Zoo Boxes

SANFORD - The Blazer Boys of the Wilford Woodruff Academy (a home school group) in Orlando will be constructing hibernation boxes for the Butterfly Garden at the Central Florida Zoological Park.

The boys, ages 9 through 13 will be building the boxes today behind the education building on the zoo grounds.

The butterfly boxes will have slots in the front and bottom to enable butterflys to go into the box and hibernate for the winter. The students will also be making a monetary donation to the zoo, and be taken on a tour of the facility.

The Central Florida Zoological Park is located at 3755 N. U.S. Highway 17-92, just east of Interstate-4 exit 52 in Sanford. For additional information, phone 323-4450.

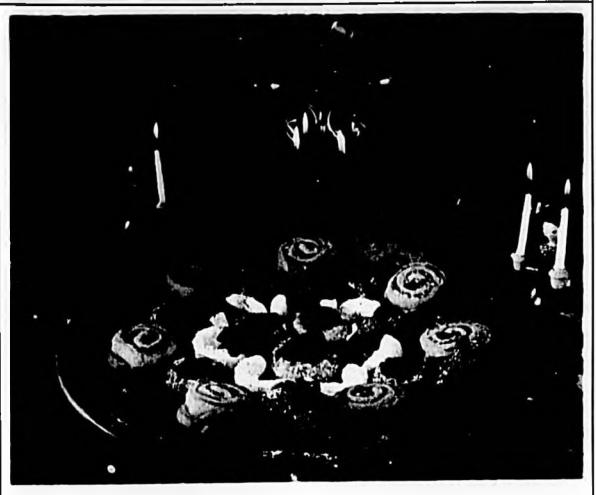

Parade time

SANFORD - Sanford Main Street will present its annual Christmas Parade this Saturday, Dec. 9, as part of the Winter Fest. The parade will feature the Seminole High School and Lyman High School Marching bands along with the U.S. Navy color guard, the Shriners, and the Orlando Arabian Horse Association. Sanford, Lakeview and Tuskawilla Middle Schools will also have marching units. Many other entries have been scheduled for the parade, including the expected appearance of Santa Claus. Sanford Main Street's Bess Simons said at Sanford Main Street's Bess Simons said at least 20 additional volunteers are still needed to help, especially five people by 8 a.m. on the day of the parade to help construct a viewing stage. The additional 15 are needed at noon on the day of the parade to guide and direct various groups along the route.

To volunteer, or for additional information, contact Mary Larsen, 321-0144. To enter a marching unit in the parade, Phone Althea Parish at 330-5641.

Weighting for Santa

Most Americans (they say), will gain between live and seven pounds by eating sweets during the upcoming holiday season. Without a doubt, much of this will be the result in indulgence in special holiday treats such as those offered in today's People section of the Sanford Herald, page 3-B. A number of varied recipes are presented, leaving the selection up to the individual. The Herald is thus providing the temptation, but leaving the weight gain up to you.

Who's killing dogs in Sanford?

By VICKI DoSORMIER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD _ A series of dog murders in Sanford's downtown residential historic district over the last month have owners distraught and police saying they are unaware of the problem.

Among others, Laurie von Bampus' nine year old Samoyed, Suga, and Randy Howell's three Shar-pei dogs, died painful and protracted deaths. Veterinarians told both parties the dogs were poisoned, possibly with rat poison.

"It was horrible," von Bampus sold. "She died an awful death, a slow one. I don't know why anyone would have done this. I just don't understand."

Suga, the daughter of the 1983 Canadian champion, was a pure-bred animal. Her owner said she was "smart and very friendly," Suga and von Bampus had been a recognizable duo in the district for seven years. She said they often went for long walks at midnight and knew the neighborhood children from morning walks as well.

Airport control back in city's hands

By NICK PPEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The city's decision whether to turn control of Sanford's airport over to the Arport Authority has flown back into the hands of the City Commissioners. During its regular meeting yesterday morning, the authority approved an agreement on the matter, and is submitting it to the City Commission for consideration at its next meeting, scheduled for Monday, Dec. 11.

