Voters will decide in July

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners Tuesday night, as expected, formally ordered a referendum July 9 for a sales tax increase of one cent.

Seminole County voters will decide July 9 whether the sales tax should increase by a penny for the next 10 years to help pay for a $450 million road-building and improvement program. The balance of the program will be paid from construction impact fees and gasoline taxes.

Without the sales tax increase, county officials say the property tax will have to be increased to pay for the road program, which is in part needed to meet state population-to-service requirements. Without the increase, commissioners would face a $106 million deficit during the next five years to meet the state mandate.

Five of the seven cities agreed to the plan which will allow the county to collect all of the $25 million from the tax instead of sharing it with the cities. Longwood and Oviedo commissioners failed to support the plan Monday night.

The tax would be collected on items costing less than $5,000.

Computer sends bills soaring

TAMPA — A computer glitch at the water department caused hundreds of incorrect bills to be sent out, including at least one for more than $1,000.

"I thought I was going to have a heart attack," Pam Chambliss recalled about opening her $1,045 bill. "I almost went into shock."

She wasn't alone. The city sent out between 200 and 300 erroneous bills last week.

Dave Tippin, director of the city's water department, blamed the mix-up on a new computer system.

Summer fun sign-up now

By MARK PAPPAS
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — While the Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Department is reaching the end of the regular sign-up time for its Summer Recreation Program, the registration time for Sanford's program is just about to begin and Longwood's summer program sign-up period is still a week and a half away.

The Lake Mary registration for residents is now underway, through Friday of this week, for the 8-week program to run from June 17 through August 9. Beginning Monday, May 13, persons living outside the city will be allowed to sign their children up.

The fee for the eight week program is $75 per child which includes registration, or for families who may not be available for the entire time period, they may pay $10 for registration and $20 per week, per child.

The age level of the children is 4 through 11. Activities will include organized team sports, arts & crafts, informal music and drama, special events and tournaments. Supervision will be done by a highly qualified staff.

All residents who live within the corporate limits of Lake Mary are eligible to enter their children until this Friday. Beginning Monday, persons living outside the city will be allowed to register their children in the program.

Parks and Recreation Director John Holland said, "We already have some people outside the city limits who have told us they are interested, and we'll be calling them beginning Monday." Holland said the limit on the number of children who will be signed up is 60. He expected however that there will not be that many from within the city.

County officials disagree over Lake Mary split

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Lake Mary voters may become political prizes during shifts in county commission districts this year.

Seminole County Commissioners Jennifer Kelley and Bob Sturm differ on which district should retain city voters.

"I've always considered Lake Mary a part of north Seminole County," Kelley, District 5 commissioner, said Tuesday. "I think a couple of Lake Mary precincts could go into my district."

"District 2 is a Lake Mary-Longwood, and now, Winter Springs district," District 2's Sturm said Tuesday. "I think Lake Mary precincts should stay in the district."

Kelley said Precincts 10, 84 and 26 might be shifted in District 5 to help balance the areas and straighten district boundary lines. Those three districts represent virtually all of Lake Mary's voters.

Sturm's suggestion would be to move the south Sanford precincts of 37 and 88 to Kelley's district along with Precincts 5 and 95 which includes portions of Oviedo.

Due to population growth during the last decade, the number of voters in the District 2, which includes Lake Mary and portions of Longwood and Winter Springs, have outpaced those in neighboring District 5, which contains all of north Seminole County including Sanford, Midway and Geneva.

To assure the districts are fairly even in size, District 5 stands to gain three or more voting precincts.

County recycling up; Sanford rate drops

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford recycling lagged behind every other city and section of the county in April, dropping its collection rate while the county as a whole posted a record month, a county report shows.

But the city's recycling official said the city can't confirm the figure.

"I don't know where they got those figures from," said Ken Knickerbocker, Sanford's recycling coordinator. "I haven't even compiled those figures yet."

According to figures released Tuesday by the Seminole County recycling office, countywide curbside recycling jumped from its three-month pattern of 700 tons per month to 950 tons in April. It was the highest rate of recycling by residents since the county began compiling countywide statistics last November.

Every city and county franchise garbage hauler recorded increases in collections except Sanford, which dropped from 74 tons of recyclables collected in March to 62 tons in April, according to the figures. The county must reduce the amount of garbage flowing to the county dump by 30 percent by 1994.

The county report shows most residents in the county increased recycling substantially. Unincorporated residents recycled 588 tons of glass, newspapers, aluminum and plastic in April, nearly a 50 percent increase from the 394 tons collected in March.

Lake Mary residents increased their recycling from 34 tons in March to 40 tons in April, an 18 percent increase. Longwood residents increased their recycling from 34 tons in March to 49 tons in April.

Play to close curtain on school

SANFORD — For those who long to experience drama in a vintage 1920s theatre in Sanford, a final opportunity will present itself on Friday and Saturday evenings in the auditorium of Sanford Middle School, 1700 French Ave. in Sanford.

The auditorium, built as part of the main building of the school in 1928, will come down when the facility is razed this summer to reveal a modern school which has been going up behind it.

"It's the last chance to see a show in this old auditorium," Dan Pelham, principal of the school, said this morning.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grade theatre students at the school will be presenting a production of "Murder at Coppersmith Inn" on Friday and Saturday evenings at 7 p.m.

Under the direction of Wanda Currie, a teacher in the gifted English program at the school, the play is an audience participation murder-mystery.

"The audience gets to guess who did it," Currie said.

Tickets for the final performances are $1 each.

They may be purchased at the door.

The building is scheduled to be demolished next month.

Sanford Middle School Principal Dan Pelham (far right) posed Tuesday for final portrait with the faculty.

Permitting made easier for TV, movie companies

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — To make Seminole County a more attractive location for movies and television programs, Seminole County commissioners created a "one-stop" permitting process for production companies.

The process will consolidate county permitting, reviews and scheduling of road closings to accommodate production companies filming in the unincorporated areas of the county. The film office of the Economic Development Commission of Mid-Florida will issue applications to production companies and then send the completed forms to County Manager Ron Rabun's office. Rabun will then coordinate county reviews and issue the permit.

"As we get increasing amounts of production companies coming up for more locations, this will be more in demand," said assistant county attorney Henry Brown. "Orange County has already seen a large increase in productions so we believe it is just a matter of time before we get more up here too."

Brown said the county has had an average of about a half dozen requests for filming permits annually.

The permits will require fees for county expenses to review applications and provide services. Those fees have not been determined, Brown said. Additional fees may be charged at a later date for use of county parks or recreation facilities.

Judge disqualifies himself from case

OCALA — A circuit judge disqualified himself from a robbery case involving Gainesville slayings suspect Danny Rolling after Rolling's attorney claimed the judge was biased.

Circuit Judge Carven D. Angel's move Monday came after he had been presiding over hearings on whether Rolling was competent when he pleaded guilty to a Sept. 7 robbery at a Winn-Dixie supermarket in Ocala.

Assistant Public Defender Tricia C. Jenkins, citing a transcript of the hearings, said Angel did not care if Rolling was competent because, in his opinion, there was overwhelming evidence of guilt.

"Somebody stuck a gun to the head of a Winn-Dixie manager, jumped over the counter, stole all the money and left," Angel is quoted as saying on the transcript. "He was immediately apprehended by the police and brought back, identified by the witnesses at the store and gave a taped confession."

Angel said he questions "the sanity of a legal system that's supposed to be in pursuit of justice that we've already spent a thousand dollars questioning whether this man is sane or insane."

Arbitration panel: account churned

MIAMI — A physician's widow won a $1.55 million award from an arbitration panel that ruled her Prudential Securities broker churned her account to collect more than $230,000 in commissions and sales charges fees.

