School Children Taking The 'Nice Pill' Regularly

By JEANNE VAP
 Copley News Service

Answering a knock at the door, six-year-old Tommy said, "Yeah, I can come out to play as soon as I take my pill."

"You mean the 'nice' pill?" the neighbor boy boomed, "I take it too! It makes me be nice. When I don't take it, I'm bad."

Two years and about $300 later, Mrs. Roy E. Handley has taken her son Tommy off the "nice" pill.

Many a mother takes an acetaminophen pill when she gets tired, a tranquilizer when she is intense, a sedative to go to sleep at night—why not give her son a pill to make him "be nice"?

In the grade schools, there are children taking "nice" pills at noon, under the supervision of the school staff, and the 60-pound kid with sagging hollows under the eyes who has lost 20 per cent of his body weight, his appetite and hasn't slept well for weeks.

"It's one thing to give a 5,000-calorie-a-day prize fighter a little desferrioxamine, but something else to prescribe it to a child as a way of life.

"The amphetamines don't like heroin, but they do cause psychological dependence. You are setting your kid up for chronic letdown when you take him off the drug.

"The drugs use up the central nervous system reserves—like burning out the lead plates in a battery."

Tolerance also develops, Mrs. Handley, who lives in Sacramento, Calif., reported that her son's daily dosage of ritalin was increased from 10 to 60 milligrams in only two years.

Two Firms Plan Seminole Plants

By LARRY NEELY

Two out-of-state firms are finalizing plans to locate branch plants, employing a total of 500 persons, in Seminole County, it was reported at a public luncheon-meeting of the Orlando-Orange Industrial Board at Florida Hospital yesterday.

James O. Picone, executive director of the industrial board, identified one firm to Greg Drummond, Seminole County Commission chairman, as the Paragon Wire and Cable Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y.

Picone said the firm will employ 100 persons and is negotiating for space at Longwood, Paragon officials, via long distance telephone this morning, would not comment to The Sanford Herald other than to report the firm is negotiating for a "plant in Central Florida."

Picone, at the luncheon, stated an electronics company is negotiating for a site in Seminole County and will employ 400 persons.

Drummond commended the Orlando-Orange Industrial Board for its efforts in behalf of Seminole County.

NOT MUCH LEFT
 Injured this morning in a traffic accident on U.S. 17-92 and Lake Mary Boulevard was Jessie Lee Washington of Deland, whose car was struck by a truck operated by Willie Lee Hills, a Sanford driver for Hoyette Hudson Fruit Company. Investigated by Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Robert Lovring, Hills was charged with improper passing and Washington was removed to Seminole Memorial Hospital and listed later in "good" condition. Washington's car was listed a total loss and minor damages were sustained by the truck. (Staff Photo)

Victim's Actions Outlined

By MARION BETHEA

The prosecution this morning knitted closely the threads in the web of evidence by which it hopes to convict Henry Joyce of first degree murder in the love triangle slaying of Margaret Powell.

One witness testified that he had done mechanical repairs to the truck driven by Joyce, and at that time Joyce asked him the location of a pawn shop, saying that he wished to purchase a gun. The witness testified that he sold Joyce that he owned a new .38 RG which he would sell, and that he wrote the serial number of the gun on the lid of the box in which it came.

Subsequently he sold the gun to Joyce with six live cartridges on Sept. 7 or 8. The witness then compared the serial number which he had written with that of the gun found in Joyce's car, and they were the same.

(Related story, Page 1B)

Also testifying this morning was Joseph Pratt, retired cafeteria manager, who was Powell's former employer and long time friend. Pratt said that he arrived in Sanford Sept. 18 and that Powell told him that Mrs. Powell had left him on Sept. 14. Pratt said that sever-

"I told you so" isn't my cup of tea, but... remember the feature of my visit with the Marines at Camp Lejeune last year? Hinted at some "secret" (white papers) which this country issues to its fighting men on how to conduct themselves in Nam.

Like when to fire... when to have your gun loaded, etc.

The fact that Lt. Calley is being tried at all is a disgrace, as far as I'm concerned.

For Possible Dock Solution
Cobia Opens Door For Talks

Richard B. Dunning, newly appointed manager of Cobia Boats, Inc., a Sanford-based manufacturer, disclosed yesterday to The Sanford Herald officials his willingness to "leave the door open" for talks aimed at a possible solution to the sunken marina docks.

Dunning, visiting the new paper offices with other Cobia officials, including Edward Atchley, vice president, the former president of St. Lucie Marine, Inc., of Stuart, opined "I would never shut the door to talks with the city fathers, but I could not at this time take a stand without consulting our lawyers, since it has been placed in their hands."

The new manager was referring to the litigation now in the courts which seeks to define the responsibility for restoring the west marina docks which sank during the past year.

To Fight Smut In Seminole
Pornography Group Organizing

By BILL SCOTT

The first step toward setting up a county-wide group to fight pornography was initiated last night at a meeting of private citizens, law enforcement agents and the clergy.

Held at Florida State Bank's lounge, the session included a talk and slide presentation by Rev. Jack Epps, of United Christian Action, a non-profit interdenominational group.

Rev. Epps displayed a number of hard-core pornographic magazines, which he said he had purchased from newsstand vendors over the state.

WHEN POLLSTERS in Japan recently asked numerous men there where they'd like to go, if anywhere, they chose the United States, Brazil and Red China, in that order.

WHAT'S HARD to figure out is how some popular phrases got turned inside out. For instance, "I could care less," that's common now, but all wrong. It started out, "I couldn't care less," and so it will should read, rightly. Another is, "Just like Grant took Richmond," an easy time of it, so to say. But history shows Grant took Richmond only with great difficulty, and originally that phrase described what was tedious, slow, costly. Dozens of these inside-out expressions around. Our language man is collecting them.

AS FAR AS art goes, it's unknown who originated music, poetry, painting. Who originated the art of pantomime, however, is a matter of record. that show so-called "skin flicks" depicting nude scenes with men and women. Epps disclosed that such movie houses are mushrooming over the state and called them a threat to the moral environment.

The minister stated that because of court decisions it is difficult to obtain convictions against those persons responsible for the sale and promotion of the smut.

Epps advised that Citizens for Decent Literature, a Cincinnati group, had probably done more to focus attention on the problem following an educational and legal course.

Kenneth McIntosh, county prosecutor, said that vulgar photos are being sold at schools, subscribers to smut publications and newsstand paperbacks constitute the local pornographic problem.

He said that recently a young girl was convicted in county court for possession of pornographic literature and added "as far as I know we have no pornographic clubs here as such." He stated most of the photos come from Vietnam.

McIntosh added, "we need to organize, investigate and see if we can get some of these people representing all county areas in the county." He added "we need to organize a citizens group to file legal actions."

Sheriff John Polk disclosed he had sought to have a local drive-in theater pull a movie, "The Killing of Sister George," but discovered this would involve much legal work. McIntosh responded "we need to organize a citizens group to file legal actions."

Information obtained from that meeting could be utilized in chartering a non-profit group in Seminole County.

'The Boys Looking Good' At Raiford State Prison

Editors Note:
This look at problems in state prisons is one in a series of reports by Martin Dyckman, Tallahassee correspondent for the St. Petersburg Times.

By MARTIN DYCKMAN
St. Petersburg Times Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — If your son or brother or husband is sent to the state prison at Raiford, the prospects are eight out of 10 that he'll participate in homosexuality there.

This is the estimate of Dr. Manuel Guerrero, the Raiford psychiatrist. Inmates, ex-inmates and guards agree.

In that world without women, one ex-con explained, "You can forget what women look like. And after awhile the boys start looking good."

Homosexuality is not always voluntary. Many inmates are raped.

Guerrero qualified his estimate by noting that only a few—perhaps no more than 250 of Raiford's 3,500 men—are confirmed homosexuals. The rest who indulge are "situational homosexuals" who would prefer a woman had they the choice.

"Homosexuality has been a problem since prisons existed," commented Robert Turner, assistant superintendent at Raiford.

He's in charge of the main unit where 40 men alone live in overcrowded 10-man cells that are adequate for no more than four.

"Don't send me there," pleads

Enlightened Recruitment Of Youth In Seminole

One of the most encouraging signs indicating that 1971 may avoid the gross mistakes of unenlightened 1970 and move with understanding and effectiveness is the change which is surfacing in many forms when the role of young America is assessed.

One such took place in Sanford this week when young men and women of Seminole County were sworn in to Sheriff John Polk's Junior Deputies Division.

Here were boys and girls — ages 15-17 — who were interested enough in learning about law enforcement and gaining by actual personal experience to take part.

Such happenings are not limited to any county or any state. Reports on a national level have been coming in where the conscientious and vigorous law enforcement agencies have sought to enlist this proper interest of youth in a major responsibility of local governments and succeeded.

This does not, in any way, diminish the very real contribution to the restoration of a proper balance of interest and action which is taking place with Roger Blattenberger of Forest City as chief advisor to the Junior Deputies.

But it does accomplish at the county level an enlistment of the very real contribution which our youth can make to the climate of the community.

Learning by doing is an age-old educational process. When this is applied to law enforcement, however, there are obvious dangers, inherent in such moves, that call for the application of wise plans and wise supervision which will garner the wheat and destroy the tares.

What has already been done in the sheriff's department gives support to the hopes that, in this instance, the promises will be even more brilliant than the hopes which have inspired them.

We would be negligent if, in making this comment, we did not point out that some municipal police departments in the county have already taken similar steps.

Cooperation has taken the place of confrontation and controversy. This is not to say that all is sweetness and light in the ancient drama of "cop-and-boy" — both on the part of the police and the youngsters is healthier.

Here in Sanford there is the Sanford Junior Police League. It will celebrate its second anniversary next month. There are 75 members — boys ages 9-17. The league is self-supporting financially, self-disciplined under the experienced eyes of Sgt. William Foster, and rightfully proud of its honor guard.

These young boys are learning about law enforcement by taking part in proper activities and seeing its operation from the inside. Is this something which augurs good for the community? Indeed it does.

