Filipino trooper kills eight

MANILA, Philippines — A national police trooper armed with an assault rifle and grenade launcher went on a rampage in a southern village, killing eight people and wounding 17 before taking his own life, a military report said Friday.

Constable Ramon Cabusada began his rampage at noon Wednesday when he took his M-203 — an assault rifle equipped with a grenade launcher — and gunned down two people and wounded three others in Upper Gusa village in Cagayan de Oro city, 150 miles south of Manila.

On Thursday, Cabusada went to nearby Lower Gusa village and fired a grenade at the house of Hospicio Cabanero, wounding three people.

Cabusada also lobbed a grenade and peppered with bullets the house of Francisco Labunay, killing five people and wounding 11, the report said.

On his way back to his barracks, Cabusada shot and killed a relative of Labunay before he put his rifle to his head and committed suicide.

Authorities were still investigating why Cabusada went on the rampage, the report said.

Boats collide, 22 reported lost

HONOLULU — A Navy plane and a half dozen boats searched the chilly waters northwest of Midway Island without success Thursday for 22 people reported cast into the ocean when a Taiwanese fishing boat sank in a collision with another vessel.

A distress call to the Coast Guard Wednesday afternoon said two Taiwanese longline fishing vessels had collided 1,100 miles northwest of Midway Island, Coast Guard seaman Dave Goff said.

The Hun Kuo No. 2 sank following the collision, and all 22 crewmembers of the vessel were in life jackets in the water, Goff said.

Florida State beer tax approved

TALLAHASSEE — A House committee voted Thursday to enact a two-cent per bottle tax on beer despite the objections of state Republicans, many of whom stormed out of the committee room before the final vote was taken.

Angry GOP members of the Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee charged that Chairman Steve Press, D-DeFay Beach, rammed the bill through without giving them full opportunity to amend and debate the proposal, which passed by a vote of 9 to 4.

Press countered that he had cut off debate because Republican members, who knew they could not win, were obviously trying to stall the bill. The committee was running on a tight deadline; GOP members were drafting new amendments after 10:30 a.m. even though the House was scheduled to begin debate on the 1989-90 budget at 10:45 a.m.

Lady 'Noles regional champs

GAINESVILLE — There's no doubt that the Fighting Lady Seminoles of Seminole High School are ready for their attempt at a fourth consecutive state track championship, not after what they did Thursday night.

Competing in the 3A Region II championship meet at the University of Florida on Thursday, the Lady 'Noles ran rings around the rest of the field, winning the team title by more than 20 points over second place Orlando-Jones.

Pacing Seminoles in its rout were Yolanda Baker, who won both the 100 meter and 220 yard dashes, and Adrian Hillsman, who won the 330 low hurdles and took third in the long jump. Hillsman also runs a leg on both the 440 and mile relays while Baker runs the anchor leg of the 440 relay.

Sunny and warm today

Today will be sunny with a high temperature in the upper 80s and a south wind at 10-15 mph. Tonight will be clear with a low in the upper 60s. Tomorrow will be partly cloudy with a high near 90.

Cloud cover made shuttle watching a bit difficult in Sanford Thursday. However, several people were able to catch a glimpse of Atlantis rocketing spaceward between the

Magellan on its way to Venus; shuttle crew starts experiments

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The crew of the shuttle Atlantis settled down to a series of experiments and Earth observation Friday, flushed with success after sending a $530 million science probe racing toward Venus.

The four-man, one-woman crew of the 29th shuttle mission was awakened early Friday during their 13th orbit by the theme music from the movie "Superman" beamed up by mission control in Houston.

"Good morning and congratulations on a super day yesterday," astronaut Kenneth Cameron radioed from mission control in Houston, referring to the successful launch late Thursday of the Magellan Venus probe.

"Good morning, Houston," commander David Walker replied. "We're up and around. Everybody's feeling good, trying to find their tooth brushes. And Houston, Atlantis, we thank you for the fine wakeup music."

The clear highlight of the year's second shuttle flight was the deployment Thursday of the Magellan probe, the first American interplanetary spacecraft launched in 11 years and the first ever launched from a shuttle.

The 4-ton spacecraft was released from Atlantis's payload bay at 9:01 p.m. Thursday and an hour later, its two-stage solid-fuel rocket booster flawlessly fired to begin its 15-month voyage to Venus in a major triumph for the post-Challenger space program. See Shuttle, Page 2A

Seven tourism tax 'finalists' plead their cases

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Tourism Development Council of Seminole County yesterday heard presentations from seven of eight finalists vying for tourism tax generated grants.

Last month the council chose eight of 16 applications to be considered for about $375,000 in grants. The group will select proposals to recommend to the county commission May 18.

The largest request was $210,000 to promote and expand the Seminole Soccer Club in Longwood. The soccer club, which was not represented at the council meeting yesterday, was one of four grant requests for sporting events or facilities.

Jim Jernigan represented the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce in a $12,500 request to promote the Golden Age Games, the oldest existing games for seniors in the county.

Jernigan said the November event draws as many as 3,000 participants from across the county, in addition to spectators. "It's not just a program for local seniors, it's open to the world."

Sunshine Basketball Association in Altamonte Springs asked for $87,000 to support the 1990 Amateur Athletics Union Junior Olympics. John Smith of SBA said the AAU tournament will involve 16 sporting events. Three area hotels will be needed to accommodate the athletes from July 28 to Aug. 4, he said.

Mark LaZebny, Sanford Regional Airport aviation director, requested $43,500 for a tourist welcome center at the newly-renovated terminal. A full-time airport marketing agent would be a part of the welcome center package.

Dave Farr, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce executive director, requested $150,000 to improve the Lake Monroe beachfront. He said the chamber has planned construction of a seawall 100 feet out from the beach to prevent winds and waves from washing sands into the channel and to create a swimming area.

Farr said the city has offered engineering services for the project.

The St. Lucia festival planned for Dec. 13 in Sanford will be promoted to draw tourists vacationing before the holidays. Kay Bartholomew told the council. Representing the Sanford chamber, she requested $43,000 for the first ethnic celebration in Sanford.

Bartholomew said the festival, which will capitalize on the city's Swedish heritage and the lakefront, will be promoted in travel magazines and other publications.

Tony Walter, Altamonte Springs redevelopment director, asked for $100,000 to build an See Tourism, Page 5A

Seminole County representative not surprised by North convictions

From staff and wire reports

U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum said today that Oliver North's conviction on three counts was anticipated because the retired Marine had admitted his guilt in testimony.

But McCollum, a Winter Park Republican who represents Seminole County, said, "I was not surprised... He was found guilty of the things he said he did."

He also said, "My own feeling is that he has a pretty good chance on appeal."

Overall, McCollum said, the trial and verdict is a demonstration that for people who put themselves above the law, even when they believe they are morally right, "they will be held in check" by the law.

In any event, the congressman said in a telephone interview from his Washington office, he hopes the judge refuses to sentence North to prison and that the President eventually pardons him, if the appeal is not successful.

"I think he has been punished enough," said McCollum, who was a member of the Iran-Contra congressional investigation committee.

North, who vowed to appeal, was found guilty of three of 12 counts in the first Iran-Contra trial. Other congressional reaction to Thursday's verdict was mixed, generally falling along party lines, with Republican supporters expressing disappointment and Democratic critics contending the scandal could be traced to North's superiors.

North, portraying himself as a victim of zealous prosecutors backed by taxpayers' money.

FEEDBACK

Some reactions in Washington Thursday after the jury hearing the Oliver North case returned with its verdicts:

"If I were the president, I'd pardon him tomorrow."
-Barry Goldwater

"His opportunity for a pardon disappeared when Ronald Reagan went to California."
-Rep. Henry Hyde (R) Illinois

"I think the fact that Colonel North was in a difficult position does not absolve him of responsibility."
-Rep. Lee Hamilton (D) Indiana

"I think Oliver North has had to pay a price for his zealotry."
-Sen. Warren Rudman (R) New Hampshire

"If this is the best the prosecutors can do, Oliver North is largely vindicated."
-Sen. Orrin Hatch (R) Utah

Shuttle crew tells 'inside' joke

CAPE CANAVERAL — In Washington, D.C., they call it inside the beltway humor. If there were a beltway in space, this would have been far inside it.

When mission control asked Atlantis astronaut Mark Lee how he enjoyed his first meal in space, he played on Neil Armstrong's first words on the moon, saying:

"It was one small bite for me, one giant meal for maggotkind."

"Maggotkind" is a reference to the nickname Lee's astronaut class took, "The Maggots."

Two Florida men dead in plane crash

BURNET, Texas — Authorities searching for a small plane overdue on a flight to McGregor discovered its wreckage and two victims killed in the crash Thursday, officials said.

Burnet Justice of the Peace Robert Hall identified the victims as Gregory Gordon, 32, the pilot, and his father, Alfred Gordon, who would have turned 72 on Friday. Both men were from Fort Myers, Fla.

The Cessna 172 with two people aboard had taken off from San Angelo after refueling Wednesday on a flight to McGregor, said Texas Trooper John Ferguson. When it did not arrive on time, family members notified authorities, and the Burnet County Sheriff's Office and the Civil Air Patrol began a search, he said.

The wreckage was found in a pasture about 2:30 a.m. Thursday, 9 miles north of Burnet, the Burnet County Sheriff's Office said.

The victims were pronounced dead at the scene at 4:15 a.m., said Ferguson.

An investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board in Fort Worth and an FAA team from San Antonio were dispatched, the FAA said.

Officials had not yet determined the cause of the crash, Hall said.

Cigarette tax approval given

TALLAHASSEE — The future of a higher cigarette tax is still uncertain, although early approval has been given to a measure increasing the tax by 15 cents a pack.

There had earlier been a proposal to hike the state cigarette tax by 10 cents per pack to raise money for expansion of Medicaid programs, but an additional nickel has been proposed to fund an estimated $22,000 children now on the waiting list for state subsidized day care.

House Speaker Tom Gustafson called on Senate President Bob Crawford Thursday to support the measure, which is winding its way through the Senate, but Crawford has only said so far that he will study the issue.

The higher tax would raise the cigarette tax from 24 cents to 39 cents a pack.

Verdict in patricide soon

PENSACOLA — A verdict in the trial of a 15-year-old girl charged with killing her father last summer is expected to be announced within two weeks by Circuit Judge John Kuder.

Diana Goodykoontz does not deny shooting her father to death last July. During a non-jury trial that ended Thursday in Pensacola, the high-schooler claimed she shot Dennis Goodykoontz in self-defense.

The teenager claims she, her siblings and her mother suffered repeated abuse from a drunk whose actions were taking on more of a sexual nature.

But prosecutors said the killing was sparked by Diana's interest in heavy metal rock music and that she was influenced to kill her dad by the violent nature of the songs.

Circuit Judge John Kuder will decide the verdict. Prosecutors are hoping for a second-degree murder conviction. The trial featured dramatic and emotional testimony from Diana and her family.