"This is a message to the industry: Don't abuse the client or you'll pay not just the losses but a penalty, too," said attorney Michael Criden, who represented the Prudential client, Betty Shapiro, 74, of Hollywood.

She invested $1.3 million with broker Doris Edelman, who rapidly bought and sold mutual funds to generate the heavy fees, the three-member panel of the American Arbitration Association decided April 25.

"We do believe the decision is erroneous and will be overturned on appeal," Prudential spokeswoman Eleanor Mascheroni said Monday.

The award includes $1 million in punitive damages and $545,700 to cover Mrs. Shapiro's losses.

Shrimpers charged for netting turtles

JACKSONVILLE — Three shrimpers have been charged with trawling with turtle-excluder devices after sewing shut the opening that is supposed to let sea turtles escape, the Coast Guard said.

The three were charged with violating a federal law requiring all shrimp boats longer than 25 feet to have approved TEDs in state and federal waters between May 1 and Aug. 31, said Paul Raymond, a special agent with the National Fisheries Service.

"Before May 1, these guys would have been OK," said Coast Guard spokesman Jim Elbe.

Charged were John Floyd, 30; Richard Reynolds, 27; and Louis Martin Floyd, 22, all of Jacksonville. If found guilty, they face up to six months in prison and a $25,000 fine, Raymond said.

Homeless man clubbed to death

MIAMI — A man jumped out of a van and clubbed a sleeping homeless man to death in an apparently unprovoked attack, police said.

The suspect and two others in the light-colored van they were riding in escaped after the attack Tuesday, Miami police spokesman David Rivero said.

Green said other homeless people living under an Interstate 95 overpass witnessed the attack, and said the sleeping man had no apparent connection to the suspect.

"He was lying flat, down on the ground — he wasn't getting up to fight, or anything like that," Green said.

The suspect jumped out of the van, raised a stick or board, and brought it down violently on the head of the victim, who was sleeping on cardboard. Nothing was taken from the victim, whose identity was not immediately released.

The white or beige van had been seen previously in areas frequented by the homeless, said Rivero, but it was not known if the occupants had attacked anyone else or why they attacked the man.

Beach buns banned

NEPTUNE BEACH — Revealing your buns on the beach in this North Florida town could land your fanny in jail.

The Neptune Beach City Council has decided to enforce the state's public nudity law by citing anyone who wears G-string bikinis or T-hong swimwear on the city's beach. The misdemeanor is punishable by up to a year in jail.

Vanya Gwaltney has been after the City Council to ban the swimwear since last summer, when similar rules were adopted for state parks.

"I get real aggravated with people who show their butts in front of my children, and then run for cover under the First Amendment," she said.

State investigates Southern Bell

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Separate state investigations have been launched into Southern Bell's handling of customer trouble calls and failure to issue rebates when telephones are out for more than 24 hours.

The Public Service Commission decided Tuesday not to back a staff recommendation that the state's largest telephone company be fined $66,000 for its handling of trouble calls. Commissioners, however, said the utility may yet be fined some amount.

"It looks to me like something's been violated — we just don't know what," Commissioner Michael Wilson said.

The PSC staff recommended the fine after finding evidence that Southern Bell re-

It looks to me like something's been violated—we just don't know what.

—Public Service Commissioner Michael Wilson

peatedly failed to answer trouble calls from customers within the 30-second time required by regulations. The customer is supposed to be put in touch with a person ready to help within 30 seconds after the first ring.

Southern Bell, however, has installed an automated answering system in which a recorded voice directs the caller to touch telephone buttons to obtain various services. A live operator only comes on the line when the caller stops pushing buttons.

Allen Taylor, chief of the PSC telephone engineering section, said officials last week found that only 88 percent of the callers reached a live person within 30 seconds after no more buttons are pushed — and only 30 percent got through in that time when no buttons are touched at all.

Sometimes, Taylor said, the caller is into a "hold" queue before a person comes on the line, which can take a minute or longer.

"We would say that being placed in a queue is not satisfying the rule that you have a live representative ready to help you," he said.

Agents recover stolen Rubens masterpiece

By EDWARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Four Miami men were arrested after trying to sell a 17th Century painting by the Flemish master Peter Paul Rubens for $3.5 million to an undercover agent, U.S. Customs Service officials said.

The painting, "Aurora" was stolen from the La Coruna Museum of Fine Arts in Spain in September 1986 along with a second Rubens work, which was found the following year.

The four Miami men were arrested Tuesday and ordered held on bonds ranging up to $250,000 each, and an unidentified Nicaraguan collector is under investigation, said Timothy Wagner, second in charge at the South Florida Customs office here.

A confidential informant told Customs recently that the painting was for sale in Miami.

"Right from the beginning our informed source knew it was something very hot and very valuable," said Wagner.

"There was also discussion of a second piece — a Goya," Wagner said. But that deal was never made, and the painting hasn't been recovered.

"Aurora" also known as "Reason," apparently sat in a private collection until it was smuggled into the United States in a suitcase about a month ago, Wagner said. There is no indication the suspects in the current case were connected to the 1986 theft, he added.

Tax shortfall $105 million

By JACQUE NALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — With just two months left in the fiscal year to balance its $27 billion budget, Florida is facing another tax shortfall. The latest gap between collections and projections is $105 million.

Almost $72 million of the April shortfall came in corporate income tax.

"Corporate's a little erratic," Ed Montanaro, the Legislature's top economist, said. He said it was hard to distinguish between underlying economic weaknesses that could be causing the shortfall and legal tax avoidance through loopholes in the complicated tax law.

The corporate tax shortfall is a serious one-month problem but needs to be kept in context, Montanaro said. The economic forecast "doesn't look that bad," he said.

So far, however, the fiscal year that began last July has been a difficult one for the state — and there are only two months left to balance the budget as required by the state Constitution.

The most recent shortfall comes on top of three revisions in revenue expectations and two cutbacks in agency budgets in the past 10 months.

The last change in the tax forecast was made in March, when state economists adjusted the state's projected tax income by $163 million, for a total drop since July of $878 million.

April tax collections were $108 million below that third estimate, Montanaro said.

Prosecutors will use DNA samples from an aborted fetus in rape trial

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — Prosecutors hope DNA samples from an aborted fetus will help convict a man accused of raping a 13-year-old girl who babysat his children.

Broward County prosecutor Stanley Peacock will try to persuade jurors that DNA extracted from the 14-week fetus proves Ivor Henry was the father of the victim's baby — and the man who sexually assaulted her.

The trial was set to begin today before Circuit Judge Leroy H. Moore.

DNA, or deoxyribonucleic acid, is the basic biological code inside every human cell. Except for identical twins, no two people have the same DNA pattern.

Henry's trial on five counts of indecent assault marks the first time that results of DNA tests on a fetus will be used as evidence in a case in Broward County.

Henry is accused of sexually assaulting the 13-year-old girl who babysat his children from May 1989 through July 1990.

Hollywood police began investigating Henry after the girl's doctor told her she was pregnant. "Nobody suspected anything was wrong until then," Peacock told the Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale for today's editions.

The girl underwent an abortion and the fetus was taken to the Broward Sheriff's Office crime lab, where DNA analyst

George Duncan extracted tissue for DNA testing.

Duncan compared the fetus' DNA with DNA from Henry and the victim. The results were given to Dr. Martin Tracey, a Miami geneticist, who indicated in his report that there is a 99.9 percent chance that Henry is the father.

While DNA test results have been used on a number of occasions in recent years in South Florida to link suspects to semen, blood or hair found at crime scenes, extracting DNA from a fetus has been rarely done in sexual abuse cases, Duncan said.

"Police and prosecutors are now more in tune with the possibilities with using DNA from a fetus," Duncan said.

Bank regulator: Veto bill that lifts interest cap

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The top Florida bank regulator wants Gov. Lawton Chiles to veto a bill that would remove the cap on credit card interest rates charged by state-chartered banks.