More than that, however, is implied by these happenings in our sheriff's department and in the police departments where youth has been enlisted, is being trained and is performing with credit to themselves and benefit to their home communities.

This is a real bridge over the communications gap which posturers and perplexes so many people in so many places.

It is also a clarion call for adults to wake up, to look at our young people with clear eyes and understanding hearts and let them be what they are ready to be, a major positive force in the critical 1970s.

Health Policy

Soaring medical costs, the burdensome Medicare-Medicaid program, and the pressures of public opinion, have combined to make health one of the major domestic issues of 1971. The Administration has announced highest priority for reform of the nation's health-care system.

Meanwhile, liberals in both houses of Congress have prepared their own far-reaching plans for compulsory national health insurance.

The time has come indeed to reconsider the plethora of health programs that politicians have approved from time to time to stay in office. When we do, we can see that the national experience in providing health care for the aged and needy has not been happy because there has been no overall national policy.

The patchwork of tinkered programs has become so unmanageable that it is one of the chief causes of spiraling medical costs in the nation as a whole, costs which are rising twice as fast as the cost of living.

The national medical bill, now $60 billion a year, is more than double what it was before 1965 when Washington first began intervening directly between the patient and his physician.

A number of solutions have been proposed to diminish the medical burdens and to bring us from the morass of publicly-subsidized medical care for the elderly and the poor.

Some approaches would seek to root out the faults of the Medicare and the Medicaid systems by eliminating abuses and generally tightening the program.

The state of bills in Congress on the subject as well as the number of ideas waiting in the wings to solve the nation's health care problems portray the deep roots of the matter.

The simple truth is that, brimming with good intentions, we have embarked on a major federal program of assuring some level of health care to a large segment of our society without really knowing what we are doing or where we are going.

Before the country's health-care problems can be solved, we must first define the government's overall aim and outline what it regards as same limits on the government's role.

What we need now is policy, not more programming; a restructuring of our health system instead of reshuffling more money through Washington.

Global Comment: Bonn Swap - West For East?

By LEON DENNEN
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Is there a crisis of confidence in U.S. relations with West Germany over Chancellor Willy Brandt's policy toward Russia?

Bonn denies it and so does Washington. Yet evidence is increasing that diplomatic relations between the two key NATO allies are deteriorating.

Top German officials are constantly coming to Washington to convince the Nixon administration that Brandt's Eastern policy ("Ostpolitik") is rooted in firm relations with the United States and the Western defense alliance.

"There is and always has been a high degree of agreement between the U.S. and West Germany," said Brandt's spokesman in Bonn.

Secretary of State William Rogers also denied in public statements that President Nixon was disturbed by Brandt's Ostpolitik.

Nevertheless, despite the official denials, a question mark has been placed behind U.S. endorsement of Bonn's Eastern policy. Some of President Nixon's top foreign policy advisers, including Henry Kissinger, are deeply concerned about the long-range implications of Brandt's frantic efforts to seek agreements with the Communists.

In their view, Bonn's chancellor has made too many unbridled concessions as price for the "monogamous" pact with the Russians and their East European satellites.

His overgenerous thus endangered the West's bargaining position on Berlin, the phased reduction of American troops in Europe and other key negotiating positions.

But it is not only one-sided territorial and economic concessions by Bonn that worry Nixon's advisers and other Americans experienced in East-West negotiations.

Brandt's "diplomatic adventures" could lead to a West German swing away from NATO toward Russia. It has long been Moscow's tactic to drive a wedge between Bonn and its allies in an effort to destroy NATO.

Hal Boyle Says: Unctuous Phrases - Hot Air

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — "What can I do for you?"

How often we hear these words from people we meet or talk to over the telephone. They have become a trite and unctuous phrase in our trite and unctuous times — a double-talk expression which, translated literally, to often means "Please don't ask me to do anything for you. I've got troubles enough of my own."

But what if, once in your lifetime, a mighty being able to do anything whispered in your ear, "What can I do for you?" And meant it.

The possibility is so startling one would hardly know where to begin. But I think I'd at least ask him for —

A molehill I couldn't turn into a mountain.

A bump-free highway through hell or, at least, one with pleasant detours.

A million-dollar nest egg to hide in a hole in the backyard, and another million-dollar nest egg to hide in the front yard, where no thief bothers to look for buried loot.

A lifetime pass to all pro football games.

A pretty red-haired girl friend during the week and two other pretty red-haired girl friends for the weekends.

An old-fashioned gold railroad watch with a gold chain and a gold-mounted elk's tooth.

Cinderella's glass slipper.

Ten Patton tanks and a sword called Excalibur.

A tete-a-tete with the Headless Horseman.

A crystal partridge in a platinum pear tree.

One vineyard in France and another in California and two distilleries in Kentucky.

A molehill in a platinum pear tree.

What can I do for you?

Well, I guess that's about all I can do for you. Anything else I'd need — such as a cure for insomnia — I could get for myself. After all, you have to leave something to a fellow to do for himself — otherwise he might get spoiled.

Washington Window

Nixon Listens To Shultz

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The way the Washington graveyards tell it, former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas was assured he would have direct access to President Nixon in his new job as Treasury secretary and would not have to go through George Shultz.

The story is probably true. But if Connally, who became the first Democrat in Nixon's cabinet, hopes to influence economic policy, he might do better to seek the "back door" to the White House through Shultz.

George P. Shultz, the 49-year-old former economics professor who was Nixon's first labor secretary, is emerging as the strong man on the administration's economic team.

Shultz carries the role of director of the Office of Management and Budget. But his impact has been clear on all of Nixon's recent efforts to cure the current combination of inflation and recession.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that of the several top-level strategists who give Nixon economic advice, Shultz's word carries by far the most weight.

Shultz is worried that a crash program to snap the economy out of its doldrums would result in a disastrous inflation. Accordingly, the administration has modified its plans to restore full employment by mid-1972.

As labor secretary, Shultz developed a reputation within the administration for cool efficiency. He also caught the eye and eventually won the admiration of the President.

BERRY'S WORLD

By DON OAKLEY, NEA Editor

According to Dr. Norman Borlaug, winner of the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize for his work in developing new strains of wheat, India is approaching self-sufficiency in food production.

In fact, she would have attained self-sufficiency by now, he says, if the so-called "green revolution" had led to a breakthrough in rice production as it has with wheat.

This is an amazing thing. Only a few years ago India was critically dependent upon emergency shipments of grain from the United States, and in all forecasts of an impending global population catastrophe, India was pointed to as an example of what was in store for the rest of the world.

India, of course, is still grappling with a serious problem of population growth. Common sense tells us that she must eventually reach an absolute ceiling in numbers, as must the world as a whole.

It is not just a matter of feeding people. There may be

Police Patrol Fog Area After 29-Vehicle Pileup

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — Highway Patrol officers moved warily through the thickening haze this morning on Interstate 75, where cars and trucks were shattered and one life lost in a killer fog hours before.

The patrol put extra men on duty in an effort to prevent a mishap today similar to that of a vehicle pileup which occurred along a five-mile stretch of the high speed roadway just north of here Wednesday morning.

The series of chain-reaction accidents came as southbound motorists drove into a thick fog and slowed their vehicles only to be struck from behind, where cars and trucks were shattered and one life lost in a killer fog hours before.

Twenty-three persons suffered injuries, four of them seriously and another, Ch. McMillen, 73, of Hastings, Mich., died several hours after the accident.

Troopers said the Michigan woman was killed after a truck slowed to avoid one of the two previous pileups and the car in which she was riding plowed into the rear.

The officers said there were four series of accidents in all, one of them involving a bus carrying 41 migrant workers, and estimated the damage to cars and trucks at $100,000.

All of the accidents occurred in the southbound lane.

The sun burned the fog off while workers were still clearing the roadway of debris but the National Weather Service reported the fog would return this morning.

A Highway Patrol dispatcher reported this morning that the fog was "getting pretty thick . . . we're just keeping our fingers crossed."

Auto traffic was expected to increase during the day and the number of troopers on duty would be increased, he said.

Corporate Tax Is Illegal, Attorney Opines

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The 1968 state constitution's chief drafter — now a top legal gun for Florida industry — says there was never any doubt among legislators or voters that the new constitution prohibited a corporate income tax.

Former State Senate President John Mathews, attorney for Associated Industries of Florida Inc. (AIF), urged the State Supreme Court Wednesday to throw out Gov. Reubin Askew's request for an opinion on the validity of such a tax.

But if the court should choose to answer Askew, Mathews said, then it "should once and for all time clearly enunciate what it holds to be the law of the state."

"The people of Florida have prohibited by constitutional amendment and reaffirmed in the constitution of 1968 the imposition of any tax on the income of either corporations, individuals or other legal entities."

Mathews, a Jacksonville lawyer, defeated for the governorship by Askew, was a member of the Constitution Revision Commission which drafted the document. He headed a group of three persons who put the proposed constitution into final form.

Mathews also led the fight for legislative adoption of the constitution, which was approved by voters in 1968 and took effect in 1969.

Now he has been hired by AIF, probably the single most powerful industry lobby group in Florida, to persuade the high court not to tell Askew the 1968 constitution authorizes a tax on corporate profits.

"No one can blame Gov. Askew for attempting, as did Gov. (LeRoy) Collins in 1967, to find a shortcut to some of the perplexing problems that face the chief executive of the state," he said in a 13-page brief.

Judges experts claim it will require $12 million more than is expected in revenue from current tax sources in 1971; just to finance existing programs — without adding new programs.

But the court shouldn't get into the business of prejudging a bill which may be submitted to the Legislature, he said.

NCAA Votes To Retain Schoastic Requirements

By HERSCHEL NISSINSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — The quietest NCAA convention in years ended Wednesday with members voting to retain the controversial 1.6 scholastic requirement and the spotlight shifted to the American Football Coaches Association for its coach of the year award today.

Eight coaches are in the running, but Bob Devaney of Nebraska's national champions has virtually been ruled out since he was scheduled to fly home this morning to help President Nixon honor the Cornhuskers. Devaney reportedly told the AFCA he would stay here if he was the coach of the year.

