Lawmen Raid High-Stakes Poker Parlor

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Just before midnight Seminole County sheriff's forces battered open the front door of the Altamonie Men's Club and broke up a high-stakes poker session in the second stage of an anti-crime sweep in the North Street area on the outskirts of Altamonte Springs.

Eighteen persons were arrested on gambling charges. Some were charged in connection with the illegal selling of beer and one for possession of a small quantity of cocaine.

Among the arrested were Joe Louis McGriff, 44. Orlando, and Batic Harold Jr., 48, Orlando, Both were charged with gambling and had bond set at

The Seminole County SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) team forced the door of the club on North Street at county Road 427 open with a battering ram at 11:35 p.m. Friday. Forty lawmen stormed into the two room building and caught the alleged gamblers by surprise, sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said.

Defending Our Trees

By Rick Brunson Herald Staff Writer

"I think that I shall never see," wrote Alfred Joyce Kilmer in 1913. "A poem lovely as a tree." In Kilmer's memorable poem, "Trees," oaks, pines and elms are held in noble, lofty esteem. Using simple verse yet powerful metaphora, Kilmer likens trees to persons with feelings.

If Kilmer were alive today writing in Seminole County, he would possibly describe trees as victima - nature's infantrymen falling in battle, fatally wounded by the onslaught of development.

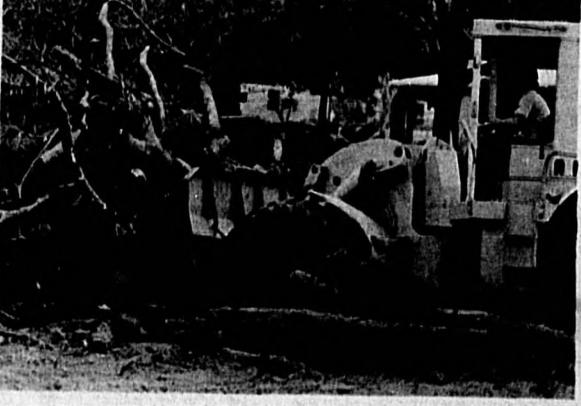

But Sanford, Lake Mary and other Seminole County cities have risen to the defense of trees. In legal language not as sweet and inspirational as Kilmer's, these cities have written arbor ordinances that laud trees for their contribution to the community's quality of life and provide protection for

The catch is the ordinance, as strong as it is, is not being The ordinance also states enforced. Lake Mary City Manager Kathy Rice said Friday no fines have been imposed since the ordinance was passed even though some trees may have been destroyed.

"It's not enforced," Mrs. Rice passed in 1982, is similar to said. "We try to be careful about it but as you can imagine we have limited staffing."

She said most developers are conscientious and comply with the rule but even if some didn't, the city wouldn't know because it does not have a person to inspect property periodically during construction to make sure contractors are abiding by the ordinance. She also said a loophole in the lota from the rule.

As of Thursday's City Commission meeting, when County Forester Mike Martin addressed the problem of not enforcing good ordinances, the commission is looking for ways to inspect construction sites. The commission is also revising its landscaping code so trees will not be razed to accommodate parking lots. A supulation is also to be added that requires builders to put guard rails around trees to keep buildozers from backing into them. Mrs. Rice said the commission wants to get volunteers from local garden clubs or the Division of Forestry to servi as inspectors. Altamonte Springs, which Martin says has one of the strongest ordinances in the county, has a city forester, construction sites. Stillinger said he charged one development, the Lake Lotus Club in the southwest part of the city, with destroying $45,000 worth of trees a year ago. He said about 120 trees were plowed under. The owner had to transplant 222 trees to make up for the loss, he said.

Mike Stilliner, who inspects

"Word gets around when you fine someone $45,000. Developers get real anxious to cooperate." Stillinger said.

Martin said arbor ordinances are not worth the pulp they're printed on unless they are enforced. He has launched an educational effort aimed at getting city officials to toughen their response to violators. He said two cities. Oviedo and Winter Springs, have yet to local officials fear the collapse of Auto Train could follow a cut in Amtrak funding and that in turn would mean a loss of tourist dollars for Sanford

The threat to Auto Train due to President Reagan's proposed elimination of Amtrak funding is rallying local support for the passenger/auto rail service.

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith said she will bring the matter before the city commission Monday night and feels sure they will agree that they should send a letter to the appropriate government officials asking that funding not be eliminated.

The federally subsidized rail system will cesse passenger service by the end of the fiscal year, Sept. 30, if funding is slashed from the federal budget as recommended to Congress by the president. Washington Turns Up Heat On Managua Leftist Regime

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan says he wants peace for Nicaragua but there is an unmistakable intensifying of administration rhetoric toward Managua as Congress nears action on aid to anti-Sandinista rebels.