Comptroller Gerald Lewis asked the governor in a letter Tuesday to veto the measure (CS-SB 2280), passed last Thursday on the final day of the legislative session. The veto would mean all of Florida's banking laws would expire Oct. 1.

Lewis said he requested the veto because the House of Representatives stripped the bill of many tougher enforcement provisions that would have protected consumers, but kept the provision favored by bankers that eliminated the current Florida credit card interest rate cap of 18 percent.

"So the bankers got relief, but the consumers didn't," Lewis said. "I think if you're going to do that, you should deal with pro-consumer issues that were in the bill as well."

The original bill was passed by the Senate three times. It would have broadened the comptroller's regulatory powers, improved appraisal standards for real estate loans and allowed public disclosure of reports on failed institutions.

"The deregulation of credit card interest rates is a legitimate policy question when considered in an overall context that includes tighter regulatory oversight," Lewis said. "Standing alone, it is unacceptable."

Chiles, in Miami to sign an Everglades cleanup bill into law, said he shared many of Lewis' concerns but had not yet decided whether to veto the bill.

"The comptroller is wanting to meet with me, and I will sit down with him," the governor said.

Without the bill, all of Florida's banking laws would expire or "sunset" on Oct. 1, leaving only federal authority in place. Should Chiles veto the measure, Lewis said there would be ample time for the Legislature to meet in special session to pass a revised measure.

A decade ago, Lewis said, then-Gov. Bob Graham vetoed a banking sunset bill because of objections to part of it.

"The truth is, the Senate wouldn't have any work to do at all on this," Lewis said. "This would just force the House to do what they were supposed to do during the session."

Rep. Art Simon, D-Miami, fought to lift the interest rate cap on state-chartered banks, saying it would make them more competitive with out-of-state banks. He also got the House to delay a review of banking laws until next year to give lawmakers more time to study bank regulation.

Home, at last Gulf veterans continue to return

By BOB PERRY/AP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although the number of service personnel returning from duty in the Persian Gulf War has diminished considerably since shortly after the war ended, the Sanford Desert Storm Family Support Group continues to welcome home new arrivals.

Support Group Chair person Judy Osborn said two servicemen, Specialist H.L. Marshall Jr. and Specialist 4 Anthony Desaladeon were greeted by members of the group Tuesday night, as they arrived at the Orlando International Airport.

"We're going anywhere we can to welcome them home," she said. "And we're enjoying every minute of it."

Osborn reported that recently a group of members went to Georgia in a motorcade to welcome home one serviceman. "He didn't make it because his plane had been grounded," she said, "but even then, the group still kept its spirits high."

Osborn said four Marine Reservists are also expected to arrive back in Central Florida within the next few days.

At this past Monday night's meeting of the Support Group, six returning service personnel were the guests of honor. All were members of the U.S. Marine Corps, who had served in various areas of the Persian Gulf war.

They included Lance Corporal Roger Johnson, Alan Andrews and Kevin Sims. Corporals Anthony Colwell and Larry Harris and Master Sgt. Robert Ward.

Each was presented with a plaque in appreciation of their service to their country.

The Desert Storm Support Group will be having a fund-raising bake sale this Saturday at the Sanford Wal-Mart store, to help raise money for the huge Welcome Home parade and picnic planned for June 18th.

Thanks for the picnic to be held at the American Legion Post 83, on Sanford Avenue, will be available during the fair.

Desaladeon, who is currently based in Germany, returned there recently from service in Saudi Arabia, and arrived for a vacation at his home in Sanford Tuesday night.

Following a month of vacation, he will be returning to Germany.

Andrews' wife, Tawanda and Son, Anthony Jr., reside in Orange City.

Johnson and Sims stay with families who have loved ones returning home from serving in the Persian Gulf war at the Sanford Herald, 282-8911.

Ex-officer ousted from police work

By VICKI BODENHEIM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Ex-Sanford police officer Joseph Lebanno, Jr. has been prohibited from working as a sworn law enforcement officer anywhere in Florida ever again.

Sentenced to five years probation on Monday by Judge Joseph Davis for grabbing and holding a woman against her will, Lebanno was also ordered to get mental health counseling.

"He had resigned a couple of months ago," Steve Harriett, Sanford's police chief said. "We have nothing to do with him any more."

Lebanno, 32, had been a Sanford police officer for about four years when he was arrested in December 1990 after an 18-year-old woman accused him of acting improperly during a routine traffic stop.

The woman told the investigators that when she did not have her driver's license with her at the time of the stop, Lebanno drove her to her home to get it.

She complained that he then followed her inside and grabbed her.

Lebanno pleaded no contest to the charges of false imprisonment and battery in March.

"It isn't unusual in a case like this that he had to give up his certification (to work as a law enforcement officer in Florida)," Harriett said. Lebanno could not retain that certification because he is now a convicted felon.

Neither Lebanno nor his attorney were available for comment on the sentencing.

Panthers, cougars aided

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Goals for the 1991 phase of the state's captive breeding panther program have been met with the capture of six kittens and the birth of the Texas cougars in captivity, state officials said Tuesday.

Three males and three females have been removed from the wild in northern Collier County and placed into captivity at White Oak Plantation near Yulee for rearing and eventual breeding, said Tom Logan, bureau chief for wildlife at the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

The sixth kitten, a female, was captured Monday.

Texas cougars bred at the White Oak Plantation gave birth to a litter April 28.

The captive breeding program for Florida panthers was delayed by a federal lawsuit filed by an animal rights organization. The group contended, among other things, that wild cats could not breed in captivity.

A new look

On paper, the four-part proposal drafted by Education Secretary Lamar Alexander to reform the nation's schools is easily the most ambitious plan for revitalizing American education in 25 years. The question, as with all such plans, is whether the Bush administration — and the nation — have the determination and imagination to implement it.

The proposal, formally unveiled by the president April 18, calls for increasing school accountability through national testing, to evaluate both schools and children, and through greater choice for parents in deciding where to send their children. In addition, it calls for the creation of "a new generation of schools" — experiments in different ways of managing schools, new forms of teaching, different calendars — anything that had seemed to work somewhere; for greater emphasis on adult education and job training; and, finally, for coordination of what someone called "the other 91 percent" — the nutritional, medical and social services that most affect a child's schooling.

Depending on how they are implemented, every one of those proposals makes good sense. Every one tackles pressing needs. And yet improvements are certain to be limited as long as there is no willingness to reinvest the billions of dollars that have been taken out of social services in the past 15 years. If the funds the administration intends to spend on adult education or innovative schools, for example, come largely from existing programs, the new proposals are likely to die from political controversy and/or starvation before they can prove themselves.

Alexander, former governor of Tennessee, has appointed David T. Kearns, chairman of Xerox Corp. as his second in command, and Diane Ravitch, one of the nation's most perceptive educational critics, as assistant secretary for educational research and improvement.

That's a team with promise. Alexander, who also served as president of the University of Tennessee, was a leader in school reform in his state, where he instituted, among other things, a merit pay system for teachers and successfully pushed for tougher graduation standards for students. Kearns, meanwhile, has been a strong voice in the business community for improved schools and educational standards. He's taking the new job even though it means an enormous pay cut — from something exceeding $1 million a year to $125,000 a year.

The most obvious part of the Alexander-Kearns effort will come in their ability to talk up reform around the country; at the least, the new proposals will give them a strong platform on which to speak. If American education can be reformed without large amounts of new money, they will do it. If they can't do it, it probably can't be done.

Pharmaceutical profit not bitter pill

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — They weren't talking much about the recession here at the meeting of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturer's Association (PMA). The pharmaceutical industry is the most profitable business in America. There is good news and bad news about that.

