Plumber Electrocuted At Construction Site

A 26-year-old plumber was electrocuted Wednesday while working on an addition to an apartment in Sanford, police and fire officials said.

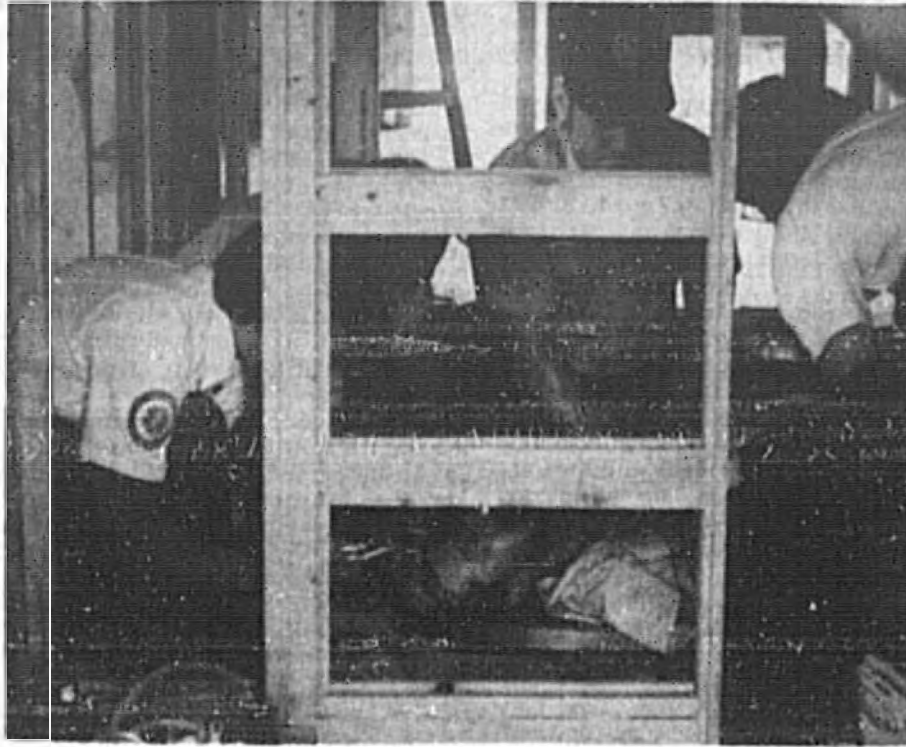

Daniel Paul Donnelly, of Deltona, was using an electric saw to cut some lumber at 200 S. Maple Ave. shortly before noon when he was jolted by about 125 volts, Assistant Fire Chief Ron Neel said.

"It apparently looks like it (the saw) shorted out and electrocuted him but I'm not sure," Neel said. The incident is being investigated by the federal Occupational Safety Health Administration, which will determine the cause of the shock.

A co-worker at the site called the fire department, but when rescue workers arrived Donnelly had no pulse, Neel said. Efforts to revive him — ironically with several jolts of electricity through defibrillation — failed and he was pronounced dead at Central Florida Regional Hospital. An autopsy to determine the exact cause of death was to be performed at 9:30 a.m. today.

Donnelly, married and a father of three children ages 3, 5, and 7, was a plumbing mechanic for Barney's Plumbing, the contractor for the addition. He had been with the company two Paramedics and Sanford emergency medical technicians try to start the heart of Daniel Donnelly of Deltona after it was stopped by a jolt from an electric saw.

The emergency crew, one pumping air into Donnelly's lungs, another massaging his heart and a third foting a bag of solution in his teeth, rush the fatally injured man to a waiting ambulance.

Schools Budget Ups Taxes

By Richard Truett
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Superintendent of Schools Robert Hughes has presented a $143.9 million budget for fiscal 1985-1986, an increase of $13.9 million over this year's budget of $130 million. The proposed budget calls for a tax rate of $7.46 per $1,000 assessed valuation, an increase of 39 cents over this year's tax rate of $7.07.

Hughes said the increase in taxes is due to student population growth and new school construction, as well as renovations planned at several schools.

"We expect about 1,500 new students to be enrolled in the system next year," Hughes said. There are 39,201 students in the school district this year.

The proposed budget was presented to the school board and will undergo scrutiny during a public budget hearing scheduled for July 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the school board.

The School Board voted unanimously Monday to accept Superintendent Robert Hughes' proposed budget for 1985-86.

Although the proposed tax rate increase is not guaranteed, because the school board still has to hold budget hearings and advertise the proposed increase, Hughes said the expected additional services to accommodate the anticipated growth, will require some sort of tax increase.

Hughes said besides the student growth, another major reason taxes are increasing is a massive construction project for Oviedo High School which will cost taxpayers $10.5 million.

Oviedo is scheduled to be completely restructured. This will increase the school's capacity to 2,154 students.

Built in 1968, Oviedo High was designed to handle 1,300 students, but last year had more than 1,800 enrolled.

The proposed tax rate would generate $38,951,379 in revenue, compared with last year's $28,650,074, based on the proposed tax rate increase and the increase in the tax base from new construction and property improvements which boosted property values.

Here is where the remainder of the revenues for the proposed budget of $143 million comes from:

- $1.9 million from the federal government
- $79.9 million from the state
- $22.7 million carried over from last year
- $413,986 in fund transfers

In the following list, the first set of figures is where the budget dollars would be spent under Hughes' proposal, and the second set is what was actually spent this fiscal year:

- $84.1 million for teacher salaries, $58.1 million
- $4.9 million for pupil personnel, $4.6 million
- $3.7 million for instructional media, $2.6 million
- $2.3 million for instruction and curriculum development, $2.2 million
- $9.1 million for school and general administration, $9.2 million
- $2.1 million for Central Services, $2 million
- $5.4 million for transportation, $5.6 million
- $9.2 million for plant operations, $9 million
- $3.4 million for maintenance, $3.2 million

The rest of the money in the proposed budget, $1.6 million, would be spent for training, fiscal services, funding transfers, and for the school board. Last year the board spent just over a million dollars on these items.

While spending for those purposes under general operating costs totals $112.6 million, another $6 million is budgeted for food service, $895,000 for debt service, and $24.3 million for capital improvement projects, making up the total proposed budget of $143.9 million.

County To Set Fees Builders Must Pay For Roads Impact

Despite hints of a lawsuit from developers, county commissioners Monday will consider a list of suggested temporary impact fees which builders will be asked to voluntarily donate to help offset the effects of their developments on roads. County Administrator Ken Hooper said he expects the commissioners will adopt interim fees officially at the commission's Tuesday meeting. A consultant is to be hired to develop a permanent fee schedule.

And the county is interested in the cities of Seminole County adopting impact fees as well, in a move toward, in the words of Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, "making growth pay for itself" throughout the county.

Hooper told city representatives at a meeting of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County Wednesday night that they "voluntary" fees recommended by Department of Public Works Director Larry Sellers and County Engineer Jerry McCollum at $1,000 per housing unit and $4 per square foot of commercial construction would remain in effect until the consultant is hired.

They are called voluntary fees because developers in most cases agree voluntarily to pay suggested amounts when zoning or site plans are up for approval. There is no ordinance requiring the fees. When the permanent fee schedule is established, commissioners plan to make the fees mandatory.

Delegates from several cities have asked for copies of the proposed interim fees.

GNP Dashes Rosy Economic Predictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's gross national product grew at only a 1.7 percent annual rate in the second quarter, making the administration's optimistic predictions for the economy unlikely to be achieved in 1985, government officials said today.

The figure was far short of the 3.1 percent "flash" estimate issued late last month and also was below the 2.5 percent that most leading forecasters anticipated.

"The economy's performance during the first half of this year obviously was below our earlier expectation, making the 4 percent target for growth during 1985 unlikely," Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige told reporters after the report was released.

"We continued to consume and invest more than we produced, with foreign suppliers making up the difference."

In a separate report today the Federal Reserve

Board said factory production inched up just 0.1 percent in June, the same as in May and part of an extremely weak trend that began almost a year ago.

The combination of the nearly imperceptible 0.3 percent advance in the first quarter and the second quarter's weaker-than-expected rebound meant the entire January-June first half expanded only 1 percent, government analysts said. Last year's first half grew at a vigorous 8.6 percent rate.

To reach the administration's current forecast for 1985 of 3.9 percent would make necessary a blistering second half growth rate of 6.9 percent, and that was considered hardly likely, according to forecasters in an out of government.

Longwood Aims To Set Tax Rate Tonight

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

The Longwood City Commission will attempt to set its property tax rate at tonight's work session.

Mayor Harvey Smerilson said the commission has already cut approximately $265,000 from the proposed $3,750,360 budget for 1985-86, but this is not enough to reach his goal of not increasing last year's property tax rate of $2.52 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

The budget session, set for 7 p.m. at city hall, 175 W. Warren Ave., will be the commission's fifth in two weeks.

It would take $3.62 per $1,000 assessed valuation to fund the budget proposed by Finance Director Barry Weeks and City Administrator Don Terry (during Terry's two-month term in that position).

Smerilson said cuts would have to total $280,000 to hold the tax rate at last year's level. He said they are off by about $1 per $1,000 assessed value doing that.

He said by law the city has until the end of this month to submit its tax rate to the county, but since one or two of the commissioners are planning to go out of town next week the commission needs to reach a consensus tonight.

Smerilson said although deleting the proposed $800,000 police complex would reduce the tax rate by $0.30 per $1,000 assessed value, it may be worthwhile to leave it in the budget. The voters at last year's referendum turned down a $1 per thousand assessed value tax to build the complex, but Smerilson said the ones he had talked to were not against a new police building, they just didn't want to pay the tax.

Smerilson said he is against removing the utility tax cap which would mean a 10 percent tax on monthly utility bills for Longwood residents. Residents are now charged a $5 maximum tax on each utility and commercial accounts $10. Some new homeowners are paying $200 a month electricity bills and a tax increase would really hurt them, he said.

At least the property tax is deductible from the income tax, he said.

Smerilson said the hiring of four new employees has been authorized under the tentative budget — one police officer and three firefighters. He said one building inspector is being eliminated because the amount of building is down from last year.

Built into the proposed budget for city employees will be a 4 percent cost of living raise plus $500 pay adjustment for deserving employees as recommended by their department heads.

"It looks like we will be getting a lot less road taxes and state revenue this year and there are a lot of problems encountered along the way, some of them inherited, which we're forced to address and are still to be worked out," Smerilson said.

Longwood Fire Chief Charles Chapman will have funds in his 1985-86 budget to hire three new

A Swift Change

Cameron Elzey Swift doesn't like his name.

Well, not the first two: the last one. Maybe its jokes about not being "too swift."

What ever the cause, the Swifts of Orlando filed suit in Seminole Circuit Court to change their last name and the last name of their two tots, Kathryn Francis Swift, age 5, and Drew Addison Swift, 16 months.

And what would make them happy? Changing their last name to Shackelford. Why?

Seems Cameron, 29, and his brother Curtis — sons of Oscar Elzey Shackelford and Shirley Ann Ipe, had their name changed in 1973 in Orange County by their mother, Shirley Swift, a short while before they reached 18. Dad didn't show up at the hearing, according to the suit.

Since Cameron has been a Shackelford longer than a Swift, he wants a swift change back to Shackelford. His wife, Laura Francis, 26, a Swift for six years — has no complaints. She's a daughter of Don Salyer and Gwynva F. Oglivie.

Swift is in the air force and currently stationed at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

Judge Agrees With Jury

Sanford Man Sentenced To Die In Electric Chair

Sanford man has been sentenced to death for the out-at-sea drowning of his pregnant wife.

Michael Scott Keen, 37, of 112 Clear Lake Circle, was sentenced Wednesday by Circuit Judge Patti Englander Henning for the death of Anita Lucia Lopez Keen, 22, of Ft. Lauderdale.

Mrs. Keen was five months pregnant with the couple's first child when she disappeared during a pleasure cruise at sea about 20 miles off Port Everglades Nov. 15, 1981. A jury recommended the death sentence June 10.

According to testimony given by Keen's former friend and roommate Kenneth Shapiro, he was on Keen's cabin cruiser at the time of the incident and saw Keen push his wife overboard.

Shapiro said Keen threatened to kill him unless he corroborated Keen's story that his wife must have fallen overboard while the men listened to a blaring radio.