Reagan kicked off the blitz a week ago today in his radio address when he called the Contra guerrillas battling the leftist regime "our brothers" and "freedom fighters" and said he would press Congress to resume support.

By week's end, Secretary of State George Shultz had told Congress the United States has a "moral duty" to aid the Contras, Reagan had told a nationally televised news conference his goal is to "remove ... the present structure" of the Sandinista regime and Shultz had accused Managua of aggression toward its neighbors and said the United States faces "greater danger" unless aid to the Contras is

4th Implant Could Be Next Week

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - Doctors say permanent mechanical heart recipients Bill Schroeder and Murray Haydon are recovering well, and a fourth mechanical heart implant could be conducted as early as next week.

Dr. William DeVries, who has put artificial hearts in three people starting with Barney Clark in 1982, said Haydon is still using vital monitoring machinery that will be needed by the fourth recipient.

But as soon as Haydon is off the equipment, "We'd probably be ready to do another one. It probably would be sometime next week," DeVries said. The surgeon said about 20 people were being monitored

Blacks Had More Than Just The Enemy To Fight

By Patrick J. Killen

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Hardly anyone thought America's black fliers would make the grade in World War II. Not the secretary of war. Not the chief of the U.S. Army Corps. Not even their fellow officers.

But the black fliers who got to the war zone in North Africa and Europe flew more than 1,578 missions in their fighter planes and destroyed or damaged 409 enemy aircraft. In the latter stages of the war they escorted bornbers attacking difficult targets in Eastern and Central Europe and boasted to have never lost one of the planes they were protecting.

U.S. Agents Helped Nazis Enter U.S.,

Documents Show

ROCKLAND, Mass. (UPI) -Declassified Cold War documents show U.S. intelligence agents helped Soviet Nazi Party leaders enter the United States, including one man blamed in the deaths of 250,000 civilian Jews, a former federal prosecutor says.

John Loftus, a former member of the Justice Department team that helped hunt Nazis living in the United States during the Carter Administration, this week released the documents he obtained under the Freedom of Information Act.

"The truth of the matter is that the entire leadership cadre of Nazi puppet governments was systematically and knowingly brought to America." Loftus said.

Among the documents is a letter from Radaslau Ostrowsky offering assistance to the State Department in their intelligence war with the Soviets. Loftus identified Ostrowsky as head of what remained of the Nazi Party in Allied-controlled Germany in 1952.

"It is utterly unimportant with whom we collaborated -Germans or devils. What is important is that we were never collaborators of Stalin," wrote Ostrowsky from Munich in 1952.

Loftus said Ostrowsky led a group of Soviet Nazis responsible for the killing of 250,000 civilian Jews, and an unspecified number of Allied soldiers in his World War II work with Adolf Hitler's army.

Shortly after he wrote the letter Ostrowsky came to the United States and headed a Nazi group in America, living in Michigan and New Jersey before dying in 1979, Loftus said. Loftus said the documents prove State Department officials, some with connections to the CIA after World War II, brought members of the "Nazi Party in exile" from Allied-held Germany to America to assist intelligence work.

He said their help was sought for their knowledge of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union because officials expected World War III to break out between the Soviets and United States.

His allegations are outlined in a brief he is sending to Congress describing "covert violations of congressional restrictions."

A State Department spokeswoman said there would be no immediate response to Loftus' allegations.

Loftus also released a roster of 100 Soviet Nazi party war criminals and collaborators who he said held a State Department-backed party convention meeting in South River, N.J., in September 1954.

September 1954.

High on the list was Vyataslau Koush, who Loftus said is now parish priest of the Church of St. Euprosynia in South River, N.J., and a former Nazi administrator in Russia during the war.

Loftus estimated there are 300 former Nazi collaborators or war criminals still living in the United States, many atill under ed States, many still under investigation by the Justice Department special unit.

Loftus said he wants government officials to admit to the ment officials to admit to the intelligence recruitment efforts because they were in direct contradiction to the orders of President Harry Truman and in conflict with most U.S. government agencies seeking to uncover Nazi war criminals.

chain of diet clinics has written a computer program that could help people 10 to 40 pounds overweight slim down to normal size and stay there.

Nutritional Management Inc. runs 11 weight-loss clinics based on strategies designed by Dr. George Blackburn, an associate professor at Harvard Medical School, and other medical experts.

"The Original Boston Com-puter Diet" analyzes an overweight person's diet and helps them modify it into an effective weight-loss program. It is designed to counsel patients much the same way one of the clinic's instructors would.

It then informs the user whether they have met their desired diet goals and either rewards or scolds them.

While the clinics are geared toward helping people who are obese, the computer program is designed for people who are slightly or moderately overweight.

"The program uses a lot of the same techniques we use in the clinic," said Cris Carlin, a registered dietician for NMI.