The other seven are Bob Blackman of Dartmouth, Frank Lautner of Toledo, Cal Stull of Wake Forest, Alex Agase of Northwestern, Charlie McClenon of Louisiana State, Darrell Royal of Texas and John Bialystok of Stanford. Blackman and Lautner have switched to Illinois and Iowa, respectively, since voting last month.

The NCAA also voted down the other significant proposal besides the one to abolish the 1.6 rule, that was an amendment sponsored by the policy-making NCAA Council that would have given it the power to review actions of the national organization's various rule committees.

The football coaches had feared that passage of the amendment could have signaled a possible return to one-planet football as a means of combating the rising costs that have permeated the sport.

Members turned down, however, a proposal to let freshmen compete in football and basketball at the university division level, where they can play all their sports.

The 1.6 grade average which an athlete must predict as an incoming freshman and then maintain was kept on the books despite opposition from a group of 32 schools in the Northeast.

In another action, the membership turned down a resolution that would have permitted student basketball competition by intercollegiate teams in 1972, 1973 and 1974.

In one game this season the team set a new college record and tied the pro record for Madison Square Garden by scoring 132 points against St. Peter. In the same game Art Gilmore, personally set a new Garden college rebound record by making 34 rebounds.

Plans To Boost Prices

Bethlehem Calls Nixon's Hand

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — The Bethlehem Steel Co. says it will go ahead with plans to boost prices of steel used in construction work and shipbuilding despite an indication from President Nixon that he might raise quotas on imported steel if the increases are implemented.

A statement released Wednesday also said the Nixon administration knew of the proposed increases in advance. The company said the administration gave no indication it "would react as strongly as it did."

The rate changes on four major types of steel, announced Monday, amount to boosts of 11 to 13 per cent. They are to take effect March 1. Bethlehem is the nation's second largest steel producer. The items involved account for one-sixth of the industry's total output.

The company said Stewart S. Cort, Bethlehem chairman, met with Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Cort, Bethlehem chairman, met with Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Cort said McCracken of the Federal Reserve Board, who had been in the conversation suggested the administration would react as it did the statement.

"The decision to increase prices was a business judgment," he continued, "and Bethlehem has no plans to rescind."

At the Western White House, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren confirmed that McCracken and Cort met Monday.

Cracken of the company's intention to announce higher prices.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, said Tuesday Nixon was "deeply concerned" by Bethlehem's action.

So far only a small producer, Lukens Steel Co. of Coatesville, Pa., has followed Bethlehem's rate change. The Lukens decision was made before the White House comment.

The nation's largest producer, U.S. Steel has said it was studying the matter.

Joyce Murder Trial Sounds As 'Mystery'

By MARION BETHEA

The state produced a barrage of witnesses yesterday in the Henry Joyce murder case which included members of the Seminole and Volusia County sheriff's departments, and a ballistics expert from the Florida Bureau of Law Enforcement.

The trial has all the mystery of an Eric Stanley Gardner book, with spectators so intent one could literally hear a pin drop.

The state produced several exhibits, and among those entered into evidence were two pairs of boots, one a large pair of men's, with the tips turned up, and the other a small pair, size 5 1/2. Also introduced were two revolvers, one found at the scene of the crime, the other wrapped in green socks, found in the trunk of Joyce's car.

Robert Grant, custodian of the evidence gathered, testified that he had found a stubby pad in a briefcase, which Joyce admitted was his, and that upon the first page was a diagram of the Powell home. Upon cross-examination Grant stated categorically that tip prints found on a flood light bulb were not those of Joyce.

Grant testified that the latest print was from the back area of the flood light. Upon re-cross-examination Grant admitted that he had removed the green socks with the gun... a .38 caliber Rohm, and that there was a leather gun holster in the briefcase.

L. L. J. Kris said that he had removed the green socks with the gun... a .38 caliber Rohm, and that there was a leather gun holster in the briefcase.

The ballistics expert, Donald Champlain, testified that he had received on Sept. 26 one spent cartridge case, one spent projectile, and five live .38 caliber cartridges. The expert said that he compared the expended cartridge case with a test fire from the Smith and Wesson revolver found at the scene of the crime, and that the spent projectile was not fired from this revolver.

Mountain Pass Cleared

By KATE WEBB

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — South Vietnamese Rangers and armor today cleared one of two Communist-held mountain passes in a 11,000-man joint drive to recapture Phnom Penh's lifeline to the sea.

American B52 bombers flew heavy raids in direct support of the Allied troops.

Military sources said other Phnom Penh Wednesday said South Vietnamese rangers were tightening a vise on the Viet Cong-held segment of the mountain pass.

Witnesses who visited the Kirirom Pass area southwest of Phnom Penh Wednesday said American B52s carried out two massive strikes. They were the first known raids by U.S. B52s since the start of the Vietnam War.

The sources said the Rangers and armor cleared the area following a heavy battle with the advancing South Vietnamese 12 miles north of Vial. The clearing was completed on charges of jettisoning 31 guerrillas and capturing a large quantity of weapons.

Other South Vietnamese Marines were advancing toward Pich Nil Pass, north of the Kirirom Plateau. The area was seized by North Vietnamese forces last Nov. 21 and the partial blockade of the highway has caused power and fuel rationing and aggravated inflation in Phnom Penh. The highway passes through both Stung Chhay Pass and Pich Nil Pass on its 210-mile route from Phnom Penh to Kompong Som, the nation's only deepwater seaport.

Communications from Saigon and Viet Cong units ambushed a South Vietnamese convoy on the Mekong River 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh Wednesday, damaging three small boats in the flotilla and wounding three soldiers. It was just such attacks that forced the Allies to abandon a system of refueling beleaguered Phnom Penh from river vessels.

The U.S. command in Saigon said today 27 Americans were killed and 43 wounded in the war last week. It was the lowest weekly combined toll of U.S. dead and injured in more than five years. The death toll was down from the 31 killed the previous week and brought to 142 the total Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1961.

State Knitting A Web In Joyce Murder Trial

an anonymous phone call were received by Powell, and specifically cited two on Sept. 22, two on Sept. 23 and four on Sept. 24, the day before Powell was slain. On the fatal day, Pratt stated that Powell received one such call at 6:55 p.m.

The state directed Pratt's attention to the events of the day of the murder, and Pratt said that he arose early, since he was upset over the phone calls, and then enumerated the day's activities. Pratt said the two men went to dine at a local restaurant and returned home at 8:45 p.m. Pratt noted that it was the custom of Powell to have flood lights on every evening, and in that condition.

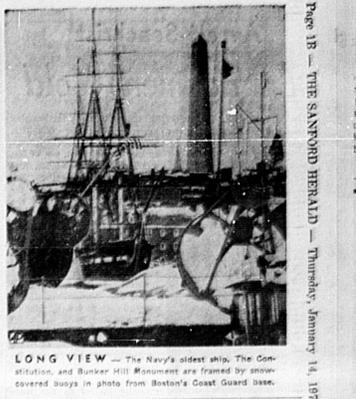

Following their return, Pratt said, Powell went outside to the east side breezeway of the house where there was a cluster of flood lights by the trellis... two were screwed from the socket and Powell proceeded to adjust them.

Then, Pratt said, Powell went to switch on the two flood lights at the front driveway and they were inoperable.

Powell got a .28 middle caliber revolver and flashlight and he and Pratt went outside, got a ladder and, by turning the knob two full turns, made a connection. They returned inside at 9:15 p.m. and Powell briefly watched television, later making two or three phone calls.

At 11 p.m., Pratt testified, Powell came back into the room and watched the news until 11:25 p.m. when the phone rang. Pratt said that Powell let the phone ring four or five times, and that Pratt started to the extension to listen as he had been prearranged.

Before he could do so, he heard Powell engaged in conversation with someone, whom he apparently knew, for four or five minutes. Then, Pratt said, Powell laid down the phone, came into the room, and said that he saw a prowler. Powell got a .28 Smith and Wesson from the TV and looked from the kitchen door to the carport, later going to the front door, and Pratt said Powell remained inside as Pratt remained inside as

Priests, Others Deny Charges Claim No Part In Plot For Bombing, Kidnaping

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rev. Philip Berrigan, the imprisoned antiwar priest, and four others have denied they were part of an alleged bombing-plot, scoring the charges as a government attempt to discredit the antiwar movement.

Berrigan, 47, and five others were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., on charges of plotting to kidnap presidential aide Henry Kissinger and to blow up heat tunnels in government buildings.

The grand jury met on the case again Wednesday and Ast. U.S. Atty. Guy Goodwin said one reason for continuing the probe was the possibility that some of those being questioned might become defendants.

Two of the defendants were released on bail after spending a night in jail and three others were held in lieu of $30,000 bond apiece.

Berrigan remained at the federal prison in Danbury, Conn., where he is serving a six-year sentence for destroying draft records in Maryland.

His brother, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, 49, who is serving a three-year sentence at Danbury on similar charges, was one of seven persons named as co-conspirators in the case but not formally charged.

"We call on all our fellow citizens, whatever their politics or religious beliefs, to repudiate the use of fabricated accusations and state trials to facilitate the implementation of foreign and domestic policies that may, if unchecked, now, make peace, freedom and truth anachronisms of another day," they said.

"We call on all our fellow citizens, whatever their politics or religious beliefs, to repudiate the use of fabricated accusations and state trials to facilitate the implementation of foreign and domestic policies that may, if unchecked, now, make peace, freedom and truth anachronisms of another day," they said.

At her arraignment in Newark, N.J., she said she was "astounded and shocked" by the charges, adding that she thought the government was trying to silence the antiwar movement by jailing critics "perhaps for the rest of their lives."

Air Bag, Safety Device

By G. C. THELEN JR., Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is preparing to compromise with auto manufacturers on the hotly contested issue of safety devices that automatically protect car occupants in crashes, it was learned today.

Administration officials close to the auto safety program said the Department of Transportation will hold its July 1, 1973 deadline for beginning installation of so-called air bags.

But the department will exempt lighter-weight car models from the deadline and probe will adjust the timetable for installing the inflatable cushions in all seating positions, these officials said.

"We're determined to maintain our credibility but not put smaller auto manufacturers out of business," said one highly placed source.