After Keen shoved his wife overboard he watched her tread water for about an hour before she sank and drowned, according to Broward County sheriff's spokesman George Crolius.

The Keens had been married 3½ months at the time. Two months before the wedding, Mrs. Keen took out life insurance policies naming her husband as beneficiary for $200,000 in accidental death benefits.

Shapiro testified that before Keen met his wife, he had discussed a plan to "find an unsuspecting girl and kill

IN BRIEF

Lawmakers Take Aim At Huge Trade Deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sponsors of a bill that would slap a 25 percent duty on goods imported from nations with huge trade surpluses say the measure would help lower the nation's $150 billion trade deficit.

Treasury Secretary James Baker said the administration "would not favor" the bill. "That's protectionism in its ... rankest form," Baker said on NBC's "Today" show.

But lawmakers said their bill is necessary because the administration has no coherent trade policy to combat America's rapidly mounting trade deficit.

The bill is designed to get America's trading partners with huge surpluses, such as Japan, Taiwan, South Korea and Brazil, to drop import restrictions against U.S. goods. If they don't, their actions could trigger a 25 percent import duty, beginning in October 1986.

Small trading nations with less than $7 billion a year in total trade with the United States would be excluded from the 25 percent duty, as would nations that have large trade surpluses but virtually no import restrictions.

Import duties required in the bill can be avoided if countries reduce their trade surplus by 5 percent in 1985 and 10 percent a year in subsequent years. That can be done either by restricting their exports to the United States or preferably eliminating trade barriers to American goods.

McDonald's Massacre Mass Set

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The still-grieving survivors and friends of the victims of the nation's worst single-day mass murder plan to gather tonight for a special mass to commemorate the first anniversary of the so-called McDonald's Massacre.

It was one year ago today that unemployed welder James Oliver Huberty slaughtered 21 people at the McDonald's restaurant in San Ysidro near the Mexican border. Nineteen people were wounded before the gunman was slain by a police sniper.

Friends and family of the victims will gather at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church to pray for the innocent men, women and children who were cut down by the fusillade of bullets.

But amid recriminations and continuing controversy, the healing process is far from complete.

Residents are still angry at the delay in killing Huberty, who was not shot until 77 minutes after he began his killing orgy.

Police say they were afraid there may have been hostages inside the restaurant.

Byrne To Run Again For Mayor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jane Byrne, Chicago's first woman mayor, launched her 1987 re-election campaign by charging that Harold Washington, the city's first black mayor, had brought "the city that works" to a halt.

"I look around this city and I see no progress," Byrne told a news conference held Wednesday outside a padlocked Navy Pier, which she said symbolized her successor's first two years in office.

"Programs have come to a halt in this city," said Byrne, who lost her re-election bid in 1983 to Washington. "Meanwhile, people are suffering and the city is suffering."

Washington, who was in Rome Wednesday for an audience with Pope John Paul II, said he welcomed Byrne's challenge.

"If she's going to run, fine," Washington said. "But I'll tell you one thing. If she had done the job of cleaning up the city, as she professed she intended, I wouldn't have to do it."

IN BRIEF

Mountie Drug Case Ends In Mistrial

MIAMI (UPI) — A mistrial has been declared in the federal trial of Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman Michael Adrien Van Rassel, who was charged with selling documents on drug informants to Miami Beach underworld figures.

U.S. District Judge Sidney Aronovitz declared the mistrial Wednesday after the jury of five men and seven women sent him a message at 6:32 p.m. which said, "The jury is hopelessly deadlocked." The group had been deliberating for 16½ hours over a two-day period.

Michael Adrien Van Rassel, 29, was charged with three counts of bribery involving $2,000 he accepted from a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent posing as a cocaine smuggler and an alleged agreement by the Mountie to sell additional information for $20,000.

The judge set a hearing today for Van Rassel, who has been in jail since his arrest in May, to determine when a second trial would be held and whether he should be freed on bond. If convicted, he faces a maximum of 30 years in jail and a $30,000 fine.

Fumes Clear Shopping Mall

MIAMI (UPI) — Health inspectors planned today to investigate the cause and identity of fumes that prompted authorities to empty a huge mall for more than two hours, forcing an estimated 5,000 shoppers and employees outside.

No serious injuries were reported in the evacuation Wednesday, but traffic became snarled on a six-lane road along the enclosed 185-store mall, one of the largest in the South.

Health officials said the fumes came from insulation between the east walls of Burdines department store. After determining the fumes were not harmful, they reopened the shopping center at 5:30 p.m.

Officials today will try to find out just what type of fumes they were.

On Golden Grove Pond

Longwood Faces Maintenance Of Another Retention Pond

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood has another retention pond on its hands whether it wants it or not.

David Maingot of Trinor Developers, Inc., developer of Golden Grove subdivision, has asked the city to assume responsibility for maintaining a retention pond in that development.

City Administrator Greg Manning recommended to the city commission at its meeting Monday night that the city not accept maintenance on any more retention pond as it is already maintaining "40 or 50" of them. "The homeowners associations should accept responsibility," Manning said.

Builders are required to construct retention ponds in their developments to hold storm water on the property to allow it to filter through the soil rather than cause run-off into nearby lakes or onto neighboring property.

Not all of them work properly and they are proving a costly headache for Longwood officials who contracted with a private lake maintenance firm, The Lake Doctor, in April to maintain some of them.

City Clerk Don Terry pointed out that the city accepted ownership of the Golden Grove retention area when it accepted the other improvements such as streets and water pipes from the developer. And City Attorney Gerald Korman said the developer's responsibility for making sure the improvements are in working condition only extends one year. That year ended in April 1984, he said.

Mayor Harvey Smerilson said the Golden Grove pond doesn't percolate properly, holds water continually, and isn't fenced. Manning said residents of the subdivision have objected to the fact that the water turns green with algae. The developer has attempted to solve the problem by treating the water, Manning said.

City Engineer Charles Hassler was told to inspect the pond and see if it is working as it should. No deadline was given for the report, and commissioners said they would decide whether to maintain the pond after reviewing Hassler's findings.

In other action, the commission voted 4-1 on a motion by Commissioner Larry Goldberg to amend the municipal code to reduce to one foot the front setback required from the road for display of new and used motor vehicles.

Commissioner June Lormann, who voted no, said she thinks the setback should be left at its present five feet on a roadway or three feet in other areas.

Monday, the commission:

● Gave final approval to an amendment tightening its zoning code by striking the word "and" and substituting "or." The code now states "a boat, or such vehicle or trailer must be owned by or (and) used by a resident of the premises."

The action was taken as the result of a resident being cited by the Code Enforcement Officer for having a motor home improperly parked in a residential area because the vehicle was not owned by the resident. The intent of the code could not be enforced.

● Set the next city clean-up days, when discarded appliances and other items not normally collected by the garbage companies are picked up by city crews, for Saturday and Sunday, August 3 and 4. The clean-up cost is expected to be $2,100 for labor and $500 for dumping fee. City public works employees are augmented by eight weekend workers from the Seminole County jail.

● Asked the Parks and Recreation Board to come up with a plan for use of the city's new tennis courts in Reiter Park. The courts are locked to protect them from vandalism and keys are issued for a $5 deposit. A suggestion that non-residents be excluded from the courts was shot down by Parks and Recreation Director Bill Goebel who reminded the commission that because state funds were used to help construct the courts outsiders cannot be banned.

Commissioners are considering charging outsiders a $10 key deposit, but are concerned that tennis racketeers may have the keys counterfeited and distribute copies to their friends.

Commissioner Larry Goldberg complained that his sons called him at work to come home and give them $5 because the courts were locked and they didn't have enough money to get a key.

The commission's next regular meeting is at 7:30 p.m. Monday in city hall, 175 W. Warren Ave.

Senate To House: 'Don't Call Us, We'll Call You'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget negotiations collapsed on a note of "don't call us, we'll call you," and Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici said today if the House refuses to cut more domestic programs, "We're not going to get a budget."

The talks broke off Wednesday in an atmosphere of heated charges, many directed at the White House budget compromise formulated last week in an attempt to bring the parties together.

"We'll call you back as soon as we have something to talk about," a bitter Domenici said after an unusually disagreeable session.

In an interview on the CBS "Morning News" program today, Domenici said, "We're not immature. We understand that we don't want the chaos that's going to result from no budget and there will be chaos. So, we'll try something."

But when asked when the conferees would resume negotiations, Domenici said:

"At the moment I'm very pessimistic, but I would say that if the House really is at their bottom line, if they're not going to cut some more domestic programs that are not poverty programs ... if they're not going to do that, then we're not going to get a budget."

Without a budget, Domenici said, "The deficit will come down a little bit, but I think we'll have institutional chaos."

House budget conferees said the White House and Senate leaders torpedoed the budget conference by "moving the target" several times. Those changes included President Reagan's rejection of a Senate-passed version that would have scrapped Social Security cost-of-living raises next year, after he had accepted it.

Senate leaders denied the accusations, charging it was the House's fault the talks were not progressing because the House refused to make significant budget cuts. Budget conferees have been trying to reach agreement for nearly six weeks.

A recuperating Reagan and congressional leaders had hoped for agreement by the week's end to get the spending blueprint through both chambers by the start of the monthlong recess Aug. 2. But that hope appeared to be dimming.

The House proposal cut $24 billion more in non-military domestic spending over the next three years and preserved Social Security raises, but did not allot as much money for the Pentagon as Senate bargainers and Reagan wanted.

Fearful Of Being Sued, Daytona Votes To Ban Night Driving On Beach

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — City commissioners voted unanimously to ban night driving on Florida's largest beach in response to a state Supreme Court ruling that holds cities liable for traffic accidents on inadequately supervised beaches.

The ban, approved late Wednesday, goes into effect July 24 and prohibits all motor vehicles on the beach from one hour before sunset until sunrise.

About 120 people crowded city commission chambers late Wednesday, while at least 100 others waited outside as supporters and opponents of the ban made their pitch to commissioners.

Ocean Deck owner Dick Keough gave the commission a petition bearing the signatures of 3,400 people protesting the ordinance. Many of them were owners of businesses along the beachfront strip.

Peggy Landers, president of Mothers Against Drunk Driving in Volusia County, spoke in favor of the ban.

"This is not 1903 when just a few cars drove on the beach. There are too many deaths and injuries," said Landers.

An emergency ordinance to prohibit night beach driving failed two weeks ago because it did not receive a unanimous vote of the six-member commission.

The ordinance was inspired by a recent state Supreme Court ruling that upheld an accident victim's right to file a lawsuit alleging that there was inadequate supervision of traffic on Daytona Beach and that the city had failed to warn of the danger.

The lawsuit is still pending, and did not involve a fatality, said City Attorney Frank B. Gummy III.

Gummy said there were 150 traffic accidents on the beach in 1984, none of them fatal. But of the last seven fatal accidents on the beach, six occurred at night, he said.

Daytona Beach Shores had previously banned night driving on the portion of the beach inside its city limits. Gummy said Together, the two bans bar night driving on about 11 miles of beachfront, he said.

Sanford Searching For Sewer Project Advisers

To make sure Sanford doesn't lose money during its anticipated $10 million to $30 million sewer improvement project, the city should hire a team of financial and legal advisers, City Manager Frank Faison says.

A financial adviser, underwriter and attorney specializing in bond projects would guide the city through its costly, complicated bond program designed to pay for the project.

"It's good insurance" to have such a team, Faison told the commissioners during their workshop session Monday.

The financial adviser would be paid between $30,000 and $50,000, Faison said. The underwriter's and attorney's fees would have to be determined later.

Commissioners agreed with Faison and told him to shop around for the best three people for the job.

"It's really insane to go into a (bond) sale without one (adviser)," Commissioner David Farr said.

Mayor Bettye Smith called the team a "necessity" and Commissioner Milton Smith said it would probably pay for itself with the amount of money it saves the city.

Sanford faces either upgrading its Poplar Avenue sewer plant or going to a landspreading method of sewage disposal, depending on what system the state approves for the city. The state Department of Environmental Regulation has ordered the city to stop dumping treated sewage in Lake Monroe. The city has appealed the order and a decision is pending.

In other action Monday, the commission:

● Gave tentative approval to a low bid of $22,685 from a Longwood tree company to remove 149 dead trees in the city. Final approval is expected Monday.

