Merit Pay No One Is Quite Sure Who Will Get What...If At All

By Donna Estes
 Herald Staff Writer

The list of those gambling about the fairness of the state's proposed merit teacher bonus pay plan is growing.

Joining the Seminole Education Association, teachers' union, and the Seminole County School Board are two members of the state House of Representatives. What's unusual is that they voted for the plan.

Meanwhile, the school system's personnel director, Ann Neiswender, is working to see that every Seminole County public school teacher who could conceivably receive the up to $3,000 bonus is aware of their eligibility.

The teachers who fall within the guidelines prepared by the state Department of Education won't automatically get the bonus, they must apply for it, providing documentation proving their eligibility prior to April 2.

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, who voted for merit pay for teachers, said he has not as yet found anyone who believes the bill they voted for in Tallahassee gave Gov. Bob Graham and his Cabinet authority to implement teacher merit pay.

The Longwood Republican said he was under the impression that information would be brought back to the Legislature and lawmakers would then set criteria for teachers awarded merit pay.

"I hear the governor expects his actions (on merit pay for teachers) to be overturned by the Legislature and I'm not sure that what he and the Cabinet has done so far is really what was expected," Brantley said.

Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, said he believes in incentive pay for teachers who are performing well.

But, he said, he fears that the merit pay program proposed by the governor and the Cabinet requires academic achievement and is not really based on teacher performance — "performance in terms of being able to communicate with or teach students. And it will not improve the attitude of most teachers, but rather cause a great deal of dissatisfaction."

The SEA has said that it would be better for the state to raise overall teachers' salaries to the level they ought to be before considering the question of merit pay.

The School Board also opposes the proposal for similar reasons.

Mrs. Neiswender, admitting that she has little to go on but an educated guess, believes that slightly more than 400 of Seminole County's 2,400 teachers will be eligible for the bonus.

But she plans to urge every one of the 833 in the system with masters' degrees and on continuing contract to apply.

"They could be turned down but if they don't get the paperwork in by April 2 they won't even be considered," she said.

Mrs. Neiswender said the criteria at this point appears to be:

6 In Probe At
 Cavalier Motel

Deane Jordan
 Herald Staff Writer

Eleven people were arrested for possession of cocaine and marijuana early today, six of them as part of a drug probe at Sanford's Cavalier Motor Inn.

After a month-long investigation which included informants buying small amounts of marijuana and cocaine at the Cavalier's Buccaneer Lounge, Seminole County Drug Task Force agents arrested five people, three who work at the motel, for possession of cocaine and one for possession of marijuana.

According to arrest reports, the investigation began Feb. 1 with an agent purchasing two $25 bags of marijuana from a barmaid on Feb. 3 and 8 and buying a gram of cocaine for $80 to $100 per gram on three separate occasions between Feb. 7 and Friday.

The investigation climaxed Friday when an informant met with a bouncer at the motel and a second man at 9:30 p.m. to buy an ounce of cocaine for $2,000.

Agents arrested John Curtis Elias, 21, of 1714 Sundance Apartments, Casselberry, and George William Walsh, 45, of 4853 Golden Rod Road, Goldenrod, and charged both with the sale of cocaine, conspiracy to sell cocaine, and trafficking in cocaine. They were being held today in lieu of $10,000 bond each.

Also arrested at the same time and charged with three counts of selling cocaine was Buccaneer barmaid Diane Elizabeth Spooner, 21, of 304 San Rafael Court, Winter Springs. She was being held today in lieu of $8,000 bond.

Three other people were also arrested in connection with the drug probe, including a second barmaid who works at the lounge.

According to the arrest reports, three hours after the arrest of Elias, Walsh and Ms. Spooner, agents were watching the home of another barmaid, Debra Frances Lapanski, 21, of 170 Lombardy Road, Winter Springs.

When three people left Ms. Lapanski's home at 1:19 a.m., the agents had police stop them. Agents said they smelled marijuana and a subsequent search turned up both marijuana and cocaine.

Ms. Lapanski was arrested and charged with three counts of selling marijuana and William Thomas Elgin.

Squeezing Through

From this angle, it appears as if the Star of Sanford cruise ship has flattened itself to slide between the Interstate 4 bridge supports over the St. Johns River between Seminole and Volusia counties. Not to worry; there's plenty of room for the ship to pass easily under the bridge on its daily cruises up the river.

On Patrol Reporter Finds Life As Sheriff's Deputy Exciting And Boring

By Susan Loden
 Herald Staff Writer

After 10½ hours on the road with Seminole County sheriff's deputies, I became a deputy ... but only for about 30 seconds. It was something that could happen to anyone at any time if you're in the right place at the right time and happen to be the right sex.

When day-patrol supervisor Sgt. Glenn Trombly and I arrived at Stratford Squire Apartments, Howell Branch Road, Casselberry, at about 2 p.m. Tuesday, deputies on the scene were charging a 51-year-old woman with trespassing after a warning. I stayed in the background, pen behind my ear and notebook in hand, waiting to record the action, just as I had Saturday and Sunday when I watched evening and midnight shift patrolmen doing their duty.

After the drunk, matronly woman was handcuffed, Trombly called me front and center and asked me if I would search the suspect for weapons that might be concealed beneath her navy blue polyester pantsuit and slick white blouse.

I looked at Trombly with wide-eyed astonishment. And when I squeaked, "Really?" Trombly, a 13-year veteran with the sheriff's department, indicated that he wasn't just giving a reporter a chance to get involved with an arrest, he was quite serious.

I quickly patted down her pockets and asked where to go from there. Her waistband was the next checkpoint and then Trombly delicately suggested that a check of the woman's formidably-filled bra was called for.

I completed my duty and the woman was placed in the caged rear of a patrol car and carted off to jail.

Afterwards, Trombly explained that male officers never search a female suspect and female officers never search a male. By asking for my assistance, Trombly had in effect deputized me to do something he couldn't. If I hadn't complied, I could have been charged with neglect or refusal to aid a law enforcement officer — a second-degree misdemeanor.

"If there isn't a female deputy on the scene we won't search a woman, unless it's one we're really concerned about," Trombly said. "But if I'm really concerned, I'll stop a female civilian, just like you, and ask her to do the search. I've done it before. When a female deputy arrests a man a back-up male officer will come in and do the search."

"We don't want to embarrass anyone. I don't care if they are a prisoner, they deserve respect. None of my men, unless it was clearly a life-or-death situation, would touch a woman that needed to be searched."

Later, as we headed back to the sheriff's department for Trombly to clear up his paperwork at the end of the shift, we heard, over the incessant whine of the police radio, the deputy who was hauling the woman to jail as he took another precaution to protect both himself and the suspect. Every few minutes the radio crackled with his report of the time and his mileage, so he will have a record to prove that he took no detours and could not have taken advantage of the woman as she was being transported.

"Danger doesn't cause stress," Trombly, who has a master's degree in criminal justice, said, pointing out that

Merger Won't Disrupt Postal Service

By Jane Casselberry
 Herald Staff Writer

A proposed merger of the Fern Park and Casselberry post offices is intended to save money and increase productivity. But it won't, postal officials say, disrupt service or cause changes in zip codes.

Orlando Postmaster Robert Sheehan said on the basis of an internal feasibility study and survey of patrons, the consolidation looks favorable, but he emphasizes that so far it is just a proposal. It has yet to be submitted to the district and southern region office for approval before going to Washington for final approval, he said.

The Fern Park office at 130 Fernwood Blvd. would remain open as a branch under the administrative guidance of the Casselberry postmaster and the customers there would keep their same address and zip code, postal boxes, delivery, and window service, Casselberry Postmaster Rober Kelly said.

Margaret Estes, former postmaster at Fern Park, retired in October, 1983, and a replacement will be named only if the consolidation plan is turned down in Washington, Kelly said. Since her retirement, Tom McKinney has been designated the "officer in charge."

There are 14 employees including clerks and carriers at the Fern Park facility which opened in 1969, McKinney said.

Kelly would be postmaster over both facilities, eliminating the Fern Park postmaster's salary, which he said was about $30,000 a year. However, there will be a station manager or clerk on duty in Fern Park to look after customers there, he added. Kelly said he does not anticipate a salary increase with his increase in responsibility.

Consolidating such things as bookkeeping, recordkeeping, and sorting would eliminate duplication of effort, saving time and money, Kelly said.

The 3,400 customers who get their mail delivered in boxes or at home through the Fern Park Post Office were surveyed to get their opinions on the proposed consolidation, Sheehan said, and of the 900 replies the overwhelming majority favored the cost-saving change if it did not interrupt their service.

"Those that were against it apparently misunderstood the proposal. Judging from their comments they thought the Fern Park office would be closed," Sheehan said. "It will not be closed and won't be losing its identity."

Some suspicious Fern Parkers thought it was all a part of a plot by the city of Casselberry to absorb their unincorporated area. Not so, said Sheehan.

During the approval process, the public will be given 60 days in which to comment. It would be another three months before a final decision is made, Sheehan said.

Kelly said some Casselberry residents preferred going to the Fern Park Post Office because of the traffic lights that make it easier to get on to U.S. Highway 17-92 or Oxford Road. The dangerous exit from the Live Oaks Center where the Casselberry Post Office is located does not have a traffic light, but one has been approved and it will be several months before it is installed. When the new light is up, Kelly said, "maybe we'll get back some of our customers."

"The two post offices are just two blocks apart, and it's a little bit ridiculous to have two separate operations," Kelly said.

U.S. Giving $19 Million To Finish Grenada Airstrip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration, which last year ridiculed the use of a Cuban-built airport on Grenada as a tourist necessity, said it will give the island $19 million to finish building the airstrip.

The airport was repeatedly cited by President Reagan last year as evidence that the Soviet Union and Cuba, which started building the 10,000-foot runway, intended to make the island a military base for subversion in the Caribbean.

However, after the U.S. invaded Grenada in October, no Cuban or Russian military bases were found.

Patient With Clamp In Stomach Wins Suit

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — A man wracked by vomiting, diarrhea and dizziness from a surgical clamp left in his stomach after an ulcer operation has won a $371,000 malpractice suit against Broward General Medical Center.

Carl Graham said he had a gut feeling his operation was not successful when he felt more lousy after surgery than he had before. He had problems for almost three weeks after the operation and one day even collapsed.

X-rays showed the cause of his pain was a 7½-inch scissor-like clamp inside his stomach. The doctors apologized, but Graham sued for malpractice and a Broward Circuit Court jury ruled in his favor on Thursday.

17, also of 170 Lombardy Road, was charged with possession of cocaine, marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

A third suspect, William Robert Fenton, 22, of 123 Tindale Circle, Longwood, arrested at 434 Sherry Ave., Winter Springs, was charged with possession of cocaine, marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Ms. Lapanski was being held today on $5,000 bond, Elgin $8,000, and Fenton $5,000.

In two separate incidents, four other drug-related arrests were made today in the parking lot of the Hot Line Bottle Club, San Sebastian Square, Altamonte Springs.

An Altamonte Springs police officer said he was in the parking lot at 2:20 a.m. when he observed two men in the front seat of a 1982 Chevy passing a tray between them and inhaling an unknown substance through a cut off pen.

When the officer identified himself, he said the men dropped the substance on the floor.

Arrested and charged with possession of cocaine were William Michael Emerson, 25, of 631 N. Lake Drive, Altamonte Springs, and Glenn Smith Warren, 21, of 5190 Poinsett Ave., Winter Park.

Both Emerson and Warren were being held today in lieu of $8,000 bond.

At 4:49 a.m. at the same parking lot, Altamonte Springs officers arrested two Melbourne men for possession of cocaine. An additional change of possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana was also lodged against one of the men.

According to the arresting officer, he observed two men acting suspiciously by constantly looking around while they sat in a 1978 Ford in the club's parking lot.

The officer reported he saw the men pass a vial of material between them and sniff the vial.

Arrested for the possession of cocaine were Jerry Carlton Chaffee, 36, and Donald Ray Champe, 26. Chaffee was also charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana.

Both men were being held this morning in lieu of $8,000 bond each.

An Orlando man was arrested on a cocaine charge after Oviedo police found him passed out in his car at a stop light.

According to the arresting officer, he observed a black Thunderbird sit through two light changes on State Road 520. When he investigated, he said a man with a can of beer between his legs was slumped over in the seat. The car was in drive and the man's foot on the brake pedal.

The man reportedly failed a field sobriety test and was arrested for driving under the influence.

As the man's car was being towed away, the officer noticed a small clear packet of a white powdery substance on the floor of the car.

Arrested for DUI and possession of cocaine was Joseph Ross, 36. He was being held on $500 bond.

School Prayer Bill Stirs Bitter Differences

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amidst some of the bitterest religious differences in decades, the Senate has taken up President Reagan's proposal to return state-sponsored prayer to the public schools.

The proposal, brought to the Senate floor Friday in preparation for what both sides expect to be a lengthy debate next week, would overturn the 1962 and 1963 Supreme Court decisions prohibiting state-directed prayer and Bible reading but allowed individual voluntary prayer.

The issue already has sharply divided Christians and generated an almost unprecedented amount of telephone calls and mail to Capitol Hill.

Some backers of the proposed constitutional amendment are telling Senate staff members their bosses "will burn in hell" if they don't vote for the measure — remarks disavowed by pro-prayer groups.

A spokesman for Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, a supporter of Reagan's proposed amendment, said his office is receiving about 1,000 calls a day on the issue, "the vast majority in favor."

In the office of Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a spokesman said one receptionist logged 350 calls Thursday, again with the majority in favor of the president's proposal.

One Senate staffer, who asked not to be identified, said, "The religious fervor of the callers is very frightening. I haven't seen this kind of fanaticism on any other issue."

"People have been told that if their bosses don't vote for it, they will burn in hell," one said.

The Rev. Barry Lynn, a longtime Capitol Hill lobbyist coordinating the American Civil Liberties Union's opposition to the effort, called the pro-prayer campaign "one of the nastiest, mean-spirited and misleading efforts to pass a piece of legislation that I have ever seen."

"It is an open invitation to religious warfare in the states, pitting neighbor against neighbor, child against child," Lynn said.

Gary Jarmin, the leader of Christian Voice, a major pro-prayer group, strongly disavowed any calls threatening senators with hell.

"I'd rather people not call than say anything like that," Jarmin said. "It is not Christian and is counter-productive."

Senate Majority leader Howard Baker met with President Reagan Friday and told him the amendment for "voluntary vocal" school prayer will pass.

"I told him (Reagan) I thought we had the best chance in decades to pass this," Baker said later.

Deputy Shoots Fleeing Theft Suspect; Investigation Begun

A Sanford man who struggled with a deputy serving a warrant was shot in the leg Friday as he reportedly tried to escape.

Meakel Ashley, 31, of 615 Palmetto Ave., was shot once in the left leg below the knee by plainclothes Seminole County sheriff's deputy John Butler as Butler served Meakel with a warrant for failure to appear on a grand theft charge in Seminole County.

Ashley was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, and then transported to the Seminole County jail where he is being held without bond.

A sheriff's spokesman said a probe of the shooting is being conducted, adding that no disciplinary action has been taken against Butler.

According to Butler's arrest report, he saw Ashley riding in a car on Airport Boulevard in Sanford at 5:33 p.m. When the car stopped at Academy Manor, Butler approached the car with his .357-caliber handgun drawn and ordered Ashley to stay in the car.

Butler said Ashley jumped out of the vehicle and started to fight with him. During the struggle, Ashley reportedly tried to get Butler's pistol. According to Butler, Ashley broke away and as he fled, Butler shot him once in the leg.

At the time of the arrest, Butler had warrants from three counties — Seminole, Flagler and Lake — for Ashley's arrest.

The Seminole County warrant was for failure to appear in court to answer a grand theft charge lodged by sheriff's investigators Dec. 2.

In that incident, Ashley was accused of contracting with several area residents to pave their driveways but failing to do the work.

CONCEALED WEAPON

A 29-year-old man charged with disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed weapon is being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $500 bond.

The man was arrested on U.S. Highway 17-92, across from the Fountain Motor Lodge, by a Sanford policeman who was looking for a suspect who had created a disturbance at a nearby ABC Lounge.

When the officer stopped the man, who was running north along the roadway, he was reportedly very agitated as he waited for the officer to check his identification. At one point told the lawman that he "could blow you away," the police report said.

The suspect was charged with disorderly conduct and Richard E. Childs of 364 Lake Howell Circle, State Road 436, Casselberry, told sheriff's deputies that someone stole his $500 boat trailer from his apartment complex parking lot between Monday and Thursday.

Florida P. Thompson, of 7726 S. Redbranch Lane, Winter Park, gave sheriff's deputies the name of the man she believes took a luggage rack and four tires off her car, leaving the vehicle up on blocks, Wednesday or Thursday. The value of the parts was estimated at $800.

Allen Lee Hicks, 37, of 2231 W. Lake Brantley Drive, Longwood, reported that someone took a $600 boat motor from his boat docked in a lake in his back yard between Monday and Thursday, a sheriff's report said.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Robert William Evans, 27, of 1811 Stanley St., Longwood, was arrested at 9:30 p.m. Thursday after his car allegedly cut in front of a deputy on State Road 436 and failed to maintain a single lane, almost hitting several vehicles before stopping at the intersection of Wilshire Boulevard and State Road 436, Casselberry.

—Roosevelt Barkley, 53, of P.O. Box 76, Oviedo, at 12:18 Friday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on State Road 520, Oviedo.

—Allison Denise Mills, 21, of 1020 Gregory Drive, Maitland, at 2:18 a.m. Friday on State Road 436, Casselberry, after her car failed to maintain a single lane and ran off the road as she drove east.

The average police officer doesn't live long enough to retire and they have a higher divorce rate than any other profession.

"It's the frustration of cases like this and coping with the constant noise pollution from that radio all the time that causes stress.

"This woman is a perfect example. We've been out after her six times now. If she hadn't been issued a warning Friday we wouldn't have been able to make the arrest today, because we couldn't catch her in the act. And the judge may let her go and we may be back to get her again tomorrow. That's frustrating.

In that case, and in the majority of other crimes, Trombly said alcohol plays a major role.

It's hard to disagree.

It's Saturday night and I'm cruising the streets with Lt. William Hogan. We head for the south end of the county to calm and disarm a woman who, despondent over the pending loss of her home and having been rejected for an administrative position with the Orange County school system, has tried to blot out her problems with alcohol. It didn't work. The booze only added to her troubles.

