Shed dweller asks to talk to board

SANFORD — After more than a year of failing to respond to Seminole County, Oviedo shed dweller Marvalyn Higgins has asked to talk to Code Enforcement Board members at their July 28 meeting. Billie Rozansky, county records clerk, said Higgins came to her office last week seeking an appearance before the board. CEB members voted in May to foreclose on Higgins' property at 1271 Lowery Drive because she failed to comply with county minimum living area codes after nearly 18 months of county efforts. She was living in a small metal utility shed, much smaller than the county's minimum 1,300-square-foot dwelling requirement.

Finance director decision is set

LONGWOOD — The list of applicants for city finance director has been narrowed to four. City Administrator Gene DeMarle is expected to make his final decision today. Finalists include James R. Holt of Longwood, director of facilities management for Seminole County and former chief financial officer for the county's public works department; Roger W. Segner of Carolina, Ga., a certified public accountant who is employed as interim director of Economic Development for Columbus, Ga.; Christina Rider of Winter Garden, a CPA employed as assistant controller for Visiana Resort; and Michael J. Hynson, Orlando, a CPA who has owned his own computer consulting firm, Hynson and Associates, since November 1984. Mary Triplet has been acting finance director since September, 1987, after former finance director Barry Weeks resigned under fire.

Florida Power Corp. asks rate reduction

Florida Power Corporation has asked for its second reduction in electricity rates in four months. The decrease would lower the 1,000 kilowatt-hour residential bill from $66.80 to $65.75 per month. If approved by the Florida Public Service Commission, the new rates will go into effect with October bills. An average $3.02 drop in rates took effect at the start of this month.

County okays 'bed tax'

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners gave their initial go-ahead Tuesday for a two-percent "bed tax" to begin in January. Commissioners will consider final approval next month. If approved by voters in October, the tax is expected to collect $477,338 during 1989 and $501,205 in 1990. The tax will only be imposed on hotels, motels and other dwellings which rent or lease for less than six months. Only rooms will be taxed, not meals and other sales.

At least 25 percent of the funds raised during the first two years of the tax will be reserved for improvements and promoting the Central Florida Zoological Park west of Sanford.

Zoo executive director Pam MacConnell said the zoo has a long list of needs, including providing more spacious animal habitats, correcting flooding problems, construction of a new entrance plaza to divide large groups from single-car visitors and restroom improvements.

The other 75 percent of the tax revenues will be used primarily to promote and advertise Seminole County.

Jim Young, a Seminole County Tourist Development Council member and representative of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, told commissioners Seminole County offers visitors an alternative to the high-tech tourist attractions of Orange County.

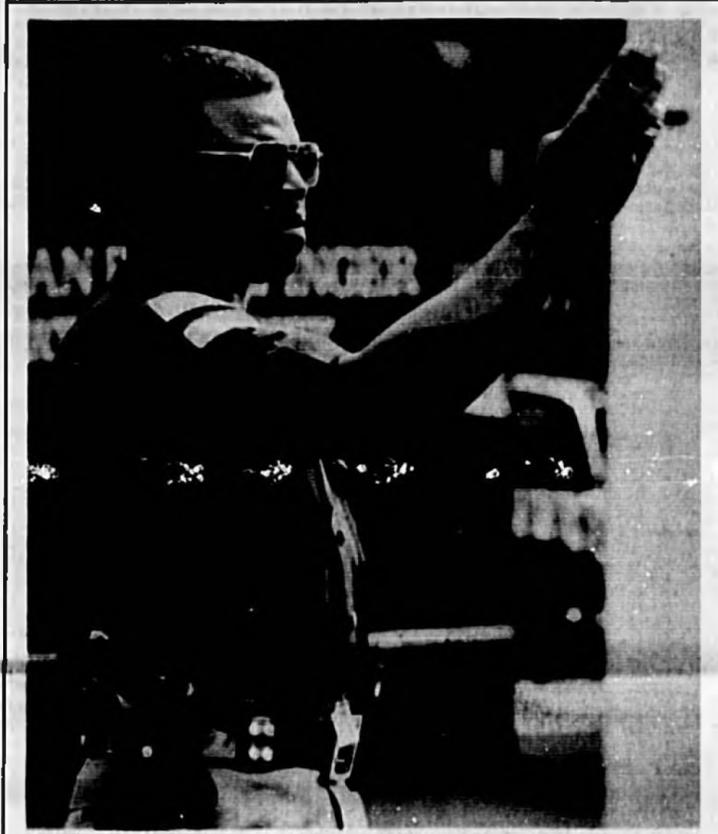

"We think we can attract people away from the concrete and pavement-type attractions to the more natural, slower-paced attractions like the Wekiva River," Young said.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn, TDC chairman, said a portion of the 75 percent promotion dollars can be used to make improvements to the shoreline of Lake Monroe and the Wekiva River to enhance their attractiveness for visitors and residents alike.

Other goals for the bed tax dollars include possible funding of arts programs and local museums.

Willie Harden, a motorcycle officer for the Sanford Police Department, directs traffic at the intersection of First St. and Park Ave. Tuesday morning after a brief power outage crippled the traffic

Medical complex plan nixed by commission

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners overturned an earlier decision and voted 4-1 Monday to deny a land use change to allow a medical complex at the northeast corner of Dodd and Red Bug Lake roads.

Commissioners cited uncertainty about how Florida Hospital would develop the 39.5-acre site in denying the land use change.

Commissioners voted 3-2 in March to approve the request by Florida Hospital to change the land use for the site from low density residential use to a planned development for what they thought was a 50-bed hospital and a medical office park to be built within the next three years.

Residents opposed the plan, saying it was inappropriate for a residential neighborhood. Commissioners Bill Kirshhoff and Sandra Glenn agreed with the residents and voted against the proposal.

But Tuesday night, Tom Werner, president of Florida Hospital, said state approval of a 50-bed hospital was unlikely because Central Florida already has enough hospital beds. Werner said Florida Hospital is currently seeking state approval to build a 120-bed

"We might possibly put a walk-in clinic there. It is not our position to put a hospital there at this time."

nursing home in Seminole County, which would be located on the site.

Commission Chairman Fred Streetman, surprised by the pronouncement, asked Werner if their plans were feasible.

"Yes they are," Werner answered. "We might possibly put a walk-in clinic there. It is not our position to put a hospital there at this time."

Streetman said the plans represented a significant change from the March meeting, when commissioners were told by Florida Hospital's representative, Hugh Harling, that a hospital would be built on the site within a short time.

Streetman said he supported a hospital on the site, although county staff had said such plans are premature until Red Bug Lake Road is widened.

Airport Authority money sparks hopes for carrier

By WAYNE MIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Airport Authority approved a $6.2 million budget for the municipal airport Tuesday, including money for equipment that will be necessary if a major carrier is to be attracted to the facility.

The authority approved the budget in a 90-minute meeting after studying three alternative budget proposals made by Executive Director J.S. "Red" Cleveland over the last three weeks.

The budget must next go before the city commission for discussion and two public hearings before adoption.

"This is really the one (proposal) I wanted approved," said Director Mack Lathersby. "It provides us with the funds to continue operation and gives us the opportunity to pursue air carrier services."

Cleveland said he is currently pursuing several major air carriers in the hopes of luring one to the airport. He said a formal presentation could be made within the next two weeks.

"You got to have the equipment before you get these (air carriers) people in here," said Cleveland.

Cleveland hopes to land an air carrier which will provide limited passenger service to selected cities. Miami, Atlanta, New York and Charlotte, N.C. have been mentioned as possibilities by Cleveland.

The $6.2 million budget includes the purchasing of two aircraft-rescue fire fighting (ARFF) vehicles at $300,000 each

Longwood may raise taxes

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — City Commissioners are considering a tax rate increase of $1.50 per $1,000 assessed property valuation over a five-year period to be designated for road reconstruction.

The city's proposed $9,755,857 budget for the 1988-89 fiscal year would not require a tax rate increase except for the $900,000 in street reconstruction needed in the city, according to City Administrator Gene DeMarle.

He said in his budget message that depending on how much street reconstruction the commission wants to accomplish during the next year, the tax rate will be affected accordingly. Every $500,000 equates to roughly one mill or

Board upholds firing of Seminole jail guard

By Susan Loden
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — In a unanimous vote, a civil service board today upheld the firing of a jail guard who had appealed her firing by Seminole County Sheriff John Polk.

The three-member Seminole County Sheriff's Department Civil Service Board ruled the guard, Martha "Marty" Brown, 40, had lied and tried to hide the fact that she was a jail guard, when applying to visit a felon in a state prison last year.

The board also said Brown was wrong to loan her car, with a handgun in the vehicle, to the felon on the day he was released from prison. Eleven hours after the he took the car Brown reported it was stolen. The report of the alleged theft was not timely, and the guard was faulted for not promptly making law enforcement officials in St. Augustine aware that along with the car, the felon had also taken her gun, the board said.

They ruled, based on those key factors in a 14-point complaint by Polk against Brown, that Polk was justified in firing her and upheld his action.

Brown's only recourse to the board's decision is to file a suit in civil court.

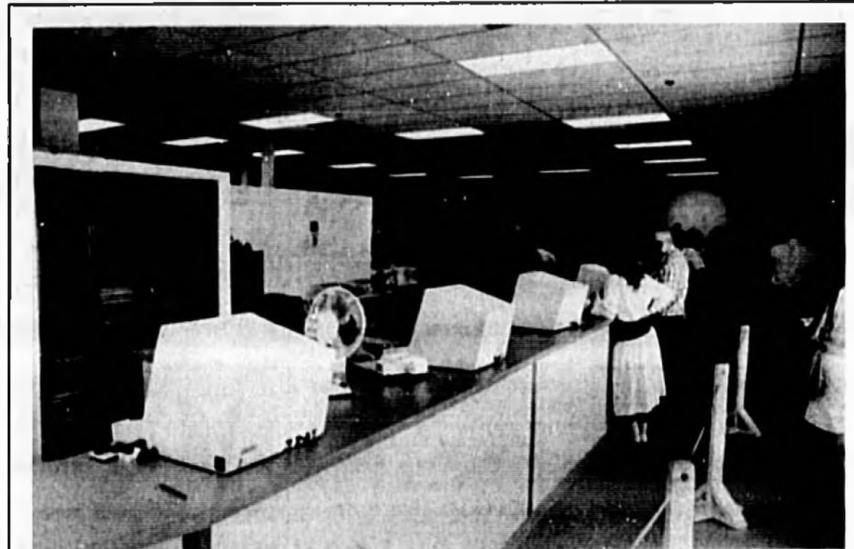

Brown was fired by Polk on May 3 after an internal department probe showed she allegedly lied to state prison officials on an application to visit a convicted felon at the state prison in Mayo.

The board, which heard her appeal June 7, is comprised of Sanford attorney Bill Colbert, Seminole County Chief Deputy Duane Harrell and sheriff's investigator Ralph Salerno.

According to hearing testimony, among the alleged misinformation on that form filed by Brown in October 1987, was an incorrect Social Security number, an Oviedo post office box address instead of her Winter Springs home address, and the listing of Brown's occupation as "freelance artist/entrepreneur-SCC."

In the hearing a prison official testified that prison staff had no idea Brown was a jail guard. They should have known her

Sanford chamber supporting proposal for federal prison

By WAYNE BEEB
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors voted overwhelmingly to support a proposed federal prison site on city property near Lake Jesup.

"We had a very good both-sided discussion," said Dave Farr, executive director for the chamber. "We will be sending a resolution and letter of support to the city commission and then it is up to them."