The latest agreement was drafted by Airport

Authority Attorney Steve Coover, Executive Director Steve Cooke said Coover drew up the agreement based on suggestions from the authority's bond council, and has subsequently been in lengthy discussions on the matter with Sanford City Manager Bill Simmons. "From what we understand," Cooke said, "Mr.

"From what we understand," Cooke said, "Mr. Simmons and Mr. Coover managed to work out a number of changes in the text, of the original proposal to the point where they apparently both agree on it." Cooke said most of the changes were minor.

One of the major questions which had previously been discussed by the City Commission was the length of time the city is being asked to turn over airport control to the authority.

The original proposal was made because the authority said it was finding it difficult to lease any long-term buildings or property to prospective developers with the city having ultimate control over the entire facility, and capable of cancelling any lease on short notice. Cooke had previously commented that the prospective developers said they couldn't take the risk of having any long-term commitment quashed unexpectedly.

While the original request was for a 50 year agreement, members of the city commission had Bee Airport, Page 5

The best decorated homes in the Sanford Historic district were recently picked in the Sanford Historic Trust, Inc.'s holiday lighting contest. The first place home was that of Michael and Julia Goeb, top right, at 117 W. 10th St. Second place went to the All Souls Catholic Church Rectory, below, on Oak Avenue, just south of the church. Third place winners were Ken and Gretchen Gomez, top left, 1100 Park Ave., whose home was featured on this year's Holiday Tour of Homes. These homeowners received gift certificates to Home Depot. Three homes were also honored as runners-up. They are the homes of John and Juanny Mercer, at 708 Oak Ave.; the Thomas's, at 714 Magnolia Ave.; and the Marlins, at 1204 Oak Ave. Winners are encouraged to keep their lights on throughout the holiday season for visitors to enjoy.

Winn Dixie grants to benefit local kids

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Statt Writer

SANFORD _ Goldsboro Elementary School, the Sanford Boys and Girls Club and local Boy Scout troops are among those who were honored as good citizens by Winn Dixte supermarkets Tuesday.

More than $110,000 in grant money was given away by the supermarket chain to help nonprofit Central Florida organizations with their programs that are designed to help the community. The awards were made during the 12th annual Good Citizenship Awards. Throughout the south, Winn Dixie distributed more than 86 million to community-conscious organizations.

Orange County Sheriff Kevin Beary was the guest speaker at the event. He was surprised to receive a Community Service Award with the approval of nearly 200 guests in attendance at the luncheon to honor the award recipients.

Goldsboro was honored for their work in helping to educate at-risk students, students with special needs and even their families.

State graduation rate plunges

TALLAHASSEE - Slightly fewer students dropped out of high school in Florida during the 1994-95 school year than in the previous year, state officials said.

However, three percent fewer students graduated, continuing a five-year trend of lower graduation rates.

in 1995, 73 percent of those who entered the ninth grade walked across the state to receive their diplomas four years later. In 1990, that figure had been 79 percent.

The drop out rate measures the number of students over the age of 16 who quit school each year. The graduation rate measures the number of first time ninth graders who graduate four years later.

There has been some debate over the last few years over which figure is a more accurate indicator of student success or of schools' failure,

Students sometimes fall through the cracks when they either move away from the area or take more than four years to complete high school. Problems also arise in the accounting process when students drop out of traditional programs and complete their work at the adult high school or through a high school equivalency program.

State education commissioner Frank Brogan blamed the decreasing graduation rate on rapidly increasing enrollment.

Florida executes second in two days

STARKE - A 40-year-old Lakeland child killer, wide eyed with terror, was executed Tuesday in Florida's electric chair after his lawyers failed in their appeals that the electric chair had malfunctioned in an execution 22 hours earlier.