The bad news is that the corporate prosperity is derived, in part, from some consumer drug prices, which are perceived to be very, very high. Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., calls the PMA firms "robber barons" in a tone usually reserved for other kinds of drug kingpins. Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., says the drug lords can sometimes be "a greedy bunch."

Now hear the good news from Dr. Roy Vagelos: There will soon be a new drug to shrink enlarged prostates, eliminating much surgery. Coming later in the '90s will be drugs for osteoporosis, asthma, many kinds of cancer, depression, hepatitis, chicken pox, Alzheimer's and the common cold. By 1995, there should be a drug to halt the AIDS virus.

Vagelos knows whereof he speaks. He is a physician, biochemist, researcher and now chief of Merck, an incredibly successful company already working on many of those drugs.

So are Merck's competitors, big and small, pouring ever-bigger buckets of cash into research and development. Drug companies spent $3 billion on R&D in 1980. They spend $9 billion now. R&D as a percent of sales has gone from 12 percent in 1980 to 17 percent in 1990 — compared to 3 percent for all U.S. industry.

Why so much activity? Well, of course, they are humanitarians all. (Not a total job by any means.) There are now incredible new bio-technology techniques available. Oh, also: A big new drug can generate more than $1 billion dollars in sales. Per year.

And so, in 1990, the pharmaceutical industry's total return to investors was 19 percent, twice as high as the nearest competitor (beverages).

There are now incredible new techniques available.

The PMA says that without big profits there can't be new drugs, and that it costs $820 million to develop big drugs, some of which don't pan out. An apparently promising drug for Parkinson's also produced testicular cancer in laboratory rats. A few $230 million hits can drive a company out of the game.

Other parts of the medical establishment are also doing their thing: with prices, profits, products — and big human benefits. A magnetic resonance imager (MRI) can cost $3 million dollars. MRI pictures cost a patient about $700. But diagnosticists now see spinal cross sections that are breathtaking. Hospital costs are soaring. So are doctors' fees.

The politicians mutter two words, "health inflation." Indeed, the share of the GNP going to all forms of health care has gone from 6 percent in 1985 to 12 percent in 1990, and it is rising.

Because health care is so expensive, health insurance is more expensive and some corporations have cut back on benefits. Some people are unprotected. The elderly are worried. There is waste and inefficiency.

How do you keep the golden goose and see to it that folks can afford the golden eggs?

Perhaps we should start by re-examining the phrase "health inflation."

ELLEN GOODMAN

He says date, she says rape

BOSTON — I am told by those who can find the silver lining in a cloud of squid ink that there is some good news in the media storm centered over Palm Beach. It has focused attention on date rape.

Maybe so, but not every spotlight is truly enlightening. Date rape is the should-be oxymoron that we use to distinguish rapes committed by acquaintances from those committed by strangers. But it is also a phrase that goes together the two sides of the story. His date and her rape.

Which story is the truth this time? What really happened in the Kennedy compound on Easter weekend? If this case gets to trial, I will bet big money on the courtroom scenario. The man will portray steamy sexual intercourse in the grass with just a spicy soupçon of rough stuff. The woman will describe sexual assault and a piercing violation of her will.

Moreover, if both of these parties go to the polygraph machine, it is entirely possible that they will separately and equally pass their lie detector tests with flying colors. Male and female alike may make equally convincing witnesses. Because in fact both may believe what they say.

This is what is so unsettling about this so-called "gray area" of sexual assault. Two people leave the scene of a sexual encounter, one remembering pleasure, the other pain.

In the most often cited 1985 study of 6,000 college students, University of Arizona Professor Mary Koss found that over 25 percent of college women had experienced a completed or attempted rape since their 14th birthday. Four out of five of these encounters were with men they knew. But among college men, only 8 percent admitted to behavior that fit these definitions.

It isn't that the same 8 percent of the men are assaulting 25 percent of the women. Nor are they necessarily lying. The kernel of the research suggests, rather, that many men simply don't believe they have used force. Not really. Nor do they believe that the women have resisted. Not really.

In alleging date rape, Koss says, "The women reported that they had said 'no' forcefully and repeatedly. The men held out the possibility that 'no' meant 'yes.'"

"The women considered the amount of force as moderately severe. The men, though they noticed a degree of resistance, believed it could be consistent with seduction. They believed women enjoyed being roughed up to a certain extent."

How is it possible that there is such a perceptual gap about "consent" for sex? It is, in part, the Gone-With-The-Wind fantasy: Scarlett O'Hara carried to bed kicking and screaming, only to wake up humming and singing. It is the bodice-ripping, Gothic novel, rock-and-rape cultural messages. It is the ancient script of the mating game — he persists, she resists — that passes for "normal" sexual relationships.

All of this leaves the burden of proof on a woman that she didn't really want it or didn't at least accede to it. But Koss asks mischievously and seriously what would happen if the burden of proof were turned around.

"How could a man convince us that he went into the sexual encounter with the intention of a satisfying sexual experience?" she asks. "Did he try to determine whether she liked sex outdoors, liked it on the ground. What did he find out about disease and pregnancy prevention? Do you see the difference I am trying to suggest?"

What if a woman's pleasure were the standard of consent? And why is that the sort of question only asked by stand-up female comics?

There are women who like "being roughed up." There are women who make false accusations. Probably in similar numbers. The FBI estimates that 2 to 4 percent of all reported rapes are false and only a small percentage of rapes are reported.

When date rape reaches the courtroom as it rarely does, says Koss, picking her words carefully, "the only way to convince a jury that his force went beyond the 'normal' male assertiveness in pursuing his sexual agenda, and that her resistance went beyond the 'normal' female reticence in the interest of protecting her purity or inexperience, is if she sustained a lot of injury."

Without such an injury, without a witness, we have only the two and opposing views of a man and a woman. Without a legal recourse, the hope lies on "crime-prevention" and that means closing the gap in sexual perceptions.

So, I am told, the Palm Beach story has focused attention on date rape. But I'm afraid that all we are likely to learn from this celebrated story is that we still live in a culture in which he says date and she says rape. And each fervently calls the other a liar.

And each one fervently calls the other one a liar.

Reservations ill from U.S. laxity

WASHINGTON — Life is slower on American Indian reservations. That is part of their unique personality. But the federal government has taken that attitude one step beyond, slow to rigor mortis.

Even when Congress periodically wakes up and takes action, very little happens. Five years ago Congress passed a law mandating an alcohol and substance abuse treatment program for Indian use, and budgeted $50 million for the project. When investigators recently examined the program to see how it was going, they found that it wasn't. The law had not been implemented and the program was still in draft form.

Some of the money has been spent, but the result could hardly be called a treatment program. There was a "Sober Rodeo" — a rodeo where no alcohol was served. And some of the funds were spent to renovate a camping facility. The investigators from the Health and Human Services Department's inspector general's office were not impressed.

They also found few "dry houses," or emergency shelters and halfway houses for Indian youth. Congress budgeted $8 million for such facilities, but only one shelter and no halfway houses have been built.

The findings, disturbing but predictable, are included in a draft report from the inspector general. Our associate Jim Lynch has found other equally disturbing stories. Indian officials in Michigan report that as many as 20 percent of the youths in some tribal communities have been sexually abused. There are haunting tales out of one Arizona tribe of 4-year-olds with sexually transmitted diseases.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs has shown almost no ability to cope with crime on the reservations. Sexual abuse complaints are buried in bureaucratic buck passing. In the past five years, the BIA has spent about $4 million to computerize the crime-reporting system on reservations. But, sources tell us, it doesn't work. There are only 100 computer terminals for more than 300 reservation police agencies.

The Senate Select Committee on Indian Affairs, spurred on by Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., hopes to start helping Indians with some of their environmental problems. The most pressing is water quality. Tribes across the nation are discovering that their water is dangerous to their health. Most tribes do not have the equipment and resources to adequately purify and monitor their water supplies. And federal inspections are the exception, not the rule.