She had been drinking for 10 hours and had threatened to kill herself, her roommate and three other people. A 58-caliber pistol, which she had hidden in her hand, had been pointed at her throat. Deputy G.H. Nagata, the first officer on the scene, had to restrain the 46-year-old woman.

He could have forced the situation, disarmed her and taken her into custody, but instead he called for a supervisor, hoping 40-year-old Hogan, who has a reputation, according to another deputy, of being able to "talk the bite out of a snake," could resolve the conflict without resorting to force.

About an hour-and-a-half after Hogan walked into the woman's bedroom, she walked quietly out with her hands cuffed behind her back as Hogan and Nagata escorted her to a waiting ambulance. The cuffs were removed with her promise that she would behave on her way to Florida Hospital-Altamonte to face a psychiatric exam.

Hogan spent a hour more with the woman, reassuring her until he saw her securely strapped in a hospital bed.

Then we were on the road again.

"I had to find out what made her tick," Hogan said as he explained how he defused the potentially volatile situation. "I began to realize that she really wanted help and this was her way of asking for it. I had to show her that she had no choice, so I finally just asserted my authority, cuffed her and she came right along. For me to be able to do that I had to feel that the threat was real and definite. I wasn't concerned for my safety, but she could have put that gun to her head at any time. I couldn't just leave her there with that possibility. You have to be calm and assertive when you walk into a situation where you know there is a loaded gun."

Hogan has learned to deal with people through experience, over 14 years of it as a patrolman, investigator, drug task force member, and head of crimes against property and persons with the Seminole County sheriff's department.

And that's pretty much the pattern that the officers under Sheriff John Polk follow. They go from duty to duty, learning all department functions. Almost any experienced officer can handle just about any job. Polk has assigned 65 men and 7 women to patrol the county in three shifts. And the deputies on patrol that I talked with said they like that duty best because that's where the action is.

Action was pretty slow on this Saturday night, but Hogan gave me (a sheltered, non-nocturnal person who is usually asleep by 11 p.m.) a tour of the trouble-producing hot spots in his west Seminole territory. Hot spot translates into "bar." And as Hogan made his rounds, he tried to enlighten me so the ABC Lounge, the Hotline Bottle Club, Club 436, The New York Times and Circus Circus would mean more to me than just names on deputies' reports that I scan on weekday mornings.

We walked through the back door at Circus Circus on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, and Hogan lagged behind as I stepped up to scan the scene. Before I had a chance to focus on the bunch of bare-breasted women gyrating before a rather unenthusiastic audience, a very scantily clad woman rushed up, threw her arms around me, and I think — I can't be real sure — cause my mind went blank with shock — she kissed me on the cheek. It was the friendliest greeting I've ever gotten from someone I'd never seen and it made me beat a quick retreat back to my lawman escort.

Hogan wrapped up this duty with a quick run to a traffic accident on Markham Woods Road. He assisted with traffic control and helped an injured woman onto a stretcher. Then we were on our way to meet with midnight shift leader Lt. Lawrence Ford, who Hogan said would take me along with him. ...that is, if his wife wasn't riding with him.

Shift leaders determine whether wives go on patrol, but Hogan said he would never bring his wife along, because he might have to do something he wouldn't want her to see.

He wouldn't, he said, have wanted his wife to have been along seven years ago when he came around a corner and spotted two of his men on the ground, shot by a man high on angel dust who had just beaten his father to death.

Hogan pumped four bullets into the man, but because the killer could feel no pain (an effect of the drug in his system) Hogan said he had to tackle the suspect to stop him. Both the wounded deputies and the murderer survived. The gunman is now a resident of the Ralford state prison.

Ford's wife was riding with him that night, so I paired up with Sgt. Taylor Roundtree, 40, who has been on the force for 12 years.

Around 1:30 a.m., we responded to a break-in call at Douglas Pharmacy, Longwood. The burglar ignored the cash in the register and fled with three empty bottles labeled "Dilaudid", a powerful painkiller.

Roundtree inspected the damage, which included a broken window where the thief had entered the building, and investigator David Smith arrived to process the scene for fingerprints and other physical evidence.

We were no longer needed so we hit the road.

We rode and rode. Roundtree on alert for anything that didn't fit into the primarily rural areas we cruised. But everything fit. The monotony was broken only by a minor car vs. motorcycle accident and a coffee break.

I'd had enough. It was 4:30 a.m. and I needed some sleep.

But through a fatigue-induced haze I came up with these pithy observations: If you don't want to spend endless boring hours behind the wheel of a car with a radio squawking in your ears, if you aren't interested in social work, if you don't have the courage to face the unknown, if you don't want to put your life on the line, if you don't have the patience to check and recheck what you've just checked and then to write a report about it, if you prefer a lunch break to a coffee break, or if you're a frequent visitor to restrooms you're not cut out to be a sheriff's patrolman.

High Court's Ruling Makes Good Sense

The Supreme Court says failing businesses can get out of burdensome union contracts on filing for bankruptcy, even though they can't prove survival is at stake.

That may be good news for businessmen, but it is bad news for labor unions.

Reaction came quickly from labor leaders. One found the ruling "outrageous." Others turned to Congress for relief. They want the nation's bankruptcy laws revised as soon as possible.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., was one of the first congressmen to respond. He says he will introduce a bill that would specifically require a company facing bankruptcy to get court approval before cancelling a labor contract.

We think the court ruling makes sense, and Congress should be wary of any hurry-up fixes. After all, a firm facing bankruptcy must cut back on the expenditures wherever possible if it is to have any chance to survive. Often union contracts providing high wages and expensive benefits are a firm's heaviest financial burden.

Continental Airlines is a good example. It broke its labor contract and cut back on the pay of employees when it filed for bankruptcy last year. It said it couldn't continue to pay high wages and compete with other airlines. The maneuver worked. Continental jetliners are still flying.

There actually were two decisions by the Supreme Court. It ruled 9-0 that a business does not have to prove to a bankruptcy judge that its survival would be jeopardized if it continued to honor union agreements. The court also ruled 5-4 that a business may unilaterally cancel a union contract while being reorganized by a bankruptcy court.

Justice William H. Rehnquist said in his opinion that a "bankruptcy court should permit rejection of a collective-bargaining agreement ... if the debtor can show that the agreement burdens the estate, and that, after careful scrutiny, the equities balance in favor of rejecting the labor contract."

Unions fear the business community will use the threat of bankruptcy as an anti-labor weapon, a means to gain cheaper labor. But if unions persist in holding a firm to its high-cost labor agreements even though it means the firm will have to go out of business, they are doing their memberships harm.

In ordinary circumstances, when a business is making money, it would have no legal reason to get out of its labor contracts. The Supreme Court ruling will affect only those firms in deep financial trouble. Most workers, given the choice between lower pay or no job at all, will take a cutback in pay. To hold on stubbornly to higher pay would mean only to cut off their pay altogether by putting their employers out of business.

U.S. Citizens Fail

U.S. citizens have a poor voting record. In the 1982 elections, only 58.8 percent of the potential American voters cast ballots.

This was one of the worst records in the free world in recent elections. Twenty-five other countries had better records.

Australia ranked first with 95.4 percent of its potential vote being cast. It was followed by Venezuela, Austria, Italy and Belgium.

The American system of government and freedom is based on citizen participation. When only half the potential voters turn out at an election, it indicates that people are turned off or alienated. Too many people believe that their votes do not count, and so they do not take the trouble to go to the polls.

If voting percentages continue to decline, we will find that small minorities and special interest groups will be able to control elections.

One way to increase voting would be to give each voter a small tax exemption. Another suggestion that has been made is to hold elections on Saturdays or Sundays, as is done in several other countries. If our country is to remain free with a responsible government, we must find a means of motivating voters.

JEFFREY HART Reagan's Gamble In Lebanon

The gamble has not paid off, for reasons that appear clear in 20-20 hindsight, but it was not a foolish or ignoble gamble. After all, in politics as in other matters, you can't win them all.

It is frequently said, carelessly, that the administration has no Middle East policy.

But, in Lebanon, Reagan's aims were plain enough. He hoped to put together an updated version of the old Lebanese power-sharing equation.

Under the old arrangement, the Maronite Christians were dominant, and, by agreement with the Druse Moslems, controlled the presidency. The Gemayel government represented a resuscitation of that concept. Under the old arrangement, the Moslems had the vice presidency, and there was a delicate balance of power in the legislature.

But this reckoned without the Shiite Moslem underclass, once politically passive, and constituting 40 percent of the population.

The Shites, however, have now been energized politically by the fundamentalist Moslem revolution started by the Ayatollah. Somehow the old Lebanese equation had to be modified to take account of this new political reality. This was the hope of the Reagan administration, and the basis upon which the Israelis withdrew their forces southward.

But, no dice. The Syrians were not buying.

In an attempt to negotiate a new power equation with the Druse and Shiite forces, President Gemayel at Geneva made offer after offer, only to have his opposite numbers, egged on by Syria, keep escalating their demands.

And after all, why not? Syria, reinforced by the Soviets, is, in the absence of Israeli armor, the power on the ground in Lebanon. Our 1500 Marines and the other "peace keeping" forces never were a match for 40,000 Syrian troops and 5,000 Soviet advisors.

The "Ariel Sharon" option is no longer available. When Sharon's mechanized forces were rampaging on the outskirts of Beirut and threatening the destruction of the Syrians in the Bekka region, the Reagan administration succumbed to a direct threat from the late Leonid Brezhnev and prevailed upon the Israelis to call off the attack. The Syrians stayed where they were, and hold the balance of military power in Lebanon.

The Gemayel-Reagan negotiating hopes were further undercut by repeated demands from congressional Democrats for a precipitous pullout. This made it clear to Assad of Syria and his Lebanese allies that they had everything to gain by refusing to compromise. How could any negotiation succeed, even in its minimal objectives, while the United States position was being daily undercut by the opposition party at home?

Under the circumstances, Reagan has had no choice but to pull out, witness a Syrian takeover of northern Lebanon, and see the rise of Syria as a potent Soviet ally in the Middle East.

Grenada Coup Leader A Wife-Beater?

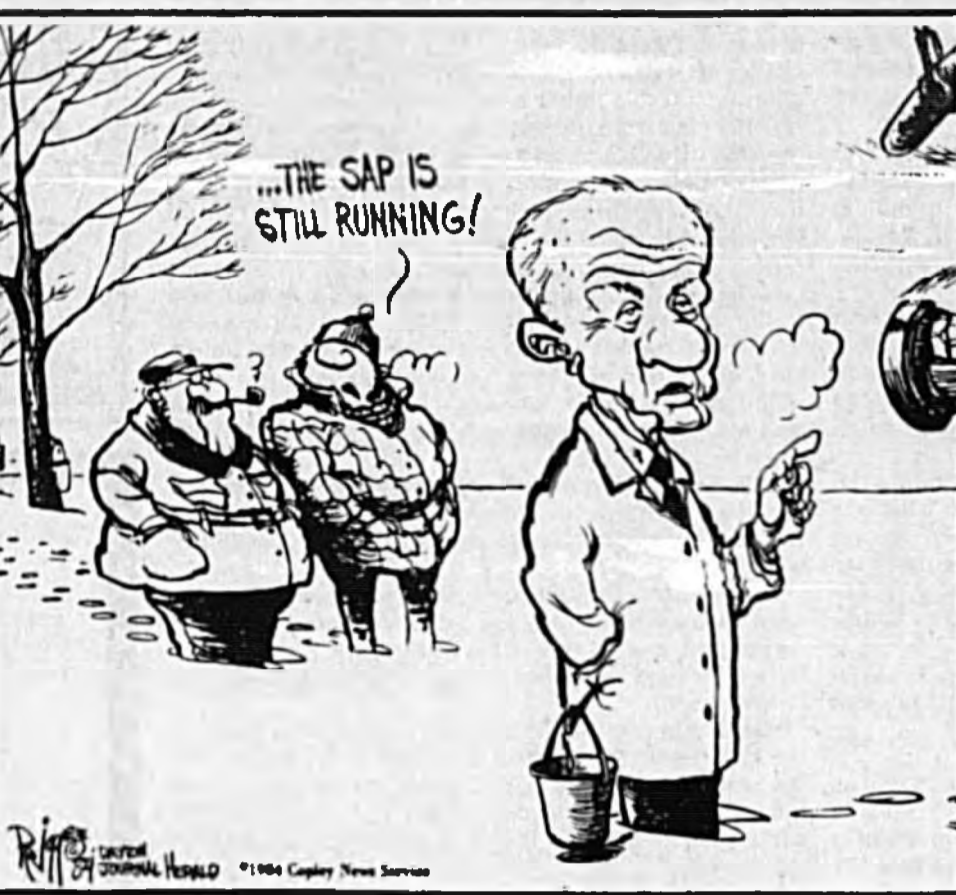

WASHINGTON — One of the most amazing documents captured from the Marxist government of Grenada was a detailed report on a man who blatantly cheated on his wife, beat her up, and on one occasion pulled a gun on her. The report was stamped "Confidential."

Why was the report so hush-hush? Simple: The husband accused of such abominable behavior was none other than Gen. Hudson Austin, commander of Grenada's armed forces.

It was Austin, a former prison guard, who proclaimed himself the head of the 16-member military junta that deposed and executed Prime Minister Maurice Bishop, thereby touching off the U.S. invasion of the island last October.

What makes the document even more fascinating is that it was written by Phyllis Coard, a high-ranking member of the Marxist "New Jewel Movement" and wife of Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard, who masterminded the bloody coup that ousted Bishop.

Austin and the Coards were captured when U.S. Marines and paratroopers landed on Grenada. All three Marxist leaders are now in Grenada's Richmond Hill Prison.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Jackson's Turnabout

NEW YORK (NEA) — Having recently honed the snickersnee of "ethnic sensitivity" to razor sharpness for the high purpose of disemboweling Interior Secretary James Watt, liberal Democrats are now in the unhappy position of watching it turn into a boomerang and start flying around among the candidates for their party's presidential nomination. Apparently those who live by the sword just can't seem to remember the fate in store for them.

Jesse Jackson's recantation of his reference to Jews as "Hymies" and to New York City as "Hymietown" was handsomely done, and probably went as far as anything could to minimize the damage caused by his ethnic slur. But there is a lingering doubt about the sincerity of his volte-face, and that doubt is rendered considerably stronger by the way Rev. Jackson behaved in the days between making the offensive remarks and retracting them.

For approximately 72 hours Jackson insisted that he had "no recollection" of making the statements, and that the accusation that he had done so was "not accurate." To reporters in New Hampshire he was tantalizingly equivocal: "I won't deny nor at any level will I admit it." A little later he asserted, "From my point of view it's a denial."

Now that Jackson acknowledged having made the statements in question, what are we to think of these interim utterances? Did he suddenly remember that he had in fact used the terms "Hymie" and "Hymietown"? Or did he (as is surely more likely) know it all along? And, in that case, what were his ensuing assertions but deliberate attempts to mislead, little (if any) short of barefaced lies? And if the latter, what confidence can anyone repose in the sincerity of his subsequent recantation of the original remarks?

These questions could perhaps be glossed over if it were, say, Reuben Askew or Fritz Hollings who had made the remarks in question — candidates who, like Jackson himself, have no serious hope of winning the nomination. But Jackson, unlike Askew or Hollings, has a vital role to play in this year's Democratic election scenario. Sometime between now and the day on which

Fritz Mondale is finally nominated in San Francisco, there must be serious negotiations between Mondale's representatives and Jackson's, in which Mondale privately but solemnly undertakes to do various specific things for Jackson if Mondale is elected president in November. Then Jackson must appear at the rostrum of the convention, put his arm around the delighted victor's shoulder, and pledge his most strenuous efforts to deliver the black vote to Mondale on Election Day.

Now, it appears, those undertakings and that pledge will have to be exchanged between Mondale and a black leader whose retraction of a gratuitous slur on Jews is, at best, less than totally convincing.

Mondale will make those undertakings nonetheless, because if push comes to shove the black vote in this country is both bigger and far more monolithic than the Jewish vote. But he can hardly be comfortable about it, or expect the Republicans to stop reminding him of his dilemma.

What has happened, of course, is that the old Roosevelt Democratic coalition, in which both Jews and blacks had honored places, has long since fallen apart. Black leaders in recent years have increasingly turned for support in other directions — most spectacularly toward the Arabs, and toward the PLO in particular. Arab contributions totaling $200,000 to Jackson's Operation PUSH — contributions he contends he never learned about, or can't remember — are almost certainly just the tip of the iceberg. Pretty obviously, important Arab interests have made a command decision to finance certain black political leaders in this country, and in return are receiving sympathetic attention for their arguments on Middle Eastern issues.

As for Mondale, he has adopted a basic strategy of trying to build an electoral majority out of a broad spectrum of minorities. He is now discovering, painfully, just how difficult that can be.

moon, shuttled through space and conquered the mysteries of the deep. But today's Girl Scout might disagree. That's because she's busy finding new and exciting worlds every day through her participation in Girl Scouting. Girl Scout Week, March 11-17, is a reminder that for 72 years, girls have been having fun, gaining solid learning experiences and enriching their world through Girl Scouting.

The Sanford and Lake Mary Girl Scouts have planned a round of activities to herald the week when Girl Scouts around the nation will also be celebrating.

According to Ruth M. Leggore, Sanford Area Girl Scouts belong to the Orange Blossom Service Unit, and Lake Mary Girl Scouts, under the leadership of Donna Young, belong to the Snoopy Service Unit.

For the past six years, after attending church services in groups, Brownie Troops will present azaleas to the city of Sanford in the traditional Azalea Ring Ceremony to be held at Fort Mellon Park, on Sunday, March 11, at 1 p.m. Sanford City Commissioner David Farr will receive the floral tribute.

On Tuesday, March 13, Girl Scouts will gather for a skating party, from 4 to 7 p.m., at Melodee Skating Rink in Sanford.

A Girl Scout Bike-A-Thon will be held Saturday, March 17, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Lake Mary High School. During this time the girls will have their bikes inspected, learn safety rules and ride a skills course.

Girl Scouts are busy — doing more than selling cookies annually.

VIEWPOINT

On Those Hollywood Capitalists

By John P. Cregan

Editors Note: John P. Cregan is a staff writer for the USBIC Writer's Group. His column is published in a variety of newspapers throughout the United States.

In working with dramatic and comedic television, Hollywood scriptwriters find it easier to create predictable stereotypes rather than well-developed characters.