With the stole mother of his six-year-old victim on the front row for his death. Philip Atkins apologised for his actions, said goodbye to his family and thanked his lawyers. The small, thin man, eyes wide with fright, watched as he was straped into the chair. Seconds later, with a nod from Superintendent Everett Perrin, a black hooded executioner, who was paid $150, turned a switch that sent 2,000 volts of electricity through Atkins slender body, slamming him against the back of the chair, his hands gripping the oaken chair' arms. The two minute cycle began at 10:10 a.m., and a prison doctor declared Atkins dead seven minutes later. He was the 36th prisoner to die in Florida since it resumed caotical musichment in 1075.

since it resumed capital punishment in 1975. After the execution, Atkins' attorney Bret Strand said his client became frightened after inmate Jerry White's execution Monday afternoon. White emitted a short, muffled scream as he was being put to death.

Atkins heard the death team prepare White for execution from his death watch cell about 10 feet away and then later heard White's scream, Strand said.

But the cells, where both Atkins and White had stayed since Oct. 13, are 30 feet behind the electric chair. A thick steel door into the chamber remained closed during the execution. Atkins was condemned for the 1981 kidnapping and murder of Antonio Castilio. The killer picked up the boy in their Lakeland neighborhood, drove him to some woods and molested him. When the boy threatened to tell his parents, Atkins beat him to death with a steel pipe and his fists.

Florida's Public Service Commission met Tuesday in Taliahassee and postponed a request from the Volusia County Council that would have allowed the residence of that county to decide at the polis if they wanted the local calling prelivance. The members of the commission direct d their staff to work with local telephone companies to find ways in which to simpli-fy the proposal. The proposal would have allowed quarter calls between residents of eastern and western Volusia County if a majority of the customers had approved the plan.

A request was also postponed from Orange County to link the Mount Dora exchange with Apoplus, Orlando, Winter Garden, Winter Park, sestern Orange County, Reedy Creek, Windermere, and Lake Buene Vista for 25 cent calls. At the same time, the linkage of Deltons and Deflery with Winter Park and Orlando, which was approved earlier this year by the Public Bervice Commission, is still being protested by the long distance companies that serve the area. The Florida Intereschange Carriers, has filed an appeal with the Florida Bupreme Court and with the Public Bervice Commission.

Consumer group seeks standards for claims about animal testing

By DARLENE SUPERVILLE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - A consumer group asked the government today to regulate claims that health and beauty aids have not been tested on animals.

The National Consumers League says it found that the claims lead people to believe the final product has not been tested on animals, but most of the ingredients used to make cosmetics have been tested on animals.

Citing new poll results, league president Linda Golodner said standard definitions for the claims would ensure that product labels and advertisements are truthful and that consumers make more informed choices.

doesn't mean never tested on animals," she said. "Half of the consumers we surveyed thought that not tested on animals meant both the product and the ingredients weren't tested on animals." A cosmetics industry

"Not tested on animals'

"We have always said that these terms can be mialeading and confusing because practically every ingredient used in cosmetics was at some time tested on animals to ensure safety," said Irene Malbin, a vice president of the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association.

Golodner said she was concerned that cosmetics companies may be using the claims as a marketing ploy to get people who object to animals being used as test subjects to buy their products.

The volatile issue of testing products on animals has long pitted business and industry against animal rights groups and has resulted in boisterous pro-tests and widespread boycotts of companies that practice it. But over the years some companies, including cosmetics maker L'Oreal, have agreed to halt tests using animals. A dosen European Community govern-ments also have agreed to ban such testing by Jan. 1, 1998.

The National Consumers League solied the Federal Trace Commission and the Food and Drug Administration in letters today to adopt "clear and consistent" voluntary guidelines for the various animal testing claims.

It said such standards are necessary because the claims, which include such phrases as 'never tested on animals," "against animal testing," and "cruelty-free," mean different things to different people.

Golodner said the group's poll showed that 70 percent of the women surveyed said the claims mean the final product was never tested on animals.