Abandoned Treasure May Be Waiting For You

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Some Seminole County residents might strike it rich if they spot their names in the fine-print of a 134-name Evening Herald legal listing that represents the state's "lost and found" in the county.

The items waiting to be claimed by owners listed in the Feb. 13th and 20th Herald by the office of State Comptroller Gerald Lewis include almost anything and everything except real estate, said Linda Aronoff, regional financial administrator for Lewis.

Typically the abandoned property is money and it averages out to a couple of hundred dollars per case, but some surprised owners learn they can claim thousands of dollars, Ms. Aronoff said. And others who can't be found will never know about the riches to which they have a legal right. Much of the property is from unclaimed estates. Heirs often aren't aware of bank accounts or safe deposit boxes whose contents they own, she said.

After 10 years, property in a bank, if the account is inactive. is considered abandoned. An uncashed paycheck is consid- one to come forward, prove they surprised to learn that it was years without action as is property stored in a safe deposit box. If the rent on a safe deposit box is six months overdue the bank will open the box in the contents will be turned over to the state, Ms. Aronoff said.

Items taken from a safe deposit box, or any other goods other than cash, will be held for seven years and then auctioned off by the state, Ms. Aronoff said.

The money earned, as well as the unclaimed cash, is used to fund Florida's public school system until and unless it is claimed by the rightful owner, she said.

Included among the un-claimed items might also be utility company deposits, escrow funds from a real estate deal that fell through or most commonly insurance company payments. Ms. Arnoff said.

"The state has a giant lost and found. People have forgotten about millions of dollars. We have $8 million in abandoned property listed in our computer and that doesn't include items worth less than $25.

Stalin's American Granddaughter Facing Traumatic New Life In A Russia She Neither Knows Nor Likes

By Louise Branson

MOSCOW (UPI) - Dictator Josef Stalin's 13-year-old American granddaughter is said to be stubbornly refusing to adjust to her new life in the Soviet Union - for her, an alien country whose language she does not

Soviet authorities, apparently seeking to coax teenage Olga Peters into trying to adapt to her new home, have sent her to Stalin's native southern republic of Georgia.

Authorities feel that a warm reception in Georgia - where Stalin is still idolized, although he was denounced as a criminal by the Soviet government - may help Olga overcome the trauma she has been going through since her arrival in a blaze of publicity four months ago.

Sources in Moscow and travelers to the capital from Georgia say Olga has become withdrawn, refusing to speak to anyone or to wear her brown Soviet school uniform. She insists on continuing to wear a cross around her neck in a country where the government takes a strong atheistic stance.

The teenager poses greater problems for authorities than her mother, Svetlana Alliluyeva, sources say.

Alliluyeva, 58, who defected to the United States 17 years ago, brought Olga with her when she returned to the Soviet Union in November. Olga is the child of Svetlana's brief marriage to U.S. architect William Peters, from whom she was divorced in Svetlana's return, like her defection, was dramatic. She told a news conference she was seeking the happiness that eluded her in the West by rejoining the son and daughter she left behind.

But that happiness once again appears to have eluded Svetlana. Her son and daughter 30s, did not open their arms to the mother who abandoned them in 1967.

Her daughter was said to have been downright hostile and her son, though more friendly, is said to have told Svetlana he did not want her to live with him and his family.

Like history repeating itself. Svetlana's impetuous search for happiness may have inflicted misery on her third child.

Olga grew up in the United States where her mother described her as "American as apple pie." When she was 11, Svetlana moved to Britain, where Olga attended a private Quaker school and was a popular, deeply religious child.

It is not known when Svetlana told Olga the identity of her grandfather, a ruthless Soviet dictator from 1924 to 1953 who sent millions of Russians to harsh labor camps or execution during his purges of the 1930s.

Two years ago, Svetlana told reporters she had kept her grandfather's identity a secret from Olga.

her grandfather was until she came to Moscow in November. On the eve of their departure, according to published reports, neighbors in England heard Olga shouting at her mother and acreaming "Why didn't you tell me?"

In Moscow, Olga began attending Moscow's school No. 45 but could not fit in. Teachers said the American teenager needed tutoring since she speaks no Russian and lacks the grounding in Soviet geography, history and other subjects already familiar to Soviet children. She and her mother lived in a hotel and the relatives they visited were less than welcoming, which must have put a strain on from her first two marriages, now in their Soviet Union where Svetlana and Olga can find genuine warmth and even adoration.

Georgia may be the only place in the

Streets and a park still bear Stalin's name. his portrait hangs in bakeries and wine shops and his home in the town of Gori, near Tbilisi, has been turned into a Stalin museum. The Soviet Union's other republics tore down reminders of Stalin when Nikita Khrushchev denounced him in 1956.

