U.S. seeks Vietnam's help

WASHINGTON — Senior U.S. officials said the goals of the United States are to stop the fighting in Cambodia and achieve a new government through elections.

The decision to seek Vietnam's help in settling the civil war stems partly from international and congressional pressure over a policy that many charged inadvertently supported the Khmer Rouge.

Acting troupe hit with citation

ASHLAND — The owners of a bed-and-breakfast inn across the street from the outdoor Elizabethan Theater say the noise from a recent performance of "Comedy of Errors" is no laughing matter.

Phil and Sharon Thornalen have filed a lawsuit against the Oregon Shakespeare Festival concerning the noise generated by its renowned theater productions.

Suit alleges body switch

JACKSONVILLE — The body wore their father's clothing, their father's jewelry and rested in their father's casket.

Only one problem: It wasn't their father. Now brothers James and George Stafford have filed suit against Hardage-Goldens Funeral Home, seeking unspecified damages for emotional distress and mental suffering in the alleged mix up last April.

When the viewing of the body was scheduled, James Stafford showed up early at the funeral home to make sure everything was in order.

The body in the casket was indeed wearing his father's navy blue sports jacket, light blue trousers, white shirt and blue-striped tie. He was also wearing William Stafford's gold wedding band and gold, S-shaped tie tack with chain.

He looked at the man's face and saw a stranger. Representatives of the funeral home have declined to discuss the case, but filed a motion to dismiss the case earlier this month. A hearing is scheduled Sept. 7.

Emergency prompts Seminole pharmacists to pull Cal-Ban

From staff and wire reports

TALLAHASSEE — State health officials issued an emergency order Wednesday banning sales of Cal-Ban products after the diet aid was implicated in the death of an Arkansas resident.

In the Sanford area, however, there was little Cal-Ban to remove from pharmacy shelves, and as of 9 a.m. this morning, area pharmacists had not been notified of the ban.

Pharmacist David Klingensmith at Faust's Drugs, 407 East First Street, said that the product had been selling relatively well and he had only one can of Cal-Ban left. The single can was pulled from the shelf early this

Steve Letchworth, at Steve's Pharmacy, 2927 South U. S. Highway 17-92, said he did not stock Cal-Ban. "I've read about it," Letchworth said, "and I've just refused to sell such a ridiculous product."

Eckerd's Pharmacy, 3611 Orlando Drive, reported they have never stocked Cal-Ban. Marsha Barnes, at Lite-Aid Drug Store, 1200 Deltona Boulevard, Deltona, said she didn't stock it. "From what I've heard about Cal-Ban, I don't think it is a product that we should have on our shelves."

Health and Rehabilitative Services Secretary Greg Coler said a four-month investigation turned up evidence of injury and medical complications involving people who used the product. See Cal-Ban, Page 5A

2-mill school tax asked

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County school officials have proposed levying the highest property tax state law will allow to balance a tight 1991 budget.

In proposing the $520 million bond issue that lapsed this year, the school district promised not to levy a two-mill tax if voters approved the referendum. The Seminole County school board has never levied the full two-mill tax.

Seminole County homeowners may have to pay $150 more per year in taxes on a $100,000 home with $25,000 homestead exemption to help pay for the growth of the school district.

The two-mill levy would be only for one year, according to Supt. Bob Hughes. According to John Pavlechak, district director of finance, the current millage rate being taxed for schools in Seminole County is 2.28 mills.

"This is a one-year building project," Hughes explained, adding that the time was being used to formulate a new plan to pay for needed construction.

The district plans to finance the construction of two new elementary schools, the completion of renovations on Milver Middle School, 1725 County Road 427, Longwood and See Schools, Page 5A

Residents ask officials to polish up Lake Gem

By NICK PFEIFAU Herald staff writer

SANFORD — There is a small city-owned park in southeastern Sanford, almost completely surrounded by Del Aire Boulevard. The sign says it is called Lake Gem Park. But regardless of what the official name may be, residents in that area call it "mudholes."

Albert Kirk, 2001 Washington

Ave., said he has been trying for years to have the city do something to clean up the lake. "Two years ago," Kirk said, "we submitted a petition signed by 130 people asking the city to clean it up, but nothing ever happened."

Kirk says now that the water level in the lake is low, there are water moccasins living there and he fears for the safety of neighborhood children. "We've See Park, Page 5A

State: County allowed too much development in Econ, Wekiva areas

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County has allowed too much development in the wrong places, state officials have warned the county.

Chief among the state agency's objections was the county's tentative approval of a 660-home development on the Econohatchee River named "Hi-Oaks East," perhaps the most opposed development proposal during the last several years. Residents of the Chulohata area have packed meetings and county mailboxes with objections. Residents fear additional development will follow.

Officials with the Florida Department of Community Affairs agreed with residents and said the nearly two-home per acre Hi-Oaks plan was too dense for the rural area. DCA officials said it would require an objectionable road over the sensitive river and wetlands and it has no water and sewer service available near it.

Officials with the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation also agreed with residents stated construction of water and sewer lines to the development would promote "urban sprawl" into the rural area.

County planning director Tony Vanderworp said he is still reviewing the comments although he said some agency comments seem to conflict with others. Vanderworp said issues such as a proposed development's compatibility to existing neighborhoods is a county issue, not a state issue.

The state objections of Hi-Oaks East were similar to those presented to county commissioners by county planning staff, the Seminole County Planning and Zoning Commission and Orange County planners. Environmentalists, including the Sierra Club, have also objected to the See Growth, Page 5A

Longwood man charged in limousine arson scheme

By SUSAN LODEN Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A man accused of hiring a police informant to burn his limousine so he could collect $15,000 insurance, has been arrested in a sting during which investigators pretended to burn the car. Seminole County Sheriff's deputies report today.

Larry Eugene Barfield, 50, 711 Lake Side Drive, Longwood, was arrested at the Sanford Fire Department at 4 p.m. Wednesday by Sheriff's investigator Tom Artingstall.

Barfield allegedly on July 13 paid the informant $200 to burn the 1977 Lincoln limousine, which he reportedly said was formerly used by President Richard Nixon. Lt. Joe Patton said today.

When Artingstall, Sanford, the officials and a state fire marshal learned of the alleged arson for hire plot, they devised a plan of their See Arson, Page 5A

Sanford mall road plan still faces obstacles from Lake Mary, county

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Sanford may face two more potholes in its road to having a regional mall built near Interstate 4, one possibly dug by Lake Mary commissioners tonight and the second dug by Seminole County commissioners next Tuesday night.

Lake Mary commissioners will decide whether to appeal the development order for the $100-million mall on the grounds no provision was made to widen Rhincliff Road between Lake Mary Boulevard and County Road 46A south of the 217-acre mall site. City officials want the city road widened to four lanes because of the tremendous amount of traffic the mall will attract from the Lake Mary area.

County commissioners next Tuesday may decide to delay their approval expansion of Rhincliff Road between P. D. A. and State Road 46 because major landowners in the proposed new roadway want development rights the county is unwilling to grant. Because county road financing provides no money to buy the land, the road required before the mall can be built cannot be built.

That's so many things have come out way to hold up the mall, Sanford Mayor Betty Smith said.

Smith did say she would not perceive a mall challenge by Lake Mary as an intercity rivalry, nor a possible county decision to delay construction of the new road is a county vs. city issue.

Lake Mary officials say they were left out of negotiations between mall developers Melvin Simon and Associates and Sanford and other agencies.

We have $1.2 million ready to come to the table, said Lake Mary Mayor Dick Less. We just want to be at the table.

Less said Primavera, the Heathrow International Business Center, and other developers had contributed the $1.2 million towards the widening of the road to offset the added traffic their projects would place on Rhincliff Road.

It seems to me if these people are willing to come to See Mall, Page 5A

Elephant victim's identity confirmed

WEST PALM BEACH — Confusion over the identity of a man killed by an elephant has ended with confirmation that the victim was a Michigan man who had not seen most of his relatives in about 10 years.

David Dickerson, 28, an animal handler for the Harnford Circus, was crushed to death June 20 when the elephant apparently panicked and stumbled in the parking lot at the Thunderbird Swap Shop.

When officials tried to notify his family, their search led to a David Dickerson in Lawrenceville, Tenn. — but he was alive. It turned out the two men not only had the same name but also the same Social Security number.

The Broward County Sheriff's Office identified the victim Wednesday as David Dickerson, the son of Lewis Dickerson of Lansing, Mich.

The identity was confirmed by relatives who knew that he had a scar from heart surgery, a sheriff's spokesman said.

Edgewood city council fires police chief

EDGEWOOD — City Council members fired Police Chief Gerald Brewer, citing accusations he misused his office and kept files on the council members.

Brewer, who had been chief since 1983, said the 18 complaints lodged against him by acting Mayor John Pancari were false.

"It's a defamation as far as I'm concerned," Brewer said. "The record needs to be set straight."

He vowed to file suit.

Council members voted 4-1 Tuesday night to fire Brewer. Pancari accused him of ordering on-duty police officers to collect campaign contributions during Brewer's unsuccessful run for Orange County sheriff in 1988.

A special prosecutor has yet to return his findings on charges Brewer used the city's sales tax exemption when paying for repairs to his personal car.

Pancari also accused Brewer of keeping files on council members, something Brewer denied.

FBI uncovers murder-for-hire plot

MIAMI — A 53-year-old private investigator allegedly hired to kill a heavy equipment operator in northern Virginia told a federal magistrate Wednesday that he nixed the agreement before the plot was exposed.