Environmental hazards on Indian lands have been exacerbated by the arrival of the waste merchants with garbage on their hands and few places to dump it. As we recently reported, Indian tribes have been bombarded with slick proposals to turn their cherished land into dumps for other people's household trash, and, in some cases, toxic waste.

The waste merchants figure that reservation land is the national blind spot. It's arid and isolated, so who cares? Certainly not the government. Neither federal nor state environmental regulations apply to most Indian lands. Fortunately, tribal leaders have been routinely rejecting the tantalizing offers from trash companies to lease Indian land.

The Indians' battles with a sluggish bureaucracy and carpetbagging entrepreneurs will continue. Montana's Fort Belknap Indian Reservation is locked in a dispute with a mining company that is chewing up the mountains near the reservation. Some Indians believe the mining is polluting their water, and when they go to their sacred sites to perform rituals, the earth shakes from the mining equipment.

Some of the money has been spent, but the result could hardly be called a treatment program.

The result could hardly be called a treatment program.

For a healthy man, Bush sure has his problems

By TOM RASM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush's "former fibrillating heart," now blamed on an overactive thyroid, is the latest of many medical woes to beset a man who routinely passes physical exams with flying colors.

From skin cancer to degenerative arthritis to a potentially life-threatening allergy, Bush has had enough ailments to fill a small medical dictionary.

Yet White House physician Burton Lee said the president continues to be in excellent overall health with "an extraordinary cardiovascular system." And doctors in general call Bush, 66, remarkably fit for a man his age.

Bush has made fun of the fluttering heart — now controlled by medications — that sent him to the hospital for the weekend, even welcoming a group to the White House on Tuesday "from the bottom of my former fibrillating heart."

And he must have sighed with relief when he got the results of tests later in the day that showed that his rapid heartbeat was not caused by cardiac disease but by a hyperthyroid problem, a condition he shares with his wife Barbara.

Still, for a "man his age," Bush has had more than his share of medical problems.

Among them:

- He has degenerative arthritis of the hips and knees, which makes it increasingly uncomfortable for him to jog on hard surfaces.
- He had a basal skin cancer removed from his face in 1986, a benign colon polyp removed in 1988 and a noncancerous cyst on his finger removed in 1990.
- He is highly allergic to bee stings. He told one interviewer that a sting in 1978 while he was at a football game was potentially life-threatening. "I was finding it a little difficult to breathe" before a doctor at a clinic stopped him from going into shock, Bush said.
- The president suffers from moderate high-frequency hearing loss, blamed on loud engine noises while he was a pilot in World War II. He does not find it necessary to wear a hearing aid.

- He cannot donate blood because of a teen-age case of hepatitis.
- He suffers from hay fever and other respiratory-system allergies.

- He has been treated for mild glaucoma, an eye disease that in its most advanced forms can lead to blindness.
- He has a "mild" enlargement of his prostate gland.
- Bush passed out in a London hotel during a 1980 business trip from a bleeding duodenal ulcer. He had a second ulcer in 1986.

- Before becoming president, Bush told interviewers he had been a chronic worrier and frequently had difficulty sleeping.
- And although he didn't miss a day of work in his eight years as vice president, Bush has been prone to numerous colds and bouts with hay fever since becoming president.

Pesticide groundwater risk stated

By LARRY BARBARAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators, proposing a major policy change, are urging the Environmental Protection Agency to consider even low levels of pesticides in ground water as a potential health risk.

The new strategy is needed because "the knowledge of the possible toxic effects of pesticides is not complete, and new information could raise serious concern in the future," said a General Accounting Office report being released today.

It also said that once established in ground water, pesticides could be extremely costly or even impossible to remove.

In another major proposal, the GAO said evidence of ground water contamination should play a major role in triggering priority EPA reviews of specific pesticides.

Current EPA criteria for beginning the special reviews do not specifically address ground water contamination, according to the report, presented to the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee.

The differences between the GAO proposals and EPA policy are crucial to the approximately 100 million Americans who use ground water for drinking purposes. Forty percent of Americans overall and 90 percent in rural areas drink ground water from wells or their community water systems.

Victor J. Kimm, a top EPA pesticides official, confirmed in an interview Tuesday that the agency does not consider low levels of pesticides in ground water to be a significant health risk — although the contamination must be carefully monitored.

He said the EPA is ready to act quickly if contamination rises to unsafe levels.

Gun control factions maneuver

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Gun control advocates are trading last-minute volleys with the National Rifle Association as the House heads for a showdown on a proposed seven-day waiting period for handgun purchases.

Both sides are hunting for the handful of votes that will decide whether the House will ditch the so-called Brady bill in favor of an NRA plan to allow instant computer checks of criminal records of prospective gun purchasers.

A vote on the amendment was expected late today.

"If I were going to bet all my money — which isn't much — I wouldn't know what to do. It's that close," Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., a leading Brady bill advocate, said Tuesday.

An influential opponent of the bill, Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., said the measure was losing support as people looked at it more closely. "It is my expectation that when the vote is cast, we'll win," said Dingell, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., and other House leaders decided Tuesday to allow Rep. Harley O. Staggers Jr., D-W.Va., to offer the NRA plan as a substitute to the Brady bill. If it passes, lawmakers may not get a direct vote on the waiting period.

Schumer said the vote still would present a clear choice to lawmakers.

"A vote against Staggers will be a vote for Brady," he said. Schumer said the Brady bill would win House passage by 10 or 12 votes if members were allowed to vote on it directly.

State schools chief to visit here

By VANCE BUCKLEMAN
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELLBERRY - Betty Castor, the Florida Commissioner of Education, will be visiting Red Bug Elementary School in Casselberry tomorrow morning at 11 a.m.

Castor will be visiting the Seminole County school in honor of its participation in the Florida School Improvement Program.

Red Bug, Tuckerville Middle School, now operating out of South Seminole Middle School in Casselberry and Lake Howell High School in Winter Park, are the pilot schools in Seminole County which are working on the improvement plan under the statewide Education Accountability Program, recently re-approved by the state legislature.

After taking a half an hour tour of the school, Castor will talk with the students and teachers who are involved in the improvement plan over a brief lunch in the school's cafeteria.

The Red Bug improvement team is expected to tell Castor about their plans of creating alternative criteria for measuring the success of a school.

Pat Miller, principal at Red Bug, said that the plans are still in the preliminary stages at this point. The program has just received the go-ahead from the legislature as specific plans have not been set.

According to Rene Watson, Castor's plan secretary, the improvement plan is being implemented in 10 school districts across the state in an effort to find a way to help raise test scores on standardized tests while at the same time decreasing drop out rates.

"We want to start at the very earliest grades," Watson said. "We want to start drop out prevention and study skills with every student at the kindergarten level and take it all the way through the 12th grade."

According to Watson, the state chose three schools that are part of an already established feeder system so that they will be able to follow the students through the program over the course of their public school careers.

Castor will make a brief presentation at noon and then leave to visit some other schools across the state who are taking part in the program.

Discovery back with tire and other damage

By BARBARA BURNS
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL - Space shuttle Discovery completed its Star Wars research mission with tire damage and more scorching than usual of the material that fills the gaps between the orbiter's thermal tiles, NASA said.

One of the four main landing gear tires - the outer right one - was shredded when Discovery landed Monday at Kennedy Space Center. Three of the tire's 17 layers were worn through, said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone.

"It probably looked a lot worse than it was," center director Forrest McCartney said Tuesday.

McCartney said it was too soon to know whether the damage resulted from the way the shuttle landed - the right main gear touched down a second sooner than the left - or from a test in which commander Michael Smith applied extra pressure to the brakes to see how they would react on the concrete landing strip.