Svetlana has family connections in Georgia through her atepbrother Yakov, Stalin's son by his first wife. Yakov died at a prisoner of war camp in Germany in 1943 after Stalin refused to exchange him for a captured German marshal.

Yakov's son Yevgeni, who teaches at a Moscow military scademy, has two sons who live in Tbilisi. Soviet sources said they and other sympathetic families have been charged with extending the traditional Georgian hospitality to Svetlana and Olga.

They said Oiga is being tutored in both Russian and Georgian and the basic Soviet school curriculum.

The teenager still holds an American passport though she has also been granted Soviet citizenship, which under Soviet law nullifies her American citizenship.

U.S. officials in Moscow said they consider Olga an American citizen with the right to travel to the United States if and when she wants, although they have been granted no contact with her since her arrival. If Olga reaches the age of 18 and has not integrated into Soviet life, she may request permission to leave and it is just possible authorities may grant this. Meantime, however, she faces some difficult years both going through adolesence and learning to live in a society whose values and lifestyle are completely alien to anything she has known.

Graham Signs 100th Death Warrant; Claims Penalty Deters

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Bob Graham, insisting the state was being "judicious, appropriate and com-passionate" in its handling of death cases, signed the 99th and 100th death warrants of his term Friday.

State prison officials scheduled the executions of condemned killers James Agan and Robert Brian Waterhouse for March 19. Graham said he remains convinced that capital punishment will deter "heinous"

"I believe it's indicating that there's a commitment to see that the law is enforced - that if a person commits a premeditated murder, a heinous murder, that they're putting their life at risk," said Graham.

Graham said the number of warrants he has signed was not excessive for the state with the highest death row population in the nation.

"We have over 220 people on death row," Graham said during an impromptu news conference. "What is an appropriate number of death warrants to sign, given the length of time that these individuals have been in the courts appealing their cases? How many death warrants would be appropriate in light of the number of individuals that are on death row in Florida?"

Lawyers Argue Over Kids' Arrest

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) - The arrest of a 12-year-old boy and a 10-year-old girl who willingly had sex together outraged lawyers and had prosecutors arguing with police while a legislator accused the state of overzealous prosecution Friday.

The boy was charged with sexual battery and the girl with lewd and lascivious conduct, authorities said. The children, whose names were withheld because of their ages, will appear in juvenile court Tuesday.

Schulte reacted angrily this week when he received word that the Supreme Court had refused to consider an appeal of a Florida Supreme Court ruling that kept the tax limiting amendment off the 1984 general election ballot. The Florida court ruled that the proposed petition-drive amendment was unconstitutional because it dealt with more than one subject.

"It was a day of infamy on the scales of 'The United States Supreme Court, by refusing to rule on the denial of our rights under Article 1 and Article 14, has said it is OK for the Florida Supreme Court to knock all citizens' initiatives off the ballot, if they get on, or to deny them access to the ballot and not even have to give a reason," Schulte

"The United States Supreme Cort has said in effect that if the Florida Supreme Court doesn't like it, it can knock a citizens' amendment off the ballot and not even give an opinion or a reason."

Schulte said he will mount another petition drive to strike the clause from the state constitution that limits citizens initiative amendments to one subject. That, he said, will clear the way for another drive to get the Proposition One state tax-limiting amendment.

"We are going to take back our rights as sovereign people and we will strike those 17 words requiring the addressing of only a single subject in a citizens' initiative constitutional amendment and we will do that by the constitutional process," Schulte said. speeder with a CB and radar detector, by the time he gets there, he's a nervous wreck and didn't gain much.

No matter what the limit. Williams said, drivers "are going to have their own built in fudge factor of about 10 miles per hour. If the speed limit's 70 they're going to run 60.

Speeders may not cause as many accidents as people might think, but when it is a factor in an accident the injuries are likely to be more severe. It can make the difference between life and death," Williams said.

But he said speeding in residential areas, which according to Seminole County sheriff's Sgt. Jerry Riggins is rampant on Seminole roads, can be an even more serious problem than speeding on Interstate 4. because of the presence of pedestrians, bicyclists and slowmoving vehicles. "But speeding is a serious problem all over," Williams said.

Although the Seminole County Sheriff's Department "is not a traffic oriented organization," deputies in 1983 issued 1,010 tickets to alleged speeders, Riggins said. That's with his eight, radar equipped traffic units, primarily running radar in residential areas and with deputies on routine patrol "looking for flagrant traffic violators" he said.

Riggins, who heads the Sheriff John Polk's traffic division, said he receives about 15 calls per week from homeowners asking for radar checks to curb speeding through their neighborhoods.

But Seminole traffic patrolman Terry, Huffman said in many cases the person who called for the speed crackdown is caught in the aweep. That's because, he said, "When the speed limit is low, if its a 25 mile per hour zone and they're doing 40 they aren't actually going that fast. Of course for a 25 zone it's fast, but they don't realize they're doing 40 because 40 doesn't feel fast. The lower the speed limit the more people you're going to have speeding.

