Oviedo police bust elaborate pot cultivator

Officers from the Oviedo Police Department Community Response Team last week served a drug search warrant in Oak Hill Villas and uncovered a house strictly used for cultivation of marijuana.

The investigation into activity at the house in the residential neighborhood near Oviedo High School took less than a month. According to authorities, investigators busted the most elaborate indoor marijuana growing systems that had ever seen.

No one actually lived at the rented three-bedroom, two bath house. Instead, two bedrooms and one bathroom were being used solely for growing marijuana.

It is estimated that $20,000 in illicit cultivation equipment had been installed in the house, including high pressure sodium lights, a carbon dioxide distributor, and a drip grid to water each plant, plus exhaust hoods and fans to remove heat from the grow lights. To avoid excessive electrical use appearing on the utility bill, electricity had been diverted by cutting a hole through the cement floor of the garage and splicing into the main power line.

About 500 plants were seized. The largest plants have an estimated street value of about $2,000 each.

Police arrested David Christopher Oswald, 22, of Orlando, for cultivation and trafficking of marijuana. Additional charges are pending.

City reprimands leader, spares attorney

By Christopher Patton
Managing Editor

LONGWOOD — A city debate sparked by a commissioner-elect's campaign signs led to the censure of a Longwood commissioner Tuesday and a narrow escape for the city attorney who was facing dismissal from his post.

Several city leaders contended at a meeting last month that since Brian Sackett was the lone candidate to qualify for the District 5 seat in the Nov. 4 election he was no longer a candidate but a commissioner-elect. As such, some city leaders said he should take down his election signs.

City Attorney Richard Taylor offered a legal opinion on the matter, only to have the majority of the commission override his suggestion and rule Sackett remove his signs within 15 days. Commissioner Butch Bundy, who did not support the removal of Sackett's campaign signs, stated in a memorandum to the city clerk that if Sackett was no longer a candidate than he should be sworn in.

"I hardly recommend that you contact the city attorney to protect your rights before you blatantly disregard your duties as city clerk," Bundy wrote to Sara Mijares, the city clerk.

The memorandum irked Commissioner Paul Lovstrand who called for the censure of Bundy as he said no one commissioner has the power to authorize such action. Lovstrand added that Bundy's statements were a thinly veiled threat.

"These actions concern me," he said. "Never in my 10 years on this commission have I seen such arrogance and bullying of a staff member."

Bundy followed Lovstrand's charge by stating that the commission could not "walk down both sides of the street."

"If he has been elected, then he needs to be sworn in," he said. "There was no pressure put on Sara (Mijares)

Art Festival Fantastic

Art enthusiasts came out of the woodwork to attend the Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts held last weekend on International Parkway in Lake Mary.

The 17th annual festival highlighted artists from throughout Florida and the United States. Although committee members are still unclear on the number of attendees, according to DeLores Lash, chairwoman of the festival committee, the event brought in more patrons than the 2001 and 2002 festivals.

"We were packed," she said. "The weather was perfect for the festival. I asked the Lord to make sure we had good weather for the artists. It was picture perfect."

Lake Mary Mayor Thomas Greene kicked off the 2003 festival, which was dedicated to Leo Trepanier, who passed away last year. Since 1988, Trepanier had donated the use of L&L Acres for the art festival.

For the fourth year, the Rotary Club hosted art of a different kind at the festival — a car and truck show. The show was open to all makes and models, with trophies awarded in various categories.

The purpose of the annual festival is to raise scholarship money for Seminole County art students.

The festival's poster artist Linda Amundsen, who specializes in oil paintings, did her share to help raise money. As the poster artist, Amundsen's "Polly," a

Longwood continues arcade delay

By Christopher Patton
Managing Editor

LONGWOOD — The city of Longwood was the first to extend a delay of adult arcades Tuesday after the county and two other cities in Seminole passed moratoriums restricting the arrival of the gaming rooms.

Sanford, Casselberry and Seminole County passed emergency ordinances for 90-day moratoriums on adult arcades in the past two months to investigate and possibly develop regulations against the arcades that pass out prizes to winners of slot machine-like games. Longwood also voted in favor of an emergency ordinance last month, but according to its city charter, the emergency stay could only last for 60 days.