Automakers' aggressive resistance to the air bag deadline has become the major test of the Transportation Department's intentions on car safety enforcement.

The government twice has postponed deadlines for installing the inflatable bags—first from Jan. 1, 1972, to Jan. 1, 1973, then to July 1, 1973. The 1973 date would apply to 1971 model cars.

Good Meat Buys

By BARBARA KOBER
Copley News Service

You think it's impossible to find reasonable prices in meat? That there's no such thing as a good value in meat? Not so.

A homemaker can find good buys.

Here's how to do it.

Meat — usually the most expensive part of any menu — should provide about one-third of the protein for the average family diet.

But there are alternatives. Compare the meat, poultry, fish alternatives, too. Here you may be able to save money without loss of food value. You can plan your menus according to value as well as to your taste.

Check the amounts of various cuts and types of meat. They provide the equal amount of cooked lean meat. Which do you need — and which do you want?

Dry beans and peas, peanut butter, cheese and eggs are good buys in protein.

To provide 20 grams of protein you would need more than a cup of cooked or canned dry beans. For the same amount of protein, you would need 4 1/2 cups of peanut butter and two-thirds of a cup of cottage cheese.

You could also substitute one slice of bacon or two or three ounces of lean meat or poultry.

The whole game is one of replacing expensive meats with inexpensive ones or meat alternatives to supply a like amount of protein.

Just compare some prices.

Three ounces of hamburger, for example, costs approximately 17 cents. Three ounces of beef liver, 14 cents; three ounces of ocean perch, 19 cents; and three ounces of chicken, 20 cents.

But three ounces of sirloin steak costs 58 cents. Porterhouse steaks run 83 cents and lamb chop, 85.

Now look at some meat substitutes.

The amount of dry beans needed to supply 20 grams of protein costs only four cents and eggs cost 12 cents. Tuna fish costs 17 cents; American processed cheese, 19 cents; soybeans, 42 cents and bacon, 48 cents.

At that time they arranged for a trip to the Kapok Tree in Clearwater, for Jan. 28. Those interested in taking the trip should telephone Harold Gurrill—574-1918. Reservations must be made in advance. When Club members have been taken care of, the general public will be considered to fill the bus.

DELTONA — Mrs. Albert Croninger, president of the Deltona Garden Club, presided at the executive board meeting, Jan. 8, at the Community Center.

Carnation Circle was hostess and created the beautiful floral arrangements for the speaker's table. This meeting marked the installation of officers for the 13th Garden Circle, "Azalea."

Mrs. Carl Posey heads the Azalea Circle as president; Mrs. Robert Davidson is vice president; Mrs. John W. Lacey, secretary; Mrs. Robert C. Davidson, vice president; and Mrs. Herbert Roes, publicity chairman. Treasurer, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, was absent.

The group was welcomed into the Garden Club by the executive board represented by Mrs. McInain Post, chairman of the membership committee. Mrs. Lee was not present. Mrs. Herbert Roes officiated as acting treasurer in her absence.

The devotional program was offered by Mrs. Cecil Halbert. As usual the pledge to the flag was dedicated and impressive. Due to the resignation of Mrs. David Lewis, Mrs. John Bentler is now acting recording secretary and will fill out the year in this position.

Mrs. Carroll Griffin will hold a Parliamentary Workshop at the Feb. 12 meeting. A change in program demands that the regular monthly meeting start at 9:15, with coffee and refreshments at 10:15, followed by Mrs. Griffin's program at 10:30. Mrs. Griffin is from the Federated State Garden Club.

The Workshop will be followed with a question and answer period. Mrs. Whitman Hopton is in charge of the luncheon to follow at Deltona Inn at 1:00 o'clock. Please make your reservation in advance by phoning Mrs. Hopton at 668-8015.

Mrs. Halbert, chairman of the Garden-of-the-Month Committee, will initiate a new system in the listing of names and addresses to be used in selecting the Garden of the Month. All circles are urged to have a representative at the next meeting held at her home at 1019 Abadan Drive, Jan. 28 to become familiar with the new system. January's Garden-of-the-Month couple are Mr. and Mrs. William Fantone of 886 Tamarlane Street.

Arbor Day, Jan. 18, will be celebrated at the Deltona Junior High School in Enterprise, starting at 10:00 a.m. Mrs. Walter Sellman, chairman of the beautification committee, plans to make plantings with the help of the school. Deltonans are invited to watch the proceedings if they wish. Plants and trees to be planted are 50 seedling strip pines, 20 Rotunda Hollies, one seven-foot Holly tree, one Bottlebrush bush, and an eight-foot Camphor tree. The children take part in these ceremonies.

Mrs. Carl Johnson, conservation chairman, asks all to be especially careful not to spray while robins and other birds are in our area. She urges all to remember that bluejays plant acorns and this helps in the new growth of oaks.

We may never see an American Bald Eagle in our yards, as usual the pledge to the flag when we see a large bird fly over, we may see the white head and white tail with brown body that characterizes the beloved Bald Eagle, our National emblem.

There are eagles in the Deltona DeBary area and they need protection. Until an eagle is three years old, it is usually taken for a marauding hawk. They should never be shot at, if we wish to sustain the species in this area.

Program Delights Clubbers

By LIZ MATHEUX

The first monthly meeting of the Geneva Garden Club was conducted at the Geneva Community Center with the president, Mrs. V. M. Smith presiding.

The meeting was opened as usual with the reciting of the club prayer and the calling of the roll.

Because of previous commitments, the guest speaker was presented in the portion of the program usually reserved for business. Mrs. Doris Mager of the Florida Audubon Society presented a most delightfully informative and interesting series of slides relative to the "Birds of the Dry Tortugas."

Mrs. Mager is a member of the Audubon staff in charge of sales and service at Audubon House in Mallard. She has led and frequently enjoys leading a group out of the country on expeditions. Her format was well-prepared and presented in a manner understandable to all. It was pointed out that a good deal of the work done in connection with the birds was strictly on a volunteer basis and that living conditions at the appointed point of destination were usually quite primitive.

Mrs. R. V. Rogers, a newcomer to the community was presented as a welcomed guest. Her husband is a veterinarian.

As per usual, Mrs. Dorothy Thomas, Horticultural chairman surpassed her usual floral offerings in the form of an exquisite grouping of some "Betty Sheffield" Camellias; she further expounded upon the aforementioned blossom and gave a thumb-nail sketch as to their "likes and dislikes." The subject of Azaleas and the perennial favorites — the Evergreens!

Here's How: For Do-It-Yourselfers

By CHARLES A. TAYLOR
Copley News Service

Q. Our den and living room are paneled with redwood. It is quite old and looks a bit tacky. We would like to refinish the paneling and preserve the natural redwood look. How do we go about it? Is it necessary to remove the old finish?

A. If a clear finish is to be applied, the old finish must be removed. If a new finish with paint and varnish is to be applied, the old finish must be removed and the surface must be sanded and smoothed. If there are any old, persistent stains, these can be lightened by applying a bleaching solution of one ounce oxalic acid to one quart of alcohol. The solution should be swabbed over the wood with a soft cloth or brush, and allowed to dry. Be sure then to remove this acid solution by washing the surface with an alcohol-dampened cloth. Make more than one application if necessary. Use with care, however, as oxalic acid is poisonous. For refinishing low-gloss opaque painted surfaces, wipe down the old finish with turpentine before reapplication. A high-gloss finish should be sanded and then wiped clean with turpentine. Scaling particles should be removed with paint and varnish remover and the surface then cleaned.

Q. I recently finished our coffee table with one-inch ceramic tile. The job came out very nice. My problem is that I did not use rounded-edge tile on the edges and corners, so these edges are quite sharp. Children might run into the table and hurt themselves.

A. There some way I can sand it, grind it or file it to lessen this danger?

A. The edges of the table could be smoothed somewhat by sanding with a coarse production-type sandpaper (Production Land-Pak is the trade name), using it with an electric sander if possible. The latter tool can be rented. Follow this treatment by using a medium-grade sandpaper. It would then help to apply a terrazzo-type sealer, preferably two coats.

Q. We are replacing window glass in metal sash. Should I apply a coat of good priming paint before replacing the pane? A friend advises this, but if so, what kind of primer should I use?

A. Priming a metal sash with a quality steel primer will retard rust, which causes pitting to loosen its bond from the metal. Priming a metal sash also will provide a roughened surface which will make for good adhesion to the putty. When the primer is dry, apply an even coat of putty or glazing compound on the inside of the sash and the molding against which the glass pane will rest. Your friend was correct.

Q. I would like to install vinyl asbestos tile over a concrete floor that is not very smooth. If there are any deep, persistent stains, these can be lightened by applying a bleaching solution of one ounce oxalic acid to one quart of alcohol. The solution should be swabbed over the wood with a soft cloth or brush, and allowed to dry. Be sure then to remove this acid solution by washing the surface with an alcohol-dampened cloth. Make more than one application if necessary. Use with care, however, as oxalic acid is poisonous. Illinois Club Sets Dinner

By ELLA MAY FRAZER

DELTONA — To start off the new year the Illinois Club will meet at the Deltona Community Center for the usual monthly dinner, Jan. 18, at 6 p.m. Former residents of Illinois are most welcome.

Meat and beverages are furnished by the Club. This month the kitchen committee consists of Mrs. James O'Brien, wife of the new vice president, Mrs. Bernard Stein, and Mrs. Don Shay. Those attending the dinner are asked to bring a vegetable, salad, or dessert, plus table service — plate, cup and tableware.

