arising from international agreements. It is strange that a matter which was definitively closed in 1986 is being raised again."

IN BRIEF

Escapee arrested after being profiled on national TV show

JUPITER (UPI) — A jail escapee wanted on bank robbery and other charges was arrested Monday with handcuffs still dangling from his wrist after prisoners recognized him from a television program that profiles fugitives.

Police arrested Mark Goodman, 27, at a shopping center where he was spotted with the handcuffs disguised under gauze and duct tape, a police spokeswoman said.

Goodman did not resist arrest and was turned over to the U.S. Marshals Service, which had sought him.

A national television broadcast, "America's Most Wanted," highlighted Goodman in its broadcast Sunday, and inmates at a West Palm Beach jail recognized Goodman as escapee James Eide, said Jack Breslin, a spokesman for Fox Broadcasting.

Breslin said Goodman was a minimum-security prisoner serving a 75-day sentence for burglary in the Palm Beach County Jail under the name Eide when he escaped Sunday afternoon, three days before his sentence was to end.

Inmates told guards about Goodman and guards called the special number given out by the program, prompting the Marshals Service to ask that he be placed in maximum security detention if caught.

A major search was mounted for Goodman involving helicopters and bloodhounds.

On Monday, Jupiter police were told by an off duty Palm Beach sheriff's deputy that Goodman was at the Sea Grape Square shopping area, where he was arrested shortly after 4 p.m. EDT, police spokeswoman April Udinski said.

Student shot on school bus

FORT MYERS (UPI) — A middle school student shot and wounded a classmate with a small caliber handgun during an argument on a bus filled with 30 students heading home, police said.

Derek Strong, 14, was shot once in the lower back Monday by a student with whom he had been arguing for nearly a week, a police spokesman said. Strong was taken to Lee Memorial Hospital where he was in fair condition with what was described as a superficial wound.

None of the other students riding the school bus was hurt, and many apparently thought the weapon was actually a toy gun, said Sgt. Dan Jerz of the Fort Myers Police.

The assailant was not immediately identified by school officials or police, although students at the scene identified him as Oscar Davis, 14.

His mother brought him into the police station at 8:45 p.m., police said. He was charged with attempted first-degree murder and placed in a juvenile detention home.

Columnist dies at age 100

KEY WEST (UPI) — Bert Parkell Garnett, author of a popular syndicated column about growing old that capped an 86-year career in journalism, had died two months shy of his 101st birthday.

Garnett died Friday in Key West, his home for more than 50 years and base for writing "Century Bound," a column for the Scripps Howard News Service. The column became "Century Bound" on his 100th birthday last July 17.

"He was frascible and acerbic," said Al Thompson, an editor in the news agency's Washington office. "The emphasis was supposed to be on growing old, what it was like, what the joys were, if there were any."

Garnett wrote two columns a week until his death, Thompson said. Clients often called for repeats of the column, suggesting it was a popular feature.

Garnett used the column to fight for senior citizens and retirees. The column, launched about five years ago, often reflected his own problems in coping with life as his faculties began to fail.

County French students take awards

By Joyce Herald
UCF Intern

SANFORD — French students from two Seminole County High Schools received awards during the 35th annual Congres de la Culture Francaise en Floride competition held in Orlando.

During the three-day event, judges scored students and handed out awards for first, second and third place as well as honorable mention.

The competition tested the students in many areas, including the ability to interpret oral and written French as well as knowledge of people and events in French history and the ability to speak the language.

Competitors were divided ac-ording to the number of years they have studied the language and the category being tested. The 103 schools from across Florida that attended the event were separated by division based on their size.

Two Seminole County schools, Seminole High School and Lake Brantley High School, competed in the 4A division.

Students from Seminole High School who took home first place awards were 15-year-old Cricket Strickney, a freshman and LaShabonda Robinson, 15, a sophomore.

Second-place winners were Amy Jacobs, 16, a sophomore; Lisa Andrew, 18, a senior; and Chris Wilkening, 16, a junior.

Two 15-year-old freshmen, Rebecca Bolton and Beth Bordenkreber, placed third.

Honorable mentions went to Valencia Wells, 16, a sophomore, and Mindy Bogue, 17, a junior.

The students at Seminole High School were sponsored by the Polyglot club, comprised of foreign language students at the school.

Jacobs has been appointed to the 1988-89 board coordinating next year's competition. The student board members and their sponsors work to plan, coordinate and administer the three-day event.

Students from Lake Brantley who brought home first-place awards were four sophomores, Debbi Love, Denise Gough, Lisa Bobkowski and Brittney Campbell, Debbi Shimick, a junior, and Stephan Polakoff, a senior, also won first-place honors.

Second-place winners include freshmen Erica Lindahl and Dawn Hetherington, three sophomores, Debbi Love, Karl Kaufmann, Amy Anderson, and three juniors, Susan Kagan, Beth Freeman and Lisa King.

Two sophomores, Marnie Feldberg and Adrienne Raby, placed third.

Freeman took honorable mention for coordinating a scrapbook of foreign language events at the school.

In bus crash that killed 27

Pickup truck driver charged with murder

CARROLLTON, Ky. (UPI) — Prosecutors vowed to seek the death penalty against a pickup truck driver charged with 27 murders, saying he drove drunkenly the wrong way on an interstate and plowed into a church bus, killing 27 people.

A police guard stood today outside the hospital room of Larry Mahoney, 34, who was charged Monday with 27 counts of capital murder after tests showed his blood-alcohol percentage was more than double the legal limit at the time of Saturday night's crash.

Mahoney, who lives in Worthville, Ky., and works for M & T Chemicals in Carrollton, pleaded guilty in April 1984 to driving while intoxicated, a National Transportation Safety Board spokesman said. He paid a fine.

The bus was carrying 67 people, mostly teenagers, home to Radcliff, Ky., from a church outing to an Ohio amusement park when Mahoney's Toyota pickup truck slammed into it head-on on Interstate 71 about 75 miles northeast of Louisville.

The bus burst into flames when the fuel tank apparently ruptured on impact, creating an inferno that trapped those killed, witnesses said. Officials said they believe no one would have died if the bus had not caught fire. Forty people on the bus were injured.

NHTSA officials said Monday their investigation indicates the bus was built before new safety features were required in 1977 that might have prevented a fuel tank rupture.

Commonwealth's Attorney John Ackman said he would seek the death penalty against Mahoney if he is convicted of the murder charges in the accident, one of the worst bus crashes in U.S. history.

"Circumstances surrounding his driving behavior on the evening when these people were killed, the fact the innocent victims were involved — those are the reasons to go into the death penalty statute," Ackman said.

Mahoney, whose case goes to the Carroll County grand jury June 6, was denied bond, and he remains in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Humana Hospital University in Louisville.

"Basically he's under arrest right now," state police Lt. J.R. Hill said. "An officer has been placed at his room in the hospital."

Hospital spokeswoman Taylor Rice said Mahoney still is in the intensive care unit because "he's much better off there for security reasons."

Three killed, 20 injured in bus crash

CLINTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Police say a school bus that crashed into a ravine while carrying mentally retarded workers, killing three people and injuring 20, may have been traveling too fast on a winding road.

The bus had picked up 22 workers employed by Rehabilitation Programs of Poughkeepsie and was en route to their group homes when it ran off the road in the Dutchess County town of Clinton shortly after 4 p.m. Monday, state police spokesman Gerard Salmon said.

The bus chopped off a utility pole in its path and rolled over a guardrail, tumbling down a ravine into a grove of trees. It stopped on the shore of Little Wappingers Creek, state police said.

"The cause of the accident is under investigation but apparently he had never been on the road before and he may have been speeding," Salmon said of the driver. "It's a very dangerous road. It's winding and hilly."

The only people on the bus besides the driver were the mentally handicapped passengers, who are employed at the rehabilitation center to perform jobs such as packaging for clients.

"It was a total disaster," said West Clinton Fire Chief Don Cookingham, one of the first fire officials on the scene. "We prepare for this every month in drills. It's the worst I've ever seen and hope it's the last."

Police said the road surface was dry at the time of the accident and the bus's tires left long skidmarks on the highway.

Witnesses said trees kept the mangled bus from falling into the creek. All its windows were blown out and pieces of its severed front end were strewn on the ground.

Salmon said three passengers were killed and 20 people — the bus driver and 19 passengers — were injured.

The dead included Raymond G. Phillips, 25, of Clinton Corners, who was trapped under the bus and died of a broken neck, Salmon said.

Also killed were Patricia Russo, 23, of Clinton Hollow, and John Dalrymple, 44, of Clinton Corners.

More than 10 ambulances carried the injured to three Poughkeepsie-area hospitals, police said.

