

Market Pact Changes Are Recommended

heavy movement, the committee decided that if the provisions of the pact work hardships on any section, the facts should be presented at a hearing and adjustments made.

Deciding that any marketing agreement is a co-operative enterprise and is only successful in so far as its members willingly live up to its provisions, the committee asserted that if the necessary reports and information were issued, and if each grower will realize that the agreement is his method of protecting himself against disastrous price collapses, the pact can be counted on to do what it has set out to do.

Regarding opposition to the agreement, the committee pointed out that the program is designed to benefit growers. Growers vote for or against it. "Every program can expect honest opposition from those whose interests are contrary to the interests of those who favor the program. If most growers believe this program benefits them, then this opposition can be taken as a matter of course," the report said.

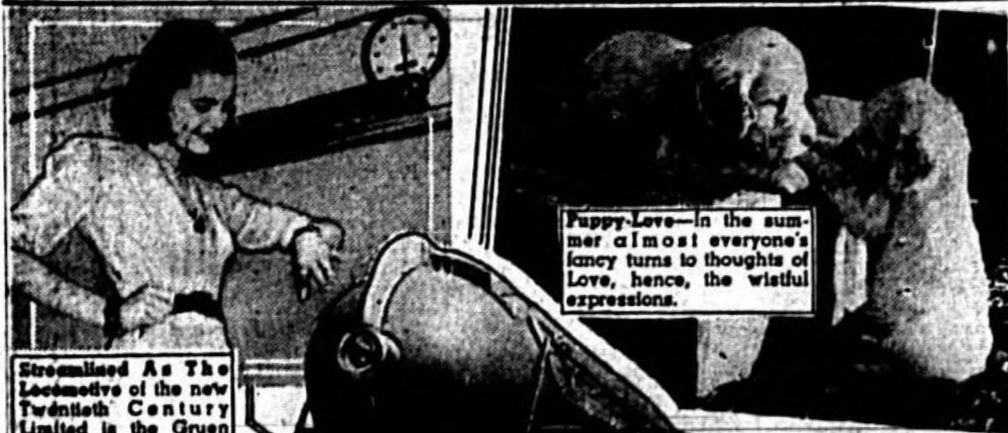

The following methods were given for handling of surplus celery: intrastate sales, elimination by heavy stripping, elimination by discarding undesirable sizes, relief purposes, leaving in the field, or destroying by rows in the field. The committee pointed out that there were no legal ways to compel elimination by the last two methods and also that if celery is left standing in the field or destroyed by rows, that the quality of celery shipped is considerably lower.

The committee also recommended that instead of the 2 percent allowance for over shipments, that over shipments up to 20 percent be permitted, provided the shipper pay the committee a fixed amount per crate for each crate over shipped. This amount could be determined at a hearing but would be large enough to take the profit out of over shipments.

Sam Byrd Returns To City For Short Visit

of the season by most critics and George Jena Nathan, long recognized dean of American dramatic critics, declared that it was one of the finest plays to appear on the American stage for some years.

Not content with being an actor, Sam has taken a couple of flings at the production end, having put on "White Man" and "Journeyman." The first was a play dealing with miscegenation and while not exactly a flop, it simply didn't "go." When asked why it wasn't a howling success, Sam merely shrugged his shoulders and his head. "They simply won't have it," he said, meaning that plays dealing with such themes didn't meet with the approval of the public. The failure of the latter play he attributed to the fact that "Tocaco Road" had been so praised that anything that Erskine Caldwell might do for some time would suffer.

When the Fall season for the theater begins, Sam expects to resume his role in "Of Mice and Men." For his part in that he gives thanks to a bellboy at the Lambs, a noted club of writers, artists, and members of the theatrical world. One night as he entered the Lambs, he stated, a bellboy asked him if he had heard that the producers of the play "Of Mice and Men" needed a character juvenile to fill one of the main roles. Sam replied that he had not, but immediately he investigated. He got the role.