According to City Attorney Richard Taylor, Longwood commissioners needed to consider two options of either moving forward with an ordinance that regulates the gaming rooms similar to adult entertainment businesses or to state they constitute unlawful gambling.

"Commissioner (Paul) Lovstrand said he visited one and I intend to do that," Taylor said. "I have talked to several people that have gone to these (games) and they have indicated that these (games) do not involve skill."

Iraqi Diary: Baghdad UFO

7 Sept. 2003 We are still living at Camp Marlboro in that old cigarette factory. We did get some good food, but we are back on T-rations again. A few times I got to eat at one of Saddam's old palace compounds where some other units are located. The food was great there, it was prepared and served by the Brown & Root contractors. Then they told us we couldn't eat there anymore, but once and awhile they'd give us some left over food from the palace dining facility. It was a great treat just to get those left-overs then the guy from Brown & Root that was smuggling left-overs to us was fired for doing it. So we are back to living on T-rats and MREs.

Things were suppose to get better. We have showers, but they seldom work. We have a generator for power that does not work. We have A/C units, but of course without power they don't work. We do have internet access providing we pay $4 an hour and the power is on. I'd say that the two greatest morale boosters is getting mail and going to the latrine. We do have a latrine because we built it.

It seems that all the civilian officials and contracting personnel live in those palace compounds. They even have bathrooms and beer. How can they have beer when we've been told that alcoholic beverages are not allowed under Islamic law? I think our patrol should pull a stop on one of their supply trucks and confiscate their food and beer.

I came to Iraq weighing 200, and I now weigh 160 in sweat drenched DCUs [desert camouflage uniform]. I know this sounds funny, but some of us are starting to look like refugees from Auschwitz. They don't want us saying anything negative, besides our voices wouldn't be heard anyway. Now if Idyllwilde Elementary School students recently attended a community-based education class at Lowe's in Sanford to learn how to build a butterfly garden.

The trip was designed to help students in Kym Santman and Rebecca Gutley's educable mentally disabled (EMD) classes learn how to construct the butterfly garden and to interact with others outside the classroom.

"Trips like this allow the students to learn from hands on experience," said Santman. "It allows

Restaurant manager fends off robber with gun

The manager of the China Feast Restaurant, located at 7800 U.S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park, defended himself against a possible armed robber Sunday afternoon.

At about 11 a.m., Shan Zhao was reportedly outside at the rear of the establishment cleaning grease filters. He was bent over when he noticed a skinny African American male about 18 years old and 5 feet, 8 inches tall pointing a rifle at him.

According to the Seminole County Sheriff's Report, Zhao thought the gun "looked funny to him and thought it wasn't real." Zhao wrestled the gun away from the suspect, but he in turn picked up one of the heavy metal grease filters and struck Zhao with it.

Deputies were unable to locate the suspect after an extensive search of the area that included a nearby motel. After further investigation, authorities found the gun was not loaded and the bolt was missing. Zhao did receive abrasions to his neck, arm and leg, but did not seek medical attention.

you say "you love this place," they'll put it on CNN. The truth is, we are basically living a half-notch-up from when we first arrived in Baghdad.

We hear the news, we know everybody has been told the entire 3rd Division returned home, but if you look at the news photos from here you will still see third division patches. They just reattached us to other units, like our company was reattached to the 2nd Cav. We want to shout to the world, "They are third division and we are still here!" I guess it's a waste of time to rant and rave, so we'll just tighten our belts and continue to march and let people believe what they want.

Now they tell us that our redeployment to the states is being changed again, supposedly for the better. We don't even get excited about redeployment anymore because we don't believe anything that they tell us.

17 Sept. 2003 It is sweltering today in this warehouse but not as hot as it was a few weeks ago. I hope it gets cooler. Of course, getting below 100 degrees is cool here.

Today we had to go to the Al Nakhwa Police Station to work out of there. When we arrived we were informed that something strange had fallen out of the sky. They said it was some kind of object but could not explain much about what it was except that it was not an airplane or missile of any kind.

One guy said the thing had crashed out of the sky behind a mosque and the police had the area cordoned-off. I said maybe it was a UFO hoping that some aliens had landed to abduct us out of here. Or perhaps it was a recon mission from outer space to find out why earthlings shoot at each other. Then again, maybe earthlings shot it down.