Suspect asks for early trial

PALATKA — A man charged with killing his estranged wife and another man is demanding a trial as soon as possible over the objections of his attorney and a judge.

Steven Edward Cheshire is charged with killing his wife Mary Ann and Darrell Durbin last year at a mobile home park in Palatka. Cheshire maintains he is not guilty and Thursday requested a trial as soon as possible.

Circuit Judge Robert Perry has warned Cheshire to balance his right to a speedy trial against his right to a fair trial. Prosecutors have offered a plea bargain, while appointed defense lawyer Howard Pearl said he is not prepared for trial. Prosecutors have not yet decided if they will seek the death penalty in the case, but Cheshire could get a life term if convicted.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Fire in Port Charlotte not contained

United Press International

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — A suspicious wildfire burned 1,200 acres Thursday in a heavily wooded housing development, forcing the evacuation of several homes and the cancellation of school bus service.

More than 50 firefighters from six surrounding towns were called in to help fight the fire in the northwest part of Port Charlotte, on Florida's southern Gulf coast 70 miles south of Tampa.

"It's still burning. We do not have it under control and we are trying to get more help," a fire dispatcher said.

The blaze had not been brought under control by early Friday, but a Charlotte County Fire Department spokesman said it was not moving as quickly as it had during the day.

A few residents were evacuated in a sparsely populated area about 2 miles square. Several homes were damaged but none were destroyed, forestry spokesman Jim Brenner said.

The fire began about noon Thursday and grew to 1,200 acres, Brenner said. Investigators suspect arson.

"We have not had any lightning there in the past 24 hours so we can rule out lightning. The fire danger for that area was listed as "moderate" today," Brenner said.

Though arson has not been proved, "We have historically had problems in that area with arson," he said.

No schools were evacuated, but school bus service to the burning area was canceled. Students were held at school until their parents picked them up.

State seeks to strengthen controversial federal law

United Press International

ST. PETERSBURG — Shrimp fishermen are fighting a state proposal that would require them to use turtle-saving devices year-round, claiming they have become the "whipping boy" for a larger problem, officials said Thursday.

A federal regulation that went into effect Monday covers only certain months of the year. The state Marine Fisheries Commission wants a year-round state regulation to protect the endangered sea turtle and has scheduled a public hearing in Tallahassee for May 11 to discuss their proposal.

"No one is saying anything about the condos and hotels being built on the beaches, the beach dredging, the road lights that attract the baby turtles, which then are killed, and all those other aspects," said Joan Butler, deputy executive director of Organized Fisherman of Florida. "He's (shrimpers) the whipping boy."

She said a state law would be redundant because the federal law already imposes stiff fines for violations.

The federal regulations are in effect from the shoreline out and next year the coverage area will be expanded to include bays and estuaries. But it is only in effect from May through November all along the Gulf Coast from Texas to Englewood, south of Sarasota, and from May through August in East Coast waters.

It is in effect year-round in Gulf waters south of Englewood to Key West.

Beer tax approved

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A House committee voted Thursday to enact a two-cent per bottle tax on beer despite the objections of state Republicans, many of whom stormed out of the committee room before the final vote was taken.

Angry GOP members of the Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee charged that Chairman Steve Press, D-DeLay Beach, rammed the bill through without giving them full opportunity to amend and debate the proposal, which passed by a vote of 9 to 4.

Press countered that he had cut off debate because Republican members, who knew they could not win, were obviously trying to stall the bill. The committee was running on a tight deadline; GOP members were drafting new amendments after 10:30 a.m. even though the House was scheduled to begin debate on the 1989-90 budget at 10:45 a.m.

"Whatever amendments they wanted to offer were obviously to delay what was being done," Press said. "We had the votes on the bill, if they were issues we needed to hear we would have heard them concerning the merits of the bill."

Press accepted a motion to call the question on the bill, that is, end debate and vote immediately, even though Republican members were still pushing amendments. When Press began taking the vote, all but three of the eight Republicans on the committee stood and walked out.

One of the Republicans who stayed to cast a "no" vote, Rep. James Hill, R-Jupiter, said he would try to get the vote canceled on procedural grounds. Press insisted he had done nothing wrong and that the vote would stand.

Friday's shuttle flight plan at a glance

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Here are highlights of the second day of the shuttle Atlantis's planned four-day 56-minute mission full times in EDT and subject to change:

Friday, May 5

9:17 a.m. — Commander David Walker, 44, co-pilot Ronald Grabe, 42, Norman Thagard, 45, and Mark Lee, 36, end an eight-hour sleep period during orbit No. 13.

12:22 p.m. — An experiment known as FEA, which stands for fluid experiment apparatus, is activated by Cleave. The experiment was designed to grow ultra-pure crystals in the weightlessness of space. As a heating element moves along a cylindrical sample, the subject material will melt and then resolidify as a single crystal of exceptional purity.

2:49 p.m. — The crew beams down videotape showing Thursday's deployment of the Magellan Venus radar mapper.

2:47 p.m. — The first sample run by the fluid experiment apparatus is completed.

4:17 p.m. — The astronauts take an hour off for lunch.

4:37 p.m. — The fluid experiment apparatus is activated for another crystal growing run.

5:56 p.m. — Walker and Grabe fire maneuvering jets as Atlantis sails over Maui, Hawaii, in an experiment to help Air Force investigators learn more about how to detect rockets in space. The instruments used by the Air Force are based at Mt. Haleakala on Maui.

7:12 p.m. — The second sample run in the fluid experiment apparatus is completed.

7:17 p.m. — Thagard conducts a series of tests on a Grid personal computer carried into space to determine its suitability for controlling future shuttle experiments.

8:12 p.m. — Cleave tests a commercial "camcorder" television camera for use during future shuttle flights.

9:02 p.m. — The fluid experiment apparatus is activated for a third crystal growing exercise.

10:45 p.m. — The shuttle is again observed by Air Force sensors as it flies over Hawaii.

Saturday, May 6

12:47 a.m. — The astronauts begin an eight-hour sleep period during their 23rd orbit.

Bumpy tank separation, debris noted

CAPE CANAVERAL — Separation of Atlantis from its giant fuel tank felt a bit more bumpy to veteran shuttle commander David Walker, who also noticed chunks of debris falling from his ship during ascent Thursday.

In a routine report to mission control, Walker said the separation minutes after liftoff "was substantially, to those of us that have experienced it before, more violent — although I hesitate to use that word."

"It wasn't the very soft separation we thought we had remembered previously from the ET (external tank)," Walker added. "Just a little more activity than we expected."

The bumping apparently did not rattle the astronauts, Walker never detailed the incident until he was asked for a "debris report" more than seven hours into the second shuttle flight of the year.

He also noted "fairly large pieces of debris" along Atlantis's port side and "a substantial flash" when the shuttle's twin reusable rocket boosters separated.

Elated ground controllers said early Friday the probe's course was accurate to a half degree and that seven hours after deployment, the craft was 162,000 miles away from Earth, racing toward an Aug. 10, 1990, encounter with Venus.

With Magellan safely on its way, Walker, 44, co-pilot Ronald Grabe, 43, Mary Cleave, 42, Norman Thagard, 45, and rookie Mark Lee, 36, have only to worry about several less demanding "secondary payloads" and experiments before returning home Monday.

Their flight plan Friday called for Walker and Grabe to fire Atlantis's jets as it passes over the Mount Haleakala on Maui in the Hawaiian Islands in a test aimed at helping the Air Force learn more about tracking spacecraft.

Cleave also planned to conduct a fluid experiment for growing ultra-pure crystals in space and test a commercial video recorder, while Thagard was scheduled to experiment with a personal computer to test its suitability for controlling shuttle experiments.

But the highlight of the mission was over early: the deployment of the Magellan probe.

"We ... are on our way to Venus," said project manager John Gerpheide of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., who said the spacecraft came through its launching "in excellent condition."

POLICE BRIEFS

Man accused of reporting false burglary

SANFORD — A man suspected of burglarizing a Sanford house March 8 and pawing stolen items is also accused of filing a false report of a burglary to his own house March 13.

Sanford police said on the same day James Michael Monk, 24, of 582 Palmetto Ave., Longwood, reported a burglary to his own house at 118 Clear Lake Circle, Sanford, he allegedly pawned two of the items he reported stolen.

He is also accused of pawing some of the jewelry stolen from the house of Lisa Criswell, 120 Clear Lake Circle, Sanford, the same day Criswell reported a burglary to her house, police said.

Monk was arrested at his Longwood home at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. He is charged with burglary, grand theft, dealing in stolen property and filing a false police report. Bond is $5,000.

Nude man, two women arrested

ALTA MONTE SPRINGS — Altamonte Springs police report the arrest of a nude man and two women at an apartment complex pool, where one woman is accused of trying to hide a container of cocaine from police and the second woman is accused of helping her conceal the drug.

A policeman said he investigated noise at the Lakeside North Apartment's pool at about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday. The officer recognized Richard Gabler, 35, who had allegedly been nude and rowdy at the pool on previous occasions. That officer and other police confronted the group and Gabler was charged with exposure of sexual organs and disorderly conduct.

Brenda Joyce Totton, 39, of Tampa, who allegedly tried to hide a container of five grams of cocaine from police, was charged with possession of cocaine. Bond is $6,000.

Alm Totton, 36, of 1001 Esplanade Way 113, Casselberry, was charged with resisting by obstruction for allegedly trying to aid in the hiding of the cocaine, police said. Her bond is $500.

Alert Sanford policeman nabs suspects from radio description

By SUSAN LOEHN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A Sanford policeman who recognized two possible robbery suspects from a police radio description arrested the two men shortly after the robbery. The arrest followed an alleged robbery and attack on a convenience store clerk.

Daryl Wayne Morris, 20, and Joseph Wesley Knight, 20, both of Timusville, were arrested at 1:40 a.m. Thursday on 25th Street Sanford. The arrests came less than 20 minutes after the pair allegedly robbed the 7-Eleven at 4103 S. Orlando Drive.

The robbers allegedly hit the store clerk, Richard Glickman, with a baseball bat. Glickman said a robber tried to hit him in the head with the bat, but he blocked the blow and was hit in the arm instead.

The robbers fled north from the store on U.S. Highway 17-92 in an orange Nova. Sanford policeman Arron Kieth spotted the car and noticed the occupants matched the robbery suspects' descriptions which he had just heard broadcast.

Money, food stamps and cigarettes believed stolen from the store were recovered from one suspect, police said.

Both men are charged with attempted murder, armed robbery, aggravated battery and petty theft. Bond is $25,000 each. The clerk's injury was minor, police said.

Cocaine found by firefighters

By SUSAN LOEHN
Herald staff writer

OVIDO — An Oviedo man is charged with trafficking in 500 grams of cocaine firefighters reportedly found in the remains of his apartment after a fire there Thursday morning.

John Monette King Jr., 44, of 978 Oak Drive, was arrested by Oviedo police at about 10 a.m. after they were called to the scene of a fire at 40 Sandalwood Apartments. A county fire marshal call police after firefighters found a damaged briefcase which appeared to contain powder cocaine. The briefcase was near the bed in King's burned bedroom.