The bellboy said Christmas cards. "From now on I'm going to buy all of my Christmas cards from him," Sam declared.

POLICE DOG FLIES

OSHKOSH, Wis. — (AP) — The first passenger of Dr. R. O. Ebert after he received his private flying license was his German police dog, "Bello." The dog ran up, barking, when Dr. Ebert offered to take someone for a ride. "There's your passenger," suggested a bystander. "Bello" was still yipping with excitement when Dr. Ebert landed.

Motives Seen In Spanish Peace Proposals

Baleares and care the tension in the Mediterranean.

Then, too, the British and French are well aware of the fact that Mussolini and Hitler haven't got any too much money to throw Franco's way, even on a credit basis. They must feel that both Mussolini and Hitler would be willing to call it quits in Spain, if they could only get out in a blaze of glory.

The latest Franco-British scheme for a truce, and failing that, a new plan for withdrawal of volunteers, would seem to be all set up for an eventual Franco-Mussolini-Hitler victory in Spain.

The disinterested expert will tell you this is true because of a single little clause in the withdrawal scheme, under which Franco would be recognized as a "belligerent," with all the rights of a fighting government that are now extended to Republican (Loyalist) Spain.

That might sound to you and me like a purely technical point, but it is really very clever and practical from the diplomatic point of view. Here's why:

England, France, and most other countries except Italy and Germany, technically classify Franco as an insurgent, a tempter to unseat the regular government of his country. To most nations, the republican government of Spain is the legal government.

"But if Franco had so-called 'belligerent rights,' he could establish a legal blockade against Loyalist Spain along the coast, and thereby completely surround and beleaguer the republicans until they submitted. Any ship that attempted to pierce the blockade would be nothing more than a smuggling vessel operating outside the law and entitled to no protection whatever.

Great Britain's decision to take no action against air raiders who sink her ships in Loyalist waters in effect is recognition of Franco's rights as a belligerent, without admitting the fact to the world at large.

So, the horse-trading is a scheme to assure a Franco victory in time but, at the same time, to get Italy and Germany off the Spanish stage.

Whether it works, or not, remains to be seen.

Not Good For The State

At the Supreme Court's hearing yesterday on the Volusia county sheriff's attempt to prohibit the operation of marble tables, in compliance with Governor Cone's expressed instructions, counsel for the operators insisted that the tables were not gambling devices, that there was no payoff, and that they were intended for amusement purposes only.

The Attorney General's office, representing the sheriff, contended that a payoff was intended on the basis of a certain total score, and that this payoff when made constituted gambling. In other words, if a particular player made a high enough score, he was rewarded by the operator with things of value denied other players whose score was not so good. This was the feature of the marble tables which made them gambling devices, the State held.

As to whether or not marble tables actually are in violation of the slot machine or other anti-gambling laws is a technical question which must be left to the Supreme Court to decide. The chances are that in some cases they can be operated so as to make them gambling devices without question. And it may be that in other cases they are operated in such a way so as to be wholly within the law.

But as to Attorney General George Gibbs' statement that the public must be protected against its desire to gamble, there can be no doubt among right thinking people. "We know that humanity desires to gamble," Mr. Gibbs said, "But we know that gambling is against the best interests of a great state. All gambling is interesting, but it is not amusing when you lose."

So many times during the past few years we have heard folks say that the people want to gamble and that therefore they should be allowed to gamble. And they cite as proof of their statement that the people want to gamble, the fact that obviously so many of them do. And since this is so, they insist that laws against gambling should be repealed or ignored and the people should be permitted to give all their money, if they want to, to the gambling operators.

We are glad to see someone in high authority take the stand that even if the public wants to gamble, it should be prevented so far as possible from doing so. It is not good for the state, it is not good for the country, for the people to gamble. Even if the people wanted to take dope, or drive automobiles while drunk, they would be prohibited, so far as possible, because such things are not good for the state.