Of course the Iraqi Police needed a definition for the word "UFO," so I said, "An unidentified flying object." They said, "Yes, unidentified, but it is not flying. It crash." So, we had a "UCO," or "unidentified crashed object."

Well this sounded intriguing enough and certainly more fun than investigating another murder, so off we went to check out the incident. We arrived at the site just behind a religious mosque which had been roped off for security. The IPF [Iraqi Police Force] bomb disposal guys were out there looking at a strange package that the thing had been carrying. It was obviously an electronic device of some kind, and the police had a number of large pieces of latex which were determined to be from a fairly big balloon.

The balloon had evidently popped and deflated while carrying its payload of electronic gear and crashed to earth behind the mosque. The whole event made me think of that Roswell flying saucer crash story from the 1940s which the government said was really a weather balloon.

According to the Iraqi bomb disposal guys this thing was carrying a weather measuring instrument. We have no idea where it came from, but it fell in Baghdad. I'm not too sure that it was a weather measuring device, but that is the best that could be determined. It did not look like a military-made thing, definitely not American, and looked more home-made than anything else. I suggested that someone could have been "testing the waters" to see if an explosive device could be sent over the city and dropped by remote control, that's always a possibility.

Next issue: Rotator cuff problems.

Georgetown community to get a facelift

From Staff Reports

In an effort to keep Georgetown clean, residents are being asked to push, pull or drag garbage to the curb for a free Saturday pickup.

As well as the garbage collection a cleanup party will be held at Bentley Wilson Park at the corner of Eighth Street and Orange Avenue at 8 a.m. Saturday, with a picnic for volunteers at noon.

During the garbage pickup, an unlimited amount of household garbage and yard waste may be placed out for collection in 30-gallon bags or watertight receptacles consisting of either plastic, metal, rubber or similar materials with proper handles and a tight-fitting cover.

Full bags or containers can weigh no more than 40 pounds each. Workers will leave behind containers exceeding this limit or garbage mixed with yard waste or special waste.

Bundles of yard waste can be no longer than 5 feet or contain branches larger than 5 inches in diameter. Yard waste is considered vegetative matter such as tree branches, leaves, grass, clippings or palm fronds.

During Saturday's pickup, workers will also haul off bulk materials for free. These items include those things not practical to bag, bundle or tie, including homeowner generated, non-hazardous materials.

Bulk materials generated at any other time besides Saturday and a designated day in April, will be charged $3.75 per cubic yard, with a 4 cubic yard minimum. In order to receive this service on a general day, call Public Works Solid Waste Department at 407-302-9414.

Recyclable materials are also included in this clean up event. Residents are asked to place materials in the city-provided 14-gallon bins. The following materials are accepted: newspapers, magazines, aluminum cans, telephone books, steel cans, and plastic and glass bottles.

Furniture will be pick up on the residents' second garbage day, while appliances are scheduled for Wednesdays, and tires and batteries on Fridays. No fee is associated with these services, but the Public Works Solid Waste Department must be notified for pickup.

If items left for pickup do not meet the before mentioned requirements, a tag will be left expressing the reason why the item is not being removed. For more information on the free garbage pickup, call 407-302-9414.

Lake Mary girl on primetime Friday

Lake Mary 6-year-old Ashley Fazel and her Yorkshire Terrier, Muppy, will appear on the show Pet Star on Animal Planet this Friday. The show airs on Animal Planet at 8 and 11 p.m.

Pet Star is a show where people of all ages and from all states come on the show and perform tricks before a live audience and three celebrity judges give them a score out of 10. Ashley and Muppy earned a perfect score from all three judges and went into the finale. Muppy bounced a balloon off his nose for 30 seconds and then popped it on the show. The audience votes on the final winner. Ashley lives in the Crossings neighborhood and attends school at Heathrow Elementary as a first grader.