Police report confirming the powder was cocaine and also said they found a second bag of the narcotic in King's apartment.

Oviedo firefighters reported King has asked to re-enter his apartment to get his briefcase while they were investigating the blaze. They didn't let him take the briefcase.

After King was arrested he reportedly said he had had 500 grams of cocaine in his apartment and valued the narcotic at $10,000.

Firefighters reported the fire may have been caused by a faulty lamp in King's bedroom, but that hasn't been confirmed. King was awakened by a smoke alarm and fled from the burning apartment. He was not injured.

Firefighters described the briefcase as a wooden box, which was found attached to melted carpet. Two glass vials with metal tubes were with the box. The cocaine was in a single, solid paper package. A second pack of cocaine was also found near a bedroom closet, the arrest report said.

King is being jailed without bond.

Area police armed with semi-automatic guns

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

Many area law agencies are either already using semi-automatic weapons or are in the process of training to use them.

Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett said his police department has the distinction of being "the first agency in Seminole County to exclusively convert to automatics."

"We did so over two years ago," he said. The Sig/Sauer Model P226 9mm guns were purchased from the law enforcement trust fund, funds seized from drug deals.

That is the issued weapon the Sanford police department uses," Harriett said. The weapon is carried by all 75 sworn officers.

Prior to carrying the weapons, the officers were trained in safety and maintenance of the weapon. Harriett said there have been no experiences of the guns jamming, and that firing proficiency has actually increased significantly.

"Every officer's proficiency and accuracy has increased as compared to the revolver," Harriett said.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department has also taken the lead in switching to 9mm semi-automatic pistols.

Lake Mary is the only police department in the county that has not switched to semi-automatic weapons.

Lake Mary Police Chief Charles Lauderdale said "a police department serving a civilian operation should concentrate on firepower, not volumes of fire." He said a well-trained police officer can do the job with one round of ammunition using a .357 revolver.

"One clean shot can solve the problem. Your brain is what secures you, not your gun on your hip," Lauderdale said. He said the fewer rounds of ammunition used, the less of a chance that innocent bystanders get hurt.

Altamonte Springs Police Chief William Liquori said police officers are in the training phase and will be "totally operational within the next two weeks" to use the guns. Altamonte Springs has 81 sworn police officers. One officer said he does not want to use the gun and Liquori said he will not be forced to use it if he does not feel comfortable with it.

Winter Springs Captain Charles Sexton said the police department is currently using automatic pistols.

"All persons using them have been through the qualification course," Sexton said. The Winter Springs Police Department has 35 sworn officers.

The Oviedo Police Department will phase in 45-caliber automatic pistols over the next two years and the officers must buy the guns themselves because there are no available funds to pay for them.

Oviedo Police Chief Dennis Peterson said "Both weapons are authorized right now. If an officer wants to carry an automatic, he has to pay for it himself." The 20-man department uses .357 revolvers.

Casselberry Police Chief Fred McGowan said they ordered automatic pistols but have not received them yet.

Guns

for the safety of the officers," Baker said.

The guns are valued at $464 apiece but the police department is trading in 35 Smith & Wesson Model 686 .357 magnum pistols for a markdown.

Baker said the police department expects to receive the guns, purchased from Gulf State Distributors, in about 90 to 120 days. Thirty-five officers will be taught how to use the pistols by law officials of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department during a three-day training session.

"We're spending a little more money, but we have really evaluated these guns," Baker said. "We just like the way they feel. We test fired them and we're just totally pleased with the performance."

Police Chief Greg Manning said although he's "not a great fan of automatics" the switch was necessary for the officers' morale.

"It's the trend. I agree there is more firepower out there. Part of our responsibility is to try to get on an equal a position as we can," he said.

Manning said he felt the type of pistol selected is "the best."

Riding to freedom

This is why students in China took to the streets in protest.

A young woman graduates from the prestigious Foreign Language Institute in Beijing. She is fluent in English but because most Americans visit and bring business to the seacoast provinces she is assigned to work as a translator nearly 1,000 miles from Beijing. Her husband is assigned to work in northern China. The two have no choice about their work assignments and because the bureaucracy is ossified beyond belief, she will be permitted to buy a train ticket to Beijing twice a year. She will be permitted to journey to western China to visit her parents once every two years.

The plight of a young working couple in modern China is more than just train trips to visit relatives. The issue is freedom to choose — which job and where and how to spend their salary.

Students now in the streets of Xian and Beijing are resisting a crackdown on freedom of choice enacted by a worried government. The government tried giving graduating students choices of jobs. But then that privilege was taken away this year as part of the central government's anxiety over liberalization of the economy.

Reports from the students in the streets suggest they don't know exactly what they are marching for, but they know what they are marching against — a return to a stultifying control over the most trivial aspects of their lives.

These protests so far away may seem of little consequence to Americans. But China's turmoil has long term consequences for the wide Pacific Rim which touches our shores. If the central Communist government cannot tolerate the modest freedoms given to graduating students, how can it tolerate a vibrant and bustling Hong Kong when the British Colony joins China at the end of the century?

How can China accommodate the variety of choice inherent in any modernization toward communications and computers? How can China keep pace with the exploding economies of Asia if the college graduates must wait six months to get on a train?

China's leaders have been balancing on one foot for more than a decade, hesitating to join decisively the Asian economic miracle or to take a step backward to a tightly controlled and politically safe regime.

Recently, the central government banned one issue of a student newspaper because its printed demands were considered too incendiary. But in Poland, South Korea, The Philippines and Hungary, the lessons are all the same — history is on the side of those in the streets.

Why SDI has more lives than a cat

It's difficult not to feel a little sorry for the opponents of SDI. They have fought hard and skillfully, but the drafted thing has more lives than a cat. A few weeks ago, they thought they had reduced its funding to the point of negligibility. Yet here it is again, in a modified and strikingly less expensive technological guise, scoring an end run around them.

The fundamental problem, of course, is that SDI's foes are not merely bucking a new weapons system; they are resisting the whole progress of science, as manifested in war.

The history of warfare is a record of the successive dominance of offense and defense. In recent decades the offense has prevailed, thanks to the invention of nuclear weapons and missiles capable of delivering them to their targets. But there was never any doubt that in due course the pendulum would swing back and some defensive system would predominate.

That is what began to happen about 10 years ago. Space technology, combined with progress in computer science, miniaturization, and laser technology, gave birth to the concept of a defensive array of satellites in earth orbit, capable of spotting hostile missiles shortly after they have been launched and destroying them in flight.

It's a pity Tip O'Neill didn't grab this ball and run with it early in 1983. The Democrats would have nominated him for the Nobel Peace Prize. Instead, it was President Reagan who floated the idea, in the course of an address to the nation in March of that year.

As the Democrats perversely saw it, they had no choice but to oppose what they derisively labeled "Star Wars."

So we have been subjected ever since to a barrage of inconsistent complaints. First the plan for a 100 percent guarantee against any missile ever getting through. Then it wouldn't work — yet it would somehow "destabilize" the delicate balance between the superpowers. It was also too expensive (almost the first time anyone ever heard liberals raise that objection). Etc., etc.

It's a pity Tip O'Neill didn't grab this ball.

It was some time before the liberals realized that, in rejecting a space defense, they were backing into support of the previously much-exercised concept of "mutual assured destruction," on which the free world's defense had been based until SDI came along. Eventually, though, they swallowed even that bitter pill, rather than admit that Reagan was right. (Have you noticed that there hasn't been a single major protest against nuclear weapons since Reagan proposed SDI?)

Ultimately, the Democrats' 1986 capture of the Senate gave them the power to do what they had not been able to do before: Cripple the space defense concept by reducing funds for research and deployment. They might not be able to stop the future altogether, but, by golly, they could delay it!

Then came Brilliant Pebbles. Don't be put off by the name. Space satellites capable of spotting hostile missiles and crashing into them have been around for a while, and were called Smart Rocks. But only recently has it become possible to reduce them to a length of three feet and a weight of a hundred pounds — a size, in other words, that would enable us to put tens of thousands of them into orbit. Hence, Brilliant Pebbles.

The limits of democracy

WASHINGTON — It was pure coincidence — but the kind that makes you stop and think.

On one part of Capitol Hill, the House Committee on Science, Space and Technology was hearing testimony from the two Utah chemists. Their claim of having achieved table-top nuclear fusion has polarized the scientific community and excited the public with the prospect of a cheap, limitless energy supply.

Across the street, at the Supreme Court building, the nine justices and spectators who jammed every inch of available space were listening to lawyers argue whether or when the state should permit individuals to abort the life that results from the special fusion of sperm and egg at the instant of procreation.

If ever there were events that demonstrated the limitations of our political institutions in grappling with the fundamental questions of life and nature, there did it. Men and women have no recourse but to tackle the assignments life hands them. But Lord, we sometimes ask those who serve in government to sort out questions that are almost unfathomable.

Susan Okie of the Washington Post quoted Surgeon General C. Everett Koop as saying of the scientific/legal debate on abortion: "I don't think there has ever been an issue that can rival this one for the psychological overlay, the emotional response of the people who are on one side or the other. That makes any scientific argument extremely difficult."

But science was a critical factor in the original Roe v. Wade decision, which held that viability (outside the womb) was the point at which a fetus became a person entitled to state protection against a mother's decision to terminate pregnancy. Since 1973, when that decision sanctioned abortion on demand in the early stages of pregnancy, the scientific limit of viability has moved back from about 28 weeks to about 24 weeks. The Supreme Court has been told in an amicus brief filed by eminent physicians that there is no prospect of further advances.

But there are powerful political forces propelling the justices to confer constitutional "personhood" on fetuses at earlier stages of development. Some argue that the "right to life" exists from the moment of conception, even though science can distinguish a period before the first signs of "human" cellular distinctions appear.

How the scientific evidence should be interpreted — and what weight it should be given in the final decision — challenges the judgment and the conscience of the nine justices, not one of whom is trained in science or medicine.

At one point in the hearing, three lawyers — Justices Antonin Scalia and John Paul Stevens and Missouri Attorney General William L. Webster — found themselves in a tangled and ultimately muddled argument. It concerned the testing that doctors do to gauge "fetal lung maturity," an important criterion of viability. They sounded like auto mechanics interpreting a symphony score.

Even when the emotional overtones are less poignant, as in the congressional hearing on the fusion experiments, the gap in expertise between the scientists and the politicians is awesome and intimidating.

"Quite honestly," said Rep. Claudine Schneider (R-R.I.), a member of the Science Committee, "there's a limited participation by most members of Congress on most science issues. There are no experts up here, so rather parochial interests tend to predominate. We care a lot whether a project goes into my state or yours."

Rep. George E. Brown, Jr. (D-Calif.), one of the senior members of the committee, noted with wry amusement that "the entire Utah congressional delegation" appeared with fusion scientists B. Stanley Pons and Martin Fleischmann "just to bask in the glory." Another committee member pointed out that a move to pass a congressional resolution commending Pons and Fleischmann for their work was under way even before the scientific community had reached a judgment about the authenticity and significance of the experiment.