Authorities say Charles Plourde of Hialeah was hired by unknown individuals to kill Raymond Francis O'Bran of Sterling, Va.

But Plourde told U.S. Magistrate Peter Palermo during an initial appearance in Miami federal court that he canceled the agreement before the FBI arrested him.

FBI officials say Plourde, who allegedly would have received $30,000 for the contract killing, sought to hire a hit man for $15,000. Instead, he was introduced in June to an undercover agent.

Wildlife refuge to start radio station

BOYNTON BEACH — The Loxahatchee Wildlife Refuge plans to start its own radio station, broadcasting recorded messages to visitors.

The Federal Communications Commission gave permission for the refuge to broadcast at 1530 on the AM dial. Loxahatchee's broadcasts should travel a radius of about 2 miles, said refuge manager Burkett Neely.

By tuning in their car radios to the mini-station, refuge visitors will hear information about gate opening and closing times, entrance fees and special events. They will also hear warnings to refrain from feeding the alligators, Neely said.

Refuge officials plan to begin broadcasting with equipment donated by the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge in Sanibel Island. The Sanibel refuge tried to start its own station by running a transmitter on solar power, but could not get the system to work, Neely said.

Woman delivers baby in police custody

FORT LAUDERDALE — A woman arrested on crack cocaine charges went into labor while in police custody and was rushed to a hospital, where she gave birth to a baby girl.

The unnamed baby was in serious condition Thursday in the neonatal intensive care unit at Broward General Medical Center. The mother, Viola Roberts, 22, was listed in fair condition at the hospital.

She was arrested Wednesday on charges of purchasing cocaine and possessing cocaine, and on an earlier warrant for creating a disturbance, police said. An undercover detective said Roberts asked him for "a dime" and he sold her $10 worth of crack cocaine.

She handed the cocaine to one of her two companions, both of whom were also arrested.

Police and hospital officials would not comment on whether the baby had cocaine in her system. If the baby does test positive, the mother could also face child-abuse charges, police and state officials said.

Missing woman recalls nothing

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — A law student who disappeared a week ago wandered lost and confused into a fast food restaurant with no recollection of what happened to her and virtually no memory of her life at all.

The reappearance Monday night of Elizabeth "Libby" Morris is an answer to her family's prayers, even though in a sense the mother of three and third-year law student is still very lost.

"This is by far the strangest missing person event," said Lt. Spencer Mann, spokesman for the Alachua County Sheriff's Department. "We still don't have the first clue what happened to her the last couple of days."

Family members referred reporters to Mann for comment about the disappearance. But one relative waiting at Alachua General Hospital while Morris underwent treatment Tuesday night told the Gainesville Sun. "We're just glad she's back."

Morris, 32, went missing from a Gainesville shopping mall last Wednesday night, leaving her unlocked car with her purse and credit cards inside, her keys on the floorboard and a pair of new shoes for one of her children on the back seat.

A note at her apartment said Morris would either be back soon or studying at the law library.

Two of her children were staying with her ex-husband and the third was at camp. No one realized Morris might be in trouble until she failed to show up at camp to fetch her child on Saturday, Mann said.

The case recalled the disappearance in February 1989 of Tiffany Sessions, a University of Florida business student who disappeared without a trace while taking a walk. Large-scale searches have failed to shed any light on what happened to Sessions.

"To our office, it was deja vu all over again," Mann said.

Friends and relatives were planning to resume their search Monday when Morris walked into a Kentucky Fried Chicken store at around 8:30 p.m. some 5 miles away from the mall from which she'd disappeared.

Florida rabbits get help from Playboy bunny king

United Press International

KEY WEST — A research project funded in part by bunny king Hugh Hefner has put the Florida Keys marsh rabbit on the federal endangered species list.

The Key rabbit, known to scientists as Sylvilagus palustris hefneri, will be added to the endangered list Saturday. There are only about 200 of the dark brown marsh-dwelling rabbits.

Confined to a few islands in the Florida Keys, they are the only rabbits on the federal list of more than 1,000 species facing extinction, said Michael Bentzen, a biologist for the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service.

The animal was named in the early 1980s after money put up by Hefner's Playboy Enterprises contributed toward the research of Conservation Agency President James Lazell, who proved the rabbit is unique.

The Key rabbit is the 17th animal, bird or insect in the Florida Keys to be federally listed as endangered or threatened.

State rejects Franklin County's growth plan

By JEFF SCHWEISS
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Franklin County's growth management plan fails to meet state land-use laws for environmentally sensitive areas, according to a legal notice published Wednesday by the Department of Community Affairs.

DCA officials put the county on notice because its growth management plan allows for too much residential development along Apalachicola Bay, an environmentally critical estuary that provides much of Florida's oysters, said Bob Nave, chief of the DCA's local planning office.

In its plan, said Nave, the county has allocated 13 times as much land for development than is needed for the county's projected population growth, which is expected to grow by 1,000 residents by the year 2000.

Additionally, the plan does not provide enough protection from storm water and pollution runoff for the county, which has been declared "an area of critical state concern," he said.

"The plan has designated a significant amount of land along the coastal areas for residential development. Having this much coastal development contributes to the over-allocation of land. It contributes to the inadequate protection of natural resources and increases storm water runoff," Nave said.

"It also has the effect of putting more people at risk to threats like hurricanes," he said.

Hurricane Kate caused enough damage when it hit the coast in 1985 to make Franklin County eligible for federal disaster assistance, he said.

The 1985 Growth Management Act requires all cities and counties in Florida to have their growth plans approved by the state Department of Community Affairs. The law also made Franklin County an "area of critical state concern" — because of its proximity to Apalachicola Bay — and the county could remain under state control until 1991 if its growth management plan is rejected.

Franklin County officials and some residents have taken issue with the DCA, saying the state is exercising too much control over their future and halting much-needed economic growth for the economically depressed county of some 8,500 residents.

But Nave said the county has already had ample time to correct the problems pointed out by the DCA, which earlier gave the county 45 days to modify the plan to meet the DCA criteria.

Chiles backs out of debate

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A prime time televised debate between Lawton Chiles and Bill Nelson has been cancelled because Chiles won't submit to questioning from a panel of reporters.

Everett Hughes, manager of WCPX-TV in Orlando, said aides to the former U.S. senator informed five CBS affiliate stations planning to air the Aug. 24 debate with Nelson that he would not participate because of the format.

Nelson, a congressman from

Melbourne, called upon Chiles Wednesday to reconsider and "stop hiding."

"Let's stand up before all the voters of Florida, let's debate the difficult issues facing our state, and let's answer all questions — without fear that someone might ask one we don't like," Nelson said in a written statement.

Chiles has insisted in three previous debates with Nelson that the candidates question each other directly, but none of those debates was televised statewide.

Coe chuckled while technicians tried to save boy

By VICTOR GALVAN
United Press International

FORT MYERS — A man on trial for the "potty training" murder of his 2-year-old stepson chuckled while two emergency medical workers struggled to save the boy's life, an emergency technician testified Wednesday.

Thomas Coe, 23, is on trial for first-degree murder in the death of Bradley McCoe, who reportedly was dunked headfirst into a toilet for soiling his pants. The toddler's death on July 28, 1989 led to reforms in the state's child welfare system and resulted in the unprecedented child abuse conviction of a welfare worker.

The trial is expected to last three weeks. If convicted, Coe could be sentenced to death.

A Polk County paramedic and two emergency technicians testified Wednesday they arrived at the Coe home on July 27, 1989 to find the toddler covered with bruises along his forehead, nose, genitals and ribs.

Coe "seemed calm at the time," said

Damon Nicholson, one of the technicians.

"During the course of our conversation, he smiled and gave a halfhearted, not really a laugh, more like a chuckle. It seemed a little inappropriate at the time to me."

Earlier in the day, Thomas Carr, a neighbor of the Coe family, said that Bradley seemed "withdrawn, quiet and scared" in the weeks before his death.

Carr testified he had seen "dime-sized bruises" on the toddler's shoulder.

Carr said he considered calling state child welfare workers but did not.

Mushroom eater leaves trail of blood, breaks in to church

United Press International

SEBRING — A man under the influence of hallucinogenic mushrooms broke into a church "to get closer to God," leaving behind a trail of clothing and blood, police and hospital workers said.

Cary Douglas Leonard, 20, left his shoes, socks, shirt and small traces of blood near the broken stained-glass window of St. Catherine Catholic Church

Tuesday night, police Capt. Ron Perry said.

On a hunch, police called Highlands Regional Medical Center. Hospital officials told them a man had just come in saying he cut himself trying to break into a church.

Leonard had only minor cuts on his right big toe and on his hip, but the hospital kept him overnight to treat him for mushroom poisoning, a nursing supervisor said.

Hospital workers said Leonard told them he ate the mushrooms from a cow pasture, then broke into the church to get closer to God.

"He was eating mushrooms and he said he just ate too many," Thursday's Tampa Tribune quoted a nursing supervisor as saying.

The hospital treated Leonard for the presence of psilocybin, the hallucinogen found in some mushrooms.

The church pastor, the Rev. Jose H. Ruiz, said he had not decided whether to press charges against Leonard.

"He just hopes the man makes restitution," Diane Sochacki said.

Leonard apparently pulled a handicapped parking sign out of the ground in the church parking lot and used it to break the window about 11 p.m. Tuesday, Sochacki said. Police found the sign about seven feet from the window.

Men accused of raping boy

SANFORD — After a 13-year-old boy reported to Sanford police Wednesday that since November 1989, a Sanford man had sexually abused and raped him numerous times, police arrested a suspect.