American business has long been a favorite target of the TV typecaster. The TV CEO is usually a one-dimensional character driven by greed and shorn of principle. In a medium given to "good guy/bad guy" plots, the business executive is continually awarded the role of the latter.

The irony in all of this, of course, is that American business is helping to perpetuate its negative TV image by commercial sponsorship of the very shows that pander to this stereotype.

Recently, a new half-hour comedy called "Empire" debuted on the CBS network. The show is blessed with fine acting and hilarious scripts. Unfortunately, its theme is based entirely on the notion that most of the evils in today's world are perpetrated by the American businessman.

The weekly sitcom concerns the daily machinations of the senior executives of a powerful multinational corporation, Empire, Inc. The first episode dealt mainly with the trivial — interoffice politics and interoffice backstabbing and proved to be quite funny.

"Empire," however, then turned preachy and political. The head of legal affairs contrived ways for "Empire" to renege on its recent union contract. The chief of operations, a megomaniacal ex-CIA officer, revels in the days he "hunted down communists."

The most wicked of the evil men and women of "Empire," however, is the company's chairman. He is cozy with the fictitious American president (who is depicted as a political conservative), and was once under consideration for the cabinet post of interior secretary. This caused all sorts of scrambling among "Empire's" top brass, who boasted how they would swell company profits by raping the land and polluting the air during their boss' tenure.

When Empire, Inc. wishes to construct a plant in a Third World country named Kambia, the company's chairman begs the president to invade the nation and rid it of its armed guerrillas. "Kambia" must be made "safe for profit taking" the "Empire" chairman declares.

"Empire" helps forward the aims of anti-business groups and individuals in this country by incorporating their propagandist litany into its most reduced forms: profit is a bad thing; government is in the pocket of business; capitalism is imperialistic and leads to war; unions serve the best interests of the workers; unions are constantly conned by management.

All of these themes are neatly tucked into a slickly packaged 30-minute comedy which is transmitted into millions of living rooms, thanks to the advertising dollars of American business.

unbenefitting to a leader of the Party — particularly his being locked up inside his house ... with another woman several times weekly while her car remained outside in public view, and the fact that his children were aware of his liaison with this woman.

"(b) It is widely known that the comrade pulled his gun at his wife and daughter some weeks ago. This has caused deep concern among the people as a gross abuse of power.

"(c) The Comrade's beating his wife on Good Friday is now widely known, she had to jump through the window and ran up the road in a semi-dressed where a woman neighbor had to apply methylated spirits to wound across her back. I confirmed this.

"(d) It is also widely known that the Comrade locked the bedroom door after the latest incident in which his wife left him; making it impossible for her to obtain her salary and her clothes in order to go to work"

The battered wife herself did not escape criticism. Ms. Coard wrote that "women supporters of the Party disapprove of Ann Austin's behavior in widely publicizing their home problems," though she did add: "However, the sisters feel deep sympathy for Ann because of her financial struggle over the years"

The report concluded: "We must bear in mind that as more women are becoming politically conscious and more will become so, this type of chauvinist behavior will become more and more intolerable to them."

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Offshore banks that launder dollars for international drug smugglers are growing bolder. One bank in the Cayman Islands, where disclosure laws are loose, recently tried to open a branch office in Pakistan — a prime source of opium.

Some American senators alerted Pakistan to the scheme, but Pakistani authorities couldn't locate the Cayman bank's branch office in their country. The Pakistanis asked the State Department for help, but Peggy Bottom wouldn't get involved, apparently for fear of offending a Caribbean neighbor.

The Pakistanis finally located the branch bank on their own — and shut it down.

Life In Russia 'A Modern Book Is Harder To Come By Than Black Caviar'

Editor's note: This article by Soviet dissident historian Roy Medvedev, titled Propaganda, Power and Information in the U.S.S.R., was delivered to UPI shortly before police were posted at his door to prevent visits by foreign reporters.

By Roy Medvedev
Written for UPI

MOSCOW (UPI) — Many Americans do not understand the difference between propaganda and information in the U.S.S.R. and the United States.

America has quite a few political parties, organizations and religious groups. However, their propaganda is merely a part of the general flow of information. Things are quite different in the U.S.S.R. Information is merely a part of the propaganda campaign being waged by the party.

Any piece of information that gets in the way of propaganda must be kept out of the press. At the very least, it has to be prettied up, distorted, given a more acceptable form.

When a crowded Moscow bus crashed into a lake and a soldier who was passing by saved the lives of six passengers, Pravda wrote of this incident under the headline "A Soldier's Heroic Deed."

Not a word was said about the other passengers who died. The death of 250 soldiers (Marines) in Beirut was a tragedy for the whole of America. However, if there were such an explosion in Afghanistan, the Soviet press would pass the entire event over in complete silence.

However, it is impossible to run a country without the requisite information. The higher a Soviet official is in the hierarchy, the more information he has the right to have access to. This privilege has many gradations, for a freer access to information is not only a sign of power, it is also a weapon of power.

Even the incompetent worker who has access to wide information acquires great authority within the bureaucratic system. The man in the street is at the very bottom rung of this hierarchy. Foreign journalists often have less rights than he does to information.

Under such a system, even the uppermost echelons suffer from a lack of information, which is deformed, not only when it is passed from the top to the lower echelons, but also vice versa.

Those in power begin to see events as they would like to see them or as the influential "apparatus" would like to represent them. Many aspects of life in the Soviet Union are not studied at all for the adherents of ideological dogma fear the results of such studies (and not without justification).

This is why many Soviet leaders are reminiscent of a captain piloting his terrible ship in an ocean full of danger, with no clear idea of the winds or currents, of the mechanism that drives his ship, or of the mood of his crew. It isn't surprising that our ship often goes in a different direction, at a different speed, from those which the captain standing on the bridge has commanded.

The Soviet Union particularly needs to be studied by outsiders. Not only because the foreigner sees what we fail to notice. The foreign journalist also sees what which Soviet people know often better than any foreigner. However, a Soviet writer will leave many aspects of life in the Soviet Union alone if he values his status and, often, his freedom.

Propaganda calls us the mostly widely reading society in the world. However, the ordinary Russian cannot get hold of even the Russian classics and a good modern book is harder to come by than even black caviar. Are there that many good books published in our country? It would be more correct to call our country the most silent in the world.

In his memoirs about the U.S. political scene, Henry Kissinger revealed more than 10 Sovietological institutes could find out about the Soviet political scene in 10 years of research. Who among Soviet political figures writes memoirs the likes of Kissinger's? Are Brezhnev's memoirs worth remembering or being appraised today?

It is difficult to study the Soviet Union for a number of reasons. One of them is the division of our life into several "zones," of which the most important are the most inaccessible.

One zone comprises that which may and should be known. The Kremlin, metro, Zagorsk, the VDNKh (Exhibition of Economic Achievements), Suzdal, the Hermitage, Samarkand, etc. All of these are very interesting, but are mostly for the tourist who, when in Paris, visits the Louvre and the Eiffel Tower, not the workers' districts.

We have other zones that cannot be hidden from the correspondent or from the inquisitive tourist. Nobody stops the Washington Post correspondent from strolling around the outskirts of Moscow or from having a beer in an ordinary pub. But he cannot observe the daily routine in institutes and enterprises where Soviet people spend most of their life.

The foreigner needs special permission to visit this

The death of 250 soldiers (Marines) in Beirut was a tragedy for the whole of America. However, if there were such an explosion in Afghanistan, the Soviet press would pass the entire event over in complete silence.

zone, which is not the least bit secret. However, few foreigners are given this permission. And if they manage to visit something, it is usually a model collective or state farm or factory.

Some other zones of Soviet life are completely barred to the curious foreigner, entry to them being by pass only. It is not a question of military bases or institutions. Tocqueville, the Frenchman, went to the United States 150 years ago to study its system of prisons and corrective institutions. No obstacles were put in his way.

George Kennan made a detailed study of the penal system in czarist Russia and of the places of exile to which revolutionaries were sent. His book, entitled Siberia and the System of Exile, has been translated into many languages, including Russian. But could even the most progressive American journalist undertake such research today?

It is not only entry to prisons and corrective labor camps that is by permit only. Signs saying "entry by permit only" can also be seen near the entrances of a great many sanatoria and boarding houses in which the Soviet elite spend their holidays.

The leader of the union of French steelworkers spent last year's summer holiday at the best trade union sanitarium in the town of Zhelezovodsk in a deluxe suite. While strolling around the outskirts of town, the French communist caught sight of another sanitarium not far from his own, situated at the edge of a lake, with tennis courts and a handsome grove. He wanted to get to know his neighbors but the guard stopped him.

This was "Dubovaya Rosheh" (Oak Grove), considered to be the sanitarium of the CPSU (Communist Party of the Soviet Union) Central Committee, even though many people who have absolutely no connections with the Central Committee rest there.

The Frenchman asked his interpreter to get him a pass. Ten days of frenzied effort passed. The International Department of the All-Union Central Trade Council in Moscow even tried to help. However, despite all efforts, the pass was categorically refused.

Such a wide diversity of zones gives rise to a great many errors when describing the U.S.S.R. A prominent communist sometimes leaves our country feeling very annoyed. And on the contrary, the American anti-communist and popular religious preachers sometimes leave with a feeling of gratitude, amazed at the religious freedoms they unexpectedly found in the Soviet Union. Perhaps we do not see them there, just as the air is invisible to us.

Leading politicians respect the Western mass media because of its relative independence. Many commentators and journalists in America are very influential people. Their Soviet counterparts are well-disciplined white-collar workers or "party sentinels." But after all, a soldier must salute and carry out the orders of the "party officers" to say nothing of its "generals."

These ideas are often transferred to foreign journalists. I was once at the house of an American journalist. She got a phone call from New York. Our hostess came back completely dismayed. "The boss wants me to interview Brezhnev in the next few days. He gave me a list of questions," I could only sympathize with the young journalist.

Accustomed to the complacency of leading American politicians, the self-assured TV boss might suddenly consider his Moscow reporter incompetent. Even Walter Cronkite, a man that the whole of America knows and trusts, could not get an interview with any of the Soviet leaders even though he was working on a program about war and peace.

Nevertheless, a good journalist can overcome many obstacles. Fritz Patken, a German television journalist, made almost 1,000 films about the life of our country and Soviet people. Most of the films were made without the permission of the authorities. I have seen a few of them. I think that in 50 years the Soviet Union will spend some of its foreign currency and buy them from the archives of German television.

For it is our history, which we ourselves value so little, and which some of our guests help us preserve, despite all the barriers of incomprehension.

EDB Job 'Outstanding'

Editor's Note: The following letter is being re-run due to a typographical error.

The City of Sanford has had and still has one of the best potable water systems in the state. About 20 years ago after the city completed the fourth well at the Mayfair Country Club, it had the capacity to supply the city with water and still had an adequate supply for future expansion. In the meantime, the surplus capacity was being used to supply Lake Mary, Midway and the Indian Mound area. The Central Florida Research and Education Center could not have located here in 1966, if water from the City of Sanford had not been available.

The ethylene dibromide (EDB) incident is estimated to cost each water customer an average of an additional $1.00 per month. This is indeed a small price to pay for an abundant supply of pure water and we can thank the city for responding quickly and efficiently to the EDB contamination. We owe Petr Knowles and his associates a vote thanks for a job well done!

The only confirmed application of EDB in the vicinity of the city wells at Mayfair in the last three years was in August 1983. It was applied at the rate of only 2.0 to 2.5 gallons per acre. By November 1983 it had contaminated all Mayfair wells but one. For a period of 25 to 30 years EDB was used on celery fields adjacent to Celery avenue east of Sanford at a rate of 4.0 to 6 gallons per acre. People living in the farming area east of Sanford drank water from both shallow and deep wells with no apparent ill effects. In the mid-sixties, the city began supplying water to the area east of Sanford. There is no known incident of cancer or tumors in humans being caused by EDB. The 0.1 part per billion of EDB set by the state equates to one drop of EDB in 110,000 gallons of water.

This extremely low concentration helped to focus national attention on EDB contamination in our potable water and in some of our food products, forcing the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to ban the use of EDB and to set more reasonable, but still safe levels of EDB in our food. The EPA has not yet set a tolerance level for EDB in our potable water, but the level will probably be higher than that in some of the city wells which the city shut down.

The city reacted quickly and wisely, and as a result, we continue to have an adequate supply of safe water, not only for the 10,000 present customers but also, with the completion of the four new wells, sufficient capacity to accommodate future expansion. We owe the city a debt of gratitude for an outstanding job of saving our water supply, hopefully for years to come.

Help Getting Rail Cars Removed Appreciated

We, the citizens of the Seminole Park Subdivision, Seminole County, are appreciative and extremely thankful to all responsible for succeeding in disposing Amtrak's once-owned defunct rail cars from our neighborhood.

Their success is a lucid example resulting from citizens', newspapers', local legislators', and other proper authorities' interactions to accomplish a goal for the betterment of all. Moreover, a goal attained by working together based upon the principles this nation of ours was built, and, the fundamentals guaranteed to us all by our constitution.

Again, we infinitely extend our gratitude to ALL involved.

Invasion Of Immigrants Destroying America

The following is a copy of a letter that I recently wrote to Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., senators Lawton Chiles and Paula Hawkins, and Rep. Bill McCollum. A similar letter was sent to President Reagan:

"It doesn't take a genius to determine that practically no restrictions on immigration is fast destroying our country. I have the feeling that you in Congress have turned your backs on the seriousness of the immigration problem, and as a result you all know that millions of tax dollars are given to aliens who have done nothing to deserve it, while many of our deserving citizens are suffering.

My observation is that instead of representing we the people, that you in Congress are actually representing special interest groups, lobbyists, and yourselves politically.

I have no objection to immigrants entering the U.S.A. properly and orderly as they did through Ellis Island, but for them to come in by the boat loads and swarm across our border, and then for our government to give them amnesty and support them doesn't make sense.

It is ironic that our military is scattered around the world helping other nations, while they are desperately needed here to help stop the invasion of aliens into our country. Why not use the military to assist our Border Patrol as much as necessary? It would be worth it.

The Simpson-Mazzoli Bill is not strong enough, and doesn't seem to offer a real solution to the immigration problem.

Congress, in my opinion, for the most part, determines the course that our great nation will take, and I feel that if you in Congress loved America enough that you would do whatever necessary to control the cancerous problem of immigration immediately.

I will appreciate your using your influence to correct this situation. At least please oppose the amnesty section of the Simpson-Mazzoli Bill.

Thank you.

Proposition 1 Fears

For the information of Herald readers, The Citizens' Tax Cutting Amendment ... The Floridians For Tax Relief Drive, and Proposition One, are all one and the same endeavor. More than enough signatures were obtained last year throughout the state of Florida to have its proposal put on this November's ballot for a state wide vote.

If this proposal passes, it will roll back most (not all), state and government revenues to 1980-81 levels, with any future increases limited to two-thirds of the annual increase in the Consumer Price Index ... unless approved by a vote of the taxpaying public... by vote... (ballot).

If this proposal passes, an estimated $2.4 billion, or 22.5 percent would be cut from present revenues for '85-'86.

Contrary to what politicians, Big Business, Governor Graham, The Florida League of Cities and other money bureaucrats are saying (and they are all running scared)... saying that most public services will have to be curtailed, police, teachers, etc. It will cut back the bloating paychecks, exotic vacation trips, special bomb shelters for state or government officials only, plus the haphazard purchasing of thousand dollar chairs to sit in their offices and while in session, if and when they do attend. One gets dizzy just thinking of how our chosen representatives spend our money and raise their salaries without we the people, whom they are working for, having anything to say about it. Therefore, I feel that the people should have something to say about their own money, especially, when they, the politicians, still want more.

Governor Graham states very loud and clear: "No Raise In Taxes This Year." Voters, notice the word this, but wait until next year. If Proposition One does not pass, it is up to you... the voter. Proposition One passes or it does not. Just Get Out and Vote.

Worse Than 'Trash'

My intentions were good. I didn't intend to write the editor again, especially on the subject of animals.

But I am so angry, I haven't seen a dog in my yard in several weeks and as a result have been cleaning up my vocabulary. This morning while pruning rose bushes I stepped in the filth a big dog left in my yard last night and had a bad case of backsliding.

What I called the owner of that dog was much worse than "trash." The difference in the president of the Humane Society and me is that I mean every darn word of what I call the selfish slob who let a pet invade my property.

If your big dog climbs the fence at night while you are sleeping, you are still responsible. Bring the dog in the house at night. I raised two of Rin Tin Tin's grandsons and they slept on rugs by my bed.

Chicken wire across the top of the fence will prevent climbing over

1965 Act Preserves Seniors' Programs

There's been some unsettling talk down at my local senior center. Apparently some of the wonderful programs we now have — meals-on-wheels and our senior employment programs — will run out of money at the end of September. The Reagan administration has taken a lot of things away from us old folks, but I can't believe these special programs will also go by the wayside.

A. Let me put your fears to rest. The Older Americans Act, which was enacted in 1965, funds the programs you mention — and it's certain to continue. The OAA comes up for reauthorization this year, however, and each of its components will be evaluated and dollar amounts assigned.

Congress established the Older Americans Act in response to the lack of community social services for older persons. Several subsequent amendments to the act, the latest of which were enacted in 1981, expanded existing programs and set up new ones, including methods for coordinating the social and health care services that have been developed over the last 18 years.

The OAA has become the primary social services program for the elderly. In addition to social services, the act now authorizes grants for nutrition services, senior center facilities, training, research and demonstration activities, and public service employment projects.

To distribute and coordinate these diverse services, the act established an "aging network" of state and area agencies on aging. State agencies on aging are required to establish area agencies on aging to develop area-wide social service delivery systems for older persons. Funds are allocated to the states based upon their total share of the population 60 and older. In turn, states reallocate funds to area agencies on aging, based on a formula determined by the state in consultation with local agencies, aging organizations and advocacy groups.

The Select Committee on Aging's subcommittee on human services, chaired by Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., has been conducting hearings and informal meetings to assess the needs of the elderly in this country. The subcommittee will present its findings to the House Committee on Education and Labor, which is responsible for renewing the OAA.

The mission of the Older Americans Act is important. It was created to provide the needy elderly with an array of services to help them maintain their independence and dignity. We may have something of a struggle with the administration, which has gutted some OAA programs in the past, but we will fight for the greatest funding possible.

