FALLEN BUILDING YIELDS ONE OF 105 VICTIMS

Grim-faced rescue workers are shown removing a limp body from the wreckage of a cafe building that collapsed at Phenix City, Ala., killing or injuring at least 105 persons. Twenty-four hours after the tragedy, the rescue workers, still toiling, had recovered 22 dead and 83 injured.

A Lesson in Zoology—For Drivers

A car is like a cat, according to a new highway safety booklet entitled "Death Begins at 40" recently issued by The Travelers Insurance Company.

It is quiet, except for a low and pleasing purr. Its padded tires are like padded feet. It has powerful eyes that shine at night. And when it is allowed to run wild, it gives an awful screech at the moment before it does its victim to death.

At 25 miles an hour, it is like a pussy-cat. It may scratch you up in an accident, but it isn't likely to kill you. Few fatal accidents, it has been found from official reports, occur at low speeds.

At 50 miles an hour, it is not twice but four times as powerful. Like a bobcat, it is quite able to inflict great damage.

And at 75 miles an hour it is not three times but nine times as powerful as at 25. It is nine times as hard to stop, nine times as hard to turn, nine times as deadly.

Thinking of speed in these terms will help you to keep a lighter toe on the accelerator.

Pheasant Solid Outdoor Citizen

By "DING" DARLING
The "ring-neck" or Chinese pheasant is an alien, they say, "introduced" into this country to take the place of the vanishing native species and make up to the sportsmen for some of the waning carelessness which had cut down to a minimum his days in the field with gun and dog. The pheasant came here in 1881, to Oregon, and is sufficiently well established up and down the country so that it is no longer to be regarded as a stranger, though to the old timers the pheasant is still a foreigner.

About 1915 it got a start on the eastern seaboard and now there are pheasants everywhere in the United States where they can make a living for themselves and are not too much molested, and are not too much molested, and are not too much molested.

Pheasants are easily reared on game farms, and they more than pay their way by their consumption of weeds and bugs. To those who do not resent his supplanting of every native game bird, there is nothing outdoors more handsome than a male ring-neck. He is a worthy target, a generous and toothsome portion for the table.

The ring-neck pheasant is a bird of the farmyards and a good argument for game and cover management on the farm. One of the greatest spots for pheasant in Lake Erie, about miles long and about two or three miles wide where all of the taxes are paid each year by two collectors from outside pheasant hunters.

South Dakota has twice what its pheasant population should be to the pheasant, and why it has been reduced to a scarcity, that threatened closed season for recovery. Other states have had fair success and some states which have abundant available game have had a total failure in their pheasant program.

From all points of view the pheasant position about the game amount of management is not other game birds and it is in some ways a valuable and steady source in the game program.

LOS ANGELES, Apr. 25.—(AP)—Plans are now complete for the seventh Little International Livestock and Poultry Show and Rodeo to be staged in the University of Florida football stadium on Saturday, Apr. 30, by the Black and White Club of the University's College of Agriculture.

For the first time since it was inaugurated several years ago, the show and rodeo will be staged in the University's football stadium, Heratofa, it has been held on a field near the college cattle barns and pens, but because of steadily increasing attendance and lack of seating accommodations for the crowds, the club decided this year to stage the event in the stadium.

Features of the show will include exhibition of 14 classes of beef and dairy cattle, three classes of hogs, one class of sheep, poultry, and eggs. In addition to these and for the first time since the show was established as an annual event, educational exhibits by College of Agriculture and State Experiment Station workers on livestock and dairying will be shown. Rodeo features will include a barrel race, whip cracking exhibitions, roping, steer riding, and bronco busting.

2 Americans Freed On Kidnap Charges
NASSAU, Bahamas, Apr. 25.—(AP)—Forrester Scott, Philadelphia lawyer, and Stanley Boynton, an aviator, were acquitted by a directed verdict today of charges of attempting kidnaping.

The Americans had been accused of attempting on Mar. 16, to abduct Scott's two young daughters, Eve and Zoe, and fly them back to the United States.

The girls had been brought here by Scott's former wife, now Mrs. Harry Clark Boden.

In directing the acquittal the chief justice ruled that under British law Mrs. Boden's divorce from Scott was invalid, therefore she still was Scott's wife and her evidence against him was inadmissible.

"He said the 'base of this case' was thus destroyed.

Sholtz Pledges Aid To Farmers In His Campaign

JACKSONVILLE, April 26.—Declaring that Florida needed a man of sound business and governmental experience, Dave Sholtz, this week vigorously continued his campaign for nomination to the United States Senate.

The former governor said that as senator he would work industriously for more federal money for road improvement, for more payrolls in Florida, for new developments and for less governmental interference with private enterprise.