The telephone poll of 612 randomly selected women aged 18 or older was conducted last January by Penn and Schoen Associates Inc. of New York City. It has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

A spokesman for the FDA, which regulates product labeling, was not immediately available to comment.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS Seminole County deputy sheriffs have arrested an Altamonte Springs teenager on drug charges. The suspect later turned out to be an escapee from the Orange County Juvenile Detention Center,

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, 18 year old Tavon Tossie, of Altamonte Springs, was seen on Jackson Street at approximately 8 a.m. Tuesday by Deputy Kevin Brubaker. McDonough said the deputy reported seeing Tossie put a white substance in his mouth, which later was proven to be crack cocaine. Brubaker subsequently arrested Tossie for possession of a controlled substance. Tossie was handcuffed and told to sit down while the deputy searched the street area for additional crack rocks.

McDonough said while Brubaker was conducting his search. Tossie stood up and began running down Jackson Street, with his hands still cuffed behind his back. Deputies later located Tossie in his home on Peachtree Street. They said he was hiding in a closet with his hands still cuffed.

Additional charges of escape and resisting arrest without violence were lodged against

Murdered pets

When someone loses a loved one, there is great sadness. This holds true for not only a member of the family or close friend, but the family pet.

What is worse is when it's not just a case of illness causing the death, but malicious murder. Such has been the case during the past few weeks, especially in the historic residen-tial area of Sanford, where pets have been killed. There have been several reports of persons finding their dogs dead, only to have the vet tell them the cause was rat poison. At least five cases have been reported recently.

These crimes aren't committed to get rid of a dog which has been ravaging a neighbor-hood. Most of these dogs have been securely contained in a fenced area. According to reports however, someone apparently passed the fenced area and tossed something to the dog, perhaps some dog food, laced with rat polson.

Several of these dogs were thoroughbreds valued at several hundred dollars. Others were simply pets which may have been obtained from a friend or through the Humane Society. It shouldn't matter, These pets were all loved by their owners, and their losses are not judged by how much they cost more by how much they had become a close part of family life.

Few will doubt that it takes a sick mind to murder any animal on purpose. To some people it may be just as tragic as murdering a family member.

There is a problem however, For most of these cases, animal control officials were notified, rather than law enforcement. People finding their dogs dead, took them to a local vet, and only after it was determined that the animal was purposely killed, were authorities notified.

The police should have been called as soon

Government is a four-letter word

I always try to keep up with what the compe-tition is doing, which is why I happened to read Maureen Dowd's column in The New York Times a few Sundays back.

There I learned that she once worked "as a reporter in Montgomery County, a wealthy Maryland suburb." She was therefore "thunder-struck" to read that this county's government is no longer going to refer to itself as "government." Douglas Duncan, the Democratic County Executive, believes that the word is "arrogant" and "offputting," and it will no longer appear on county cars, letterheads and business cards. I'm with Ms. Dowd on this (and what a rare pleasure it is to agree with anybody about anything!). I mean, really --if it's not a government, what is it? A regime or oligarchy? A Satanic cult, perhaps?

If the term "government" is offputting, what is the degree of off to which one is put? Is govern-ment like being cornered at a party by a boorish drunk? Is it like being stuck in an elevator next to someone with bad breath? Is it more subtly displeasing, like watching someone slurp soup from a bowl, or serve white wine with the salmon?

And if a government is indeed arrogant, how does changing its name alter the fact? You can call a horse a giraffe, but it still won't be able to nibble the high leaves. You can call the county assessor "Happy Fun Boy," but it won't change the zoning laws.

Still, anti-government fever seems to infect everybody. I see the bumper sticker, "I love my country, but fear my government" everywhere. What are we afraid of? FBI swat teams? Getting audited? Being trapped on a plane with Newt Gingrich for 25 hours?

What exactly is wrong with being governed? Granted, we haven't been governed very well for the last 30 years or so, but are we going to shoot all the dogs just because the neighbor's spaniel barked at us?

By the time you read this column, the budget crisis may still be with us, and we may not even have a government. You'll have to go to a notary public to get your passport stamped. You'll have to hand-deliver your own letters, deduct your own taxes, build your own prisons, and pull yourself over when you run a stop sign.

Powerful lobbyists and special interest groups will be forced to write checks to themselves. Influence will wither on the vine, because there'll be nobody left to peddle it to. The words "stop-gap measure," "bipartisan" and "filibuster" will disappear from our vocabulary overnight! Necktie sales will plummet.