The problem of politicians making judgments on matters requiring sophistication in science is not a new one. Long ago, British scholar C.P. Snow wrote in an essay called "Science and Government" that "one of the most bizarre features of any advanced industrial society in our time is that the cardinal choices have to be made by a handful of men...who cannot have a firsthand knowledge of what those choices depend upon or what their results may be."

The examples he cited involved weapons systems like the hydrogen bomb and ballistic missiles. But the dictum applies equally well to questions like the multi-billion-dollar superconducting supercollider, a research tool in basic physics which was battled over as if it were a prime pork-barrel project before it was finally awarded to Texas.

Science was a critical factor in the original Roe vs. Wade decision.

Arafat leads an unenviable life

TUNIS, Tunisia — Mohammed Arafat's friends were way off the mark when they nicknamed him "Yasi" as a child. It means "easy" or "no problem."

The man we met recently in this north African capital is neither easy nor problem-free. His name is a household word — Yasser Arafat, 59, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Americans have a gut response to Arafat, with his trademark checkered head scarf and scruffy beard. But they know little about the man who once acquiesced in terrorist operations and is now the new hope of solving the Arab-Israeli conflict by settling the Palestine homeland issue that is at the core.

The beard is full, but the salt and pepper color translates on television as three-day-old stubble. The checkered "kaffiyeh" covers a bald head. Arafat's ample lower lip goes from a quick laugh to an expression of genuine sorrow in seconds. His temper is legendary among the only people who ever see it, his closest confidantes. He is never publicly rude to guests and foreigners, even his enemies.

Arafat was the sixth of seven children born in Cairo to a tradesman. His mother died when he was 4. His father's second wife was rejected by the children and the third wife lived in separate quarters. Arafat was raised by his older sister, Inam.

Even as a tyke, he was an activist, bullying boys into "military parades." Arafat graduated as a civil engineer from a Cairo University after interrupting his studies to smuggle arms and fight against the establishment of a Jewish state in 1948. The foundation of the PLO was the students he rallied at the university and the continuing waves of students who joined the Fatah military organization he founded in Kuwait in 1959.

Arafat has gone toe to toe with Israel, Jordan and Syria. He has compromised with the very governments that have tried to assassinate and imprison him. At times, he has secretly cooperated with the United States and the Soviet Union in his single-minded determination to establish an independent Palestinian state.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing about Arafat is that he is still alive. He has been imprisoned and tortured ruthlessly in Egypt and Lebanon. Syria threw him in prison twice and charged him with murder once because someone was killed at a meeting Arafat was supposed to attend but didn't. The meeting was a setup where a Syrian assassin was waiting. Arafat sent an emissary who, along with another man, was killed in the ensuing shootout. The Syrians arrested Arafat and 20 others for murder and then later released them.

More than 50 times, someone has tried to murder Arafat — Syrians, Jordanians, Lebanese and fellow Palestinians, but mostly Israelis.

Arafat told us that Israel tried to kill him up to a dozen times in the summer of 1982 when Arafat was under siege for 67 days in Moslem West Beirut. Seventy Palestinians were coerced or blackmailed by Israel to carry transmitters and activate them when they were near Arafat so Israeli bombers could home in on him. At least a dozen times, Arafat told us, Israeli planes bombed places where he had been only minutes before.

In October 1985, Israeli jets bombed his PLO headquarters in Tunis. Arafat was not there, but many cohorts were killed.

The salt and pepper color translates on television as three-day-old stubble.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Stock prices opened higher Friday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues after the government released its unemployment data for April.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 8.80 Thursday, was up 14.30 to 2399.19 shortly after the market opened.

Advances outpaced declines 665-173 among the 1,266 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 15,500,000 shares.

Earlier Friday, the government said the civilian unemployment rate rose to 5.3 percent in April, another indication that the economy is slowing. The number of new non-agricultural jobs was 115,000, compared with an increase of 180,000 jobs in March, when the jobless rate hit a 15-year low of 5 percent.

Economists had anticipated the jobless rate to remain unchanged at 5 percent, with non-farm payroll jobs expected to have risen by 223,000.

Stock prices closed lower Thursday in subdued trading, with blue chips faring worse than the broader market as a result of profit taking.

Retail sales rebound

United Press International

Retail sales rebounded in April — a month that contained one extra selling day — as merchants capitalized on a shift in consumer attention from big-ticket items to clothing and soft goods, analysts said.

"The main factor was the calendar" with Easter falling in March instead of April, Jeffrey H. Edelman of Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. said Thursday. "But looking at March and April together, we've seen a steady strengthening in sales of apparel and general merchandise."

Two of the nation's three largest retailers based on revenues, No. 1 Sears, Roebuck & Co. and No. 3 Wal-Mart Inc., reported significant improvements, but No. 2 K mart Corp. continued to stumble.

On a composite basis, retail sales rose 6.3 percent from April 1988, with specialty apparel leading all categories of merchandise with a 9.9 percent jump, according to a Drexel Burnham Lambert index. Composite retail sales rose just 4.7 percent in March.

Chicago-based Sears, in its second month of a merchandising shift to more brand names and lower prices, said April sales rose 9.2 percent to $2.5 billion from $2.29 billion.

Budget

The Senate and House spending plans for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will be reconciled by a House-Senate conference committee after the full Senate approves its spending proposal next week.

House leaders said they would like to spend more money on social services and other programs for Florida's growing population, but were constrained by Martinez's opposition to any major tax increases.

"I wish we had more money to do more things, but the reality is that we must live within our means," said House Appropriations Chairman T. K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach.

Minority Leader Dale Patchett urged a "no" vote on the package, complaining it short shrifts Martinez's welfare program and other social programs.

Both plans ignore Martinez's proposals to deny pay raises for state workers and to make no allowances for inflation or workload increases.

The Senate committee found $100 million in cuts to existing state programs, including elimination of 217 jobs in the state bureaucracy.

"Whatever fat is there, we've cut," said Senate budget chief Owen Margolis, D-North Miami.

The Senate budget calls for a saltwater fishing fee, a 15 percent university tuition hike, a modest increase in the insurance premium tax, a $50 fee for new residents registering automobiles in Florida and modest increases in some professional licensure fees.

The House balked at any of the major fee increases, but House and Senate leaders were discussing an increase of about three-tenths of a mill in local property taxes. The House is considering increased taxes on beer and cigarettes to fund health care for the poor.

There is also talk in the Senate about gradually boosting the gross receipts tax on utility bills to bail out the ailing trust account for school construction. About $500 million in lottery profits are used in the Senate bill to boost school construction to $686.6 million.

House and Senate budget leaders were backing away from earlier plans to reject a $500 million bond issue to acquire right of way for future road projects. Senate President Bob Crawford has proposed holding the bond money hostage until the Department of Transportation can correct accounting problems behind its six-year, $600 million budget shortfall.

The Senate plan calls for pay increases of at least 4 percent for most state workers, with larger increases for law enforcement officers, teachers and college faculty and health workers. The House plan contains more modest increases.

April unemployment up

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The government reported today that the civilian unemployment rate climbed sharply to 5.3 percent in April, another indication that the economy is slowing down under the weight of higher interest rates.

The Labor Department said the number of new non-agricultural jobs created during the month was 115,000, compared with the March increase of 180,000 jobs, when the unemployment rate hit a 15-year low of 5 percent.

The 115,000 new jobs were well below the average monthly increase of 300,000 jobs during the past year and were more than eclipsed by an increase of 400,000 in the size of the nation's labor force during April.

Economists had expected more than 200,000 to 300,000 new jobs to be created during April. The April job increase was the worst performance since June, 1986 when the economy lost 92,000 jobs.

The 5.3 percent unemployment rate was the highest since January when the rate stood at 5.4 percent.

The nation's financial markets, which have been concerned about increases in the inflation rate in recent months, were expected to welcome the news as a sign that the Federal Reserve's tightening of credit in the past year has brought down the level of economic growth.

Slowing economic growth generally is seen as the most effective way to combat rising inflation.

The higher unemployment rate could help persuade the Fed that the economy has slowed enough to allow interest rates to drop lower without fear of an increase in inflation.

Under the pressure of the Fed's tightening interest rates have climbed 3 percentage points in the past year.

The Labor Department said total civilian employment stood at 117.1 last month, unchanged from March after adjusting for seasonal factors.

Service industries provided the bulk of the new jobs in the economy during the month, with 112,000.

The report showed that the jobless rate for adult men rose from 4.2 percent in March to 4.6 in April and for women from 4.6 percent in March to 4.7 percent in April.

The rates for teenagers jumped from 13.7 percent in March to 14.4 percent in April.

said the tenacity he learned in the Marine Corps and the prayers of his supporters are all he needs to be "fully vindicated."

North, his wife, Betsy, and his attorney, Brendan Sullivan, met with reporters about two hours after the jury's verdict Thursday. North and Sullivan read statements and took no questions in an air-filled, media-packed conference room at Sullivan's offices in his high-power downtown Washington law firm, Williams and Connolly.

North, who stands to lose his $1,900-per-month pension and be prohibited from holding public office, and Sullivan expressed disappointment that the jury found the former Marine officer guilty of three of 12 counts.

"After more than 2 1/2 years and over $40 million of our taxpayers' money spent on investigations, congressional inquiries and now a special

Fees

According to F. Douglas Mooney of CDM, this is the first time the city is setting rates for single-family residents. Until this time there were 91 sewer customers in The Forest (including a clubhouse), an adult community of manufactured homes on North Forest Boulevard hooked into the Greenwood Lakes Wastewater Treatment Plant, which is county-owned.

Timacuan, a subdivision on the west end of town has the first single-family residences to hook up to the system recently adding 312 customers, according to Mooney.

On a per volume basis, the rate is going down from $3.90 to $3.50 per 1,000 gallons of metered water usage, but the rates are based on more volume of water going to sewage rather than irrigation. Residents of The Forest will pay sewer rates up to 10,000 gallons of consumed water instead of 4,000 gallons, if the ordinance ultimately passes.

President of The Forest Homeowner's Association said that means about a 35- to 65-percent increase or about $10 to $15 for some residents of the community who are on fixed incomes.

"The existing ordinance is more equitable," Hauck said this morning.

City Manager John Litton said he thinks the proposed rates are "fair" and that it is the beginning for addressing new development and growth.

"This is a start. As they make plans to widen the (Lake Mary) boulevard, (we need to) make plans to put lines down. I think it's a fair rate. It does put a cap on it," Litton said. "The user rate encourages the installation of irrigation meters, depending on how much water is used for lawn maintenance. If you're using the bulk of water on irrigation, it certainly is not charged sewer (rate) on that."

Customer sewer fees go into an enterprise fund used to maintain and repair sewer lines.

prosecutor who has likened me to Adolf Hitler, we now face many months, perhaps years, of fighting the remaining charges," North said.