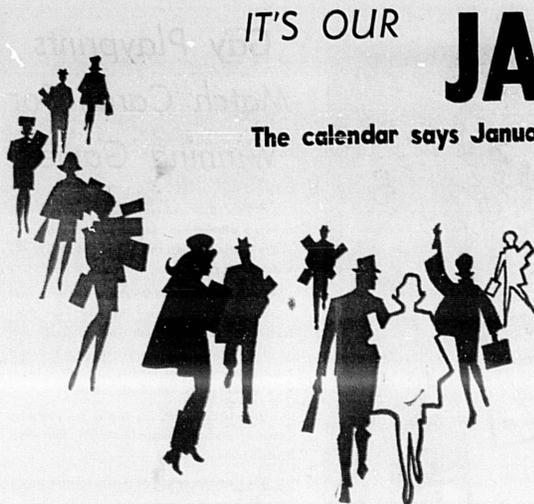

Members, and those wishing to join the Club, are reminded that 1971 dues are now due and should be paid at the Jan. 18 meeting. For information, it's the third Monday in every month that former Illinoisans get together for fun and food and they think they have the best cooks in Deltona. After the business meeting, the Club plays bingo, unless other entertainment is planned. Plans for trips may be discussed at this meeting.

Ray Steinhauer says, "Tell everyone to come. We have a good time. We don't want any former resident of Illinois to feel left out. Dues are nominal and friendships are just waiting to be made."

Also Mrs. Clara Freeman of Clement; Mrs. Nettie Pelham; Mrs. Don Anderson and daughter Tracy of Orlando; Miss Agnes Edwards; Bartow; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams, Altamonte Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Bush, Ocala.

They were involved in the nighttime accident which occurred at Saxon and Enterprise Roads on the western edge of Deltona. Both of them were seriously injured and are now under the care of nurses around the clock.

Mrs. Landeau's sister, Nita, Mrs. Joseph Vinour from Miami is with them and so is her daughter, Rita. Mrs. Dale News of York, Pa.

Mrs. Landeau has two broken wrists and a seriously bruised body; he still has no use of his legs or his hands.

They would enjoy cards from friends and neighbors. We wish them well. Mrs. Lewis Bucher is taking care of Gigi, the Landeau's toy poodle, who is being taken to a home just which house she really lives in, as the Bucher's live next door! Gigi was also in the accident but seems to have come through it only a bit frightened.

Miss Marion Keyes of Needham, Mass. and Mrs. David Porter of Deltona were guests of Mrs. Allan Frazer for lunch on last Thursday at Maison en Jardin in Altamonte Springs. Marion is visiting her sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Flad of Deland.

Mrs. Eugene O'Connell (Married to 1323 E. Hancock Drive) is now home from Seminole Memorial Hospital in Sanford. Mrs. O'Connell turned 70 a few weeks ago and fell, breaking a leg that had been broken before. She is still in a cast and not too able to get around. However, her husband came down from the North when he heard of the difficulty and is with her now, taking care of her. She can have "limited" company, and of course would love to get cards and notes and phone calls from friends. Best of everything, Marie!

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bliss (Sadie) are home from a trip to visit their son James and his family in Houston, Tex. They report "a wonderful time" but are glad to be home at 1349 E. Hancock Dr. It's great to see that son Cheryl back in the career! Sadie will now get back into the spin of church work and club work. An ardent seamstress, she makes many of those lovely things you see for sale at Bazars given by the United Church of Deltona.

Sewing Book Tells It All!

By JOANNE SCHRIEBER

If you're shopping for someone who sews, you're in luck. If she takes her sewing seriously, she will like the new Vogue Sewing Book. It's a handsome and hefty volume of more than 400 pages. Fashion sewing is established as an art form on the first page, and individual fashion is stressed as strongly as sewing technique elsewhere through the book.

It is divided into four sections. The first, The Fashion Game, is designed to give her an awareness of her own personal fashion identity. If she's not sure of her fashion formula, she can consult a comprehensive chart which balances fashion components against figure characteristics. It can tell her, for instance, that a halter neck line does nothing for a short neck. Colors, fabrics and linings are included in this section.

In Your Pattern Profile, she will be introduced to the world's top designers from France, England, Ireland, Italy, Spain and America.

The how-to section of the book is called Creating Fashion for the Individualist, and it covers every imaginable aspect of dressmaking technique. From pattern layouts through tailoring, working with fur, couture techniques and handling trims. Straight-forward sketches illustrate the text, and color pages zero in on such details as collars, pleats, sleeves, seams, zippers, buttonholes and belts.

Book IV is titled Niceties and Necessities. If she has been sewing on a card table in the bedroom, this section will open up a whole new way of life. The sewing room is destined to be come the most creative, the most glamorous, the best-equipped and quite possibly the largest room in the house.

If she's up expert, this book talks her language. If she's a beginner, she'll find the answer to every sewing challenge.

On a less-grand scale, the notions department of your favorite store is sure to be loaded with new sewing aids. Heading the list is a gadget called a Wiss Clip. It's a palm-sized pair of scissors with a spring action and is convenient because it can be held next to the palm for thread-snipping while you are pinning, chalking or doing other hand jobs.

Sure to be welcome is a dress length of one of the new miracle fabrics, Quana in the silklike nylon, and Trevira in the newest of the polyesters. Both are available in all sorts of weaves and textures, both have all the space-age characteristics anyone could want, and a five-yard length of either would be a terrific gift.

Another sewing basket newcomer is stretch lace which is a flexible, pretty and available in two widths. It's great for facing a hem let down to the bitter end, as well as for covering all sorts of raw edges pre-dressmaking technique. From pattern layouts through tailoring, working with fur, couture techniques and handling trims. Straight-forward sketches illustrate the text, and color pages zero in on such details as collars, pleats, sleeves, seams, zippers, buttonholes and belts.

Iron-ous have gone glamorous with iron-on embroidery kits to be used for dungarees, ponchos, vests, sweaters and other teen trappings. Delta offers such designs as the peace symbol, a butterfly or a bumblebee in iron-on patch form with embroidery yarn to complete the decorative patches.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: To get right down to brass tacks, I don't trust my husband. We work different hours and I think he has a thing or two with another woman.

Is there some way I can get our home telephone hooked up to another telephone somewhere else so I could listen in on his telephone conversations? I would be willing to rent a motel room temporarily and have an extension phone from our home installed there. The suspicion is driving me out of my mind. I know you and the staff that I could take it, but the uncertainty is killing me. How can I get proof?

LOSING MY MIND What you suggest is illegal, and no telephone company would assist you with your plan. Since you are willing to accept the fact that your husband has someone else, if indeed he has, I suggest you ask him.

DEAR ABBY: I wear contact lenses. I recently stayed overnight at a girl friend's house, and her little brother watched, fascinated, as I put in my contact lenses. His wife had never seen anything like that before. I very carefully explained that contact lenses were "little eye-

GLASSES made especially for me, and that no one should ever put anything into the eyes which was not made especially for that purpose.

I made sure the child understood me because I once heard of a little child who had watched her mother put contact lenses into her eyes often. The child found a small piece of broken glass, and wanting to "imitate" her mother, she stuck the broken glass into her eye, and subsequently the child became blind in one eye.

You may think this is worth passing on, Abby.

LINDA DEAR LINDA: Indeed, I do. Thank you for writing. DEAR ABBY: My son who was in college, had an affair with this girl and she became pregnant. He married her to give the child a name and he had to quit college to support the child.

The continued in college, got her degree and is now teaching in the same college. Now my son can't finish college because of having to support the child.

This is what hurts: His ex-wife lets the child (now five years old) come to visit me and this child tells me that his mother sleeps with her

DEAR POLLY: I am answering Mrs. S. B. who has bananas stains on her child's clothes. I worked in a fruit store in the days when bananas were hung up and had to be cut off the stalk. The stains come from that little piece on the end next to the stalk. It even drips out. Nothing in the world seems to get out these stains. Be very careful when bringing bananas home from the store. Jacoby On Bridge

South's two-club call was the artificial forcing opening used by nearly all experts today. North's two-heart response was JACOBY MODERN and showed from 4-6 high-card points. It also committed to game or higher. In JACOBY MODERN the two-club opening forces to game except when partner gives the artificial two-diamond response to show 0-3 high-card points. In that case it only forces to one trick below game.

South's four-spade contract would be reached in any system but it was about having an immediate spade raise.

West opened the three of clubs. East took his bid and returned the ace. South's 10 lost to West's jack and West continued with the

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE 646: Norman D., aged 42, is rapidly becoming an alcoholic.

"Dr. Crane," his grieving wife began, "what can I do to help my husband break the liquor habit?"

He has joined Alcoholics Anonymous, which did him a lot of good, but he fell off the water wagon again.

"So I am urging him to get active again in A.A. but what else can I do to help him?"

Alcoholics Anonymous is a splendid fraternity of former drunkards who now become helpful cheerleaders of current addicts.

But its members admit they never are able to "cure" the alcoholic, so the victims are always in danger of falling off the water wagon if they even taste another sip of liquor.

"A.A." thus compares with insulin, which is also not a cure of diabetes but merely a means of keeping the diabetic in good health with a normal blood sugar level of the blood.

Actually, the "w" water wagon is to be removed of the cause!

And the cause of drunkenness is varied, usually consisting of:

(1) Flight from either physical or psychological.

Before and after surgery let surgical patients drink whiskey to dull the pain of our scalpel.

Nowadays, alcoholics are much more likely to be fleeing from psychological pain, such as humiliation in the boardroom, or financial inability to support a family, or prolonged anxiety due to dread of cancer, the military draft and possible death in battle.

Alcoholism is thus likened to the fire escape from a burning building, except the alcoholic has an inner "burning" from shame, fear or failure.

It is obviously unwise to tear down the fire escape in trying make the rest of the tricks if trump broke 2-2 but against the actual and rather normal 3-1 break, he would have been about out of dummy forever and would have had to lose two heart tricks.

Jacoby and Son

South was about to fall into the trap when he saw that he had a fine safety play at his disposal. He discarded a heart from dummy on the third club.

This would not have helped him if either opponent held all the trumps but it took care of the actual 3-1 split. He simply won the heart shift with his ace, drew trumps with three hearts, cashed his ace and king of diamonds, led his ace of trump to dummy's king and discarded his high diamonds.

At this point it would have returned the ace. South's 10 lost to West's jack and West continued with the

Worry Clinic

By Dr. Crane

to quench a flaming hotel building, isn't it?

For victims of such a conflagration may then leap out of the windows to their doom. Whiskey can thus be made so nauseating to the drunkard that he shuns it, for he knows he will vomit because of our medical drugs.