Congress has reaffirmed its support for a categorical Older Americans Act on eight occasions, under five different presidents and through passage of various reauthorization bills. It's an act that has stood up well to the tests of time and scrutiny — an act that must continue.

This column will advise you of developments in the reauthorization process.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

AFCOM Names Snyder Assistant Treasurer

CASSELBERRY — Brendon K. Snyder has been named to the position of assistant treasurer of AFCOM, a Casselberry-based distributor of fasteners and electronic components.

In his new position Snyder becomes responsible for accounting services including cash disbursements, credit and collections and preparation of payroll and budgets.

Brendon Snyder

Snyder will also work with data processing, said AFCOM Executive Vice President Ronald Roby, to develop new programs to streamline accounting operations.

Before joining AFCOM, Snyder served six years as accounting manager for Lens Tech, Inc., Ft. Lauderdale. Prior to that he was an accountant with STP Corp. of Boca Raton.

He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration, with a major in accounting, from the University of Florida in 1973. He is a member of the National Association of Accountants and the Institute of Management Accounting.

He will be based at AFCOM's Casselberry headquarters.

Firm To Loan Restraints

NORTHBROOK, Ill. — In response to grim accident statistics, Allstate Insurance Company has instituted a program to loan child safety seats to employees for a 10-month period. Each year auto accidents kill more than 700 children and seriously injure another 40,000 under the age of five.

In an effort to curb this carnage, Allstate is offering its employees the use of a child restraint. Prospective parents will be issued the seat one month before the anticipated birth.

The loaner seats will accommodate children weighing up to 20 pounds. The seats must be returned by the time the child is nine months old or reaches 20 pounds, whichever comes first. Parents will then be encouraged to buy toddler seats.

There are currently 40 states with child restraint laws. Studies by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration show that most parents do not provide their children with the protection child seats can offer.

Allstate has begun this program in hopes that it will lower the likelihood of employees' children being killed or injured in car accidents; it encourages employees to think about safety and to use seat belts themselves.

Shoemaking Show Slated

WINTER PARK — Bari of Florida will be presenting an exhibition on the art of handsewn shoemaking, March 14-17, featuring the master cobbler for Bostonian Men's Footwear, Aubrey Whitworth. He will be in the Colonial Plaza store on March 14, Winter Park Mall the 15th, Orlando Fashion Square on the 16th and the Altamonte Mall store on the 17th. Hours are 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.-9 p.m. each day.

Whitworth will be demonstrating the many steps (over 100 in all) required in the handsewn shoe process. He will be making shoes on a workbench right before customers' eyes and available to answer questions.

Aubrey Whitworth practices an art that has become increasingly rare in modern times. He began his career in the cutting room of a shoe factory over 32 years ago, and has participated in every step of handsewn shoe-making since. His credits include making shoes for five presidents of the United States. Handsewn shoes are renowned for flexible fit and comfort, with penny loafers and tassel moccasins among the most popular styles.

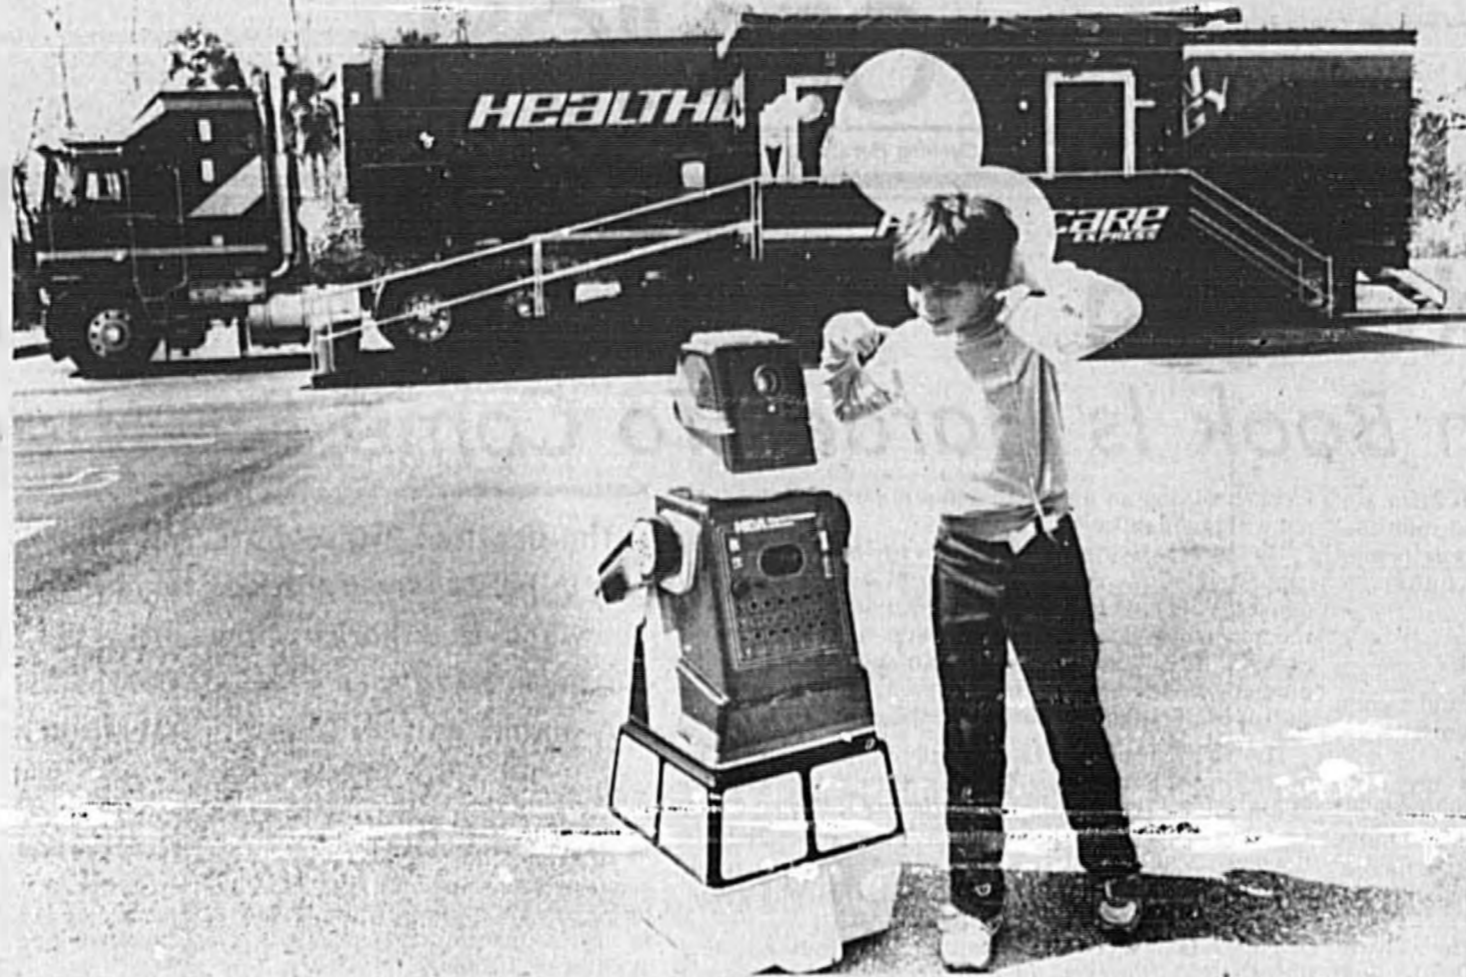

Small Business Workshop

UCF — A two-session evening workshop for persons interested in starting or managing a small business is scheduled March 6-7 under the co-sponsorship of four local organizations.

Each of the sessions will be held at Valencia Community College, West campus, there is a $5 per person fee for both evenings. Classes begin at 6:30 p.m.

On Tuesday, March 6, topics will include business plans, legal considerations, and recordkeeping and accounting. The following evening's session will be devoted to tax obligations, insurance considerations, and banking considerations. A roundtable question and answer period will follow each evening's program.

Information on the workshop may be obtained by calling the Small Business Development Center, University of Central Florida, at 275-2796. The SBDC is a co-sponsor with VCC, Service Corps of Retired Executives, and the Orlando Chamber of Commerce. In cooperation with the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Investing Wide Range Of Options, Greatest Vulnerability

(Editor's Note: The following overview begins UPI's 15-part series on investing. Forthcoming topics include investing in real estate, art, gems, investment advice, women and investments, tax shelters and more. Watch for it each week on the Herald's business page.)

By Mary Tobin
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe and Ann Zahm were 40 when they decided they should look for investments beyond their six-month bank CDs. Paul Cobuzzi was just out of college when he took his first flyer in the market.

The Zahms and Cobuzzi have today a wider range of choices that offer good returns and the potential for more capital gain than at any time in history.

As investment opportunities have expanded, however, so has their vulnerability to political and economic events and the economic scene probably is more uncertain than at any time since the 1930s.

There is no sure formula for successful investing. The Zahms and Cobuzzi took different but equally valid routes and are satisfied with their choices.

The important thing is that any investment suit individual needs, income and temperament.

Some mutual funds have initial investments of as little as $100. For the more affluent, brokerages have cash management accounts through which investors can diversify into stocks and bonds or put everything in liquid money market funds with a telephone call and with or without the advice of a broker-account manager.

Many mutual funds are so-called "families" in which an investor can switch at will from money market funds to stock or bond funds.

Every temperament can be accommodated: full service brokers for investors who need hand-holding and advice; discount brokers who, for a smaller fee, handle buy and sell orders for those who want to do their own homework.

Mutual funds, a good way for a beginner or small investor to get started, offer diversity, professional management and a wide choice of investment strategies ranging from relatively safe money market funds to speculative and conservative stock and bond funds.

Banks offer competing money market deposit accounts and dozens of different rates for deposits of different maturities and amounts. All are insured. And banks probably will soon be able to also handle stock and bond business.

Indeed your friendly neighborhood Sears Roebuck has money market funds, broker services and life insurance along with washing machines and clothing.

The Zahms are typical of many of today's professional couples — he's a clinical psychologist, she an executive with a computer software firm — busy at their careers, plowing some money into six-month CDs, and not really thinking much about the future.

"We both earn a good income and realized we had accumulated enough to be looking beyond our bank," said Zahm, who is on the teaching staff at a major hospital and has a private practice as well.

Neither he nor his wife had any knowledge of the markets and felt they'd have time or interest to learn.

Through a friend they got the name of Eugene Wolff, a certified financial planner and broker with Shearson-American Express. After two interviews totaling three hours the Zahms and Wolff agreed on a conservative diversified stock portfolio.

"The interview is necessary to determine how much a client has to invest and his future objectives," Wolff said.

'There are two emotions that motivate investors: greed and fear. A little fear is healthy but don't be a pig—pigs always lose.'

"But more important, you have to sit down with people and see what they want to achieve and how much risk they are willing to take, particularly when they have no experience."

Although nervous about recent market behavior, the Zahms are satisfied with their choice. They look at their portfolio as a long-term investment and try not to get upset about daily fluctuations.

Cobuzzi, 26, took a different route right after he got his business degree and decided he should use some of what he had learned. He is now with Kidder Peabody investment banking firm but has never worked as a broker.

"I started by converting my savings account to a money market fund," he said. "Then I started buying stocks. Since I was young and didn't have family responsibilities I felt I could afford to take chances. I also didn't have much money and most of my early purchases were lower priced stocks, even some penny stocks."

"I did my own research based on what I had learned in school," he said. But his own ideas also affected his decisions.

"I think management of a company is important, not necessarily the top man but the people who are in charge of the day-to-day decisions."

He calls a company he is interested in and asks to be sent latest financial reports and any other material about the firm's products. "You have to ask if there's any economic sense to it," he said.

You also have to follow your investment. Cobuzzi said. "When your stock goes down find out why. If it's part of a general market decline that's OK. But if it's going against the market and you can't find out why sell and limit your losses."

Using the same philosophy in reverse, never hang on for the top. "If you have a nice profit, take it," Cobuzzi said. "If you wait for the top you risk losing out."

This holds true for any investment — stocks, bonds, gold and silver and other commodities, especially the last which are highly volatile and subject to forces that individuals often aren't privy to until it's too late.

Do not rule out an investment you like when the prices are low; indeed this is the time to buy if fundamentals look right for an eventual upturn.

Cobuzzi, recently married, is buying a condominium. "I don't think of real estate as a hot investment right now, but we need a place to live and it offers tax advantages."

Cobuzzi joined the Chicago-based American Association of Individual Investors, a non-profit group with chapters in most large cities. Chapters have meetings that feature financial experts and give members a chance to compare notes.

But he believes the association's greatest benefit is the information available to members that covers everything from the stock market to tax shelters. There even is a new publication on computerized investing.

"The AAI gives individuals access to the same kind of information that institutions have," he said.

Cobuzzi doesn't use mutual funds because, he said, "I'm not a portfolio investor." But they do give professional management and diversification to individuals who don't have the time, interest or money to do it on their own.

Broadly there are three types of mutual funds — money market, stock funds and bond funds. Within these categories are tax-free and taxable funds and portfolios that range from highly speculative to conservative. All of this is outlined in the prospectus that funds must issue to each prospective investor. Read it carefully.

The Donoghue Organization of Holliston, Mass., which publishes a directory of mutual funds, advises looking at the long-term performance of a fund. Some do well in a bear market, others in a rising one. Some falter if their portfolio manager changes.

Money market funds pay market interest rates with a good safety factor. Dividends fluctuate but risk to capital is low.

Stock funds range from conservative to extremely speculative, but all are subject to fluctuations in the market which affects share prices.

'When your stock goes down find out why. If it's part of a general market decline that's OK. But if it's going against the market and you can't find out why sell and limit your losses.'

Bond funds can be taxable and tax-free. Safety depends on portfolio. Some invest only in insured bonds. Share prices fluctuate with the market.

Gold and silver are beginning to regain some glitter and now are considered a legitimate part of an investment portfolio. Investors have a variety of ways to be part of the action.

Coins are the simplest way to buy bullion and have the added advantage of easy marketability. Most dealers require an assay on bars. Major dealers, banks and brokerages have certificate programs, and store the bullion backing them in a vault.

Coins, bars and certificates pay no interest and are subject to fluctuations in

Freedom S&L Likely to Nix Buy-Out Offer

Freedom's board of directors will consider the proposal from Ensign at a meeting in Tampa next Tuesday. Bacchus said Ensign is a much smaller banking institution than Freedom and thus cannot force a sale.

Amtrak Extends Special Fares

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Amtrak is extending its popular All Aboard America Fares promotion, which was to have ended this month, through the spring.

The Amtrak special regional fares set maximum 30-day, round-trip coach rates for travel within one or more of three geographical regions. Sale of the tickets, which was to have terminated on Feb. 29, will be offered through May 31 with travel permitted through June 30.

Fares are $175 for travel within one system region, $225 within two adjoining regions and $299 for the whole Amtrak system, coast-to-coast.

Super Tough New Plastic Touted As Metal Replacement

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — The Du Pont Co. unveiled a super-tough grade of polyester resin Monday, touting the new plastic as a lightweight replacement for metal in automobile parts, tools and sports equipment.

The company said it will manufacture Rynite SST — which stands for stiffened super-tough — at its Washington Works in Parkersburg, W.Va., and it planned to expand production to Europe and Japan to meet expected increases in demand.

A research team led by Edward J. Deyrup and William E. Garrison discovered how to alloy Rynite, which was introduced in 1978 and has doubled in sales each year since then, with elastomers to increase its strength. "What we've done is toughen the world's stiffest resin," said Lawrence Gillespie, the director of Du Pont's engineering plastics division, which last year did $500 million in sales.

Gillespie said Rynite SST was twice as resistant to breaking under stress as the next strongest resin and it had 50 percent higher impact resistance at 40 below zero than other products at room temperature.

The company said Rynite's strength, impact resistance, temperature resistance and ease of handling will accelerate the replacement of metal by plastic in automotive, industrial and consumer applications.

The new plastic can be molded into automobile instrument panels and steering components as well as exterior parts such as wind deflectors, bumper parts, oil pans, fuel line clips, sunroof frames, windshield wiper arms, the company said.

"We can reduce the weight (of an automobile) by 80 percent by going from plastics to metal. For every pound of plastics used, we've replaced five pounds of metal," Gillespie said.

The company also expects the resin to have wide-spread application as protective helmets, high-impact sports equipment, yard and shop tools, appliances and office furniture components.

Greene Needs Encore To Shut Down Tribe

Oviedo's Jeff Greene pitched well enough to pick up a win Friday afternoon against Seminole, but it wouldn't have been possible without an encore performance.

The senior left-hander shut down the Tribe for two innings as his teammates built a 5-0 advantage. Feeling secure, Oviedo coach Howard Mabe yanked his prize lefty and inserted Chris Boston in the third inning.

Two pitchers and two innings later, however, Greene was back as Seminole rallied for five runs to force a 5-5 deadlock after five innings. Greene then kept the Tribe in check and Oviedo pushed across two runs in the eighth inning to squeeze out a 7-5 victory over Seminole at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

"We had the leadoff batter on base twice after the fifth inning," said Seminole coach Bobby Lundquist. "But Greene did a good job of pitching out of the jams."

The victory improves Oviedo's record to 4-6. The Lions hosted Lake Howell at 1 p.m. Saturday. Seminole, which played New Smyrna Beach at home Saturday at 1 p.m., drops to 3-3. "We need a win," said Lundquist. "I hope it comes Saturday. We gotten get straightened out because the conference starts Monday (at home against Lake Mary)."

Eric Shogren opened the Oviedo first with a single and moved to third base when Lester Cabrera doubled. Greene grounded out to first base, but Darrin Reichle walked to load the bases against Sanford starter Brian Sheffield.

Sheffield then struck out Boston for the second out, but sophomore Dave Wood drilled a fly ball which Seminole center fielder Larry Thomas misplayed into a single as two runs scored. Pat McCartney then reached on an error by Thomas to score Reichle for a 3-0 lead.

The Lions added two more in the second when Tony Bellowier walked and stole second. Shogren, one of the hottest hitters in the county, followed with his second single, sending Bellowier to third. Shogren then stole second and Cabrera delivered a fly ball to center to score Bellowier. Two batters later, Boston singled home Shogren for a 5-0 lead.

Greene departed in favor of Boston in the third and the Tribe began pecking away, scoring one in the third, three in the fourth and one in the fifth to tie the game.