Humphrey Eugene Hurn, 26, 2 Higgins Terrace, was arrested at the police station Wednesday. He is charged with sexual battery and committing a lewd act on a child. Hurn was booked into the county jail without bond.

Three charged in drug search

WINTER SPRINGS — City County Investigative Bureau agents with a warrant who search 264 Buton Wood Ave., Winter Springs, Wednesday night, report the arrest of three residents there.

Charged with possession of marijuana to distribute and possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia were Monica Lee Fisher, 25, and Brian Emerson Smith, 34.

Gregory Lee Smith, 27, was also charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana.

Husband arrested in robbery of wife

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly ripped a gold chain from his wife's neck and stole her purse as she walked on Myrtle Lake Hill Road, rural Longwood, at about 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, was arrested 45 minutes later.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies report charging Calvin Michael Gunther, 47, 107 Mound St., Longwood, with battery. He was arrested at home. Deputies said the victim's neck was injured when her gold chain was ripped off.

Man arrested on drug charges

CASSELBERRY — City police here who served a search warrant at 560 Lilac Road, Casselberry, Wednesday night report charging resident James Richard Tillet, 34, with possession of cocaine, marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Door kicked open, woman attacked

SANFORD — A man who allegedly kicked open the front door of 314-A Geneva Gardens, Sanford, to take a phone from a woman and shove her head through a window, has been arrested.

Sanford police said Tina Kimball was trying to call police when William Lloyd Jellis, 31, 124 Shannon Drive, Sanford, allegedly forced entry to her house to attack her. Jellis was arrested at home at 2:15 a.m. today following the 11:30 p.m. Wednesday incident. He is charged with burglary, battery and criminal mischief.

Political candidates qualify

By VICKI BOGGERMAN and NICK PFEIFFER Herald staff writers

SANFORD — Incumbent Sandra Glenn officially filed qualifying papers at the office of the Seminole County supervisor of elections yesterday. She will be seeking re-election to the Seminole County Commission District 4 position. Larry Furlong of Fern Park had qualified for the same race during the first day of qualifying.

In Tallahassee, two more candidates for circuit judge of the 18th judicial circuit qualified at the state election supervisor's office yesterday. Sanford attorney Ned Julian and Apopka attorney George Kelley both qualified to run in the Group 10 race. Altamonte Springs attorney Newman D. Broch qualified for the Group 10 seat Monday, making it a three-way race so far. It is not known if any further candidates may announce for that particular seat.

The Group 10 position would

A story in Wednesday's Sanford Herald stated county commission candidate Bob Sturm has made personal loans to his campaign. Sturm's campaign finance reports show no loans have been made as of June 30.

M.L. "Sonny" Raborn, who plans to qualify for the school board race in District 5, said he does indeed have the money to pay his qualifying fee and he plans to pay the $1,228.14 today. A report in the Sanford Herald yesterday indicated otherwise.

not have been on this year's ballot, but became vacant following the resignation in early June of Judge Kenneth Leffler, who had held the seat for the past 15 years. Leffler would not have been up for re-election for another four years. Julian and Kelley bring the total to 12 who have qualified to seek judgeships in the 18th judicial circuit, which includes all of Seminole and Brevard counties. The non-partisan election is scheduled for September 4.

In the school board elections, Lake Mary Republican Rick Sabal has qualified to run for the District 1 seat currently held by Larry Betsinger.

Betsinger has yet to announce his candidacy for re-election.

Former school board member William Kroll who lost the District 1 seat to Betsinger in 1986, and Lake Mary Republican Sandra Robinson have already qualified for the race in District 1.

Sanford Republican Daryl McLain has qualified to run in District 5 against Longwood Republican Jeanne Morris. He did not qualify to run in District 1 as reported in yesterday's Sanford Herald.

Gorn blasts press on NASA coverage

By WILLIAM HARWOOD UPI science writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA has been unfairly criticized in the news media by "piranha" and "gullible wonders" who have sensationalized the agency's recent woes and put its budget in doubt. Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, charged Wednesday.

Speaking at a Senate subcommittee hearing in Washington, Garn, who flew aboard a space shuttle in 1985, said the Hubble Space Telescope's blurred vision, hydrogen leaks grounding the shuttle fleet and concerns about the agency's planned space station are isolated events.

"It has been extremely distressing to me that the media and some politicians have seized on aspects of these concerns as raising doubts about the competency of NASA and a potential rationale for further budget cuts in the agency's ongoing programs," Garn said.

In opening remarks broadcast by satellite to NASA centers across the nation, including Cape Canaveral, Garn said the storm of negative publicity over the recent problems will make it extremely difficult to push the agency's budget through Congress and that programs likely will suffer as a result.

Obviously upset, Garn said he hoped congressional hearings over the coming weeks would help "correct the impression that the discovery of technical problems implies technical incompetence."

"I see the press out there as a bunch of piranha — and some of my colleagues the same — who seem to enjoy kicking someone when they are down," Garn said.

PSC blasted by group for Bell ruling

By RITZ BAUMANN United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's Public Service Commission has approved "one of the largest giveaways" of consumers' money in the body's history, a consumer watchdog organization charged Wednesday.

Kevin Bloom, executive director of the Florida Consumer Action Network, said his organization is angry about the PSC's recent decision allowing Southern Bell Telephone to increase its cash flow by an estimated $357 million over the next three years.

The decision means telephone rates for intrastate service will be $119 million higher for Southern Bell's 3.7-million customers during each of those three years, said Bloom.

"This is one of the largest giveaways in the history of the Public Service Commission," Bloom said during a press conference.

"It tells us two things about the current commission: One is that the commission has no qualms about placing corporate interests above the public interest, and two, that the commission views the ratepayers of this state as nothing more than a deep pocket for the state's regulated utilities," he said.

Hetter to seek District 3 seat in Longwood

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — Gary Hetter has announced his candidacy for election as District 3 Longwood City Commissioner.

The District 3 seat is currently held by Deputy Mayor Jeff Morton.

Hetter is presently serving on the city's Board of Adjustment.

The Seminole County businessman is the regional marketing consultant for Origami, Inc., a Dallas-based distributor and manufacturer of business forms, stock paper and computer products.

Hetter is a graduate of New York University's School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, with a bachelor's of science degree.

He has also been a freelance correspondent for the Longwood Sun Newspaper covering the Longwood City Commission meetings.

Romance buys lakefront land

From staff reports

SANFORD — The owners of the Grand Romance have purchased 2 1/4 acres of lakefront property west of Myrtle Avenue for $515,000.

Bill Sternberg, a Grand Romance corporate officer, said the company has no immediate plans for the property, which extends into Lake Monroe.

"We were just holding on to buy the property," Sternberg said. "We've have thought about some future plans, but nothing is firm yet."

Sternberg would not disclose what future plans have been discussed for the property.

The transaction involved a $315,000 purchase from Resolution Trust Corp., receiver for Gill Savings Association, a Texas bank and a $200,000 mortgage with Herman and Dorothy Weist, of Louisville, Ky. Previous owners of the property include Lakeview Ltd., a Texas partnership which includes Robert F. Bland Sr., Wayne B. Duddlesten and The Richard Gill Co.

On reaching out to Latin America

President Bush has unveiled an ambitious initiative to improve economic ties between the United States and Latin America.

The program emphasizes "trade, not aid," and low-cost reduction of the staggering debt many Latin American countries owe the U.S. Treasury. It would also establish a new regional lending pool to provide incentives to these nations to shift from national industries to more productive private enterprises. The United States would allocate $100 million annually to such a pool.

It's an overdue attempt to create a political framework that will encourage a partnership as sweeping as the Alliance for Progress of the early 1960s. It's hoped that Latin American leaders will embrace it by seeing that it contains enough advantages to deflect any charges by political rivals that they are knuckling under to the "Yanquis."

"This marks the first time in a decade or more that a U.S. administration has said to Latin Americans, 'Let's sit down and talk about problems that you consider important,'" says Peter Hakim, staff director of the Inter-American Dialogue, a Washington research group.

American businesses also would benefit if proposed bilateral free-trade accords with major Latin American countries work as they should. Resulting lower tariffs by those countries could cure the slump in sales in Latin America by U.S. companies.

Latin American nations currently owe American banks $400 billion and the U.S. Treasury $12 billion. The Bush initiative provides for reducing about $5 billion in U.S. debts through "debt-for-equity" and "debt-for-nature" exchanges. The latter is a constructive plan for encouraging Latin American nations to halt destruction of the rain forests and other natural resources.

No one is calling the Bush initiative a "quick fix" for economic relationships in the hemisphere. Rather, it is a sincere invitation by the administration to Latin American countries to provide a measure of long-term economic stability to the region. It merits encouragement.

Time to retire Rep. McCollum

The time is right for voters in the 5th Congressional district to retire Bill McCollum. Mr. McCollum has done the minimal to benefit the residents in this area. He has accepted large amounts of money from various PACS (Political Action Committees). He has forgotten the common man.

His opponent in the race is a local businessman, who has integrity for his fellow man. His name is Bob Fletcher, who believes in democratic principles.

Mr. Fletcher will work for the voters he represents unlike the incumbent. I am urging all residents of Seminole County to support Mr. Fletcher, whether through contributions, or walking their precincts and say we need a new man in Washington who will hear our voices.