Personally, I think we citizens are up to the challenge. All we need is teamwork. We can fill in those potholes ourselvest I'll subsidize your tobacco crop if you'll legislate my morality. How about it? Why, we could even put a man on Mars if we put our minds to it. I've got some old liquid oxygen up in the attic. I believe the guy down the street has some turbothrusters in has garage. Weld some garbage cans together, and presto- we've got ourselves a rocket. We've got ourselves a space program. We'll never be sick or DOOT again.

But will the system formerly-known as-government really go away? I doubt it. Petulant Beltway weenies can call government a "tax free zone," "opportunity cen-ter." or "the happy-face faceless bureaucracy," all they want, but they're in a heavy state of denial.

The fact is, we Americans have a sick need to elect officials. We get a twisted pleasure from watching them throw our tax dollars down ratholes. If they won't do it, we'll just bring somebody in who will.

Not to sound too pessimistic, but there's nothing we can do. We can vote all we want, but there will always be some worthless president or other skulking around the White House.

cases a few weeks, only eliminated the possibility of officers uncovering any evidence at the scene.

Police treat this as animal cruelty, and convictions are punishable by severe fines and/or jail terms. Anyone who may have seen suspicious activity which possibly may be animal killers, should contact the Sanford police department.

Persons having their animals killed or severely injured should also notify the police. Animal murders are nothing new. It is just because there have been an unusual number of these cases reported recently in the historic area of our city that these comments are being made.

Let's face it. There is someone out there, a vicious adult, or a child who thinks killing animals 18 something to do for entertainment. Let's hope this person or persons can soon be identified and apprehended, No one should be forced to go through the trauma of losing a family pet, it's more serious than some apparently think.

ing risks and don't mind the price volatility of emerging markets funds, meet tow fund man-agers so gung-ho on China they could make anyone want to be an investor in that part of the world.

Lynda Johnstone is the portfolio manager of the Guinness Flight China and Hong Kong Fund. She asked investors at a Fidelity Fund Network Seminar in Atlanta earlier this month this question: If it were 100 years ago, you lived in London, would you have looked to the United States for investment opportunities?

Good question. Particularly because it makes you think about things from a different perspective and then wonder if you, in fact, would have had the foresight to imagine the United States growing into the most powerful nation in the world.

There are very few investment opportuni-ties that occur throughout history that have significant impact on the way we view invest-ments in the future," says the London-based Johnstone, who was in the United States to talk about her fund.

"Back in the late 19th century, there was a point in time when people were beginning to look at the U.S. market. And you can take another look back in the 1970s, when the Japanese market was the place to be at the time. The majority of the people missed out on those opportunities.

"All I'm saying is that people need to look forward and say to themselves. Where are the investing opportunities in the world today?"

investing opportunities in the world today?" There's no doubt that china is a growing economy. According to Johnstone, it has been growing at a rate of about 9 percent per year, and if economic growth continues at that pace China could become the world's largest econo-my in the 21st century. She also said the "prudent" way to get the best exposure to China at the moment is by buying Hong Kong stocks, although these are bish-risk markets.

high-rick markets.

According to Lipper Analytical Services, there are about 60 slocks in Guinness Flight's China and Hong Kong Fund that through Nov. 16 has a year-to-date total return of over 11.5

percent. The majority of the stocks in the fund (75 percent) are blue chip stocks found on Hong Kong's Hang Seng index. Johnstone's management style looks at risk first and reward second, with the goal of trying to beat a bench mark. At this moment that bench mark is the Hang Beng Index. Barbara Trebbi is portfolio manager of the by China Region Fund. A fund that has about 14 percent of its assets invested in mainland China, 56 percent in Hong Kong, 12 percent in Norea and the remainder invested throughout other parts of Asia.

She too thinks that China offers tremendous long-term investment opportunity. "It's really the engine of growth for the whole

But Trebbi, whose fund is down roughly 2.6 percent this year, is aware that investors are no longer enchanted with many of their Far East and Asian fund investments.