Special prosecutor John Kecker contended in his closing argument to the jury that North followed Hitler's strategy in which the victor never has to reveal whether he was telling the truth.

"As a Marine I was taught to fight, and fight hard, for as long as it takes to prevail. We will continue this battle, and with the support and prayers of the American people, we will be fully vindicated," he said.

Sullivan noted that four of the 16 original counts were dismissed prior to the trial and that the jury rejected nine of the remaining 12.

"As to the three remaining counts, the jury's verdict was a disappointment. But the greatest disappointment is that Colonel North and his family will have to continue in what is now a 2 1/2-year-old legal battle," Sullivan said, adding he would file an appeal.

There are many extraordinary and unprecedented legal issues to be addressed. We expect to prevail on the remaining three counts. You can be assured that we will never abandon Colonel North and his family in this legal battle."

Kecker gave a brief statement in front of the federal courthouse immediately following the verdict, saying the jury's verdict shows that "no man is above the law." He refused to answer reporters' questions.

Tourism

Dickinson said the historical commission is planning a brochure to map historical landmarks for tourists.

Tourism development grants are generated by a two percent tax on motel and hotel lodging passed by the Seminole County commission last year. Twenty-five percent of those funds have been earmarked to expand the Central Florida Zoological Park.

The council will recommend grant awards based on the likelihood of a proposal increasing tourism in Seminole County, soundness and uniqueness of a proposal, and how it will serve the existing population of the area.

Recommendations made by the council will be presented to the county commission in June.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Commodities trading probed

NEW YORK — The federal government has launched an investigation into trading practices involving precious metals such as gold and silver on the Commodity Exchange Inc. and oil contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange, a Comex spokesman said Thursday.

"By order of the Commodity and Futures Trading Commission, a number of subpoenas have been issued to a number of exchanges in New York City," said Robert McGrath, spokesman for the Comex.

"We are cooperating with the CFTC. We also understand Comex records will be subpoenaed," McGrath said.

A Comex source estimated six to 10 subpoenas would be issued.

The Comex buys and sells such metals as gold, silver and copper and trades in options on them. The CFTC is the federal agency that monitors all the nation's commodity exchanges.

The Comex is the nation's third-largest commodities exchange. The Chicago Board of Trade and Chicago Mercantile Exchange are the nation's largest.

Jan Kay, a spokeswoman for the New York Mercantile Exchange, which primarily trades in oil futures contracts, said, "We haven't received any official information... but we expect to and we'll issue a statement later this afternoon."

Nobel Prize winner faces fraud inquiry

WASHINGTON — A congressional panel looking into scientific fraud said Thursday the Secret Service found "significant" alterations in notebooks used to support a paper co-authored by Nobel Prize winning biologist David Baltimore.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the subcommittee on oversight and investigations, said the Secret Service probe into allegations made against Baltimore's team by a whistleblower "confirmed that the data and authenticity of parts of the key notebook were questionable."

But Baltimore countered that nothing uncovered by the Secret Service indicates wrongdoing or would change the scientific conclusions of his research. The Nobel laureate told a hearing room packed with scientific colleagues that the "relentless campaign" to discredit him "could have a chilling effect on science in America."

In his opening statement, Dingell said a forensic examination of the notebook showed entries purported to have been recorded in 1984 and 1985, were actually made in the spring of 1986 — after the controversial paper had already been published.

The paper, which described mouse experiments on the genetic control of the immune system, was published in the April 1986 issue of the journal Cell.

Secret Service officials, who based their findings on analysis of ink, paper and writing indentations, said dates were found to have been deliberately changed "with intent to conceal" on several pages. Other pages were also found to have been prepared as much as two years out of chronological sequence.

Former Navy man convicted of spying

NORFOLK, Va. — Although he compared himself to superspy John Walker, who passed secrets to the Soviets for 17 years, Craig Kunkle's foray into espionage lasted only a month and earned him a 12-year federal prison term.

Kunkle, 39, pleaded guilty Thursday in U.S. District Court to a charge of attempted espionage. As part of a plea agreement with federal prosecutors he received the 12-year sentence and will not be eligible for parole.

The agreement was reached in part over concern that more classified information would be made public during a trial, said U.S. Attorney Henry Hudson.

"Our expert witness would have probably given up more sensitive information," Hudson said.

He added that during the investigation, "It became increasingly obvious that there was no significant damage to the national defense."

The Virginia Beach, Va., man was arrested Jan. 10 at a Williamsburg motel after he handed over documents and accepted $5,000 from FBI agents posing as Soviet operatives. The transaction was recorded on videotape, Hudson said.

The anti-submarine warfare information that Kunkle passed to undercover agents included details about "acoustic intelligence strategy," some of it classified, Hudson said.

Body identified as missing infant

WEST ALTON, Mo. — The body of an infant found in a trash can was identified as that of a 6-week-old girl who was the second baby reported abducted from an Illinois couple in less than three years.

Robert Sims, 37, and his 30-year-old wife, Paula, were suspected but never charged in the earlier case, but police refused to say whether they were suspects in the current investigation. Alton, Ill., police searched the couple's home Thursday night, Police Sgt. Rick McCann said.

The body of Heather Sims, found Wednesday night by a fisherman, had been wrapped in a plastic trash bag and left in an oil drum used for garbage disposal on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River, just across from Alton, Ill., where she allegedly was abducted Saturday night, police said.

The FBI in Springfield, Ill., said Thursday night that an autopsy positively identified the body as that of Heather Sims. Dr. Mary Case, the St. Louis County medical examiner who performed the autopsy, said that the baby's death was a homicide, although she refused to disclose the cause of death.

The girl had been missing since Saturday night, when Paula Sims told police that a masked gunman broke into the family's home, knocked the mother unconscious and took the baby, leaving a 15-month-old son undisturbed upstairs. Robert Sims was at work at the time.

Another of the couple's children, 13-day-old Lorelei Sims, disappeared in June 1986 from the couple's former home near Brighton, Ill., about 10 miles north of Alton. That abduction also occurred while Robert Sims was at work.

Hughes accused of overcharge

LOS ANGELES — A contracts manager at Hughes Aircraft has accused the defense firm of overcharging the government by $40 million on the radar system for the B-2 Stealth bomber and the F-16 jet fighter, it was reported.

William Schumer, a division contracts manager at the Hughes Radar Systems Group in El Segundo, Calif., alleges in a civil suit filed in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles that top-level officers at Hughes conspired to defraud the government by shifting development charges among programs in a way that increased the government's costs, the Los Angeles Times said in Friday editions.

While the suit does not specifically identify the B-2 program, it refers to a classified project designated as the "2301 special program contract." Hughes employees knowledgeable with that contract said it was a clear reference to the B-2 program, the Times said.

Schumer, who remains in Hughes' employ, negotiated contracts and, reportedly, was one of only six managers at the Radar Systems Group whose signature could commit the corporation to multibillion-dollar contracts.

The civil suit, brought under the federal False Claims Act, was filed under court seal last January. It was quietly unsealed late last month and brought to the attention of the Times by sources at Hughes.

Swift budget agreement predicted

United Press International

WASHINGTON — With similar $1.16 trillion fiscal 1990 spending plans now passed by both houses, congressional budget leaders predicted a swift, easy agreement when talks begin next week to resolve minor differences between the plans.

"The differences are not large," Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn., said Thursday shortly after the Senate voted 68-31 in favor of its version of the spending outline for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Earlier Thursday, the House, on a 263-157 vote, approved its version of the budget package worked out between the White House and congressional leaders last month and announced by President Bush at the White House April 14.

The budget resolution provides an overall spending and revenue blueprint for next year and does not have to be signed by Bush since it is not an act of law. The specifics will be added by Senate and House tax-writing and appropriating committees with jurisdiction over various programs and policy areas.

Both Sasser and House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said the House-Senate conference committee that will iron out differences in the two spending plans would meet early next week.

"I anticipate that we can resolve these differences without any significant delays," Sasser said.

Sponsors acknowledged that the budget package was, in Panetta's words, "a short-term fix" that failed to achieve the deep deficit cuts originally hoped for. Opponents were far less kind, calling the accord a fiscal charade that used accounting gimmicks to achieve artificial deficit reductions that obscure the nation's real deficit dilemma.

Both sides expressed hope that more significant deficit cuts would be achieved for fiscal year 1991.

The budget resolutions passed by Congress Thursday would cut the estimated 1990 deficit by about $28 billion, down to $99.4 billion — just under the $100 billion deficit target set by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

Senators rejected a bid by Sen. Herb Kohl, D-Wis., to send the budget plan back to negotiators, giving them three days to produce a better package using more realistic assumptions about economic growth and interest rates.

The House and Senate versions both give the Pentagon $305.5 billion in fiscal 1990 budget authority — a net loss in buying power after inflation. They both call for $14.2 billion in new revenues — including $5.3 billion in taxes, $5.7 billion in asset sales and $2.7 billion in user fees. And they provide $181 billion for domestic programs, enough to allow some to grow beyond inflation.

The House voted 373-49 against an amendment by Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., to raise $9 billion through a new oil import tax — a proposal that violated the bipartisan budget accord and ignored President Bush's "no new taxes" pledge.

Bush stands firm on missile policy

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Standing firm on U.S. policy, President Bush has placed the onus on West Germany to remove a threat to unity at a May 29-30 NATO summit by moderating its call for negotiations on short-range nuclear missiles.

Speaking to reporters Thursday after talks with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, Bush said he remains "always willing to negotiate" a NATO position that recognizes West Germany's sensitivity about the missiles on its soil.

But in hunting the door may be open to eventual negotiations on short-range nuclear forces, he held to U.S. demands that such talks only follow cuts in conventional forces and not lead to elimination of nuclear arms from Europe.

"We're not going to go for any third zero" or getting SNE out of what in terms of negotiations," he said. "So let's be clear on that."

His comments would not preclude support in principle for future negotiations on certain terms, but would require West Germany to qualify its support for talks on short-range forces to resolve the dispute for the summit.

"I want the NATO summit to be a success," Bush said. "We will be working with the Germans and with others to see that there is a common NATO position."

The potential crisis within NATO was created when West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl moved to protect his left political flank by urging early East-West negotiations on short-range nuclear forces.

Quayle listens to Cordova residents

United Press International

CORDOVA, Alaska — Vice President Dan Quayle flew Thursday to the fishing town of Cordova, where lives have been drastically changed by the Exxon oil spill, and assured residents that they have "the attention of the world."

Quayle said very little while listening to the concerns of two dozen Cordova residents invited to express their fears and hopes to the vice president. Mayor Erling Johansen asked Quayle to help make the town whole again for the 2,500 people who live mostly off fishing.

"I can assure you that your goal," Quayle said, promising that he would brief President Bush on Friday, "We're not going to rest easy until that's accomplished. ... Let me assure you, you have the attention of the world."

Air Force II took Quayle turning a refueling stop into an opportunity for a first-hand look at America's worst oil spill, and held a closed meeting with city officials, businessmen and fishermen in a building adjacent to the Merle K. Mullholland Smith Airport.