He declared that he could not guarantee remuneration for losses sustained by the citrus growers from the Mediterranean fruit fly but pledged he would do everything in his power to repay the growers. "At least," he said, "you'll find out whether you will ever be reimbursed. That's more than anybody else has been able to do."

Ample tariffs and favorable treaties were promised vegetable and cane growers while tobacco and cotton men were told that Sholtz would work to see that Florida farmers got fair treatment in crop quotas.

Marketing Agreement For Potatoes Is Now Under Consideration

GAINESVILLE, Apr. 25.—(AP)—A potato marketing agreement program for early and intermediate states is now being considered by the industry, says A. P. Spencer, vice-director of the State Agricultural Extension Service. A referendum on an emergency agreement for this year's crop will be held in Escambia and Santa Rosa counties of Florida and in other states between April 22 and 27.

Horizons on an agreement which will cover next year's crop were held at West Palm Beach April 18 and Polkita April 19. The plan will be submitted to handlers for signature and a grower referendum will be held early in May, if the Secretary of Agriculture tentatively approves the proposed agreement, Mr. Spencer says.

The emergency agreement for this year, applicable in Florida only in Escambia and Santa Rosa counties, would establish shipping limitations on poorer grades and smaller potatoes and eliminate cut in from interstate shipment. Federal-state inspection of interstate shipments would be required.

At the same time the grower referendum was being taken, the agreement was submitted to handlers for signature.

Singapore was purchased by Great Britain in 1824.

Does money burn a hole in your pocket?

"Honestly, I don't know where the money goes. It's spent, but what I spent it for is more than I can say!"

Are these your sentiments too? Take two quick hints from those who have learned to spend wisely and well:

- (1) Budget.
- (2) Read the advertisements.

Keep a strict, accurate account of every dollar. You spend it on food, for rent, for clothes, for amusement. Write it down. And stick to the budget!

THE LOVE THAT WILT NOT LET ME GO

O love, that wilt not let me go, I'll give thee back the life I owe, that in thine ocean depths its flow may richer, fuller be...

Political Promise Fulfilled

The difference between the empty promises of professional politicians and the real performance of honest statesmanship is found in the history of the Wilcox Municipal Bankruptcy Act...

As city attorney for West Palm Beach in the early days following the boom when West Palm Beach, like Sanford, and numerous other Florida cities, was feeling most seriously the effects of over-indebtedness...

The bonds of a city are frequently held by thousands of individuals, and though it might be clearly impossible for the city ever to pay off its debts or even to meet the interest charges...

This condition Mr. Wilcox sought to remedy. He promised the people a remedy the first time he he campaigned for office. He had not been in the House of Representatives three months before he had introduced his bill...

Two years ago Mr. Wilcox saw his original law declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. The law was in conflict with the rights of individual states in this matter. It was a bitter blow to Mr. Wilcox...

But Mr. Wilcox did not sulk in his tent. He did not go about the country damning the Constitution, or belittling the Supreme Court. He did not advocate putting the judges in a straight jacket...

It was perhaps the hard way, but it was the American way. It was no easy task to write a Municipal Bankruptcy Act which would meet the exacting requirements of "states' rights"...

And on Monday, he was well rewarded for his pains. The high Court held that the amended act is constitutional. And the bankrupt cities and counties throughout the country will get the relief to which they are justly entitled...

Cancer in Youth

While efforts are being made to acquaint the public of the dangers of cancer and the importance of early treatment, it is interesting to note that this disease, contrary to the belief of many, attacks younger persons as well as old...

The figures also show that at least 400 persons under five years of age are cancer victims every year, while the total of 26,000 persons under the age of 50 who die each year of cancer is more than the number dying from this cause at the age of 75 or over...

Cancer ranks among the 10 leading causes of death at every age period beginning with the group 15 to 19 years, while among white males in the age after 45 years, mortality from cancer is greater than from any other cause except diseases of the heart...

"There is abundant evidence to show that the death toll from cancer would be reduced if an increasing number of cases were treated in the incipient stages," the insurance company states. "Among the forms of cancer which present the best promise of success in this direction are some of those that begin to take a serious death toll at relatively early ages, particularly cancer of the uterus and of the breast."

"Moreover, although we are still in the dark as regards the cause of cancer, it is undoubtedly true that a number of uterine cancers result from the lack of proper obstetrical care during and following childbirth. The cancer problem is so serious that we cannot afford to neglect any of its phases, least of all those where, with the means at present at our disposal, there is promise of reaping essential gains."

So, in seeking to reduce cancer fatalities through the use of early treatment, it is important to remember that children as well as older people should be observed closely.