Victims hospitalized in critical condition included the bus driver, Louis Taylor, 44, of Poughkeepsie, admitted to Northern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck with lacerations and internal injuries, and Carol Reichwein, 47, of Brookstone, and Karen Keith, 31, of Rhinebeck, admitted to St. Francis Hospital with internal injuries, the trooper said.

Others were admitted for less serious injuries, while others were treated for cuts and bruises and released, Salmon said.

The group homes where the workers live are run by the Wassaic Developmental Center in the Hudson Valley, about 75 miles north of New York City, a center administrator said.

The National Transportation Safety Board was called to investigate the accident.

Spokesmen for Laidlaw Transit Inc., operator of the full-sized school bus, were unavailable for comment.

The school bus wrecked two days after one of the worst bus crashes in U.S. history happened in Kentucky. A bus carrying 67 people, mostly teenagers, home to Radcliff, Ky., from a church outing slammed into a pickup truck traveling the wrong way on Interstate 71 about 75 miles northeast of Louisville. Twenty-seven people were killed.

Drugs, foreign policy highlight pre-primary debates in Oregon

United Press International

Drugs and their link to foreign policy burned at the center of debate between presidential rivals George Bush and Michael Dukakis as underdog Jesse Jackson sought an upset in today's Oregon primary.

Dukakis, the Democratic Massachusetts governor bolstered by a poll showing him ahead of the Republican vice president in a prospective fall matchup, hit Bush on the eve of today's voting by criticizing the administration's dealings with Panamanian Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, indicted on drug-related charges.

"We deserve a full explanation as to what people in this administration were dealing with drug dealers and why and who knew about it," Dukakis declared in Boston. "I don't see how we can go out into communities and ask young people to say no to drugs when our government can't say no to drug peddlers."

Bush, campaigning next door to Oregon in Seattle, denounced as "garbage" reports suggesting his office knew about drug dealing in Central America.

Accusing a congressional subcommittee of leaking the information in the most recent report, in Newsweek magazine, Bush alleged, "There's some insidious political game going on up there. What's fair play? And how does one, when he's told the truth, how much of this ... does one have to put up with?"

Oregon arms dealer Richard Brenneke told Newsweek he once contacted Donald Gregg, Bush's chief of staff, to warn him that White House officials were brokering gun sales to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels from an arms dealership tied to drug traffic. Brenneke said he was told, "Do what you were assigned to do. Don't question the decisions of your betters."

Gregg repeatedly has denied speaking with Brenneke as well as having any role in the arms deals or offering any assistance to the rebels.

The poll giving Dukakis the boost today was a CBS News-New York Times survey conducted May 9-12 that showed he would beat Bush 49 percent to 39 percent in a general election. Dukakis led Bush in all regions and did particularly well in the Northeast and Midwest, the poll said. Of those who voted for President Reagan in 1984, 28 percent preferred Dukakis over Bush.

The survey, which queried 1,636 voters and had a margin of error of about 3 percent, marks a significant advance for Dukakis since a March CBS News-New York Times poll showed Bush at 46 percent and Dukakis at 45 percent.

Jackson, whose challenge to Dukakis has faded with a string of recent losses in Democratic primaries, was the only major candidate to spend the eve of the Oregon primary campaigning in the state. Polls in Oregon were scheduled to open today at 7 a.m. and to close at 8 p.m. PDT.

Jackson visited 11 Oregon cities in less than a week, hoping still for an upset before the critical June 7 contests that close out the 1988 primary season in California, New Jersey, New Mexico and Montana.

Sales of shuttle license plates raise $5 million for memorial

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Sales of special Florida license plates commemorating the space shuttle Challenger have raised more than $5 million to help build a special memorial, state officials said Monday.

More than 274,000 of the Challenger memorial tags have been sold since January 1987, said Leonard R. Mellon, executive director of the state Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles.

"The design is both appealing and symbolic of Florida's historic role in the space program," Mellon said. "We're pleased that the tag has been so popular and that it looks as though the foundation will be successfully financed."

Motorists seeking the special plates pay $17 above the normal registration, with $15 set aside for the special fund.

The latest disbursement of $347,906 to a memorial construction fund, run by the Astronauts Memorial Foundation in Orlando, boosted the total to $5.2 million, Mellon said.

Response to the tags, which feature a drawing of the shuttle lifting off its launch pad on a plume of smoke, has exceeded early forecasts, even though Floridians were expected to honor the memory of the six astronauts and schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe who died aboard the shuttle.

Challenger was destroyed 73 seconds after blastoff Jan. 28, 1986, killing commander Francis "Dick" Scobee, co-pilot Michael Smith and astronaut Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Judith Resnik, satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis and New Hampshire school teacher Christa McAuliffe.

The disaster was blamed on a rupture in Challenger's right-side solid-fuel booster rocket.

Cable car crash injures 11

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One of San Francisco's storied cable cars coming down a steep rain-slickened hill to Fisherman's Wharf with a load of tourists slammed into a large truck at an intersection Monday, injuring 11 people.

Of the 11 victims taken to hospitals, five were seriously hurt, Municipal Railway officials said. One of the injured was pinned in the wreck and had to be freed by emergency crews using a "jaws of life" device, MUNI spokesman Alan Siegel said.

"We were coming down the hill at a terrific rate of speed," said Esther Breckenridge, 70, of St. Charles, Mo., a tourist riding inside the glass-enclosed compartment. "The brakeman yelled, 'Hold on, hold on' and that was it. I don't ever want to go through anything like this again."

The cable car was only traveling at about 9 mph, another MUNI spokesman, George Newkirk, said.

Passengers are often fooled by the speed of the cable cars because "that's a sensation they have," Newkirk said.

Breckenridge was visiting San Francisco with her husband Robert, 72, and another couple, one of whom was among the injured.

Robert Breckenridge said his glasses flew off on impact. He was standing outside on the rear of the car, holding onto the railing.

"The conductor was saying, 'Hold on, hold on, and I was holding on,'" Breckenridge said.

The two cable car operators, including veteran gripman Gerald Holden, were among those taken to hospitals as were eight passengers and the truck driver.

The collision occurred in the rain at 11:23 a.m. near the intersection of Hyde and Bay streets, about a block away from the end of the line near San Francisco Bay on one of the steepest hills on the cable car system.

Knight turns down New Mexico

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — New Mexico offered Bob Knight two things he loves — a well-supported, established college basketball program and great outdoor leisure sports.

That, however, was not enough to draw Knight away from Indiana University, where he has coached for 17 years.

Knight announced Monday he is staying at Indiana, where he has led the Hoosiers to three national championships. Building a program to his standards was something Knight, 47, said he did not want to do again.

"It was purely a matter of me checking into a situation that I found very, very attractive — fishing, hunting, and playing golf all year around. Things I would really like," Knight told the Bloomington Herald-Examiner in a copyright story.

I told the athletic director at the University of New Mexico (John Koening) that the one thing I had to resolve — and I had to resolve it from every angle — was the energy requirement for me to do the things that had to be done, whether I could actually handle the job and the requirements to do the job the way I feel it has to be done," he said. "Obviously, the answer I came up with was no.

"Maybe other considerations would have gotten in the way also, but I could just not get past that one thing," he said.

Knight said he was never close to signing a contract with New Mexico, even though it was reported late last week a deal was on the verge of completion.

"The whole key thing is that my discussions with New Mexico never got beyond a preliminary stage because I had to decide whether I thought I could do the job effectively enough for them, and whether I wanted to expend the energy necessary," he said. "There was no discussion of financial considerations whatsoever, either at this end of it or New Mexico's end."

Knight met with University of New Mexico officials at the Kentucky Derby May 7 then traveled to the school last week to continue talks.

There was speculation that Knight was upset with Thomas Ehrlich, the new president at IU, because Ehrlich twice reprimanded Knight during the past year — once for pulling his team off the floor during a game against the Soviet Union, and another time for a controversial reference to rape in a nationally televised interview.

"So many remarks have been made and inferences made by people who have not either taken the time to look at my situations or have any understanding of my thinking," Knight told the newspaper. "That would include implying that I condone rape, which is so obviously absurd. I can't believe it, right on through to where I was supposed to be upset with the president who emphasizes academics."

"I think it's obvious I would be that kind of president's biggest supporter. Nothing could please me more."

"It's unfortunate that this thing developed in the wake of the (NBC correspondent) Connie Chung deal because this is the only job that I have ever looked into since I've been here and that would have been the case if we had just won a national championship and I had never heard of Connie Chung. It's just a misfortune of coincidence," Knight said.

Knight met with Ehrlich and Ralph Floyd, Indiana's athletic director, Monday to tell them of his decision.

"We are pleased Bob Knight has decided to remain at Indiana University and look forward to having him as head coach of the IU men's basketball team for many years to come," Ehrlich and Floyd said in a joint statement.