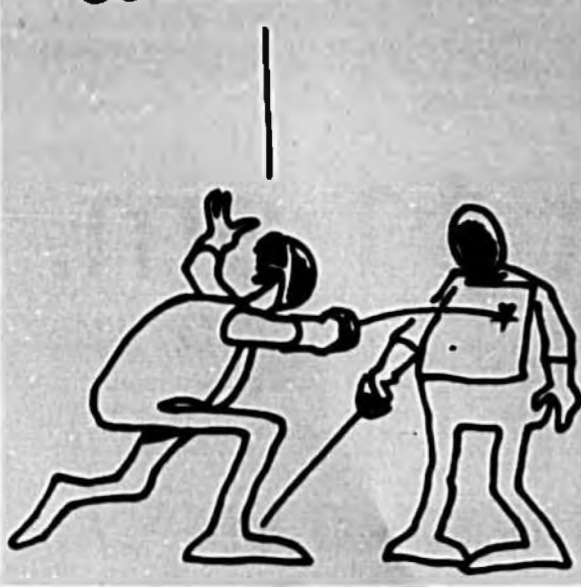

Please, let us retire Mr. McCollum Lack to Florida.

High court's term busy, confusing

WASHINGTON — Many observers thought it symbolic that the Supreme Court ended its confusing 1989-90 term by issuing an important death penalty ruling — and then immediately contradicting it in another decision, without seeming to notice it was doing so.

By a vote of 5-4, the court upheld Arizona's death penalty law. The next day, however, by a 4-3 vote, it announced that it would not hear an appeal by the State of Arizona of a Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision voiding the death penalty of John Harvey Adamson. He was convicted of the 1976 murder of Phoenix reporter Don Bolles. The Ninth Circuit had voided Adamson's death penalty because it had been imposed by a judge, not a jury. That very process is at the heart of the Arizona law the court had just upheld.

The four justices voting to let stand the lower court's unconstitutional ruling were consistent — they were the same four who formed the minority in the death penalty decision. But neither Justice Sandra Day O'Connor nor Anthony Kennedy — who voted with the majority in the death penalty case — took part in the decision on the Adamson case. No explanation was given of why they did not participate in the decision, but court sources say it was simply that both justices had already left town for the summer when the case was circulated by Chief Justice William Rehnquist. He, apparently, did not see any contradictions in the ready-to-be-announced decision.

While the overall direction of the court is decidedly more conservative, the large number of 5-4 decisions, especially in important cases, shows how deeply divided the court remains.

During its most recent term, the court issued 129 rulings. Thirty-seven were decided by the minimum 5-4. In almost all these, the conservative Reagan appointees — Justices O'Connor, Kennedy and Antonin Scalia joined with Chief Justice Rehnquist. They formed the conservative bloc, while Justices William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall, Harry Blackmun and John Paul Stevens formed the moderate-to-liberal faction.

Justice Byron R. White — the second most senior justice after Brennan — is the swing vote.

The court showed its conservatism mostly in criminal cases. In 35 criminal law decisions, the police or prosecution won 27. Fifteen of these were by one vote, and White's was the deciding vote in 14. These cases significantly increased police and prosecutors' rights, while limiting prisoners' rights and the appeal rights of those already convicted. In three separate 5-4 rulings, the death penalty laws of Arizona, California and Pennsylvania were upheld.

On abortion, the court showed how divided and confused it remains. The court struck down one version of a Minnesota law but upheld another version the state had passed requiring parental notification before a minor can have an abortion, if — and only if — she has the alternative of going to a judge for permission. All nine justices wrote opinions, and O'Connor, who was the swing vote in two 5-4 votes, wrote two separate opinions.

Kiev mayor shares frustration

KIEV — If you want to understand the frustrations of being a local official in the crumbling Soviet Union, ask Mayor Arnold G. Nazarchuk of Kiev. As the new leader of the nation's third largest city, he is, in his fashion, the Richard M. Daley of this country. But that's where the resemblance between the mayors of Kiev and Chicago stops.

Unlike Daley, Nazarchuk is no booster and — most emphatically — no boss.

A smiling, round-faced engineer of 57, he worked his way up the communist industrial bureaucracy until he became managing director of an electronics complex located here. In last spring's elections to the Ukrainian parliament, he ran for office for the first time, thinking that "my experience in economics would be helpful on the commission on industry, as the Ukraine becomes an independent state." But he was defeated, along with many other communist candidates.

At the same election, he also ran for — and won — a seat on the 270-member Kiev city council. "Just to defend the interests of my industry, what you would call a company lobbyist."

The new council, almost evenly balanced between the Communist Party old-guard and independents, deadlocked for 40 days on the choice of a chairman, or mayor. People from both sides turned to Nazarchuk as a compromise. Like Caesar, he refused three times. Unlike Caesar, he finally accepted the job.

Ask him about his authority, and this is what he says: "We do not have much power at the moment. Almost all our money comes from the top (Moscow), and they refuse to acknowledge our special needs in caring for the victims of Chernobyl (the nuclear plant near here that was the site of a serious accident four years ago). We raised 88 million rubles from our citizens as a gift to the Chernobyl victims, and Moscow said it came from the capital. Now, those victims are in our hospitals and homes — and Moscow gives us nothing."

The mayor left at that point to run a meeting, and his deputy, 35-year-old professor of theoretical physics and mathematics Alexander N. Mosiyuk, took over the narrative. "At the moment," he said, "82 percent of the industry in Kiev belongs to the Soviet Union, and the profits go there. We do not share their earnings and we cannot control the pollution from those plants. But our friends are introducing a bill in the Ukrainian parliament to give Kiev special status (home rule), to give us title to all the land in the city and 22 percent of the profits of firms here. That's very low, but after the Ukraine achieves independence, it will rise."

Mosiyuk is a militant advocate of independence, but he has forged a close working partnership with the older communist who is mayor. The editor of a local newspaper notes that in the few weeks of experience with the new council, "lines are softening. The communists are being radicalized (on home-rule) by the independents."

In Nazarchuk's case, and probably others, it is also the daily frustration of attempting to cope with people's problems that is making these former apparatchiks look more skeptically at Moscow. When Nazarchuk returned from his meeting, I asked him to describe the state of his city. "Conditions are difficult," he said, "and our people find it hard to have much hope. The aftereffects of Chernobyl are particularly visible among the children — and that affects everyone's feelings."

"The economic situation is worsening. Walk through our shops and you see how little the ruble buys. Sugar is being rationed for the first time and the lines for gasoline can take you up to five hours. Housing is not what it should be. Our medical services are lacking. Water and electricity service is poor. And crime is rising.

"We were never very rich," he concluded, "but we had a tradition of helping each other. Now our people have no hope or faith in the future. And now there is political instability as well."

Then, his face brightening, he added, "We could do a lot for ourselves — if we had the authority. We could deal with the electric and water service interruptions, with the shortages of food and medical services. We could create the preconditions for a market system. We have great universities here and intellectual resources that we do not really use. But we lack political skills. For too many years, no one was encouraged to think politically for himself."

A smile cracked his broad face. "That's how they end up with someone like me as mayor," he said. And he laughed so loudly that an aide came dashing in to see if he was all right.

Laughter is not heard that often in Kiev's city hall.

The aftereffects are particularly visible among the children.

Cubans in Miami keep mum, else

WASHINGTON — Cuban exiles living in Miami came to the United States for freedom of speech, but they're learning that it's best to keep their mouths shut, especially if they advocate anything less than the violent overthrow of Fidel Castro.

There is a feeling in Miami's Little Havana, as oppressive as the hot summer weather, that Cuban-Americans should toe a rabidly anti-Castro line. And if they don't, they are likely to be publicly censured by those who do. Or worse, they could be firebombed.

Ramon Cernuda, a Cuban-born publisher and art collector, knows the cost of independent thinking. Last month, the art museum he operates was bombed. Federal investigators believe he may have been targeted because of his moderate views on U.S.-Cuba relations.

The FBI is investigating 17 such incidents that have occurred in Miami in the last three years — most against Cuban-Americans who don't subscribe to the vehement anti-Castro doctrine.

The situation is so bad that the FBI has dubbed Miami the terrorism capital of the United States.

The keeper of the anti-Castro flame is the Cuban American National Foundation, which is based in Miami. We reported recently on the group's heavy-handed influence in Washington, where it hands out substantial political contributions and lobbies for a hard-line approach toward Cuba.

The group has condemned the terrorist attacks including the bombing of Cernuda's gallery.

Led by Jorge Mas Canosa, the foundation views itself as the true representative of Cuban-Americans. But it doesn't have much time for exiles who support dialogue with Cuba. Mas Canosa has implied that those who disagree with him are close to Castro.

Mas Canosa renounces violence, but we have learned that the foundation has added to its ranks two brothers who were once members of the violent Cuban Nationalist Movement.

Guillermo and Ignacio Novo were recently assigned duties on the "information commission" of the Cuban American National Foundation. The commission's job is to generate better public relations in Miami.

The foundation could have picked better PR men. The Novo brothers were convicted and then acquitted in the 1978 murder in Washington of Orlando Letelier, the former Chilean ambassador to the United States. Letelier was living in semi-exile in the United States because of his open opposition to Chilean Dictator Augusto Pinochet. At the time, some Cuban exiles looked to Pinochet for leadership in overthrowing Marxist governments in Latin America, including Cuba. The Novo brothers eventually were granted a new trial by an appeals court and were found innocent.

Some of their other exploits were highlighted in the book "Assassination on Embassy Row," a detailed account of the Letelier murder written by John Dinges and Saul Landau. According to the authors, Guillermo Novo, in 1964, fired a bazooka at the United Nations headquarters in New York to protest the presence of a Cuban banking official there.