Leesburg Comes From Behind To Win Over Lookouts, 4-3

Hit By McGowan In Ninth Scores Deciding Tally

McDaniels Fined And Lacy Ejected From Game By Al Harvin

VENETIAN GARDEN PARK, LEESBURG—The Sanford Lookouts fell victims last night to a last minute attack by the Leesburg Gonklers to be defeated by a score of 4 to 3 in one of the most exciting contests the Lookouts have played to date.

Joe Pinder, fiery fast ball pitcher, was on the hill for the Lookouts and gave up a total of 11 hits which he kept well scattered. Pinder performed well on the mound as he fanned four Gonklers. He pitched himself out of four bad positions and nearly worked out of another as the bases loaded the bases with no one out. He caused the next two men to go out. However, the next singled to left to score a pair of runs.

The Lookouts were again weak at the plate securing six hits off the deliveries of Al Hardy. Hardy pitched and he was taken out in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Hardy fanned one batter while Jo-Jo Marina, who replaced Hardy, fanned three.

Leading the hitting for the evening was Skinner McGowan who singled to short left in the ninth to score the winning run. The Lookouts had considerable trouble with the umpires last night. Manager Guy Lacy was ejected from the game in the fifth inning when he protested a decision by Ike Cowart. Lacy then protested another decision several minutes later and then argued with Umpire Harvin about a decision on a pitch. Harvin sent Lacy to the showers and Snowwhite Kirby finished the game on first base.

Punch McDaniels received a $5.00 fine from Umpire Harvin in the eighth inning when he protested a called last strike.

The Lookouts started the scoring in their half of the second when Hardy walked, Mihalic and Brown in order. Lacy flied out to center but Buck Rodgers singled to right to score Mihalic. Young grounded out to Leach but Brown scored. Pinder was hit by the pitcher but Ruggiero went out to end the inning.

Leesburg tallied their first run in the sixth frame when with two men out, Jack Howard singled to left field. Chet Clemmons singled to right to send Howard to second. Skinner McGowan singled to center to score Howard. Gobel grounded out to Addy to end the inning. The Lookouts gathered another in their half of the eighth when McDaniels singled to right and took second on an error by Howard. Addy sacrificed McDaniels to third and he scored when Mihalic singled to left field. Brown and Kirby went out to end the inning.

Clemmons started off the Leesburg half of the eighth when Clemmons was safe on an infield hit to Rodgers at short. McGowan walked and Gobel was safe when Rodgers dropped a play ball on second filling the bases. Paz, hitting for Hardy flied out to short center and Pinder fanned Gobel. Leach singled to left to score Clemmons and McGowan and Drews flew out to McDaniels to end the inning.

The Gonklers scored the winning run in the last of the ninth when Drews walked and went to second on a sacrifice by Howard. Both runners stole the next base and Clemmons hit to Ruggiero on

IN THE FIELD OF SPORTS

By JULIAN STENSTROM

One of the most dreaded things in the national game of baseball is what is commonly known as "Flying Steel". This is something that every player tries to avoid but it is something that can't be avoided as long as baseball is played.

First as we explain what "Flying Steel" means in plain language. When a player is prepared to swing at a ball he naturally does his best to be as ready and help and in the way, unless perhaps he sees that a collision with the defensive player might prove beneficial.

The runner says that the base is not likely guarded but he still has to slide and, of course, unintentional spikes, which are a constant of steel, may injure the defensive player. He may cut the player's leg, his knee, ankle and sometimes he may punt his back or hip. Upon several occasions we have seen and heard of a player striking another in the face or chest.

The greatest question that arises when a player is cut by "Flying Steel" is whether it was intentional or unintentional. We will say without any doubt in our minds that we have seen players who spiked purposely. Possibly the two players dislike each other and possibly because the other had unintentionally spiked him first.

Here in Sanford, the Lookouts had a cut by Joe Bistruff, whom many of the fans remember. He was spiked at least 10 times during the season by men sliding into home plate, sometimes intentionally and otherwise.

Of the many spiking cases that we have seen, the case Sunday in Orlando when Pete Schiro spiked Don Gomboras has been the oddest and yet the most sportsman like we have ever seen.

Gomboras received a special delivery letter from Schiro in Orlando. Read what Schiro says: "Hello John how's your arm? Fine I hope. I'm awfully sorry Johnny, but the manager told me to slide and if I hadn't he would have fished you."

You caught a nice game Sunday and sure looked good. Did the doctor sew up the cut or wasn't it that bad. I hope when I hear from you your

Win Over Orlando Gives Saints 1st Place In League

FINKER FIELD, ORLANDO—The St. Augustine Saints climbed back into the Florida State League lead last night as they carried off a 6 to 0 victory over the Orlando Saints in a game played at Finker Field.