● Agreed to shop for the best interest rate for a loan to finance the purchase of a $120,000 sewer pipe repair truck which uses television cameras to spot leaks. The city has earmarked $30,000 from this year's budget for a down payment but must finance the rest of the cost.

Knife-Wielding Bandit Robs Cumberland Farms Of $109

A man wielding a knife robber a Fern Park convenience store clerk of $109 late Wednesday.

A Seminole County sheriff's report said the man entered Cumberland Farms, 229 Oxford Road, at 11:23 p.m. and walked to the back of the store and waited for several customers to leave.

When the store cleared, the man approached the counter, reached over and stuck a pocketknife next to the clerk's side, the report said.

"I want all your money," the man reportedly said. The clerk opened the register and said, "Take it." The robber said, "Hand it to me."

The clerk handed the man $109 dollars in cash and the robber demanded that the clerk open the safe, the report said.

The clerk said the combination "was not available." Then robber left the store in a red Pinto.

MOTEL BURGLARY

Thieves entered the motel room of two women and stole their purses.

Sheriff's investigators believe the heist was pulled off by someone using a pass key because no pry marks or other evidence of forced entry was discovered in the Tuesday robbery.

The thieves stole the purses of Barbara Du Bois, 65, of Punta Gorda, and Jennifer Harper, 32, of Summerville, South Carolina between 3 and 3:30 p.m. from room 143 of the Days Inn, State Road 46 and Interstate 4, Sanford.

A $500 pair of prescription glasses, keys to two automobiles, credits cards and cash totaling $845 was stolen in the robbery.

HIT AND RUN

An Altamonte Springs man has been arrested and charged with leaving the scene of an accident with injuries in connection with a wreck Sunday in Longwood.

A sheriff's report said a motorist ran a stop sign on Marion Street in Longwood and struck another vehicle, causing minor injuries to both drivers.

The driver of the car that ran the stop sign stopped briefly but left the scene before Longwood police arrived, the report said.

An investigation turned up the name of William Wesley Hackett, 19 of 920 B Orienta Ave., Altamonte Springs, who was arrested Tuesday.

He was being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

PURLOINED BOAT

A boat, motor and trailer valued at $7,250 was stolen from its parking space on Lake Kathryn in Casselberry early Tuesday.

Dorothy Gordon, 60, of 1042 Mango Drive, Casselberry, reported to police that she parked the boat at 3 p.m. Monday and discovered it stolen at about 9:45 a.m. Tuesday.

TOOL PIGEON

Over $1,100 worth of tools were discovered stolen Saturday from the makeshift shed of a Longwood man.

A sheriff's report listed a drill, two grinders, three saws, a chainsaw, an air compressor and a hole cutter stolen Saturday from James Turner, 1101 Miller Ave. The shed the tools were stored in was constructed from an old pickup truck cab.

VANDAL WITH A HANDLE

A vandal broke into the garage of Phant Troung, 827 N Jericho Drive, Casselberry, Friday and destroyed a 1983 Oldsmobile.

A Seminole County sheriff's report said the vandal may have used a red jack handle to smash the car's windows and to dent and gouge holes in the auto.

An estimate by police placed damage at $3,000 to $4,000.

My Ngyuen, a relative, discovered the damaged vehicle. According to the report, Troung was in New York at the time of the vandalism.

CLUE MATCHES UP

A book of matches helped Sanford police solve a burglary case early Tuesday.

The matches were found in a briefcase recovered from two men chased by Sgt. Mitch Tindel at about 2 a.m., according to Police Chief Steve Harriett.

Tindel saw the two men running south across First Street and chased them to the intersection of Second Street and Palmetto Avenue where he stopped them.

During the chase, one of the men threw down a briefcase containing a $66 check, papers, a calculator and a book of matches from the marina Holiday Inn, Harriett said. The name "J.B. Miller" was on the briefcase.

An investigation found that a car belonging to Jerry Miller, who was staying at the hotel, was burglarized and the briefcase stolen.

David Scott Lapointe, 20, no address given, and Fred David Pierce, 19, of 112 W. Magnolia Ave., Oviedo, were charged with burglary and petty theft. They were booked into the Seminole County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

Woman Gets 3 Years For DUI Manslaughter

A Casselberry woman has been sentenced to three years in prison for the DUI manslaughter death of a Lake Monroe woman killed when the car she was riding in was struck broadside.

Tina Marie Tucker, 22, of 911 Taura St., was also ordered Wednesday by Orange Circuit Judge Ted Coleman to serve five years of probation and pay a $1,000 fine in connection with the Oct. 10 death of Tanya Robinson, 20. Ms. Tucker pleaded no contest to DUI manslaughter on May 31.

According to court records, Ms. Tucker ran a stop sign at Lake Destiny Road and Kennedy Boulevard in Eatontonville on Oct. 6 and struck the passenger side of the car Ms. Robinson was riding in. Ms. Robinson died of head injuries four days later.

Ms. Tucker's blood alcohol level was 0.15 percent at the time of the accident. In Florida, 0.10 is considered legally under the influence.

Ms. Robinson's mother, Kathie Robinson of Lake Monroe, has filed a wrongful death lawsuit against Ms. Tucker, Kendall Neal, driver of the car in which Ms. Robinson was riding, and his father, Leroy Neal, owner of the car.

Mrs. Robinson, who filed the suit Jan. 4, is suing for unspecified damages in excess of $5,000.

She states in the suit that Ms. Tucker was negligent and intoxicated when she ran the stop sign and that the younger Neal was also negligent in that he should have seen Ms. Tucker's headlights and avoided the accident.

According to Florida court procedure, the no contest plea cannot be used as evidence in the civil case. —Deane Jordan

Interlachen Country Club Appeals Adjustment Denial For Sewer Effluent Spraying

Owners of the proposed Interlachen Country Club, which straddles the Orange and Seminole county lines in the Tanglewood area west of State Road 436, are appealing to the Seminole County Commission for permission to spray sewer effluent onto the golf course.

The county's Board of Adjustment earlier this week denied on a 3-1 vote the club's request after nearby property owners protested that the effluent, which would come from the city of Winter Park, could pollute the aquifer and private wells.

One resident, Nancy Hague of Nottingham Drive, said spray heads now used at the property are already shooting water over the roof of her home and there is no reason to believe the heads would not do the same when sewer effluent is involved.

She said while treatment of sewage kills bacteria it is not guaranteed to kill viruses.

Alex Hall of Professional Engineering Consultants, Winter Park, who appeared on behalf of Interlachen developers, insisted that the effluent is safer than storm water and the company already has a conditional use permit for the operation from the St. Johns River Water Management District.

Ginny Markley, county zoning coordinator, said the developers have not signed the necessary agreements with the county to permit the effluent disposal and the county's utility steering committee is not scheduled to consider the project until Friday.

Although Board of Adjustment member Mike Hattaway indicated he favored the project, he changed his vote to disapproval after the board voted 2-2 on the request. He joined with Chairman Roger Perra and Danny Brown in opposing. Voting for the permission was Dr. James Hickman. Hickman said the biggest problem Interlachen has is that it is proposing something new and untried, raising the concerns of the nearby property owners. Member Alan Robinson was absent.

Hall said any more delays could make the project unfeasible.

In other action, the board approved the request of the Clearwater Missionary Baptist Church, Southwest Road south of 22nd Street, near Sanford, to allow the church to function without parking spaces.

Hattaway said the request wasn't unusual, adding that churches in downtown areas often function without parking facilities.

"The Lord will provide," Hattaway said and his colleagues agreed. —Donna Estes

Police Probe Floppy Discs For Clues To Kiddie Hackers

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) — Authorities investigating the alleged illegal use by youths of home computers for free telephone and information services will examine 9 million computer discs in their search for more suspects.

Middlesex County Prosecutor Alan Rockoff said Wednesday that seven youths used their computers and electronic "bulletin boards" to exchange information obtained without authorization, including codes that would cause communications satellites to "change position" and possibly interrupt intercontinental communications.

He said the youths obtained thousands and "possibly millions" of dollars in telephone and informational services.

Prosecutors said more arrests may be made.

Assistant County Prosecutor Frank Graves said investigators still had "six more computers and 9 million floppy discs" to look through.

"We had 300 names in one computer and we charged seven," Graves said. "We have no idea what's in the other computers and won't know for a while."

The youths, whose names were withheld because of their ages, are charged with juvenile delinquency by reason of conspiracy to commit theft.

A spokesman for American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said there was no indication any of its satellites had been moved, or that even an attempt to move them was made. But police said the youths were able to break into an AT&T computer after obtaining a manual from an AT&T trash bin.

South Plainfield police detective George Green said four of the defendants operated electronic bulletin boards, which are used for the exchange of information by hundreds of people.

Green said the youths also had a special code giving them illegal access to the information in question and only those who used those parts of the bulletin boards were arrested.

Rockoff said the bulletin boards contained telephone numbers in a military defense communications system in the Defense Department. "We called one of the numbers and got a lieutenant general," Rockoff told the New York Times.

Rockoff said the investigation began in April when postal officials informed the South Plainfield police that someone using a post office box under a fictitious name had apparently been using a computer to gain illegal access to the computer of a Connecticut credit company.

The investigation led to the arrest of a South Plainfield youth, whose computer was seized in June. After Grenier and Green spent about 100 hours looking through the youth's computer, the other six were arrested Friday.

And Another Spending Fix?

Pessimists are saying the American economy is heading for a recession as early as next year. Optimists are saying that slower growth signifies only a pause as business and consumers defer spending in anticipation of lower interest rates, lower oil prices, and lower tax rates. Either way, this hardly seems the time for the tax increase some in Congress are pushing privately as the only possible road to deficit reductions.

Unemployment in June remained steady at 7.3 percent for the fifth consecutive month. That translated to 8.4 million Americans looking for jobs that don't yet exist.

Growth rates have been similarly disappointing this year. First quarter growth was an anemic .3 percent. The second quarter saw a rebound to a modestly healthy 3 percent, but aggregate growth this year is still running at a lackluster rate of 1.7 percent. There are other signs of weakness. Corporate profits are down, the nation's trade deficit is running at record highs, and the troubled manufacturing sector continues to lose ground.

Let the economists argue about whether these are portents of a 1986 recession or merely a predictable pause after the 1983-84 boom. Our guess is the latter but there is room for honest debate. The point is that a tax hike now could only make a weakening economy weaker still.

A tax increase that took money out of consumers' pockets would diminish demand and slow economic activity accordingly. New taxes on corporations would mean less capital available for growth-promoting investment. In both cases, fewer new jobs would be created for the more than 8 million Americans who have yet to share in the benefits of the economic upturn that began at the end of 1982.

Ironically, a tax hike intended to shrink the deficits would be more likely to increase them. If the pessimists are right and recession awaits next year, adding the extra burden of new taxes could only deepen the recession. And, inasmuch as deficits typically grow during recessions, a more severe recession would produce a deficit to match. If, conversely, the optimists are right, a tax increase would at the very least risk choking off the growth that is actually shrinking the deficits in real terms — i.e., as a percentage of gross national product.

All this seems so obvious that one must suspect a covert, or at least subliminal, motive to explain Congress's itch to reach out and tap someone. For a mammoth hint, recall the gnashing of teeth and anguished sighs on Capitol Hill as members of Congress recently struggled to cut tens of billions of dollars from future budgets.

The fact is that Congress would rather spend than cut. That is why the deficit is so large today. By the end of fiscal 1985, federal spending will have increased 41 percent since 1981. The economy will have grown only 34 percent over the same period. So, despite four tax hikes totaling $530 billion, the deficits remain huge.

Another tax hike would risk making the deficits larger still while giving a weak-willed Congress what it craves but must not have: Another fix to feed the spending addiction.

How Stockman's 'Allies' Let Him Down

WASHINGTON — The resignation of Budget Director David Stockman leaves a huge gap in President Reagan's high command. No one now being mentioned to replace him comes close to matching his mastery of budget detail and his broad philosophical commitment to reducing the size of government.

Despite my own deep misgivings over Stockman's persistent push for tax increases to close the deficit, no one in this administration has made tougher or more persistent efforts to cut wasteful federal spending.

Again and again over the past four and a half years, Stockman has tenaciously fought internally for deep budget cuts that, had they been enacted, would have slashed the deficit to a fraction of its present size.

Tragically, Reagan's budgetary whiz-kid was, in the end, beaten back by key members of his own party in Congress, by top officials of the administration, and very often by the president himself.