But he may then flee from inner "burning" via LSD or Marijuana or barbiturates or even insanity and suicide.

Chronic alcoholism is very likely based on sexual fears, or of premature impotence or sterility (especially in the case of women).

So a wife like Norman's can banish his inner torment and restore his sexual assurance, thereby making him immune to alcohol.

Remember, neither lower animals nor man will flee from pleasure!

Flight, either physical or via drugs and whiskey, usually indicates a painful social situation.

(2) A second reason for chronic alcoholism is to anesthetize conscience.

Thus, many college women drink alcohol so they can escape censure from their consciences if they enter into an affair before morning.

And many men who wish to indulge in sexual perversions but hesitate to mention such things to their cultured wives, will get drunk and then consort with disolute women who have no such scruples.

(3) A third reason for alcoholism is to have a convenient ally to mollify parents or school friends or even juries.

For there is a widespread belief that "if I am drunk, then I can't be blamed for illicit sex or for an auto crash." So send for my booklet, "How to Break the Liquor Habit," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

File Important Item In Tool Box

By MR. FIX
A file is the tool you use to keep all your other tools in shape. As such, it could easily be the most important item in your tool box.

In practice, it probably is the most neglected.
Use files to keep saws and drill bits sharp, garden tools in shape. Remember that it is a maintenance tool for other tools.
Most tool boxes contain one or two files and almost invariably these are rusted, broken or caked with dirt.
Even then they may not be the right type for the job at hand. There are special files with different teeth designed for softer metals and there are special shapes for different jobs. Filing an auger bit, for example, requires a special sort of file. Tell your hardware dealer what you intend to do with the file and allow him to steer you the right way.

Files are available in all shapes, lengths, cuts and degrees of coarseness. Basic shapes are flat, round, half round, triangular and square.
If the file is designated as a single cut it has single parallel rows of teeth. A double cut file has rows of teeth crossing each other. The single cut is generally used for finer work.

A rasp has sharp, individual teeth in a checker board pattern. Use this file for extremely rough work. Another file used for rough work has curved, parallel cutting edges.

The file length is the size of the part of the file that has teeth. The pointed end, called a tang, is the part that is inserted in a handle.
Do not use a file without a handle. The tang can easily injure your hand.
You should have an assortment of handles as well as files. The handle should fit easily without being too loose. It should line up squarely with the file. Tap—but do not pound—the handle lightly on the workbench to make it fit.

When you use the file keep the pressure light and even. Cutting is done on the forward stroke, never on the back stroke. Move the file across the work the full length of the file for even wearing.
A file card is a brush with short wire bristles. Get one and keep it handy. Use it to clean parallel rows of teeth. A double

FASHIONETTES

By United Press International
Afternoon and evening clothes designed by Mary Lewis for Cardinal's spring collection are fragile. The tops of her weightless, drifting dresses blouse gently to a lewish belt and flow out in a maze of narrow bow pleats or open shuiter panels below the hips. Evening clothes are concoctions of handwork, smoking, pin tucks and appliques.

Monet suggests lassoing a swinging gaucho suit with a long chain rope, the glint of gold retained in a sleek abstract pin on the lapel and gleaming expansion bracelet at the wrist. Also try classic woding hand earrings and a chic dog collar worn high on the throat.

Clean-cut and clear-colored stripes are carried through the entire level for girls line. There are lots of novelty looks and basic stripe treatments, too. One is a leno stripe with open needlework look in the of private collectors through the United States, Braun says. Lytze says his methods are secret. "Even the paints I make to obtain silver or pewter like effects are my own," he says. "A lot of people in the art world are pretty confident he will become quite famous in the next four or five years," Braun says. "and they're betting that works made while he was in jail will have a higher value."

Lytsze says he is looking forward to the end of his "prison period."

Addicts Find Hope In Malaysian Curative Center

By HARI SUBRAMANIAM
Associated Press Writer
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — "If anyone is an alcoholic, smoker or drug addict and wants to be cured, we can do it," said Lim Kim Seng, stopping a cup of bitter tea. "This is no boast."

Apparently it's not. Nearly 2,000 persons with habits they couldn't kick have found hope at the incense-scented "opium addict treatment and curative center" in the suburb of Petaling Jaya.

"And apparently it's not. Nearly 2,000 persons with habits they couldn't kick have found hope at the incense-scented 'opium addict treatment and curative center' in the suburb of Petaling Jaya.

"It does not matter at what stage they come," says Lim, a chunky Chinese who was once an opium addict but never a medical student.

"Even the chronic cases can be cured. Almost everyone of the 2,500 addicts who come have been cured."

"Some of them were even condemned by western-trained doctors who had given up. Isn't that the best proof?"

"The cure is simple, Lim says: "No medicine or herbs. Pot and pipe of strong Chinese tea. Plenty of rest, sleep in the open air and meditation."

"The 'hospital' looks more like an imaginative Chinese temple, with altars, gilt flaked carvings and weirdly contrived paintings. Scented incense sticks smoulder in the background.

"The addicts who come here have to discipline themselves," Lim explains. "They eat regular meals, but at fixed times. They bathe, eat and sleep at fixed times."

"They have to meditate. If they meditate their will power will develop. That is why we have the altar."

"The tea is important. Without that we have found we cannot cure. They drink plenty of tea."

COOKING

By RICHARD C. LONGWOETH

BUDAPEST (UPI)—Hungarian cooking has survived 20 years of communist austerity to emerge, fine and fattening, as one of the great joys of European eating.

There are those, including some Hungarians, who feel that traditional standards are slipping, as chefs in major restaurants make concessions to foreign tastes and cholesterol scares by substituting cooking oil for pork fat.

But the old varieties remain—goulash soup (billed meat soup, with onions, paprika and potatoes), porkknödel (braised sweet stew, lots of onions), thick creamy sauces, fogas (a delicious ginkgo-nut from the Danube or Hungary's Lake Balaton, fixed many ways), stuffed cabbage and goose liver.

Hungarian recipes still lean heavily on paprika made from small, aromatic peppers. They still combine delicate flavors with hearty eating. They still are hard on the waistline. They still are washed down with tart Tokaj wines, with milder Bala-ton rieslings or, perhaps best of all, with full-bodied Csopak Ozlerising.

And they still come surrounded by elegant and excellent service—the only really good service left in Eastern Europe—and by gypsy music as rich and irresistible as the pastries or pancakes that end each meal.

The late restaurateur, Karoly Gundel, in his cookbook, defined freshness of ingredients and culinary skill as the two factors in Hungarian cooking.

This restaurant, Gundel's, remains one of Budapest's best. Others where a tourist can be assured of fine food and careful guidance include the historic Hungaria, the marvelous Matyas Fincse, the elegant Kis Rova (try the pancakes wrapped around caviar in cream sauce) and the Fortuna on Castle Hill.

Near the Fortuna, on Fortuna Street, is a museum of old menus, ornate table settings, recipes and a fine old kitchen.

But Hungary's culinary tradition is barely 100 years old, according to Gabor Lombai, the manager of Gundel's.

"We have adopted influences from other nations—Serbia, Slovakia, Romania, France," Lombai said. "But our golden age began in 1890, with our millennium celebration, when there was a great upsurge of national feeling that led to a strong national cooking."

As Hungarian tourism expands, the supply of good cooks is running thin.

"We have 1,200 cooks now and need another 1,200," Lombai said. "Our chefs go to school for five years, plus an apprenticeship, but it is too much reading, not enough practice. The pay for chefs is good by our standards—about 2,000 forints (216¢) per month and lots of opportunities for foreign travel, but too many young men want to go into white-collar jobs now."

Gundel's, like other major Budapest restaurants, was nationalized in 1959, but Lombai said this has not hurt its quality. However, then, his Hungary managed to avoid following the rest of Eastern Europe into a gastronomic wasteland.

Russia's tradition for cuisine was limited to a small part of the population," Lombai explained. "After the revolution, they had to work to get food of any quality for the people. We did not have that problem. We always had a broad-based cuisine. That's why we kept our traditions."

Gundel's beef stew is made with tenderloin steak. Brown 3½ pounds of boneless tenderloin, cut in strips, in about ¼ cup of lard. Season with 1½ teaspoons of salt and a dash of each of pepper and marjoram. Cook gently covered, until meat is half tender; add 6½ ounces of goose liver (substitute chicken liver, if desired), cut in strips. When meat is done, add ¼ cup of sifted flour mixed to paste with ¼ cup of dry white wine. Cook 400 and stir until thickened, then add 1 cup each of cooked, drained asparagus tips, haricots beans (green beans or baby limas can be substituted) and green peas. Top stew with nest-like arrangement of scrambled eggs, made with 6 eggs and ¼ cup of cream cooked in about 2 tablespoons of butter. Serve with French fries.

Drunkard's Opinion Justified

MANTSALA, Finland (UPI) — A drunken driver who doubted his wife's skill behind the wheel was proved right over the week-end.

Police said the couple left a bar before midnight. The man insisted his wife, though sober, was not qualified to drive a car and took the wheel himself.

A few minutes later police stopped the car and arrested the man for drunken driving.

The wife continued home alone and crashed soon afterward into a ditch, police said.

Puerto Vallarta They've Certainly Spoiled That Mexican Camelot

By BILL HILL
Dolley News Service
PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico — For more than a decade now Puerto Vallarta has been touted in travel folders as a Mexican Camelot—just a tiny remote village that is the "real unspoiled" Mexico.

Fifteen years ago that was a fact. Today, that's something less than a half-truth.

Take the iguana, for instance. He's that long-tailed lizard-like creature that would be the envy of any child. It used to be a sight to see on the beach. There were lots of them here at one time. I saw two of them on my last trip, one trying to hide atop a telephone pole and the other in a cage. Most tourists aren't that lucky. Some have to settle for a stuffed iguana, stamped "souvenir of Puerto Vallarta."

So things aren't quite "unspoiled" in Puerto Vallarta, regardless of what you've been reading in travel folders. The beach is no longer a free zone on Friday night. Tourists come here on the big boats, aboard luxury ocean liners, and there are those who come with their campers and trailers.