"This is his home," Floyd said. "He is Indiana basketball to thousands of IU fans because of the values and integrity that he demands of himself, his players and everyone associated with IU basketball."

Knight's decision to stay at Indiana apparently opens the way for Dave Bliss, a former Knight assistant and current coach at Southern Methodist, to take the New Mexico job. Bliss said he was contacted by New Mexico officials shortly after Knight informed the school of his decision.

Hawks upend Celts, even series at 2-2

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Hawks assured themselves of something that seemed most unlikely entering last weekend — at least one more home game this season.

The Hawks Monday night beat the Boston Celtics for the second time in little over 24 hours, 118-109, to tie the best of seven Eastern Conference series at two games apiece. Game 5 is Wednesday night at Boston Garden, and Game 6 Friday at Atlanta.

"At this point in the series you can't afford to get tired," Atlanta's Antoine Carr said. "You have to go hard every minute from the tip on. I think these wins will help, and carry over into Boston."

Atlanta has lost 13 straight games at Boston Garden, and has not won a playoff game there since 1973. In the first two games of this series, the Hawks were blown out in the first quarter and never recovered.

At Atlanta, Boston was plagued by poor shooting in Game 3 and poor ball handling in Game 4. Sunday, the Celtics converted just 14 of 28 second-half shots. Monday they committed 22 turnovers — 17 in the second half.

"Turnovers have been a big problem for us," said Boston assistant coach Jimmy Rodgers, who directed the club after Celtics Coach K.C. Jones was ejected with 5:53 left in the third period. "We have to make sure we don't give them easy shots."

The Hawks were led by 40 points from Dominique Wilkins and a career high 22 assists from Glenn Rivers.

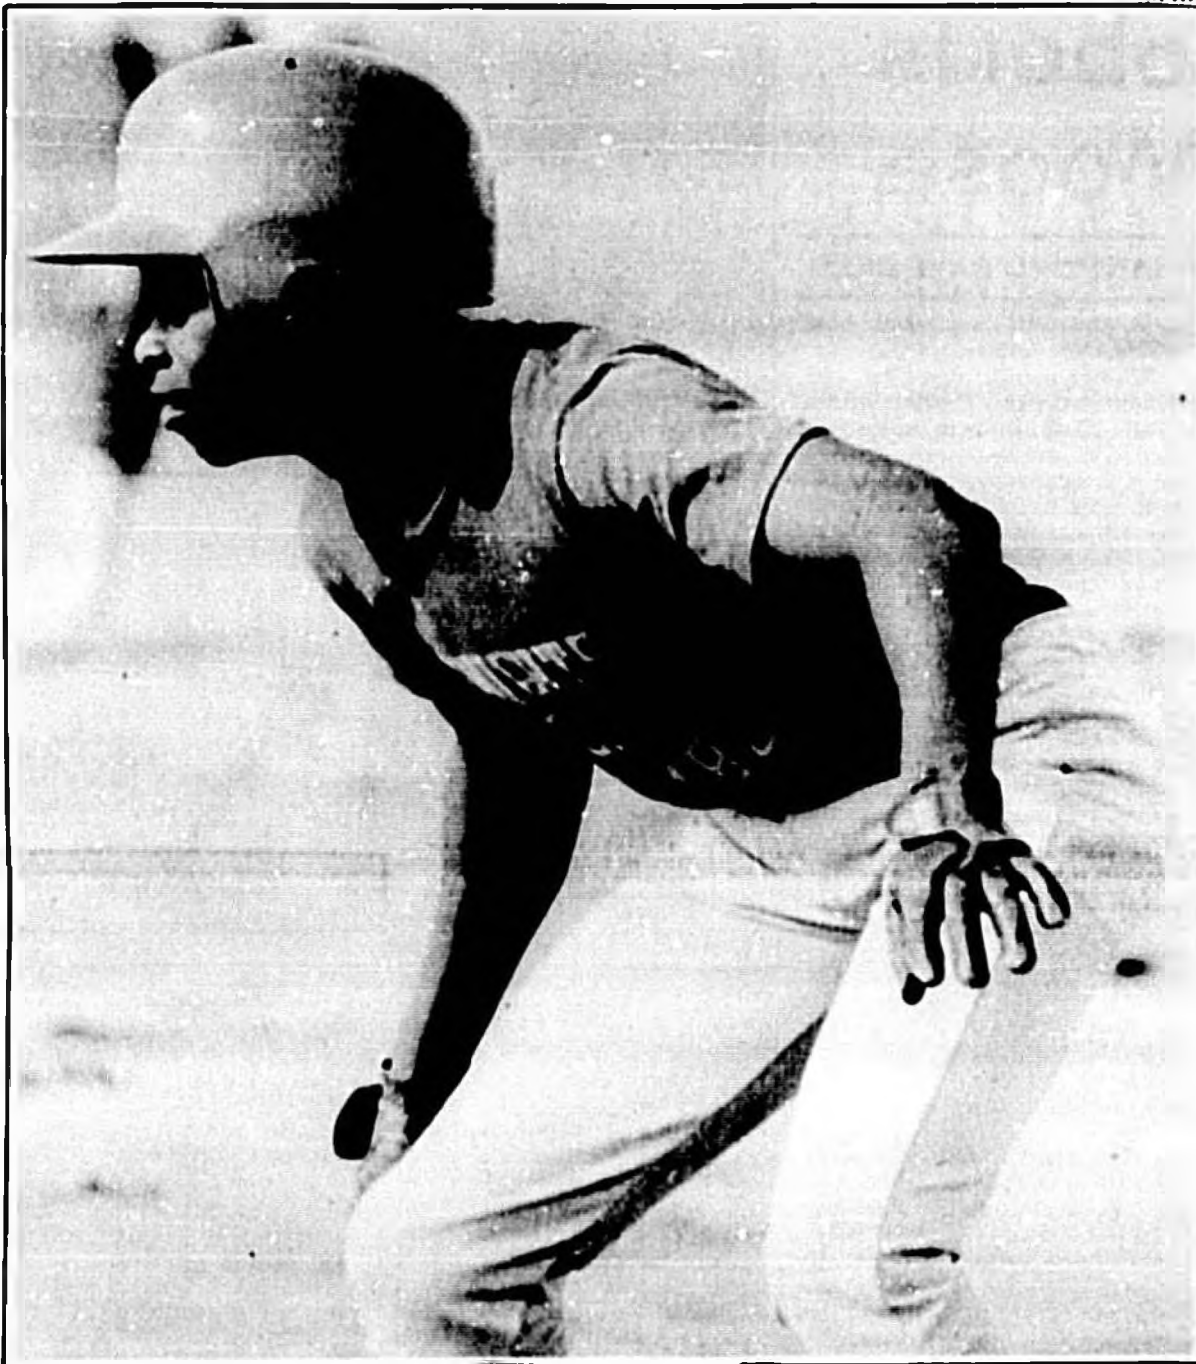

"We're at home," Wilkins said. "We're expected to play well and win. We believe that we can win at home."

"We are very comfortable right now. We feel very good to be tied going up there and taking it to Game 6 back here. But, hey, we had to fight to get where we are at."

Wilkins scored 9 points in the final period as the Hawks nearly blew a 19-point third period advantage. After Danny Ainge's 3-point shot brought Boston within 109-105, Rivers, who finished with 14 points, sank a 3-pointer with 2:35 left that helped finish off the Celtics.

The Celtics opened the final period with a 16-6 run to move within 101-99 with 7:31 left. Larry Bird scored 7 points in the surge for Boston, while Spud Webb's three baskets accounted for the Hawks' offense.

Bird led Boston with 30 points. Kevin McHale added 22 points and 12 rebounds. Ainge 18 points and Robert Parish 17. Atlanta was aided by Kevin Willis' 19 points, Webb's 17 and Tree Rollins' 12 rebounds.

He won't be an All-Star

Twins' Hrbek wants no part of the game

By RICHARD L. SNOOK
UPI Sports Writer

SCOUTING REPORT

Don't waste your time punching out the little rectangle next to Kent Hrbek's name on the All-Star ballot. The Minnesota Twins first baseman wants no part of the game.

"I'm not going," Hrbek said. "I mean it."

You may not admire what the big guy is doing but you certainly have to respect the way Hrbek is going about it.

He is turning down a free ride to Cincinnati for the July 12 All-Star Game because he doesn't care for the selection process.

A free ride? With Don Mattingly and Eddie Murray and Wally Joyner and George Brett and Mark McGwire on the ballot?

Yes, a free ride. Or did you forget the manager of the American League team this year is none other than Tom Kelly of the Minnesota Twins.

Remember them? All they did is win the World Series.

"It started last year," Hrbek said. "Our team was doing well and the guys were doing well. Namely this guy (Gary Gaetti) sitting here next to me."