Guillermo Novo told our associate Scott Slick that he doesn't regret any of his past activities, and he wrote off the bazooka attack to the enthusiasm of youth.

The foundation makes no excuses for recruiting the Novo brothers for its PR committee, since their murder conviction was reversed.

Man charged in Super Fund scam Growth

United Press International
TAMPA — A program manager working on a $20 million federal contract was arrested Wednesday for demanding a $30,000 kickback from a firm that bid on a Super Fund cleanup job at Homestead Air Force Base.

Timothy R. Gipe, 26, of Lutz, was arrested on a complaint filed in Biloxi, Miss., which accused him of one count of major fraud against the United States. If convicted, he faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $1 million fine.

Gipe works for Ceraghty and Miller Inc. Environmental Services, which obtained the $20 million contract from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to conduct environmental testing for water contamination at several military installations.

The investigation into Gipe's activities began last week after FBI agents in Gulfport, Miss., were contacted by Glover Richard Hayden and Charles Hascal Odom, who operate Envirotech Drilling Co. of Wiggins, Miss.

The men said Gipe had asked them in June to bid on the job at Homestead Air Force Base. Envirotech does subcontract work for Ceraghty and Miller, according to an affidavit filed by the agents.

At the time, Ceraghty and Miller were searching for sub-contractors to do the required testing, which is being funded by the Environmental Protection Agency as part of the Super Fund cleanup program.

"After being given a bid price of approximately $145,000, Gipe demanded that the bid be inflated to approximately $185,000 and that he be personally given $30,000 in consideration for Envirotech being awarded the contract and that Envirotech retain the remainder," said Allen M. McCreight, head of the FBI office in Tampa.

Hayden made the arrangement for the deal with Gipe last Sunday and Thursday during conversations that were being taped by the FBI, McCreight said.

 own, Patton said.

On Sunday, Patton said, investigators pretended to burn the car at Sanford Auto Glass and Upholstery on Third Street, at U.S. Highway 17-82, Sanford.

The car was safely impounded and Barfield was reportedly shown the "burn" site, Patton said.

On Wednesday, Patton said Barfield, a used car wholesaler, allegedly filed an insurance claim with Sentry Insurance Co., of Longwood, for $15,000 for the loss of the limo.

A warrant was issued charging Barfield with solicitation to commit arson and insurance fraud. He was booked into the county jail in lieu of $50,000 bond.

proposals saying it could harm the plants and wildlife in the area.

Commissioners delayed their scheduled July 10 final hearing on the 11 development proposals until Aug. 26 because DCA had not commented on the proposals before then. Although commissioners were not required to wait before DCA completed their review of the projects, they decided to wait. DCA successfully appealed to the governor and Cabinet to overturn a commercial site on West State Road 46 near the Wekiva River.

DCA and other agencies also criticized the county's tentative approvals for the 499-home Lexington Estates development with an 18-hole golf course adjacent to the Wekiva River as potentially harmful to the river from stormwater runoff.

The state also criticized two housing development proposals south of Sanford near the proposed Seminole County Expressway as incompatible with surrounding rural areas. Also criticized was a proposal to expand the David M. Co. into an area of Spring Hammock sought by the state.

The county will consider extending sewer lines to the Hi Oaks area in order to serve the project and others that may follow. DER officials stated, "Extension of sewer and water lines in support of this development would encourage adjacent and neighboring properties to develop at densities and intensities higher than currently is permitted."

The Florida Department of Natural Resources criticized the Hi Oaks proposal because it contained no provisions to identify or protect any endangered or threatened plants or wildlife that may be on the site.

DCA officials said two housing developments proposed by Ann Esterson and Henry Schumacher. They said the sibling's 170-acre, four-home per acre proposal south of Oak Way was too dense for the surrounding rural areas. DCA had similar comments about a second esterson-Schumacher proposal, to build approximately 190 homes on 84 acres south of Myrtle Street.

Commissioners had supported both requests, saying the 170-acre proposal would offer a "buffer" between the expressway and surrounding rural areas and the second would offer a similar buffer between an undeveloped industrial site and rural homes.

DCA opposed a proposal applauded by commissioners to expand a printing supply manufacturing company in Spring Hammock into 18 acres sought by the state for preservation.

"The change from recreational to planned development (land uses) is incompatible with with surrounding recreational land uses," DCA commented.

Commissioners approved the proposal saying the land was marginal in environmental value while offering protection to surrounding sensitive Spring Hammock lands.

DCA officials commented the 499-home Lexington Estates west of Markham Woods Road may pollute the Wekiva River unless drainage is retained on-site. DCA also commented the proposal may have to undergo a more extensive development of regional impact review because of its closeness to the river.

Lexington developers, Lexington Development Inc., propose to build homes as close as 800 feet from the river. The East Central Florida Regional Planning Council recommended Lexington Estates homes be no closer to the Wekiva River than those homes in Plantation north of the site. Plantation homes will be at least 2,300 feet from the river, nearly a half mile.

DNR officials said the golf course was an unnecessary reduction in wildlife habitat in an area with a growing number of golf courses. DNR also commented the county's recent approvals of large developments is opposed to the intent of the 1988 legislature who passed laws protecting the rural character of the Wekiva River area.

Homes

abandoned houses in Seminole County, which were in foreclosure proceedings, and renting them to unsuspecting tenants.

The owners of the houses at 1917 Vienna Drive, Casselberry, and 985 Wildflower Way, Longwood, didn't know Bailey had allegedly rented their houses without authorization.

Human said the case involving the Casselberry house broke when Heather McKee, an owner of that house who had moved into a house five doors away, noticed that tenants were living in her house.

McKee, Human said checked with the tenants, Jeff McGill and Sherri Mullins, and was told that they had rented the house. Human was informed of the situation and began investigating.

He said he determined Bailey, through a man acting on his behalf, had rented the house Feb. 18, with the tenants paying

James Edward Bailey
 $900 in first and last months' rent. The rental agreement was for four months, Human said. Bailey had reportedly told his associate he had a quit claim deed on the house, but Human said that wasn't true.
 In May a Longwood police investigation of an unrelated case, Human said, led Longwood police to the discover and report to him that a house at 985 Wildflower Way, was also allegedly being rented out by Bailey without authorization. The tenants were paying $350 a month rent without the owner's knowledge, Human said.

Human said Bailey had access to a list of property in foreclosure proceedings, foreclosures may take up to one year to complete, Human said, so Bailey allegedly took advantage of that time to collect rent on property he had no legal right to.

Human said his investigation continues, and anyone who thinks they may have rented a home from or through Bailey should notify Human at the sheriff's department.

Human said he doesn't know how Bailey got keys to the houses, but the keys may have been left behind when the owners abandoned their houses.

Schools

Jackson Heights Middle School, 141 Academy Drive, Oviedo; and the possible purchase of future elementary school sites with dollars earned from the two-mill levy.

While the 1980-81 school district budget is still in the final stages of production, a few hours before it is to be presented to the board for preliminary discussions at this afternoon's 4 p.m. work session in the district boardroom, Hughes said the document won't be much to look at.

Still, he said, the schools and the district will be operating with little more money than they had last year.

"It will be the most conservative budget that I have seen since becoming superintendent," Hughes said. "There are virtually no enhancements over last year."

The status quo budget results, in part, from the lack of dollars caused by the public defeat of the half billion dollar bond issue referendum and the poor financial support of the district by the state legislature this year.

"We're only getting 5.6 percent more new money for the operation of the district," said Hughes of the legislative allotment to Seminole County. "Last year the increase was eight to nine percent over the year before."

Hughes said he and his assistant superintendents will present the budget this afternoon to the board with recommendations for three priorities to be considered.

"We need to keep teachers salaries competitive. We need to provide sufficient dollars for the fringe benefit (insurance) packages. And we need additional support for textbook purchases," Hughes said.

Hughes said the textbook shortage would reach "critical" proportions this year if the money were not available to buy the books.

Hughes said the budget called for the addition of few personnel, adding only those whose positions were legislatively-mandated, such as a staff person charged with the record keeping associated with the fingerprinting of all new and perspective teachers. Such tasks, previously done at the state level has been transferred to the district.

"There are no new administrative personnel being proposed at the district level," Hughes said.

"Probable cause exists to believe that the use of Cal-Ban products in the state of Florida may be dangerous and injurious to health," says the emergency order signed by Coler.

Coler said state health officials reviewed more than 100 complaints from people who used Cal-Ban. At least 50 of the cases required some form of medical intervention, including surgery.

Medical problems attributed to Cal-Ban included obstructions to the esophagus, stomach and upper and lower intestines, plus nausea, vomiting, headache and dizziness, Coler said.

He said an Arkansas resident died from a pulmonary embolism following surgery for the removal of an esophageal obstruction resulting from use of Cal-Ban.

The main ingredient in Cal-Ban is a food additive known as guar gum. It is widely used in food products as a filler, but mostly in amounts to small to pose a health risk.

Cal-Ban is advertised as a weight loss and diet aid. It is designed to swell after ingestion, causing a feeling of fullness and

He added that all departments will be asked to consider having current employees work overtime rather than hiring additional support staff.

"We have had to take a very serious look at things this year and say 'we know these programs are important but, sorry, we can't afford them this year,'" Hughes said. "And that's not easy."

Ann Neiswender, chairman of the school board, who said she has not yet seen the budget document, said this morning that from what she has been told the budget tightening has not been as tough as one would have expected and that she expects the district will survive the budget.