Brian Rogers walked and Sheffield singled to open the third. A wild pitch moved them ahead. James Hersey then struck out, but the ball trickled away from catcher Mark Hofmann, who threw to first for the putout on Hersey. Rogers, though, alertly broke for the plate and barely beat the return throw for the first run.

In the fourth, Thomas singled and stole second. Ricky Kidd walked and Steve Dennis followed with a base hit to score Thomas. Kevin Smith popped to first but Rogers lifted a fly ball to center which Shogren dropped, allowing two runs to score.

In the fifth, Tony Cox slammed a two-out double to right center and Thomas brought him home with a sharp single between short and third to tie the game at 5-5.

Seminole threatened in the sixth when Smith walked and stole second, but Greene struck out Rogers, got Sheffield on an infield pop and fanned Hersey.

The Lions put the game away in the eighth when Reichle and Boston singled. Wood tried to bunt them along but hit the ball to Sheffield who forced Reichle at third. McCartney, though, lined a single to left to score Boston and when the ball went through Hersey's legs. Wood came around to score for a 7-5 lead.

Greene nailed down the victory by getting the Tribe in the seventh. "Greene was the only guy that could get them out," said Mabe. "I had to go back to him."

Dennis, Thomas and Sheffield each had two singles for Seminole while Shogren and Boston led the Lions with two singles each. Cabrera had a double and two runs batted in.

Gordon Throws In 32 Points, DeLand Needs Win For Title

Bridgette Gordon threw in 32 points and pulled down nine rebounds Friday night as the DeLand Lady Bulldogs whipped Hialeah American, 58-48, to move into Saturday night's championship game for the State 4A Girls Basketball Title.

Gordon, a 6-0 junior, tried to cap an incredible season Saturday night at 8:30 when DeLand (28-5) battles Tampa Hillsborough (23-4), which upset previously unbeaten Jacksonville Ribault Thursday night.

The Lady Bulldogs used 16 first-half points by Gordon to take a 27-17 advantage. They built the bulge to 45-31 before American got untracked and scored 10 straight points behind Adrienne Walker to close the margin to four points.

At that point, DeLand's Nikki Williams, who totaled 16 points for the evening, got loose for a fastbreak bucket on a nice feed from Raysha Roberts for a 47-41 lead. Guard Robyn Swartz then added two free throws to pull the Lady Bulldogs out of trouble.

In other tournament action Friday, Fort Myers' Rhonda Scott tossed in a rebound shot with one second left to play to dethrone the two-time defending state 3A champion Ocala Vanguard, 59-57.

Fort Myers (29-0) takes on Pompano Beach Ely Saturday at 3:30 p.m. for the 3A crown.

Sharon Green tossed in 28 points and grabbed 18 boards to initiate a Green Wave comeback which erased an 18-point Vanguard advantage. Scott was also instrumental in foiling Vanguard's last shot strategy by coming up with a steal in the last two minutes.

Sharon McKinney led the Lady Knights (26-6) with 20 points.

In 2A action, Marianna knocked off fouled-plagued Cocoa Beach, 74-69, in overtime and powerful Laurel Hill baptised Luther, 89-46. Marianna plays perennial powerhouse Clearwater Central Catholic Saturday at 2 p.m. while Laurel Hill takes on Westminster Academy at 7 p.m. for the 1A title.

Bandits Break Allen's Promises, 20-17; Miami Next For Franchise?

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Arizona coach George Allen promised fans in radio commercials that his Wranglers would not lose a game in the 1984 U.S. Football League campaign.

So much for pre-season hype. The Tampa Bay Bandits helped break those promises Friday night, handing the Wranglers a 20-17 defeat before 31,264 fans at Sun Devil Stadium. The victory also allowed the Bandits to erase the memories of two lopsided defeats at the hands of Allen's team a year ago.

At that time, the Chicago Blitz, now the Wranglers, demolished the Bandits by scores of 42-3 and 31-8.

"It was a great effort by our team," said Bandit coach Steve Spurrier of his team's win. He second-guessed some of his own decisions, but said, "The guys just gave a great effort."

The coach also had words of praise for quarterback John Reeves, who had 13 completions in 31 attempts for 186 yards on the night.

"He didn't have a great statistical game," Spurrier said, "but he played a great game for us. He kept his poise and didn't have any turnovers."

Another standout for Tampa Bay was Gary Anderson, a heralded collegiate signee when he came out of the University of Arkansas and opted for the USFL over the NFL.

The 6-foot, 180-pound running back had 55 yards and two touchdowns in 15 carries and caught two passes for 58 yards. Anderson was assisted by Greg Boone, who accounted for 66 yards in 15 carries.

Bandit receiver Eric Truvillion had five catches for 63 yards.

MIAMI (UPI) — The city of Miami and the fledgling United States

Football League nope to announce a deal next week to lease the Orange Bowl for the league's 1985 spring season, a report says.

The Miami Herald said Friday the parties have orally agreed to the deal. An announcement is expected Tuesday from USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons and other league executives at a press conference at the Orange Bowl, the paper said.

Racing Fan Determines Earning Power Of Greyhounds

Greyhounds are born to run. They are bred to run. They make a living running.

But just exactly how is it determined how much they earn? Why do they earn what they earn?

It really isn't that complicated a formula. Actually, it is based on the amount of money wagered during a given purse week. At Sanford-Orlando the purse week runs from Wednesday night through the next Wednesday matinee.

The Florida Legislature passed a bill not too long ago which makes greyhound tracks pay three per cent of the total handle. What this means is that you, the fan, determine how much a greyhound earns.

You also help make a track keep a good supply of greyhounds on hand. If the greyhounds at a given track are of good quality — then you are going to come out regularly and wager money on them.

The more money you wager the more the greyhounds are going to earn. The better reputation a track has for paying greyhounds a good purse, the better chance it has of attracting good greyhounds to run at the track.

Basically it is a vicious circle. If you have good greyhounds people come out and bet them more. The more they bet the more the greyhounds earn — the more good greyhounds are attracted to the track.

The opposite vicious circle is true. The poorer the greyhounds the fewer the people who come out to bet them — the less money they make, the less good quality greyhounds want to run at your track.

So it is in a track's interest to bring in the best quality greyhounds possible. Because, don't forget, the more money wagered the more money the track earns as well.

We have nine performances a week out here. The total amount of money wagered during the nine performances between Wednesday night and the following Wednesday afternoon is multiplied by three per cent to come up with the total amount of purses paid. So, for instance, if $3 million is wagered, then $90,000 in purses are paid for that particular week.

How is this distributed?

Every grade of race is worth so many points. The higher the grade of the race the more points it is worth. The longer races are worth more points in the same grade than the shorter races.

Win, Place and Show

Glenn Laney
Sanford Orlando
Kennel Club

So — the winner of a maiden race earns fewer points than the winner of a grade D. The winner of a grade B 3/16 mile race earns more money than the winner of a grade B 5/16 mile race.

At the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club a grade A, 5/16 mile race is worth 12 points. The winner of the race gets 50 per cent of the purse — or six points.

The second place finisher gets 25 per cent of the purse — or three points. The third place finisher gets 15 percent or 1.8 points and the fourth place finisher gets 10 per cent or 1.2 points.

This means the top four greyhounds in a race earn money. It also means they don't have to depend on the night they run for the amount of money they earn. It is averaged out over a week.

This was not always the case. These two steps are credited a great deal for making greyhound racing the successful sport it is today.

In the old days a greyhound was paid a purse according to the day he ran. This means a greyhound winning a grade A on Tuesday night (a notoriously slow day) did not earn as much as a greyhound who won a grade A on a busy Saturday night when much more money was wagered.

Only the top three greyhounds won money in the early days of greyhound racing. The winning greyhound won 65 per cent of the purse, the second place greyhound won 25 per cent and the third place greyhound won 10 per cent.

This meant the rich got richer and the poor got poorer. It also meant if you were a good friend of the racing secretary your dogs got to run on the weekends. If the racing secretary didn't like you most of your greyhounds ran on Tuesday or Wednesday.

The broader implications were that a lot of keen operators couldn't pay their bills. The sport was falling into disrepute.

By changing this formula, Sanford-Orlando owner Jerry Collins helped save the sport and raise it to the respected heights it enjoys today. Two seemingly small changes actually saved the industry.

Now, we take the total number of points for the entire week and divide them into the amount of money to be paid out in purses. This gives us what one point is worth. So, a grade A win for six points on Tuesday is worth the same amount as a grade A win for six points on Saturday.

We now also pay four greyhounds in every race instead of just three. This means the money is more evenly distributed among the kennels and the little man has a better chance of getting bigger.

Remember, though, it is you, the fan who has the ultimate say. It is through your approval that greyhound racing survives. It is to you that we cater, because without your approval we would not be able to survive.

Next Week: We'll catch up on what has been happening out here this year and talk about what is left of the season.

Ueberroth Wants Broader, Powers Before Taking Job

Baseball

TAMPA (UPI) — Surprise! What would you say if the search committee to find a new commissioner comes out of its meeting Saturday and announces the great game of baseball will now be governed by — are you ready? — Bowie Kuhn.

It could happen ...
It was supposed to be cut and dried that Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, would be named commissioner Saturday, even though Allan "Bud" Selig, president of the Milwaukee Brewers and chairman of the search committee, kept insisting that nothing was definite.

However, now it appears that Ueberroth is not a lead-pipe clinch to get the job. At a news conference Friday in Los Angeles, Ueberroth said he was interested in the job but could not accept it unless its powers were broadened. He also has stated he could not possibly start his new job until October because of his commitment to the LAOOC.

"People are aware of what I don't think is right about the position, about the way it's structured, the way it's organized," Ueberroth said.

Asked if he would take the job if it is offered to him at today's meeting of team owners in Tampa, Ueberroth answered, "If it would be offered the way it is now, no. If it was in a different set of circumstances, maybe."

That could mean the owners may once more ask Kuhn to come to the rescue.

Twice before Kuhn has been asked and agreed to stay on in the office in order to give the search committee time to find a successor but he said last December that under no circumstances would he stay beyond March 1.

He cleaned out his office last Thursday and said he would return to his old job as an attorney for Wilkie, Farr and Gallagher, yet he was registered at the Tampa Airport Hotel Friday while Ueberroth was not registered.

If Kuhn is asked to remain in office, it could create some disagreement among the owners but some, like Calvin Griffith of Minnesota, are vehemently opposed to an interim commissioner.

"I'm against an interim commissioner because we have a lot of problems that need to be solved," said Griffith. "Our basic agreement expires this year and we have other problems that need attention. We need somebody in the commissioner's job permanently to attend to these matters."

Buzzie Buvasi, president of the California Angels, also said an interim commissioner would serve no purpose. However, he said that if it were Kuhn he would vote for him to stay on.

There is so much confusion over the selection of the commissioner that William Williams, owner of the Cincinnati Reds, and one of those who voted against rehiring Kuhn, said Friday that if a new vote were taken he would vote for Kuhn.

However, there was no indication that the other four Kuhn opponents — Nelson Doubleday of the New York Mets, John McMullen of the Houston Astros, Ted Turner of the Atlanta Braves and Gussie Busch of the St. Louis Cardinals — had changed their minds. Kuhn, who has served 15 years as commissioner, failed to win reelection last year when he did not gain 75 percent of the National League vote.

Kuhn is hoping that whoever the new commissioner is, he will be given plenty of power.

If reliever Bruce Sutter has a contract incentive clause for innings pitched, he may own part of downtown St. Louis by next fall.

The Cardinals' attempt to rebound from last year's 79-83 fall from World Series grace could be undermined by a paucity of decent starting pitching and the latest bad news came Friday when John Stuper's ailment was diagnosed as an inflammation of the pitching shoulder.

The Cardinals said Stuper, a right-handed starter who tied for the staff lead in victories with 12 in 1983, had complained of tenderness in the shoulder and was examined by Dr. Stan London, the team's physician. London gave Stuper a cortisone injection and also put him on oral medication to relieve the inflammation.

Stuper was sent back to the Cardinals' spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., and told not to pitch for 24 to 48 hours. Stuper also was to receive treatment at the camp from trainer Gene Gieselmann. London planned to examine Stuper again when he visits the camp March 10.

Stuper, who posted a 3.68 ERA for a club with the No. 9 pitching staff in a 12-team league, experienced the same problem in training camp last season. The ailment, however, did not cause Stuper to miss time during the regular season and he started 30 games.

Elsewhere Friday, Wally Backman opened his bid for the New York Mets' second base job by hitting a triple and two singles to lead Frank Howard's team to a 4-3 victory over the Bobby Valentine squad in the first camp game of the spring. Backman is battling Brian Giles for the second base job. Giles, the regular last season, had a single in three trips and was the middle man on a double play.

At Sarasota, Greg Walker, who attended a sports clinic in the winter to increase weight bulk and develop agility, lashed two doubles in a Chicago White Sox camp game. Coach Jim Leyland's team posted a 2-1 triumph over coach Eddie Brinkman's squad. "They don't promise miracles, but their electronic timing devices and computers showed I made some progress," the first baseman said of the clinic.

At Mesa, Ariz., The Chicago Cubs, who stole 20 fewer bases than any other team in the National League last year, went over baserunning fundamentals.

At Mesa, Ariz., Mike Brown and Rick Burleson missed the California Angels' workout because of minor back ailments. Brown, a rookie outfielder, suffered back spasms while Burleson rested a sore lower back. Both were expected to participate in today's drills.

At Vero Beach, Los Angeles Dodgers' third baseman Pedro Guerrero, who told team officials he was delayed because the roof fell in on the house he's building in the Dominican Republic, became the last player to join the team's workouts. Guerrero signed the richest contract in Dodger history on Feb. 20, a 5-year, $7 million deal.

"I know a lot of people will be watching me and expecting a lot from me — I know I will have to work harder than ever before," said Guerrero, who reported 12 pounds over his playing weight.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Twins Open Against UCF At Tinker Field Sunday

ORLANDO — Manager Billy Gardener will get his first look at his Minnesota Twins here Sunday when the Twins open their 1984 spring training schedule against the University of Central Florida.

Game time is 1:30 p.m. at Tinker Field. The game was originally scheduled for Tuesday but was moved at the agreement of both squads.

Rescheduling the game did force UCF coach Jay Bergman to change his strategy. In addition to the game against the Twins, the Knights have a 3 p.m. game scheduled on campus against Illinois State the same day.

"We'll split the squad in order to play both games," Bergman said. "Early in the season, it's important that we give all our players a chance to play and develop, so changing the game with the Twins will actually be a blessing for us."

Tickets for the Twins-UCF game will be available at Tinker Field Sunday. Adult tickets (16 years and older) are $2. Senior citizens (55 years and older) and children under 16 will be admitted for $1.

Boosters To Meet Monday

Spring sports will be on the agenda when the Seminole High Boosters Club gets together Monday night at 7 in room 1306 at the high school.

Coaches Whitey Eckstein (golf), Jim Edmonds (tennis), Ken Brauman (boys track), Emory Blake (girls track) and Beth Corso (softball) will all talk about their sports. Baseball coach Bobby Lundquist will not be in attendance since his Seminoles open the Five Star Conference season at 7 p.m. against Lake Mary at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

"We're looking for a good turnout," said Booster Club President Rose Futrell. "It should be an informative meeting."

Yanks' Righetti Has Tough Act To Follow

Baseball

Dave Righetti ...follows Gossage

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Dave Righetti is reminding of the guy who has to follow Pavarotti at a concert.

He may be able to sing beautifully, but the mere presence of the man who preceded him makes it extremely difficult to get anyone to listen.

But the New York Yankees are not only asking Righetti to perform, they're hoping he'll be so good that people will indeed forget about the man who could make a baseball sing.

Righetti, a 25-year-old left-hander who won 14 games last season, including a no-hitter against Boston on July 4, is being asked this year to take over for Rich "Goose" Gossage as the Yankees' bullpen ace.

Gossage played out his option with the Yankees last season after six years with them and signed this winter with the San Diego Padres. His defection to the National League left the Yankees with a gaping hole in the bullpen and, after weeks of deliberation between new manager Yogi Berra and his staff, it was decided that Righetti was the most logical choice to succeed the hard-throwing Gossage.

It's a decision that really hasn't taken hold of Righetti quite yet.

"It's such a weird feeling," said Righetti, who has relieved only six times in 82 major league appearances. "I've been coming to spring training every year as a starter and playing a role. It's weird enough to think as a starter. This is a totally different thing."

"Psychologically, I'll have more worries than I will physically. I won't know anything about my arm or what's going to happen because I've never done it before on a basis like this."

The Yankees settled on Righetti for three reasons — he's a strikeout pitcher (169 in 217 innings last year), he doesn't take very long to get ready to pitch and he suffers from a tender arm that becomes more susceptible to injury in a starting capacity.

"He's got the kind of stuff that can get you a strikeout when you need it," says Yankee pitching coach Sammy Ellis. "Another reason we made the decision is we felt he could handle a close game and rise to the occasion. He's got that type of stuff that he can come in there and when the adrenaline gets flowing, he can throw as good, if not better, than he did as a starter."

Ellis also feels the move, provided it remains permanent, will add years to Righetti's pitching career.

"He's been bothered by a tender arm throughout his career," said Ellis. "Sure, there won't be any 20 victory seasons and he won't be leading the league in strikeouts, but he can stay out there for 10 more years. I think you have more longevity as a reliever than you do as a starter."

Ellis believes that once Righetti saves his first game of the year he'll relish his new role.

"I think he's going to get a lot of satisfaction out of getting saves for the starters and helping them out of a tight situation, picking up a team and picking up his buddies," says Ellis.

The Yankee coaches have been trying to make the transition from starter to reliever easier for Righetti by pointing out to him that Joe Page, one of the Yankees' all-time best relievers, began his career as a starter, too.

"Whitey (Ford) was telling me about Page their day," said Righetti. "I feel I can handle it. Naturally the Yankees feel I can. They have to think that way. They made a decision and they have to stick by it. But I'm the one who has to go out there and do it. I think the first time I go out and save a game for somebody I'll really enjoy it."

Ellis is quick to caution people about comparing Gossage to Righetti.

"I don't think the press should start putting that on his (Righetti's) back," said Ellis. "He's a different style pitcher than Gossage. He can throw hard, but he's more of a breaking ball pitcher."

Still, Righetti knows what the Yankees and their fans will be expecting from him.

"They're used to having Gossage, so they're spoiled," said Righetti. "Whenever they bring me in they'll be looking for the strikeout. How I'm going to take it and how my arm is going to take it, I don't know."