And so people should be prohibited from gambling, if for no other reason, because it is not good for the state.

Extravagant Waste

In good times and bad, people are guilty of the common human frailty of waste, and especially is this true of Americans who are used to having more than citizens of other countries. Germany is an example of a nation that practices the art of saving every scrap of material that has served its original use. Every single piece of paper, string, cloth and all garbage are collected and utilized for some practical purpose.

The natives of Morocco in Northern Africa take discarded tin cans and make beautiful cups and vases and ornaments which they sell to tourists at fancy prices. Automobile tires, which are thrown away by Americans, are utilized by these natives for their shoes. With a little craftsmanship, what was a worn-out rubber casing, becomes an artfully fashioned encasement for the feet, and foreigners look upon the product with envious eyes.

When we cut down our trees, the branches, the twigs, the leaves and the stumps are left on the ground to rot, while in Germany and certain other countries, all the parts of the tree are saved and put to good use. We think nothing at all of throwing away scraps of meat and food, but these wastes in the land of the Nazis go to feed hogs which are sorely needed to bolster the restricted food supply.

As evidence of the careless manner with which we in this country treat our possessions, the yearly collection of waste materials taken from buildings composing Rockefeller Center amounts to over 200,000 cubic yards and includes such items as rare books, money, stocks, jewelry, bonds, hats, and coats. The amount is enough to fill a train of cars 43 miles long or the British Empire Building—a seven-story affair—more than 50 times a year.

The preservation of the things we have, especially in times of economic adversity, should be the duty of every individual. No one has a right to complain of hard times if he is guilty of waste.

SANFORD TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mrs. E. F. Marrero and little daughter, former residents of Sanford and are always warmly welcomed by their many friends here.

Hon. Schell Minton left tomorrow for Atlanta to attend a meeting of the Southern Military Department of the Y. M. C. A. which meets at the capital city.

From there he will go to Dayton for a visit with his wife and parents and expects to be absent for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Abernathy and Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Raloff have returned from a pleasant 10-day trip to Quincy and other points in West Florida. While at Quincy they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Watson formerly of Sanford. Mr. Watson is manager of a large department store of that city and like his new home very well.

Dr. Herbert McCulloch was presented with a five military cross badge at the Presbyterian Church when he departed for home today to call from the army. Dr. McCulloch has been the resident minister of the Presbyterian Church for the past two years and will be greatly missed by his many friends.

TRENTON, Capital of New Jersey, IS ONLY 6 MILES FROM THE GEOGRAPHIC CENTER OF THE STATE! NO OTHER STATE CAPITAL IS SO CENTRALLY LOCATED!

THE FIRST MODEL OF THE TWINE-KNOTTER WHICH NOW TIES 70% OF THE WORLD'S GRAIN WAS SOLD FOR 17 CENTS BY ITS INVENTOR, JOHN F. APPELEY, IN 1850.

THE DOUGHNUT QUEEN!
 Miss Helen Purviance—Salvation Army leader, personally made and distributed 1,000,000 doughnuts to men of the A. E. F. during the world war! SHE ORIGINATED THE CUSTOM IN MONTE-SUR-SOIX, FRANCE SHE HAS MADE ONLY 3 BATHES SINCE THE WAR!

DOUGHNUT QUEEN
 The adage that "an army marches on its stomach" inspired Brigadier Helen Purviance, a Salvation Army leader during the World War, to give the boys in the A. E. F. some good old home cooking.

Stationed at Monte-sur-Soux, she cast about for some good American food, easy to prepare, that would satisfy the appetites of "her army." The Salvation Army's supplies, however, were limited.

"Finally we discovered that we could make doughnuts with what we had," she recalls. "We made a cutter out of an evaporated milk can and a shaving stick holder. We used a grape-juice bottle for a rolling pin. The soldiers were hooked to death."