People have a tendency to speed when they look down the road and see a big, open road. The majority in residential areas on the roadway or any visual don't knowingly speed. They just aren't paying attention. Of said.

Speed limits that vary from 25, to 35, to 45 along a residential roadway can cause problems for drivers when "they're driving along and all of a sudden it goes from 45 to 35." Huffman said.

Contrary to popular belief. Williams said the FHP doesn't hour over the speed limit before issuing a citation.

hour speed limit you're subject to arrest," he said.

But Riggins said, because of variables in clocking conditions. road conditions and the condition of the suspected speeder's car, which may have a faulty won't do any good. A VASCAR speedometer or over or undersized tires which would throw off a speedometer's reading, deputies generally allow a 5 mph margin of error both over and under the speed limit.

However, he said, "in my opinion 15 miles per hour over the speed limit is a flagrant speed violation. It's intentional," and will most likely garner a driver a ticket if caught.

If you're speeding through a residential radar sone you're way and write tickets all day." likely to be nabbed if your violation is apparently flagrant. Huffman said. "If I work a road, as long as I'm there I'll get everyone. We use two units and when I'm writing a ticket he (the other deputy) can still get the rest of them.

Riggins said a recenty resurrected anti-speed device, the VASCAR (Visual Averaging Speed Computer Recorder) which FHP has four Seminole County assigned units equipped with to override radar detectors, would be ideal for deputies monitoring residential area. But so far one of the $2,000 unita sheriff's budget.
The VASCAR, Williams said.

came on the scene about 16 years ago, but soon fell from favor because of difficulty in finding replacement parts, a problem that has been solved, making VASCAR the wave of the future, he said.

VASCAR is a mechanical system that relies on a properly trained officer to clock speed when a vehicle passes through a zone on the roadway that has been premeasured by the lawman. The zone can be marked by utility poles, shadows landmark, he said.

A car is clocked when first course in neighborhoods where sighted as it travels from the first the roads are curving or that are point of the zone through the heavily populated you don't get second when another speed up that much speed." Huffman reading is taken. Then the officer gets a computer reading on the averaged speed the vehicle was traveling through the zone. William said.

The system is more versatile and more accurate than rader, which emits and electronic aignal that bounces back to the unit and gives an instantaneous give a leeway of a few miles per reading of speed. The accuracy of a radar reading can be thrown off depending on traffic condi-"If you exceed the 55 mile per tions, aiming, other factors Williams said.

But a VASCAR can single out a given car in a pack and can give an accurate reading of its average speed. And best of all Williams said "A radar detector can't be detected."

FHP's anti-speed airplane, which flys over Seminole County roadways at least two to three times a month is equipped with a similar speed clocking system. Williams said.

Riggins said he could justify "in a heartbeat" having a VASCAR for his officers. would be ideal, because we're always getting calls from people who say, 'I could sit in my drive With radar you can't always do that, because if you backup in somebody's driveway you have to adjust your antenna or you have to park on the side of the street and shoot down the street.

"But with VASCAR you can back up in a driveway, measure the distance between say two utility poles and wait for the speeders who won't know you're there," he said.

No matter what gear lawmen use to nab speeders a ticket could add up to "financial dis-aster," Williams said, because the fine for an 80 mph violation is $75 and there's two dollars tagged on for each mile per hour over 80.

Riggins said speed is a factor in about 35 percent of all traffic accidents and most speed limit violations occur in 25 mph zones. A ticket in a 25 mph zone can also be costly, he said. "If you're doing 62 in a 25 zone the fine would be $49. Twenty-five dollars for the flat 25 miles per hour over the speed limit and then $2 for each mile per hour over that."

"Everybody's in a big hurry to get nowhere," Huffman said, and apparently some are willing to pay the price and risk their life to get there.

carpet-covered game table. Scattered cards on the table and several of a hodgepodge of rickety chairs tipped over indicated the reputed gamblers were caught off guard when lawmen moved in.

The raiders, including Seminole County deputies and SWAT team members along with Volusia County SWAT ofand Florida Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco agents, "accomplished what we set out to do and more," Spolski said.

A quantity of beer was seized in the raid, because the club isn't licensed to sell alcoholic beverages, state agent Jack Wallace said. And the owner was cited for illegal possession of beer for resale.

The heavily armed forces, most rigged-out in camouflage gear, met with no resistance and found no weapons in the club. with the exception of a few pocket knives, Spolski said.

The raid is the culmination of a two month investigation and assistance of an informant who infiltrated the games, he said. Lawmen were also supported in their investigation by other residents of the neighborhood, which is north of state Road 438 and east of county Road 427. who have complained of a reputed upsurge in crime in that area. The reported tilegal activities were slowed, but not stopped about nine months ago when deputies increased patrols there, Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said.