Bountiful Burdines

Seminole Towne Center Burdines selected Harbors I and II Literacy and Learning Centers, initiatives of Seminole County Public Schools and Sanford Housing Authority, this summer as recipients of a food drive. During the month of June, store associates of the Seminole Burdines teamed with Burdines associates across the state to combat hunger. The "Bag Hunger" campaign was organized by Burdines' Partners in Time (PIT). PIT encourages company associates to get involved in worthwhile and fulfilling projects that make a difference in the community, while fostering camaraderie, civic pride and volunteerism. The food drive was the sixth annual campaign against hunger by Burdines. The department store partnered with the Florida Association of Food Banks, an affiliate of America's Second Harvest, the non-profit organization that initiated National Hunger Awareness Day. Pictured are (left to right) Jean Metts, director of Seminole Volunteer Enterprises, Inc., Elizabeth Graham, Seminole County Schools administrator of the Harbors, Rick Williams, resource teacher at the Harbors, Katrina Burgard, Burdines administrative assistant, and Samantha Le and Rosalyn Gaines, Burdines sales managers.

New Sanford subdivision features one-acre, heavily wooded parcels

By Jamie J. Anderson-Potter
Staff Writer

As Seminole County continues to flourish, developers must supply quality home sites for new residents, such as Markham Estates, a new upscale subdivision in Sanford. Markham Estates is a private, gated community located in the Wekiva Reserve area, approximately one mile south of State Road 46 at the intersection of Longwood Markham Road and Markham Road in Sanford.

The community is a 40-acre development consisting of 30 home sites. The one-acre lots will require a minimum home size of 2,600 square feet. The subdivision will have the conveniences of major roads, and shopping and business centers, while still providing homeowners with a peaceful lifestyle.

The homes will be located near Lake Sylvan Recreational Park, which offers tennis, soccer, boating and racquetball. The Seminole-Wekiva Trail also borders the south side of the property.

"We're excited about this project," said Jim Doyle, broker owner of Doyle Realty, Inc., a property management, sales and investment company,

"This is a great location to build a home."

Doyle has partnered with Rudy Rode, president of Build Florida, to develop the property. Rode is also one of the qualified builders in Markham Estates.

"The lots are selling quickly," Doyle said. "We have seven properties closed and four under contract."

The heavily wooded lots start at $134,900. Once the land is purchased the developers will assist the homeowner in obtaining a builder for their new home.

Associates from Doyle Realty will be on-site beginning Saturday during regular business hours, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, to answer any questions or give tours of the property to prospective buyers. They can also be reached at their office located at 211 W. First Street in Sanford or by calling 407-322-2495.

painting of a parrot from Costa Rica, was duplicated on T-shirts and brochures promoting the festival. According to Lash, the shirts were a near sell out, with only nine remaining.

Amundsen also donated the original "Polly" painting to the art festival where it was auctioned off to the highest bidder. The $975 from the painting, along with the money raised from T-shirt sales, parking and other fund-raising items, will be given to Seminole County Public Schools for scholarship money.

According to Lash, the committee members won't know the final tally of scholarship funds until the books are balanced in the coming weeks. Depending on the funds available after the bills are paid, an undetermined number of $1,000 scholarships will be awarded to deserving students in the spring.

"We're trying to push education and arts for kids growing up in Seminole County," Lash said.

Carrying on this theme, a section of the festival was devoted to student artists, with more than 2,000 students participating. Awards were given to first-place winner Melissa Defabrizio and third-place winner Krystle Yontz, both of Lake Howell High School, and second-place finisher Kristen Harness of Lake Brantley High School. The students will be awarded cash prizes during an art show in March of 2004.

Awards of merit were also presented to: Jesses Mills, Shannon Stavion and Angela Evans, all of Lake Mary High School; Daniel Perez and Sarah Anderson, both of Lyman High School; Patrick Dayhoff, Crystal Chenevert, Michael Bridge, Caroline Appleton, Jeein Shin and Alison Peckett, all of Lake Brantley High School; Nicolas Corominas and Melanie Cromer, both of Seminole High School; Melissa Caldwell of Winter Springs High School; Whitney Stephens of Lake Howell High School; and Alex Bramatikas and Devi Blackwell, both of Oviedo High School.

As with any major event, the festival had its share of problems, which included unorganized parking. The committee is already working on ways to improve this and other items before the 2004 festival.

"We needed more volunteers for parking," said Lash. "We are working on that for next year."

them to be exposed to vocabulary as well as learn social skills, different types of jobs, functional life skills and basic skills such as moving to the right when someone is coming toward you."

The 13 students will take what they learned during the trip to construct the butterfly garden outside the B wing at the school.