 Before the war ended, Miss Purviance estimated she made 1,000,000 doughnuts. Recently, during a Salvation Army drive for funds, she made another batch of "sinkers" only the third since the war.

FIRST TWINE-KNOTTER
 John F. Appley, an 18-year-old Wisconsin farm boy, one day in 1850 tired of the monotonous task of tying bundles of grain by hand, and set out to devise a machine to do the work for him.

He constructed a model of a machine that would tie a knot in a piece of twine, but he lacked funds to build a working machine. He finally persuaded his school teacher to loan him $50.00 and started to work. All went well until the teacher decided that he wanted the money back.

 Young Appley was forced to sell at auction all of his belongings to pay back the man, and his twine-knotter model went on the block for 17 cents. A friend bought it—and gave it back to him!

Another interruption from the Civil War held up progress on the invention, but eventually Appley completed his machine, and full rights to William Deering, a manufacturer. Today nine-tenths of the world's bound grain is handled by machines patterned after Appley's original model!

Tomorrow: What elements of Calvin Coolidge (Amherst, '83) voted him "most likely to succeed"—and himself received all remaining ballots?

WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

By JOE HENDRICKS

THE DEVIL TO PAY—I am looking for a barrage of wires and letters from constituents in the near future as to why they did not get their new Post Office because before this news reaches the public the Inter-Departmental Building Committee will have made their decisions as to which city in my District will get a building this year. A friend of mine told me once that if you want the people to understand a thing, tell them not less than three times. So I will explain that a Congressman has nothing to do with the selection of a site for these buildings in his district. The Inter-Departmental Building Committee makes this decision after taking into consideration a number of factors such as size of town, population, postal receipts, increase of population, type of building being used, etc. I have written I do not know which location will be selected but I hope it is yours for I have submitted your needs to the Committee. If you don't get yours now, just wait till I become Postmaster General and we will build them all.

POWER PLANTS—We are having all sorts of fun trying to get EWA and WPA projects approved. Since being back in Washington I have managed to get close to a million dollars worth on the road to approval and will get more. But what makes me is that the agencies with numerous "bills" in the "get it" and just sit sure as I have a project which I feel is one of particular merit that is the one with which I have trouble. I know that this is only a consolation but it is a consolation. I am calling the same agency for the Tuberculosis Sanatorium in Orange and I will let you know in a few days how that goes.

FAYS BELL
 LAKE BUTLER, July 5.—(Op)—Clarence Roberts, filling station operator, once admitted state attorney Hal T. Minton $25.49.

"I'm glad to get this off my chest," he remarked, holding a house two major marks containing $25.49.

THEY WILL BE HERE—and I will like it. Yesterday Harry Lee Baber, our State Forester, visited me. We really have some plans for the forest in Florida. Today Mayor John W. Campbell of Palm Beach is here, daily they come by to see me and some week presently all Volusia's contingent of the city will be in. I hope either they will come in, I am busy but we will talk.

WPA PROJECTS—The following projects have been approved by the War Relocation Authority and returned to the War Relocation Authority for construction in Citrus County. Citrus County has received $9,570.

Violators Tried By Judge Miller In Session Of Municipal Court

Six white men were tried before Judge Frank L. Miller yesterday in the regular session of Municipal Court, which was postponed from Monday due to the holiday.

They were as follows: Herbert Benton, charged with doing business without a license, was sentenced to pay $12. J. V. Johnson, charged with speeding, was dismissed. L. S. Wilkins, charged with running a red light, was dismissed. The case of E. C. Van Aucken, charged with being drunk and disorderly, and also with assault, was transferred to the County Court. The case of F. S. Dyson, charged with disorderly conduct, was continued. The case of Elvie Wood, charged with disorderly conduct, was also continued.