The secret ballot vote by the board of directors Tuesday was 18 in favor, five against and one abstaining, according to Farr.

"I was not surprised," said

Mayor Bettye Smith. "I anticipated that and expected it."

Smith has stated she is against putting a federal prison on city property.

The city was contacted by the Federal Bureau of Prisons several months ago about a possible site for a correctional facility for low to medium security prisoners.

The 2,230 acres of city-owned property near Lake Jesup was inspected by the Bureau of Prisons approximately six weeks ago and 200 acres has been identified as a possible site for the prison.

The investigation team sent by the Bureau of Prisons to study the site, included Lewis Burger & Associates, New Jersey.

Burger & Bernard & Thomas, of New Jersey and David Burack, an environmental expert for the bureau.

As a result of that trip, Lloyd McMillan, site acquisition manager for the bureau, will contact the city this week by letter stating the prison bureau's desire to come to Sanford, according to Farr. "He (McMillan) said he hoped our support would be the same," said Farr.

As of today, the city has not received any communication from the bureau, Smith said.

On June 2, 25 city and county politicians and business people were given a tour of federal prisons at Tallahassee and Marianna at the expense of the Bureau of Prisons.

Auto theft investigated

SANFORD — Police are looking for a man who drove off in a 1988 Lincoln Town Car, valued at $17,670, from Budget Car Sales after giving false information to the agency.

According to the police report, on July 1, a man who identified himself as Farruk Agha entered the sales lot at 4274 S. Orlando Drive, and expressed an interest in purchasing an automobile.

Agha was allowed to drive the Lincoln off the lot without giving full payment after he gave the dealership all the necessary information concerning his business profession and credit references, according to the report.

Upon checking the information, the agency found everything to be false and have not been able to contact Agha.

In another case, the city utility department is willing to overlook tampering with the city water system if the people make good on past bills and repair damages.

According to the police report, on July 11 the utility department was notified that a man was tampering with city water pipes near his house at 2617 Hartwell Ave. Upon inspection, Utility Department Director Paul Moore found that pieces of pipe and a valve had been installed enabling the residents to unlawfully receive water without paying for it.

Steven George Premo and Charlotte Premo, who live at the address, owed the city $411.91 in back payments and had their water service main removed by the city on July 7.

Ammons reward fund now $1,970

By WAYNE BEEB
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The reward fund for the killer of Curnetha Ammons, an 11-year-old who was brutally murdered July 2, has reached $1,960 as of this morning.

The reward fund, established at Sun Bank, began with a $1,000 donation by City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan on July 8. Since then the reward has grown through donations by concerned citizens, including Mayor Bettye Smith and members of the Seminole County School Board.

Police Chief Steven Harriett said police have received several calls as a result of the reward but no hard evidence has developed.

Currently, police are waiting for blood samples and photographs from Miami police taken from a rental car that was returned there with blood stains in the car and trunk, according to Harriett.

Anyone with information concerning the murder is asked to call the Sanford Police Department at 323-3030. All calls will remain anonymous.

Donations for the fund can be brought to the bank or mailed to the Reward Fund for Curnetha Ammons, Sun Bank, 200 W. First St., Sanford, 32771.

Great weather likely for holiday tomorrow

By FRED H. COOPER
Herald staff writer

Prospects for wonderful weather for the holiday tomorrow appear bright. Yes, it will be hot outside but suitable celebration of Bastille Day requires festivities inside, even if you have to break into the place. For those of you planning a fair do do, sunset tonight is at 8:26. If you've got your heart set on going to New Orleans for partying, the weather there will be essentially the same as here in Seminole County — highs in the low 90s and lows in the 70s. There is a chance of rain in the late afternoon here but only cloudy skies will prevail in the Crescent City, no rain likely. So spread the fleur de lis and let the good times roll.

We've been viewing the rising temperatures elsewhere but now they're settling in the Sunshine State. Lakeland had a 98 degree reading yesterday and some parts of the Panhandle cleared the century mark. Highs in Seminole County ranged from 92 to 95 degrees. Some rain fell in various places but not much. The lack of rain around Jacksonville is beginning to cause problems.

The water situation is getting even more critical in sections of north Florida, and one official says warnings could extend as far south as Daytona Beach.

Jacksonville water conservation manager Gary Weise said seven of the 12 water wells monitored recently in Duval County were at record low levels because of the dry weather. He said warnings could extend for areas east of Interstate 95 as far south as Volusia County.

Managers of the St. Johns River Water Management District are scheduled to meet Wednesday in Palatka to hear more about the drought situation. A warning could be

Jackson supporters wary of Dukakis' selection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mainstream Democratic leaders are celebrating the choice of Lloyd Bentsen as Michael Dukakis's running mate, but Jesse Jackson supporters do not appear as eager to endorse the apparent presidential ticket.

Republicans, too, are split on the question, with some of Bentsen's Senate colleagues praising the Texas legislator but aides to Vice President George Bush, naturally, criticizing the strategy behind his selection.

"I believe Michael Dukakis was just elected president of the United States. I think it is a genius of a decision," crowed Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., when word of the Bentsen selection came Tuesday. "I think Lloyd Bentsen will bring Texas and bring the South and a lot of other states as well."

"Today, the Boston-Austin axis is reborn and that is good for the Democratic Party and good for the country," added Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., referring to Massachusetts Sen. John Kennedy's choice of Texas Sen. Lyndon Johnson as a running mate in 1960.

Gephardt, whose own quest for this year's presidential nomination was sunk by the Massachusetts governor, declared, "The Dukakis-Bentsen ticket will win this election and is superbly qualified to govern this country."

Jackson, runner-up to Dukakis in the long nomination campaign, did not seem as eager to embrace the potential ticket.

Dukakis, Bentsen begin strategy sessions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis and new running mate Lloyd Bentsen are moving quickly to unify their support and erase any fears that they will not win the enthusiasm of minority leaders who back Jesse Jackson.

Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor who will claim his party's nomination at the national convention next week, arranged several appearances today in the nation's capital with his vice presidential choice, the senior senator from Texas. Their most critical appearances were a meeting with black members of Congress and a speech to the NAACP convention — bases of Jackson support.

Dukakis scheduled the trip to Washington weeks ago when his vice presidential choice was still the big question mark of his campaign. His selection of the politically moderate Bentsen gave him an opportunity to use the trip to sell the ticket to crucial Democratic audiences.

Dukakis, in announcing his choice Tuesday before a huge crowd at Boston's Faneuil Hall, quickly tried to revive images of the Kennedy "Camelot" era — stressing that sons of Massachusetts and Texas won 28 years ago when Sen. John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson joined forces to defeat Richard Nixon.

"Jack Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson beat that incumbent Republican vice president in 1960 and Mike Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen are going to beat them in 1988," the three-term governor declared. Bentsen, also trying to revive lost Democratic glory, promptly picked up the theme: "The Massachusetts-Texas axis was good for the country in 1960 and it's going to be a real winner in 1988."

Bentsen, the 67-year-old chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, is expected to help Dukakis in several ways — many of them a direct challenge to Vice President George Bush, the prospective Republican rival.

Bentsen not only comes from the Lone Star State, which Bush claims as his adopted home, but also is a political moderate with 24 years of Washington experience who will try to temper Bush's argument that Dukakis is too liberal and has insufficient foreign policy credentials to be president.

Like Bush, Bentsen also was a

World War II pilot. And in what Democrats will note repeatedly, he has successfully faced the Republican on the campaign battlefield before — defeating Bush in the 1970 Senate race in Texas.

The selection furthermore clearly shows that Dukakis believes winning Texas and its 29 electoral votes will be a cornerstone in his strategy to recapture the White House.

The choice, however, is not without its problems — the main one being how strong Jackson's newly energized constituency will support the Democratic ticket without the black civil rights leader on it.

Monday, less than 24 hours before the Bentsen choice became known, Jackson met with Paul Brontas, the head of Dukakis's vice presidential search, and announced after weeks of hints that he did want to get the No. 2 slot.

Tuesday, a terse Jackson said he was not told he had lost out until after news of the Bentsen choice was leaked in the morning and, while insisting he was "too mature" and "too controlled" to be angered, he did not offer an enthusiastic endorsement of the ticket, calling the selection a "strategic move" by Dukakis to "solidify his organization."

Jackson indicated that before he and his supporters would be able to campaign enthusiastically for Dukakis, they would have to talk with the governor about important issues before the start of the party's convention next week.

Jackson decided to return today to his home in Chicago, where Thursday he will lead a bus caravan to the convention in Atlanta that starts Monday.

KITES, KIDS AND POWER LINES CAN BE A DEADLY MIX.

For your child's safety, make sure there is nothing metallic on the kite, make sure that the string for the kite has no wire or metal in it, and don't let kids fly kites near power lines.

Ordinarily, power lines are quite harmless. But when a kite gets caught in a power line, it could become electrified. Tell your kids to let go of the string and leave the kite alone. Otherwise, the result could be deadly.

Always look up. Whether you're picking fruit or pruning trees, installing antennas or doing any activity that puts you in possible contact with overhead lines.

Don't be a victim of your own carelessness.

Hope for fund to aid justice

When Curnetha Ammons was brutally murdered on July 2 shock waves moved through the normally placid city of Sanford. Crime, including murders, are not unknown in the city but the fatal stabbings of an 11-year-old child seemed especially horrendous. What type of person deliberately kills a child?

With the scarcity of clues, police needed help and City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan initiated a reward program with a $1,000 donation. Mayor Bettye Smith followed with her own donation, as did members of the Seminole County School Board. The reward fund, maintained by the Sanford branch of Sun Bank, is now $1,960 and growing daily.

The reward is offered for information which leads to the arrest and conviction of the person guilty of the murder. Sanford police have already received several calls with information but are still without hard evidence.

The establishment of the reward fund by these civic-minded, local leaders is commendable. It is hoped that the fund will bring forth the evidence to see that justice is done.

We feel deep sympathy for the family and friends of Curnetha whose young life was ended so brutally. The act should serve as a reminder that the ages of victims of crime know no bounds and the suffering caused by crime is likewise unbounded. The efforts of professional law-enforcement officers are enhanced when augmented by concerned citizens.

Jackson snubbed

Michael Dukakis has made his choice — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas. The average voter in Central Florida will probably view this selection as following the proud tradition of other vice presidential candidates such as William Miller, Sargent Shriver and Charles McNary.

The saga of the Jesse Jackson campaign continued to the end. The Rev. Jackson said he learned of Gov. Dukakis' choice from a reporter. The continuing question of recent months, "What does Jesse want?" was answered in the end — it didn't matter to Gov. Dukakis. The Rev. Jackson wanted to be the president, then earlier this week announced that he wanted to be vice president. Regardless of one's support or view of his campaign, the Rev. Jackson deserved more than a snub yesterday. Gov. Dukakis has run a smooth campaign up until now, carefully avoiding alienation of any of the diverse groups which constitute the Democratic party.

The scenario of next week's Democratic convention has been rewritten somewhat. What appeared to have the possibility of a "lovefest" may become a turbulent few days which will test the mettle of the delegates, and the ears of the viewers.

BERRY'S WORLD

GEORGE F. WILL

Simpson, Powell or Ueberroth for veep

WASHINGTON—In the first of two moves to make himself seem bold and interesting, George Bush should say:

Mr. President, nominate as Ed Meese's successor the man obviously most qualified to be attorney general, a man who has served with distinction as a judge and as solicitor general, a man who, Lord knows, is familiar with the confirmation process and has been shown to have no skeleton in his closet (his enemies scoured the closet in vain), a man so familiar to the senators that they would have no excuse for not acting with dispatch.