First, he frequently encountered stiff opposition from Cabinet members who argued vociferously against his early proposals to cut or eliminate questionable federal programs such as Export-Import loans for major U.S. corporations; revenue sharing for well-heeled communities that enjoy big budget surpluses; and costly Pentagon expenditures, such as cut-rate military commissaries for relatively young, middle-class retirees in second-career jobs.

Stockman fought to phase out the $4.5 billion-a-year revenue-sharing program early in Reagan's first term, but was fought tooth and nail by the president's intergovernmental affairs assistant, Rich Williamson, who said the cut would endanger the president's federalism initiative. "There was a big fight over it in the Cabinet room in front of the president and the president sided with Rich," a White House official says.

Just the mere hint that Stockman was planning to propose the elimination of about $750 million in commissary subsidies or reforming the 20-year-and-out military retirement system triggered a furious retaliation from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The top brass went to Reagan and told him it would destroy military morale and recruitment. Stockman lost.

Second, Stockman has consistently run into a wall of opposition to many of his budget proposals from key Republicans in Congress, who have often been among his most effective foes.

When Stockman was putting the finishing touches on the president's fiscal-1985 budget, word leaked out that it would include sharp cuts in the Department of Education. It wasn't long before he found himself face-to-face in his office with a phalanx of angry conservative House Republicans, who told him they didn't want Reagan cutting "one dime out of the education budget."

As these examples illustrate, Stockman's third and biggest obstacle often was the president himself. Time and time again, Stockman's budget-cutting proposals ended up on the cutting-room floor, a victim of Reagan's reluctance to add them to his budget during his first four years.

Terrorist Tactics Here, Too

The brutal murder of a young Navy man aboard hijacked TWA Flight 847 provided the American people with a fresh shock of recognition as to the menace of terrorism. As President Reagan said during the 17-day ordeal, "thugs and barbarians" are waging war against civilization. Unfortunately, terrorist tactics are to be found almost everywhere.

In the same week that the TWA jetliner was hijacked, there were terrorist attacks in England, Spain, Corsica, South Africa, Japan, and other countries.

Increasingly, foes of the established order use terrorist methods in attempts to achieve their political goals. The United States itself has not been free of such incidents. Puerto Rican nationalists have exploded bombs in New York City. The Capitol has been the target of a bomb attack. In the 1960s, radical anti-Vietnam groups dynamited power lines in California and attempted to halt trains carrying military supplies. Similar attempts have been made to disrupt the movements of trains carrying weapons to nuclear submarines in the Northwest.

In the sixties, the United States also experienced campus protest activities that constituted terrorism, such as the riot at Columbia University in New York City and the disturbances at Cornell and Yale Universities. The Berkeley campus of the University of California became infamous for scenes of mob terrorism.

One hopes that the country won't see that sort of thing again. There are insidious developments, however. Many of them are related to the current campaign to force university authorities to get rid of securities in companies with investments in South Africa.

What's happening in this connection was discussed by Walter K. Klaus of Farmington, Minn., in a letter published June 25 on the editorial page of the St. Paul, Minn., Pioneer Press Dispatch, under the caption "Protestors 'Hijacked' U Regents' Meeting."

Nowhere in American society is there a proper place for groups that hold up individuals and institutions, bend them to their will, and create media events that have the effect of manipulating people. Our system allows for a variety of lawful, orderly protests. The American public must not be subjected to another round of Berkeley-type mob protests.

Firms Play Dirty To Get Cleanup Job

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

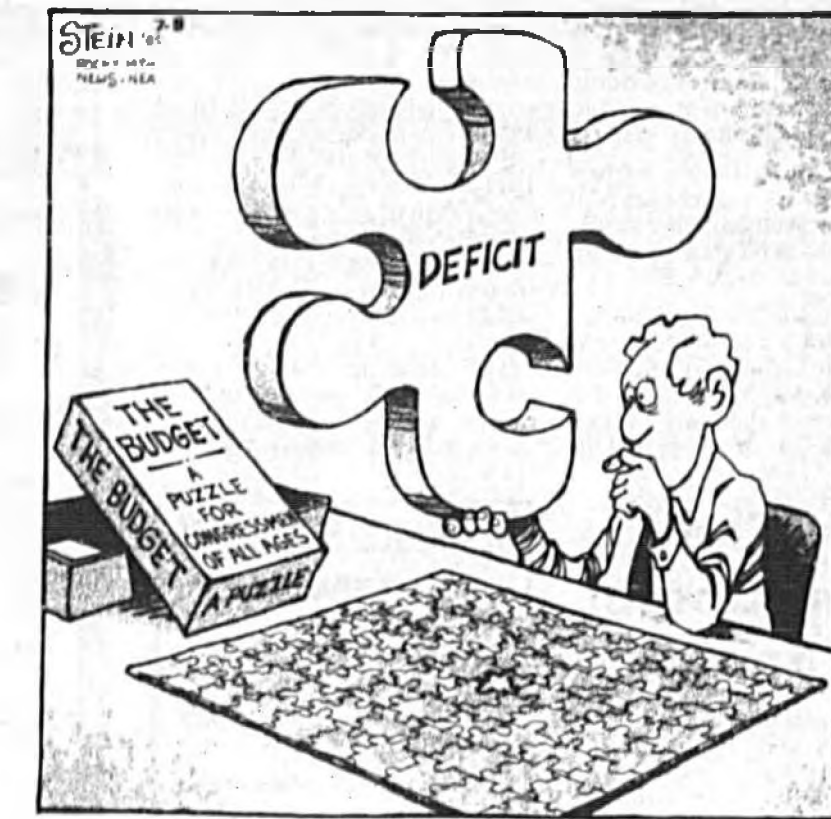

WASHINGTON — Call it "Shootout at the OK Dump."

Two giant waste-disposal companies and their hired guns are dueling in the press and in hearing rooms across the country, trying to influence the Environmental Protection Agency. Each side has accused the other of misrepresentation and other dirty tricks — and each insists the other started it.

The unseemly mud-slinging involves a matter of serious public interest — how best to get rid of dangerous industrial wastes. But the tactics used by both sides are attempts to distort the democratic process. Here's the story uncovered by our associate Corky Johnson:

The EPA is considering the disposal of hazardous wastes by burning them at sea in special incinerator ships, instead of burning them on land, and other disposal methods. One of the rival firms, Waste Management Inc., has the capability to incinerate at sea. The other doesn't.

Waste Management's rival,

Just Calling Names

The gap between President Reagan's rhetoric and his actions on the hostage matter has become so great that he is draining his presidency of all credibility and putting at risk a whole range of issues. He may be lucking out because it is summer and people at the beach are not noticing, but things are becoming dangerous. A very strong case can be made that Reagan should resign and let George Bush take over. Bush's credibility remains high.

After doing absolutely nothing to retaliate against the hijacking and the murder of Robert Stethem, Reagan has been reduced to calling names. In his absurd speech to the American Bar Association, he called the leaders of Iran, North Korea, Libya, Cuba and Nicaragua "misfits, looney tunes and squalid criminals." Yeah. Sticks and stones will break my bones but names will never hurt me.

Then he huffed and puffed in legalese. Terrorist attacks against the United States are acts of war, he correctly told the assembled lawyers, and he noted that under "international law" we have the right to defend ourselves. All right, Mr. President, that's fine.

Then what did he do? He recommended a committee. He proposed that the assembled lawyers "address this problem in conferences and conventions that will lead us to a better domestic and international legal framework for dealing with terrorism."

Wow. The Ayatollah, Khadafy and the Islamic Jihad must be shaking in their boots. Theodore Roosevelt said that we should speak softly and carry a big stick. Reagan's shouting and not even carrying a toothpick.

Dictator Kim Il Sung of North Korea must be puzzling over the inscrutable ways of the Western mind. Kim made it into Reagan's list of five outlaw leaders, while Assad of Syria, who is actually running events in Lebanon, was not even mentioned. Without Assad's approval, the terrorist camps in the Bakka Valley could not exist for 10 minutes.

Absurdly, Reagan told the listening lawyers that the terrorists are running scared because our own cause is just America is still the shining city on the hill," he said, using that line once too often. These "regimes are weak in a way that no democracy can ever be weak."

Tell it to Robert Stethem.

"Their rulers are frightened," Reagan fantasized. "They know that freedom is on the march and when it triumphs their time in power is over."

Oh yeah? Down in Managua Daniel Ortega now knows that he is dealing with a paper tiger. Khadafy is so afraid of Reagan that he has just signed an accord with the new military rulers of the Sudan and resumed his crazy dream of encircling the hated and westernizing Egypt.

The Ayatollah is publicly laughing at the president. Reagan had to run around the world "begging," he said, for someone to help free the hostages.

ROBERT WALTERS

If The Cliche Fits...

WASHINGTON (INEA) — The most difficult challenge in writing this column will be suppressing the temptation to invoke the 370-year-old hackneyed aphorism about "the pot calling the kettle black."

It seems that the nation's leading advertising agencies — the firms whose notable contributions to our culture include television commercials for hemorrhoid remedies, pain relievers and laundry soaps — are disturbed about the lack of quality and integrity in political advertising.

Leading the cleanup campaign is the American Association of Advertising Agencies. Although 4As members account for more than three-fourths of all the country's commercial advertising, most political advertising is handled by campaign consultants.

4As members have more than their share of professional problems. One public opinion survey has shown, for example, that almost two-thirds of all consumers believe that television commercials are exaggerated or misleading.

In another poll, about half of the respondents disagreed with the statement that "advertising presents a true picture of the products featured," but agreed that "advertising insults the intelligence of the average person."

Similarly, when the public is asked to rate various occupations on the basis of honesty and ethics, the advertising business ranks near the bottom of the scale.

At the 4As' annual meeting last year in Palm Springs, Calif., industry leaders decided to remedy the problem not by making any substantive improvements in their work but instead by mounting a campaign to refurbish their image.

That effort was to include (what else?) a national advertising campaign, a program of visits to college campuses and a hypocritical search for "serious abuses" in political advertising during the 1984 campaign.

4As members zealously monitored campaign advertising in approximately 400 metropolitan areas. Nobody, however, maintained surveillance over the commercials for indigestion remedies, laxatives, mouthwash or dishwashing detergents.

The column is finished and the cliché about the pot and the kettle has been avoided — but there's always "people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones."

Apopka Tops Overconfident Altamonte

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO — Hold everything World Series enthusiasts of the Altamonte Junior League All-Stars. Don't mail those motel room deposits to Taylor, Mich. just yet.

District 14, which was the toughest level of competition for the Altamonte Nationals in their march to the Little League World Series last year, has thrown an Apopka-West Seminole hurdle in front of the much-anticipated fourth World Series appearance by the Altamonte league in three years.

Apopka-West Seminole, using a sterling three-hit pitching performance by Mark Gabrovic and an overconfidence fed by Altamonte's 72-6 scoring differential in the Division 2 tournament, dealt Altamonte a 5-3 setback Wednesday night in the opening game of the District 14 finals at the Rolling Hills Little League complex before 400 fans.

"We were overconfident," said Altamonte manager Kelly Wainscott. "We weren't ready. Apopka wanted it and they took it. I'm embarrassed."

Altamonte tries to even the series tonight at 7:30 at Rolling Hills. Wainscott said Aaron latarola will probably pitch. Apopka manager Phil King said he may go with ex-Altamonte star Jimmy Musselwhite, if his arm is ready. King said Musselwhite threw 118 pitches in Monday's Division 1 win over Rolling Hills. The other choices are his son, Brett King, or Tim Kreer.

Altamonte, which waltzed through the Division 2 tournament with four straight wins, sprung a leak defensively Wednesday with six errors which spoiled a creditable pitching performance by Chris Radcliff.

Gabrovic took full advantage. Relying on an effective curveball, he continually kept Altamonte off stride. He was especially effective over the final three innings when he didn't allow a hit and retired nine of the final 11 batters.

"I knew we could beat them," said Gabrovic. "We're a lot better than people think I just moved the ball around. We knew Radcliff was hot. I just tried to keep the ball in on him so he couldn't extend his arms."

Radcliff, though, wasn't as sharp as usual on the mound as eight walks littered his performance which included 10 strikeouts. "They were just too small," he said of Apopka's No. 7 and 9 hitters Robert Brown and Scott Castaldo. "I couldn't find their strike zones."