"Whoa," said Gaetti, who with a good Sunday lifted his average all the way up to .268 entering Monday's game. "Don't get me involved in this."

"Everybody can get mad at me," Hrbek responded.

Mears drives Penske special to pole

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Roger Penske earned a front-row sweep in qualifying for the 1988 Indianapolis 500 with a decision he made five years ago.

Penske was approached in 1983 by engine designers Mario Illen and Paul Morgan with plans for a new power plant. The result was the Chevrolet engine that powers the five fastest qualifiers for the May 29 race.

The engine, first car tested by Indy pole winner Rick Mears at a British airfield in 1985, earned eight pole positions and five victories last year. This season it has captured two previous Indy-car poles and both races. The only two engine failures in the events, both caused by crankshaft malfunction, were used to improve the engine for use at Indy.

The knock on the engine has been durability. Last year a Chevy powered Mario Andretti to the pole position, but it failed with 30 laps remaining. Since then, testing and a desire to avoid mass production has made the engine better in designer Illen's eyes.

"We were confident we could get up front but we never expected this much," he said. "We did thousands of miles and we improved it. We've proven it's good, at least for qualifying. Rather than build a lot of new engines, we want to do more development and stay ahead of the game. It was mainly working the bugs out and filling out the details. There were no major things we had to change."

Mears, who set one- and four-lap qualifying records in his Chevy-powered Penske car, won the Pocono 500 last year to give the Chevy its only victory to date at that distance.

"Five-hundred miles here isn't any longer than 500 miles at Pocono and we won that," Mears said. "It's got what it takes and off-season testing shows we've improved the engine. We've got a lot of motors with more than 500 miles in them."

With a triumph at the Indianapolis Motor

Player of the Year: Tracy Brandenburg

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Editor

It would be pretty easy for someone who has been twice player of the year and an All-State First Team selection to rest on her laurels. When that occurs, the athlete usually falls backward before realizing what has happened.

Lake Brantley's Tracy Brandenburg, though, only knows one direction—forward.

The Lady Patriots' junior shortstop, after an all-state season a year ago, was just as devastating at the plate and steady in the field in 1988 and, for the third year in a row, she has been named Sanford Herald Player of the Year.

In regular season play, Brandenburg finished second in Seminole County in batting average at .560 and she was first in hits (47), runs batted in (39) and home runs (9). Brandenburg also added three triples, two doubles and 36 runs scored.

Joining Brandenburg on the All-County First Team infield are Oviedo senior pitcher Jodie Switzer, Lake Howell junior catcher Leslie Barton, Lake

Brantley junior first baseman Tina Wilson, Brantley senior second baseman Penny Siqueros and Lake Mary senior third baseman Marnie Frey.

Switzer, who pitched every game since her freshman year for Oviedo, got a slow start at the plate but came on strong in the second half and finished with a .421 average. Her trademark on the mound was to get the first pitch in for a strike, then make the hitter fish the rest of the at bat. She made a first-pitch hitter out of quite a few players.

Leslie Barton, who also plays a mean outfield, was unrivaled defensively behind the plate and she also led the county in hitting with a .564 average. She was also first in the county in runs (42), tied for first in doubles (4) second in hits (43), second in RBIs (31) second in homers (6) and tied for second in triples (4).

County first base for the second year in a row after hitting .364 with 19 runs and 17 RBIs.

Siqueros, who played on the JV baseball team for three years, moved to the softball diamond in 1988 and proved to be one of the most fundamentally sound players ever in Seminole County. Along with playing impressively at second, Siqueros hit .400 with five triples, three doubles and 17 RBIs and 28 runs.

Frey was a key player in what was the most successful season in Class -A play ever for Lake Mary as the Lady Rams were district champions and won 19 games. Frey led the team with a .432 average (fifth in the county) and she also drove in 21 runs.

Meyer is a First Team selection for the third year in a row. She finished the season with a .316 batting average, four homers, 23 runs and 17 RBIs. In the outfield, there were none better in the county.

Weston was leadoff hitter for Brantley most of the season and she did exactly what leadoff hitters are supposed to do, get on base a lot. Weston finished fourth in the county with a .453 average, scored 18 runs and drove in 19.

Taylor was one of the sparkplugs of the Lake Mary team and one of the top power hitters in the county. She finished with a .386 average, 28 runs, 24 RBIs, four triples and three homers.

Lawson is the only sophomore on the All-County First Team. Her blazing speed and good anticipation makes her one of the best defensive outfielders in the county and she also added a .364 batting average with three triples and two home runs.

Julie Barton had another outstanding season at the plate for the Lady Silver Hawks. She was third in the county with a .487 average and ripped a county-leading nine triples along with five homers, scored 29 runs and drove in 29.

The All-County Second Team infield includes Lake Brantley senior pitcher Kim Robinson (.350 average, 17-3 pitching record), Lake Brantley freshman catcher Shelly Sturdivant (.344), Lake Howell senior first baseman Ritsja Millwood (.429), Oviedo junior second baseman Anna Hollis (.397, 17 RBIs), Oviedo senior shortstop Jill Knutson (.369, 2 homers, 19 RBIs) and Lake Howell junior third baseman Val Monica (.358).

Tejano may remain on sidelines

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Tejano, the record-setting 1987 juvenile money champion and a late defector from the Kentucky Derby won by stablemate Winning Colors, also may end up on the sidelines for the Preakness Stakes, trainer D. Wayne Lukas said Monday.

"I'm on the fence, but I'm leaning towards the Peter Pan (at Belmont Park May 29) instead," Lukas said from Belmont, where Winning Colors and Tejano have been training for Saturday's Preakness.

Like Winning Colors, Tejano is a speed horse. Though he has not yet raced to his 1987 form, she appeared a possible threat to his stablemate's attempt to become the first filly to win two legs of the Triple Crown.

Nevertheless, Lukas said after the Derby he would race both horses in the Preakness because the two horses have different owners. Tejano belongs to Barry Beal and Robert French, and Winning Colors races in the silks of Eugene Klein.

"Bob deserves a chance to run in the Preakness as much as Gene does," Lukas said the morning after the Derby.

PREAKNESS

Monday, however, Lukas said that Beal and French "are leaving the decision up to me, and I will have that decision tomorrow."

Lukas also made the late choice to keep Tejano out of the Derby, saying the colt did "not belong" in the race. Tejano had finished fourth to Winning Colors in the April 9 Santa Anita Derby, and Lukas said he had told French and Beal, "if they raced 10 times, she would beat him 10 days."

Tejano has been improving since his loss to Winning Colors. Last Wednesday, he finished second to speedster Once Wild in Belmont's Withers Stakes.

Still, Lukas said, "it is the same situation we had before the Derby. We feel Winning Colors is a superior horse, not that this horse is not without a chance. If he were the only horse we had, we'd be down there with bells on."

Without Tejano, the probable Preakness field would total 11, but owner Gary Marano and trainer Butch Lenzi also indicated they were reconsidering tentative plans to race Once Wild.

Early Monday, Marano said he and Lenzi "were leaning towards the Preakness 99 percent but we still want to give it another day or two."

Preakness Stakes Notebook

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Owner Donald Levinson has appealed Lost Code's three quarter-length loss to Bet Twice in the $500,000 Pimlico Special last Saturday to the Maryland Racing Commission, state racing stewards at Pimlico announced Monday.

Pat Day, rider of Lost Code, claimed foul after the race on grounds Bet Twice, ridden by Craig Perret, bumped and forced his colt wide during their stretch duel. The stewards disallowed the foul and Bet Twice's victory was made official.

Bet Twice earned a bonus-padded, first-prize purse of $425,000 and Lost Code earned $100,000. Cryptoclearance was third and 3-5 favorite Alysheba was fourth.

Speedway, the Chevy would end a 10-year reign by Cosworth, the dominant engine maker. Illien believes the two brands will battle for a long time unless rules are changed to give one motor an advantage.

"Indicators are it will go that way, if they don't change the rules, I'm sure that will happen," he said.

Buick-powered Scott Brayton and Judd engine user Bobby Rahal say their motors have better fuel economy and could save a pit stop on race day. Illien said fuel efficiency won't help slower cars.

"If you go slow or haven't got the horsepower, you don't use fuel. If you're two laps down and haven't used the fuel, it doesn't matter," he said.

Had Illien gone to another owner, Penske cars probably would not own the front row. But, Illien said, his engine might not be there either. "Penske leads the team with his input," Illien said. "He is keen to make progress. If things don't happen like they should, he presses forward. He doesn't let up. That's why they reason they win. That's why the engine is where it is today."

PRACTICE MISHAPS

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A judge trying to break into auto racing and a two-time champion each encountered problems in the first practice day after the initial qualifying weekend for the May 29 Indy 500.