Pig Crop In Florida Increased This Year

ORLANDO, July 6.—(AP)—Florida's pig crop is on the increase, the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today.
Pork and ham prices are expected to rise during the six months from July 1, 1937, to June 1, 1938, as the number of pigs raised in Florida during the six months ended June 1, 1937, was 182,000, compared with 180,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

The story opens with the arrival of Normal Reed (Madeline Carroll) in peaceful Spain where she has come to join her father. She meets Marco (Henry Fonda), a peaceful, home-loving young farmer, and the pair fall in love.
Norma discovers that her father and his life-long associate, Andre, have been engaged in fomenting war, hoping to profit from future activities as a spy and that evening the sound of the first guns of the civil war is heard over the countryside.

LONDON, July 6.—(AP)—The British Ministry yesterday announced the number of unemployed in Great Britain for the week ending May 16. It was 1,902,912, the highest since the beginning of the war, but a decrease of 100,000 from the 2,000,000 reported in the week ending May 9, 1937.

Continued to deliver a message to confederates at Castell mare, assigned to bring about the destruction of a food hop attempting to run the blockade and bring aid to the stricken town, she again encountered Marco, now fully aware of her activities.

But after witnessing the fighting of the "Loving" townspeople, Norma suffers a hard realization of feeling and sympathy tries to fight the wrong she has done.
In a dangerous and highly dramatic situation, she and Marco combine forces and soon find themselves imprisoned by war and soldiers bent on taking the lives of both. The climax is a riot of exciting action.

Leesburg Cops Series With 5 To 3 Victory Over Lookouts

Fans Storm Playing Field For Free For All Battle

Unscheduled Attraction Starts At End Of Seventh When Gobel, Leach, Cook And Langston Tangle At Plate

By JULIAN STENTROM

Featured by an unscheduled fight and a free for all, the Leesburg Cops game with the Sanford Lookouts gave over 500 fans their money's worth last night at the Municipal Athletic Field although the Rodgers out fit went down by the count of 5 to 3.

The big attraction came at the end of the seventh when Umpire Jack Hunter called Mayo Langston out on strikes with the bases loaded and two out. Billy Gobel, Leesburg first sacker, came running to the dugout and "passed a red" at Langston who turned and sent Gobel to the ground with a stunning blow to the jaw.

Manager Nellie Leach came running out of the Gumbolder dugout heading the Leesburg delegation. The Lookout players did the same and mixed in a battle near home plate. Manager Leach was knocked out during the tangle by Chief Cook, big Lookout righthander. Doctors were summoned from the stands to take care of Leach and Gobel. Police after about 10 minutes, stopped the fracas and play was resumed, but not until over 200 fans swarmed onto the field from the bleachers.

Leesburg started the scoring off Harold Fitzgerald in the second frame, taking advantage of two hits and two costly errors. In the third stanza they failed another when Arnold scored on Drew's triple to left center field. In the fifth, Groat walked and scored on Drew's two-bagger in deep left field.

Sanford scored all three runs in the fifth when Don Contreras singled and De Ramos walked. Fitzgerald sacrificed both runners and Billy Moore singled through the box to center field scoring heavy movement, the committee declared that if the provisions of the pact work hardships on any section, the facts should be presented at a hearing and adjustments made.

Declaring that any marketing agreement is a co-operative enterprise and is only successful in so far as its members willingly live up to its provisions, the committee asserted that if the necessary reports and information were issued, and if each grower will realize that the agreement is his method of protecting himself against disastrous price collapses, the pact can be counted on to do what it has set out to do.

Regarding opposition to the agreement, the committee pointed out that the program is designed to benefit growers. Growers vote for or against it. "Every program can expect honest opposition from those whose interests are contrary to the interests of those who favor the program. If most growers believe this program benefits them, then this opposition can be taken as a matter of course," the report said.