"There's a light at the end of the tunnel," she said. "And it's not a train."

Mall

the table to help the mall people should too," Yeas said.

Simon officials could not be reached Wednesday.

When the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council issued its recommended development order in April, the council included a provision to either help pay for the widening of Rhinehart Road or help pay for the construction of the proposed I-4 interchange at CR 46-A. In April, mall developers Melvin Simon and Associates, along with Heathrow Land and Development, announced they would jointly contribute $3 million towards the $14 million interchange project, apparently satisfying the either-or option in the development order.

The Florida Department of Community Affairs, which must approve large-scale developments, challenged the Seminole Mall proposal in June, saying the development order did not adequately address the need for affordable housing in the north Seminole County area.

The city has also faced another pothole in its effort to have its economy boosted by the mall when Seminole County officials in April refused to allow the city create a special tax district to help Simon pay for road improvements needed for mall traffic.

County commissioners did approve the tax district July 10 that would use only city taxes for the roads. Simon officials said investors would pay the approximately $3 million lost from the tax plan restructuring.

Among the road projects included in the package was the construction of the third and fourth lanes to Rhinehart Road between CR 46-A and SR 46, assuming the county would build the first two lanes under its bonded gasoline tax program. Simon proposed to pay about $1.4 million for the extra two lanes required before the mall can be opened to the public.

But the financially-strapped county has no money for the land needed to build two lanes, let alone build a four-laned road. Pam Hastings, county impact fee specialist, said the county assumed landowners would be willing to donate their property needed for the road in return for credits against road impact fees they will be required to pay when they develop the vacant land.

But negotiations have bogged down primarily between two major landowners, Viola Kastner and the Ball family. Hastings said Kastner, represented by county commissioner Jennifer Kelley's former husband Eoghan Kelley, has asked the county to reserve traffic capacity on the new road. The Balls have asked for any benefits Kastner receives, Hastings said.

Hastings said the county is reluctant to offer such deals because the landowners have no current development proposals and in Kastner's case, much of her land is in Sanford and the county has no development authority.

members when the lake was crystal clear and had fish in it. The lake almost dried up several months ago during the drought but has since begun filling up due to the recent rain showers in the area.

Sanford Parks Director Jim Jernigan said, however, "It isn't exactly a lake. It's a water retention area. It has no natural spring feeding it. All it does is collect surface water from the area." Jernigan said the city did not have the proper equipment with which to clear out the pond. Within the past day, however, Kirk said he has contacted two other city department officials and was told they would look into the problems he has cited.

Senate passes Rights Act of 1990

United Press International

WASHINGTON - Calling Senate passage of a new civil rights legislation a "quota bill," the White House promised to work hard for a different version when the measure is addressed by the House.

"We're disappointed that the Senate passed a quota bill," said White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater. "The president wants a bill that ends discrimination, not one that starts a quota system. We will work in the House to get a good civil rights bill that the president can sign."

Despite the threat of a veto by President Bush, the Senate approved a far-reaching civil rights bill Wednesday night that would eliminate the "state and local discrimination" suffered by blacks and women in the workplace.

Passage by a vote of 85-14 ended a bitter partisan battle that raged for months from the White House to the Senate chamber. All 55 Democrats and 10 Republicans voted for the bill. Thirty-four Republicans voted against it.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said there was a "good chance" Bush would sign the bill and a "good chance" Congress would override a veto if he did not.

The legislation would reverse six Supreme Court decisions handed down last year that civil rights advocates claim diminished anti-discrimination guards in the workplace for blacks, women and other minorities.

The Bush administration, Democrats and Republicans all called for reversal of the court decisions.

But Republicans, led by Bush, refused to accept the bill, charging that the language would lead to the use of quotas in the hiring, firing and promotion in the workplace.

Racial quotas threat dogs rights bill

UPI report

WASHINGTON - The haunting fear of racial quotas, shared by employer and employee, has been a red flag in debate since the halcyon days of civil rights legislation in the 1960s. That flag fluttered again in the Senate.

Long before the Senate passed the version of the 1990 Civil Rights Act designed to restore safeguards against discrimination in the workplace, the issue had been drawn hard and fast on whether it would lead to quotas.

President Bush, backed by almost all Republicans and some Sun Belt Democrats, is convinced the legislation, even if not intentionally, will lead to quotas in employee selection.

Four presidents to dedicate Nixon library

YORBA LINDA, Calif. - Four living presidents arranged to attend a rare gathering today to dedicate the Richard M. Nixon library and museum and to honor the only man to resign the presidency.

The event Thursday was to be attended by Nixon, his wife, Pat, President Bush and former presidents Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan.

It will be the first time four U.S. presidents and their wives have assembled at a public ceremony.

Bush back on the campaign trail

ANAHIM, Calif. - Don't expect the words "tax increase" to pass President Bush's lips on his GOP fund-raising swing through California, Idaho and Montana.

Instead, aides say, Bush plans to try on popular GOP issues, like school prayer and the war on drugs, and beat up on Democrats in Congress.

He is expected to steer clear of any specific mention of his recent decision to drop his "no new taxes pledge," which has drawn cries of protest by many Republican candidates.

Polk: curtail pesticide use

WASHINGTON - Most Americans are concerned about pesticide use in crop production and would like farmers to further limit the amount of chemicals they use, but few want to eliminate them, a poll showed Wednesday.

According to the poll commissioned by the American Farm Bureau, two-thirds of the 1,000 people contacted by telephone agreed with the statement "farmers should further limit the amount of chemicals they use."

Recession 'low' threat - Greenspan

United Press International

WASHINGTON - The Federal Reserve's recent reduction of the federal funds rate was made amid concerns that tighter credit conditions threatened to push the U.S. economy toward recession, Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan said Wednesday.

Greenspan, giving his semi-annual testimony on the economy and monetary policy, told the Senate Banking Committee that the likelihood of a near-term recession now "seems low" and suggested the Fed might again adjust its monetary policy if major cuts are made in the federal budget deficit.

Greenspan said the economy appears to have grown at a "somewhat slower rate" during the second quarter, while banks and thrifts have restricted their lending practices in response to regulatory concerns about growing savings and loan trouble.

Further credit tightening "is not something we'd like to see," Greenspan told the panel, adding that the reduced availability of credit "certainly raises the risk of tipping us over" into recession.

Greenspan said the risks of recession and inflation are about the same as when he last reviewed the economy for Congress in February. But under questioning, he said the economy is leaning "perhaps a shade more toward recession than earlier in the year."

A recession occurs when the economy fails to grow for two consecutive quarters. The economy last suffered a recession in 1981-82.

Imports of oil reach record in first half

United Press International

WASHINGTON - U.S. dependence on foreign oil reached an all-time six-month high in the first half of 1990 as imports provided 50 percent of domestic supplies, the American Petroleum Institute said.

The institute said Wednesday the rising import level was especially worrisome for national security because the biggest increases were from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, particularly its Arab members.

Edward Murphy, director of finance, accounting and statistics, said Arab members of OPEC provided roughly one-third of the 8.4 million barrels of oil a day imported by the United States and that Saudi Arabia was now the largest single U.S. supplier at 1.2 million barrels a day.

"We are in fact very dependent and becoming and energy future is largely in their hands at this point," Murphy said. "A substantial increase in petroleum imports in the first half of 1990 has brought us to a level of dependency on foreign crude suppliers that many have regarded as dangerous and unacceptable."

But while the United States is becoming more dependent on OPEC, the institute said oil prices show no signs of increasing soon.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

A's sweep Tribe

The Oakland Athletics threw everything at the Cleveland Indians Wednesday, especially Bob Welch, Dave Stewart, and Dennis Eckersley twice.

In the opener, Welch became the major league's first 15-game winner in a 4-1 decision. Stewart struck out six and walked one, lasting 8 1-3 innings for a 5-2 victory. Eckersley relieved both starters, notching his 29th and 30th saves of the year.

Jose Canseco belted two home runs in the second game for his fourth multi-homer game of the season, giving him 28 on the year. Mark McGwire hooked a solo shot just inside the left field foul pole in the late game for his 24th. Canseco and McGwire each had seven homers and 13 RBI in their 12 games against Cleveland.

In other AL action, Boston slipped by Minnesota 5-4, New York beat Kansas City, 3-5, Seattle stopped Toronto, 5-2, Milwaukee clipped California, 3-2, Chicago outslug Detroit 7-5, and Texas tamed Baltimore, 7-1.

Shula goes on injured list

MIAMI -- Miami Dolphin Coach Don Shula said Wednesday he was going on the PUC list -- physically unable to coach -- for at least a day for arthroscopic surgery on a knee injury suffered in college.

His joking reference to the PUP, or physically unable to perform list, involved a procedure scheduled for Thursday morning on torn cartilage suffered at John Carroll University in Ohio where he played until his graduation in 1951.

Shula, 60, was expected to return to the Dolphins' training camp Friday after the procedure, to be performed at Holy Cross hospital in Fort Lauderdale by Dr. Daniel Kanell, the team physician.

His first head coaching job was with the Baltimore Colts in 1963 and he is in his 21st year as coach of the Miami Dolphins.

TOUR de FRANCE

Soviet wins, LeMond still 2nd

PAU, France -- Dmitri Konyshyev became the first Soviet rider to win a Tour de France stage, capturing a sprint victory Wednesday in the 93-mile ride from Lourdes to Pau.