Residents had object to street vendors brazenly operating a drive-up supermarket of drugs, selling small quantities of marima, cocaine and beroin to motorists who drove to the neighborhood to buy. They had also complained of illegal gambling in the area, Polk said. Friday's late night sweep follows a Feb. 7 sheriff's raid on six reputed illegal drug "stash houses" and the arrest of six men alleged to be suppliers of contraband for open street drug deals in that area. Marijuana and cocaine with a wholesale value of at least $100,000 was netted in that crackdown.

Both raids, Spolski said, "will show that we aren't going to tolerate this sort of thing," and should have a significant impact on crime in the area. "We're not was carried out with the harassing the neighborhood. Its just the opposite. This proves were going to come in and clean it up.

E. Brooks Rolls Out The Royce

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

It didn't take Lake Howell coach Greg Robinson long to realize he had a Rolls Royce of a basketball player in Efrem Brooks. Robinson's biggest hurdle was to get Brooks to realize it Brooks, an 18-year-old senior who leads the county in scoring. is the kind of shy that is spelled capital S-H-Y. As a youngster, he bounced back and forth from New York to Central Florida. something which may have prompted his tendency to withdraw.

"I didn't play on a team until seventh grade," said Brooks. "I was ashamed to play basketball. I didn't think I was good enough and I was afraid to join a team."

Despite Brooks' reluctance, he was finally persuaded by a middle school geography teacher to join a seventh grade team. Once there, he was a natural. He could dribble, shoot, pass and play defense.

Still, the confidence was lacking. "When I did something well. I thought it was luck," he said. But I did practice a lot. Every Saturday and every day during the summer.'

But while his skills continued to improve. Brooks was still hesitant to jump behind the wheel of that Rolls Royce talent and put the pedal to the metal. The trouble lingered into his sophomore year when he earned a starting berth on the Lake Howell varsity.

"I just didn't feel comfortable playing in front of those people," said the 5-9 guard who uncharacteristically said he prefers passing the ball to shooting it. "My nervousness would usually go away after the game started but it was still a problem."

Not enough of a problem to keep him from filling up the bucket, though. But he was inconsistent. During his sophomore and junior years, it was 25 one night and five the next.

Efrem Brooks has all the moves for Lake Howell.

"Sometimes I just didn't feel like shooting or driving." Brooks said. "Coach Robinson would tell me to do it but I was afraid I would miss the shot."

Although Brooks was a bit insubordinate on some of his coach's orders, he did remember the most valuable lesson. "Coach Robinson always told me 'I got a lot of potential — use it.'" said Brooks. "He said. 'If I don't use my talents to full potential, it's like buying a Rolls Royce and parking it in the Brooks said he promised himself that his senior year would be different. The Silver Hawks returned four starters and Robinson was counting on him to lead the way. The soft-spoken senior had a good running mate and friend at guard in Scott Anderton.

Rouse Sparks Tribe Past Lake Brantley

Herald Sports Editor

James Rouse said playing his last game at home was incentive enough Friday night. The fact that it was Parents Night and Seminole was down by seven points at halftime just made the challenge a little more inviting.

Rouse, playing his best all-around game of his career, tossed in 22 points, collected a career-high 13 rebounds, snared five steals and handed out four assists to rally the Tribe past Lake Brantley, 66-60, at Seminole's Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium before 714 fans.

That's the hardest I've seen James Rouse play since ninth grade," said Seminole assistant coach John McNamara.

"Rouse and (Lake Brantley's Wade) Wittig really had a good shootout," said Lake Brantley coach Bob Peterson. "We played a patient controlled game in the first half but their quickness got to us in the second half."

Lake Brantley did everything to perfection in the first 16 minutes. The Patriots, who finished the regular season 5-21, used strong inside play by Greg Courtney and "Reckless Rex" Black along with the outside bombing of Wittig to take a 17-14 first-quarter lead.

In the second quarter, Lake Brantley again took the percentage shot, outscoring Seminole, 15-11. to take a 32-25 lead into halftime. "We had to play awful hard the second half the way they shot," said Seminole coach Chris Marlette. "James has been doing that the past few games. He did it again tonight."

The Seminole senior had some help from his younger teammates when the Tribe was finally able to rest control of the game in the second half. The Seminoles trailed, 42-38, with just 1:27 left in the third period when they went into their war

A harrassing press forced several turnovers and Rouse stuck a rebound back in and was fouled with 48 seconds left. His free throw pulled the Tribe within 42-41. Black countered for the Pats with a nice power move on the baseline but sophomore Rod Henderson snaked through two defenders to move the 'Noles within one point.