The group hopes to have the garden completed by the end of the month. The project will then become ongoing as the students release caterpillars into the garden periodically.

The EMD classes at Idyllwild attend these types of trips at least twice a month. Other outings have included the bowling alley, the Seminole Towne Center Mall, the fire department and Outback Steakhouse.

According to Santman, these trips allow the students to enter into mainstream society by teaching them to build friendships and identify the things they learn in the classroom in the "real world."

"The students don't generalize from one setting to another," said Santman. "This allows the transfer of skills through community-based instruction."

Seminole County Fire Department will be observing Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5 to 11. Fire Prevention Week is a nationally recognized program to teach families about fire and the dangers they pose. During the week, fire fighters will promote fire escape plans, smoke alarms and fire extinguisher safety.

Fire is dark. Every 30 seconds a fire can double in size. In minutes, thick, black smoke will fill a house. At night, fire victims wake up completely disoriented, unable to see their own hand in front of their face. Room temperatures in a fire rise as high as 1,100 degrees at eye level. Inhaling this air once scorches lungs and causes serious injury. Working smoke alarms can save lives. The alarm will give a family the time needed to get out of a residential fire. Fire escape plans, that are practiced, will teach a family how to get out of the home when those smoke alarms begin to sound.

Citizens are encouraged to test their smoke alarms. In addition, fire fighters suggest that each family make a fire escape plan with at least two routes of escape and a meeting place outside. These simple tasks can mean the difference between life and death.

have an ordinance to regulate prostitution because it's unlawful," he added. "Gambling is unlawful."

Taylor has contacted attorneys from the other area municipalities and Seminole County trying to coordinate a meeting so they could have consistent regulations against the adult arcade rooms. Time, however, was expiring for Longwood before that meeting could be arranged.

Commissioner Butch Bundy suggested the city should extend the moratorium for four months until Taylor could fully investigate the issue and possibly meet with peers trying to tackle the same issue.

"I would feel comfortable allowing through with the other city attorneys and the county to get a feel for what they feel on it and how we should approach this," said Mayor Dan Anderson.

The city commission is expected to consider the arcade moratorium extension of four months at its next meeting Monday, Oct. 20.

According to Taylor, there are more than two dozen adult arcades operating through the state with about six in Volusia County. Similar to the county planning department, Lovstrand visited the Deltona location in Volusia about two weeks ago to investigate the issue.

Operators of the adult arcades have argued that the games require skill as a player pushes a button to stop three rotating wheels. If the player matches the fruits or bars, he or she wins tickets that can be redeemed for gift cards, coupons and other prizes. But after his visit to an adult arcade, Lovstrand disagrees with the contention that the games are skill based.

"It would take someone with 100 times the skill of mine to tell it where to stop," he said. "It is purely by chance."

Casselberry program 'serves' the community right

By Christopher Patton
Managing Editor

LONGWOOD — A new program created to get teenagers more involved in the community by the city of Casselberry is painting a bright future for volunteerism in Seminole County.

In their first group project ever, more than a half dozen high schoolers spent the afternoon last week updating a rather dreary Lyman High School classroom. Tucked at the rear, near the auto body facility and in-school suspension room, was an empty classroom that freshmen English teacher Tillee Steele said her students referred to as a prison.

The narrow, gray and windowless room was still a step up for the 'floating teacher' who had to teach five classes a day in five different rooms.

"I said 'I can do something with it,'" Steele said when the permanent room was offered.

With the help of Students Engaged in Recreation and Volunteer Efforts (SERVE) and Seminole County Public Schools 2003 Dividend of the Year Karen Almond, the classroom is now breathing life with a fresh coat of paint, an assortment of plants, new shelving and additional perks of a salvaged television and VCR.

"We're also trying to find an inexpensive mural so we kind of make it a pretend window," Steele said.

At the forefront of the classroom redesign, were a handful of SERVE volunteers participating in their first-ever group project.

"We've been trying to figure out how to get teens involved in the city of Casselberry," said Shydonna Toale, coordinator of the SERVE program for the city of Casselberry Parks and Recreation Department.

The program is important "so they can see how important our community is and how important they are to the community," she said.