Quayle and his wife, Marilyn, both clad in bluejeans and sneakers, were given T-shirts with the words "We Will Prevail" superimposed over a map of Alaska.

Secretary of Transportation Samuel Skinner also flew to Cordova to promise that Bush was committed to repairing the pristine environment, polluted by 10.9 million gallons of crude oil.

Juror discusses how verdict was reached

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The eldest juror in Oliver North's trial says he began deliberations with an open mind — and a prayer — but ultimately decided the ex-Marine had broken the law.

"He was guilty of a few things," said Earl Williams, 65. "Those are the three charges, the only three, we could find against the man."

Williams, a World War II veteran who marched in Gen. George Patton's Third Army, said he admired the retired lieutenant colonel and thought he made some important contributions to his country.

"I believe that he did a lot of good down there in South America," Williams said in a telephone interview Thursday. "I don't think I could hate a person like that. He gave me the impression of a likeable person."

"The man had a lot going for him."

When the jury began deliberations April 20, Williams said he tried to keep an open mind about North's role in the Iran-Contra scandal, but after reviewing the evidence he became convinced of the defendant's guilt.

"At the beginning, I was praying, 'God give us the right answer,'" Williams said. "We tried to keep an open mind on everything. Somebody would say, 'Suppose that was our brother, he would need our help.'"

"A man who was doing as good as he was doing couldn't be all that bad."

But on the 12th day of deliberations, the jury concluded North had destroyed national security documents, helped obstruct Congress and accepted an illegal gift — a $13,800 home security system.

Williams said the nine women and three men on the jury frequently locked hands and prayed together, often to relieve tensions when disputes would arise over the case.

Williams said the jury was influenced by North's partial admission of guilt — ignoring his larger claim that he never intended to break the law — and by some of the hundreds of exhibits they reviewed.

But on most of the charges, Williams said the jury felt North was "following orders," although he refused to say whether he thought those commands came from President Ronald Reagan.

IN BRIEF

NBA PLAYOFFS

Sonics hold homecourt edge

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets and Seattle SuperSonics are wondering if the homecourt edge will hold up in their NBA playoff series.

In four regular-season meetings, Seattle won twice at home while Houston triumphed twice in The Summit.

In the playoffs, the Sonics led to a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series with victories in Seattle. When the series moved to Houston Wednesday, Houston prevailed 126-107 to prevent the Sonics from ending the first round matchup.

Houston hopes for one more homecourt win in Game 4 Friday in The Summit. A victory would send the playoff series back to Seattle for a deciding game Sunday. A win by Seattle would send the Sonics into the next round.

"One more to go, then we get to go back on the road again," said Houston Coach Don Chaney. "We should play with confidence on our court just like they did up there. I expect our guys to protect our turf."

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Champagne jinxes no-hitter

In a game where lucky bats and peculiar pre-game rituals prevail, managers and players alike will tell you that in baseball there are some things that you just don't do.

During the Cleveland Indians' 3-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals Thursday afternoon, John Farrell was three outs away from a no-hitter. But Indian clubhouse manager Cy Buynak probably provoked fate by ordering three bottles of champagne for the Cleveland locker room while Farrell took the mound in the ninth inning.

Superstition dictated that Farrell would lose his chance at the elusive feat. Kevin Seitzer made it a reality by lofting a single to right field.

"That was the whammy," said Stadium Club manager Jim Kerlin. "I told my assistant not to take it (champagne) down. But he did anyway, the same three bottles of champagne Toronto called for when Dave Stieb took a no-hitter into the ninth last year and the same three bottles Milwaukee called for when Orel Jones had a no-hitter after eight innings. We're never gonna open those bottles."

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Krukow, Mitchell boost Giants

Mired in an early season slump, the San Francisco Giants Thursday welcomed the return of a team leader and continued to get torrid hitting from a major-league leader.

San Francisco pitcher Mike Krukow posted his first win since Aug. 18, 1988 and Kevin Mitchell slammed his major-league leading 10th home run, sparking the Giants to a 6-3 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Krukow, making his second appearance of the season since coming off the disabled list following shoulder surgery, went five innings and allowed two runs and six hits.

NHL PLAYOFFS

Blackhawks pull even with win

CALGARY, Alberta — Chicago suffered an embarrassing loss in Game 1 of the Stanley Cup playoff semifinals Tuesday against Calgary. In Game 2, the Blackhawks decided to do something about that defeat to the Flames.

Steve Larmer, Denis Savard and Steve Thomas scored goals little more than six minutes into the game Thursday night, helping Chicago defeat Calgary 4-2 and revenge a 3-0 loss in the first game of the Campbell Conference finals.

"We were embarrassed badly in Game 1 and wanted to show what kind of club we had," said veteran Steve Larmer, who scored his 8th goal of the playoffs just over two minutes into the game.

The triumph evened the best-of-seven series. Game 3 is scheduled Saturday night in Chicago. The decision also snapped Calgary's playoff winning streak at six games and was Chicago's first victory in Calgary since March 22, 1985.

Seminole extends reign

Tribe girls romp to region track title

From staff reports

GAINESVILLE — There's no doubt that the Fighting Lady Seminoles of Seminole High School are ready for their attempt at a fourth consecutive state track championship, not after what they did Thursday night.

Competing in the 3A-Region II championship meet at the University of Florida on Thursday, the Lady 'Noles ran rings around the rest of the field, winning the team title by more than 28 points over second place Orlando-Jones.

Pacing Seminole in its rout were Yolanda Baker, who won both the 100 meter and 200 yard dashes, and Adrian Hillman, who won the 330 low hurdles and took third in the long jump. Hillman also runs a leg on both the 440 and mile relays while Baker runs the anchor leg of the 440 relay.

On Thursday night, Seminole won both relays by convincing margins.

Michelle Pearson continued her pursuit of an individual championship in the 110 high hurdles, cruising to a win on Thursday. Later in the evening, Shatline Milwood took first place in the 440 yard dash.

Other Seminole qualifiers for next Friday's state meet are Chiveta Gilchrist (second in the shot put), Keeta Ward (fourth in the 440 yard dash) and Georgette Milwood (fourth in the 330 low hurdles).

For the Oviedo High School Lady Lions, Suzanne Hughes won the high jump competition with an effort of 5-4.

Meanwhile, Ken Brauman and his Seminole High School boys track team got exactly what they wanted out of Thursday night's 3A-Region II meet.

Despite the fact that there was just one senior competing for the Seminoles, they still finished a very respectable third in the team standings with 34 points. Lake Wales won the meet with 38 points while Gainesville High School was second with 37 points and Ocala Forest fourth with 31.

Greyhounds, Lady Rams show well in 4A-Region III

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

WINTER PARK — Lyman's boys and Lake Mary's girls turned in strong team performances and placed among the top five teams in the 4A-Region III track meet held before 3,001 fans at Showalter Field in Winter Park.

Lyman was in a dogfight for the championship until the final event, when West Orange put together a meet record-breaking performance in the mile relay to take the championship trophy.

The Lady Rams were never in contention for first place as Palm Beach Lakes ran away with the meet. Literally. Had it not been for an unfortunate break in injury to hurdler Heather Gleason, Lake Mary could have been the runner-up in the meet.

"We went in and did the things I really expected us to do," Finke said. "We would have liked to see a couple more people to state but I'm happy with our performance. We got up with a couple of performances in the middle of the meet as Octavus Holliday and James Flint ran excellent races."

West Orange finished the meet with 56 points followed by Vero Beach with 53½ as Lyman and Palm Beach Lakes finished with a total of 49 points. Merritt Island was a distant fifth place with 22 points.

"We didn't make any mistakes tonight and that has to make you feel good," Finke said. "Darren Marshall had a great race and he messed up on the final two hurdles."

Marshall won the 330 intermediate hurdles with a meet record time of 37.76, a time which ranks him fifth in the nation in the event. Marshall also qualified in the pole vault as he cleared 13.6 in the event.

Teddy Mitchell was also a double winner for Lyman taking top honors in the mile and two mile with Nick Radkewich placing second in the two mile. Holliday was third in the 880 as Flint took third in the 440, breaking the 50 second barrier for the first time this season.

John Scheidt took a third place finish in the discus throw with Steve Jerry picking up some points in the triple jump with a third place finish.

"We knew going into the mile relay we were in trouble," Finke said. "We ran a school record by more than three seconds and still finished sixth."

Lake Howell had a strong showing with a fourth place finish in the 440 relay as Marquette Smith took second in the long jump with a personal best leap of 23-4½. Mike Goins added a third place in the high jump as Kavan Howell took fourth in the two mile run.

Lake Mary finished with nine points as Bob Robertson turned in a career best in mile run, placing third with a time of 4:27.39. Carlos Smith added a third place finish in the shot put while taking sixth in the discus.

Lake Mary finished with five points as Matt Jewell placed fifth in the mile. Darrin Tugman took fifth in the two mile and Clint Johnson placed sixth in the 220 yard dash.

In the girls meet, Lake Mary used a well balanced attack to place fifth in the meet behind four powerful teams. The Lady Rams were hurt early in the meet also when Gleason went down with an ankle injury and was unable to return.

"Of course, I'd like to have more people in the state meet but we have nothing to be ashamed of," Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson said. "We're sending four quality athletes to the state meet in six events. I think all of them are capable of scoring in all six events."

Lake Mary's Amy Kuvach qualified for next week's state track meet in two events, finishing second in both the discus and shot put at the 4A-Region III meet Thursday night.

Railroaders increase lead in National Division play

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

SANFORD — The Railroaders increased its lead in the National Division of the Sanford Little Major Baseball League as they beat the Sanford Police Benevolence Association 21-11 Thursday night at Roy Holler Field.

Giving the Railroaders a boost was Sunniland Corporation as it scored its second straight victory with a 20-15 victory over second place Rinker Material.

The Railroaders now lead the division by one-and-a-half games with a record of 6-1. Rinker is second at 4-2 followed by Sunniland at 2-2, First Federal Savings and Loan at 1-4, and SPBA at 1-5. Sunniland has make-up games to be played against Rinker and First Federal later in the season.

The Railroaders and SPBA game was tied 8-8 after three innings of play as the two teams played "match this". Both teams scored three runs in the first inning, one in the second, and four in the third.

But then the Railroaders decided enough was enough and scored 13 runs over the final two innings to end the game by the 10-run rule.

Cedric Williams was the winning pitcher and Anthony Morales picked up the save for the Railroaders as they combined on a seven-hitter. Williams and Robert Dickerson led the way at the plate as they both collected three hits. Williams had a double and a triple, and scored two runs, and Dickerson had three doubles and scored four runs.

Others who contributed to the Railroader attack were Tony Lewis (two singles, two runs scored), Thomas Iaral (a double and a run scored), Jason Ruzell (a single and three runs scored), Erick Johnson (a single and a run scored), Morales (three runs scored), Ronnie McNeil (two runs) and Danten Brown, Scott Kirkby, and Byron Deese tall scoring one run.