Like most vacation and resort areas heavily promoted, Puerto Vallarta has blossomed into a spa for the very rich and devout pilgrims of the sun.

It got that way on its reputation as an "unknown" resort. The publicists called it a town of considerable inconvenience and great friendliness. A town where the food was simple, liquor cheap, sunshine certain, and the ocean moods predictable—heavy surf in the afternoon, quiet at night.

It worked. Tourists everywhere. Particularly in winter. Arrivals double.

The mariachis do little strolling nowadays. They've amplified their guitars. Music is less flamenco and more go-go. In some spots you'll hear a Mexican wailing his way through a popular American rock song.

When a "sleepy little Mexican village" gets as busy as this one, prices get busy too. You can pay $40 to $50 a day for a room in a beachside hotel and as little as $10 for comparable accommodations in town.

You can also lease a villa for around $3,000 a month. If you come here to stay long, right next door to Liz Taylor and Richard Burton's seldom-used hideaway hanging on the cliff overlooking the Cuale River which runs a rocky course through Puerto Vallarta.

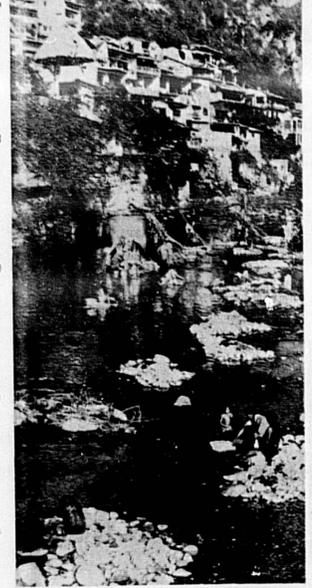

Everybody who comes here visits the Cuale and gawks at the houses on the hill overlooking the river. It's called Girasol Gulch.

The souvenir shops—where you get the stuffed iguana—are on both sides of the river.

From the bridge that crosses the Cuale, tourists are treated to a sight that's really old Mexico. The women come here to do the family laundry by the time-honored method of beating the clothes on rocks.

Viva progress!

WASH DAY — Everybody who comes to Puerto Vallarta visits the Cuale River where tourists are treated to one of the few sights that's really old Mexico: the women come to the river to do the family laundry by the time-honored method of beating the clothes on rocks.

Down at the airport where a hatch-roofed building served as a terminal for a dirt strip 20 years ago, a modern terminal has been built. It's the second one in a dozen years. The big jets brought pavement to the runways and so much traffic that the customs people have learned to speak English in the afternoon, quiet at night.

In the good old days—the ones the travel folders recall—night life ended in Puerto Vallarta at 10:30. That was when the town's generator shut down for the night. Now night life doesn't even begin until midnight and flashing neon signs light the gay streets all night long.

Economic Trend Cited For Leap In 1970 Savings

By TOM GABLE
 Copley News Service

Americans, like squirrels, seem to know when to start saving for a rotten winter.

Aware of rising prices, heedful of presidential warnings and wary of contradictory administration optimism, they spent the better part of the autumn and winter socking away money as never before.

Because of this trend, the net increase in money in savings and loan associations will be more than $10.5 billion in 1970, to a record estimated total of $146 billion, according to the United States Savings and Loan League.

This increase in savings is far above the $4 billion increase reported in 1969, and the $1.5 billion increase in 1968.

The greatest year for increasing savings was in 1963, when savings and loan associations gained $11.1 billion.

The league reported that during the first two months of 1970, more money was withdrawn than was deposited, perhaps indicative of post-Christmas bill paying for preparations for April 15. In March, however, the deposits leaped far ahead of withdrawals and the trend was set.

Lewis S. Eaton, league president, said the "savings revival" was caused by a considerable rise in what he called "precautionary saving" on the part of many families worried about the uncertainty of the economy. He predicted that the money flow into savings and loan associations would be favorable for the next several months.

C. E. Bentley, president of the National League of Invested Savings Associations, has been optimistic about Americans putting their money into savings accounts that he said in 1971 would see "the largest dollar savings increase in the history of the savings and loans industry."

He said this would happen because other forms of investment are no longer competitive with savings accounts that he said "Savings accounts in insured savings associations offer returns of from 3 to 4 per cent."

While the majority of market debt yields were higher than savings rates in the last year, investors often must pay heavy fees to purchase and sell their securities. This substantially cuts down on their net return.

This is Alaska's first truly large-scale pig farming operation, and it is being watched carefully for its influence on the future of Alaska agriculture. But Harding and Merdes say that the buffalo are not stopping the enterprise will not be worth the effort.

Mountain Giving Way For Kentucky City's Improvement

By JIM HELL
 Associated Press Writer

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Workers will start chipping away at a mountain in Eastern Kentucky's Appalachia soon in one of the most ambitious Model Cities projects ever.

When they complete their task two years hence, 16 million cubic yards of dirt and rock will have been removed, half again as much as was removed for construction of Grand Coulee Dam and a full 10 per cent of the amount of excavation needed for the Panama Canal.

The cut through Peach Orchard Mountain will be 1,000 feet wide, 3,000 feet long and 400 feet deep. Through it will go the rechanneled Big Sandy River, tracks of the Chesapeake & Ohio River and a widened four-lane artery for four highways.

Dirt from the cut will fill part of the old river channel, creating 20 acres of desperately needed level land in an area where two-thirds of the acreage is too steep for development. The remainder of the cut canal will be a mile-long downtown lake surrounded by homes, small businesses and light industry.

Mayor William Hambley, who for 10 years has spearheaded coordination of almost two dozen local, state and federal agencies, says the idea for the cut "has been in the minds of the people of this area for 50 years."

"The first idea when the railroad relocated here at the turn of the century was that it should go through the center of town," he said. However, since that time he added, people realized that for the city to grow the railroad would have to be removed and "when you remove the railroad, you might as well take the river with it."

"We recognized," he said, "that the greatest deterrent to development of this area was the mountain that covered 25 per cent of the level land — and the river another 50 per cent. That meant these people had to live in a space we had no problem around the local residents of the need for this project and in convincing various agencies of the need to work together."

In addition to the physical and service benefits from the removal of the mountain, the project also will help solve another problem of the area — chronic high unemployment and low income.

The town is the smallest in the Model Cities program and more than one fourth of its 1,800 residents are from families with annual incomes of less than $3,000. And, at one time, Pikeville was known as being so poor that even the undertaker went broke.

However, classes are now underway to train local residents in some of the skills needed in the excavation and a portion of the estimated 500-man work force will be provided by area residents.

Hambley says the coordination of the various agencies involved is a major task.

Hambley, 41, is a native of Pikeville. He estimates he has logged 40,000 miles by car and an equal amount by air in coordinating the various aspects of the total program, which includes downtown residential, business and industrial development, highway construction, school control and park and recreational facilities.

A surgeon by profession, he spent his teenage years aspiring to be an architect and, as a hobby, used to redesign the city of Appalachia to follow "This should be done all over" area.

He said, "It is the only way to solve the problems of this area."

Here's The Answer

By BARBARA HARTUNG
 Copley News Service

Q. How does texture affect color? I have been trying to match medium yellows in wall paint, upholstery and accessories. I find it very difficult. —J.J.

A. Textures do have a surprisingly strong effect on color. Very smooth textures that have a sheen appear to reflect light as opposed to a duller finish which will look slightly darker. Heavy textures which create hundreds of tiny shadows appear darker. For example, a long shag carpet would appear slightly darker than a short pile carpet of exactly the same color. In wall coloring, a glazed finish will look lighter than a dull matte finish. When the charcoal is rubbed off with a wire brush. The softest part of the wood is burned away and the hardest part remains. This gives the heavy graining.

Q. I'm in the process of planning a color scheme for an apartment I plan to move into. I have some nice 18th Century English antiques and since I am moving to smaller quarters, I will take only the choice pieces and supplement them with perhaps some reproductions of the same period. I really have no particular color preferences. What were the most traditional colors of the 18th Century England? —A.S.

A. The colors of 18th Century England tended toward neutral colors and rather dark ones — compared with the French who were using lighter values such as pale, dull blue, grayed purple, medium brown and flesh tones. Architect-designer Adam was particularly noted for his use of dull blue, yellow-green, light gray and lavender — all popular in 18th Century England. Also favored at that time were the Wedgwood shades of

Liven Leftover Luncheon With Elegant Vegetables

The holiday feast is finished but a few leftovers still remain. This year, in place of those familiar sandwiches and casseroles, try something different. Finish up those last little bits quickly at a post-holiday post-Christmas luncheon for a few friends.

Build your menu around golden cheese soups sauced with the last of those leftovers. Then go elegant on the vegetables with colorful Broccoli-Carrots Royale.

Sweet carrots and peas, fresh broccoli steam to perfection in rich, full-strength almond chicken broth. A bit of lemon juice and basil impart zing and tang, making Broccoli-Carrots Royale a truly special dish.

This dish has an extra flavor from the steaming process. Serve this delicious soup (makes 2 cups) as a first course at your luncheon, or as a first course.

save it for a savory sipper at lunch or snack time. Another idea: Use it to flavor-up soups and gravies in the near future.

Round out your post-holiday luncheon with fatty, brown-and-sauce croissant, sweet-tart raspberry shortbread, and plenty of steaming hot coffee.

BROCCOLI-CARROTS ROYALE
 1 bunch fresh broccoli (about 2 pounds)
 2 cups diagonally sliced carrots
 1 teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 1 can (1 1/2 fluid ounces) chicken broth
 Remove large leaves and trim tough stem ends of broccoli. Split stems in half lengthwise. In saucepan, combine remaining ingredients. Simmer up to 20 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Drain, save liquid for soup. Makes 4 servings.

dull blue, green, brown and neutralized black.

Q. I have recently seen cypress paneling which has a very strong relief to the grain and a rather light color to it. How is this done? —D.W.

A. You probably are referring to a so-called agi finish which can approximate Japanese driftwood. It is peculiarly adapted to express which naturally has a light-brown color and can be painted or stained to give most any look. The agi finish is produced by charring the surface of the wood with a gasolene torch. Then the charcoal is rubbed off with a wire brush. The softest part of the wood is burned away and the hardest part remains. This gives the heavy graining.