Created at the start of the school year, volunteers have already helped by donating their time at the city senior center, helping seniors with computer and Internet skills and are planning to participate in upcoming special events, such as the city-sponsored Halloween event Oct. 30. The SERVE volunteers will dress up in costumes and pass out candy at Casselberry's Spooktacular, a family-oriented event for younger trick-or-treaters to be held at 200 N. Triplett Lake Drive.

SERVE is a reciprocal program for the community and student volunteers. The community receives the generosity of the teenagers' time while the students get the chance to serve the required 75 hours of community service needed to qualify for a Bright Futures scholarship. In addition, SERVE volunteers receive $1 toward Casselberry recreation programs, such as teen camps and sporting leagues, for every hour served.

SERVE volunteers are not required to live in Casselberry nor are they limited to just high schoolers. Any student between sixth and 12th grades can sign up for the program by contacting Tossie at 407-262-7720 ext. 1307

For Almond, a 14-year school volunteer or community member referred as a dividend, she said helping out schools is her purpose.

"I have always volunteered where my children attend school," she said, recently committing full time to Lyman High School with a freshmen and junior attending the school.

She helped in the effort to brighten up Tillee's classroom by asking Winter Springs painter Herschel Gammons for a donation of paint. He led her to the Color Wheel Paints & Coatings store on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Longwood, which obliged her request with a bucket of donated paint.

"So these kids came here to paint and we just knew we were going to make this better," she said.

"The spirit of the cooperation from the kids blew my mind today," Almond added. "They never argued, they never complained even when I played my Frank Sinatra."

to do so. I sent it in memo form so there would be no misunderstanding of what I was doing — I made no contact."

The majority of the commission, however, disagreed with Bundy as the four remaining commissioners voted in favor of the censure although Mayor Dan Anderson seemed to levy his vote with some reluctance.

"We've remained civil for many, many months, and I'm watching the tendency to return back to the politics that discouraged so many people in this city," he said. "So I'm disinclined to stir things up further, especially in an election year because we all need to take a step back and say 'Hey, are we here to elect our personal candidates? Are we here to take control of the city commission, where we can do things our way? Or, are we here to pursue the people's business, which is why we are here?'"

Later in the meeting, Commissioner Steve Miller moved to have Taylor removed as city attorney. Amongst his charges was that Taylor's opinion toward campaign signs was in contrary to the city's charter.

"I believe it was politically motivated," Miller said. He added that Bundy's memorandum to the city clerk "also indicates that there might have been some sort of discussion with the city attorney before (Bundy) made such a statement, but it seems to implicate the city attorney."

In addition, Miller moved to dismiss Taylor because "he has acted very unprofessionally on many occasions, he has given us improper legal advice on many occasions, and he has caused interruptions in our meetings with non-legal opinions."

Lovestrand seconded Miller's motion to continue the process of firing the city attorney that would have to be completed at a public hearing at the next city meeting. The process of removing the city attorney was stopped, however, as the three remaining commissioners voted against the measure.

Varitek's blast ignites Red Sox

Ex-Lake Brantley star helps Boston reach ALCS

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

Can a local product help end 'The curse of the Bambino'?

Once again a Seminole County high school standout could have a major impact on who wins the World Series.

In the late '90s, Seminole High School's Tim Raines helped the New York Yankees return to prominence and won a pair of World Series rings. And just last year another former Fighting Seminole, David Eckstein, was the ignitor as the Anaheim Angels won their first ever World Championship.

Now it's a former Lake Brantley star that will carry the SAC torch as Boston Red Sox catcher and team leader Jason Varitek has helped the Sox reach the American League Championship Series.

Hitting out of the No. 9 spot in the Boston batting order Monday night, the 31-year-old veteran led off the top of the sixth inning with a solo homer off Oakland A's starter Barry Zito to tie the game at 1-1 and ignited a four-run rally that was just enough to hold off Oakland, 4-3, and give the Red Sox the three-games-to-two victory in the AL Divisional Series.

Boston had lost the first two games before roaring back to win the final three.

Varitek stepping into the spotlight at a crucial time is nothing new for the ex-Patriot. During his senior year he singled in the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning off current Cincinnati Reds pitcher and Lake Mary resident Danny Graves to cap an amazing rally to give Lake Brantley the 1990 Class 4A State Championship over Brandon.

