Miss Frances Cobb, Mrs. Robert A. Cobb. Mrs. P. R. Stephenson and the Misses Linda Stapler, Mary Jean Turner and Sue Orseno returned last week after spending more than three weeks camping in the Smoky Mountains of Ten-

While visiting at Cherokee, N. C., they attended this season's opening performance of the now famous historical play, "Unto These Hills," which is the story of the Cherokee Indians.

They visited the Christus Biblical Gardens, located in Gatlinburg. Tenn., after a worldwide search for a suitable place for it. They were open to the public for the first time this year. This presentation of Christ's life is so perfect that no one who sees it will ever forget it. .

The group also enjoyed many interesting nature hikes as well as some historical points of interest, such as Alum Cave Bluff, Cliggmons Dome Tower, Charlise Bunion and Cades Cove, where the government has restored old pioneer homes, barns and mills.

They all agree that nowhere in America can vacations be so much fun as in the Smokies seeing nature's glories at their best.

Friends Honor Mrs. Conner At Parties

Mrs. Wedell Conner Jr. was kept busy all last week attending a series of parties in her honor. Mrs. Conner, the former Lynda Yeackle, was married March 18 in Alabama.

This is the first time she has been home since her wedding so her friends took advantage of a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Yeackle, to honor her with showers. The first one was held at the home of Mrs. Jimmy Butler on Hays Drive. A series of games were planned for the guests but it had been so long since the group has been together they decided they had rather just chat. The prizes were given to the honoree and a social time enjoyed.

Those atending were Mrs. Eddie Barbour, Miss Kay Ivey, Miss Ewe Kratzert, Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. Fred Yeackle, mother of the honoree and the hostess. Another bridal shower was giv-

Dear Abby:

DEAR ABBY: One of the girls who works where I work is getting married tomorrow. Everyone else who works here re-ceived a printed invitation to her wedding three weeks ago. They all gave her beauti-ful gifts. I got my invitation this morning by mouth, and can't accept. Must I give her a gift? LEFT OUT

DEAR LEFT: Give her a gift "by mouth." Say "Best wishes."

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from a public beach and saw TWO (one would have been enough) young expectant mothers in the scantiest of bathing suits, of all things!

The young women were both about in their seventh month. They weren't con-tent to sit down and sun themselves inconspicuously. They paraded all around the beach, and every eye was on them. I don't believe, because a woman is pregnant, she should go into hiding, but do you think a public beach, with men, women and children of all ages, is the place for a woman in that condition?

OLD SCHOOL

DEAR OLD: We all arrived in this world via the same route, so there is no reason why pregnant women should stay away from the beach if they like the sun and water. However, a woman in that shape should cover it with a more modest

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for four years to a man who is very kind, considerate and well-mannered—until he gets to the table, and then the picture changes. I have never seen a human eat more like a dog. I was aware of this before I married him but, like so many starry-eyed girls in love, I thought I could change him later.

I am a very good cook, and set an attractive table, but it sickens me to see what he does to it. He piles so much food on his plate it is soon all over the tablecloth. He fills his mouth full, and chews with it wide open. He doesn't use a napkin. He wipes his mouth with bread, and licks his fingers. Naturally I don't invite guests for dinner.

Is there a book that teaches people how to eat, step by step? Or perhaps a course he could take? I refuse to nag him. Something as trivial as this has set me to thinking about divorce. NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO: I know of no book, or course, that teaches a grown man how to eat "step by step." Tell him how important table manners are to your marriage . . . then set about teaching him with patience and loving kindness.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANDY, THE BARBER: On guard! You, too, can be

There was nothing to the play except the spade finesse and that worked for him. I was asked just how wise or foolish the five-spade bid was.

The answer is that it was very good bid. East and West were good players and their bidding had clearly shown that they held two aces only and that they were both long in the red suits. Hence, North was marked with two aces (probably the black ones) and plenty of black cards with them. George had no reason to expect to make his contract but he certainly was not going to be hurt and he was defeading against a sure heart game.