De-Sterilization Expands Base of Nation's Credit Money Problem Is Cause of Transfer of Reserves

By MORGAN BEATTY
WASHINGTON — De-sterilization of gold has become a fact. It has enabled the federal reserve banks to pluck down a $1,400,000,000 roll at the cashiers' windows, all ready and waiting for reliable borrowers—if they want it.

Maybe you have wondered, as I did, whether that was a sort of delight of hand trick, to produce nearly a billion and a half dollars where none was apparent before.

Fact is, sterilization and de-sterilization of gold is a trick. It's a gadget invented by the U. S. treasury and federal reserve system to meet some of the strange new money problems created by the 1929 depression.

That depression forced all nations of the world—including America—off the gold standard.

But gold standard or no gold standard, America still seemed the richest place in the world for money. A steady flow of money to America forced additional gold deposits into American vaults. And every bit of gold currency that arrived from abroad went into the U. S. treasury because the law says no private individual may own gold in America. Result: the treasury today has $12,000,000,000 worth—half the world's supply.

As gold arrived, the treasury sold for it by issuing currency. Each dollar's worth was good for a dollar bill. The bill, deposited in a federal reserve bank, became the base for added credit. For by law and custom banks may lend two, 10 or even 20 times their original deposits.

In other words, a million dollars in bank deposits might be the base for 20 millions in loans. The availability of all that credit was fine while the depression was deep. But recovery set in. Demand for loans picked up.

The treasury got worried. What would happen, it wondered, if all that foreign gold should be withdrawn suddenly and all those loans had to be repaid at once? Wouldn't there be a panic?

To the experts sought a way to keep additional gold from becoming the basis for additional credit. Sterilization was applied as the answer.

Thereafter, when foreign gold arrived at the treasury, no new currency was issued to pay for it. Instead, for $100 worth of gold, the treasury issued a $100 bond. The money went back to the bank just as currency would, but ordinarily it did not become the basis for credit.

In a couple of years, the treasury had issued $1,400,000,000 of these bonds against "sterilized" gold. The credit base had not increased.

All this was happening during 1935, 1936 and 1937 when banks were putting out more loans, businessmen were borrowing and business looked like a boom.

Then came the recession. Borrowing dropped off. Business faltered.

When it had lasted until April, 1938, the administration thought it would be a good idea to let the business to borrow.

That is, de-sterilization.

To do so, the treasury took back the gold bonds it had put in the treasury and issued currency in their stead. That currency, unlike the sterilized gold, was available to banks to find themselves with a loanable credit on hand.

What is that they will be very loath to lend this money because it will be so much money available to borrowers.

That is all works out reasonably well. The treasury can issue the money that business can borrow.

If the business should get to be good, the money will be available to them as well as to banks.

That is all works out reasonably well. The treasury can issue the money that business can borrow.

The photograph shows a large, multi-story stone building with a prominent gabled roof. The building appears to be made of rough-hewn stone or brick. In the foreground, there are some trees and a flag on a pole. The overall scene suggests a mountainous or alpine setting.

When You're ROLLING ALONG Think About ROLLING OVER!

An interesting pictorial conception of speed is offered by The Travelers Insurance Company in its latest highway safety booklet titled "Death Begins at 40." Speed is pictured in terms of "rollability."

For instance, at 25 miles an hour, a moving car has developed about enough energy to roll over once. Your body probably could take this.

At 50 miles an hour, however, a moving car has developed not twice, but four times the energy—enough to roll over four times.

You'd have to be lucky to come out of this one alive. And at 75 miles per hour, the car has developed not three times, but nine times the energy—enough to roll over nine times. Of course, it probably would hit a tree or a culvert long before it did its ninth somersault and then the unused portion of energy would be spent in ripping the culvert, the car, and its occupants to pieces.

The moral: When you are rolling along at a pretty fast clip, think what would happen if you should roll over.

Work-Week Declines

Prepared by the National Association of Manufacturers
IMPROVED machines and methods in manufacturing industry have made possible a steady decline in hours of work, a recent study shows. With the average work week at the turn of the century around 66 hours, working hours have shown a gradual decrease until today they stand around 48 per week. At the same time increased scientific and technical skill has made possible a steady increase in manufacturing wages and a huge increase in the production of goods and services used by the American people.

Does money burn a hole in your pocket?

"Honestly, I don't know where the money goes. It's spent, but what I spent it for is more than I can say!"

Are these your sentiments too?
Take two quick hints from those who have learned to spend wisely and well:
(1) Budget.
(2) Read the advertisements.

Keep a strict accurate account of every dollar. You need it for food, for rent, for clothes, for amusement. Write it down. And stick to the budget!

The second hint is a favorite plan of thrifty buyers. Read every one of the advertisements that come before you. Find out in advance what you want, what you need, where you can get it, and how much it will cost. The advertisements give you the best plan for solving your money problems.

Write it down. And stick to the budget!