Tim Watson led the way for SPBA as he slapped three singles and scored one run while James Young had a single and scored two runs. Joe Young, Danny Watson, and Mike Reyes each had a single and scored a run. Phillip Reynolds and Jermaine Mackey both scored two runs, and Cedric Church scored one run.

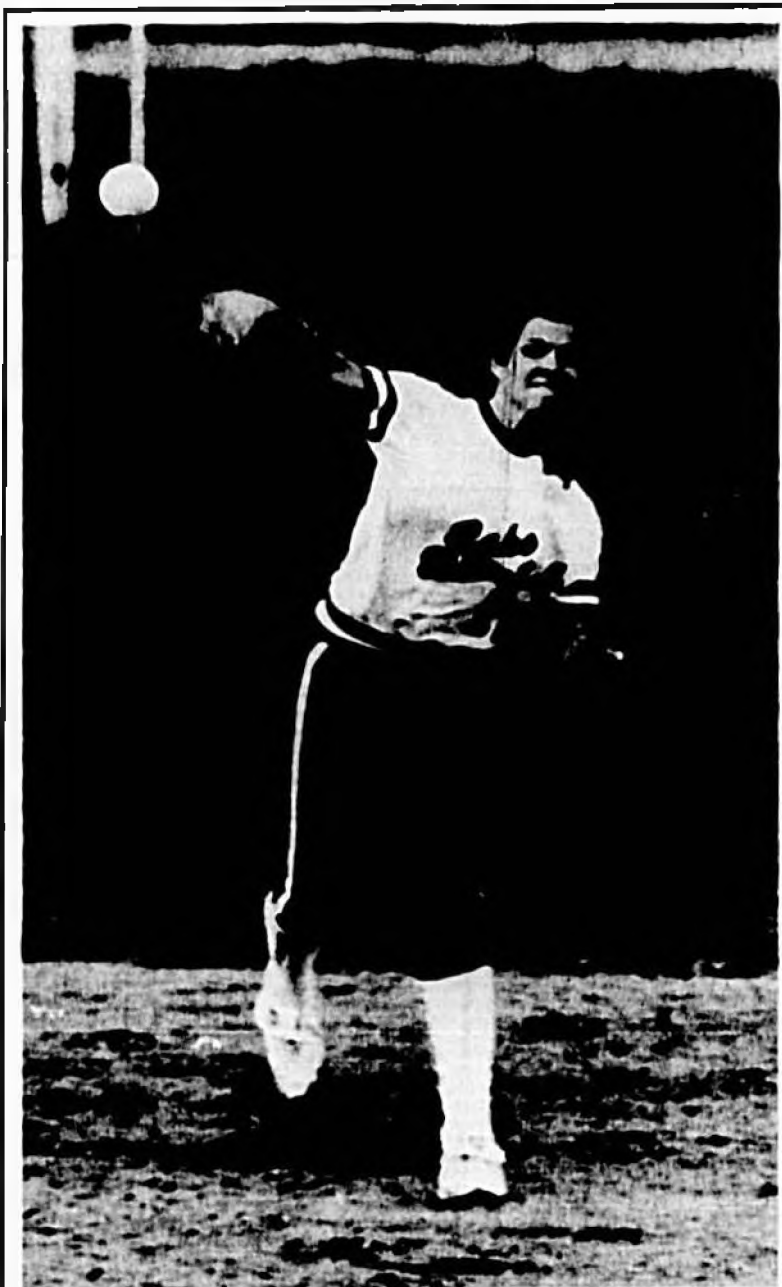

In the first game, Sunniland jumped out to a 9-0 lead in the top of the second inning and appeared to be in control, but Rinker answered with six runs in the bottom of the second — five coming on home runs by Jeff Merthie and Linwood Davis — to get back in the game.

However, Sunniland retaliated every Rinker rally. When Rinker scored five runs in the third, Sunniland came up with four. In the fourth, Rinker scored twice while Sunniland tallied six times. And in the fifth, Sunniland answered Rinker's two-run burst with a run of its own.

Dante Johnson and Brad Bender led the way offensively for Sunniland as they both came up with two hits and scored four runs. One of Bender's was a double.

Reggie Holloway had a single and a triple and scored three runs while Mike Williams had a single and scored two runs. Joe Santiago had a single, Ernest Anderson scored three runs, Damon Cappola scored two runs, and Mike Davis and Markus Johnson scored once each.

For Rinker, Willie Williams scored two runs on a triple and a home run. Merthie hit a double and a home run and also scored twice. Davis had a home run, Victor Peterson and Troy Brown had a single and a run scored each. Tony Guanciale scored four runs, Alexee Reddick scored three, and Jason Harrison scored one run.

State tournament bound?

Our churches are into crop-dusting!
It is not only the staples we grow that will determine our nation's future and that of the world. The youth we raise are our most vital resource. They must be protected from the brights that often threaten society.
Using the truths committed to them by God, the churches of our land have been helping young people GROW despite dangerous influences that have threatened a whole generation. Their efforts may not seem as dramatic as crop-dusting, but their results are even more important to your tomorrow and the world's.
Your family belongs in the church of its choice. Your children will find new incentives and encouragement at church. Your church will be better able to serve the Lord and the community with your earnest support.

Dual celebrations at First Presbyterian U.S. Presbyterians celebrate bicentennial, Sanford church celebrates 107th birthday

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Presbyterian churches across the nation are celebrating the bicentennial birthday of their general assembly which held its first meeting in 1789 in Philadelphia.

In Sanford, the First Presbyterian Church at 301 S. Oak Ave. is celebrating its 107th birthday on May 10, which adds to the celebrations that have been going on throughout the year. The church has the distinction of being the first Presbyterian Church in Seminole County, according to Chairman of the Bicentennial Committee Patty Webb. The congregation moved from the Silver Lake Church when it outgrew the church building which was built in 1878. The parishioners started to meet in Sanford's town hall until they founded the First Presbyterian Church on May 10, 1882.

Webb said every Sunday morning the historical church rings the original bell from Silver Lake. Webb, who is a second generation member of the church, said there are several families who are third and fourth generation members.

The Rev. Richard Danielak is pastor of the more than 500 member congregation. His associate pastor is the Rev. Graham Hardy.

To recognize the church's rich past, three women formed a historical committee to set up a museum. For the past year, they have gathered together artifacts, pictures and some furniture used in the Silver Lake Church and placed them in a room above the church office.

The museum is not yet completed and committee member

Orlan (Boots) Walker said they hope to get pictures of all the ministers they have had.

"It's all volunteer. It just takes time. We hope to have a very nice, little museum," said Walker, who is a retired librarian of Sanford Public Library where she worked as assistant librarian for 23 years.

It is easy to get an idea of turn-of-the-century life by reading through elders' handwritten records and minutes which date back to 1882. The books can be found in the museum along with old church pews and chairs and a cabinet given as a memorial gift by the husband of Committee Chairman Edith Axenel. The other committee member is Arlene West.

Webb said the records date back to the 1880s and state that the time had come for the establishment of a Presbyterian Church in this "vigorous young town." The documents mention people of the congregation who were caught "frequenting saloons." These backslidden members had to appear before the elders' board to explain their actions and ask for forgiveness, Webb said.

In recognition of the bicentennial which started June 11, 1988 to continue through June 11 of this year, the church has participated in many historical events such as a frontier church service patterned after the 1860s. The service included a "mourner's bench" where people "who were especially bad" sat, and a designated "sleeper" who would be awakened with a feather.

"You had real long sermons," Webb said.

Women wore hats and men wore garters while listening to a "fire-and-brimstone" sermon. A catacomb service will be held on June 4.

On June 11, the church will hold a bicentennial celebration dinner with a 200th birthday cake, Webb said.

Pope assails apartheid, meets with Kaunda

United Press International

LUSAKA, Zambia — Pope John Paul II arrived to an ecstatic welcome by tens of thousands of well-wishers Tuesday in Zambia, one of the "frontline states" bordering South Africa, and criticized apartheid for the first time during his four-country African tour.

Earlier in the French island of Reunion, the pope beatified a missionary who taught the children of slaves, and issued a stern warning against pursuing the immediate pleasures of sex rather than the commitment of marriage.

President Kenneth Kaunda led a huge throng of well-wishers who turned out with T-shirts and other mementos bearing John Paul's imprint to greet the pope when his plane touched down for the start of a three-day visit to Zambia.

Estimates of the crowd at the airport and along the roads leading from it ranged up to 300,000 people.

"As a leading country of Africa, you are being strongly challenged to build a society of harmonious relations between people of every racial group," the pope said in his arrival statement before departing by motorcade to State House for talks with Kaunda.

"This and your continuing efforts to promote a constructive dialogue by the parties involved, must be your response to the unacceptable system of apartheid," he said in reference to South Africa's policy of strict racial separation.

"Racism stands condemned, but it is not enough to condemn," the pope said. "Conditions must be fostered which enable fear to be banished and reconciliation to be achieved."

It was the first time John Paul has commented on apartheid since his arrival in Africa last week. Zambia, a nation of 7 million with 2 million Roman Catholics, is deeply involved in the black struggle against apartheid and plays host to the African National Congress, which is outlawed in South Africa.

Vatican sources have said the pope hopes to visit South Africa but has been advised by bishops in that country that "the time is not yet ripe."

Earlier Tuesday in Reunion, one-quarter of the Indian Ocean island's 800,000 people turned out for an open-air mass where John Paul elevated the 19th century missionary Frere Scubillon to within one step of sainthood.

Scubillon, born Jean-Bernard Rousseau in France, arrived in Reunion in 1833 as a missionary school teacher and devoted his life to teaching slaves and their children before and after slavery was abolished on the island in 1948.

In his address the pope cited Scubillon's "concern for the dignity of the human being," which is a truly Christian trait.

The pope urged the people of Reunion to draw inspiration from the newly "blessed" Scubillon, who is credited with a miracle in 1975.

Do you say prayers for your plants?

This summer in my garden I will have pole beans, tomatoes, cucumbers and summer squash.

It won't be a very big garden but it always produces a bountiful crop — probably because I pray for my vegetables.

I have no scientific evidence that prayer makes beans grow taller and tomatoes grow redder. I can tell you a few stories, however, that might make a believer out of you.

Fifteen years ago the giant catalpa tree in our front yard appeared to be dying. Most of the leaves were dry and brown. I called the tree surgeon who determined after an examination that it was a terminal case. He told me what he would charge to cut the tree down.

I had recently finished reading a book, "The Power of Prayer on Plants," by a Presbyterian minister, Rev. Franklin Lochr. In it he told of a prayer-for-plants experiment conducted by the Religious Research Foundation which he headed.

Each member of a Sunday afternoon prayer circle took a bottle of spring water, prayed over it and passed it on to the next person. When the bottle had gone the rounds, the water was given a closing group prayer.

Then it was poured into a pan in which eight kernels of corn had been planted. Into another pan in which eight kernels of corn had been planted, unprayed-for water was poured.