Radcliff walked both three times each. The third walk to Castaldo in the bottom of the sixth led to Apopka's breaking a 3-3 deadlock with its final two runs.

Castaldo drew his third walk to open the sixth. Gabrovic, whose brother Matt played football at Lake Brantley High School, followed with a bunt in front of the plate. Catcher Danny Hendricks pounced on the ball but bounced his throw into center field in an attempt to get pinch runner Roscoe Griffin. When the throw eluded center fielder Jerrey Thurston, Griffin went to third. Gabrovic immediately stole second.

King, the No. 2 hitter, was next but Radcliff reached down and struck him out. The big left-hander did the same to lefty Greg Thomas for the second out. With Musselwhite at the plate, however, Hendricks let a low fastball slip past him for a passed ball and Griffin streaked home for a 4-3 lead. A wild pitch scored Gabrovic for a 5-3 edge.

Gabrovic, a shrewd left hander, received a great play from center fielder Robert Brown to open the seventh, issued a walk and then retired the final two hitters to end the game.

Jason Vartek, whose third-inning double was one of three Altamonte hits, crushed a long drive to center to open the frame. Brown broke immediately and made a splendid over-the-shoulder catch to take away a sure extra-base hit.

"That kid (Brown) played a great game," said Wainscott. "Gabrovic pitched a heckuva game, too, but that kid took away two of our big innings."

The other came in the first. Vartek walked but was picked off by Gabrovic. Wainscott took a called third strike but Radcliff, who had 10 hits in 11 at bats entering the game, drew a walk. He, too, was picked off by Gabrovic but he scrambled to second when Thomas dropped the ball. When Thomas threw past second, Radcliff went to third.

"Obviously, Mark has a great move," said King about his lefty who struck out five and walked six. "He caught those two guys (Vartek) by a mile."

Thurston, who was battling an 0 for 11 slump, followed with a smash to left center. Brown again broke with the bat and snagged the liner as he dropped to his knees to take away the run.

Musselwhite Wants Ball

ORLANDO — The team and league have changed but Jimmy Musselwhite remains the same. He wants the ball and the starting assignment.

Apopka-West Seminole's 13-year-old right-hander, who pitched the Altamonte National League All-Stars to a second-place finish in the Little League World Series last year, said he's not worried about pitching on three days' rest.

"I'll be ready to pitch Thursday," said Musselwhite Wednesday night after Apopka upset some of his ex-Altamonte teammates, 5-3, in the first game of the District 14 Junior League tournament finals. "We'd like to win tonight and not play a third game."

Musselwhite said he didn't have any strange feeling about playing against seven of his former teammates. "I didn't want to beat them any more or less," he said. "But it will be a great feeling if we can beat them again tonight."

The smooth-throwing right-hander threw 118 pitches as Apopka whipped Rolling Hills Monday for the Division 1 title. Manager Phil King said he was unsure Wednesday on whether Musselwhite would pitch.

"We'll have to see how Jimmy feels," said King. "I don't think the fact that we won tonight changes my pitching plans any. I don't want Jimmy to throw Thursday if there's any soreness."

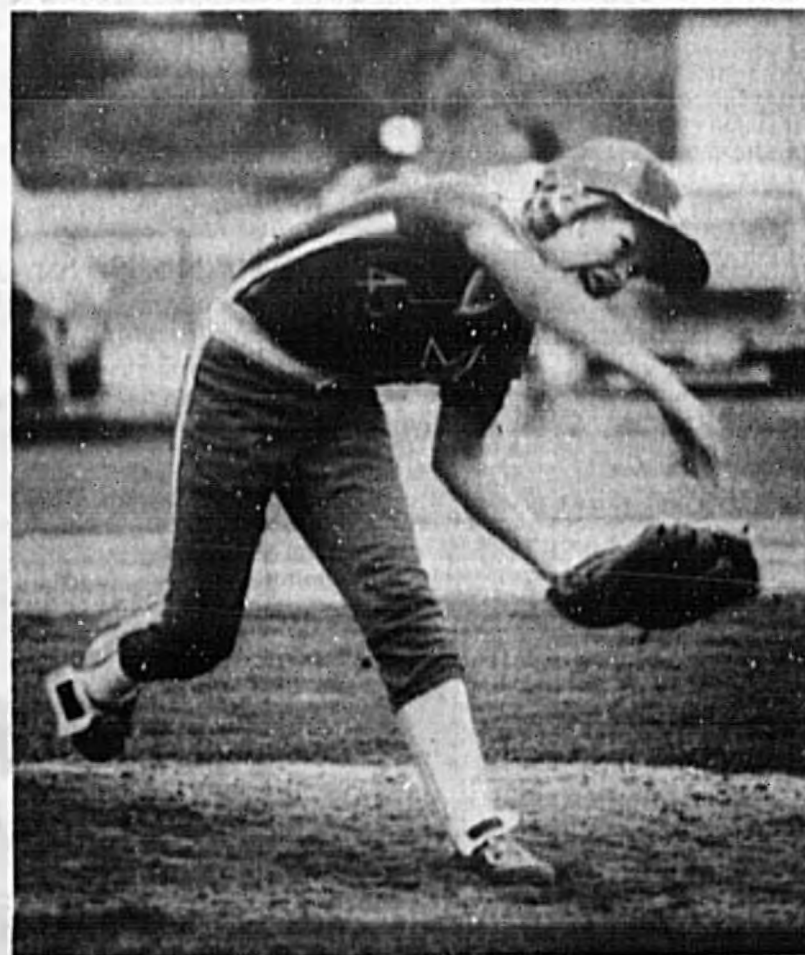

Musselwhite said he didn't think there would be and he was ready to throw. "We beat Chris (Radcliff) and no one they have is going to throw any harder than him," said Musselwhite. "If we can hit him, we can hit most anybody they have."

Chuck Lamb grimaces and fires. "Lambo," like his namesake in the movies ("Rambo") was a one-man wrecking crew for the Altamonte Americans Wednesday night. "Lambo" hurled a four-hitter and drove in four runs as Altamonte clinched a spot in the District 14 finals against Ocoee with a 5-2 victory over Oviedo.

'Lambo' Shows Americans The Way By Oviedo

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

DELAND — While Sylvester Stallone is cashing in at the box office as Rambo, the new American hero, the Altamonte Major Americans had a one-man wrecking crew of their own Tuesday night.

Call him "Lambo." Chuck Lamb tossed a four-hitter and drove in four runs from his No. 8 spot in the lineup as Altamonte downed Oviedo, 5-2, for the District 14 Division 2 championship.

The Americans advance to the District 14 final tonight at 7:30 in Winter Garden against Ocoee. The game was originally scheduled for Friday but moved up since both teams won the division early.

Since neither team has a loss in division play, it will be the best 2 of 3 series. The winner of district advances to the Section 1 tournament beginning July 22 at Winter Garden.

While Lamb did the job on the mound and at the plate, the Altamonte defense played a flawless, often spectacular ballgame. Second baseman T.J. Guiffrida turned in numerous outstanding plays and shortstop Eddie Howard also played an excellent defensive game behind Lamb.

"Chuck (Lamb) did the job for us tonight," Altamonte manager Mike Morro said. "He pitched another great game and came up with two key hits."

Morro was also impressed with the defensive play of the Americans.

"I don't know if we would have won without the defensive game we played," he said. "It's tough to score on us when we play defense the way we did tonight."

Oviedo had a big chance to score in the top of the first turned away by Altamonte's defense. With runners on second and third and two outs, David Blanton hit a rocket toward Howard at shortstop. Howard gloved it cleanly and threw on to first for the third out.

"That was a big play," Morro said. "He came up with a hot shot like it was nothing. If the ball would have gotten through, it would have been a big inning for Oviedo."

Altamonte came back to take a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first without the benefit of a hit.

Baseball

Guiffrida coaxed a walk out of Oviedo starter Russell Davis and took second on a wild pitch. Davis then struck out the next two hitters but Guiffrida scored when "Downtown" Terry Brown reached on an error.

Lamb retired Oviedo in order in the top of the second and came back with two runs in the bottom half. With one out, Chris Koepeke drew a walk and Lamb then stepped up and smacked a two-run homer to right center for a 3-0 lead.

Davis then walked the next two hitters and, with two outs, walked Jared Soto to load the bases. After throwing one ball to Brown, Oviedo went with Shelley Elliott in relief. Elliott, a crafty southpaw, got out of the threat when he dangled a curveball on the outside corner for a called strike three.

Elliott led off the top of the third with a bunt single and went to second on an error on the play. Altamonte's only error of the game, Lamb then reached back to retire Oviedo's next three hitters, its 1-2-3 hitters, in order to strand Elliott at second.

Elliott set Altamonte down in order in the bottom of the third and Oviedo came back with two runs on two hits in the top of the fourth. With one out, Marvin "Bubba" Fore drilled a single to left center. Blanton then deposited Lamb's first offering over the fence in right center to pull Oviedo within 3-2. Lamb kept his composure despite the tater and came back to strike out the next two hitters to end the inning.

After Elliott pitched out of a slight jam in the bottom of the fourth, Guiffrida put on a defensive clinic at second base in the top of the fifth.

Elliott drew a walk to lead off the inning but Dana Allen lifted a pop fly into shallow right field. Guiffrida made the catch near the first base line and, when Elliott tagged at first and broke for second, he threw a perfect strike to Howard for the double play. Danny Phillips then hit a soft liner toward right field but Guiffrida made a diving stab to end the inning which turned out to be Oviedo's last chance to score.

Connors Answers Critics With Sweep Of Eriksson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Connors is tired of hearing that he should think about retirement.

"Don't rush me out of the game. I enjoy it," said Connors Wednesday after dispatching pesky Swede Stefan Eriksson, 6-3, 6-4, in the second round of a $200,000 clay court tournament.

"I'm not in any hurry," added Connors. "When I can't wake up and go out there and win matches like that today, then I'll stop."

Connors, 32, said, "I'm not going to hang around to be a first round casualty 9 out of 10 times. I'm not used to that and I don't want that to happen. Instead of adjusting to that, I'd rather adjust to business life."

"I'm not worried about (retiring). Why should you?" added Connors, who slipped to No. 4 in the world in the latest computer rankings.

"I enjoy what I do for a living. And I don't think a lot of people can actually say that," the five-time U.S. Open and two-time Wimbledon champion said.

The Florida left-hander's last previous match was a straight sets debacle against hard-serving Kevin Curren in the semifinals at Wimbledon.

Eriksson was a qualifier in the Washington tournament. "It's difficult to play somebody you've never seen play before and you haven't played before," said Connors. "He made me hit a lot of balls and he made me work hard."

"He's a good player already, but he's going to get better," Connors said of his 6-foot-4 opponent. Eriksson turned professional last August and is ranked 187th.

"He's big and strong and he moves well (and) hits his ground strokes well. He plays like most of the Swedes play, which is good baseline playing."

Andres Gomez, the tournament's No. 2 seed, was ousted in three sets by Peru's Pablo Araya in a match that ended shortly before midnight EDT.

Gomez, who has suffered a spate of injuries since winning the Washington clay court event last year, said: "It's been a pretty tough year in every way. I haven't played well and I was injured for two months and tried to come back and was injured again."

Wednesday saw six of the tournament's 16 seeds beaten, including injury-slowed Jimmy Arias of Buffalo, N.Y. (No. 7), Victor Pecci of Paraguay (No. 9) and Paul McNamee of Australia (No. 14).

Winners on the day included No. 3 seed Yannick Noah of France, who slipped by two-time NCAA champion Mikael Pernfors of Sweden, No. 5 Aaron Krickstein, 17, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

Zoeller: Weather Will Decide Open Champ

Fuzzy Zoeller intently studies his next shot at last year's Bay Hill Classic.

SANDWICH, England (UPI) — Fuzzy Zoeller, the 1984 U.S. Open champion, thinks the weather could virtually decide who will be the British Open champion, as it did the last time the tournament was played on on Royal St. George's links.

Most of the 153 players are worried about changeable weather handing a lucky few good breaks and ruining the chances of the rest.

In 1981, American Bill Rogers won the Open, aided by what he admitted were the beat of the generally poor weather conditions.

"The guy who gets the lucky tee times this week will do okay," Zoeller said as he headed out to practice on the par 70 course Wednesday. "I think fair weather will be the key to deciding the championship."