"I think that China is a perfect example of people overreacting on the negative side.' Trebbi said. "Stocks have really been beaten down. There are stocks in China that are down 50-60 percent off their highs trading at 40 percent of their value. With all the positive macroeconomic changes that have taken place (in China), there is still a lot of value there that has been created.

The China a Hong Kong markets are not for everyone. Price volatility on the handful of funces investing there is likely to repeatedly spark, pop then fizzle like chinese firecrackers, so interested fund investors have to be both big-time risk takers and very long-term thinkers. And long term doesn't mean invest-ing for a couple of years - it could mean decades. Which, for visionaries, is no time at

was sick and tired of being helpless," she said

Now the image Sanborn projects is far from helpless, especially since it can frequently be found working atop the Million Dollar Bridge in Portland, Maine. After com-pleting Women Unlimited's 14-week-course. Sanborn became the first woman to be a unionised tronworker in her state. She makes $10 an hour now and will make $17 an hour once ahe becomes a journeyman tronworker.

probably in about four years. Lured by good wages and the satisfaction that comes from skilled work, many women are pursing careers in trades such as carpentry, welding, electrical work, masonry and truck driving-fields that were all but off limits to women just a few decades ago. Groups such as Women Unlimited and Chicago Women in Trades help welfare moth-ers, unemployed women and displaced home-makers take the first step toward nontraditional work. As well as teaching the technical aspects of the trades, the classes also offer weight and aerobic training, interviewing techniques and assertiveness training. Students are encouraged to learn back-up trades as well as primary ones. Sanborn, for example, is also trained to drive trucks containing hazardous waste.

For many of the students, one of the best things that the training programs provide is the assurance that they're not crasy for wanting to enter this very masculine arena. "It helps build a support system so you don't think you're the only woman in the world who wants to go into construction," says Barbara McCollum, a graduate of Chicago

Women in Trades' program. McCollum, a former accountant turned carpenter, says the reactions from male bosses and crew members vary with each job, where she is frequently the only woman on board. "With some crews you can socialize and have lunch with the guys, but on other crews the talk is in the tollet, basically," she BAYS.

Buccess rates for the programs are high. Eighty-nine percent of Women Unlimited's 1995 graduates have already found work, and 65 percent of Chicago Women in Trades grads now have a steady psycheck. Lauren Bugarman of Chicago Women in Trades is heartened by the fact that so many women are discovering the trades— the number of sugarman of Chicago Women in Trades is heartened by the fact that so many women are discovering the trades— the number of tradeswomen has doubled since 1980—but warns that these well-paying fields would never have opened to women if it weren't for affirmative action. "It's no accident that women were not included in these programs before," she says. "It wasn't until employers had specific mandates to hire women and people of color that things changed." Even now, things are far from perfect. McCollum says she is sometimes put on the fringe of a job, isolated from other crew mem-bers, doing mental tasks that don't teach her new skills. Sanborn says she still gets strange looks when she walks around town in her soot-covered work clothes, a crescent wrench peeking out of her pochet. "We're in uncharted territory," says fashers. "It's going is take people some time to get used to 2."

Dogs

Suga, von Bampus said, had learned to open the heavy gate and go down the street to the playground at All Soul's Catholic School and to Park on Park where she'd play with the children. The owner had recently replaced the gate to prevent any unauthorized romps around the neighborhood in the dark of night. There are crack dealers, prostitutes and people like that who are trying to stay off of First Street and away from the police," he explained. "The dogs would bark at them and they'd threatened me. You know, 'I'm gonna shoot you and your dogs,' and things like that." Neither von Bampus nor Howell said they knew of any reason the dogs would have been targeted. They didn't hurt anyone," Howell said. "They barked for my protection."

Von Bampus said the same was true for her dog. She barked to warn her of danger, to announce a visitor and "when she saw some children she wanted to play with."

Von Bumpus said Suga died Nov. 15. She said the dog had been acting strangely two days before, but she did not take her to the veterinarian because she was involved in trying to replace a ladder that had been stolen from her yard. By the time she took the dog to the doctor the next day it was too late.