Righetti, of course, is safe with the knowledge that he could always return to the starting rotation should the experiment fail. But he's determined to make it succeed.

"I want to do well," he says. "If I'm going to do it, I want to try to be the best at it."

And make even Pavarotti applaud.

Shriver Needs Split Personality For Finals

Pro Tennis

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is the kind of day when Pam Shriver would find a split personality useful.

The soon to be mixed up young lady opens her act at noon EST Saturday when she meets Martina Navratilova in the semifinals of a $500,000 women's tennis championship, and just a couple of hours later she'll be playing alongside Navratilova in the doubles final.

Further complicating the situation, the two are close friends.

"Sometimes, I don't think I have the killer instinct, and I can't decide whether it is because we are such good friends or because she is such an unbelievable player, or it's a little bit of both," Shriver said of the impending confrontation.

"It is very difficult to go out there and she's really the only person that I am that close to on the tour right now."

In the other semifinal today, it will be second seed Chris Evert Lloyd against Barbara Potter, following which Navratilova and Shriver team in the doubles final against Jo Durie of Britain and Ann Kiyomura.

The singles final will be played Sunday afternoon, with a prize of $125,000 awaiting the winner. The tournament is known as the Virginia Slims Championships.

Shriver cleared one big hurdle Friday night when she defeated Hana Mandlikova, 6-3, 7-6. Although she is ranked third in the world, it was the first time in five career meetings that Shriver had beaten the erratic Czechoslovakian, ranked No. 6.

Evert Lloyd, the second seed behind Navratilova, breezed to a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Helena Sukova, ending all suspense by winning seven games in a row from 1-1 in the opening set. Evert Lloyd has played Potter only once, beating her 6-2, 6-1, at Wimbledon in 1982.

Shriver has won only three times in 20 career meetings with Navratilova, never indoors, but she nevertheless has inflicted pain on her good friend by scoring two of those victories in the U.S. Open.

"I think I will probably go out there a little looser," Shriver said. "If you go out there at all nervous or inhibited because you are playing her, you just get eaten alive, so the idea is to just swing away and see what happens. I think that is what I am going to do."

A break in the eighth game gave Shriver the first set against Mandlikova, and she then jumped to a 4-1 advantage in the second. Mandlikova, the only woman to beat Navratilova this year, destroyed her own chances by converting only 42.6 percent of her first serves, and a double fault cost her the critical break in the opening game of the second set.

Mandlikova threw a scare into Shriver with breaks in the sixth and 10th games to set up a tie-break, but was unable to follow through and Shriver won the tie-break 7-3.

"When I was 4-1 and serving, under most circumstances you would tend to think the match was over," Shriver said. "But I got a little uptight. If there is one player on the whole tour you are not safe with two breaks with, she'd be one of them. Luckily I squeaked it out. I didn't want to go three sets."

Evert Lloyd totally dominated play in the other quarterfinal. Only in the seventh game of the opening set, when Sukova had triple break point, was she able to reach break point in the match, and in the second set Evert Lloyd yielded only six points on her service.

Cold Plays Havoc With Mayfair Gals; Men Meet Tuesday

The Mayfair Women's Golf Association had a nice tournament scheduled for Wednesday but Mother Nature dealt it a cruel blow and cold weather caused a cancellation. The girls did, however, have a nice chicken ala king lunch together. Let's hope we've seen the last of the real cold weather.

Although it was quite cold with a little frost on Thursday morning, 42 fellows came over from Daytona Country Club and played our course. It seems that each Thursday is ladies day at their course so they take the opportunity to play some of the other courses in Central Florida.

Jim Wright, the chairman for the group, says these fellows will be playing Mayfair one Thursday each month from now on.

It's good to have Alice (Mrs. Jack) Daniels out of the hospital. Although her doctor told her to stay off her feet for awhile, she still plans to go to Tallahassee with Grace Sayles on March 15, 16, 17 to represent Mayfair at the 36th Shamrock Invitational Tournament at the Capitol City Country Club. Alice is a very determined lady.

Also just out of the hospital after her operation is Alice Potter. She's recuperating nicely and should be back on her feet before too long.

A lot of folks are complimenting Bambi Daniels, clubhouse manager, on the quality and variety of the food in the clubhouse lately. Our new cook, John Kaufman, is doing a good job. John's wife, Shirley, is also on board and doing a good job in the snack bar.

Work is progressing on the renovation of the clubhouse. Hopefully the new carpeting will be going down in a couple weeks. It will be nice to get the place straightened out again. We appreciate everyone's patience but feel that the end product will justify the wait.

Plans are being considered by the Mayfair Men's Golf Association to sponsor a St. Patrick's Day Tournament and dance. The MMGA, which meets on the first Tuesday monthly, will discuss this matter and you will hear more about it next week.

By the way, Ernie Horrell, the MMGA president, says the meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the clubhouse this Tuesday. All MMGA members are invited to attend.

Alice Daniels receives a $75 gift certificate from Pat Kader for winning the Kader golf tournament at Mayfair Country Club. Miriam Andrews, right, won a $35 gift certificate for second place. This week, cold weather, played havoc with the women's tournament and it had to be cancelled.

Snead Plays Well Enough To Lead Honda

CORAL SPRINGS (UPI) — J.C. Snead says he still isn't playing well enough to restore the confidence he lost in the last few months, but he's playing well enough to lead a tournament.

Snead chipped in twice to post a 1-under-par 71 over the PGA's new Eagle Trace stadium course Friday and leads the $500,000 Honda Classic by a shot over Andy Bean and Greg Powers.

Snead, nephew of the legendary Sam Snead, has earned only $19,000 so far this year, but hopes is breaking out of the slump.

"I've been working on my game and it feels like it's going in the right direction," he said. "When you're playing bad, you look all around and see everything bad and then try to talk yourself into being positive," he said. "But you have to do it. You can't think positive until something good happens."

If that's true, he can stop waiting. He holed out from off the green three times during the first two rounds of the tournament.

The 17th-year pro from Hot Springs, Va., chipped in for a birdie

Pro Golf

3 from 50 feet on his fifth hole Friday, and then canned a bunker shot from 25 feet on his 16th.

"I haven't done that since I've been on tour," Snead said. "Every chip I hit looked like it was going in. I don't know what is going on."

Bean shot 71 Friday and Powers had a 69 to tie for second. Tied for fourth a shot back of Bean and Powers at 141 were Curtis Strange with a 69, Tommy Nakajima with a 71 and Jim Colbert with a 68.

Johnny Miller, who won this event last year when it was played at Inverrary, missed the cut with a 151. He recovered from his wind-blown opening-round 80 with a 71 Friday, but it wasn't enough. Jack Nicklaus also recovered, following an opening round 77 with a 70 Friday and made the cut at 147.

Bean posted five birdies and four bogeys during an erratic round.

COSTA MESA, Calif. (UPI) — Judy Clark is going to be a year older on Sunday. She also hopes to be $45,000 richer.

Clark took the lead through two rounds of a $300,000 LPGA Invitational by shooting a sizzling 4-under-par 67 Friday for a 138 total.

"It's definitely time for a victory after six years out here," said Clark, who hopes to make Sunday's 34th birthday celebration one to remember.

"I have enough experience. I told my caddy if I shot even-par I'd be in there at the end of the week."

Clark's round was the best of the tournament thus far, despite the fact she played the Costa Mesa Country Club course for only the second time. She overhauled first-round leader Joan Joyce, who dropped three strokes off the lead by shooting a 1-over-par 72 for a 141 total.

Karen Permezel was four shots back at 142 after a 72 Friday that included a hole-in-one on the 145-yard 12th hole. Pat Bradley, the 1981 tournament champion, finished with a 69 Friday and was another stroke back at 143.

Clark, whose trademark since joining the tour in 1978 is wearing one of her 40 straw hats, bolted into the lead by carding a 34 on the front nine that included two birdies.

...Teacher

- A teacher must have a master's degree in the field in which the teacher is working. However, a teacher who has a master's degree out of field, but also has 15 hours of graduate work in field is eligible.
- The teacher must take and pass a National Teacher Examination in his or her subject area. However, the NTE has only 18 validated subject areas tests and if there is no validated test in the teacher's subject area, that teacher does not have to take a test. "Unless some new ones are validated," Mrs. Neiswender said. She cited as an example that there is no validated test in English.
- The special tests may be scheduled for June. Teachers taking the tests at that time must have copies of the results sent to the principal of their school and to the state.
- A teacher's principal or supervisor must nominate the teacher for an evaluation of performance.
- The actual evaluation of performance will be conducted by a three-man team of state-approved observers including a principal or assistant principal from another school, a teacher with a master's degree in the same subject area of the teacher being evaluated, and a third teacher with the same qualifications who is from out of the county. The evaluation forms are sealed and given to the principal to send to a data analysis agency, not yet selected by the state Department of Education.

- The teacher must have four years of full-time teaching experience, at least two of those years in Florida.
 - During two of those years, the teacher must have been present or teaching 180 days during the school year or have been on an approved paid leave or leave taken for religious holidays.
 - At the university where the teacher obtained her master's degree, two thirds of the courses in the major must have been offered by full-time faculty members. Mrs. Neiswender said this apparently does not mean that the teacher had to take the specific courses taught by a full-time faculty member, but only that the courses were offered by full-time faculty.
- Mrs. Neiswender said $17 million has been budgeted for distribution among the teachers in the state endorsed as associate master teachers.
- The money received by the associate master teachers will not be counted as earnings toward retirement. Negotiations are underway between the state and federal governments on whether the money will be withheld for Social Security and income taxes.
- She said lump sum checks are to be issued to the approved teachers Dec. 31.

An Average New House: $90,400

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department says sales of new single-family houses dipped 8 percent but still kept up a strong pace in January as the average price of a house dropped $4,500 to $90,400.

The January sales rate using seasonally adjusted figures was a brisk 688,000 units annually — 16.8 percent ahead of year-ago levels despite the month's slippage.

The month's sales figures, released Friday, would have been the highest in slightly more than four years if it had not been for a big sales surge in December.

Analysts were encouraged by revised figures showing December's level was an enormous 16.9 percent improvement over November.

The average price of a new house in January was $90,400, $4,500 lower than December. One analyst suggested builders dropped prices of homes financed through federally backed FHA mortgages beginning in December because a change in financing regulations reduced their risk of losing money.

Grandparenting

Author-Educator Sums Up 'Important Role' In Writings

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Harleigh Trecker is an educator and author whose focus has always been on social work and the management and functioning of small groups. But the small group that interests this Sanford man most is his family.

When Trecker and his wife Audrey chose Sanford as their post-retirement home in 1977, they knew it would put hundreds of miles between them and their two sons, daughters-in-law and three grandchildren. But Trecker, 77, at organization and implementation of plans, devised a plan that would keep several hundred miles of separation from becoming a barrier between him and the fulfillment of what he considers to be one of the most important roles in his life — grandfather. And at this point, Trecker, who has a master's degree from the University of Chicago, says he is preparing to share his grandparenting expertise through writing about his methods of grandparenting. His hope is that he can offer guidance to other grandparents who may be at a loss as to what the role of the contemporary grandparent can and should be.

14-year-old grandson, Jamie, in Connecticut. Their other son Jim, his wife Barbara, and two granddaughters Molly, 10, and Sophia, 8, remained at home in New Jersey.

Trecker, 77, who sought the warm climate and the slow-paced life Sanford offers after a lifetime of teaching social work and management techniques and lecturing throughout the country, gave up his post of Professor Emeritus at the University of Connecticut, but he wasn't willing to break his close family ties.

"My family is really my most important consideration," Trecker said. "I do a lot of writing and have been blocking out in rough notes some short pieces on grandparenting — near and far. Mrs. Trecker and I have had both experiences. For seven years we were near our grandchildren and for the past seven years we have been far from them except for occasional visits."

But being far away hasn't kept the Treckers from playing an important role in the lives of these children who are so important to them.

"I write them weekly post cards and letters and send them stories," Trecker said of his grandchildren. "We visit them, of course, for vacations and on special occasions and they visit us. Sophia's third grade grandparents' day is coming up and we will be going to New Jersey for that. We went to Molly's and of course you don't dare do for one if you don't do for the other.

"I write very mature letters to Jamie and he writes back. And the little girls are just delighted with the post cards I send. We have special little games that we play."

"The last time we visited New Jersey I asked Mrs. Trecker if she thought the girls would remember Fred the Flea. The first thing they asked was, 'Grandpa, did you bring Fred the Flea?' Fred of course is an imaginary flea who can jump from this time to the next one. He can jump into Molly's hair and she squeals and laughs. It's a silly little thing, but it means a lot," Trecker said.

"I have searched magazines (Trecker is a library buff who spends many hours at the Sanford Library and area university libraries,) but the field of grandparenting doesn't seem to be given any attention. I don't know why, maybe because nobody has put much thought into it. It may be taken for granted or people have different ideas about grandparents and their role," Trecker said.

Trecker believes in today's society with both parents working, that grandparents can step in and give children time and attention that they might not otherwise receive.

"This is very important," Trecker said. "We have always realized that we are not the parents of these children and have taken a different role. Grandparents have time to read, to tell stories and to take children for ice cream. The pattern for what we do was set with our boys, but we have always been very careful that as grandparents we've allowed them to control the situation. We never barge in. We wait for an invitation and have always helped in any way we could, but even when we lived nearby we weren't built-in babysitters, because both of us were working too."

"We've always had a deep respect for our children and grandchildren and have taken pride in their accomplishments. Mrs. Trecker and I are probably a bit unusual because we have devoted so much time and energy to this."

Trecker, who has kept a diary of his thoughts and activities for the last 16 years says he will rely on his diary as a source of information on his grandparenting articles. He also said that his diary, with accounts of the births of his grandchildren and other events in their lives delights them when they read the stories that feature them.

Trecker who has been a family man for almost 52 years said that his relationship with 76-year-old Mrs. Trecker, a retired registrar of voters, has always been special, although he said, "It was love at second sight."

They attended the same business school in 1929, but Trecker said he and his future wife did not speak to each other during that school year. But when they met the following year across a crowded dance floor of a Chicago YWCA he said, "I knew her and she knew me and that was the start of something big."

"She is the light of my life. She has looked after me through thick and thin and some trying illnesses. I'm fortunate, because she's my partner, the dispenser of my tender love and care, my co-author, my typist. She does everything for me and I say I'm the luckiest man in the world. Maybe she feels the same way about me," Trecker said.

The Treckers have co-authored four books and Trecker has produced 15 more on his own and two additional books with another co-author. Until now he has written primarily on a technical and a textbook level, but his planned grandparents' book will be more personal and will have a special meaning to him and to his family.

And for Trecker, his family is what counts.

Harleigh Trecker proudly shows off his grandchildren. My family is really my most important consideration. I do a lot of writing and have been blocking out in rough notes some short pieces on grandparenting near and far. Mrs. Trecker and I have had both experiences. For seven years we were near our grandchildren and for the past seven years we have been far from them except for occasional visits.

Sanford Women Finalists In Mrs. Florida Pageant

By Dorla Dietrich
PEOPLE Editor

Two Sanford women, Martha B. Lyle and Gail H. Smith, have qualified as finalists in the Mrs. Florida-America Pageant to be held March 16 and 17 at the Chain O' Lakes Convention Center and Recreation Complex, Winter Haven.

According to a pageant spokesman, the weekend event will include activities for the contestants and their families at Florida Cypress Gardens.

Both Martha and Gail say they are "very excited" over the pageant. Win or lose, they plan "to have fun and meet new people and new challenges."

And both contestants are very pretty and personable. The winner of the Mrs. Florida Pageant will go on to represent the state in national finals to be held on May 4 at the Las Vegas Hilton.

Martha, a hairdresser and cosmetologist, has made her home in Sanford for 16 years. She is married to Jim Lyle, owner of Lyle Inc., Sanford. They have three daughters, Lesley, 14, Christy, 12, and Holly, 7.

A dancer with the Seminole Community College Jazz Company, Martha teaches Aerobics and Slim 'N Trim Classes under SCC's Leisure Time Program.

The Mrs. Florida Pageant will not feature talent. There will be evening gown, bathing suit and Florida costume competition. For her Florida costume, Martha plans to portray a Florida orange tree.

Employed parttime at Corrine's Beauty Salon, Sanford, Martha says she enjoys activities with her family and they come first. She is active with her daughters in the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford, the Parent Teachers Association and Laky Mary High Boosters Club.

Her pageant sponsors are Corrine's Beauty Salon, Medco, Judy and Lamar Oxford, Lyle Inc. and ABC Conveyor Inc.

Gail H. Smith

Martha B. Lyle

Gail is married to Dr. John R. Smith, a Sanford orthodontist, and they are the parents of a 21-month-old daughter who keeps her busy. She works full time in the offices of her husband as a public relations consultant.

She is currently serving her second consecutive term as president of the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford, Inc., a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the largest organization of its kind in the world. She and her husband reactivated a Toastmaster's Club in Sanford. Gail is serving on the Board of Directors of Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole and is a member of the Orlando Area Advertising Federation.

Gail's pageant sponsors are Dr. John R. Smith, Sanford Dry Cleaners, the "A" Team, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Clontz and Tucker's Farm and Garden Center.

Engagements

Taack-Carter

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lang, 219 Shady Hollow, Casselberry, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rose Mary, to Gregory Mark McIntyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Frutchey, 2531 Jennifer Blvd., Longwood.

Born in Sanford, the bride-elect is the maternal granddaughter of Mrs. Rosa Summeh, Germany, and the paternal granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stafford H. Lang, Orlando.

Miss Lang is a 1982 graduate of Lake Howell High School, Maitland, where she played softball. She is employed at the Volusia Mall, Daytona Beach.

Her fiancé, born at Fort Dix AFB, N.J., is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. H.C. McIntyre, Sezeria Park, MD, and Mr. and Mrs. H.E. Frutchey, Hacketts Town, N.J.

School's First Science Fair Draws 124 Projects

The results are in from the first Science Fair held at Lake Mary Elementary School. Over 124 projects and displays were entered by students in grades one through five.

Karen Warner

Dr. Alex Dickson, a science instructor from Seminole Community College, and Buck Metts of Lakeview Middle School, took on the difficult task of judging the projects on scientific thought, creative ability, thoroughness and skill. Top winners will go on into competition on a county level.