The man is Robert Bork. Nominating Bork would be condign punishment for the senators who comprised last year's lynch mob. They would have to slither around the oily hypocrites they then advanced. You remember: Many said they only opposed Bork because of the "balance" of the Supreme Court, and no one questions his intelligence or integrity, only his "judicial temperament," and if Bork had been nominated to a position to serve as the President's man, during the President's term, it would be different. So they said.

The second thing Bush should do is settle on an interesting running mate. Here are three possibilities.

Wyoming's Sen. Alan Simpson is funny—intentionally so, unlike...well, never mind—and has the advantage of coming from a state with a piddling three electoral votes that Bush will win anyway. The choice of Simpson would signal heroic disregard for conventional calculations, which is a clever calculation. Simpson does have a volcanic, indeed Vesuvian temper, and he is, even by current disgraceful Republican standards, awfully smitten with Gorbachev. But boys will be boys.

Another good choice would be Gen. Colin Powell. President Reagan's national security adviser. He is bright as a new nickel and sound on the issue it can be fatal to be unsound on (the Soviet Union). His nomination would underscore Michael Dukakis' weakest dimension, foreign policy. And Powell is black. His nomination would come one month after Democrats do not nominate Jesse Jackson for vice president.

Some say the nation's residual racism would make Powell's nomination politically imprudent. They are underestimating the country and the capacity of boldness by a conservative party to have a constructive effect. Remember, the Conservative Party gave Britain its first Jewish and female prime ministers.

A third possible Bush choice is a man who currently holds in sacred trust the nation's highest office: Peter Ueberroth, baseball commissioner. He is intelligent and formidable. Butter does not melt in his mouth when pursuing an objective, as he showed when running the 1984 Olympics. And on this season's simmering issue, drugs, he makes sense.

Polls today would reflect the fact that he has been less conspicuous than he was when running the Olympics and becoming Time's person of the year. However, he has not been invisible since then and the basic point of those polls is that the public saw in him something it liked a lot. Neither Dukakis nor Bush has yet generated such polls.

Top court frustrates the right

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For conservatives, the 1987-88 Supreme Court term was a "good news, bad news" story.

The good news was the conservative voting records of the two newest justices — Antonin Scalia and Anthony M. Kennedy.

The bad news was the clear move to the center by the court's most traditionally conservative member, Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist. Even if Rehnquist has moved toward the center, however, there can be little doubt that the court is now firmly in the control of conservatives.

The court is now viewed as being composed of four solid conservatives (Rehnquist, Scalia, Sandra Day O'Connor and Kennedy), one moderate-conservative (Byron R. White); two true moderates (Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens); and two traditional liberals (Thurgood Marshall and William Brennan).

In this past term, Justice White emerged as the swing vote. In 34 decisions involving 5-4 votes (or 5-3 when only eight justices voted), his was the deciding vote. In almost two-thirds of these cases he sided with the conservatives.

Also, Justice O'Connor, whose voting record in the past has tended to be moderately conservative, seems to have moved considerably farther to the right.

Constitutional scholars view the recently completed term as a relatively unimportant one, as far as decisions with wide-ranging ramifications are concerned. Most cases decided since last September revolved around narrow, technical issues with little effect in setting constitutional precedents.

But one case decided in the court's final week was important.

In a stinging blow to the Reagan administration, by a 7-1 majority, the court upheld the constitutionality of the independent counsel law.

What worries conservatives is that the court's opinion was written by Rehnquist, who rejected one of conservatism's central tenants: They believe the Constitution demands a strict separation of the three branches of government and a president should be free to operate without interference from Congress or the judiciary.

Some conservative court watchers believe Rehnquist is adapting to his new role as chief justice by seeking to form a consensus.

Mail reveals frustration, apprehension

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The frustration level is rising across America. This is reflected in our mail, which is tinged with apprehension. Americans sense that the nation is in trouble, ravaged by drugs, riddled with crime, disintegrating from within.

To provide a vent, we will give our readers hereafter a greater voice in the column.

Our mail is unique, dominated by the concerns and complaints of readers who regard us as a people's advocate. We have tried with our limited staff to investigate their problems, but thousands of letters have had to go unanswered because we are unable to cope with the volume.

Now we have established a working relationship with the inspectors general of key federal agencies. They have agreed to help us resolve some of the problems that flood into our office. There still is no way we can reply to all the mail, but we will

Campaign's new twist

By ROBERT SHEPARD
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A new twist has developed in the long controversy over political contributions and campaign finance, with questions now being raised about members of Congress contributing money to each other.

One House member — Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla. — calls the practice "dangerous" and has introduced a bill to ban it.

The practice has drawn attention as a result of contests for leadership positions in the Congress. Essentially these are in-house elections and would appear to be the kind of events that would not involve campaign costs in the usual sense — no television ads, no travel, no mailings. But some of the candidates have raised money from outside Congress and handed it out to their colleagues, who also happen to be the voters in these elections.

Anywhere else, this would appear to be blatant and illegal vote-buying, but Congress often makes itself an exception to rules that apply elsewhere.

In the House, three members are vying for the post of chairman of the Democratic Caucus, generally considered the No. 5 position in the Democratic leadership. At least two of the candidates have raised several thousand dollars, largely from lobbyists, and plan to dispense the money to Democratic House candidates in the November election, both incumbents and non-incumbents. The election winners will meet late this year to choose the caucus chairman.

In the Senate, two of the three candidates to be the next Democratic leader also have raised money — also from outside Congress — to donate to fellow Democratic senators or would-be senators.

Bennett's bill would prohibit members from not only giving campaign money to other members of Congress or candidates for Congress, but would also bar the handing out of personal funds, thus ensuring that wealthy members would not have more clout than the non-wealthy. The bill would prohibit the solicitation or acceptance of contributions for congressional leadership elections.

"This is a very dangerous practice that ought to be stopped. My bill does that in a very straightforward way," Bennett said.

Bennett makes the very logical argument that "leadership positions, including committee chairmanships, shouldn't be bought and sold. ... They ought to be earned."

Such posts should be filled on the basis of seniority, Bennett suggests, but he recognizes that the once-inclined congressional seniority system has largely fallen by the wayside. But "absent the seniority system ... shouldn't the basis for election be more than who gave whom a thousand bucks?" Bennett asks.

Unfortunately, the odds are against Bennett's bill ever becoming law, and the practice of in-Congress money exchanges probably will expand. Members of Congress are reluctant to pull the plug on anything they believe smoothes the path to re-election or additional power.

SCIENCE WORLD

Painters arthritis and paints

By CELIA HOOPER
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Toxic metals in bright colored pigments used by some "Old Master" painters may have triggered their arthritis, and scientists said the findings stand as a warning about metal contamination today.

In a recent issue of The Lancet, two scientists from the University Hospitals in Copenhagen, Denmark, said they analyzed pigments used by three artists who had advanced rheumatoid arthritis — Peter Paul Rubens, Auguste Renoir and Raoul Dufy — and Paul Klee, who had progressive systemic scleroderma, a rare disease of the blood vessels and connective tissue in which the skin becomes hard.

They compared random samples of paint taken from the canvases of these artists to samples from pairs of artists who lived at the same times.

Lisbet Milling Pedersen and Henrik Permin compared the palette of Rubens (who lived from 1577 to 1640) to that used by Rembrandt and Vermeer. The pigments used by Renoir (1841-1919) were compared to those of Edgar Degas and Claude Monet, who shared a studio with Renoir.

The paint of Dufy (1877-1953) was compared to two other French artists — George Rouault and Andre Derain. Klee's palette (1879-1940) was compared to that of Wassily Kandinsky and Karl Schmidt-Rottluff.

Rubens, Renoir and Dufy "used significantly more bright red, bright yellow, and blue" than other noted painters of their days. The bright colors contained mercury, cadmium, arsenic, lead, copper, cobalt, aluminum and manganese, the scientists said.

Klee "used significantly more bright red and violet or mixtures of reds and blues," the scientists found, noting these paints contained manganese, cobalt, mercury and cadmium.

Other artists tended to use black and "significantly more earth colors, containing only iron and carbon, than did the now artists with rheumatic diseases," the scientists said.

They said rheumatoid arthritis "was rare before the 17th century," and Rubens may have been "one of the first cases to be described."

respond in the column to the most compelling complaints.

Letters should be addressed to Jack Anderson, P.O. Box 2300, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Here is a sampling of the kind of comments we hear as we travel throughout the country:

"By all accounts, the FBI's wiretappers have found evidence of massive corruption in the Pentagon," a former Pentagon officer told us. "I saw worse corruption that wouldn't interest the FBI because it was perfectly legal."

"I watched Pentagon officials and defense contractors divide up billions in procurement among key congressional districts. A new contract would be awarded or a new plant would be built where it would influence a congressman whose vote was needed."

"I was present when weapons systems were selected because they cost more. That's right, the higher costs generated bigger staffs for the generals, more jobs for the congressmen's constituents and higher profits for the corporations."

As strong as these comments are, they understate the case. Billions are spent for equipment that should never have been purchased. Weapons systems are often designed for profit rather than defense. Frills are added for no reason other than to increase the price.

Thousands of military installations are kept operating for no other purpose than to provide a payroll.

A banker passed along these concerns about the booming Japanese economy: "Three years ago, I was sent by my bank to Japan. The Japanese people have treated me with elaborate courtesy, but they have carefully kept me outside the conference rooms where decisions are made and policies are adopted. There appears to be a shadowy force that controls Japanese moves from behind the scenes."

We, too, have heard references from competent sources, to a committee influencing Japanese policy. But it would only compound our economic problems if we looked for such a simplistic solution. Making a scapegoat out of Japan would further demoralize the national psyche, discredit the sadder public figures and inflate the firebrands and know-nothings.

We are responsible for our own economic plight. Japan is a nation of producers; the United States, a nation of consumers. Japan is a nation of engineers; the United States, a nation of lawyers. Japan is piling up cash reserves; the United States is running up the public debt. The Japanese sacrifice today for tomorrow; Americans sacrifice tomorrow for today.

From a reader in New York, we got this question: "I heard you say on your radio broadcast that Colombia was the source of most of the cocaine that is smuggled into the United States. But I read in the New York Times that Mexico supplies most of the drugs coming into this country."

The Medellin cartel, a criminal consortium operating out of the Colombian resort city of the same name, supplies an estimated 80 percent of the cocaine consumed by Americans. But most drugs are smuggled here across the Mexican border.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Presidential gender gap narrows

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Florida's men and women voters, who three months ago disagreed sharply over presidential candidates George Bush and Michael Dukakis, are now thinking alike, a University of Florida political analyst says.

"It's surprising to go from a very big gender gap to none at all," said Michael Martinez, UF assistant professor of political science and one of the survey's researchers. "I could only guess that some women who thought they favored Michael Dukakis in May became clearer about the two candidates in June and divided more evenly."

In the College of Business survey, women favored Massachusetts Governor Dukakis over Vice President Bush by 43 to 35 percent in May, but preferred Bush over Dukakis by 46 to 43 percent in June.

The margin by which men preferred Bush over Dukakis slipped from 45 to 37 percent in May to 43 to 41 percent in June. The percentage of the 363 registered voters surveyed who favored neither candidate dropped from 18 percent of the men and 22 percent of the women in May to 16 percent of the men and 11 percent of the women in June.