The doctor told her the animal had been polsoned with rat poison and that it was not the first time he had seen such a death recently.

She said she reported the death to the Sanford Police, but they have no record of such a report. "They really don't seem to care," she said. "We've had a murder and they don't seem to care about It.

Three days later, Howell said, his dogs were poisoned. He said the animals had been in the yard overnight on Friday and Saturday morning the older dog was dead; by that afternoon anoth-er was gone and the puppy died on Sunday.

"Whoever did this was sick. Really, really sick,"

Howell suspects the people who travel along the street at night finally made good on their threats to silence the barking dogs.

"I don't know who else it might have been," he said

Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department said no investigation is being con-ducted at this time into the dogs deaths.

"There haven't been any reports filed," he said. "I look over the reports every day and I double checked on it. There hasn't been anything."

Whitmire said the police department has made arrests on animal cruelty charges before and takes such incidents "very seriously," noting that if there had been a report, the police would have checked out the situation immediately.

Officials at the Sanford Veterinary Hospital in Sanford confirmed that they have had at least one patient brought into the facility within the last month that had been poisoned, but they refused to discuss other details.

Von Bampus and Howell fear a trend in dog killings may take more pets from their families.

"I have walked around the area warning people and when I went on the home tour last weekend, I told everyone who had a dog out in their yard," von Bampus said. "I think people need to be warned."

There have not been any other dog poisonings in the neighborhood since Nov. 18 of which either Howell or von Bampus are aware.

"Let's hope this is the last of it," Howell said.

Nicholas Zill, author of the study, cautioned that the findings should not overly concern a parent whose child seems to be behind.

"It's not like your child is doomed if they can't count at a certain age." Zill said Tuesday. "In fact, there are very wide developmental differences among individual children."

But the study does raise concerns about groups of chil-dren who lag. Zill said. For example, Hispanic children, as a group, had fewer literacy skills when they entered kindergarten. the study found.

Pay taxes painlessly

WASHINGTON _ About 3 million taxpayers filing tax returns to the Internal Revenue Service next year will find it may be just a phone call away.

The IRS announced Tuesday TeleFile will expand nationwide for taxpayers filing their 1995 returns.

Next month, 23 million taxpayers who use Form 1040Z will be mailed special booklets giving them the option of filing by tele-phone. The IRS predicts 3 million people will use this option, up from 680,000 this year.

Next year, the process will become paperless. Taxpayers will end their call by using a personal identification number, which will replace the traditional signature. Previously, taxpayers had to follow up a telephone return by mailing a signature form.

Filling tax returns by telephone was a small pilot project in 1992. This year it was available to cligible taxpayers in 10 states: Ohto, Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, South Carolina, West Virginia, Colorado and parts of California and Texas.

To be eligible, taxpayers must receive a TeleFile booklet containing their personal identification number. They also must be single with no dependents, have taxable income of less than $50,000, have interest income of less than $400 and live at the same address as last year.

During the call, which should last about 10 minutes, taxpayers follow the nine steps outlined on a work sheet and the recorded-voice instructions, which are available in English and Spantsh.

Bracing for impact

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina_As they did in Somalia, Rwanda and Haitt, humanitarian groups are bracing for the impact of the 60,000-member NATO force on the Bosnian landscape

Many expect the NATO force to change the dynamics of a very complex place, from fragile relationships forged with the com-batants to the movement of refugees across the rugged, snowy landscape.

The biggest fear is that 80,000 Bosnian Serbs estimated to be living on the fringes of Sarajevo will flee en masse when those territories are turned over to the Muslim-Croat federation under terms of the Dayton, Ohio, peace pact.

The Red Cross is earmarking emergency aid to cope with the possibility that tens of thousands of Bosnian Serbs will trek across the brutally cold mountain passes ringing Sarajevo, said agency spokesman Beat Schwiezer.

Some relief workers fear privately that the Bosnian Serb leaders will use women and children to block the U.S. led force from enforcing the accord in the suburbs, a tactic employed previously against U.N. peacekeepers.