Twice as much fiberglass thermal tile filler will have to be replaced than is customary after a flight, Malone said. At least 10 of the approximately 27,000 tiles on the shuttle also will be replaced because of heat damage.

NASA spokesman James Hartfield explained that the shuttle encountered slightly more heat than usual in its fiery descent to Earth because it entered the atmosphere over the center, where the air is denser.

Discovery and its crew of seven were diverted to Cape Canaveral because of gusty wind at the usual landing site in California's Mojave Desert.

The shuttle was heavier than usual during descent. It held more than 850 million worth of Pentagon instruments, which boosted the total weight of the orbiter to 211,300 pounds.

During the eight-day research mission, the astronauts used the instruments to study the shuttle's exhaust plumes, rocket fuel discharges, gas clouds and natural phenomena such as atmospheric light.

Pentagon officials said the data will help them develop sensors to track and destroy enemy missiles.

Discovery is scheduled to go back up in September or October. It will be the shuttle's 15th flight.

Grand Jury investigating Yahweh drug accusations

Associated Press

MIAMI - A grand jury is investigating allegations that the Yahweh religious sect may have been involved in drug dealing and laundering the profits, a newspaper reported.

The grand jury also is focusing on whether some of the sect's real-estate holdings should be confiscated because they were allegedly bought with money from illegal ventures, The Miami Herald reported Tuesday.

The sect's leaders, including Yahweh Ben Yahweh, also known as Hylon Mitchell Jr., are already indicted in a massive murder-racketeering conspiracy case. U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger has set a Sept. 11 trial date.

Diane Coe, spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's Office, said she could not discuss the grand jury investigation.

"The investigation into the Yahweh is continuing, but I will not comment further on grand jury matters," she said.

Attorneys for the sect denied all the charges.

"Give me a break," said Patricia Williams, an attorney for Yahweh treasurer Judith Israel. "It gets crazier by the moment."

Ms. Williams said by law the government can seize property if prosecutors prove it was bought as part of a criminal enterprise, but they'll have a difficult time proving the sect didn't buy its real estate with legitimate donations.

Investigators said the Yahweh's financial record-keeping has been hard to decipher, and apparently the sect did purchase at least some of their real estate with donations - making it untouchable. About half a dozen managers of the sect's corporations were subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury last week, the newspaper said.

The sect, although heavily in debt, owns 20 properties in Dade County worth about $7 million. Monthly mortgage payments run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

Leaders from the sect's Temple of Love have said only that the money comes from contributions and profits from grocery stores, rents and other Yahweh businesses.

According to sworn statements by former Yahweh member Robert Roster, a star witness in the murder-conspiracy trial, drug dealers delivered bags of cash to the religious leader at the sect's Liberty City headquarters.

Yahweh offered the traffickers protection in return for large "donations," Roster added.

Yahweh attorney Alice Hastings has denied the allegations. He calls Roster, who is now in prison for four murders, the "government's principal liar."

Mitchell and 18 followers were named last week in a three-count superseding indictment charging them with racketeering and involvement in 16 murders, one attempted murder and four incidents of arson between 1981 and 1986.

SunRays win in 11 innings

WILSON, N.C. — Rafael Delima scored on a sacrifice fly as the Orlando SunRays downed the Carolina Mudcats 6-5 in 11 innings Tuesday.

The Mudcats led 5-1 when Orlando's Bob McCrary hit a two-run homer in the sixth.

The SunRays' Cheo Garcia and Frank Valdes each hit an RBI single to tie the game at 5-5.

Delima led off the 11th inning with a double, advanced to third on a groundout and scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly by McCrary.

With the score tied 1-1 in the fourth, the Mudcats scored three runs on a triple by Eddie Zambrano and a fourth run when Zambrano scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Hayler.

Rob Wassenaar (2-2) pitched 3 2/3 innings for the win, giving up no hits or runs. Greg Johnson earned his sixth save, four of which have come against the Mudcats. Wassenaar, Johnson and Phil Wise combined to retire 23 of the Mudcat's last 25 batters.

Ben Webb (0-2) took the loss.

FSU sweeps Virginia Tech

TALLAHASSEE — Chris Roberts single-plated Nandy Serrano with the winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning of game one as Florida State swept Virginia Tech in a doubleheader Tuesday night.

The third-ranked Seminoles improved to 45-11 with the 3-2 and 4-1 victories in the Metro Conference games. The Hokies dropped to 24-24.

Pitcher Tim Davis (6-1) earned the win in the opener for Florida State, and pitcher Brian Harris (5-1) struck out seven in the nightcap.

Pedro Grifol went three-for-three at the plate to lead FSU. Serrano added a pair of hits and scored two runs.

Eddie Perez smacked four hits in the first game, including a single in the decisive 12th frame that sent Serrano to third and forced an intentional walk to Grifol.

The Hokies got a strong pitching performance from starter Brad Clontz, who worked 11 innings. Clontz struck out eight and scattered seven hits.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Classic moves to Joe Robbie

MIAMI — For the first time in the 50-year history of the Orange Blossom Classic, Florida A&M's annual football foray into South Florida will be played at Joe Robbie Stadium.

The game, featuring FAMU and Southern University, is scheduled for Nov. 9.

A scheduling conflict with the University of Miami and a chance to improve sagging attendance prompted the change for this year, and possibly permanently.

FAMU Athletic Director Walter Reed said the site switch had to be made because FAMU and Southern could only play Nov. 9 and the University of Miami already was scheduled to host West Virginia that day.

"We were able to work around Miami in other years, but we just couldn't this year," Reed said. Reed said he suggested a UM-FAMU doubleheader in the Orange Bowl as an alternative to moving, but the idea was nixed by Orange Bowl officials who said it would be too troublesome.

The move to Joe Robbie could be permanent if FAMU has a dramatic attendance improvement. Last year, the game was played before only 12,291.

Longwood's Burkett scores first Late Model victory at New Smyrna

Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — It was Ronnie Burkett's night on Saturday at New Smyrna Speedway.

Young Burkett, a newlywed who was driving the Westburne Supply Pontiac, outpowered the rest of the field as he led all the way to score his first Late Model feature ever in the FASCAR-sanctioned 25-lap event.

A pair of Ford Thunderbirds, owned and driven by veterans Junior Simmons and Jess Taylor, finished second and third.

Former track thielist Joe Middleton, who currently leads the point chase, finished fourth ahead of Duane Burrows, who was getting ready for this Saturday's 200-lapper for the Super Eight Late Models.

Marc Kinley came up from the seventh starting spot in the Limited Late Model feature and skillfully threaded his way up. After a short but fierce duel for first place against hard charging Chuck Stanley, Kinley powered ahead to score victory No. 8 of the current season.

Stanley held on for second while Mike Kubanek, the high point man, moved up with the leaders late in the race to score a third place finish over Von Crews and "Tank" Tucker.

The Sportsman heat and feature went to Mike Fritta, who came up through the field both times to dominate the division. Fritta, a craft inspector for a boat building factory, was at the wheel of the Mullis Marine Chevelle.

Mike Fitch mounted an early-race challenge to pass Gary Salvatore on his way to another Florida Modified feature win.

The Mini Stock feature went to Bobby Sears. Scoring his best finish ever on the high banked half-mile was Robert Ham, who came up from last place to wrestle the second spot away from Jerry Symons with two laps to go.

Randy Johnson, much improved at the wheel of the Precision Automotive Monte Carlo, came out on top to win the hotly-disputed Bomber final over Don Tracey, Henry Clark, Wally Semrow and Mark Goebel.

The Demolition Derby went to Bentley "The Weirdest" Mead, while Chris Wire won both Spectator Racing events.

Orlando SpeedWorld

ORLANDO — Young Rickey Marshall led every lap to win his first ever FASCAR-sanctioned Late Model feature on Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld.