Winners were: first graders Doreen Defalas and Rebecca Everly, second graders Courtney Ondash and Chip Polito; third graders Brea Spertl and Christopher Richardson; fourth graders Shawn Murphy, Kris Esterson, Daniel Elrod, Robin Allen and Latonya Thomas; and fifth graders Troy Brewer, John Graham, Ben Davis, Chris Fedele and Spring Barkley.

The second phase of the Fair was the Science Olympics. Preliminary olympic contests had been held in each grade and the finalist participated in the contest to determine the representatives from each grade in the county competition.

Winners in the Olympics were: first grader Jodi Durham for bubbles; second grader Robert Clark for egg-dropping; third grader Christina Anderson for clay boats; fourth grader James Williams for paper airplanes; and fifth graders Travis Zinger and Darrell Rhew for building bridges.

Winners in the Eco-Quiz were Eric Speigle, Staci Elliott and Susan Aten, all fifth graders. Kindergarten winners were Lindsay Toms, Natalie Wu, Joshua Kloosing and Tracey Askew. Congratulations to all.

The annual bar-be-que chicken dinner held last weekend by the Lake Mary Volunteer Fireman was a great success. By the end of the bar-be-que, over 3,000 pounds of chicken had been cooked and served, as well as over 2,000 ears of corn, 60 gallons of baked beans and all the fixings.

Behind the scenes, former fire chief Zip Schwelckert along with his nephews and good buddies worked artistically basting the chicken halves with a secret barbeque sauce that has been in Zip's family for years.

In the kitchen, volunteers from the community, police and fire departments, kept the hot buttered corn and homemade beans going in over-sized pots. Out front, Woman's Club volunteers worked as a finely tuned instrument, filling orders of take-out dinners, with as many as 80 dinners being put together at once on the long assembly line.

The table set up by the Lake Mary Woman's Club with pounds of homemade pies, cakes and goodies was sold out faster than they could fill it. Next year, a lot more baking will go on.

Special "Thank You's" go out to all those volunteers who not only worked so hard, but had so much fun making the bar-be-que a successful fund raiser for the fire department.

The month of February was designated as "World Peace and Understanding Month" by Rotary International. In keeping with this theme, the Lake Mary Rotary Club scheduled the following guest speakers:

Elizabeth Williams, president-elect of USAUNA for Florida, spoke on the various program presently being initiated by the United Nations.

Speaking in reference to the many "trouble spots" in the world and the mistrust which exists between the East and West, she stated that without the forum of communication provided by the UN, a greater "lack of understanding" would arise, resulting in greater mistrust.

Dr. James Bellows, chemist with the Westinghouse Corporation, presented a program on his "Road Map To Peace," which also focused on the need of and importance of communications between nations.

Mrs. Rezvan Colleston, graduate of the University of Tehran, former program director for Radio India in New Delhi, and a translator, presented a program on "International Language — A Path To World Peace."

Rezvan's talk pointed out the barrier in communication due to different languages, and she shared her hopes that one day a universal language will be established to erase those barriers.

Ending up the month was Ms. Shala Evans, graduate of the University of Utah, presently employed with General Electric and Evans and Associates, spoke on the "Role of Science in World Understanding."

Other Rotary news: Representing the Seminole Pony Baseball League, Mike Black presented the club with a plaque of appreciation for all the club's support given to them.

The Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce will meet on Monday, March 5, at city hall, at 8 p.m. A very special topic will be on the agenda for discussion. According to Dolores Lash, program chairman, Seminole County commissioner Bob Sturm will tell, "Everything You Need To Know Regarding Amendment (Proposition) I." A vote of either yes or no will have a great impact on the life of every citizen, and before it's time to cast a ballot, voters should be informed on the issues. A question and answer time will be set up following the presentation. The public is cordially invited. Refreshments will be served.

True Religion Taught First In The Home, Then Church

DEAR ABBY: Concerning your response to "Conscientious Mother" I would agree that consistency in religious training is essential, but far more important than going to the same church every Sunday is for parents to live daily lives that embody the best and most noble tenets of all religions.

Dear Abby

If you take your children to the same church every Sunday and then set negative examples, you might as well take them to the pool hall for all the good it will do them. True religion is taught first in the home, and then the church.

JIM ENGLISH

DEAR MR. ENGLISH: Thanks for saying in plain English what all churchgoing people need to know. To recap the letter to which you refer: The divorced mother of two daughters, 8 and 11, had custody of the girls, but their father had them every other weekend. Father had remarried and joined his wife's church (Baptist). The children had been baptized Catholic and had attended Mass every Sunday. Father wanted to take the girls to the Baptist church every other Sunday. Mother thought consistency in their religious upbringing was important — that going back and forth between the Catholic and Baptist services would only confuse them, so father should take the girls to Catholic services when he had them for the weekend.

I agreed with Mother. Well, an avalanche of letters hit my desk — overwhelmingly critical of my view. Some said, "Of course you'd agree with the mother because you're Catholic." (I'm not, I'm Jewish.)

Most insisted that unless we are exposed to many different religious views, including Lutheran, Methodist, Jewish, Christian Science, Mormon and even atheism, we can't be expected to make an intelligent choice.

I agree. A variety of religious beliefs should indeed be studied, but I maintain that children under 10 should be brought up to believe in one church. To alternate weekly between the Catholic and Baptist churches at such a tender age would only confuse them.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. There is a guy at work who is around 35, married and obsessed with me. I am in my mid-20s and single.

He leaves flowers on my desk, calls me on the phone and drops notes on my desk. Once he appeared drunk at my home looking for me. Today he handed me a note asking me to marry him!

I told him I care for him only as a friend, but that did not discourage him. He continued pestering me, so I finally told him to please leave me alone. I hate to resort to informing his supervisors because I don't want to see him lose his job.

A lot of women must have this problem. How should I handle it?

HARASSED IN MILFORD, N.J.

DEAR HARASSED: Tell him that you never date married men, and that if he continues to harass you, you will report him to his supervisor. And if that doesn't cool him down, report him.

DEAR ABBY: My niece is 19 and pregnant. The boy is 16 and a casual acquaintance. They have no intentions of marrying, thank goodness. The pregnant girl's mother is my sister, and we have been going round and round about something I hope you will settle. She is planning a huge baby shower, inviting relatives and friends she has known for years.

I think she is flaunting a sad situation and she should forget the shower. Am I wrong?

Our family has bent over backward trying to help this girl feel good about herself. We have not criticized her. What's done is done. It's my sister I'm criticizing. Whose side are you on, Abby?

FAMILY FIGHT

DEAR FIGHT: Yours. Not only for the reason you mentioned, but because it is considered poor taste to give a shower for a member of one's own family.

Where do people who must get home early and get some sleep muster the strength to stand in the doorway and gab for another half hour?

Think of it this way: Every time you repair something yourself, you're making work for some professional repair service.

Mary Robinson Feted At Bridal Luncheon

Wedding bells will be ringing this weekend for Dr. David Mowere, a Sanford obstetrician and gynecologist, and Mary Elizabeth Robinson at the First United Methodist Church in Haines City.

Doris Dietrich
PEOPLE
Editor

The couple were introduced by Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth (Annette) Wing of Sanford.

On Saturday, Feb. 25, Annette entertained at a bridal luncheon honoring Mary at Sweetwater Oaks Country Club in Longwood.

The bride's chosen colors of peach and ivory were carried out in the decor. An arrangement of peach roses, white carnations and baby's breath in a silver bowl centered the table.

Mary received the guests attired in a turquoise silk dress complemented by a corsage of peach sonja roses, a gift from the hostess who also presented the bride-elect with a vegetable dish in her registered china.

Each guest shared her culinary expertise with Mary by bringing one of her favorite recipes for Mary's file.

Guests were served an elegant luncheon featuring Chicken Florentine, gourmet salad, fresh fruit and chocolate parfait.

Attending were: Mrs. Frank Robinson III, mother of the bride-elect, Haines City; Mrs. Frank Robinson Jr., grandmother, Winter Haven; Mrs. Chester Mowere, mother of the bridegroom-to-be, Tavares; Mrs. John Schaffer, Sanford; Mrs. Mark Webster, Orange City; and Mrs. James Stalnaker, Zephyrhills.

Also attending were: Kam Campbell, Casselberry; Nancy Koukalik, Altamonte Springs; and Paula Fite, Eileen Kelly and Mrs. Tom McCann, all of Orlando.

Lourine Messenger is chairman of the 1984-85 membership drive for Seminole Community Concert Association, according to Charlotte Smith. Mabel Piety is the co-chairman.

The membership drive will get underway Monday, at 6:30 p.m., at a dinner in Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church.

For information on membership in the association, call Lourine or Mabel.

Lake Mary High School is the setting March 3 for DISCOVERY - '84, an all-day event sponsored by Pankhurst Inc. for area high school girls.

During the day, panel discussions will be conducted by Jantice Springfield, group president of Sun Bank; Shirley Schilke, corporate executive, Schilke Enterprises; Samdra Glenn, Chairman Seminole County Commission; and Bettye Reagan, artist and the Herald's 1982 Outstanding Mom.

The keynote speaker is Karen Coleman, Coordinator of Community Relations and Public Information, Seminole County School Board, whose subject is "Life Is Like a Chocolate Chip Cookie."

Pankhurst is a local organization of professional women who focus on promoting and helping youth.

Humane Society of Seminole County president Helen Wolk presided over a luncheon for volunteers Feb. 25 at the Ag Center in Sanford. She thanked the volunteers for donating 20,000 hours to the society during the past year.

U.S. Representative Bill McCollum (R-Longwood), guest speaker and a member of the Society's Advisory Board, spoke on the value of volunteers in the community.

Minute Men Gourmet Foods, Dottie Bibeau, Carl's Deli and Raffles Bar and Grill donated food for the buffet luncheon.

Certificates of Appreciation, donated by Printing Palace, were presented to 72 active volunteers, "our greatest natural resource," according to Joanne Prager.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Alvin Calhoun will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, March 4, at open house in fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford.

Friends of the couple are invited to call during the appointed hours, 3 to 5 p.m. And the Calhouns respectfully request, "No gifts, please."

Two company dancers of Ballet Guild of Seminole, Robin Scott and Janet Sawczuk, auditioned in Miami for Boston Ballet's summer session. Both dancers were accepted.

The Pilot Club of Sanford entertained the Seminole High School Anchor Club at Seminole Community College with a chicken dinner at the February meeting.

Anchor Girls attending were: Chera Jessup, Stacy Junito, Susan Morris, Michelle Gazil, Lisa Johnson, Teresa Marie Cline, Melissa Berry, Trisha Boness, Jill Jamak, Kris Goebelbecker, Pam Williams, and the Seminole High Sponsor, Mrs. Mary Stokes.

President Geneva Spaulding presented Vocational Scholarships to Marie Sims, Linda Dittrich and Rose Dittrich. Nursing Scholarships were awarded to: Monique Bell, Nadine Reed.

Also attending were the two academic scholarship students, Patricia Burke and Bonita Blue. One of the honorary members, Lydia Watts, who is on the teaching staff of Seminole Community College, also attended.

At the end of the meeting, president Spaulding gave an informative talk about Freedom Foundation, which was held in November at Valley Forge for Anchor Girls and Pilots.

Spanish language instructor Dr. Ann Bachmann will conduct a tour, "Treasures of Northern Spain and Portugal," departing Saturday, April 21, and returning Wednesday, May 2. Students, faculty, staff and members of the community are invited to participate, Dr. Bachman says.

The group will arrive in Madrid in time to spend Easter Sunday on their own. Activities on the tour will include sightseeing in Madrid and a possible excursion to Toledo. The next day the group will tour the Valley of the Fallen, commemorating the cruel civil war; El Escorial, a monastery built by King Phillip II; Segovia, whose Roman aqueduct is over 1,000 years old; and finally to Burgos, where El Cid is buried in the famous white limestone cathedral.

From Burgos the group will proceed to Leon, the seat of Spain's first university and where the architectural styles of six centuries may be viewed.

Space is limited to 20 persons. For details, call Judy Barrows, 331-5663.

Dr. Marjorie Lansing

Native Daughter Guest Woman's Club Speaker

Dr. Marjorie Lansing, professor of political science at Eastern Michigan University since 1968, will speak on "The Gender Gap" at the Sanford Woman's Club luncheon meeting on March 7.

The author of "Women in Politics," in its second edition, Dr. Lansing has written numerous articles for magazines and also for the New York Times, The Washington Post and the Detroit Free Press. She is widely sought as a speaker. She is listed in "Who's Who in American Politics," "World Who's Who Among Women and American Men and Women in Science. She was named Outstanding Educator in America and received the Peace and Freedom award, granted by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in 1981.

She earned a B.A. from Florida University, an M.A. from Columbia University and a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

Dr. Lansing is a native of Sanford and the daughter of Margie Tillis and the late Mr. Roy Tillis.

Antique Appraisal Seminar

Mrs. Harriet Cordell, senior member of The American Society of Appraisers, highlighted the fall activities program at the Henry S. Sanford Museum-Library with a capacity crowd at an antique appraisal session held at the Museum last October.

Due to popular demand, the Museum and the newly organized Historical Preservation Society have responded to these many requests and have scheduled a special Antique Appraisal Seminar to be conducted by Mrs. Cordell at the Museum from 1 to 3 p.m. each Wednesday and Friday afternoon in March, beginning Wednesday, March 14, and ending on Friday, March 30.

Mrs. Cordell's knowledge and experience in the field of antiques extends to furniture, both domestic and imported to silver, crystal, china, fabrics, stitichery art and to recognize fakes.

Classes will be made up of lecture, demonstrations, illustrated with both slides and selected subject matter, with a portion of each class given over to various methods used in appraisals.

Classes will be limited in size and early registrations are suggested.

For additional information, call 321-0710 or 323-6419.

LOSE WEIGHT EVEN AS YOU SLEEP

THE 24 HOUR DIET PLAN PACK
Losing weight has never been easier, faster, more healthful, or more certain.

The GNC Research Staff had a difficult assignment... to develop a weight loss program that puts its demands on science rather than human will power. They screened all the most effective plans and aids now known, and combined the best of the best. Although nobody expected a miracle, a lot of people are describing this three-part program as just that.

1. Glucomannan helps you shed an average one half to one pound a day. Two Glucomannan capsules taken 1/2 hour before meals with an 8 oz. glass of water form a natural high fiber gel that reduces amounts of food you need to feel full, and also provides the bulk your system needs for passing more calories undigested out of the body.

2. Amino FB burns away fat while you sleep. These amino acid tablets taken before bedtime have been known to stimulate the production of growth hormones which direct your system to burn fat for energy instead of protein or carbohydrates—a reversal of the usual process. This action is continuously effective, even during sleep.

3. Preventon assures healthful nutritional balance. This high potency vitamin and mineral supplement delivers the all important nutritional requirements your body needs to look your best, feel your best and work your best.

Absolute Guarantee We unconditionally guarantee that the 24 Hour Diet Plan Pack will help you lose up to 5 pounds in ten days or your full purchase price will be refunded.

The 24 Hour Diet Plan Pack contains directions and a 2 week supply of products that together make weight control a physical science, not a challenge for your willpower.

Briefly

Winter Springs Baptist Observes Anniversary

The First Baptist Church of Winter Springs will celebrate its 10th anniversary on this Sunday. The Rex Nelson Singers from Atlanta, who will sing at 1:45 p.m., will be guests along with Dr. Luther Adkins of Knoxville, Tenn. In conjunction with the celebration, the new 2700 sq. ft. educational wing will be dedicated.

The church's ministries include the Ranchland Christian Pre-School, Daycare and Kindergarten, the Ranchland Christian School for grades 1-9, and a monthly television broadcast, "Foundations of Faith," on Channel 52.

Ex-Chaplain To Speak

Retired Army Chaplain Ralph E. Harrell will be guest speaker at the annual Senior Adult Appreciation Day of the First Baptist Church of Oviedo on Sunday, March 11, during the Bible study hour at 9:45 a.m. in the church auditorium. His subject will be "Biblical Concepts of Financial Planning."

A deacon at First Baptist Church, Orlando, Harrell is vice president and financial planner with G.A. Repple and Co., Orlando. He appears daily on WCPX-TV Channel 6 during the 11 p.m. news discussing Income Tax with Wayne Bennett.

Death And Dying

Positive approaches to the subject of death and dying will be explored at the next meeting of the Friends of the Library of Seminole County, Tuesday, March 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Casselberry Branch Library, Seminole Plaza, at Highway 17-92 and State Road 436.

Guest Speakers will be Margaret Boutwell of Hospice and Dr. Don Langfit of the First Presbyterian Church of Maitland. They will suggest helpful approaches to the terminally ill patient, to families facing an impending death, and to managing grief after death has occurred. This meeting is open to the public.

Building Fund Crusade

Community United Methodist Church of Casselberry will begin intensive planning and work on March 19 in preparation for the church's building fund crusade, which will culminate on Visitation Sunday on April 8. The purpose of the crusade is to provide funds for the much needed Sunday School expansion and as far as funds allow, certain other modifications in present facilities. The minimum need is $350,000 and the challenge goal is $400,000.

The Rev. Ernest W. Lee from the United Methodist Board of Global Ministries Office of Finance and Field Service will direct the endeavor.

Spanish Ministry To Sick

The Office of Pastoral Ministries of the Catholic Diocese of Orlando will sponsor a basic training workshop for those interested in becoming certified in Spanish-speaking ministry to the sick. The workshop will be given in Spanish on Saturday, March 17 at St. Joseph Church, 1501 Alafaya Trail, Orlando from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The workshop will offer training for the Spanish-speaking to minister to each others' needs in their native language. This is the first in the efforts of the Orlando Diocese to provide this kind of service to its Hispanic members. Those interested should be active in their parish and have their pastor's sponsorship.

For registration information, call the office at 425-3556 from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

Ash Wednesday

Holy Cross Episcopal Church, Sanford, will begin its schedule of Lenten events with Ash Wednesday services of Penance, Imposition of Ashes, and Holy Communion, scheduled at 7 a.m., 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. St. Mary's Chapter of the Episcopal Church Women will hold a pancake supper on Tuesday 5-7 p.m. in the parish hall.

Maranatha Meets

Maranatha New Life Center is temporarily meeting in the Crooms High School cafeteria with Sunday services at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday School begins at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday night prayer and Bible study is held at 6:30 p.m.

The church will hold a St. Patrick's Day banquet on March 17.