Martinez: No price tag on justice

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez says the high cost of executing killers compared to life imprisonment will not deter him from signing death warrants in the name of "justice" for crime victims.

"You don't put a price tag on justice. This is what it's all about," Martinez said during an impromptu news conference Tuesday.

"What about the millions probably lost by the victims all these years — the torn families, the fatherless and motherless children, a mother or father who no longer has a son or a daughter?"

According to legal experts, it has cost Florida taxpayers more than $57 million since 1973 to put 18 condemned killers to death, a little over $3 million per execution, and the cost will rise in the future.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Casino river ferry dumps passengers

LAUGHLIN, Nev. (UPI) — A ferry carrying passengers between Arizona and the Nevada gambling casinos across the Colorado River collided with a cruise boat and capsized near a hotel dock, dumping about 100 people into the fast-moving water, authorities said.

"There were no fatalities," said Janet Smith of the Las Vegas-based Mercy Ambulance Co., which services Laughlin. "Most of the injured suffered from hypothermia because of the 58-degree water. Others had abrasions and some complained of back and neck injuries."

Smith said one witness told ambulance crews that the ferryboat, which seats about 30 people, appeared to lose power in midstream about 9 p.m. Tuesday, and that the pilot was attempting to restart the motor when the swift-moving water swept it into the side of the larger touring boat, causing the ferry to capsize.

Love prompts helicopter breakout

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The woman who swept into the New Mexico state prison in a helicopter and flew away with three convicts says she staged the breakout through a blaze of bullets to free the killer she loves for his birthday.

"There isn't anything I wouldn't do for the guy," Beverly Shoemaker, 41, told reporters in a jailhouse interview Tuesday hours after lawmen discovered her convict-boyfriend, Daniel Mahoney, hiding behind bushes along the Rio Grande.

The bold helicopter breakout gave Mahoney only 15 hours of freedom. The other two convicts were captured Monday just after a wild aerial chase of the helicopter that whisked them from the recreation yard of the Penitentiary of New Mexico near Santa Fe.

Report: Genetic approach to waste needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Genetically engineered microbes hold promise for reducing toxic waste and in spite of the nation's $2.7 billion spent on biotechnology, too little money has gone to this area, a government report said Tuesday.

"Biotechnology can change the way we live. It has already provided, and promises to provide, many products never before available, as well as greater quantities of products now in short supply," said a report by the Office of Technology Assessment, an analytical arm of Congress.

The study found that in fiscal 1987, the 12 federal agencies and one interagency program involved in biotech research spent about $2.7 billion, compared to the $1.5 billion to $2 billion spent on research and development by more than 400 biotechnology companies in the private sector.

The 33 states that fund biotechnology research through colleges and universities spent $147 million, the report said, but noted that all the financial estimates were imprecise.

But the expected benefits to society are not always reflected in allocation of money, the report said, noting that particularly in agriculture and waste disposal — engineering new microbes to clean up hazardous wastes — "the investment level is insufficient to meet the promise suggested by current work in the area."

"The application of biotechnology to waste disposal is still largely experimental, and the investment is small compared with efforts in pharmaceuticals and agriculture," the study said.

The OTA cited "fears of regulatory barriers" as "discouraging researchers from investigating genetic engineering as a way to discover potentially beneficial organisms" and "a widespread feeling that the Environmental Protection Agency is biased against biological approaches to waste disposal and unwilling to support approaches involving biotechnology."

The report considered only new biotechnology, defined as "any technique that uses living organisms or parts of organisms to make or modify products, to improve plants or animals, or to develop microorganisms for specific use."

This included genetic engineering, fusion of cells and new biological processing techniques, but did not include traditional industrial microbiology involved in brewing, baking or selective breeding of plants and animals.

Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said, "The Department of Agriculture spends less than 5 percent of its annual research budget on biotechnology. This is shortsighted. America must redirect its resources to strengthen plant sciences and insure that USDA's research program properly reflects agriculture's future, not its past."

Jeremy Rifkin, head of the Foundation on Economic Trends and a perennial foe of some aspects of biotechnology, called for a moratorium on the release of genetically engineered organisms in the environment, a review of lab safety procedures for handling new and more dangerous altered pathogens like retroviruses and greater attention to the human consequences of the new technology.

"The Reagan administration economic and social consequences of this industry," Rifkin said.

Senate leaders file drought aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders on the drought introduced a $5.5 billion "safety net" legislation for hard-hit farmers, setting up a system of disaster payments to help farmers for destroyed crops.

Lawmakers said it was unlikely Congress would pass the bill this week but Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said he hoped to get a "solid bill, strongly supported" out of committee by the end of the week.

The bill would let drought-hit farmers keep crop subsidy payments they already have received and sets up a system of disaster payments that would be equal to 65 percent of a farmer's usual income for losses that exceed 35 percent of a crop. Payments would be reduced in proportion to the amount of crop that survived.

"The legislation offers a safety net of income stream to every farm in America," said Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, the Agriculture Committee's ranking Republican.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said Lugar described the legislation to President Reagan during his weekly meeting with GOP leaders and "the president's cabinet."

Both the Senate and House agriculture committees called sessions to begin drafting a final bill. House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois, like other congressional leaders, said the disaster help would come from money already set aside for crop subsidies. Lugar said about $5.5 billion could be converted to drought aid. Leahy refused to estimate how much was available or how much aid would cost.

"It's a very generous piece of legislation," Leahy told a news conference, comparing the 65 percent pay-out to the 1986 drought aid bill that had a 50 percent compensation rate.

Bush pledges positive civil rights agenda

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President George Bush, distancing himself from the Reagan administration's controversial civil rights record, promised the NAACP convention Monday he will have "a positive civil rights agenda" elected president.

"I guarantee you I will be personally involved in protecting the civil rights of all Americans," Bush, who has locked up the Republican presidential nomination, told the 79th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"This effort will be at the top of the agenda of my attorney general and he or she will be directly accountable to me for results," Bush told the large black gathering in a politely interrupted speech that was interrupted several times with light to moderate applause.

"I will have a positive civil rights agenda," Bush vowed, adding that such an agenda "is not just a matter of social policy but of fundamental right."

Aware that the Reagan-Bush administration civil rights record has been repeatedly attacked by minority groups, including the NAACP, the last seven years, Bush seemed to separate himself from the civil rights policies of his boss, President Reagan.

"I'm not in the on-deck circle anymore; I'm at the plate," Bush said. "And let me just say it's a new day. I am here to tell you who I, George Bush, am and where I want to take this country."

He told the gathering that he has "always supported affirmative action ... and I always will" and predicted that he would "do better than people think" this fall against expected Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis in winning black votes.

"I do not intend to concede the vote of any American," Bush said.

Some of his biggest applause came when he said that America, on its journey to the next century, "must finally leave the tired old baggage of bigotry behind us."

"Wherever racism rears its ugly head — Howard Beach, Forsyth County, wherever — we must be there to cut it off," he said, referring to Howard Beach, N.Y., and Forsyth County, Ga., where racial tensions have flared in recent years.

And Bush promised that if he is elected president, he "will have minority men and women of excellence as full-scale partners in my administration," regardless of the percentage of black votes he gets.

He said his goal is to "go beyond the protection of rights to the creation of opportunity" and that he wants to create 30 million new jobs during a Bush administration.

NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks introduced Bush as "a man of honor and integrity" who has always been "courteous, calm and polite." That prompted Bush to thank Hooks for "that warm endorsement."

Union refuses to bend on free agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite urging from a federal judge to resolve the NFL's festering labor dispute at the bargaining table, the players' union says resumption of contract talks depends on the owners' willingness to bend on the key issue of free agency.

Gene Upshaw, the executive director of the NFL Players Association, said in an interview Tuesday that reopening talks would be purposeless unless the owners are willing to liberalize the current restrictive free agency system of compensation and right of first refusal and allow free movement of players at some point in their career.

"I have never refused to meet with management," Upshaw said. "What I have asked continuously is, 'Has their position changed?' and, 'At what point will the players be free?' The last answer I got was they haven't changed their position."

"We would have to meet in the context of settling the lawsuit and whatever we would agree on would mirror a collective bargaining agreement," Upshaw said.

Illinois' AD Stoner resigns

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — University of Illinois Athletic Director Neale R. Stoner resigned Tuesday after an investigation confirmed that university maintenance personnel performed work on his house and car, Chancellor Morton W. Weir announced.

Stoner's resignation is effective upon completion of legal agreements. He has been accused of paying for vacations with athletic department funds.

"After intensive work by our auditors and police investigators, we have confirmed that over a five-year period, approximately $904 of work was performed by athletic personnel on Neale's home, yard and family automobiles," Weir said in a statement.

Weir also said Stoner received dry cleaning services credited as a gift to the athletic association.

Casinos clean up on Tyson Spinks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — High-rollers attracted to the Tyson Spinks heavyweight title fight June 27 created a windfall for New Jersey casinos, which won nearly $40 million from their customers the weekend of the bout, regulators reported Tuesday.

The four-day weekend from June 24 to June 27 accounted for about 17 percent of the $235.5 million that Atlantic City's 12 casinos won from gamblers last month, the Casino Control Commission reported.

The June take was up nearly 10 percent from the $214.2 million that crossed the gaming tables or was retained in slot machines in June 1987, the commission reported.

That increase compared with an 18.3 percent gain in the monthly win figure in January, the month of the Mike Tyson-Larry Holmes fight. The winter, however, is a traditionally slow gambling period in Atlantic City and the total January take, even after the fight, was only $196.8 million.

Big night for the hurling Harmers

Joey blanks Mount Dora

MOUNT DORA — It was quite a night for the Harmer family Tuesday night. At the same time older brother Frank was hurling a one-hitter for the Altamonte Juniors at Altamonte, Joey Harmer was tossing a two-hit shutout for the Altamonte Major Nationals in District 14 Area 3 Tournament action at Mount Dora.

The 2-0 victory over Mount Dora advances the Nationals to the losers' bracket game tonight at 7 against Caselberry at Wirz Park in Caselberry.

"He (Joey Harmer) wasn't overpowering, but he kept the ball down and made Mount Dora hit a lot of groundballs," Altamonte manager Frank Harmer Sr. said. "And the defense played solid behind him. Dusty Story had a great game at third base."

Harmer had a no-hitter going for five and two-thirds innings. He allowed just three walks and struck out three.

Frank throws one-hitter in 11-0 rout of Oviedo

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

ALTAMONTE — Frank Harmer hurled a one-hit shutout and Altamonte pounded out 13 hits Tuesday night en route to an 11-0 victory over Oviedo in the District 14 Area 3 Junior Tournament before 251 fans at Eastmonte Park.

Oviedo will return to action this Friday in Oviedo against the winner of the Mount Dora-Eustis game. The winner on Friday will advance to play Altamonte at Altamonte on Saturday in the finals.

Altamonte will be pitching Pam Davis on Saturday and will hope she can come up with a tough performance as she is coming off a slight injury.

Harmer finished the night with seven strikeouts while without a walk. Harmer gave up his only hit in the top of the third, a two out single to Chad Shaw.

JUNIOR ALL-STARS

Altamonte scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning and were never threatened as, after an out, Harmer started things off with a single. Andy Thompson followed with a run scoring double to pick up the game winning RBI. After the innings second out Scott Johnston singled in Thompson. Marcus Bullock and Cornelius Cotton then walked to load the bases before Johnston scored on a passed ball to give Altamonte a quick 3-0 lead.