Marshall used his pole starting spot to gain a good advantage. He was never seriously challenged, but the action behind him was wild and woolly.

On lap 12, Jim Sills and division's points leader Bob Acherbloom tangled, sending Bob's machine hard into the turn three wall. Although shaken and visibly upset with Sills, Acherbloom was not seriously injured.

Following Marshall's County Motors Buick to the stripe were fellow 'Rookie of the Year' contenders Scott Bramlett and Kenny Watson, who debuted a new Chevy Beretta-bodied machine.

Rounding out the top five were Ronnie Roach and Sears.

The Limited Late Model feature was another wild affair that saw another first-time winner in Bobby Owens.

In that event, Milan Vidic was moving up through the field when he hit the front stretch wall, doing a two-wheel thrill show stunt imitation before getting back under control.

As Vidic pulled off the track with suspension damage, Dave Savicki and Glenn Carter tangled with Carter's machine needing a double-low to get back to the pits.

On the restart, Owens gunned down early leader "Tank" Tucker and went on to score an easy win in his General Tire Camaro. Tucker held on for second over Von Crews, Chuck Stanley and Claude Collignon.

David Indiveri out-ran the Florida Modified field for the fourth time this season, topping Gary Salvatore, Scott McDade, Gene Barlowe and Wally Patterson.

Scoring his ninth Mini Stock feature win of the year was Bobby Sears, who out-ran Jerry Symons, Richard Newton, Guy Lingo and Ernie Muller.

Rick Johns saw the Sportsman feature win fall right into his lap as he took his fifth win of the year. Guy McRoberts led the early going, but then tangled with a lapped car, handing the point to Duane Zdrodowski, who was subsequently black-flagged for a loose rear bumper.

Johns, the division's high point man, then inherited first place and went on to win over Bill Loomis, points runner-up John Potts, Cindy Clifton and Mike Branco.

It was Bomber feature win No. 8 for Sanford's John Ripley, as he led Darren Gould, Ray Hoey, Ted Head and Roger Favreau to the finish line.

David Steele drove to his fourth Three Quarter Midget feature win of the year over Bill Molenaar, Paul Madden, Keith Butler and Frank Carlsson Jr.

The first feature for the new "Junkyard" Bomber division was held with former Green Beret Jack Flynn taking the win in a Lincoln Continental. For his efforts, Flynn took home the trophy and a piping hot Bar-B-Q sandwich, presented to him in Victory Lane by Jim Tadiash of Fat Boy's Bar-B-Q.

Greg Harris drove an Opel to victory in the 40-lap Four Cylinder Enduro, while Fan Participation race winners were Dan Johnson in a Mustang and the VW pick up truck of Gary Roberts.

Watching her mom sparked lifelong interest in cooking

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Learning by watching her mother has sparked a lifelong interest in cooking for Sanford resident Janice Chere.

The South Carolina native who has lived in Florida three years recalls her mother could make leftovers into an appetizing dish.

"I watched my mom a lot," she said of her early lessons in cooking.

The 25-year-old is still learning by observing and asking lots of questions as she works as a waitress at the Lake Monroe Holiday Inn.

"I'm always in the kitchen asking, 'How do you do this or that?'" she said, getting advice from the cooks, especially Ernie. "I love to be in the kitchen."

Another favorite form of cooking is working on the charcoal grill.

"I love to cook out on the grill," she said. "Everytime I have a night off, I cook on the grill. I like chicken and pork steaks on the grill."

Steaks are another favorite. "I have a friend in the Winn-Dixie meat department who cuts the meat the way I want it," she said.

Flavorful potatoes cooked on the grill are made by salting them and adding a slice of onion and bacon before wrapping them in aluminum foil and setting them on the coals.

Another favorite recipe is cooked in the oven and doesn't really have a name but it is a spicy treat. A mix of smoked sausage, potatoes, onions and stewed tomatoes, ketchup, soy sauce, Worcestershire sauce and spices, Chere uses whatever spice she has on hand.

"I basically just spice to taste," she said, adding she likes to use fresh basil when it is available. "I just use what I have."

Tomatoes are another favorite ingredient in her cooking.

"I love tomatoes," she said. Chere likes to prepare main dishes but shys away from desserts.

"I'm not a dessert person," she explained.

Another aspect of her job gives her a great deal of enjoyment while enabling her to use her grill skills. When there are boating regattas on Lake Monroe, the Holiday Inn restaurant hosts a cookout.

"I really enjoyed working last weekend during the sailing regatta," she said. "We cooked hot dogs and hamburgers. Getting some sun for a tan is another benefit of the cookouts," she added.

When she is not working, Chere enjoys working on a tan and going to the beach.

STUFFED GRAPE LEAVES

1 jar of grape leaves
1 lb. ground beef
1/2 cup rice, not cooked
1/2 cup onion, diced
1/2 cup bell pepper, diced
1/2 cup mushrooms, diced
Mix ingredients and roll into balls. Wrap grape leaves around balls and stack in large pot. Add two cans crushed tomatoes, one can of tomato sauce. Season to taste. Let simmer for four hours.

PASTA A LA CIEBA

(Sauce)
10-12 ripe tomatoes, finely diced
1/2 cup fresh basil, chopped fine
4 cloves of garlic, chopped fine
1/2 cup olive oil
Salt, pepper, and spices to taste
Mix all ingredients. Let set for 2 to 3 hours (stirring occasionally). When ready to serve, cook pasta as instructed. Mix sauce with hot pasta and serve.

OVEN CASSEROLE

1 lb. smoked sausage, sliced
6 potatoes cut into cubes
2 onions cut into quarters
1 can of stewed tomatoes
1/2 cup ketchup
Shake in soy sauce, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper and spices. Mix all ingredients well. Put into oven casserole baking dish and cook for 1 hour 45 minutes at 450°. Let set for 15 minutes before serving.

Note: You can also use pork chops or chicken breasts in place of sausage. Just lay on top before putting in the oven.)
Helpful Hint: Before cooking baked potatoes, make a slit down the middle, put a slice of onion and a slice of bacon in slit, wrap and bake in oven or on grill.

Stepdaughter, baby unwelcome prospect

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old woman with a wonderful husband and a terrific 4-year-old son. I also have a very immature, unmarried 21-year-old stepdaughter, "Dolly," who is expecting a baby any minute. The baby's father disappeared when Dolly announced her pregnancy. She wants to keep the baby, and I have been getting a lot of pressure from my husband's family who think the logical place for Dolly and her baby is with her father and me.

Abby, I don't want Dolly and her baby moving in with us because Dolly has always been lazy and irresponsible and I'd have to take care of the baby. Also, I had planned on returning to college in the fall when our son will be in school full time.

I feel strongly that since Dolly decided to have sex, decided not to have an abortion and decided to keep her baby, the baby is her responsibility — not mine. Need I tell you how unpopular my decision has made me with my husband's family? He does not blame me, but his mother and sisters think I am selfish, cruel and unreasonable — although they did not offer to take her in. How do you vote, Abby? Sign me . . .

THE WICKED STEP-MOTHER
DEAR "WICKED": I'm voting with you. There is no reason why you should postpone going back to school because your husband's daughter decided to keep her baby.

Dolly is old enough to accept responsibility for her actions and decision. And she's lucky to have a grandmother and aunts who are so concerned about her welfare, because if she's as immature as you say she is, she'll need all of their assistance in learning to shoulder the emotional and financial responsibilities that go along with single parenthood.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Overtaxed," the couple who was trying to find a clergyman to quietly bless their spiritual bond — while the IRS would consider them to be still in a "single" tax bracket — was both inaccurate and unkind. Wanting to have the church sacrament of matrimony without the IRS's unspeakable tax penalty for married persons is not "crooked," Abby. It is reasonable and moral. It is also easily achieved in Texas.