Choir Festival

St. Andrew Catholic Church, 801 Hastings St., Pine Hills, will host a Choir Festival which will consist of several choirs of the Orlando area Catholic churches this Sunday at 4 p.m. It is open to the public.

Christian Women Meet

The Altamonte-Maitland Christian Women's Club will have a Pink Cherry Blossom Festival at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at the Maitland Civic Center. Cld Davidson of St. Petersburg will be the speaker and Kathy Miller will sing. For brunch and nursery reservations call Marilyn Greemore, 862-8687.

UCF Luther Series

As part of a series on Martin Luther at University of Central Florida program will be presented at 7:30 p.m. in the student center auditorium. Dr. John F. Johnson, member of the Roman Catholic-Lutheran dialog team and pastor of Our Savior Lutheran Church, St. Petersburg, will speak on "Luther's On-going Challenge to the Church—Grace," and Dr. Zoltan Antony, pastor of St. Mark's German Lutheran Church, Orlando, and personal contact with Dietrich Bonhoeffer, will speak on "The Church in Germany during the Third Reich."

On Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the University Theatre Erna G. Antony, will present "Katarine van Bora, Another of the Luthers." Dr. Paul E. Riley, chairperson of the UCF Department of Humanities, Philosophy and Religion will give a summary of "Die Wirkung."

Wycliffe Celebrates

50 Years Of Bible Translation

When young Cameron Townsend first went to Latin America to sell Spanish Bibles, a veteran missionary declared: "That skinny Townsend won't last two months." But this year Wycliffe Bible Translators (WBT) and its sister organization, the Summer Institute of Linguistics (SIL), the groups Townsend founded, are celebrating their 50th year of service.

As Townsend sold Spanish Bibles in Guatemala in 1917, he discovered that 60 percent of the people were members of language groups who could not speak or read Spanish. He quit selling Bibles and began living among the Cakchiquel people. He learned their difficult language, analyzed the intricate grammar and translated the New Testament.

But Townsend had a growing vision for reaching other linguistic minority groups. In 1934 he opened "Camp Wycliffe" in Arkansas to train young people for translation work. Two students came. In 1935, after a second session with five students, he began work in Mexico. From this small beginning has come the worldwide program of linguistics and Bible translation. In the past 50 years, over 200 New Testaments have been completed in languages which previously had been without a written form and 20,000 persons trained in linguistics.

Today linguistic work has begun in 1,000 languages representing almost 40 countries. It is estimated that almost 3,000 of the world's language groups still are without the Scriptures in their own tongue. SIL is providing the linguistic training and carrying out the actual field work, while Wycliffe encourages interest in the overall task of Bible translation. Members of these organizations number more than 5,000 and come from 26 countries.

SIL linguists develop alphabets for unwritten languages and produce dictionaries and primers used to teach people to read and write. Both Townsend and SIL have received many honors such as UNESCO's Literacy Award for outstanding work in Papua New Guinea. In 1982, SIL linguist Kenneth Pike was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize.

In addition to translating the Scriptures, SIL encourages development of a basic literature collection by authoring and translating health and nutrition materials, agriculture booklets and folk tales of interest to the people it serves. Hundreds of minority language speakers serve as translation associates.

A holistic approach to service has been a principle of Wycliffe. Today service takes on the forms of community development, transportation by SIL airplanes (Jungle Aviation and Relief Service) medical assistance and bilingual education.

Pioneering also has been a hallmark of Wycliffe and SIL and in addition to the physical aspects, there are pioneering efforts in the areas of language learning, linguistic analysis, translation process, missionary aviation and the use of computers.

Members of WBT and SIL are convinced that the main reason Townsend's ideas worked is that he, and the organizations, believe that God does the impossible. To Townsend, "no" was not a negative, just a delay or a detour. If God had promised him something, "no" could not mean "no." In Columbia there were seven "no's" before the doors were open to SIL work. In Indonesia, there were 14.

When he applied to the Soviet Union, he was told, "Not this year, maybe next year." "Praise the Lord," he said. "One 'no' behind us."

Townsend kept his eyes on the goal of giving all language groups the Scriptures in their own tongue and help preserve their unique cultural identities. Until the day of his death in 1982, he would say, "I do not see how we can fail if we trust God and follow His leadership."

For 50 years young men and women have been following Townsend's example. Joanne Shelter spent 20 years translating the New Testament for the Balangao people in the Philippines. When the work was dedicated, Translator Bob Gunn works with a language helper in Panama.

Joan said: "I really believe we're made to give our lives to something bigger than we are. I needed to give myself completely to something—something more important than myself."

"Every mother feels she'd give all of herself, even die for her children," Joanne continues. "In many ways, Bible translation is like that. You have a whole group of people you feel are worthy of your whole life. You give your body, strength, emotion—for their sake and the Gospel's. When you give it all on Christ's behalf, it's easy."

Minister And Wife Acquitted

SUMMERVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — A prosecutor says children whose parents belong to a church that preaches faith healing may be in danger because a judge acquitted a minister who did not seek medical attention for his dying foster son.

David Whitman, assistant district attorney in Chattooga County, Ga., said the acquittal Wednesday of C.H. Long, 40, and his wife Judy, 39, sent the wrong signal to the Church of God of the United Assembly, a group that rejects the use of medicine.

"The rest of the children in that (Long) house are in a little bit of trouble. I just feel sorry for them if they ever get sick," Whitman said.

The couple had faced manslaughter charges in the death of Tommy Glenn Hester, 16, who was living with the Longs last Sept. 17 when he died of an infection that resulted from an untreated ruptured appendix.

The Longs have five children of their own, ranging in age from 6 to 16, and they are guardians of another teenager. Long is a preacher at the Union Assembly church in Chattooga County.

Superior Court Judge Joseph E. Loggins acquitted the Longs after the prosecution rested its case, saying the evidence did not support a conviction.

"The court feels there is not sufficient evidence in this case to support a conviction even if the jury returned a conviction," Loggins ruled.

Defense attorney Bobby Lee Cook Sr. criticized police for not holding a coroner's inquest to investigate the death and called the probe "shoddy."

Whitman said the judge's ruling baffled him because the state's star witness, Rome, Ga., pathologist Charles Sennett, testified the boy could have been saved, but the Longs let him die.

Sennett said Hester's ruptured appendix spread infection to the rest of his body and the boy spent a week in agony before dying at home.

"It would have caused severe pain," Sennett told the jury. "It would have been a bellyache, a severe bellyache."

Sennett, who performed the autopsy, said doctors might have been able to save him even if he had been brought to the hospital just four hours before he died.

Hester went to live with the Longs after his parents' deaths in 1981.

Long, an electrician, told reporters he was not aware his foster son's illness was deadly.

"I had no idea," the minister said. "He would not have been refused a doctor. He never asked to go to a doctor."

Pope Reinforces Birth Control Ban

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II said Thursday the Roman Catholic ban on artificial birth control must not be considered just "an ideal," but enforced despite the fact that "the heart of man and woman is inhibited by lust."

The pope spoke at an audience for 100 priests attending a study seminary on "natural regulation of fertility" sponsored by the John Paul II Institute in Rome.

He told the priests they must stick to the teaching on birth control contained in the late Pope Paul VI's encyclical Humanae Vitae (Of Human Lives) and his own apostolic letter titled Familiaris Consortio (On the Christian Family).

Both these documents reiterated the church's ban on all forms of artificial birth control, permitting only the rhythm method based on a woman's natural cycle of fertility.

"The real difficulty is that the heart of man and woman is inhibited by lust," the pope said. "And lust pushes that liberty into not granting the authentic demands of conjugal love."

School Prayer Advocates Push For Constitutional Amendment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate GOP leader Howard Baker appeared on a religious television show to push passage of a school prayer proposal and TV and sports stars swarmed around Capitol Hill to back the constitutional amendment.

"The choice is yours," said Mary Murray, who taught in Maryland public schools for 40 years. "You can vote in the affirmative and be on the side of God, George Washington, the Founding Fathers and President Reagan."

"Or you can vote 'no' and be on the side of Khrushchev, Madalyn Murray O'Hair and the millions of agnostics and atheists who do not recognize America as 'one nation under God.'"

She was among the witnesses who appeared before the House Republican Study Committee Monday. Also testifying were ex-Harlem Globetrotter Meadowlark Lemon, Washington Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs and Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry.

Demond Wilson, who starred in TV's "Sanford and Son," told the group: "Bringing God back into the classrooms will help in putting an end to the stabbing, rapes, drugs, alcohol and other serious problems in the schools."

The study committee, a legislative support group led by conservatives and bankrolled by 130 Republican House members, staged the star-studded hearing to pressure the House leadership. Some of the conservatives are planning to keep the House in session all night Monday for speeches protesting inaction on the prayer issue.

All speakers told the GOP panel they oppose the Supreme Court decisions beginning in 1962 that ended state-sponsored prayer in public schools because it violates the constitutional requirement of separation of church and state.

Baker, interviewed on "The 700 Club," said he expects delaying tactics that will probably prevent the Senate from even discussing school prayer when he tries to open debate next week. He intends to bring it up Monday.

"We'll probably have to shut down a filibuster to proceed," said Baker, asking viewers of the fundamentalist Christian talk show to urge their senators to vote to end any filibuster.

"I think the chances are pretty good that we can pass it," said Baker, noting "an overwhelming majority of Americans want prayer back in our schools." A Gallup survey estimated that 82 percent of the public supports school prayer.

Baker is working with the White House on a measure to make school prayer voluntary and vocal — not silent meditation. It would prevent authorities from dictating what prayer is said.

President Reagan has gone to great lengths to show support for school prayer, listing it as a priority in his State of the Union address and stressing it in the speech that kicked off his reelection campaign.

Ratification is required by 34 states once two-thirds of both houses of Congress approve.

Symptoms Of Sick Religion

Luke tells us that Jesus, upon viewing the insensitivity and blindness of the people of Jerusalem, wept. The very thought of our Lord crying is an interesting one. Surely there were many occasions of disappointment and frustration. My guess is that He must have wept much more often than scripture records. I wonder how much we cause Him to weep today, you and me as His church. We are quick to recognize Jerusalem's illness as a contributory cause for the Master's tears. Are we willing to recognize the church's sickness today? There is a lot about religion today that the world calls sick. I confess they are right.

I don't know all the causes of sick religion. What I do know though are some of the symptoms that tell us when our religious expressions and values are unhealthy.

The first, I think, and the most obvious, is self-righteousness. This is like a running sore that repulses all who come near. In Jesus' day they were the morally precise, religiously orthodox and unloving Pharisees who followed the letter of the law, but were considered an enemy of Jesus.

Oh, they did all of the proper things in the most careful manner. In His prayer the Pharisee freely reminded God of how righteous he was. What our new day Pharisee does not realize is that the Bible tells us that our righteousness is as "filthy rags."

Religion is ill when it is so super quick to condemn, but notoriously slow to

Revival Set

Evangelist C.H. Chambley of Doraville, Ga., will conduct a revival at Sanford Church of God, 801 W. 22nd St., Sanford, March 4-11. Sunday services will be at 10:50 a.m. and 6 p.m., and Monday through Friday at 7 p.m.

forgive. Do you know that the Bible allows us to determine our own degree of divine forgiveness? I mean we are to receive forgiveness to the same degree that we practice human forgiveness. Put bluntly, that says, "if you want God to forgive you, you must forgive others." Simple? NO, but an absolute requirement.

A third indication of a sick religion is to practice piety in the church buildings and fail to translate our religious convictions into positive action in the market place where people live and work.

There is a kind of "religion" that adores the beauty of Sunday morning Worship time...singing, praying, preaching, but never makes it from the sanctuary to the street corner or parking lot. There are some people who tell of their "mountaintop" experiences with the Lord, but never get down to the "streams or valleys" where human tears, needs and sufferings are ignored and unmet.

Surely, it is good for the church to gather together. But wouldn't you agree that it is even better when we are healthy, whole and happy and scatter to be God's healing agents in the world?

Service Added During Lent

During Lent, beginning March 11 and continuing through Easter, April 22, Community United Methodist Church, Casselberry, will hold three morning church services each Sunday at 8:30, 9:30 and 10:55 a.m.

An Ash Wednesday service will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the church sanctuary. The emphasis will be upon confession and receiving forgiveness of sins.

To Lecture

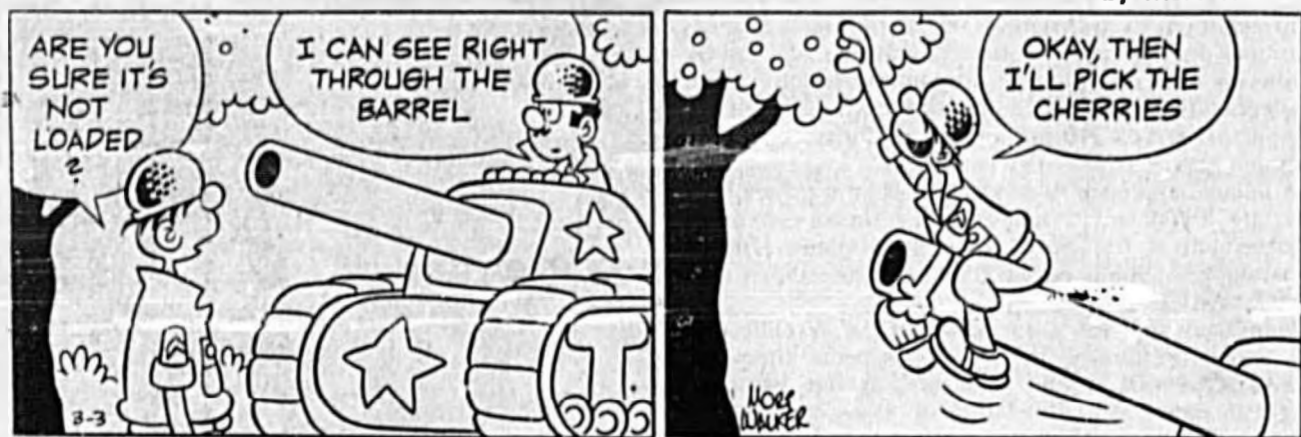

Andre J. Plot of St. Louis, Mo., will lecture at 3 p.m. March 10 at First Church of Christ Scientist, 988 Elkcam Blvd., Deltona, on "Christian Science: Unlocking the Treasures of the Bible." It is open to the public. Child care is provided.

Jim: "Here is an instructive hand that demonstrates almost all the various ways that the declarer can take tricks. What are some of those ways? How about drawing trumps, ruffing losers in the dummy, setting up a side suit, and cashing high-card winners. "First we'll show you how declarer went wrong. And then we'll see what should have been done about it."

"East won the king of spades and immediately led back the heart nine. Declarer won the king of hearts and then played the ace of hearts. Next he trumped a spade, led a diamond to the ace and trumped another spade. When he played the king and queen of diamonds and the jack did not fall, he had to lose a spade, club, heart and diamond for down one. "What went wrong? Declarer was too hasty to play the second high heart. Instead, after winning the heart return at the second trick, he should now play a club. West can win the club king and lead the heart queen, but now declarer has the timing to do what he needs to do to make his contract. He will take the heart queen with his ace, play a diamond to the king, trump a club, play another diamond to the queen and trump another club. Next he will ruff a spade and trump a fourth club from the dummy. "West can overruff or not, as he chooses, but he cannot stop declarer from taking 10 tricks. "Norman Kay, one of Dad's teammates, played this hand correctly in the Reisinger win. The other South went wrong."

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 4, 1984
In the year ahead, in order to improve your material standing you may find yourself more daring and enterprising than in the past. This is good, provided you don't become prone to reckless gambles.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not permit your extravagant whims to gain the upper hand today. If you're associating with big spenders, there's a chance this might happen. Look ahead into the year following your birthday by sending for your Pisces' Astro-Graph predictions. Mail $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send an additional $2 for your Matchmaker set, which tells to whom you are best suited romantically.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) It will take more than your charm and good looks to get you by today where important goals are concerned. Objectives will be achieved only through dedication.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Normally you're logical and methodical, but today you may leave important matters to chance and lessen your possibilities for success.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A wise old adage says, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." Bear this in mind today, especially when conducting business.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Persons in a position to help you shy away today if they feel you are only copying up to them because you need them. Be sincere.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are too impressed with your own ideas today, it could cause you to turn a deaf ear to better suggestions made by coworkers.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Subdue tendencies today to impulsively jump into joint ventures before you know exactly what you're getting yourself involved in. Be slow, not sorry.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons sincerely interested in your welfare may want to offer you helpful advice today. Hear them out before making big decisions.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're not the type of person who ignores responsibility. However, today you may step out of character and leave what needs doing up to others.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though material conditions are improving for you, this is not a good time to be wasteful or extravagant. Think "thrifty" and "prudence."
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be a shade too opinionated today for your own good. You may think you're impressing others, and you are - but the wrong way.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep a lock on your tongue today or else there's a possibility you might let the cat out of the bag pertaining to something secret.

YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 5, 1984

Your possibilities for adding to your material worth look promising in the coming year. You will be more ingenious and resourceful in money matters than you have been in the past.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Let events run their natural course today. Issues that should work out to your ultimate benefit. Introducing erratic changes may spoil things. Want to find out to which signs you are best suited romantically? Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019 for your Astro-Graph Matchmaker set. Send an additional $1 plus your zodiac sign for your year-ahead predictions.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your generosity is easily aroused today, yet you may put strings on that which you give and diminish the luster of your deeds.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Instinctively you'll know how to achieve important objectives today but, once you get what you want, you may not be equally as wise about holding onto it.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make it a point today to speak well about persons with whom you're involved careerwise. Gossip or thoughtless comments could alienate an associate.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone fond of you is willing to do something for you today she wouldn't do for others. Don't mention what transpires to uninvolved friends.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Agreements based upon unselfishness will work out well for all concerned today. In matters where you are trying to gain an edge, this won't be true.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This can be a very productive day, provided you work on projects you enjoy. Distasteful tasks could prove to be a waste of time.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take time to enjoy yourself today but don't overload your agenda with fun pursuits to where you neglect your essential responsibilities.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to focus your social activities within the home today. Invite others in, rather than making it an expensive night out on the town.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be in a better frame of mind for handling difficult assignments early in the day than you will be toward evening. Don't put things off.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You should be rather fortunate today where your material interests are concerned, yet you might be dissatisfied because you expended more.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In financial or business matters today, be pleasant to those with whom you deal but don't be so easygoing that you give away the store.