"We hit the ball really well tonight," Altamonte coach Baird Lyons said. "Frank (Harmer) pitched great and he got a lot of help from our offense. Oviedo has a very good team and I was pleased with the way we played."

Ormond stops Sanford

By DEAN SMITH
 Special to the Herald

SANFORD — Defending District 4 champions Ormond Beach opened defense of their crown with a 6-5 victory over Sanford in the Florida Junior Major League Tournament Tuesday night at Sanford's Chase Park.

In the early game, Port Orange scored nine runs in the second inning and held on to defeat Holly Hill, 14-9.

Sanford will play Edgewater, a 9-4 loser to Holly Hill Monday, at 6 p.m. today at Chase Park in an elimination game.

Tuesday's game opened with an omen of things to come when Ormond Beach's lead-off batter, Kevin Reynolds reached on an error by the Sanford first baseman. The next batter, Lavon "Pooky" Glenn, hit a single to right field, when Reynolds tried to advance to third the throw by the right fielder was wild and Reynolds scored. Sanford avoided further damage when Glenn was thrown out trying to advance to third on the same play and the next two batters were retired.

Sanford came back to get the lead in their half of the first when Phillip "Duke" King got the first of his four walks. Anthony "Redman" Roberts was then hit by a pitch and Quinton Byrd ran for Roberts. Mike Dillon drilled the next pitch between short and third and King scored to tie the score. Byrd wound up on third and Dillon second when the left fielder fumbled the ball. Byrd gave Sanford a lead when he scored on a wild pitch.

Ormond tied the score in the third when Reynolds walked, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch, and scored on a ground ball to second by L. Glenn.

Eustis blanks Nationals

By CHRIS FISTER
 Herald sports editor

OVIDO — Rinker Robinson (even the name sounds funny) a tall, pencil-thin lefthander with bright red shoes, looks like Pee Wee Herman in a baseball uniform. But the way he pitches is certainly no joke.

Robinson had the Altamonte Senior National All-Stars handicapped all right long Tuesday as he tossed a five-hitter to lead Eustis to a 3-0 victory in the winners' bracket of the District 14 Area 3 Tournament before 101 fans at the Oviedo Little League Complex.

Eustis goes on to the area finals Saturday at Oviedo while Altamonte will play in the losers' bracket final Friday night in Eustis. Should Altamonte win, it would face Eustis on Saturday.

Altamonte had few chances against Robinson as he struck out eight and walked none in tossing the shutout. The victory by Eustis also spoiled an impressive pitching performance by Altamonte's Jamie Mocny. He allowed just one earned run on three hits, struck out seven and walked two.

Eustis got a one-out walk in the top of the first inning but Altamonte's defense would not allow a rally as shortstop T.J. Hamilton fielded Chris Dillard's grounder stepped on second for the force and gunned to Dana Death at first for the inning ending double play.

Robinson set Altamonte down in order in the first, but the Nationals threatened in the bottom of the second when, with one out, Dearth and Tanner Morrison hit consecutive singles. The two moved up on a wild pitch but Robinson then rose to the occasion and got the next two hitters to end the inning.

Eustis picked up an unearned run in the third to break the scoreless tie. Wes Tibbals hit a runner at first, Wes Tibbals hit a drive to deep right field that went for a three-base error.

Altamonte got its first two runners on in the bottom of the

Steinbach unexpected All-Star hero

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Credit those ballot-stuffing fans in the Bay Area for discovering a way for the American League to beat the National in an All-Star Game.

Oakland fans, as expected, voted Athletics slugger Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire onto the AL's starting lineup of the 59th All-Star Game. The fans then sprung the unexpected, sending Terry Steinbach and his .217 average to the mid-summer classic.

But Steinbach, a 26-year-old catcher in his second full season in the majors, acquitted himself in grand style Tuesday night, hitting a homer and a sacrifice fly to lift the AL to a 2-1 victory.

"I've never doubted my hitting," said Steinbach, the lowest-hitting position player in the game. "I'm not happy with the numbers I've put up going into the All-Star Game. But I expect to turn it around in the second half."

He started toward that goal by winning the game's MVP honor and becoming the eighth player in All-Star history to homer on his first at-bat. The blast leading off the third inning came against starter Dwight Gooden of the Mets.

"The guys were teasing me," Steinbach said. "I hit a home run in my first major-league at-bat in Cleveland and my first at-bat as an All-Star. They're already saying I'm the answer to a trivia question."

The triumph was just the AL's third in the last 17, each coming with Whitey Herzog of St. Louis managing the NL. The previous time the AL won was 1986, with Gooden the starter and loser. The NL has won 22 of the last 26 All-Star Games and leads the series 37-21-1.

Minnesota's Frank Viola, last year's World Series MVP, started for the AL and earned the victory with two perfect innings.

The NL managed just five hits off Viola. Boston's Roger Clemens, Kansas City's Mark Gubicza, Toronto's Dave Stieb, Texas' Jeff Russell, Cleveland's Doug Jones, Milwaukee's Dan Plesak and Oakland's Dennis Eckersley Eckersley, leading the majors with 26 saves, earned the save by retiring the side in order in the ninth.

The AL limited the NL to its fewest runs since 1968, when the NL won 1-0.

"The whole AL pitching staff pitched well," said Herzog, who also lost to AL Manager Tom Kelly in last year's World Series when Minnesota won in seven games. "Those guys got the big outs when they had to and they also played great defense."

Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly, Milwaukee second baseman Paul Molitor (who has not played that position this year) and Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken all made impressive plays in the field.

The only hit of the first two innings was by Boston's Wade Boggs, a one-out single in the first.

Steinbach led off the third by lifting an 0-1 pitch from Gooden to right. The ball hit the top of the wall, cluffing a jumping Darryl Strawberry of the Mets. The homer ended the AL's scoreless-inning drought at 17 innings, spanning three All-Star Games.

"I was ahead of the count and tried to get the ball away, but it wasn't away enough," Gooden said. "It was a good pitch, a pop up when he hit it, but it just carried."

Steinbach received 690,438 fan votes, winning the catching job by more than 80,000 votes over Chicago's Carlton Fisk. It is generally conceded ballot stuffing landed Steinbach on the roster. In the days just came here to do my best," Steinbach said. "The fans voted me in. I didn't expect to hit a home run, but I wanted to show what I could do."

In the fourth inning, Steinbach almost placed himself in the All-Star record books. The AL loaded the bases with one out against Houston's Bob Knepper on a double by New York's Dave Winfield, a walk by Ripken and a single by McGwire.

Steinbach then unloaded a

Jacklin: American won't win

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — Employing a tactic associated more with a boxing match than a major golf tournament, Tony Jacklin issued a verbal slap in the face to American challengers for the 117th British Open championship.

"I just don't think they're as good as we are now," said Jacklin, who last year helped a European team hand the United States its first home-turf Ryder Cup defeat.

"I look through who I would consider the favorites, and I can't see beyond a European win. I can't see an American win. But then I'm biased."

And some Americans were miffed.

"Tom Kite could win here, Fred Couples could win here, powerful," Paul Azinger responded. Azinger, presumably out of modesty, refrained from including his own name, which last year appeared with Rodger Davis' in second place at the conclusion of the British Open. If not for bogeys on the final two holes, Azinger would have beaten Nick Faldo for the championship.

"I don't know what Steve Pate can do, but he's a pretty good player, finished third at the U.S. Open, I think, or maybe fourth (tied for third)," said Azinger, a 28-year-old from Sarasota, Fla., who was last year's PGA Player of the Year. "Payne Stewart hits it good, Lee Trevino hits it low."

There are a list of guys.

"Lanny Wadkins, how can you leave him out? How can you say Lanny Wadkins can't win here?"

Hernhard Langer would not say such a thing.

"I don't quite agree with Tony Jacklin about Europeans winning," he said. "I would think some of the Americans stand a very good chance of winning."

Open Notebook

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — Falling off his son's motorbike has turned into a boon for Briton Ian Woosnam. The Welshman says a month off to allow his injured wrist to heal has left him ready to play in the 117th British Open.

"After my layoff I feel a lot better and more relaxed," Woosnam said. "Not so frustrated and looking forward to playing, going out and trying my best."

Woosnam, who won five European Tour tournaments in 1987, said he took only three weeks off during the winter because he was playing so well he wanted to continue.

"Maybe I played too much. You learn from experience," he said.

Woosnam said the Open was the Open no matter which course it was played on.

Strange enters with added burden

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — Curtis Strange, always one to put pressure on himself, enters the 117th British Open with the added burden of being the U.S. Open champion.

Coming to Royal Lytham and St. Annes as the 1988 U.S. Open winner means Strange is expected to do well here. Before last month's success at Brookline, Mass., he was just another good player looking for his first major title.

"I think being the best U.S. player puts more pressure on me," he said. "But then I always expect a lot of myself."

His U.S. Open victory boosted him on the computer rankings to the No. 3 in the world behind Greg Norman and Sandy Lyle. Norman missed the British Open, on a course that might have suited him, because of a wrist injury. Lyle is one of the greatest "local" hopes after his win at Sandwich in 1985.

"Anybody would like to be recognized as the best player in the world, but right now I don't think we have a 'Best Player in the World,'" he says. "We have a handful of players who are very, very close to each other," Strange said.

"I think that's healthy, this game of golf is growing so fast, it's so strong right now. People say we don't have one dominant player, we don't have two dominant players — gosh, we must be doing something right."

Strange, 33, seems to be doing most things right on the golf course at the moment. He overcame the pressure of a 18-hole playoff to win the U.S. Open over Nick Faldo, the defending champion here, and then went straight over to Europe for the French Open.

After that it was rest back home before a tournament and then the trip over on Monday.

"I have played enough golf and want to continue to play well. I have been looking forward to this week. It was in the back of my mind last week a good bit of the time, simply because of my U.S. Open win."

"I come over here thinking realistically if I can play well and have just a chance Sunday afternoon, that's all I'd like," he said.

He said no player could stand on the first tee and say he was going to win the tournament. If he did that himself, he knew it would put too much pressure on him and ruin his game. He likes just to play and see what develops.

"There is an added incentive (to in here) because of the U.S. Open. It gives me confidence that I can do it now."

FIRST NIGERIAN

Golfers from southern Africa, including South Africa, Zimbabwe, have long played on the European tour. This year they're being joined by a west African, Paul Akakasiaka, the first Nigerian ever to play in a British Open.

Akakasiaka made the Open field by qualifying at Fairhaven, a couple of miles east of the Royal Lytham and St. Annes club.

Anyone who gets sick or has an accident at the Open won't have to worry, doctor Paul McKenzie is in charge.

"In my view, if you have to be ill, the Open is one of the best places for it to happen," McKenzie said, in a backhanded compliment to his medical staff.

McKenzie has handled the emergency arrangements for several years, and said 500 to 600 casualties was "a small number for the average Open. We have had as many as 1,400."

This year the team includes a surgeon, four general practitioners, a dentist, a physiotherapist and a chiropractor.

"Squeak" the cat caused a few yelps at St. Annes on Tuesday, when he pounced on Briton Tony Minshall's ball on the second green during the final round of qualifying.

Minshall was allowed to replace the ball, but his two-round total of 150 still wasn't good enough to qualify.

Poppel sprints to win in 10th stage

BESANCON, France (UPI) — Jean-Paul Van Poppel, of Holland, fighting off Guido Bontempi of Italy and Eddy Planckaert of Belgium in a pair of late sprints, led a pack of 158 riders across the finish line Tuesday to win the 10th stage of the Tour de France.