Defending champion Seve Ballesteros, who won the British PGA Championship on this course two years ago, even went as far as to suggest that steps should be taken to even out the effects of the weather.

"It could be a tremendous advantage to play in the morning rather than late, or it could be the other way round. I think we should have two tee (start) points," he told a press conference after his final practice round.

None of the international trio that sets the annual golf extravaganza on the road — Britain's Jeffrey Hall, Michael Cahill of Australia and Sweden's Ove Selberg — should make much of an impact on a tournament that includes Ballesteros of Spain, Americans Tom Watson, Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino and West Germany's Bernhard Langer among its 153 entrants.

The favorites face an irritating wait before starting their challenges.

Lee Trevino is the first of the favorites due on course, at 10:20 a.m. closely followed by Watson, 35, who has won this event five times.

Americans Lanny Wadkins and Zoeller have tee times after 1 p.m., Greg Norman, Andy Bean and Bernhard Langer won't start until after 2 p.m., and Nicklaus will be kicking his heels until 3:20 p.m. before starting his bid for a fourth Open title.

Weather aside, the 28-year-old Ballesteros is quite confident of his chances to defend the title.

"I feel like I hit the ball very well off the tee," he said. "My tempo's been very good for the last few weeks. I feel a lot more relaxed than before other Opens."

Brief details of his practice round offered little comfort for his rivals here. The 8-foot Spaniard hit every drive straight down the fairway and mostly was on target with his green approaches, suggesting he dealt admirably with the wind.

Cardinals Peddle Allen

New Yankee Hopes To Emerge From Shadows

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals have given Neil Allen a chance to emerge from the shadows of Keith Hernandez and Bruce Sutter.

The Cardinals Wednesday dealt the seldom-used reliever to the New York Yankees for a minor-league player to be named later.

After coming to St. Louis with great fanfare in the June 1983 deal for Hernandez, the Cardinals have practically given Allen away.

The 27-year-old right-hander is 1-4 with two saves — none since April 20 — and a 5.59 ERA. He appeared in just six games and pitched only 8 2-3 innings since May, including a start in Pittsburgh when he was shelled in a 13-2 defeat.

Allen believed St. Louis fans blamed him for the loss of the popular Hernandez. He was also under pressure when Sutter went to Atlanta as a free agent before this season.

St. Louis has rid itself of a contract in which Allen will earn $750,000 this season, $900,000 next year and $1,260,000 in 1987. The Cardinals reportedly agreed to pay an average of $400,000 each year of Allen's salary.

"It was just one thing after another," Allen said at Lambert Field as he prepared to leave St. Louis Wednesday. "I couldn't bounce back, I was at a mental standstill in St. Louis."

Baseball

Allen, who lives in New York, asked to be traded.

"I wanted him, asked for him and think he will be of great help to us in our stretch run," Yankees manager Billy Martin said.

Allen said Martin told him he would gradually work his way into the staff before becoming a short reliever with left-hander Dave Righetti returning to the starting rotation.

Allen, who showed up in a Yankees cap in the Cardinals' clubhouse before Sunday's game, is expected to be in full uniform Thursday when the Yankees open a four-game series in Minnesota.

Allen collected 67 saves from 1979 to 1982 with the Mets but became a starter in St. Louis because the Cardinals had Sutter in the bullpen. Allen had a 10-6 record and a 3.70 ERA in 1983. He returned to the bullpen last year and was 9-6 with a 3.55 ERA and three saves.

On opening day, Allen gave up a game-winning homer to Gary Carter of the Mets in the 10th inning. The next day he issued a bases-loaded walk.

Big 'If' Falls Over Major-League Races

United Press International

One word describes the pennant races shaping up in the second half of the major league baseball season.

It.

The spectre of a players' strike has darkened the prospects for some intriguing races.

The warring factions will meet Thursday to attempt a breakthrough. But if there is insufficient progress over the next three weeks, baseball could disappear into the summer haze Aug. 6 — the strike deadline set by the players.

For several teams, the All-Star Game was an unwelcome break in momentum. In the two weeks before the break, the two hottest teams in baseball belonged to New York.

The Mets finished their first half with the most successful road trip ever, winning 10 of their last 11 games. The offense, dormant in June, finally bolstered the steady pitching. Dwight Gooden, 13-3, has actually improved on his Rookie of the Year form of last season, and Ron Darling, 9-2, and Ed Lynch, 7-5, have won their last three starts.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who surprised the National League East by storming past the Mets, Cubs and Expos for the lead, gave ground grudgingly to the Mets, winning 13 of their last 17 games. St. Louis holds a 2 1/2 game lead.

Joaquin Andujar, 15-4, is off to his best start. Danny Cox is 11-4 and John Tudor 10-7. Willie McGee and Tommy Herr have battled for the batting lead and rookie Vince Coleman has become a terror on the basepaths.

New faces on the Expos like Hubie Brooks and Mike Fitzgerald have eased the loss of Gary Carter. Bryn Smith is 10-3 and reliever Mike Reardon has been impressive for Montreal, which is 3 1/2 games back. Injuries have decimated the Cubs, 7 1/2 back.

In the American League East, the Yankees have become the juggernaut they perennially threaten to become. Ron Gaudry, 12-3, is beginning to resemble his Cy Young Award year of 1978. Rickey Henderson is instant offense and the middle of the lineup is scary.

The Toronto Blue Jays are still up by 2 1/2 games but went 8-7 in their last 15 games before the break. After Dave Steb, 9-5, the starting pitching is suspect, and too many starters have played without rest because of a weak bench. Detroit is 3 1/2 back and Baltimore 7 1/2.

Baseball

In the NL West, the Los Angeles Dodgers have overtaken the defending champion Padres by a half game, winning 12 of their last 15. Pedro Guerrero has lit the fuse with a record home-run tear in June. The offense has finally given Fernando Valenzuela, 10-8, a fighting chance.

Aside from LaMarr Hoyt, 12-4, the Padres' starting rotation has soured. San Diego has won three of its last 10 games, giving third-place Cincinnati new heart.

The AL West is sad, but the California Angels are crying all the way to the top. The Angels have lost just twice in their last 13 games and their six-game lead is largest in club history. Ron Romanick is 10-4 and Donnie Moore has developed into the bullpen stopper.

At least one team might not mind a strike, though. The Cleveland Indians have a .326 winning percentage and are 24 games out of first place. Some things never change.

KITTLE DOWN FOR REHAB
CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago White Sox outfielder Ron Kittle, who is on the 15-day supplemental disabled list, is being sent to the club's Triple-A Buffalo affiliate on injury rehabilitation assignment, effective Friday, the team announced Wednesday.

Kittle has been suffering from a sore right shoulder since he collided into the left-field wall of Comiskey Park on April 20. He is eligible to come off supplemental disabled list Friday, a team spokesman said.

Rehabilitation assignment has a 20-day limit, but no minimum, the spokesman said.

Kittle was hitting .195 with eight home runs and 16 RBI in 49 games when he was injured, the spokesman added.

TORREZ CALLS IT QUIT
CLEARWATER (UPI) — Mike Torrez couldn't stare at the phone any longer.

A former 20 game winner in the majors now toiling for the Class A Miami Marlins, Torrez has been waiting for a call from a major-league executive interested in his services. On Wednesday night, the durable 185-game winner announced his retirement.

The 38-year-old right-hander will end a 20-year involvement with professional baseball with a Florida State

Jeff Reardon Ron Kittle

League start against the Clearwater Phillies Thursday night. Torrez is 7-7 with a 2.95 ERA in the FSL.

He leaves the sport a puzzled, frustrated man with a healthy right arm. Torrez pitched for seven clubs in his 15 years in the majors, winning 20 games with Baltimore in 1975. During a six-year stretch from 1974-79, Torrez won at least 15 games each season and he was 2-0 for the New York Yankees in the 1977 World Series. His lifetime record in the majors is 185-160 for more than 3,000 innings pitched.

"I'm proud of the career I've had," said Torrez.

Apopka, inspired by the play, immediately took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning. King drew a one-out walk and moved up on a passed ball. Thomas, who struck out four times against Radcliff, whiffed again but reached when Hendricks failed to catch the pitch and when Danny Albert couldn't come up with the throw, King came around to score for a 1-0 lead.

Musselwhite then reached on an error by Varitek at third. Kreer flew out to right field but Ryan Lance and Brown drew consecutive walks. Brown's free pass forced in the second run.

Altamonte cut the deficit in half in the second when Hendricks walked and stole second. Aaron Iafatola also walked. Albert followed with a ground ball to second baseman Castaldo but his throw went over the first baseman's head, allowing Hendricks to score and the runners to move to second and third.

Gabrovic then struck out Curt Prom and when Kent Brubaker laid down a safety squeeze, Iafatola was caught at the plate. Varitek flew out to center field to close out the inning.

An inning later, Altamonte took a 3-2 lead. Wainwright singled to right field and Radcliff doubled down the left field line for his eighth extra base hit in 13 playoff at-bats. Thurston walked on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases.

Hendricks followed with a groundball to shortstop Musselwhite who took the out at first while Wainwright scored to tie the game. Iafatola then lifted a fly ball to left field to bring home Radcliff for a 3-2 lead. Gabrovic induced a popout from Albert for the last out.

In the bottom of the fourth, Apopka pushed across the tying run but a chance for a big inning was erased by a great throw from Iafatola in left.

Castaldo walked and moved to second on a single to left center by Gabrovic. King bunted but Radcliff quickly threw to Varitek at third. His throw was a bit wide and sailed into left field. Iafatola back up and threw a strike to Hendricks to nail Castaldo at the plate.

Gabrovic came to third and King remained at first, which set the stage for manager King's "create-a-run" strategy. While Radcliff was in his stretch, the runner on first broke for second. Radcliff balked allowing Gabrovic to score for a 3-3 tie. Radcliff whiffed Thomas and Musselwhite lined out to center to end the inning.

"We work on that first-and-third situation all the time," said King, who previously coached baseball at Edgewater High School. "We call it create a run. We don't get a lot of hits but we stretch and claw."

"We believed all along we could beat them," Apopka-West Seminole made believers of Altamonte Wednesday night, too.

Black Little League Coach: Firing Racial

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — A Little League baseball coach who says he was dismissed because he is black will take his case directly to the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination, his lawyer says.

Attorney Joseph Vostl made the statement Wednesday after a Superior Court judge refused to reinstate David Williams.

Williams is the only black coach in the Pittsfield West Little League, which has no black players. The league's Board of Directors dismissed Williams June 13 for allegedly violating certain league rules and verbally abusing umpires.

Kelly Gets No-Hitter

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Bryan Kelly pitched a no-hitter Wednesday night to lead the Nashville Sounds to a 6-0 victory over the Oklahoma City 89ers in the American Association.

Before a crowd of 13,752 fans at Greer Stadium, Kelly ran his record to 6-7 in pitching the first no-hitter of his career.

The no-hitter was the first for the Sounds since the franchise joined the Triple-A American Association.

Altamonte added two runs on two hits in the bottom of the fifth for a 5-2 lead. Brown drew a walk to lead off and Kevin Morro then went in to pinch run. With one out, Howard lined a single to left and Koepke reached on an error to load the bases.

Lamb then came up and smashed a single past a drawn-in infield to drive in Morro and Howard.

Lamb came back to retire Oviedo in order in the top of the sixth as he got Craig Cozart on a long fly to center and struck out both Davis and Fore. For the game, Lamb recorded 10 strikeouts and walked just two.

Oviedo bows out of the tournament after winning five straight games in the loser's bracket.

"I've got a lot of respect for the Oviedo team," Morro said. "They came back like champs. They were very sportsmanlike and showed a lot of desire."

Morro was also quick to point out the work of his assistant coaches as a big factor for Altamonte's success. His assistants include David Scott, Mike Morro, Sr. and Pablo Abreu.

"They've done an excellent job," Morro said. "They push me and the team and give us a lot of drive and desire."

IN BRIEF

Evert Lloyd Loses Patience, Dispatches Cummings Quickly

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — After winning more than 1,000 pro tournament matches, Chris Evert Lloyd has lost her patience.

The winner of 16 Grand Slam singles titles needed just 41 minutes Wednesday to eliminate Kathleen Cummings 6-0, 6-1 in the first round of a $150,000 women's pro tennis tournament.