Henderson then made a quick pivot on the inbounds play, stole the ball and laid it in for a 45-44 edge going into the last eight minutes. "I knew we could come back," said Rouse. "We just had to tighten up defensively. I really concentrated on defense in the second half and the rebounds just came."

His first one came when Ken Gordon missed a dunk but Rouse dropped it in for a three-point lead. Wittig fired in a jumper to keep the Pats close but Rouse hit two free throws to nudge it

Mark Shorey then pulled Brantley to within one with a jumper but Henderson hit a free throw and 6-6 freshman Craig Walker funnelled home a missed shot, the Tribe was up, 52-48, with 4:43

Thirty seconds later, freshman Andre Whitney. who had 10 points for the night, came up with a big steal and raced in for a layup and a 54-48 lead. "That's where that quickness hurts," said Peterson. "Nine times out of 10 that pass gets through in practice.'

Whitney, who handed out 11 assists, came through again after a Lake Brantley travelling call. The 5-7 guard penetrated the lane and pulled up for a 13-footer to push the marginn to 56-48 with 3:45 to play.

The topper came next. After Courtney missed a pair of free throws. Gordon snatched the rebound quickly off the board and looked up court. He found a flying Henderson and hit him perfectly. The 6-3 sophomore's eyes lit up as he found no one in front of him. He jammed it one-handed for a 58-48 bulge to send the crowd up for grabs with 3:18 to go.

Six free throws by Henderson and senior Rod Alexander held off any belated Patriot efforts down the stretch. Behind Rouse's 22 points were Henderson with 15 and Gordon with 11

Wittig, a junior sharpshooter, had 16 for the Patriots as did the hard-working Black. Courtney finished with 12 points but only two in the second half. "Craig Walker did a good job on him in the second half." said Marlette. "This game was good for Craig, it did a lot for his confidence.

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) - Tim Raines, a day after winning the largest contract ever awarded under arbitration. Friday expressed disappointment that the Montreal Expos had not offered him a contract similar to that received by Rickey Henderson from the New york Yankees.

Raines, whose 1-year deal is worth $1.2 million, cited Henderson's five-year pact worth an estimated $9 mil-

"Just two hours before the hearing." Raines said about a meeting between club officials and his agents before Chicago Wednesday, "I was hoping we would sign a long-term contract. Things just didn't work out. They didn't come up with the numbers.

"They were comparing me with Henderson. I feel Rickey Henderson and me are in the same class so we should be paid the same. That's all there is to it. The way salaries are structured now the top players get the top money and I feel I'm one of the top players.'

The Expos maintain they are still trying to sign the 25-year-old Raines to a multi-year pact. The num-bers Raines refers to as falling short in the Expos offer concern money and length of contract.

"The Expos offered a five-year contract, but that included two options," Raines said. "Henderson has a five-year guaranteed contract with a no-trade clause. That's two years more guar-anteed than I've been offered.

Everybody likes security."

Raines insisted there are no hard feelings between himself and the Expos. Before working out Friday with a few early-bird players. Raines said "I have a good one-year deal. I'll just go out and play as though nothing ever happened."

Carbia Daily Double Hits For Spot In Finals — Brown Wins

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD - The Carbia brothers aren't twins - far from it. Three years separate freshman Enrique and senior Ivan. And they don't look that much alike. But when it comes to winning wrestling matches, they're definitely a nice daily double.

Each improved his season log to 23-4 Saturday morning in the semifinal round of the Region I wrestling tournament at Lyman High School. And both will be in the finals Saturday

Enrique, a precocious 102-pounder, avenged a district loss when he subdued Mainland's Rod Bell, 8-3. "It was really a tough match," said Lake Mary coach Frank Schwartz. "Bell took him down three times when he beat him in the district (7-6) and this time Enrique took him down three times. Every time in crucial situation Enrique took him down." Enrique jumped to a 2-1 lead after one period, then inched ahead, 4-3, in the second. He added a pair of takedowns in the third period for the win and a berth in the finals opposite Lake Brantley's Jim Martin.

"Every time Enrique needed a crucial takedown, he got it," said Schwartz.

Ivan, meanwhile, made quick work of Orange Park's James Garland. The skillful senior hit a fireman's carry early in the period to build a 5-0 lead. then titled Garland and pinned him in a scant 43 seconds.

Martin, a 102-pound Patriot, whipped Lake Howell's Todd Miller, 12-4 to capture the first Seminole County confrontation of the semifinals. Martin used a series of takedowns and reversals to carve out his win.

At 109 pounds, Lyman's oncebeaten Chad Dubin moved into the finals opposite Panama City's tenaclous Paul Everitt with a 12-3 victory over Franko Hall of Orange Park.

Everitt. who finished second in the state last year, smeared Seminole sophomore Sheralton Mays with a pin in the second period at 2:43.