Steve Bauer of Canada held on to the overall lead for the third straight day. His time of 34 hours and 3 seconds gave him a 14-second lead over Jerome Simon of France.

Van Poppel, 25, who also won the third stage of the Tour, finished the 93-mile run from Belfort to Besancon in 3:28.31. In the closing minutes of the stage he overcame Bontempi, who finished second, and Planckaert, who finished third.

"I'm happy to have beaten Bontempi," said Van Poppel, who races for the Superconfex team and also won two stages in last year's Tour. "I reacted well to the attack of Bontempi. I overtook him, then came Planckaert's turn. There was a big difference between the sprints."

Van Poppel said he lost too much time in the first week to fight for the overall lead and said his only remaining goal is to capture as many stages as possible.

"I would like to bring my number of victories to four before the end of the Tour de France," he said.

Patrice Esnault and Christophe Lavaine of France, Marc Sergeant of Belgium and Massimo Ghitto of Italy had broken away from the pack at the 31-mile mark, but were caught nine miles from the end.

TOUR HEADS TO ALPS

BESANCON, France (UPI) — As the Tour de France headed into the Alps for three days beginning Wednesday, a pair of Colombians, a Mexican and a Spaniard who excel at mountain climbs were prepared to replace a group of sprinters atop the standings.

Steve Bauer of Canada has worn the leader's yellow jersey for the past three days and most of the 10 stages so far have been won by Europeans who thrive on the flatlands. However, most of those sprinters will fall far behind on the steep Alpine passes.

The four men who are best placed to take over command of the 21-day race are Pedro Delgado of Spain, Raul Alcalá of Mexico and Colombian compatriots Luis Herrera and Fabio Parra.

All four did much better than expected in the flatland sprints

Mitchell soars to national record

Lyman athletes excel at state games

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

If the Sunshine State Games was just a way of Lyman's athletes keeping busy before the prep cross country season, watch out once fall rolls around.

Four Lyman High cross country runners turned in exceptional performances this past weekend at the Sunshine State Games in Jacksonville. The four are Teddy Mitchell, Nick Radkewich, Kevin Padgett and Octavius Holliday.

Mitchell, who will be a junior this school year, set a national record in the 15-16 age division in the 3,000 meter run with a time of 8:53.4. The record was seven seconds better than the previous mark, set last year. Mitchell also took first place in the 1,500 meters with a time of 4:12.8.

"He went out quickly and just kept going," coach Fred Fink said of Mitchell. "The temperature was 92 and the humidity was up but he kept up his pace. He almost lapped the second place guy."

Radkewich, who will be a senior, continued his dominance of the triathlon in the state of Florida as he won the Open Division by 66 seconds over the second place finisher.

Padgett, who will be a sophomore, sailed to first place in the 2,000 meter steeplechase with a time of 6:46. It was only the second time Padgett had competed in the 2,000 meter steeplechase.

"He's worked hard and has just went out and made the steeplechase his event," Fink said of Padgett. "The last time he ran it, he finished in the middle seven minutes."

Holliday, who will be a junior this year, finished third in the 800 meters with a time of 2:01 and also ran on the first pace 4 X 800 relay team.

After their outstanding efforts at the Sunshine State Games, Track Florida has added all four of the Lyman athletes to its roster for the summer. That means the four will have all of their expenses paid for the National Junior Olympic Championships on July 28-31 at Gainesville.

Savages qualify for regionals

SEMINOLE SOFTBALL

The Seminole Savages, Seminole Softball Club's 15 and under All-Star team, may not have had a spectacular summer thus far, but they came through when it counted the most this past weekend and they hope to keep the momentum going next week in the ASA Southern Region Tournament July 29-31 at Miami.

Five players hit .444 or better and Diane Lowe turned in an impressive pitching performance as the Savages finished second in the Metro Tournament at Lake Fairview Park. The top two teams from the Metro go on to the Southern Region.

Hot Tuna, an independent team made up of Orange and Seminole County players, defeated the Savages for the title. Hot Tuna, though, is expected to compete in the USSSA Tournament in Dallas instead of the ASA tourney in Miami.

Heather Van Orden and Terra Calvin carried the hottest bats for the Savages in the Metro as both hit a whopping .533. Nicki Rathbun added a .300 average for the five games while Jenny Whitaker hit .455 and Christina Grasso batted .444.

Lowe pitched all five games in the tournament and the Savages won three of them. She had one shutout and allowed only 21 runs in the five games.

The Savages opened the tournament with a 23-7 rout of the Seminole Eagles, the club's 14-year-old team. Van Orden had a grand slam homer among her two hits while Rathbun was 3 for 4 and Calvin, Whitaker, Grasso, Lowe and Dean Morasch all added two hits.

In game two, the Savages blanked the Conway Wild Ones, 12-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Lowe. Stephanie Bush had a double among her two hits while Rathbun again had three hits and Lowe and Calvin also added two hits each.

Seminole then ran up against Hot Tuna and dropped an 8-2 decision. Van Orden led the offense with two hits.

The loss put the Savages in the losers' bracket final where they had to defeat West Orlando for a berth in the Southern Region tourney. The Savages came through with a 6-4 victory led by Grasso who had three hits and Christine Risse, Van Orden and Calvin with two hits each. Lowe allowed just seven hits in the game.

Oviedo Majors triumph again

MAJOR ALL-STARS

ALTAMONTE — The Oviedo Majors used a power hitting attack to take a narrow 5-3 victory over Eustis Tuesday night before 151 fans at Eastmonte Park in Altamonte.

Todd Bellhorn and Jay Busse each belted a home run to back a strong pitching effort by both Brian Hendrix and Kevin Stephenson. Hendrix worked the first four innings and struck out eight while walking six. Stephenson came on two pitch the final two innings and put Eustis down in order in both innings to pick up the save.

Oviedo will play at home again on Saturday with its opponent being the winner of the losers bracket. The Altamonte Majors will return to action today at Casselberry against Casselberry.

Oviedo came up with three runs in the bottom of the first inning with lead off batter Timmy Slavick reaching on a walk. Mike Rugenius followed with a double to place runners on second and third. Bellhorn then sent a towering shot over the right center field fence to give Oviedo a 3-0 advantage.

Eustis answered with a run in the top of the second inning as Brent Kinney led off with a single, stole second and advanced to third on a passed ball before scoring on a ground out by Ty Braswell.

Oviedo then plated its final two runs across the plate in the bottom of the third as, after two outs, Bellhorn led off with a walk. Busse then followed with a line drive shot over the left field fence to up the lead 5-1.

Eustis scored its final two runs of the game in the top of the fourth inning when Kinney led off with a single, stole second and advanced to third on an error by the Oviedo catcher. Peter Jackson followed with a two run homer over the center field fence to narrow the lead to 5-3.

Oviedo's defense then pulled together and prevented Eustis from putting any rallies together. Eustis has committed a error in its first two games and will look for another solid performance when it returns to action on Saturday night.

P. Hills outlasts Americans

APOPKA — Altamonte American pulled within 6-5 in the seventh and had the tying run on third but could not get the run home as Pine Hills triumphed in the District 14 Area 2 Tournament Tuesday night at the Apopka-West Seminole Complex.

The Americans will play in the losers' bracket final Thursday night at 7 at Altamonte's Eastmonte Park against either Apopka or Rolling Hills. Pine Hills goes on to the area finals and Altamonte hopes to get another shot at Pine Hills.

"Pine Hills got a couple of key hits that turned the game around on us," Altamonte manager Jim Barfield said. "But I think we have a chance to come back in the finals and beat them."

Altamonte took a 1-0 lead in the first inning but Pine Hills came up with three in the third, then added one in the fourth for a 4-1 lead. Altamonte pulled within 4-3 in the fourth, but Pine Hills answered with two runs in the sixth for a 6-3 lead.

Altamonte rallied for one run in the seventh and had runners on second and third with one out. On a groundball back to the mound, the Pine Hills pitcher got the out at first and allowed one run to score. The second Altamonte runner rounded third far, though, and was thrown out for the final out.

Brian Cole had a pair of hits and Chris Haney had a two-run double to lead the Altamonte offense. Shawn Bullock pitched a strong game for the Americans as he allowed only three earned runs and struck out six.

OVIDEO OUSTED

Oviedo was ousted from the District 14 Area 3 Tournament Tuesday night after a 7-3 loss to Mount Dora at Mount Dora. It was a disappointing loss for the Oviedo Seniors who were one of the pre-tournament favorites. Altamonte National and Eustis figure to fight it out for the area title with the elimination of Oviedo.

third and Mooney then ripped a shot back to the box that Robinson caught and he then doubled the runner off second to kill the Apopka uprising.

Altamonte again had a chance to score in the fourth when Neal James led off with a double and took third on Morrison's pop foul. John Gardner then hit a slow roller to third and it appeared he beat the throw to first but the umpire called him out and the call cost Altamonte the tying run.

After Robinson struck out the side in the bottom of the fifth, Eustis added two runs in the top of the sixth. With two outs, Dillard singled, stole second and took third on a passed ball. Robinson was then intentionally walked to set up the force at second. Willie Wise came through with a base hit to left, though, to drive in Dillard. Robinson then stole third and scored on an Altamonte error for a 3-0 lead.

Altamonte got a runner on with two out in the sixth but Robinson struck out the next batter to end the inning. In the seventh, Altamonte got a one-out infield single from Gardner but he was stranded at first when Robinson got the next two hitters to fly out to end the game.

Apopka nips Americans

MAJOR ALL-STARS

APOPKA — The Altamonte Americans, once down by five runs, came back to within 8-7 but Apopka-West Seminole pulled off a game-ending double play to get out of a sixth-inning jam and claim the victory Tuesday in the District 14 Area 2 Major Division Tournament at the Apopka-West Seminole Complex.

The Americans will play in the losers' bracket final Thursday night at 7 at Altamonte's Eastmonte Park. Rolling Hills, which Altamonte defeated in the opening round, is the likely opponent on Thursday. Apopka goes on to the area finals where it needs only one more win to advance to the District 14 championship round.

"We have a tough road ahead but it's certainly not an insurmountable one," Altamonte manager George Pihakis said. "Winning six games in a row seems like a lot, but this team never quits. I was proud of the way they came back tonight."

A two-out, two-run single by Genus McRae put the Americans back in business Tuesday in the late going while a balk allowed a run to score in the fifth as Altamonte pulled within 7-6. Apopka added an unearned run in the top of the sixth for an 8-6 lead.

Altamonte pulled within 8-7 in the seventh and had a runner at third with one out when Apopka pulled off the game-ending double play.

"It was one of those nights where Apopka got the key hits and we left the runners on base," Pihakis said. "Todd (Herrbach) didn't pitch a bad game at all, they just got some big two-out hits. And our defense still hasn't played as well as it is capable of yet."

Ormond Beach starting pitcher Alonan "Twister" Glenn had settled down and struck out five straight Sanford batters before King led off the third with his second walk. He stole second as Roberts struck out. Then, with King attempting to steal third, Tyrone Williams hit a line drive to right that was caught by Reggie Wright who threw to second to double off King and end the scoring threat.

Ormond Beach took the lead for good in the fourth. Tyler Augat led off with a single and went to second on a wild pitch. He advanced to third on a ground out. Rhett Grelecki hit a high pop up behind first which fell in for a hit when the first baseman and second baseman both backed off thinking the other was going to catch it. The first baseman picked up the ball and threw it wildly past the catcher and when no one covered home Augat scored. Grelecki went to second on the play. Wright drew a walk and Reynolds reached on a fielders choice as Grelecki was retired at third. L. Glenn then got Wright home with his second hit of the game and Ormond Beach had a 4-2 lead.