"My patience runs out faster the older I get," said Evert, 30, a 13-year veteran of the tour.

In other matches, No. 2 seed Pam Shriver eliminated Lisa Spain-Short of Moultrie, Ga. 6-4, 6-3, in a second-round meeting and No. 3 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, in her first match, won 6-3, 6-1 over Grace Kim, a 17-year-old from Ridgewood, N.J.

Using her precise groundstrokes, top-seeded Evert Lloyd carved up her first victim since losing the Wimbledon final. After, she explained her method of avoiding early-round losses.

"Concentration is my biggest asset. It's won a lot of matches for me. Now, if my mind starts to wander, I just tell myself, 'It's only for an hour or an hour and a half.'"

Wednesday's upset victims were No. 4 Kathy Jordan and No. 5 Alycia Moulton, the defending champion, Moulton, of Sacramento, Calif., lost her opening match 7-6 (9-7), 4-6, 6-4 to Lea Antonopolis of Glendora, Calif. Jordan, of King of Prussia, Pa., lost to Belinda Cordwell of New Zealand, 6-4, 6-3 in a second round match.

Central Michigan Sues UCF

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (UPI) — Central Michigan University has filed a lawsuit against the University of Central Florida in a dispute over a football game scheduled for Sept. 21.

The breach of contract suit was filed Monday in Federal District Court in Bay City before Circuit Court Judge James Churchill. He issued a summons that was received Wednesday by Central Florida.

Central Florida football coach Gene McDowell said his school does not want to play the game because it faces a $1 million deficit that must be repaid to the Florida Board of Regents.

Central Florida reportedly owes $400,000 by January 1986. By not going to Mount Pleasant and scheduling a home game instead, Central Florida said it can make more money for payments.

Mount Pleasant attorney Bill Shirley said if the game is not played, the suit requests damages in excess of $10,000, an injunction against Central Florida from playing another opponent Sept. 21 and that the Orlando school not be allowed to play more than 10 games during the 1985 season.

Bribery Case May Call Kirk

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Memphis State coach Dana Kirk could be subpoenaed as a defense witness in the trial of former Tulane University basketball star John "Hot Rod" Williams.

Lawyers for Williams filed a motion Wednesday at a pretrial hearing for their client asking that Kirk be subpoenaed to appear at the trial scheduled for Aug. 5. Williams is to be tried that day on charges stemming from a point-shaving scheme that led to the cancellation of Tulane's men's basketball program.

Kirk's testimony could be important because Tulane's home game with Memphis State on Feb. 20 is one of two college contests allegedly fixed in the scheme involving Williams, two of his teammates and four non-athletes.

Williams' request came one day after another figure in the case pleaded guilty to two counts of conspiracy to commit sports bribery and 10 counts of sports bribery.

Carr Names New Women's A.D.

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — University of Florida athletic director Bill Carr Wednesday announced the appointment of a new women's athletic director to replace Marilyn Weiss.

Ann Marie Lawler, associate athletic director in charge of women's athletics at the University of Alabama for the past 11 years, was named assistant athletic director of women's athletics.

"We are pleased to announce that Ann Marie Lawler has accepted our offer to serve as assistant athletic director for women's athletics," Carr said. "She brings with her a wealth of experience, having served as primary women's administrator at Alabama for the past 11 years."

Lawler said she wished she could "come on board" immediately, but indicated she had some other obligations at Alabama and would not arrive until later this year.

Parker's 3 RBI Pace Osceola, 6-2

DAYTONA BEACH — Bob Parker chased home three runs with a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly and the Osceola Astros used a strong mound performance by Jeff Mallicoat to upend Daytona Beach, 6-2, in Florida State League baseball at Daytona Beach.

Winter Haven, however, swept a double-header from Lakeland to pull within one game of Osceola in the FSU's Central Division. Osceola returns to Daytona Beach tonight for a 7:30 game.

Clay Shuts Off Chattanooga, 6-1

CHATTANOOGA — Danny Clay scattered six hits while Greg Morhardt homered and Mark Funderburk drove in two runs as the Orlando Twins knocked off Chattanooga, 6-1, Wednesday night in Southern League baseball.

Orlando, which plays at Chattanooga again tonight, pulled within one game of Charlotte in the Southern League's East Division. Clay, 9-4, went the distance, striking out one and walking two.

Livewell Is Fisherman's Best Friend

Understanding a boat's livewell system, its many uses, and what makes it work properly is becoming more and more important to fishermen.

Conservation is a big issue among most fishermen. They see how a livewell can keep a fish alive for later release, which avoids wonton waste.

Most boat manufacturers install livewell systems during construction. Livewells consist of a box-like container that holds water drawn from the lake or river. Some livewells have pumps which draw the water from the lake and circulates it and then returns it to the lake. Some livewells have pumps contained inside and simply agitate the water inside the livewell.

Bass tournament fishermen discovered long ago the need to return fish alive at the end of a tournament. Bass fishermen are not the only ones using livewells. Panfishermen have found keeping the fish alive until they are ready to be cleaned keeps the meat fresh. Live bait fishermen have found livewells are an excellent way to keep minnows and shrimp lively during hot, humid days.

FISHING/HUNTING WRITER
Larry Williams

Here are some pointers that might help keep those fish in the livewell fresh during the extremely hot weather:

- All livewells should be insulated. The sun can heat up livewell water very quickly. Add small amounts of ice to the livewell water to help keep it cool.
- Don't overcrowd fish in a livewell. Keep fish calm. Over-aerating or allowing too much sunlight will get fish excited and cause more stress.

• It is best to have the pump on a timer so that it can run only for a couple of minutes at a time. Periodically clean the impeller of the pump.

• The livewell should be included when the boat is bought. But if a fishman has a boat without a livewell, he should install one and can do so inexpensively. The important things to remember are to do it right and use it properly. It will make the sport of fishing better for the fisherman and the fish.

Dell Abernethy, owner of the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp, says he always stresses keeping the fish alive and penalizes his Buddy Bass Tournament fishermen for any dead ones they catch in the tournament.

"Our aim is to return all the fish to the river after the catch," says Dell. "We lose some of them because of the heat but we don't come up with too many dead ones. The guys do a good job of keeping them alive."

Texas Preps Take It Easy

United Press International
A significant number of Texas' best high school football players plan to take easier classes this fall to avoid falling victim to the state's controversial "no-pass, no-play" eligibility rule, according to a survey conducted by a statewide football magazine.

Of 205 students responding to the poll by Texas Football magazine, 78 — 38 percent — said they planned to take easier classes this season. And of the 78 coaches responding to the survey, 67 expect at least some of their players to follow that plan.

"When it comes down to a chance of missing a sport you really like, the smart thing to do is change your schedule," said defensive lineman Terry Price of Plano, a Dallas suburb. "It's a chance you've got to take."

The no-pass, no-play rule, which was passed by the Texas Legislature in 1984 and upheld as constitutional last week by the Texas Supreme Court, requires students who fail at least one course with a grade under 70 to be suspended from extracurricular activities for six weeks.

Not surprisingly, the rule was universally unpopular among the 205 players and 78 coaches who responded to the survey.

County Sues Firm Over Sewer Main Installation

Pump breakdowns caused by excessive pressure in what the Seminole County claims is an improperly installed sewer main has prompted the county to sue the company that installed the line.

Seminole County, through the South Seminole and North Orange County Wastewater Transmission Authority, filed suit Tuesday against Paul H.

Howard Co., of North Carolina and Insurance Company of North America which guaranteed the company's work.

The county is seeking unspecified damages and punitive damages in excess of $5,000. The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. No trial date has been set.

—Deane Jordan

...Fees

Kirchhoff said the fees are based on the amount of traffic each new structure will generate on the county's roads and highways.

In response to a complaint two weeks ago from John Wright of the Homebuilders of Mid-Florida that the estimated 10 trips per residential unit per day is based on traffic in Chicago, Kirchhoff said estimates for traffic generation in Florida are more than 11 trips per day per housing unit. Kirchhoff told staff a week ago to use the correct estimated figure for Florida in computing the fees.

There is no estimate of when the set of permanent fees will be ready for commission consideration.

At the workshop with Wright, Hooper made it clear that the voluntary commitments from developers of funds for impacts on schools, police and fire protection and donation of road right-of-way will also continue in addition to the fees for transportation.

The impact fees for roads are expected to generate more than $20 million over a 10-year period to match the expected $20 million in revenues from the county-imposed 4 cents per gallon gasoline tax and the new 2 cents per gallon gasoline tax expected to be levied by the county within the next few weeks, Sellers and McCollum said.

Wright said the fees would be devastating to the homebuilding industry.

firefighters with paramedic training for fire station no. 2 and promote two firemen there to the rank of lieutenant.

Chapman, who presented the four male commissioners with cigars and Commissioner June Lormann with a red rose of Tuesday night's session, lost a few and won a few in trying to defend his $1,334,033 in budget requests as compared to the $1,297,247 fire department proposal drawn up by the finance director. Chapman objected to having three items he had not asked for being included in his budget and "inflating it". They were payments, principal and interest on three fire trucks and repayment to South Seminole Hospital for $10,000 given the city toward the purchase of a fire truck for a total of $97,652. Chapman said $10,000 from the hospital had never been in his account.

Paramedics receive $2,100 incentive pay on top of the regular salary. Out of 23 fire department employees (including an administrative secretary) nine now with paramedic training including the chief and the battalion chief. The three new paramedics will make 12. In addition to their other duties, everyone except the secretary fights fires, Chapman said.

A truck there will be fitted with Advanced Life Support equipment for emergency calls, but if transport is necessary, the department's ambulance will still have to respond from the main fire station on West Warren Avenue.

Cut from his budget requests was an extension on fire station no. 1 that would put the extension ladder truck under shelter. Since the commission wants to sell the extension truck, they decided the expansion would not be necessary.

The commissioners agreed to give the fire department $4,475 for additional office equipment and $15,000 for a van and a pickup.

The chief said the roof of four-year-old fire station 1 needs repairs. The roof is leaking in the chief's office and in the bay where pieces of ceiling are falling down. During recent rains, Chapman said water flooded in through the bay all the way to his office door.

The station is also inundated with insects and rats, but the commission fixed funds for exterminators.

Chapman said he needed the extra firefighters to assure there are six persons working each shift, which he said hadn't been the case since the new station opened because he is often short a person because of vacations or illness.

When it is necessary to transport someone to the hospital in an emergency the state requires three paramedics in the ambulance.

Also penciled in on the budget is a five percent pay raise for Hughes, which is contingent on state approval. His current salary is $54,201.

"The budget is rather tight," said Carey Farrell, assistant superintendent for business and finance who spent the weekend at the schoolboard's office working on the budget.

Farrell said any problems the school board members have with the budget will be explained and straightened out by his staff.

At the public hearing, school board members as well as the public can question any part of the budget. He said the board will go over each part of the budget item by item.

"I don't know of anybody who didn't get along with with Dan. He was very pleasant, very cheerful and always seemed to have a smile," she said.

"Nobody expected it," Mrs. Headrick said.

Workers at the business were stunned Wednesday when they learned Donnelly died. During rescue efforts at the scene, one coworker sagged against a work truck and sobbed while the rescue workers tried to revive Donnelly.

Tom Brown III, owner of the apartment Donnelly was working on, was not home but went to the scene after being informed of the incident.

"It breaks my heart — I've never seen much death in my life and it shook me up a lot," Brown said.

Melnick-Jernigan Vows Spoken

Mary Beth Melnick of Altamonte Springs, and David Karl Jernigan, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, were married at Sanlando United Methodist Church, Longwood, on June 29, at 2 p.m. The Rev. James E. Ulmer performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Norbert W. Melnick, 439 Abell Road, California, Md. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Belton K. Jernigan, 119 Pinecrest Drive, Sanford.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose for her vows an ivory organza gown layered over net and taffeta. The fitted lace bodice, accented with sequins and pearls, formed a low lace-trimmed V at the front and back neckline. A silk rose accented the puffed sleeves. The flowing skirt gently cascaded into a sweeping cathedral train enhanced with scalloped lace. A Juliet cap, embellished with sequins and pearls, held her fingertip veil of imported illusion highlighted with pearls and lace medallions. She carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, white roses and peach rosebuds interspersed with natural foliage and baby's breath and showered with satin streamers tied in love knots.