Harry Sauce, a judge in suburban Hamilton County, spun during his rookie test Monday while Gordon Johncock, who had just made a deal to obtain a race car, blew the car's engine before he could start a run on the 2 1/2-mile oval.

Sauce's 1987 March-Cosworth spun 1 1/2 times coming out of the first turn during his rookie test. Sauce's car did not hit any walls and he was unhurt.

"I'm driving the corners as hard as I want," said Sauce. "Two-hundred miles per hour looks so elusive right now. It's just like it's on ice."

Sauce went back on the track late in the day, reaching just over 188 mph. He has yet to complete his rookie test.

Meanwhile, car owner Vince Granatelli sold the car that Roberto Guerrero drove to second place in last year's Indy 500 to David Anderson of Royal Motor Racing. Anderson assigned Johncock, the 1973 and 1982 champion, to the car.

But the car experienced trouble almost immediately, with the engine blowing out in the pits as Johncock tried to start it.

Johncock said he believes he can qualify during the second weekend of time trials for the 72nd Indy 500.

"I think 205 or 206 miles per hour is going to be safe. We'll shoot for more, but we'll see how it works," Johncock said. "It worked with Roberto last year. We shouldn't have any problems."

Rawley blanks Giants

United Press International

Though he felt capable of going longer, Shane Rawley needed a mere two hours and six minutes to whittle the Giants down to size.

The Philadelphia left-hander limited San Francisco to two hits Monday night and carried the Phillies to a 3-0 road triumph.

"I felt comfortable and confident all night long," Rawley said after the first two-hitter of his 11-year career.

"I changed speeds a lot, kept the ball down, and stayed ahead of the hitters most of the game."

Lance Parrish and Chris James ripped home runs to support Rawley and help snap San Francisco's three-game winning streak.

Parrish broke a scoreless tie with his sixth-inning homer, his sixth of the season, off Rick Reuschel with one out and Mike Schmidt on base. Two batters later, James stroked his fifth home run to make it 3-0.

Rawley, 2-5, walked one and struck out four in hurling his first complete game of the year. He allowed a fifth-inning single to Candy Maldonado and a single in the eighth to Jose Uribe.

"I had good speed, although my location was off a bit," Rawley said. "I established my fastball early, then mixed in some breaking pitches, and I kept the batters off stride."

"I changed speeds a lot, kept the ball down, and stayed ahead of the hitters most of the game."

Lance Parrish and Chris James ripped home runs to support Rawley and help snap San Francisco's three-game winning streak.

Stieb masters White Sox

United Press International

Once again, Dave Stieb pitched in the Windy City and blew away Chicago White Sox batters.

Stieb Monday continued his mastery over the White Sox by tossing a four-hitter to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to a 5-1 road victory.

The right-hander improved his career mark against Chicago to 15-4, 0-1 at Comiskey Park.

"I can't really explain it," said Stieb, who has won his last four starts to improve to 5-3.

"I remember the (last) loss. I gave up a homer to (Greg) Luzitski. Your object is to do the best you can when you get on the field. It just happens that I've beaten this ballclub a lot."

Pat Borders belted a two-run homer in the fifth and Kelly Gruber hit an inside-the-park home run in the eighth to support Stieb.

"I had really good stuff tonight, and I was throwing everything for strikes," said Stieb, who walked one and struck out four in throwing his first complete game since Aug. 28, 1967.

"I was throwing mostly breaking balls. The key was that I was mixing it up and getting good location. The only reason the complete game was important was that our bullpen needed a rest."

Stieb said arm problems in recent years have "forced me to make changes in my delivery. Now that I've got that ironed out, my control is coming around. It's a long process, but I'm getting better every time out."

Against the White Sox, Stieb faced just four batters over the minimum.

"He was throwing in the high 80s even late in the game," White Sox Manager Jim Fregosi said. "I'd say he's got it back."

Chicago starter Rick Horton, 3-6, allowed one hit through the first four innings before Toronto struck for three runs in the fifth.

Stieb lost his shutout bid in the sixth when Mark Salas opened the inning with a single, moved to third on two groundouts, and scored on Daryl Boston's infield single.

Elsewhere, Oakland shut out Boston 3-0; Kansas City edged Texas 7-6; New York downed Seattle 3-1; and Milwaukee defeated Detroit 3-1.

MacPhail says Twins will leave Orlando

ORLANDO (UPI) — The Minnesota Twins will move spring training from Orlando, their base of 50 years, to Fort Myers within two years, the team's general manager said in a published report Tuesday.

"There's no one to blame and I'm not trying to badger officials here to come up with a better offer," Andy MacPhail, also the club's executive vice president, said.

"I just don't want people here to wake up and see the Twins gone overnight. What I'm trying to do, saying what I am, is from a feeling of remorse," MacPhail said while watching the Twins Class AA Southern League team, which would likely also be moved from Orlando. City officials and the Twins have been negotiating new terms to keep the franchise in Orlando, but MacPhail said "the way things are moving" he doesn't expect an agreement can be reached.

The two sides met last week for the first time since February, when the city offered to spend $1.5 million to renovate aging Tinker Field and link it with other practice fields into a downtown baseball complex if the Twins signed a 10-year lease.

The Twins have been in Orlando for spring training since 1936.

Market active, prices up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, following the release of a key piece of economic data showing the nation's trade deficit fell sharply in March.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 17.08 Monday, was up 13.92 to 2021.55 shortly after the market opened.

Advances overwhelmed declines 814-141 among the 1,422 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 14,100,000 shares.

Before the market opened, the Commerce Department reported that the U.S. merchandise trade deficit shrank to $9.7 billion in March from $13.8 billion in February. The shortfall was considerably less than Wall Street forecasters had anticipated.

Wall Street had generally expected the March shortfall to be around $12.6 billion.

Dollar sharply higher; Gold, silver open down

By United Press International

In early New York trading, the dollar was sharply higher today against key foreign currencies in brisk trading triggered by the announcement of unexpectedly favorable U.S. trade figures for March.

Tim Scala, Treasury manager of Manufacturers & Traders Trust Co., said the dollar rose to 126 Japanese yen and more than 1,800 West German marks just after the Washington announcement that the U.S. trade imbalance in March was reduced to $9.7 billion. Traders had expected a deficit of $12.6 billion.

Scala said the trading then eased to about 125.5 Japanese yen and 1,750 West German marks with similar gains against all other currencies.

The British pound was lower also because of the announcement in London that major British banks are cutting their prime rate from 8 percent to 7.5 percent effective Wednesday.

The London morning gold fixing was $452.85, off from Monday's close of $455.75.

In earlier trading in the Far East, gold closed at $453.35 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, off $0.40 from Monday's close.

In early trading on New York's Comex, a 100-troy-ounce gold futures contract for May delivery opened at $454.70, off $0.20 from Monday's close. A 5,000-troy-ounce silver futures contract opened at $6.500, off 0.083 cents an ounce.

March trade deficit plunges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Record exports of $29 billion sent the U.S. trade deficit for March plunging to $9.7 billion, the lowest trade gap since March 1985, the Commerce Department reported today.

March imports were up 3.6 percent to $38.7 billion, the highest since October 1987. The $29 billion in exports was up 23 percent from February, the department said.

At the current rate the U.S. trade deficit would fall to $144.03 billion by the end of the year, the department said.

The $9.7 billion trade deficit was the lowest since March 1985 when the gap shrank to $8.1 billion.

Analysts had generally forecast the deficit would shrink to about $12.5 billion. "We're predicting $12.5 billion, right in line with what everyone else is saying," said Cynthia Latta, senior financial economist with Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass.

cooperated with the homeowners.

The suit names Seminole County as a co-defendant because of a deed that states if the property "ceases to be used for the community's interest" ownership will revert back to the county.

Richard Coffey, a representative of Forest City Community Association, said he was aware of neighborhood complaints but said "I have never received a complaint that I didn't pursue to rectify or correct the situation."

Coffey said he has posted signs at the four-acre park in an effort to stop children from jumping fences to retrieve baseballs. He also says lights at the park have been adjusted to accommodate some of the neighbors and fences have been put up to alleviate other problems.

The suit states the ball park owners "could operate the ball park and free activity days in such a manner as to considerably alleviate the nuisance."

The plaintiffs suggest the ball park owners provide guards to prevent straying patrons, and maintenance crews to collect the trash.

Carolyn Freeman, attorney for the homeowners, said law enforcement agencies have not been able to assist the homeowners because the property is privately owned.

Coffey explained the property was deeded to the Forest City Community Association by the county for a small amount of money and was designated for public use.

Coffey said the facility is for the community's children. "I challenge them to join us and strive to make it better any way we can," he said of the disgruntled homeowners.

"Our facilities are totally for public use," Coffey said, referring to several organizations which have held events at the facility, adding, "We do want to be fair to the people around it."