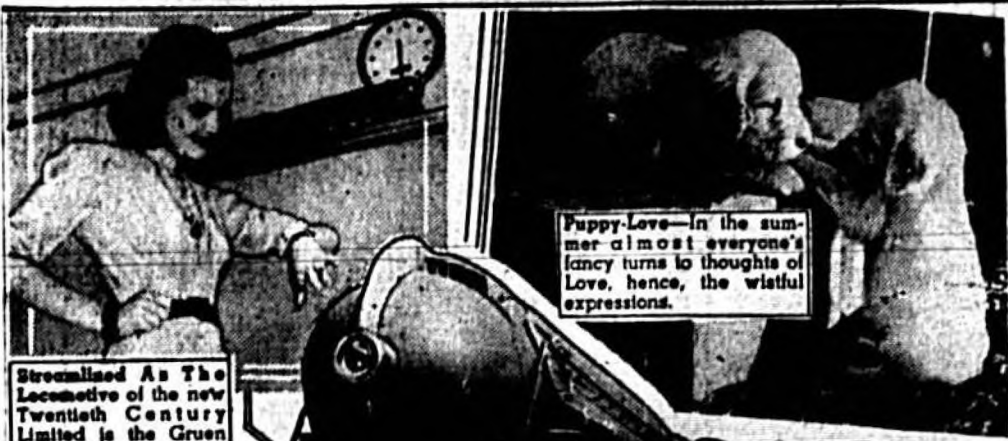

The following methods were given for handling of surplus celery; intrastate sales, elimination by heavy stripping, elimination by discarding undesirable sizes, relief purposes, leaving in the field, or destroying by rows in the field. The committee pointed out that there were no legal ways to compel elimination by the last two methods and also that if celery is left standing in the field or destroyed by rows, that the quality of celery shipped is considerably lower.

The committee also recommended that instead of the 2 percent allowance for over shipments, that over shipments up to 20 percent be permitted, provided the shipper pay the committee a fixed amount per crate for each crate over shipped. This amount could be determined at a hearing but would be large enough to take the profits out of over shipments.

 of the season by most critics and George Jena Nathan, long recognized dean of American dramatic critics, declared that it was one of the finest plays to appear on the American stage for some years.

Not content with being an actor, Sam has taken a couple of flings at the production end, having put on "White Man" and "Journeyman." The first was a play dealing with miscegenation and while not exactly a flop, it simply didn't "go." When asked why it wasn't a howling success, Sam merely shrugged his shoulders and his head. "They simply won't have it," he said, meaning that plays dealing with such themes didn't meet with the approval of the public. The failure of the latter play he attributed to the fact that "Tobacco Road" had been so praised that anything that Erskine Caldwell might do for some time would suffer.

When the Fall season for the theater begins, Sam expects to resume his role in "Of Mice and Men." For his part in that he gives thanks to a bellboy at the Lambs, a noted club of writers, artists, and members of the theatrical world. One night as he entered the Lambs, he stated, a bellboy asked him if he had heard that the producers of the play "Of Mice and Men" needed a character juvenile to fill one of the main roles. Sam replied that he had not, but immediately he investigated. He got the role.

The bellboy sells Christmas cards. "From now on I'm going to buy all my Christmas cards from him," Sam declared.

Military Motives Seen In Spanish Peace Proposals

 Blearies and ease the tension in the Mediterranean.

Then, too, the British and French are well aware of the fact that Mussolini and Hitler haven't got any too much money to throw Franco's way, even on a credit basis. They must feel that both Mussolini and Hitler would be willing to call it quits in Spain, if they could only get out in a blaze of glory.

The latest Franco-British scheme for a truce, and failing that, a new plan for withdrawal of volunteers, would seem to be all set up for an eventual Franco-Mussolini-Hitler victory in Spain.

The disinterested expert will tell you this is true because of a single little clause in the withdrawal scheme, under which Franco would be recognized as a "belligerent," with all the rights of a fighting government that are now extended to Republican (Loyalist) Spain.