Carole Townsend, Sulligent, Ala., attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a peach silk tea-length gown, Grecian inspired, with an off-the-shoulder ruffle forming a drop sleeve on one side. A sash was accented with a bow in the back and a cascade of gardenias surrounded by peach roses and rosebuds with natural foliage and long streamers tied in love knots.

Bridesmaids were Lee Ann Tarvin, Greenwich, Conn.; Kitty Hykoski, Deltona; and Teresa Kettner, Orlando. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

Clint Westbrook, Citrus Heights, Calif., served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Fred Melnick, Detroit, Mich., and Tim Melnick, Orlando.

Groomsmen were Robert Jernigan, Kensington, Md.; John Jernigan, Valrico, Fla.; and Brian Huffman, Loughman, Fla.

Following the ceremony the reception was held at at Orlando Naval Training Center Officers Club. Eileen Paul of Altamonte Springs kept the bride's book.

After a honeymoon in the Bahamas, the newlyweds are making their home in Coeur d'Alene where the bridegroom is employed as a special agent for the FBI. The bride is in a management position for the Crescent Department Stores, Spokane, Wash.

Teaching Kids To Be Overly Suspicious May Cause Harm

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from "Concerned Mom," who, while shopping with her 5-year-old daughter, encountered a friendly stranger offering a few coins to her child. "Concerned Mom" explained to the stranger that she was trying to teach her child not to talk to strangers or accept any gifts from them. She said, "He understood and walked away, but I know his feelings were hurt."

Abby, I know children need to be protected from people who would do them harm, but teaching them to suspect everyone they meet of evil intentions will do them more harm than good.

And how about the friendly child who strikes up a conversation with an adult? What are we supposed to do? Tell him to get lost? Or ask him if his mother hasn't told him not to talk to strangers?

Talking to strangers isn't dangerous. We are all strangers before we become friends. Let's not raise a generation of suspicious, paranoid youngsters.

PRACTICAL MOM

DEAR PRACTICAL: Children need to be taught "limits." It's all right to be friendly, but they never should accept gifts (candy, coins or anything else) from a stranger without first asking a parent or guardian if they may. Children should be taught that they absolutely may not go anywhere with a stranger. And prudent parents will never, never let a small child out of their sight while shopping.

DEAR ABBY: I took my kids to Disneyland last week. My little boy is 2½ years old and quick as lightning, so not wanting to lose him in a crowd, I put a harness with a leash on him. One woman passed me and said pleasantly, "That's smart, lady."

But my feelings were hurt by some of the other people who thought it was terrible. One ride attendant went, "Ari ari!" Then everybody laughed.

No way would I take the leash

Dear Abby

off that kid. I lost the oldest one for an hour in a crowded mall one time and I nearly went crazy.

Please print this, Abby, and put in a good word for us mothers who put harnesses on our kids. We don't like being laughed at or thought cruel.

CAREFUL MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm on your side. Don't let critical remarks from strangers upset you. The smart-mouthed "ride attendant" who said "Ari ari" should have been reported. If more little ones were "harnessed," there would be fewer missing children.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both in our middle 60s. He retired five years ago, and from that time on he started to act strange. He keeps all the blinds and drapes closed night and day. I am never allowed to open them. It's so depressing living in darkness. Our houseplants have all died from lack of light.

I am not allowed to invite anyone over. We have no friends anymore. The only time I talk to people is when I go to the shopping center. He doesn't even want me to talk on the phone. If anyone calls, he listens to every word I say.

What is wrong with this man? He never used to be this way.

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: Your husband's behavior is not normal. Living in darkness, refusing to socialize and extreme possessiveness are symptoms of a mental or physical illness. Please arrange for your husband to be seen by his physician as soon as possible, and tell the doctor what you have told me. Your husband needs evaluation and treatment immediately.

B-6 Not The Answer For PMS Depression

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been taking vitamin B-6 daily for about five months. I read that it helps reduce some symptoms of PMS, but I haven't really noticed any change. I still get very depressed about a week before my period starts. Am I wasting my money on this vitamin?

DEAR READER — You are wasting your money to use the vitamin for the purpose you describe.

When a blood-chemical called serotonin — which acts on the brain — is depleted, some women experience depression. Serotonin may be depleted by cyclic variations in estrogen, so pregnant women and those taking contraceptive pills may experience periodic "blues." Serotonin production may be low in the presence of B-6 deficiency. However, B-6 deficiency is exceedingly uncommon in the average American diet.

You won't be harmed by taking additional B-6, but if it hasn't helped your depression, you should examine other options. Some degree of depression affects almost every woman before her period. This is normal and ordinarily requires no treatment. If your depression is severe, an antidepressant might help.

Because the causes of premenstrual syndrome are not clearly understood and treatment is far from consistently successful, I'm afraid that most women with mild forms of the disease will have to wait for a universal antidote to become available. You may want to ask your gynecologist about your depression; perhaps he or she could further advise you.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What an inappropriate answer you gave to the 19-year-old girl who had inverted nipples! When a young woman is "different," it can have a traumatic effect on her self-concept as a female. Why not give her the information she requested? Tell her whether or not plastic surgery can be done and where she can get more information about the procedure.

DEAR READERS — I have received a number of letters from articulate women who have criticized my reply to the 19-year-old girl with inverted nipples. "Insensitive" was the kindest adjective applied to my answer. Since I don't intend to be insensitive to anyone who takes the time to write me a letter, let me reformulate my response. Plastic surgery can turn inverted nipples outward. Plastic surgeons are listed in the Yellow Pages, and any reputable one can explain the procedure.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It's always fun to see a lot of face cards and aces when you sort your hand. After all, bidding and playing the hand are more enjoyable than the grueling work of defense. Still there is a disadvantage in having too many face cards. You may be forced to lead out of your hand when you would much rather be in dummy.

South opened with an artificial strong two clubs and rebid two spades over North's negative two-diamond response. The two no-trump bid by North was a second negative response, but North then felt it right to correct South's three no-trump to four spades, a good choice.

West opened the club king, and all played low. Now a heart was played. Declarer won the king, played A-K of spades and then led the club queen. Meanwhile West was involved in the aforementioned grueling work of defense, which involves thinking.

He finally decided that declarer had started with three clubs, so he let South win the club queen. Declarer could get to dummy once, with the spade 10, to take the diamond finesse, but that wasn't enough.

To guarantee two entries to dummy so that diamonds can be led twice from the North hand, declarer needs to be alert at trick one. He must unblock the club queen on the first trick. Now an astute defender can no longer deny him passage to dummy with the clubjack.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JULY 19, 1985

Partnerships will play important roles in your affairs in the year following your birthday. Be careful, however, that new alliances aren't established that lead you to disregard relationships of long standing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It behooves you to give some serious thought today to how you intend to clean up old obligations you owe to different parties. Figure out a program. Major changes are ahead for Cancer in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail #1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't allow impetuous associates to coerce you into making important decisions late in the day. You might not be thinking as clearly as you should.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have a tendency to create problems for yourself today. If you keep this in mind, frustrations can be avoided.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It may be wise to avoid attending functions this evening where you could run into people with whom you've had disagreements. These matters are not yet resolved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today your ego could be more vulnerable than usual. Don't expect accolades from others if none are due.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of looking for the faults in friends today, try to focus on their good points. If you begin to criticize them, you won't like their response.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pala will resent it if you are too curious about their confidential affairs today. Don't probe for information where your questions are unwelcomed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Later in the day neither you nor your mate are apt to be too tolerant of one another. Should a disagreement arise, don't air it in public.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Pace yourself wisely today or you're likely to push both your mental and physical energies beyond their limits. Do fewer things, but do them well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Relax and don't take yourself or events too seriously today, especially social situations. If you get uptight, it'll spoil everyone's fun.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's best not to begin do-it-yourself projects around the house late in the afternoon. You might disrupt things more than improving them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you go out on the town this evening and make it a late night, don't try to recapture lost time by speeding home. Drive carefully.

Policewomen Pilot

Loretta Swit, left, and Tyne Daly star in "Cagney & Lacey," the original television movie dealing with the adventures and problems of two female police officers, to be rebroadcast at 9 p.m. Saturday on CBS, channel 6.

ABC Hires Ron Reagan As 'Entertainment Journalist'

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Reagan's son Ron has signed a contract to be an "entertainment journalist" for ABC television.

Reagan, 27, a former ballet dancer, "will be involved with a variety of entertainment programs and various services within ABC Entertainment," the network said.

"Ron Reagan is a young man who, over the past few years, has shown remarkable development as a journalist and a broadcaster," said Gary Pudney, an ABC vice president and senior executive in charge of talent for the entertainment division.

ABC spokesman Vic Ghidalia said the network had not yet decided what topics Reagan would report or what his first assignment would be.

ABC's news and entertainment divisions are separate and there were no plans for Reagan to work within the news division, a spokesman said.

The network said the agreement called for Reagan's "exclusive services as an entertainment journalist and reporter within a wide spectrum of ABC's television entertainment interests."

In the past, Reagan has written articles for magazines including Newsweek, Interview, Ladies Home Journal, Parade and Playboy, and has interviewed author Tom Wolfe, actor Jimmy Stewart, dancer Fred Astaire and former test pilot Chuck Yeager, the network said.

He also was a film critic for "The Source," a radio network, ABC said.

Reagan attended Yale University but left the school in his freshman year to pursue a career as a ballet dancer.

He enrolled at the Robert Joffrey Ballet School in New York and danced for two seasons with the Junior Joffrey II ballet before becoming a dancer with the senior troupe, the Joffrey Ballet Company.

In January 1983, he gave up his six-year effort to become a dancer and resigned from the company. Dance critics who had reviewed his work gave him favorable notices, but noted there was nothing particularly outstanding about his dancing.

You're Off To See The Wizard Of Oz

CHESTERTON Ind. (UPI) — The directions are simple: Take a trip over the rainbow, then follow the Yellow Brick Road to the Emerald City.

There, click the heels of your ruby slippers while repeating softly, "There's no place like home — There's no place like home." And quicker than the melting of a wicked witch, you'll be whisked away — to Porter County, Indiana.

Indiana? Whatever happened to Kansas?

"We've had a lot of people ask that question," admits Jean Nelson, owner and proprietor of The Yellow Brick Road gift shop and Wizard of Oz museum in Chesterton.

"We do have a town called Toto, Ind., not too far from here," Nelson adds by way of apology.

But no apology is necessary. The Oz museum is located in Chesterton rather than Dorothy's home state of Kansas simply because this is where Nelson is — and because she is simply one of the most committed Oz fans ever.

"The very first time I ever saw 'The Wizard of Oz' was in 1956, on television," she recalls. "I had never seen it in the movies."

It was just before Christmas, and I watched it with my three kids, ages 1, 2 and 3. It was just a real neat experience. We made a project out of waiting for it to come on every year. Now, I have five grandkids and I watch it with them."

A huge mountain to the forest of the surly, enchanted apple tree and from a Munchkin garden to the Emerald City.

There is movie memorabilia and autographed pictures of Garland, wicked witch Margaret Hamilton — who visited the museum before her recent death — and the other actors, including many of the Munchkins.

And there is even an Oz Day in Chesterton — this year's fourth annual event is Sept. 14 — with visits from surviving Munchkin cast members, a parade, displays in various stores and costume contests.

It just sort of mushroomed. I had no idea it was going to grow into this," Nelson says now. "I had no idea I would be in contact with people involved in the movie."

The recent release of the Disney movie "Return to Oz" has focused new attention on the original film and on the 85-year-old L. Frank Baum series of books on which both are based, Nelson said.

She delights in introducing the books to young visitors, many of whom know only about the movies. But, she finds, adults are just as interested.

"It's nostalgia," she said. "Old movies, old music, classical movies — I think people are trying to escape from Iran, hijackings and all this."

It's never too late to have a happy childhood. The whole store is sort of a grownup toy shop. It's a fantasy."

What began as a personal obsession became a business affair in 1978 when Nelson, now 53, decided on Oz as a theme for her new store and began by dashing yellow paint on the brick sidewalk outside.

Now, there's a huge Tin Woodsman in the front yard and a 16-foot, electrified, child's eye-level model of the Land of Oz.

There's a Yellow Brick Road that takes visitors through the story of the 1939 Judy Garland movie — from a witch's castle on Springs Road. Closed.