This season he hit 25 homers in the regular season, many of them memorable and game-winning, from a 428-foot blast for a 7-5 April win See Varitek, Page 10

Jason Varitek's home run keyed the Boston Red Sox' winning rally Monday.

What a night

County elevens nearly sweep

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

It doesn't get much better than it did on Friday night.

Despite only three teams playing at home, seven of the nine Seminole County high school football teams came away with victories on Friday night.

In fact, only one other team, Trinity Prep, could have won as Oviedo and Lake Brantley were matched up against one another.

In addition to the Lions' huge Class 6A-District 2 victory over the Patriots, the two biggest wins were turned in Class 5A-District 5 where Lyman and Winter Springs rose to the top of the standings.

The Greyhounds' J.J. Bass picked up the slack with fellow running back C.J. Walker out with an injury running for 260 yards on 34 carries and scoring three touchdowns as Lyman (4-1) held off previously unbeaten Timber Creek, 31-28.

Bass' running gave the Greyhounds a 21-14 lead heading into the fourth quarter, but it took a 47-yard field goal from Mike Benzer and a 29-yard run by quarterback Kyle Harris to keep the Wolves at bay.

The Bears (2-3) kept pace with Lyman by the narrowest of margins, edging past Oak Ridge, 7-0. See Football, Page 10

See the mullet run

From Staff Reports

Have you seen the mullet run? Well, the fall mullet run is in full swing and it is the best in many years.

Ever since the net ban took place 10 years ago the amount of mullet has increased tremendously. Even the old timers say this is the best they have seen in years. It is not unusual to see schools of mullet cover an area 500 yards long by 50 yards wide or more. When you locate these schools of mullet, you need to fish the outer edges. An angler may need to fish several different schools before they locate the one with the most fish. You can bet there will be predator fish close by.

Another key to find the fish is to find mixed schools of bait. Look for combinations of mullet and glass minnows. It is not unusual to find tarpon, redfish, trout, ladyfish, jacks and snook following these schools. Also look for birds diving in these bait schools. The sound of birds diving can act like a dinner bell for fish.

Mullet will also stir up the water and can cause the water to become muddy. A cast net thrown into a school of mullet can supply a fisherman with all the bait he needs for a his day of fishing. This time of year an angler can fish live baits simply by anchoring in an area and waiting for the fish to come to you. When you fish with live mullet it is a good idea to cut the tail and injure the mullet slightly. The predators will look for the weak and weary. The cut also allows blood and scent to help lure the fish to your bait.

If you choose artificial baits remember to match the hatch. The Rip Tide 3 inch and 4 inch mullet work great. There are many colors to choose from, so visit www.riptidelures.com to order the colors you like. See Outdoors, Page 11

UCF runs past

Special to the Herald

Behind a career rushing day for tailback Alex Haynes and a steady performance by first-time starter Jon Rivera, the UCF Golden Knights (2-3, 1-1 MAC) defeated Buffalo (0-6, 0-2 MAC) 19-10 Saturday night at the Florida Citrus Bowl.

UCF did not follow the typical Golden Knight script. For the first time under head coach Mike Kruczek, UCF rushed for over 200 yards in a half and the 298 rushing yards as a team were the second most under Kruczek.

But the 59 passing yards marked the first time that UCF has failed to throw for 100 yards and just the second time to reach 200 yards passing in the Kruczek era which began in the 1998 season. The 14 passing attempts and six completions were a low under him during his coaching tenure.

Haynes finished with career-highs in yards (169) and attempts (30) while Rivera totaled 89 yards rushing on 15 carries.

Buffalo scored first after a UCF turnover at the goaline. On a drive extended by a roughing the kicker penalty, the Bulls drove 54 yards in ten plays and scored on a 43-yard field goal by Dallas Pelz to put Buffalo up 3-0.

Haynes and Rivera continued to run the ball effectively. Haynes exploded off right tackle and gained 26 yards, and on the following play running back Dee Brown broke through the middle and 26 yards later found the end zone. The touchdown was the first by UCF in the first quarter this year and the longest of Brown's career. The point after was blocked, giving UCF a 6-3 lead.

Buffalo answered the UCF score with a touchdown of its own. After a 62-yard gain See UCF, Page 11

Alex Haynes rushed for a career-high 165 yards on 30 carries in UCF's 19-10 victory over Buffalo Saturday at the Citrus Bowl.