Coffey, who was unaware that the suit had been filed, said the allegations were exaggerated and he welcomes the opportunity for the issue to be settled.

INF treaty goes to Senate today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assured that all last-minute U.S.-Soviet disputes were resolved, the Senate agreed to call the historic INF treaty to the floor today for an approval process that still could be finished before the Moscow summit.

Years in negotiation, stalled over snags in complex verification procedures and finally scorned by some within the party of the president who signed it, the treaty's path to ratification debate was cleared Monday night by Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

Byrd offered no guarantee the agreement could be approved by the necessary two-thirds Senate majority before President Reagan departs for his fourth meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev May 29 to June 2. But the Senate leader said he would strive to conclude the process with an eye on the clock.

Supporters of the Intermediate Nuclear Forces accord say there is no doubt it will gain Senate approval, but it could be slowed by action on the fiscal 1989 defense bill, an override attempt on an expected Reagan veto of trade reform legislation or the treaty-stifling tactics of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Helms and a handful of other arch-conservatives are upset with the treaty's unprecedented verification measures, which include allowing Soviet inspectors at American missile sites and vice versa to guard against cheating.

The treaty is the first to call for the destruction of an entire class of ground-based nuclear missiles with a range of 300 to 3,400 miles, most of them stationed in Europe, but it places new emphasis on NATO conventional forces, which are at a numerical disadvantage to Warsaw Pact forces in several areas.

Byrd announced the start of debate after hearing from the chairmen and senior Republicans on the Senate Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Intelligence committees. They were briefed earlier Monday by Secretary of State George Shultz about negotiations in Geneva last week to resolve last-minute disputes, mostly dealing with verification, that had threatened the entire process.

Byrd said the committee leaders had sent him letters saying "the matters in question ... which brought about the delay have now been resolved to their satisfaction." Asked if the summit deadline could be met, he replied, "That depends on the amount of debate and, particularly, on the amendments. "I am in no position to say we can finish or to say we cannot finish. I hope that we can finish, but there are no assurances," he said.

Sens. Sam Nunn of Georgia and John Warner of Virginia, the Armed Services Committee's Democratic chairman and top Republican, agreed with Intelligence Committee Chairman David Boren, D-Okla., in applauding the Geneva negotiations between Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

"I'm satisfied," Nunn said. "I believe they have done a good job ... They've come back with a good solution."

He and Warner warned, however, that they will offer an amendment dealing with future weapons systems even though Shultz and Shevardnadze signed an agreement on the subject that carries the same "force and effect" as the treaty.

The amendment would require formal Soviet approval of the agreement that the treaty bans any future weapons aboard the type and range of missiles being dismantled under the pact.

Nunn said he also will offer an amendment binding future presidents to the interpretation of the treaty.

● That he pressured former City Administrator Ron Waller to suspend Manning without pay.

● That he tried to pass an ordinance so that the city attorney could investigate Manning.

● That he hired a consultant, Jeff Etchberger, who wasn't a CPA, but whose first duty was to audit the Police Benevolent Fund.

● That he has made public statements that he will never agree to Manning's being cleared.

The petitions allege both Gunter and Dennis "participated in a telephone poll with Acting City Administrator Terry" and that they "agreed to discharge the city administrator selection committee without a public hearing."

Allegations also listed on Dennis's recall petition are:

● That she proposed hiring the management consultant

● That she was mute when I&P Financial, Inc. (the firm the city contracted with for Etchberger's services to do a citywide management study) was approved as a sole source, rather than using competitive bidding.

● That she was mute when I&P Financial, Inc. began work prior to the budget transfer.

● That she was mute when an ordinance was proposed and passed to cover I&P Financial, Inc. contract.

● That she approved hiring of an acting police chief without a budget transfer.

● That she directed Etchberger to do an audit of the Police Benevolent Fund when he wasn't a CPA and was her brother-in-law.

Gunter, in a statement read at the beginning of Monday night's commission meeting, said, "despite the efforts of a small minority of people, this commission will continue to operate in a manner that is consistent with the principles of honesty, integrity and openness. I, for one, cannot—and will not—be intimidated by those who seek revenge for their own narrow purposes. have no intentions of hiding from the issues or covering up the truth."

Gunter said that "when accusations of wrongdoing are made, those accusations will be investigated. When the new city administrator is on board full time, there are matters that he will be asked to look into and take action that is appropriate. I appreciate that there are matters that some would just as soon not be made public. However, we live in a democracy where those in government are held accountable. Those who elected me have my assurances that I will continue to perform in an honest, open manner."

Dennis said, "It is somewhat disappointing when you try to serve your community and do what you feel is right to have a group come at you so strong. The people voted us in and they can vote us out." She said a recall election would be a waste of money since both she and Gunter are up for election in November, should they choose to run for a second term.

Although the other three commissioners also voted for the actions and ordinances which Gunter and Dennis are criticized, by law they have not been in office long enough to be subject to recall.

"We don't see any way to avoid it," said Faison.

● A review of the Goals and Objectives for city departments, a prelude to the city budget, was presented by City Manager Frank A. Faison with little discussion.

● The commission decided to discuss appointments and re-appointments to the Code Enforcement Board and Planning & Zoning Commission at its May 23 meeting.

Dave Knickerbocker, Republican candidate for commission District 1, said the smaller constituent base might even encourage fewer people to vote for their district commissioner. Knickerbocker said he neither favors or disfavors single-member districting.

Pat McEwan, Republican District 1 candidate, said more people would be encouraged to vote because their vote would count more toward reelecting a commissioner or replacing one.

Other candidates attending the forum District 3 candidates Warren Kemer, a Democrat, and Bob Webster, a Republican, who both favor single-member districts.

Amos Jones, a District 5 Democratic commission candidate, said he favors single-member districts, as did Robert Gott, Democratic candidate for Seminole County Property Appraiser, and Patrick Wilson, Democratic candidate for county sheriff.

Gott and Wilson said although single-member districts would not affect the election for other county offices, such as the ones they are seeking, they believe district residents should be able to directly decide who represents them.

Sanford Herald, Sanford, Fla. Tuesday, May 17, 1988-1B

She has no respect to pay brother, dead or alive

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle an argument between my husband and me? Recently my mother's brother died. He and my mother had a falling out seven years ago, and they had not spoken to each other since.

My mother chose not to go to her brother's funeral. My husband said she should have gone and paid her last respects. My mother said, "I'm no hypocrite. We didn't respect each other while he was living, why should I pay my respects when he's dead?"

My husband thinks my mother was wrong. I think she was right. What do you think?

DYING TO KNOW

DEAR DYING: Funerals are for the living. The deceased will not know who was there and who wasn't—but the grieving family members will. I think your mother's presence at her brother's funeral would have comforted the family—after all, they were brother and sister. Had she attended his funeral and buried her grievances, it might have made her feel better.

DEAR ABBY: Please help us thank all the wonderful people who were kind enough to send letters, Valentines and Easter greetings to us aboard the USS Tower. More than 30,000 Dear Abby readers flooded our ship with messages of love and gratitude—some sent candy and cookies. Our lone postal clerk went bananas!

Morale is certainly high out here, many crew members are corresponding with those who wrote. However, some letters were separated from their envelopes, and others had no return addresses. Even if they were intact, there is no way a crew of this size could answer each writer individually but we want to thank everyone who wrote.

Each one of us is proud to be an American, proud to serve in the military, and proud to know that we are defending so many caring and loving people.

MIKE CERVI FOR THE CREW OF THE USS TOWER

DEAR MIKE: I appreciate the explanation. Some disappointed readers wrote to say that they had written per my suggestion, but received no feedback. I was assured by the military that if one ship had more mail than it could handle, the overflow would be transferred to another ship. Dear Abby readers don't care where their letters land—as long as they're read.

DEAR ABBY: I was very much impressed with your efforts to cheer up American troops who are far from home in the service of their country. And judging from the letters you received from grateful servicemen, it was a great morale booster. However, being a serviceman myself (Army), I was disappointed to see the U.S. Navy get all the attention. I am stationed in Korea in the DMZ (Demilitarized Zone), and there are Air Force and Marine troops over here, too, you know. We are stranded up here for a year at a time guarding against North Korean troops trying to infiltrate. So, please, Abby, give us a break and direct a little mail our way.

J. YARGO (DMZ, KOREA)

DEAR J. YARGO: Here's your letter, and don't say I didn't warn you. Just wait until this hits print.

Readers, how about cheering up our men and women in the Army, Air Force and Marines? Write to: Operation Dear Abby-DMZ, c/o Commanding Officer, CO C 122 Signal BN, Camp Casey, Korea 96224-0346.

DEAR ABBY: Just when I thought I had heard or seen most things in life, I now realize I had not.