Italy's Claudio Chiappucci retained the overall leader's yellow jersey and kept a five-second lead over American two-time winner Greg LeMond. The two finished in the main pack, 5:31 behind the stage winner, leaving the top standings unchanged.

LeMond survived a scare early in the stage when he fell behind with a flat rear tire near the summit of the Col de Marie Blancue.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Scott, Rohde shutout Mets

Mike Scott played sweet music but the Rohde stole the show.

David Rohde (pronounced Roa-die) went 3-for-3 and scored the game's only run and Scott pitched the Astros' first complete game shutout of the season for a 1-0 victory over the New York Mets.

Scott and 13-game winner Frank Viola traded seven shutout innings.

Rohde, who collected six hits in the series to raise his average from .132 to .244, opened the eighth with a single to right off Alejandro Pena, 2-3, who came on after Viola was lifted for a pinch hitter. Scott drew a walk and Eric Yelding beat out a slow-roller down the third-base line to load the bases. Pena struck out Candaele before Javier Ortiz lifted a run-scoring single to right for the game-winner.

Elsewhere in the NL, Pittsburgh clubbed San Francisco 11-2, Chicago sank San Diego 4-2, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 4-3, Cincinnati outlasted Montreal 8-7 in 11 innings, and Los Angeles trounced St. Louis 6-1.

Altamonte Juniors win

Hope to wrap up state spot Friday night

From staff reports

ROLLING HILLS -- Rich DiTore knows how Andy Hawkins feels.

Despite throwing a one-hitter, the 13-year-old pitcher for Oviedo's Junior all-star team found himself on the losing end of a 3-1 decision to Altamonte Springs Wednesday night in a District 14 clash.

Hawkins, a pitcher for the New York Yankees, threw a no-hitter a couple of weeks ago but still lost 4-0 to the Chicago White Sox.

With the win, Altamonte Springs advances to the district finals Friday night at Oviedo. They are now the only undefeated team in the double-elimination tournament.

Oviedo will take on the winner of the West Volusia-Deltona game tonight with the winner of Thursday's contest taking on Altamonte Springs Friday. Altamonte Springs will have to lose twice to be eliminated.

And in a game full of surprises, the winning run was no exception.

In the bottom of the seventh with two outs, T. J. Dixon stood on third while Ted Keller looked to knock the winning run home. But DiTore threw to third and caught Dixon in a rundown between third and home. Dixon collided with an Oviedo infielder during the rundown, and the umpire ruled interference, and Dixon scored the winning run.

"What a game that was for us," said Altamonte coach Frank Harmer. "The kids never quit. All we got was one hit but it won the game."

That hit came off the bat of Rene Perez, who smacked a two-run single to right field with two out in the fifth inning to erase a 2-1 deficit. He drove in Rich Alexander and Tim Frazier.

Dueling with DiTore for Altamonte was Chuck Little, who recorded his second win of the district tourney with a three-hit, 10 strike-out performance. He walked only two.

"We're getting the pitching," said Harmer of his team. "We're a great defensive ballclub. We have timely hitting. We will hit the ball better as we go along. DiTore was tough."

Harmer hopes his team can hit the ball like they did on Monday, when they ripped 17 hits in shredding Dr. Phillips 24-5.

Trailing 5-3 entering the fifth, Altamonte exploded for 11 runs in the fifth and added 10 more in the sixth. Joe Harmer and Dixon each had three hits and combined for nine RBI while Dixon picked up the win with three-and-two-thirds innings of no-hit relief. Bryan Schumaker, Perez, and Jared Varitek each added two hit, with Schumaker and Perez knocking in four runs.

SPBA knocks RMC out of top spot

From staff reports

SANFORD -- The Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night "D" League was thrown into a three way tie for the top spot as the Sanford Police Benevolent Association dropped RMC from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 6-5 nine-inning victory at Chase Park.

In the other games, Crazy Wings also moved into a tie for the league lead with a 2-1 come-from-behind win over Harcar Aluminum Products and the Killer Bees hammered Waddles Market 13-1.

SPBA, RMC and Crazy Wings are atop the standings with 4-1 records, followed by the Killer Bees (2-3), Harcar (1-4) and Waddles (0-5).

Next week's schedule has RMC facing the Killer Bees at 6:30 p.m., Harcar taking on SPBA at 7:30 p.m. and Waddles squaring off with Crazy Wings at 8:30 p.m.

RMC got off to a good start with three first inning runs as it looked to win its fifth straight game. Tom Tews and Mike Damico walked to start the inning and Brian Burgess and Rich Covell followed with RBI singles. Burgess later scored on a pair of fielder's choice ground outs.

RMC added another run in the second inning when Bob Keeney walked and scored on a one-out single by Randy Covell.

The score remained 4-0 until the bottom of the fourth when SPBA put a pair of runs on the board. With two out and no one on, Ned Golden doubled and Aaron Johns followed with a blast over the center fielders head for an inside-the-park home run.

But RMC got one of the runs back in the fifth on a pair of errors, with Damico scoring the run, to go ahead 5-2.

SPBA got a run closer in the fifth when Tim Fontana singled and pinch runner Mike Bennet came around to score on two fly balls and a throwing error.

SPBA finally tied the game in the sixth when Greg Smith singled. Arthur Barnes walked, Dave DeRosso flew out (moving Smith to third), Smith scored on Bobby Fisher's fielder's choice and Fisher scored on Golden's second double of the game.

RMC had chances to win the game in the seventh and eighth innings but were unable to push a run across. In the seventh, a two out single by Tews and a double by Damico had the go ahead run on third but a ground out ended the threat. In the eighth, RMC had the bases loaded with one out but the next batter hit into a 4-6-3 double play.

SPBA, meanwhile, was doing nothing offensively.

HD Realty and Wildcats win defensive struggles

From staff reports

SANFORD -- It was defensive struggle night in the Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night Slowpitch Softball "C" League at Pinehurst Park as the Wildcats and HD Realty both scored 6-3 victories.

The Wildcats took the measure of the Buschwackers and HD Realty bested Hall's Stucco.

The Wildcats remain atop the standings with a perfect 3-0 record, followed by HD Realty (2-1), the Buschwackers (1-2) and Hall's Stucco (0-3).

Next week, HD Realty faces the Wildcats at 6:30 p.m. and the Buschwackers square off with Hall's Stucco at 7:30 p.m.

The first game of the evening saw the Wildcats take an early lead with the Buschwackers making a strong comeback before the Wildcats added a pair of late insurance runs to secure the victory.

The Wildcats scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning when Tom Gibbons singled and scored on Mike McArdle's double. A pair of fly outs scored McArdle with Tony Hemmerberg getting the RBI. The final run scored on three consecutive Buschwackers errors with David Voeks scoring the run.

The Buschwackers got a run back in the third when Sam Griffin doubled, moved to third when A.W. Ines reached on an error and scored on Jim Jenkins' sacrifice fly.

The Wildcats fourth run scored in the second inning when Gibbons tripled with two out and scored on McArdle's single.

The Buschwackers scored single runs in the fifth and sixth innings to close the score to 4-3. Andy Griffin scored in the fifth as he and Allen Williams and Scott Cole had consecutive singles. Sam Griffin scored the run in the sixth after a single, a ground out and a throwing error.

But that was as close as the Buschwackers would get. The Wildcats tacked on a pair of insurance runs in the sixth on singles by Hemmerberg, Bill Gibbons and Bob Tavelli.

The Buschwackers had the tying run at the plate with one out in the seventh but a double play ended the threat and the game.

Phillips four hits Adcock

From staff reports

LONGWOOD -- Perhaps one could blame it on the weather. It was good for a change, or maybe awkward looking side-arm pitcher Chris Phillips was the culprit, but last night Adcock Roofing (Seminole High School's summer league baseball team) could only muster four hits in an 8-4 loss to the Lyman Bullets.

Adcock did take the early lead as Dave Eckstein led off with a walk, moved to second on Anthony Roberts' single, took third on a Jeremy Chumak sacrifice fly to center field, and scored on a pass ball.

Lyman tied the game in their half of the first thanks to Russ Davis legging out a double to right-center field. He scored on a sacrifice fly to right field by Hayes.

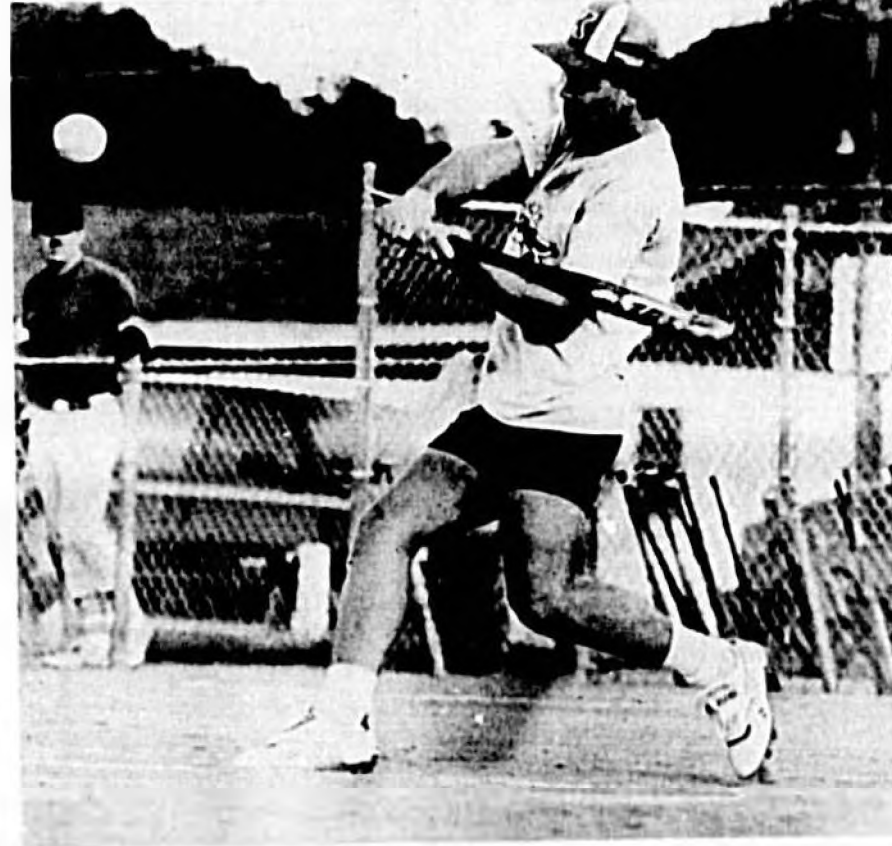

In the third, Adcock fell apart. The Bullets took advantage of some gifts to score five runs. With the bases full and two runs in, on RBI singles by Jeff Bouley and Kevin Stuckey, Hench, Hayes, and Kevin Scott all scored after Scott was hit by a pitch. Siemer walked and Adcock committed an error to give Lyman a 6-1 lead.