Sanford got a run back in the fourth on a double by Dillon, who advanced to third on fly ball by Clarence Ferrell and scored on a wild pitch.

Ormond took what looked to be a commanding lead of 6-3 when it scored two runs in the sixth. Grelecki walked to open the inning, stole second, and went to third on a balk. The next batter struck out, but Reynolds reached for the fourth straight time when he walked and stole second. L. Glenn then got his third hit of the night, a single to center, that scored both Grelecki and Reynolds to give him four runs batted in for the night.

Sanford made a furious comeback in the bottom of the seventh as they refused to quit. Corey Williams led off with a single and stole second base, the next batter struck out, but King got his fourth walk. Roberts grounded back to A. Glenn who threw to third to retire pinch runner Demetrius Beamon for the second out and things looked bleak for Sanford.

But they were given a new life when T. Williams' grounder was misplayed by the shortstop to load the bases. Dillon and Ferrell walked to force in runs and make the score 6-5, but Maurice Fisher grounded out pitcher to first to end the game.

score came in the top of the second as after two outs, Shaw singled up the middle and stole second. Jamie Jackson then fouled off three pitches, two close to the right field line before grounding out to end the threat.

Altamonte built on its lead with six runs in the bottom of the second. Pablo Abreu led off with a walk and stole second. Oviedo pitcher Mark Bellhorn then fanned Harmer with Abreu trying to take third on the final strike. Oviedo catcher Chris Wisdom, though, gunned down Abreu for the second out of the inning. Thompson then walked and stole second before Mike Elliott reached on an error that plated Thompson. Johnson and Bullock then walked to load the bases before Cotton drew a run scoring walk. Danny Seidenfaden followed with a triple to left field followed by a single by Nakia Roberts. Altamonte managed to load up the bases again but a ground out ended the inning with the lead upped to 9-0.

Harmer came up with his best inning in the top of the third as he struck out the side using a nice combination of fastballs and changeups to keep the Oviedo hitters off balance.

Altamonte picked up a single run in the bottom of the third when lead off batter Mike Elliott sent a shot well over the left field fence to increase the lead to 10-0.

Altamonte picked up another run in the bottom of the fourth as, with two outs, Abreu doubled to left, Harmer followed with a run scoring single to up the lead to 11-0.

"I think we proved to ourselves we're a tough team tonight," Lyons said. "I thought we had a good club and this win kind of tells me what our capabilities really are."

Market active, prices up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 18.67 Tuesday, was up 8.00 to 2100.64 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 460-272 among the 1,212 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 7,880,000 shares.

Stock prices closed lower Tuesday in moderate trading as cautious investors abandoned the market to await key reports on the economy and signals from the Federal Reserve Board on the outlook for interest rates.

"The short-term psychology has turned a little negative," said Trude Latimer of Josephthal & Co. "It's not pervasive and I think it will shake itself out. But we have turned from neutral-bullish to neutral-bearish."

Dollar mostly lower; gold, silver higher

By United Press International

The dollar drifted lower today in light trading on most major foreign currency markets as traders awaited congressional testimony by the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Gold was mostly higher.

Market analysts in New York said traders were taking a wait-and-see attitude ahead of Federal Reserve Board chairman Alan Greenspan's Humphrey-Hawkins testimony to the Senate Banking Committee later today and Friday's release of the U.S. May trade data.

Traders said the market was anxious to hear the testimony and whether Greenspan will acknowledge that the Fed has tightened its monetary policy.

In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly higher against key foreign currencies in light trading.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar continued to slide against the Japanese yen, closing at 132.47 yen, down 0.23 from 132.70 on Tuesday.

In London, dealers said caution was the watchword in advance of the announcement Friday of U.S. foreign trade figures for May.

They said they expected a deficit widening from $9.89 billion for April to between $10.5 billion and $12 billion.

On the currency markets, the dollar opened in Frankfurt at 1.8375 West German marks, down from 1.8409.

In Zurich, the dollar began the day at 1.524 Swiss francs, down from 1.527 and in Paris at 6.1917 French francs, down from 6.2035.

Textile leader issues warning

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese textile company executive Wednesday warned the newly industrialized economies in Asia to be more "orderly" in exporting their products to Japan or face possible punitive action.

Katsunosuke Maeda, president of Japan's top synthetic fiber maker Toray Industries Inc., said the Japanese textile industry faces sharpening competition from its newly emerging Asian competitors, particularly China and South Korea.

"We strongly call on these countries to refrain from tariff and export controls and adopt an orderly system," Maeda said.

He said the Japanese textile industry is considering the possibility of filing a dumping suit against the Asian countries, but said such action should be avoided.

"Japan pursues a free trade policy and the Japanese textile industry is making efforts to reach a negotiated settlement of the issue with its competitors," he added.

The textile industry has complained that Japan is being flooded with low-priced imports from Asian countries, causing damage to local manufacturers.

Maeda said Japan's textile trade suffered a deficit of $3.4 billion in 1987 while its overall trade balance was in the black.

He predicted Toray's textile business will continue to grow but its share in the company's total business will shrink to about 30 percent from the present 60 percent.

Maeda said the company has completed "an action program for survival" for its fiber-textile sector.

Consultant cites deficiencies in Longwood police department

By Jane Casselberry Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD— A long-awaited evaluation of the city's police department prepared by management consultant Jeff Etchberger cites lack of management training and experience in the ranking officers from lieutenant up as the largest deficiency.

He said the deficiency is readily obvious because of the problems which the department has undergone in recent years.

Etchberger said of the five top ranking management personnel, only one has attained even an associate degree. All said they are pursuing at least associate degrees. He recommends they be given 12 months to obtain the associate degree and two years to obtain their bachelor's degree.

Etchberger pointed out that Police Chief Greg Manning and Capt. Terry Baker are graduates of the National FBI Academy, which qualifies them from a technical standpoint. However, he stated, their lack of academic or management training places in serious question their ability to manage the department.

"Without receiving extensive education and training in management and administration, they will certainly be unqualified to manage the department in the future," he said. Chief and captain should be required to attend and successfully complete the 12-week Southern Police Institute (SPI) course within 12 months, Etchberger said.

Following completion of the SPI program and obtaining their associate degrees, the individuals should be evaluated by the city administrator and personnel director on their overall level of performance, and additional development and training should be identified and required, Etchberger recommends.

If the individuals fail to comply with requirements set forth by the city administrator, the report recommends they be transferred to a position in the department for which they are qualified or a position of Director of Public Safety be created and filled by a qualified individual to manage the operations of the department.

The report also recommends elimination of one patrolman position and the evening shift patrol lieutenant for a savings of $67,762.

When commissioners were told by County Administrator Ken Hooper and Deputy County Attorney Bob McMillan they could not delay their decision because of state time requirements to approve amendments to the comprehensive plan, they voted to deny the request. They also voted 4-1 to deny rezoning for the site.

Werner said after the meeting that Florida Hospital has no alternative plans for the site, although new plans will be developed.

In other action, commissioners gave final approval of the four other land use changes scheduled. They included changes of:

- Medium density residential to office uses for a 4.7-acre site southwest of the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and State Road 436 for Keith King.
- High density residential to commercial for a 4.3-acre site on U.S. 17-92 west of Lake of the - Commercial to industrial for a 53-acre site south of the County Road 427 and U.S. 17-92 intersection to clear up a zoning conflict, and

- Low density residential to medium density residential for 96 mobile home lots on 8.7 acres flanking Midway Drive to clear up a zoning conflict.

The changes to clear up improper zoning were requested by county staff.

and two air start units (used to start jet engines) at $28,000.

Also included is the addition of six firefighters and three security personnel at an approximate cost of $200,000 which, along with the equipment, would be required by the Federal Aviation Administration for aircraft and passenger safety if an air carrier is secured for the airport.

The airport authority, which consists of chairman Kay Shoemaker, John Y. Mercer, Don Knight, Scott Burns, Shirley Schinke, Jim deGanahl and Bill Beal, gave approval to $2.2 million to be set aside for the construction of additional ramp areas at a welcome center, T-hangers, drainage for the entire airport and renovation for a passenger screening and holding area in the terminal building.

Federal grant matching funds could also become available if a passenger carrier is secured, according to LaZebny.

LaZebny said the airport authority turned down the two other budget proposals for being either too basic or too expensive.

One budget ($5.27 million) proposal did not include the ARFF equipment or additional personnel, while the other budget proposal ($8.1 million) included additional improvements to the taxiway and critical roadway.

Emphasizing that the tax is only for visitors, not residents, though residents will benefit, TDC member Bob Whittaker said "This tax will be paid primarily by Yankees and flannel tourists, but it will help raise the quality of life for the citizens of Seminole County."

Commissioners Tuesday also approved a $30,000 appropriation to advertise the tax and what it will be used for in the county.

occupation for security reasons, he said. He also said he could not identify Brown from a photo she attached to the application.

Brown was also faulted for having Orlando police check her background. Instead of asking a local Seminole County police agency to make the check, as is required by law.

Brown, of Winter Springs, was also accused of loaning the felon, John Kovacs, 32, her car with her personal .357 magnum revolver in the car. The subsequent theft of the car occurred in St. Augustine, where Brown and Kovacs checked into a motel together at about 6 p.m. Feb. 19, the day he was released from prison.

Brown was also faulted by Polk for making the 400-mile round trip to Mayo from Seminole County while being on full workman's compensation/disability leave from the jail. The jail doctor did not approve their trip to pick up Kovacs, officials said.

During the June 7 hearing, Brown testified she last saw Kovacs when she loaned her his car to go for champagne at about 6:15 p.m. Feb. 19, and he never returned to the motel.

However, a manager of the motel told the board he saw a man he identified in a July 7 photo lineup as Kovacs in Brown's motel room with her at 5:15 a.m. Feb. 20. That was 11 hours after Brown claims Kovacs disappeared and almost two hours before she filed an auto theft report with St. Augustine police at about 7 a.m. Feb. 20.

Kovacs is still at large. Brown's car was recovered in St. Johns County a week after it was stolen. Her personal .357 magnum revolver, for which she has no permit and which she implied was her "service revolver," to St. Augustine police, was recovered with the car. The weapon had nothing to do with her job as a jail guard, Polk said.

Brown was hired as a Seminole County jail guard Aug. 1, 1986, and reportedly developed a relationship with Kovacs during his four-month stay at that jail in 1987, before he was transferred to Mayo.

In her testimony, Brown implied Polk fired her because she had made suggestions for improvements in the jail and was considered a "trouble-maker," who had also been accused of sexually harassing male prisoners. Colbert, chairman of the board, said he concluded that Polk fired Brown for no reasons other than those stated in his letter of termination and he and the other board members found the significant factors in that letter justification for the firing.

COOK OF THE WEEK

Farmer's daughter learned how to cook as part of country life

By JANE HALE
Herald correspondent

Our Cook of the Week is a woman who went from driving a tractor, to being a secretary, to writing a newspaper column after retiring from the other two positions.

Genevieve Hussey of Lake Mary was born in Conwango, N.Y. She was born at home, on her parents' dairy farm, where her grandparents, aunt and uncle also lived.

"All the children went to work as soon as we were old enough," said Hussey, the oldest of 4 children. "I learned to drive a tractor when I was 9 years old. I really enjoyed country living, especially with my grandparents living next door to us."