My husband has to travel frequently on out-of-city and state business trips. He has a business associate I will refer to as "Flint" (as in "akinfint"). My husband asked Flint why he always carries two and sometimes three large suitcases on these trips of three or four days. Are you ready? Flint's wife packs all his dirty shirts and suits, and he has them laundered, cleaned, and billed on the hotel costs for which he is then reimbursed. Flint said he's even had the drapes and curtains done this way.

What do you think, Abby? STAGGERED IN L.A.

DEAR STAGGERED: Shame on "Flint" for taking everything to the cleaners—including his boss.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Steel production activates growth

By Rich Exner

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Monthly production in the domestic steel industry has reached its highest level since May 1984, triggering surges in related businesses such as Great Lakes shipping.

The Oglebay Norton Co. for example, reported that 10 of its 13 self-unloading vessels were in use at the beginning of the shipping season, compared with just seven in April 1987.

And the Lake Carriers' Association in Cleveland said 61 vessels will be in service on the Great Lakes by the end of May, compared with 50 one year ago and a high of 59 for 1987.

U.S. production reached 8.76 million tons of raw steel in March, up from 7.94 million tons in February and 8.3 million tons in January, according to statistics from the American Iron and Steel Institute in Washington.

Production reached 9 million tons for a few months in 1984, but prior to that the industry suffered a downturn dating back to the 10-million-ton production months of 1981.

Lake Carriers' executives attributed a significant part of its increased activity to stone cargo for the construction industry, but Great Lakes shipping is dependent mostly on iron ore shipments for the steel industry.

"Last year in September we brought out two big (filled) vessels to move iron ore," Lake Carriers' spokesman Glen Nekvasil said. "You can honestly say that there is only one vessel left out of operation that could work the iron ore trade."

Jack Yewell, a spokesman for Oglebay Norton in Cleveland, also said his company began to benefit from a renewed demand in materials for the steel industry late in 1987.

"We really noticed a pickup in the fourth quarter of last year, which forced us to sail the fleet longer and operate our iron ore pelletizing plants in Minnesota right through the end of the year," Yewell said.

The domestic steel industry operated at 90.1 percent of capacity in the first quarter of 1988 and reached 95.5 percent the week ending April 30, the Steel Institute said.

But while percentage of capacity was up, production significantly trails that of 1979 when capacity was 155 million tons of raw steel. Today's capacity is just 112 million tons, said Sheldon Wesson, spokesman for the Steel Institute.

"Things have been very difficult for the past five or six years. The industry lost money ($12 billion) consistently from 1982 to 1986; so things were pretty grim," Wesson said. "Although they (the current statistics) are not by any means to be compared with the 1979 boom or the 1973 boom, considering the reduced size of the industry, things are more constructive looking."

USX Corp., the nation's largest steelmaker, has cut its capacity from 31 million tons in 1983 to 19 million tons currently, and is now operating near capacity.

"The market is pretty good. The demand is strong," said Ernie Glenn, a USX spokesman in Pittsburgh. "We have no plans to take anymore capacity out but, as the years go on, nobody can really say."

Some 89.2 million tons of raw steel were produced domestically in 1987, and predictions call for more than 90 million tons this year, Wesson said. In 1979, 137 million tons were produced.

"The principal factor in the whole equation is the tremendous effort the whole industry has made to decrease production costs. The overall costs have come down by a third in less than 10 years — lower labor costs, lower energy costs and lower material costs," Wesson said.

Poll shows future bright for workers

NEW YORK (UPI) — A quarter of the nation's small businesses that responded to a survey for release Monday plan to hire workers in the next six months, and half of the New England companies reported at least one job opening.

The National Federation of Independent Business, based in San Mateo, Calif., showed a generally favorable outlook in its quarterly economic survey on small business optimism. The NFIB has more than 500 member companies, which employ about half of the nation's private non-farm work force.

Twenty-one percent of the 1,936 survey respondents said now is a good time to expand, compared with 13 percent last quarter.

The NFIB said 60 percent expected an improvement in real sales, up 18 percentage points, and only 14 percent expected the economy to deteriorate, down 3 points.

Seasonally adjusted, the group's Small Business Optimism Index edged up to 102.4 in April from 101.8 in January.

On average, small businesses reduced employment by .06 workers per company in the first quarter.

"It was the strongest first quarter hiring performance (seasonally adjusted) since 1984," the report said. "Firms apparently retained many employees from the fourth quarter and continued to increase employment, offsetting typical seasonal declines."

The weak dollar improved the outlook for manufacturers, which hired an average of 0.7 workers per company, showing the strongest employment gains in the first quarter compared with other sectors.

Overall, plans to add to the work force were the strongest since 1978 when 26 percent of all respondents said they planned to increase employment.

Of the 25 percent that plan to hire workers in the next three to six months, manufacturers took the lead with 33 percent.

Job openings were heaviest in manufacturing and services, with 29 percent in each sector reporting openings. Construction followed with 27 percent.

"In New England, a stunning 50 percent of all firms have at least one job opening, up from 42 percent in January," the report said.

Although the outlook for the economy continued to improve, small business have become "decidedly less optimistic about future expansion each April, with 67 percent expecting growth in 1988 compared to 22 percent in 1988."

This reflects a belief that the expansion cannot be sustained, the report said.

"Apparently many believe that the law of gravity applies to economic statistics as well as to people."

Dick and Terry Monnich, owners of Metro Hobby, Longwood, have added model dollhouse kits to the many items they offer for hobbyists.

Metro Hobby moves to larger quarters

Metro Hobby, a serious full-service hobby shop, is now located at 348 N. Highway 17-92 in Longwood Plaza. "Thanks to our customers, our business has grown and our facilities have doubled in size," owners Terry and Dick Monnich said.

"The friendliest hobby shop in Seminole county," Metro Hobby also has reasonable prices. The Monnichs opened their store in August, 1987, and moved across the highway to the new quarters in March. They no longer just carry trains, cars, boats, helicopters, planes and model engines — "toys for the big boys that can afford them" and simpler less expensive ones for the younger ones. They have added miniature dollhouse kits in several styles and handmade accessories for the big and little girls. They will soon be adding collectible dolls.

The have a large selection of miniature furnishings, electrical fixtures, draperies, wooden shingles and cabinetry to take care of the smallest detail for your house.

They display work modelers have made and four times a year they hold a contest where the plastic model builders compete for certificates and trophies.

"We want to bring back togetherness," said Terry. "We have lots of projects fathers and sons can work on together. Three schools are working with us to let us know what students will be needing for projects."

Metro Hobby has everything for the U-Control hobbyist. Special orders don't bother them, they will order anything you need that isn't in stock.

Hours are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Call 830-1303.

Blair Insurance Agency insures home or vehicle

Blair Insurance Agency, known for many years for home-owner's insurance, as well as dependable auto coverage, can now type and issue home-owners' insurance policies on the spot in the office.

Home owners' policies are available immediately at Blair, which is a definite advantage if you are a mortgagee and need a policy for closing to meet the requirements of the lender.

Blair offers a three-year price-protected policy with an A-rated company. They even insure frame houses up to 50 years old as well as mobile homes, motorcycles and reefs.

Blair Insurance Agency, located at 2510A Oak Ave., has been serving Sanford for 27 years.

They regard their clients as "family." They are not just numbers to Steve Blair, office manager, or his mother, Genie Blair, owner and founder of the agency.

With several different companies from which to draw, the Blair Agency is able to shop around for the best deals tailored to the needs of their customers, Steve said.

Genie founded the agency and remains actively involved in all aspects of its operation. Considered an expert in the insurance field, early in her career she was for a time the only woman licensed in both real estate and insurance in the state.

The Blair Agency sells personal injury protection insurance, but recommends liability insurance as well. PIP, as it is commonly called, is cheaper insurance, but is "self-centered" protection which provides nothing for your fellow man," according to Steve.

Liability, which he said provides better coverage for all concerned in an accident situation, is made more affordable at Blair Agency.

Steve said he also specializes in helping drivers who have trouble getting insurance due to too many tickets or accidents.

But drivers with tough records aren't the only ones who benefit from Blair Agency services. Drivers with clean records will also like the services and savings they get at Blair Agency.

They will like dealing with the Blair Agency staff, which is trained and educated to give clients the best of service. Because Blair isn't a high volume agency, Steve says, it treats each customer in a special way.

"If I service my accounts honestly and properly, I don't have to worry about money. Being honest is my profit in the community. You're not going to find anybody more honest."

Blair Agency is open Monday through Friday at the corner of S. Park Avenue and Oak Avenue, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Call Blair and compare prices at 323-7710 or 323-3866.

Boeing order is largest ever

SEATTLE (UPI) — International Lease Finance Corp., waving off recent reports of sagging quality control at the Boeing Co., Monday ordered 100 Boeing jets and 30 more planes from Airbus Industrie in a record deal valued at more than $5.04 billion.