ADVICE

As a Texas lawyer and church member, I sympathize with your reader. "Holy matrimony" and "legal marriage" are the same thing.

There are thousands of Christian clergymen in most denominations who consider their Christian function more important than their governmental one, and the two are unrelated. They will not require a state marriage license, nor will they report the ceremony to the state, since they are performing a sacrament involving only the couple, God and the church.

If the couple desires a legal marriage, after living together and establishing themselves as a married couple, in time, they are indeed legally married by common law. In Texas, such a marriage need not be recorded, yet both parties and their children enjoy all the legal rights of a formal marriage before a judge. (They should, of course, not lie on their tax returns.)

If either of these arrangements hurts the feelings of the folks at the IRS, too bad. They weren't invited to the wedding, and wouldn't have sent a gift if they had been invited. The government loses nothing but its chance to encourage and reward "living in sin."

In memory of Romeo and Juliet's "crooked tax-evasion" . . .

A SECULAR FRIAR LAURENCE

DEAR ABBY: Our oldest son,

"John," is going to his first prom. He is 18 1/2 years old and a junior in high school.

John and three other couples planned to rent a hotel room for a post-prom party, and, of course, drink beer. I suggested to my husband that we should have the kids back to our house for a post-prom party. No. 1: I won't have to worry all night about John and his friends being out and drinking. No. 2: We live five miles from the school where the prom will be held. No. 3: It won't cost us a cent because the kids will pay for their own beer and snacks.

I could keep all of the car keys so no one would have to drive. Also, I could give them all coffee in the morning before they leave.

Well, my husband went nuts! He says I am encouraging the kids to drink.

I tried to explain that this was a special occasion and they are going to drink anyway. He thinks I am 100 percent wrong in suggesting they come here, and I think I am 100 percent right. Also, I would feel a lot better knowing the kids will be in our house after the prom.

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED MOTHER: I vote with your husband. To condone teenagers drinking beer or any kind of alcoholic beverage in one's home because "they are going to drink anyway" is, in my view, a feeble excuse. Furthermore, providing minors with alcohol is in violation of the law.

If the children were mine, I would insist on hosting the party in my home and providing the snacks, the soft drinks — and the supervision.

DEAR ABBY: For me, the war in the Persian Gulf and its end have brought to mind that fine film "To Kill a Mockingbird." The story was about Atticus Finch, a Southern gentleman, a competent attorney, a good father and husband, a peaceful man. Some might even call him a boring man.

One summer afternoon, a rabid dog came down the street and sent the residents into a panic. Finch came out of his house with a rifle and calmly and expertly killed the beast with one well-placed bullet.

Finch did not smile, strut, raise the rifle, exchange high fives, or in any other way celebrate his accomplishment. An unpleasant task had been thrust upon him, he did what had to be done, he solved the problem, and then went back to the business of being Atticus Finch.

To those who so expertly performed the unpleasant tasks thrust upon you in the Persian Gulf, thank you and God bless you. Accept the appreciation of a grateful nation. We are glad to have you home, and are pained by the memory of those who will not return.

Take a full measure of quiet pride in a job well done. And, then, let's all get back to the business of peace.

CRUCE EVANS, ERIE, PA.
DEAR CRUCE: Thank you for a thoughtful letter. And to all the men and women who will not return home for many months (or years) due to their commitment to the military, we owe a special debt of gratitude.

Ask a cardiologist about drug therapy

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a right and left bundle branch block and wonder if my condition can trigger a heart attack. One doctor gave me Cardisem and another told me not to take it. I'm confused.

of a cardiologist. Ask your doctor to refer you to one.
(C)1991 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: Bilateral (both right- and left-sided) bundle branch block means that both the major electrical pathways to your heart muscle are malfunctioning. In essence, there is a marked delay in the speed with which electrical impulses reach cardiac muscle to trigger a heartbeat.

The cause of this condition is probably coronary arteriosclerosis, the age-related, progressive narrowing of the arteries that supply oxygen to the heart muscle. When the nerve pathways are deprived of oxygen, they do not transmit electricity efficiently. This is one consequence of arteriosclerosis.

The other consequence is heart attack. If a blood clot forms in a coronary artery, the nerves and the muscle fed by that artery will be severely damaged. If the damaged area is large, the heart may stop.

Therefore, your branch block is a likely reflection of the general state of your heart. The branch block will not lead to a heart attack but, I suspect, the poor circulation could.

Cardisem (diltiazem), a calcium-channel blocker, will lower blood pressure, reduce the work of the heart and improve circulation to cardiac muscle. However, it must be used with caution in patients with bundle branch abnormalities, such as yours, because it can further slow electrical impulses; this could lead to inefficient heartbeat and an inappropriately slow pulse.

I think you'll be best served by placing yourself under the care

By Phillip Alder

There are some players in every sport who are ahead of their time. They have ideas that at first are considered eccentric but years later become accepted. One such bridge player was Norman Squire, a Londoner who died recently, aged 84.

Squire won many national titles in Britain, including the Gold Cup, Britain's premier team championship, in 1946, 1954 and 1958. He was a regular contributor to the British "Bridge Magazine" and edited its Bidding Competition for many years.

Involved with many aspects of bidding theory, Squire was an architect of "fourth suit forcing." He was also known for a great sense of humor, once writing that "The man on the right rises to his feet, climbs upon his chair, takes a small Union Jack from his pocket, waves it about his head three times, and says in stentorian and decisive tones, 'I double two spades — whose lead is it?'"

Squire summed up today's hand correctly. To use his own word, he and his partner "staggered" into six clubs, and West led a spade. There was a potential diamond loser and a trump problem. If declarer could afford a loser in clubs, he would start with the ace. But if he had to lose a diamond, he couldn't afford this safety play.

Squire won with dummy's ace of spades, ruffed a spade and played a diamond to dummy's jack. East won with the queen and returned a spade. Squire ruffed, played a heart to dummy's king and a club back to his queen. The ace of clubs dropped the king and jack, and Squire claimed.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 8, 1991

There should be a notable improvement in your financial circumstances in the year ahead. However, there are also indications that you may be a little too careless in the management of your resources.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're negotiating anything of importance today, be sure to dot all your i's and cross all your t's. Carelessness on your behalf could unravel what had started out as a good deal. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Personal gain is a distinct possibility today, but you may have to work harder than usual to acquire it. This could be due, in part, to the individual with whom you're involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be socially aware today, or else you may unintentionally slight an old friend for a new one you've recently met. If you do, your excuses might not be accepted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others cannot be counted on today to help you achieve a personally significant objective. Unless it benefits them equally, you'll have to go after it alone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A side issue you feel strongly about could be adamantly opposed by someone with whom you're involved. Don't let your disagreement ruin the reason you two got together in the first place.

may unintentionally slight an old friend for a new one you've recently met. If you do, your excuses might not be accepted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you make a purchase of consequence today, be sure to get all guarantees and warranties covering this merchandise. If it's defective, you don't want to get caught holding the bag.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may have to deal with an individual who takes an unyielding position rather than makes a compromise for mutual advantages. Diplomacy is definitely required.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This can be a very productive day for you, provided you don't take on more than you can handle, especially toward the end of the day. You're not at your best when operating under pressure.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Social arrangements could have their ups and downs today. Someone you like may include another whom you dislike to join your planned activities. Make the best of it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An old, resolved issue could create domestic complications again today — if it is made a focal point in a family discussion. Don't be the one who brings it up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're trying to promote or peddle something today, it's imperative that you know when to stop selling. Overemphasizing could create serious doubts in your prospect's mind.

you don't take on more than you can handle, especially toward the end of the day. You're not at your best when operating under pressure.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful managing your resources today, yet be doubly careful if you're handling anything of a financial nature for someone else. If things don't work out, you could be held accountable.