There also are worries that a pocket of 55,000 Bosnian Muslims in the town of Gorazde, a brutalized enclave surrounded by Serb territory, will flee to Sarajevo along a corridor to be opened under terms of the accord.

Rams Roll Again Hammett leads Lake Mary girls to ninth win

By GARY COATOAM Herald staff writer

WINTER PARK . Lori Hammett scored 15 points Tuesday to lead Lake Mary to a 50-45 win over Lake Howell in a girls' Seminole Athletic Conference bassketball game at Lake Howell High School. Freshman Lauren Lauren Bradley scored 14 points for the Rams, and Courtney Harris added 13.

"We played four games in six days, and the kids are tired," said Lake Mary coach Carl Brown, "Lake Howell came out and slowed us down. I'm pleased with our performance, and everybody played better in the second half."

The Silver Hawks had a 9-8 lead at the end of the first quarter, and the teams were within one point of each other or tied for most of the period.

Nikki Read gave Lake Howell a 13-8 lead to start the second half, but Courtney Harris put Lake Mary ahead 20-15 just before halftime. The Silver Hawks closed to within 20-18 with 1:38 before the break, and the Rams headed to the locker room with a 23-20.

BANFORD Sunniland Corporation and the Red Hots missed golden opportunities to take control of the league and in the process allowed the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Fall Slowpitch Softball League turn into a five team race. Tuesday night at Pinehurst Park, GICC railed for two runs in the bottom of the county in the bottom of the seventh inning to edge Sunniland Corporation 3-2 in the first game of the evening. In the second game, the Red Hots won a scoring duel with Lot's Excon 16-12, but then had the roles reveresed as Crasy Wings accord four runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings to defeat the Red Hots 14-12. OICC and Sunniland ation are both 7-2, while the Red Hots are 6-2. Crasy Wings and the She Devils (who were idle Tuesday) are also still alive with 4-4 records.

Methodist Flames burn back to top in church softball

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - Back in a famillar spot.

The Sanford First united methodist-Flames wrapped up their fourth championship in the past five leagues with an 185 victory over Deltona Trinity Assembly of God-Majesty in the Sanford Recreation Department Fail Church Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park Saturday morning.

Winning pitcher Tom Gracey scattered 10 hits and Robert Smith led a 22 hit attack by going five-for-five as the Flames improved to 9-0 on the season.

The Flames' victory was just one of the stories on a big Saturday for the winning teams.

In those other games, Sanford Church of the Nasarene finished the season with seven straight wins by topping Sanford Central Baptist 9-5 and Sanford All Souls Catholic won its second straight game by scoring a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to edge Sanford Spanish Assemblies 32.

Trailing the Flames in the standings were Majesty and Nazarene (both 7-3), Spanish Assemblics (4-6), All Souls (2-8) and Central Baptist (1-9).

Tonight at the Downtown Recreation Center in the lower level of Sanford City Hall, the Sanford Recreation Department will hold its organizational meeting for the adult Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball Leagues starting at 6 p.m.

The sponsorship trophies and championship T-Shirts will be awarded at this meeting in addition to discussing the upcoming leagues.

Anyone interested in putting a team in the church league are encouraged to attend. A reduc1st United Nethodist-Fiames 206 700 4 --- 18 22 Hy of God-Majosty Trinity Assen 010 201 1 - 5 10

Roll out the Christmas cookies!

Ah. Christmas! The time of year when the experts will tell us how depressed we are.

It took me a long time to admit it. but I LIKE Christmas. I like the lights and the decorations, the holiday smells (balsam, cinnamon, tangerines) and the way people make extra efforts to see friends and cook up goodies.

Now, I didn't always like the holiday. There were years when I spent too much, cooked too much, ate too much, and paid for it, literally and figuratively. But nowadays, I feel like I've got Christmas down pat. Our shopping is minimal and within our budget. The hours when I could be miserably battling hordes at the mall 1 spend instead with the kids, making presents for them to give to their teachers and achoolmates.