That might sound to you and me like a purely technical point, but it is really very clever and practical from the diplomatic point of view. Here's why: England, France, and most other countries except Italy and Germany, technically classify Franco as an insurgent attempt to unseat the regular government of his country. To most nations, the republican government of Spain is the legal government. But if Franco had established a legal blockade against Loyalist Spain along the coast, and thereby completely surround and besiege the republicans until they submitted, any ship that attempted to pierce the blockade would be nothing more than a smuggling vessel operating outside the law and entitled to no protection whatever.

Great Britain's decision to take no action against air raiders who sink her ships in Loyalist waters in effect is recognition of Franco's rights as a belligerent, without admitting the fact to the world at large.

So, the horse-trading scheme to assure a Franco victory in time but, at the same time, to get Italy and Germany off the Spanish stage.

Whether it works, or not, remains to be seen.

Insurgent Advance Halted At Teruel

Germany Wants Evac- uation Of 40,000 Persons By Aug. 1

A year of war in the Orient ended today with China and Japan in what may be death grips for one or the other. In Europe, while Spain's warring brothers approached their third year of fighting, conferees of democratic nations met to ease the suffering of the oppressed.

Armies of China and Japan were deadlocked along the Yangtze River about Hukow and Kiang, 450 miles inland from Shanghai and 150 miles from Hankow, Chinese provisional capital.

Japan holds about one third of China's soil after a year of victories in which the Chinese forces have been persistently pushed into the interior. But

Kidnaper Is Denied Plea For Clemency; Cone Will Now Sign Warrant For Death

Decision Reached After Short Meet

Mrs. J. B. Cash Refuses Mrs. McCall's Re- quest To Aid Son

TALLAHASSEE, July 7.—(AP)—The Florida Pardon Board refused today to commute the death sentence of Franklin Pierce McCall for the $10,000 ransom kidnaping of James Bailey, C. B. Jr., at Princeton, Fla., on May 29.

Its decision was announced after a brief executive session following a plea by McCall's attorney for commutation, and by his prosecutor that the death sentence be carried out. The board's decision was announced without comment and came after a 15-minute deliberation.

The next step will be for Gov. Fred P. Cone to sign the death warrant unless this is delayed by some court action.

McCall pleaded guilty to kidnaping the child, who also was killed. He did not appeal to the supreme court after he was sentenced, but his attorney indicated there might be an appeal.

McCall's wife and mother, and parents of the Cash child, attended the pardon board hearing.

Mrs. McCall and Mrs. Cash talked briefly before the board's session started, and Mrs. McCall said she had sought unsuccessfully to have Mrs. Cash join her in seeking to have her son from the electric chair. She said Mrs. Cash refused.

She said Mrs. Cash told her "Your son not only killed my son, but he figuratively killed my husband and me. No penalty can pay for the crime or relieve us of our misery."

The plea for McCall was made by Attorney C. A. Arvett of Jasper, Fla., the 21-year-old kidnaping's former home.

Arvett contended McCall could not be sentenced to death because he did not have a treaty jury. When McCall pleaded guilty, the trial judge heard the testimony without a jury.

State Attorney G. A. Worley of Miami who acted as prosecutor at McCall's trial opposed the clemency, saying there was not a single extenuating circumstance in McCall's favor.

Morgan Files Suit To Retain Position As TVA Chairman

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 7.—(AP)—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan filed suit in Knox county chancery court yesterday challenging the right of President Roosevelt to remove him as chief of the New TVA and asking that he be recognized as a member and chairman of the board of directors of the federal agency.

The former president of Antioch College, asserted in the bill he had never recognized the President's right and power to remove him as chief of the New Deal's great experiment in social and economic planning.

He asked payment of back salary since his removal by the President Mar. 22, 1938, and a declaratory judgment voiding the President's removal order and forcing Directors H. A. Morgan and David E. Lillenthal to recognize him "as a member and chairman of the board of directors of the defendant, Tennessee Valley Authority."

The bill named the TVA and Directors H. A. Morgan and Lillenthal as defendants.