Q. I have what I think to be an authentic Hitchcock chair. If it is authentic, when would it have been made? —D.W.

A. Lambert Hitchcock began manufacturing chair parts and sending them south for assembly in 1838 and began assembling them himself in Connecticut. Around 1832, Hitchcock had some financial reverses and chairs were made by Hitchcock, Alford and Co. Those some nine years later he apparently started another factory in New York City, and chairs with his own name again. Hitchcock died in 1852. However, his patterns and molds continued to be imitated by others for many years and to this very day.

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES?

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of 1/2 per cent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1,000 on a 25-year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

Don't Have To Ski To Enjoy Skiing

By RON WELLS
Copley News Service

VALE, Colo. — As a sport, skiing is relatively young, becoming popular in the United States only in the last 25 years.

But as a mode of transportation, skiing is centuries old, originating in Scandinavia some 1,200 years ago. This form of skiing is far different from the alpine or downhill variety which is enjoyed by millions of aficionados around the globe.

Known as "cross-country" skiing in the Olympics, this form of the sport is called "touring" at most mountain resorts.

"Touring is the leisurely and relaxed aspect of cross-country skiing," said Steve Rieschel, a ski instructor at Vale for the last two years. "It combines the beauty of cross-country skiing with the thrill of downhill skiing."

"Where cross-country skiing is merely hiking on skis, touring is geared for the average fellow or gal in average health," he said. "In fact, a person doesn't need to know how to ski in order to go touring."

"If you can walk, you can ski tour."

Rieschel speaks with authority on both alpine and cross-country skiing. He was captain of the 1962 U.S. World Championship Ski Team, having competed in ski jumping, cross-country, downhill and slalom events, and is certified to teach both touring and downhill skiing.

At present Rieschel's main concern is his touring operation, "Outdoor Adventures," which makes use of the 125 miles of touring trails found in the mountains surrounding this popular

FOLLOW THE LEADER—Ski touring is rising in popularity. The world's oldest form of skiing, it does not require the dexterity, coordination or bravado of slalom or downhill skiing.

Rocky Mountains resort.

"Up until last year touring wasn't very popular," said Rieschel. "But last year more than 30,000 touring ski sets were sold in the United States and more than 50,000 are expected to be sold this year."

"The reason is the equipment's sudden rise in popularity is varied."

"The primary reason is safety. In the 12 years I've taught ski touring, I haven't heard of anyone suffering a broken bone," Rieschel said.

Also, ski tourists don't need lift tickets which means there is no waiting in line for a chair lift up the mountain and no crowded slopes.

"Ski touring equipment is expensive when compared to alpine ski gear. The finest Scandinavian-made touring skis and poles, boots and bindings cost less than $100."

"The reason is the equipment is very light and flexible," said Rieschel. "The skis are one-third the weight of downhill skis. The boots are much lighter and more comfortable than regular ski boots and the poles, although they are longer, are lighter because they are made of bamboo (a kind of bamboo)."

"The bindings are also different. Whereas in downhill skiing the entire foot is attached to the ski, only the toe of the boot is attached to the ski."

There are a variety of tours offered at Vale including a night tour with a campfire, music and hot spiced wine and game tour which allows photographers to stalk animals in the forest with their cameras; picnic tours, all-day back-country tours, overnight, high-country tours and ghost town tours.

Schools Seek $$ To Pay Teachers

By BILL SCOTT

School Supt. John Angel yesterday advised he and Walter F. Teague, school finance director, have no intention to use school contingency funds to implement a teacher salary increase.

Both officials were asked by the school board to look for money to aid teachers in receiving the wage increase granted last Spring by the board, provided sufficient tax equalization money was obtained from the state under the 1970 tax equalization bill.

The board believed it would receive an estimated half-million dollars in state funds based on the premise that the county would be found by state auditors to be assessing property within the county at full value.

Instead the state found that the level of county assessments was 81 per cent or two percentage points under the state 83 per cent average, which would have permitted Seminole to receive the $500,000 in tax equalization.

AROUND THE CLOCK

By JOHN A. SPOLSKI

Read the lead story today, about the auto-trains, and then read this:

Auto-Train plans construction of a major railroad terminal here in Sanford, it was learned via long distance telephone. The terminal building will be solely for the auto-train tourists, housing ticket office, restaurant and lounge, possibly garage service facilities, and ramps leading to the railroad cars.

From these parts which I heard carried last night on the news programs, that was a darn good speech by President Nixon... and judging by the reaction of the students at the University of Nebraska, they were "communicating" with him, also.

Now, if we can only get his "hardhat" V.P. to change his tune, we'll have it made in the shade.

This one from UPI will stand on its own merits...

EDWARD McPHERSON, Ga. — Edward Magill, attorney for Sgt. Charles E. Hutto, who was charged in the alleged My Lai massacre and freed by an army court martial board.

"When you get around to assessing responsibility, let's get the people who make the judgments, and not to the foot-sloggers."

Amen, Brother — AMEN!

Understand that since we first mentioned the upcoming "King Contest"... there has been a tremendous swelling of entrants. (Gee, and I thought I'd win by default, in that no one else would show up!)

A meeting has been scheduled for all contestants for this Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Florida State Bank.

Now we're starting to move forward, folks.

Sorta slowed-down for a while, and maybe it's because those projects which were on our "must" or "priority" list have since been accomplished. Things like PTU, and SIC, the Marina, Port of Sanford, countryside telephones... now what's the most important on our list of priorities?

Worse than that, where's the list?

Maybe with the formation of a Greater Sanford Development Committee, we'll again get the "brains" and work-horses pulling together. Hope so... I really hope so.

There's a meeting on the formative plans for this group this Thursday... more on it then.

The man who insists upon seeing with perfect clearness before he decides, never decides. Accept 'Me, and you cannot accept reality.

Auto-Train For Tourists Will Include Sanford

The auto-train concept of getting tourists and their cars to and from Florida by rail will become a fact sometime before this year ends, the head of a private company devising the project reported Thursday.

Eugene K. Garfield of Washington, president of Auto Train Corporation, said the initial operation will be between Alexandria, Va., a Washington suburb, and Sanford.

Sanford was picked as the southern terminus, he said, because of its somewhat central location, accessibility to interstate highways, availability of land for a terminal and nearness to Walt Disney World.

Garfield conferred with W. Thomas Rice, chief executive officer of Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, which has been interested in this type service for some time.

A proposed government experiment with a similar operation died for lack of a congressional appropriation.

"The operation planned by the Auto Train Corporation is far more appealing than earlier concepts, and we feel that it will be the means of bringing a substantial volume of passengers back to rail service," Rice said.

Garfield said Auto Train Corporation was organized by private individuals exclusively for this purpose and has been devising its plan for almost two years. He said it is not an arm of the government or of the railroads.

The firm filed a $7 million financing plan with the Interstate Commerce Commission Wednesday. Date of beginning service, Garfield said, depends on how fast the government agency acts and time the special cars can be delivered.

Here is how it will work: Motorists traveling between the northeastern United States and Florida will be able to drive their cars aboard enclosed auto carriers.

They will ride in double deck coaches with stereo music, movies over closed circuit television and food available.

When they drive off at Sanford, the tourists will have their own cars to drive around Florida. They can again use the auto-train returning northward.

John Kader Elected By Demos

John Kader, long active in Democratic politics here, was elected chairman of the Seminole County Democratic executive committee last night.

Mrs. Albert Pitts was elected vice chairman and Mrs. W. A. Forward secretary-treasurer.

WANDA SMITH

WANDA Smith, of Lake Mary, and John Smith, of Sanford, FTU students, have been appointed to serve on the fourth congressional youth committee by Congressman William Chappell.

Berry, pushing council to take immediate action on the request, suggested that if not acted upon, the deal would fall through. Councilman Sandra Thompson retorted, "We are not obligated to any deadline and I feel we owe it to the city to look into this matter further." Council passed a motion to refer the matter to the zoning board.

Mrs. Thompson stated, "People like yourself (Berry) have appeared here and pressured council before but you are talking about 1,600 people for us to take care of and it's too little time for us to decide on this when someone else is making a big profit."

Longwood Eyes Garbage Business

By ANN RILEY

LONGWOOD — Councilman E. E. Williamson was elected chairman last night by City Council. Eugene Jaques was elected vice chairman.

The new mayor, Robert Kallinoski, presented his appointment by council, as follows: S. Joseph Davis Jr., city attorney; Gene Stephenson, city judge; and R. E. Sweat, police chief.

Williamson postponed the naming of committees until the next meeting, to be held Jan. 28 at 7:30 p.m., following a public hearing. The council voted to hold two meetings a month, ending at 10 p.m.

Williamson requested council to adhere to a strict agenda in order to save time.

He would like to see the ordinance on the closing of hours amended by extending hours to 2 a.m. To provide additional income for the city, Williamson suggested that the city should go into the garbage collecting business and purchase a pumper.

Berry appeared in behalf of his clients, Tinley Knight, of Orlando, and Otha Williams, of Jacksonville, who wished to establish a mobile home development on Seminole Boulevard extending to Fairy Lake.

Berry, pushing council to take immediate action on the request, suggested that if not acted upon, the deal would fall through. Councilman Sandra Thompson retorted, "We are not obligated to any deadline and I feel we owe it to the city to look into this matter further." Council passed a motion to refer the matter to the zoning board.

State Rests In Joyce Trial; Fails To Call Sylvia Powell

By MARION BETHA

Henry Joyce took the stand in his own defense this morning, and in answer to a question by Public Defender Ned Julian, "Did you know what I've been wanting to do for a long time?" Further, he said, "No Sir, I did not." Joyce testified of his relationship with Sylvia Powell, who was charged with the murder of her husband, Capt. J. Q. Galaway.

State Attorney Abbott Herring in rebuttal, stated that Herring had been proved by statements of Capt. J. Q. Galaway to members of the Volusia County Sheriff's Department that the crime took place in Seminole County. Herring said there was ample evidence of premeditation by Joyce.