Hussey grew up in Conwango and attended a one-room school house from the first through the seventh grade. Sometimes about 35 students would be crowded in the room. "I was the only student in my grade from the third grade to the seventh grade," Hussey said. Then she went on to a high school that had a few more students. There, the girls took home economics and the boys took agriculture.

But Hussey learned many of her kitchen skills from the women in her family. "My grandmother and mother taught me how to cook and I absorbed a lot of it from just watching them," she remembered. "Being born in the country and on a farm you pick up cooking naturally."

"Living on a farm you learn very quickly how to do things. When I asked my mother to let me help her cook she would tell me she would do the cooking now but would show me some other time, because she could do it later."

Hussey remembers when her mother took one of her sisters to camp for a few days. Hussey did the cooking for the family and prepared her first full meal. Some of the meal turned out and some of it didn't, she said. "The one dish I remember fixing was a lemon pie. It turned out pretty good—at least everyone ate it."

Hussey has never entered any cooking contests and probably never will, she said.

She met her husband, Roger, when she went with one of her friends to check out the new high school that she was going to attend. "I looked all the new students over and picked him out of the crowd. We started going together when we were both freshmen in high school."

Genevieve Hussey whips up cocktail meatballs for her daughter's 25th wedding anniversary.

Hussey lived only about a mile and a half from where her future husband lived. Their grandparents were very good friends, but Roger and Genevieve did not meet until they met at school. They were married in Conwango, N.Y., where he was a farmer and lumber mill worker. For two years, Hussey went to Jamestown Business College, where she took secretarial courses.

Hussey has one daughter, Sandra, Tonger of Longwood. She also has two beautiful granddaughters.

Hussey has worked as a secretary for 27 years and has been retired for six years. The first was at a factory in Washington, where she worked for a National Building Products Company on the third floor of a building in downtown Seattle. That's quite a step up from working on a farm, Hussey joked.

The couple moved to Lake Mary from Seattle six years ago this September. Hussey writes a home interest column for "The Chips," a publication of The Forest Development.

Hussey likes to take photographs, travel, do needle work, write poetry as hobbies. She and her family enjoy camping but rarely get to go because when the weather permits, company from the north stops by to see her and her husband.

Hussey's philosophy in life is to "Just be friendly and helpful when you can."

Here are some of her favorite recipes.

Icey, creamy desserts a cool answer to warm-ups

By BRIAN HEDBERG
Herald People editor

July 10 may have been just another Sunday to you. To those in the dessert business, it was National Ice Cream Day. Chances are you unknowingly celebrated by downing the delicacy anyhow, but in case you didn't, take heart. July is National Ice Cream Month.

America's fixation on ice cream amounts to 800 million gallons annually. That's an all-time high for us, with Australians, Canadians, New Zealanders and Swedes coming in right behind.

The snowball effect of ice cream popularity began rolling on a Roman road. In A.D. 56, Young Nero Claudius Caesar invented "sweet ice." He would give teams of runners the mission of fetching mountain snow, which was flavored with honey, fruits and juices.

Marco Polo, the wife of Henry II of France and others made their claim to ice cream fame by helping mature the frozen dessert to its current variety and quality.

1938 presidential hopefuls George Bush and Michael Dukakis vote for vanilla and mocha, respectively. Vanilla figures into the appetites of 41 percent of ice cream eaters, so reports the International Ice Cream Association, with chocolate coming in second place at 38 percent. Next in line come neapolitan, vanilla fudge, cookies, ice cream, butter pecan, chocolate chip, strawberry and rocky road.

As the history of ice cream testifies, improvements and variations upon the treat must come from other than shops or cartons. In 1943, Steve Berrell of Massachusetts created "In" — crushed cookies or candy mixed into a scoop of ice cream. Following are some recipes for making the home-made brand.

Lo-cal delights
PEACH FROSTEE SHAKE
1 of each serving
1 soft ripe peach, freshly frozen
1 cup fresh skim milk
1 packet low-calorie sweetener or honey, or to taste (optional)

A few drops vanilla extract or almond flavoring (optional).

Halve and pit the peach—no need to peel it. Cut in cubes and put on a plate in coldest part of freezer until frozen solid. (Wrap in plastic if not to be used the same day.) When frozen, combine fruit cubes in blender or food processor with remaining ingredients and process until completely blended. Any other fresh ripe fruit can be substituted. For the freshest flavor, use freshly frozen fruit rather than fruit that has been packaged for long-term freezing. Each serving is lower than 140 calories.

FRESH-MADE FROZEN MILK SHERBET

Follow the preceding directions, using food processor. Use 2 peaches and 1/2 cup skim milk. Process until consistency of soft-serve ice cream, serve immediately. Makes 2 servings of 70 calories each.

THREE BERRY SORBET
1/2 cup sugar or 12 packets artificial sweetener
1/2 cup water
1 cup cups blueberries or blackberries
1 cup cups strawberries
1 cup cups raspberries
1 cup orange juice
NOTE: Use fresh berries or berries frozen whole without sugar. Use any proportion of berries to equal 1 cup. If the berries are fully ripened and

Frozen confusion dispelled

The following guide to wide array of frozen desserts was prepared by Anna A. Creery, author of The Donvier Ice Cream Dessert Book.

Homie: Molded frozen dessert usually composed of layers of two or more ice creams, sorbets or mousses. When unmolded and sliced to serve, the layering results in a decorative pattern.

Frappe: Originally frozen ices that had been scraped or crushed and served slushy. Cream and eggs have worked their way into some of today's mixtures. Sometimes used to describe a thick milk shake.

Frozen Custard (also, French Ice Cream and French Custard Ice Cream): A product very much like ice cream, but must contain at least 1.4 percent egg yolk.

Frozen Souffle: Similar to mousse; however, frozen in and served in a souffle dish. Or, a sherbet containing egg yolk or whole eggs.

Frozen Yogurt: Yogurt, buttermilk or cultured sour milk combined with fruit and sweetener.

Ice or Granita: Italian-style flavored ice that sometimes is flavored with fruit. Ices are frozen with very little agitation to obtain a rough granular texture.

Ice Cream: A mixture of milk and cream or other milk products, sweetener and flavorings. It may or may not include eggs, egg products, added emulsifiers and/or stabilizers. It must contain at least 10 percent milkfat to be labeled ice cream.

Ice Milk: Like ice cream but contains less milkfat. It must contain at least 2 percent but not more than 7 percent milkfat.

Mousse: Can be made from one of two bases: a sugar syrup flavored with fruit puree, or a rich cooked custard. Whipped cream is then folded in to produce a velvety texture.

Parfait: Ice cream or whipped cream layered with fruit into a tall footed glass. Or egg yolks cooked with a syrup then cooled before whipped cream and flavorings are folded in.

Sherbet: Sweetener, fruit juices, stabilizers and a small amount of milk product. It only contains between 1-2 percent milkfat and usually more sugar than ice cream.

Sorbet: Usually made from fruit juice or puree, water, sweetener and a small amount of stabilizer such as gelatin or beaten egg whites to produce a smooth texture.

Jaundice in past still affects blood donation

DEAR DR. JOTT: When I was 18, I wanted to donate blood but was told I couldn't because I had jaundice as a kid. Now that I'm older, I'm wondering why a person who had jaundice couldn't donate blood to another person who's had it.

DEAR READER: Jaundice (yellowing of the skin) is a sign of liver malfunction. It can occur with blockage of bile (as from gallstones) or with liver inflammation (such as hepatitis).

Hepatitis B is a particularly dangerous form of liver infection. Not only can it lead to chronic liver disease, but it can easily be transmitted from one person to another by blood products. Even if a patient has recovered from hepatitis B, he can still have dormant, potentially active virus particles in his system. These viruses could cause full-blown hepatitis in a susceptible person, particularly if that person were so ill that he required a transfusion during which he was given blood containing the viruses.

In the past, blood banks have refused donors with a history of jaundice because of the risks to the recipient. Today, patients can have blood tests to determine what type of hepatitis they had and whether the virus particles are still infective. Obviously, not all jaundice patients have had hepatitis B; they may have had benign diseases, such as hepatitis A or mononucleosis. In your case, I believe that you should have these tests performed so that you can learn what caused your childhood jaundice. Then your doctor can advise whether or not to donate your blood. Even if you had hepatitis B, your blood might be useful to a blood bank. By separating out the protein components of your blood, scientists might be able to add portions of it to a gamma globulin pool — a purified blood extract containing antibodies to many diseases, which can be given to prevent illness.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Why is it that people can live with flea-infested cats and dogs and never be bothered by them while, in their homes, I attract fleas like magnets?

DEAR READER: Fleas prefer animals. An occasional human may seem to provide a tasty morsel for the parasites, but this is unusual and no one understands why.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
North had to open the bidding, so he was comfortable backing in with a takeout double after East's weak two-diamond bid was passed around to him. The bidding ended up with South in three spades. Frankly, if I were South, I would have bid four spades after North's raise to three. The play for game is poor, but a lucky configuration of the diamond honors changes the odds to favor declarer.

West opened the ace of diamonds. Then, trying the obvious way to get East on lead, he switched to the eight of clubs. Declarer won East's 10 with the queen and layed ace and king of spades. With trumps dividing nicely, all declarer had to do, it seemed, was give up the obvious four losers. Declarer played his other high club and then followed with dummy's A-K and another heart. West won the jack and continued with the queen. For no good reason, West ruffed and now had to give up two diamond tricks to East.

There's nothing brilliant about the winning play for the overtrick. Declarer should simply let West hold the trick with the fourth heart, shedding a diamond. West will now have nothing to lead but a club. That will let declarer ruff in dummy as he rids himself of his last diamond loser.

Here's the moral: Bridge sometimes just presents a player with an unforeseen opportunity to gain tricks. When that happens, try not to overlook it.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books. (C) 1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

In the year ahead you're likely to pursue new knowledge in order to advance your interests more successfully. Large strides can be made by using what you learn.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will have a great deal of reserve to draw upon today in competitive developments. Don't be intimidated by your opposition, just keep striving to be first. Experiment with your concept and if it's a mistake, then worry about correcting it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is likely to be a change today in something that is of personal importance. You won't initiate it, but you're apt to enjoy its benefits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll enjoy yourself more today if you associate with active people. You won't be in a mood to be tied down with those who tend to drag their feet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Now is the time to call attention to yourself for something you recently handled successfully, so that the parties in power know who is entitled to the credit.

are unselfish.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Extra effort should pay extra dividends today, so don't grumble if the boss asks you to do a bit more than is your customary lot.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your leadership qualities will be very pronounced today, particularly in social activities. Companions will be looking to you to provide direction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are equally as strong a finisher today as you are a starter. This is a good time to clear up responsibilities you've been sweeping under the rug lately.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An outside interest may command your attention today. You won't mind a bit, because it will be a fun way of keeping busy.

DEAR ABBY

Teen tragedy speaks warning to the living

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you published an article about a 17-year-old boy who was killed in an automobile accident. He kept saying, "I'm too young to die. Please, God, I'm only 17." I saved that column, but I cannot find it.

Abby, my husband and I lost our only child in a car accident on Feb. 21, 1988. He, too, was too young to die. He was an honor student and would have graduated in June. He was only 17.

I can't have any more children, so you see, we lost everything we had.

PEGGY LANG
DEAR PEGGY: Please accept my deepest sympathy. The column you requested was one of the most powerful pieces ever to appear in my column. And here it is.

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17
 The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheedled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remembered was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrible jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened. It was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head! I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life?

Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please—somebody—wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody. No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!