Behind Phillips and Scott, who came on in relief in the fifth, Lyman held Adcock to only singles by Roberts and W.L. Gracey until the seventh inning.

Meanwhile, Lyman scored two more runs in the fourth inning for an 8-1 advantage. Bouley led off with a single and, two outs later, scored

Man finds beautiful dog with ugly temper

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago, my husband brought home a dog he's been feeding at the construction site where he works. It was a beautiful male golden retriever, gentle and obedient, even though he was half-starved, filthy and covered with sores. We fed him, bathed him, loved him and kept him in the house at night.

Early one morning, our 9-year-old daughter was sitting on our bedroom floor petting him. She didn't startle him or hurt him — but he suddenly turned on her, biting her on the face, hand and arm! She threw herself at me, screaming and crying. I was half-asleep and the dog was still coming at us, snarling and growling. I threw my daughter to my husband and barred the way. The dog continued to attack me, so I kicked him to keep him away. He bit me on the leg and wouldn't let go.

Thank God my daughter's bites were superficial. We went immediately to the emergency room for tetanus shots and some small bandaging and disinfectants for her. Physically, she is fine. Emotionally, she still has nightmares and is afraid of dogs! I wasn't so lucky. The bite on my leg was serious, and yesterday, after a month and a half, the final stitches are out. My leg is still very sore. He damaged not only the tissue, but the muscle, and I will always have a big "dip" and scar on my leg.

Abby, we've taken in a lot of animals over the years and never had this happen. I don't want to make people afraid to adopt animals. But I wish someone had reminded us that strange animals can be unpredictable — and therefore very dangerous. If I had thought of it, my daughter would have been much more closely supervised until we all knew this beautiful dog much better.

SHOULD HAVE KNOWN BETTER

DEAR SHOULD HAVE KNOWN BETTER: Don't blame yourself for what happened. You had no way of knowing what trauma the dog might have experienced before it found a home with you.

I would advise anyone considering adopting a stray or abandoned pet to have it examined by a veterinarian for possible medical or behavioral problems that may not be immediately apparent. (A rabies vaccination is a must!) And allow at least one month for the animal to adapt to its new surroundings before completely letting your guard down.

ADVICE

DEAR ABBY: You were off the mark when you stated that you and I pay for the many changes in stamp design. Stamp collecting is big business worldwide, and the millions of stamp collectors request a continuous flow of commemorative stamps to honor famous people, places and important events. Collectors purchase these stamps, which are never used for postage, and the sale of those stamps more than pays for the stamp design, and even makes a profit for the U.S. Postal Service.

DEAR MICHAEL J. DIOLIO: You're right. And since I published that letter I have learned that thousands of stamp designs are submitted, most of which are rejected. Two recent rejects: a stamp with beer-flavored glue on the back, and a commemorative stamp to honor the first out-house.

DEAR ABBY: I received a form to fill out in response to having indicated that I will attend my high school's 25th reunion.

There was a space for "spouse." Abby, I have no spouse, but I have been living with a person for several years in a committed relationship, and this person shall attend with me. How should I fill in the blank? I can't very well put "live-in," can I?

GOING HOME

DEAR GOING: No. But you could write in "companion," "friend" or "significant other."

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Jay Newton

Kim MiRan Williams weds in Annapolis ceremony

Kim MiRan Williams and Jeffrey Jay Newton were married recently at the Annapolis Church of Christ.

Joe Bagby, minister of the church, officiated and a reception followed at the Faculty and Officers' Club at the Naval Academy.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall L. Williams of Annapolis. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Newton of Sanford.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose her sister, Ann Brandeis Williams, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Michelle Cope, cousin of the bride, and Kim Mitchell. Hope and Joy Bagby were the flower girls.

Glenn Newton was best man for his brother. Ushers were Mark and Dale Newton, brothers of the groom, and Adam Fischer.

The bride is a staffing coordinator for Kimberly Quality Care in Glen Burnie.

The groom graduated from Johns Hopkins University and is a civil engineer for Boyd and Dowgiallo Engineers, P.A. in Glen Burnie.

After a wedding trip to Barcelona, Spain and the Canary Islands, the couple is living in Glen Burnie.

Smart diet habits help hiatal hernia

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 37-year-old female with a hiatal hernia. At times, I have difficulty swallowing and am interested in knowing if there are foods I should avoid. Can the hernia get larger? How often should I have it checked?

DEAR READER: Hiatal hernia is a weakness of the diaphragmatic opening through which the esophagus passes from the chest into the stomach. This weakness often permits irritating gastric acid to backwash into the esophagus, leading to heartburn, indigestion and dysphagia (difficulty swallowing).

This last symptom is probably caused by reflex contractions of the esophagus that interfere with the normal coordinated actions of swallowing. You may be helped by prescription anti-spasmodic medicine, such as belladonna/phenobarbital, taken at regular intervals before eating.

Antacids, such as Maalox and Gelusil, may relieve your symptoms by neutralizing gastric acid before it has a chance to burn the esophageal lining and trigger spasms. Also, drugs (such as Tagamet or Zantac) to reduce the flow of stomach acid may alleviate your discomfort.

In my experience, no across-the-board prohibition of certain foods is necessary. Patients with hiatal hernia learn by trial-and-error which edibles to avoid, but this is highly individualized. Many patients experience discomfort eating dry food or citrus; other people can consume spices, such as chili and curry, without difficulty. I advise you to avoid foods that produce symptoms — and check with your doctor about the medicines I mentioned.

Hiatal hernias enlarge during the aging process, as tissues in general become increasingly inelastic. Nonetheless, most patients can control their symptoms without surgery, which is reserved for hernias that are large or continue to cause problems despite medical therapy. You do not need to have your hiatal hernia checked unless you experience continuing symptoms.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hiatal Hernia." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title. (C)1990 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

By James Jacoby
The key to taking 11 tricks in hearts is to set up the club suit in dummy for diamond discards. But there is a small problem. If East wins a club trick, he will lead a diamond through declarer's king. West's jump to two spades and subsequent bid of four spades over four hearts highly favor his holding the diamond ace, so letting East gain the lead will almost automatically result in the failure of the contract. The solution is an unusual avoidance play. The certain way to prevent East from getting the lead is to duck the first spade trick. Then, unless West cashes the ace of diamonds right away, declarer will take the rest. If a second spade is led, declarer discards a club while winning dummy's ace. He can then play ace of clubs and ruff a club, go to dummy with a heart and ruff another club. He then returns to dummy and throws away all his diamonds on the now good club suit. Even if clubs divide 4-1, declarer will still succeed, since there are sufficient entries to dummy in the trump suit for him to ruff club losers three times. But it will all be to no avail unless South allows West to win the first trick.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 20, 1990

Social alliances could offer some surprising advantages for you in the year ahead. On the other hand, alliances formed for commercial purposes might turn out to be liabilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's possibility you might experience more stress than usual over the next few days in your personal relationships. Try not to take them too seriously. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you may have an opportunity to be of assistance to a person who was helpful to you recently. Volunteer if you're needed instead of waiting to be asked.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Dissension could result today if you're overly attentive to one friend in a little clique while ignoring others. Treat all of your pals equally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not underestimate your competition if you get involved in a competitive development today. Don't minimize your attributes, but at least be aware of the attributes of your competition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Guard against inclinations today to challenge the statements of friends just because they're not in accord with your perceptions. Both parties could be wrong.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone who is already indebted to you might request more material assistance from you today. It might be unwise to throw good money after bad.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone with whom you're closely involved may make a decision today that affects you both. If it doesn't serve your best interests, try to rectify it promptly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a rather tricky time. If you don't take measures to dispose of your responsibilities as they occur, things could begin to pile up on you and you'll no longer have control of events.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be your own person today even if your position opposes that of your peers. Don't let anyone pressure you into doing something that is not of your choosing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful that you are not too assertive today in domestic situations where you should be tactful instead. If you start rocking the boat, there's a chance it'll capsize.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In order to perform productively today, you will have to be consistent. Little of value will be accomplished if you start making changes every time you run into some trivial obstacles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Skillful management of your resources is required at this time. Don't take on financial obligations where you'll have to rob Peter to pay Paul to make them work.