Two Sundays later the members of the prayer group saw the result. Seven corn seedlings had sprouted in the pan with the prayed-for water, only three seedlings had come up in the other pan.

It was only one of 700 controlled experiments using 27,000 seeds conducted by Lochr's research group. By this time Lochr was convinced that prayer on plants works.

I decided to do a test of my own on my dying tree. I would go out in the early morning when I could be fairly certain no neighbors were watching and I would talk to my tree. I told it how grateful we were for the shade and beauty it provided for us and how we would miss it if it were cut down.

Well, I'm not saying I believe that talking to a dying tree can bring it to life. And I'm not saying I don't believe. All I am saying is that catalpa tree in my former yard is as healthy today as a tree can be. I sometimes take skeptics there to see for themselves.

Lochr did not carry on his research in order to grow bigger and better plants.

Books respond to Catholic bishops, their demands

United Press International

WASHINGTON — When the nation's Roman Catholic bishops speak, it is not only the Catholics who listen.

In recent years, the bishops have issued two major pastoral statements, first, on issues surrounding nuclear strategies and weapons and then, in 1987, on the moral dimensions of the U.S. economy.

Both statements have generated intense scrutiny that extends far beyond Catholic borders.

In "Prophetic Visions and Economic Realities" (Eerdmans, 257 pp., $8.95 pb), editor Charles Strain has brought together 16 essays — four each from evangelical Protestant, mainstream Protestant, Jewish and Catholic traditions. The essays look sympathetically but critically at the bishops' call for a "second American revolution" that would make the economy work on behalf of the poor as well as the rich.

Larry Rasmussen, for example, praises the pastoral for showing "how a major religious body can go public with the gospel in a pluralistic society and do so in ways that build Christian conscience and inform a complex public debate." Rasmussen is Reinhold Niebuhr professor of Social Ethics at Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

At the same time, however, Rasmussen — like a number of other of the mainline contributors — finds a flaw in the bishops' statement in what he calls "its inadequate treatment of economic power in the United States and the morality of that power." Indeed, a number of the contributors believe the bishops maintain too benign a view of U.S. economic realities.

One of the best sections in the volume is that of the contributions of the evangelicals, a part of American Christianity that often complains liberal Protestants fail to bring a vigorous theology to their social preaching. With the bishops, however, they've not only met their match theologically but are forced to contend with policy implications at odds with the political conservatism of large sections of their community.

All four of the evangelical contributions — by Richard Mouw, Robert K. Johnston, Eugene Dykema and Mark Amstutz — are thoughtful and equally address evangelicals as well as other readers.

Indeed, overall, this small volume is one of the best responses — and resources — for the study of contemporary issues in the American economy.

Phillip Berryman's "Our Unfinished Business" (Pantheon, 204 pp., $8.95 pb) is a response to both the peace and economic pastoral of the bishops.

Berryman is a former Catholic priest and activist. Unlike some critics and supporters of the messages, he does not read the two pastorals as merely a reaction by the socially liberal bishops to the conservatism of the Reagan era. He sees them rather as "valuable resources for formulating the national agenda in the post-Reagan era."

One of his best chapters is his own critique of the critics on both the right and the left in which he shows that socio-political writing doesn't have to be dull.

Berryman ran, for example, write about conservative William F. Buckley's "amused contempt" for liberals, but link it to an even more deflating characterization of the penitent liberal Michael Novak. He says Novak writes of the left with "an earnest appeal for them to experience an illumination similar to his own."

His book takes the debate raised by the bishops one step further. He suggests, for example, that people must begin to question the myth that America must be number one. "consider that American economic preeminence may no longer exist, and ask whether "there are not cultural and spiritual consequences that should be squarely faced."

Dialogue is a two-way street and sometimes the bishops, as they know, need to listen, as well.

One of the voices they like least to hear, however, is one to which they should pay closer attention, that of the Rev. Andrew Greeley.

And Ronald D. Pasquariello's "Conversations with Andrew Greeley" (Quinlan, 229 pp., $16.95) is one of the best places to start within the vast Greeley oeuvre.

In spontaneous give-and-take with the theologian Pasquariello, Greeley — who has one of the best senses of the church at its most local level — opines on everything from the Virgin Mary, politics, priests and ethnicity to sex and his own fiction, the latter being the weakest but most popular of his multitudinous writings.

The hierarchy knows these things, but it's good to have to have a Greeley continually remind them and the rest of the flock. Pasquariello deserves thanks for making the spontaneous Greeley much more available.

Churches launch campaign for Korean unification

United Press International

Church leaders from North and South Korea came together in a suburban Washington conference center late last month to give voice to a prayer that for 40 years no one has dared utter — that the partitioned country be reunified.

The four-member delegation from the (North) Korean Christian Federation were the first representatives of the North Korean Christian community to visit the United States since 1945, when Korea was divided at the end of World War II.

Together with a five-member group of Christians from the South Korean National Council of Churches, the Koreans served as resource experts for the "Conference on Peace and Reunification of Korea," sponsored by the American National Council of Churches.

"We don't have the power in our hands to make peace or reunify Korea," the Rev. Dwain Epps, NCC associate general secretary for international affairs, told the conference's opening worship service. "But we have the opportunity to respond to the call of Christians in the South and North to assist them to find a reunified future."

The U.S. meeting, which brought together some 60 American Christians, peace activists and others, in addition to the nine Koreans, had as its focus the launching of a six-year U.S. campaign to support Korean churches as they plan for a 1995 "Year of Jubilee for Reunification."

Relations between the two Koreas, while eased in recent years, still remain tense and some Christian leaders in South Korea have been arrested for making unauthorized trips to the North.

Americans — including a large number of representatives from the 1 million-member Korean American community — at the four-day conference adopted a 5 1/2-page statement outlining their hopes and plans for the support campaign and raised an initial $50,000 in pledges for the drive.

Sneezing at mealtime may signify allergy

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am 83 years old. When I begin eating a meal, my nose immediately starts running and I begin to sneeze. This is very irritating to me. Can you give me an idea what might be causing this problem?

DEAR READER: You might have an allergy or a condition called vasomotor rhinitis, an annoying nasal drainage triggered by various stimuli, including odors and changes in environmental temperature. I suggest you see an allergist for two reasons: You need a diagnosis and, if you do have an allergy, the specialist can help you. Vasomotor rhinitis has no known cause and treatment is often unsatisfactory; however, other forms of runny nose are treatable.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Over the past 25 years I've gotten a cold after the first chill in September and it lasts through winter and spring. I've tried everything. On a hunch I tried vitamin E and it works. What does medical science know about vitamin E in the treatment of colds?

DEAR READER: No reputable scientific study has shown supplemental vitamin E to be of any health benefit in normal adults.

The vitamin is widely distributed in foods (especially vegetable oils); deficiencies in normal people are rare enough to be medical curiosities. An occasional patient with peripheral vascular disease (blocked arteries) may experience improvement in circulation, but the usefulness of vitamin E in aiding circulation, preventing heart disease, improving sexual performance, treating the common cold and lowering blood pressure is unproved.

I'm not suggesting that you imagined your improvement; I am saying that, as a general rule, such a result would be unusual. Ask your doctor about this.

For more information, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Fats I - Vitamins and Minerals" and "Vitamin E."

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

"Double trouble" would be a good title for an important chapter in any comprehensive bridge book. Much scorn would be heaped upon any double that helped declarer make a contract that would normally fail. Today's declarer received a helpful double, but he failed to take advantage of it.

In four spades doubled, South discarded a losing club on the second heart. He then ruffed the third round of hearts. He expected West to hold long spades for his penalty double, but he also hoped that West had started with only three hearts. So he played four rounds of spades and then started running diamonds. Too bad. On the third diamond, West ruffed. Then, because West had unblocked the queen of hearts on the third round of that suit, he was able to play a low heart to East. Unfortunately East had not been alert to the fact that West was getting ahead of declarer in trump length and had carelessly discarded one of his hearts. So the contract was set only one trick.

If declarer recognizes that the only justification for West's double is a trump stack, he will make the contract. After ruffing the third heart low, he should play a low spade to dummy's queen. Then, leaving the nine of spades in dummy, he starts running the diamonds. West can ruff the third diamond, but now the spade nine in dummy protects against the play of another heart. Declarer will take 10 tricks, and West will regret alerting declarer to the need for very careful play.

Chinese students return to classes

BEIJING — College students, apparently reserving judgment on conciliatory overtures by the Communist Party, began returning to classes Friday following a citywide boycott and a pro-democracy campaign that spread to at least 15 cities. Major newspapers gave unprecedented coverage of nationwide student protests commemorating a historic 1919 student-led movement for democracy, splashing across their front pages accurate accounts and photographs of Thursday's march by at least 50,000 Beijing students.

Israeli border patrol criticized

JERUSALEM — A paramilitary border patrol fired excessively and deviated from regulations during a dawn raid on a West Bank village that killed four Palestinians and led to the death of a fifth, a military investigation showed. Flaws also were found in operational planning, briefings and coordination for the April 13 raid on Nahalin, 4 miles south of Jerusalem, a military report said Thursday.

Pro-Noriega rally held

United Press International

PANAMA CITY, Panama — An estimated 80,000 supporters of pro-government candidate Carlos Duque attended a final campaign rally for Sunday's presidential election, which critics say has already been rigged by followers of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Thursday's rally for Duque was smaller and less enthusiastic than one held a day earlier for opposition candidate Guillermo Endara, who had a more than 2-to-1 lead in an independent opinion poll released this week.

Your presence here proves that the story of fraud is over," Duque told the crowd of about 80,000, many of whom had been brought by bus from outlying provinces. "This is why we will win."

The rally culminated a bitter campaign that pitted Duque, a Noriega crony and candidate of the National Liberation Coalition of COLINA, against Endara, representing the U.S.-backed Civil Democratic Opposition Alliance, a three-party coalition opposed to Noriega.

The alliance held one of the biggest opposition rallies ever Wednesday, drawing more than 100,000 flag-waving supporters.

Two German hostages freed

United Press International

SIDON, Lebanon — Kidnappers today released two West German hostages but said the life of a third was in danger and demanded that authorities in Cyprus free an unidentified prisoner, a Palestinian official and security sources said.

The two released West Germans, a man and a woman working for the West German relief agency ASME Humanitas, arrived in a taxi at the gate of the headquarters of the agency at 4:30 a.m. today.

Two hours after their release, Abu Ali Wajeh, the commander of the PLO Fatah military police in Sidon, said a third West German was being held captive by the unidentified abductors.

A third German national was with the man and woman, and I know from the released Germans that he remained hostage in the hands of the abductors. His name is Mary Keesch," Wajeh said. West German authorities could not confirm the name of the captive.

Wajeh said Palestinian gunmen were placed on full alert to try to locate the third captive but that he did not believe the man would remain in captivity for long. He did not elaborate.

A Palestinian source said the abductors informed the Palestinian command that "the life of the German hostage was in danger."

"They are demanding the release of a prisoner detained in Cyprus," the Palestinian source said. "No more details were available."