The value of the agreement — the largest dollar amount ever for a commercial plane order — does not include options to purchase an additional 24 Boeing and 16 Airbus jetliners.

Boeing's share of the order, including options, is valued at $4.6 billion. The value of firm Airbus orders is $1.35 billion.

The International Lease order beats the previous record set in 1986 by a British Airways order for 16 Boeing 747s and options for a dozen more, valued at $4.1 billion.

The first deliveries to International Lease are scheduled to begin in April 1989 and continue through 1995.

The order ensures a continued "high plateau" of Boeing production that will benefit the state's economy through the mid-1990s, said William Whitlow, an analyst of Boeing and other Northwest stocks at Dain Bosworth Inc. in Seattle.

He said the order should minimize any harm to Boeing from recent doubts about quality control of Boeing airplanes, exacerbated by the April 28 Aloha Air incident in which a portion of a Boeing 737's fuselage ripped off in mid-air over Hawaii, killing a flight attendant and injuring 61 passengers.

"I think the size of the order and the fact that International Lease ordered all models of Boeing planes indicates that at least International Lease Finance has confidence in Boeing planes and that, in turn, so do their customers," Whitlow said.

Steven Udvar-Hazy, president of International Leasing, said the "large purchase certainly demonstrates our faith in Boeing's quality and reliability."

"Our leasees' enthusiasm for Boeing airplanes, the support we have received from the company, the growing worldwide market and airline demand for operating leases have convinced us to enlarge our Boeing portfolio into the 1990s," Udvar-Hazy said.

The Boeing 737 remains by far the world's most popular passenger jet.

"The 737 remains a very economical plane for airlines, either to lease or buy," said Steve Binder, an aerospace analyst for Bear Stearns & Co. Inc., in New York. "The plane is still a homerun product for Boeing."

Binder called the Airbus showing "respectable," adding that "Boeing continues to dominate the industry."

He said the big loser appeared to be McDonnell Douglas, which once was rumored to be in the running for a portion of the order. Binder speculated that the McDonnell-Douglas failure could draw a shroud over the sales potential of the company's MD-80 aircraft.

International Leasing, founded in 1973, provides commercial aircraft to more than 70 airlines around the world. The new order will more than triple its current jet portfolio worth, estimated at $2 billion.

The company agreed to purchase 78 737s, including 10 737-500s, 12 737-400s, 50 737-300s and six 737-300s, which were purchased earlier but not announced. All three versions of the new-generation series of 737 are represented in the order.

Japanese have dry beer battle

By STEWART BLAVIN

TOKYO (UPI) — Actor Gene Hackman, looking suave and breezy in a black turtleneck sweater, raises a glass of amber fluid to the Japanese television audience and says with a smirk, "I'm so happy I could cry. Dry, dry."

In another 15-second television spot for a competing brewery, world heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson beats a punching bag while declaiming: "I like Suntory Dry. Ha!" with a menacing look and right jab for punctuation.

Throughout Japan, the faces of these two Americans peer from billboards, department store displays, mobile advertising trucks and liquor shops, luring the fad-conscious public to try the latest Japanese novelty — dry beer.

Along the glittering Ginza in Tokyo, free samples of the smooth but potent brew are readily offered in department stores. Buy a six-pack and get two souvenir glasses free.

Hackman and Tyson are just two front men in the biggest beer war in Japanese history, which has seen the nation's four breweries spend more than $100 million in advertising for a product that may never see the light of day outside Japan.

So what is dry beer?

Put simply, the beer has a milder taste and higher alcoholic content than lager and draft varieties. It has 5 percent alcohol versus the 4.5 percent of other types of beer sold in Japan.

Brewmasters say the combination is achieved with a special yeast and a longer fermentation process that lessens the sweetness found in regular lagers.

"Suntory regards dry beer as a man's beer," says Kazumari Yoshizawa of Suntory Ltd., a company known for its whisky and which only entered the beer market in 1983.

"In order to implant that image in drinkers, we wanted to use someone in our advertising who creates the impression of strength, manliness and competitiveness."

Along with paying Tyson sky-high fees for his ads, Suntory also uses Australian Mark "Jacko" Jackson, a former Victorian Rules football player who has gained popularity in the United States with battery commercials and a role in a television series.

Kirin Brewery Co. Ltd., the nation's largest beer maker, selected Hackman to project an image of "manly sophistication" in its dry beer campaign.

The two brewers said they opted for foreign personalities because Japanese stars such as sumo wrestlers or baseball players might steal the show.

"If they are too well known, then their character might come out rather than the product itself," said Suntory's Yoshizawa. "That has happened in the past many times."

Check medication during pregnancy

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter-in-law takes Synthroid (0.15) and took it during her pregnancy. Just the other day she saw a movie about a woman who took this medication while she was pregnant. Her child was normal up to the time she was about 5 and then began to show signs of being retarded. Is this something we should watch for?

DEAR READER: The thyroid gland produces a hormone that is necessary for proper body functioning. In people who are thyroid-deficient, synthetic forms of the hormone, such as Synthroid, must be administered to make up for the lack of natural substance. Your daughter-in-law's dose of Synthroid seems appropriate; therefore, I do not believe that you have to worry about your grandchild. However, to be absolutely safe, any medication taken during pregnancy should first be approved by the woman's physician. In this case, your daughter-in-law should inform the pediatrician about what she took and is taking, how much and why. Under these circumstances, the baby doctor can then make an informed decision about how best to follow your grandchild's development.

DEAR DR. GOTT: One of the leading hair-coloring products contains lead acetate. Is there a biochemical explanation that would make lead acetate safe in this context? DEAR READER: I think that the only satisfactory biochemical explanation is that the lead acetate is bound by the hair-coloring solution in such a way that it cannot enter the body, providing the product is used as directed. Commercially available hair-coloring compounds have been judged safe by appropriate government agencies for the average person. Nevertheless, allergic patients can develop unexpected hypersensitivity reactions to components of hair-coloring substances, so use the product with caution for the first few applications.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You had a letter from a woman whose daughter was engaged to a cross-dresser. You might have suggested that they join a theater group — lots of opportunity to dress up and, if you play your cards right, some cross-dressing.

DEAR READER: OK — but

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

North tried out a new gadget today — cue-bidding the opponents' suit as a passed hand to demand that partner bid his better major. Poor South responded in no-trump and then finally realized partner must have length in both majors. So they got to four hearts.

North should have bid two spades over two clubs. If he could bid hearts later, fine. But he should not insist on game in a major when partner might not have a fit or even have a decent hand.

As to the play, did West pull a wrong card? After the club king, West continued with the diamond king, ducked by declarer. A second diamond was played. Declarer took the ace and played the heart ace, intending to play another. But on the ace of hearts West played the king. Can South be blamed for believing that East was left with J-9-7? Declarer now hoped that East started with four spades as well. So he ruffed a club, returned to his hand with the spade king and ruffed a diamond. If he could now play A-Q and ruff a spade, he could exit with either remaining minor card and simply discard a spade from dummy. East would have no choice but to ruff and lead back into dummy's Q-10 of hearts. Of course West ruffed the second spade with the heart nine, and his partner took the setting trick with the trump jack. If West plays low on the ace of hearts, declarer will play another heart, and the king will come up. Declarer will then make the contract by ruffing one spade before drawing the third round of hearts.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
MAY 18, 1988

You will develop several new interests in the year ahead that will expand your horizons socially as well as in the commercial world. Each will produce its own type of benefits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you take time to think things through, but today, you may rush to judgment and arrive at conclusions that are neither practical nor helpful. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't put yourself in a financial position where your lifestyle is governed by excessive obligations. Live within your means.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things that are of critical importance to you today might not be considered top priorities by your companions or associates. Operate independently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's important that you keep pace with your duties and responsibilities at this time. If you start letting things pile up, you'll have a mess on your hands later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't let dissenting factions within your peer group draw you into their petty politics today. Whatever side you take could turn out to be the wrong one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to be successful today, your objective must be clearly defined, and you must have the fortitude to regroup your forces if you suffer initial setbacks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, you may waste a lot of valuable time and emotional energy rehashing a problem instead of seeking a feasible solution. Focus on results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) Someone to whom you are indebted in some manner is beginning to lose patience with you because you have not cleared up this obligation. Do it today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) People with whom you have dealings today could lose respect for you if you are too indecisive or wishy-washy. Take a firm position and proceed from there.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This will not be a very productive day for you if you postpone tasks you should attend to early in the day. Don't drag your feet.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't try to impress acquaintances with liberal spending today. All it will gain you is a thinner wallet, because no one will really take notice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Unless you are very methodical and disciplined today, you are not likely to complete assignments or projects you begin. Be consistent and persistent.