In other action late Saturday morning. Seminole's Tony Bell improved his record to 27-0 with a second period pin against Mosley's John Van Pelt.

The wrestlers are vying for the top four places in the Region I which will earn them a place in the state tournament next week at Tampa Chamberlain High School.

Rams Push 8 Into Semis; Surprising Seminoles 2nd

By Sam Cook

Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Lake Mary's wrestling juggernaut looked over its shoulder as it reached the halfway point of the Region 1 wrestling tournament and found a familiar yet unfamiliar sight —

It wasn't a startled look the Rams gave the Tribe, just one of puzzlement. Down 20 points, 5914-3914, after two rounds, the Fighting Seminoles of coach Roger Beathard have no illusions of first place, but they would love second. And they are definitley infatuated with their present status after finishing third in the "Lake Mary shouldn't have any trouble winning it," said Beathard. "But there are four or five teams fighting for second."

And the Seminoles are one of them. Gainesville Buchholz is third with 38 while Orange Park is fourth with 301/2 and Lake Brantley is fifth with 30. The semifinals were Saturday morning at 10. The wrestlebacks began at 12:30 p.m. with the consolations (6 p.m.) and championships (8 p.m.)

"We're in pretty good shape," said Schwartz.
"If we get four or five in the finals, it's over. I just hope we don't bomb out. We did that before when I coached at Lake Howell."

There doesn't appear to be much chance of that. Lake Mary pushed all 11 of its wrestlers through the first round and lost just three during the second before 500 fans Friday night. Those three will have a chance to wrestleback for third and fourth places if the grappler who beat them continues to win.

Lake Mary's casualties included senior Matt Broberg (130), who dropped a tough 3-2 decision to Orange Park's Greg Lawrence, senior Mark Lindquist (159), who was nipped, 10-8, by Buchholz' Carlos Smith and 350-pound Troy

Wrestling

Jackson, who was pinned in the second period by Terrence Lundy.

The rest of the Rams were impressive winners. Freshman Enrique Carbia (102) picked up a pair of pins as did his senior brother Ivan (116). Newcomer Sean McMorrow (123) pulled out a 3-2 decision over Forrest's Ray Durrence in the first round and then stuck Columbia's Juan Smith at 3:29 in the second.

Junior Tom Olson (130) had two easy decisions, 8-1, over Wolfson's Van Monroe and, 17-2, over Mosley's Tony Walker. Senior Todd Beauchamp (142) pinned Orange Park's William Ward after receiving a bye in the first round. Junior Scott Ross (149) won via forfeit and a 1:49 pin of Ricky Hicks of Sandalwood.

Senior Walter White (171) smeared Forrest's James Brennock at 59 seconds in the first round and outpointed Mosley's Tyrone Roach, 16-6, in the second. Senior Billy Caughell (223) stuck Lonnie Crim of Orange Park at 2:31 and scored an 8-3 decision over Mosley's Michael Cun-

Seminole, meanwhile, was easily the surprise team of the meet. The Tribe received stellar efforts from the big four — Tony Brown (142), Troy Turner (159), Tracy Turner (149) and Sheralton Mays (109) — along with some unexpected points. Dwayne Hall (189), one of the strongest Seminoles, put his muscle to good use as he pinned District 1 champion Curtis Pennington of Mosley in 3:30.

"I knew I had to counter everything he did," said Hall, a senior. "He tried a sit out so I cross faced him and squeezed. He just flopped like a fish."

Lake Mary's Tom Olson, top, isn't waiting for Christmas, just a slap from the referee. The rugged Ram senior didn't get the pin but Mosley's Tony Walker did wish he was back in Panama City. Olson won, 17-2. Lake Mary had a 20-point lead over Seminole entering Saturday morning's semifinal round of the Region 5 wrestling tournament.

LA QUINTA, Calif. (UPI) - One by one the highest seeded players fell, and one by one they came up with excuses

Earlier in the week, excuses ranging from poor officiating to the ball boys not bringing enough towels or soft drinks during the match were used by seeded players.

On Friday, the highest accd of them all, Jimmy Connors, also lost. In a rout. He lasted just 62 minutes against first-year pro Greg Holmes, who scored a stunning 6-0, 6-3 triumph in the quarterfinals of a $375,000 Grand Prix tournament.

But Connors made no excuses.

"He won. I lost. It was just one of those days," he said. "He played well and I certainly could have played better, but I didn't. So it's time to go home."

Renegades, Bandits Fire 1st Salvo

TAMPA (UPI) — The first salvo of a burgeoning intrastate war will be fired Saturday night at Tampa Stadium.

The Tampa Bay Bandits open the third United States Football League season at 8 p.m. EST against the Orlando Renegades, a team that went 3-15 in 1984 as the Washington Federals. The Bandits, 14-4 last season, are 13-point favorites and Orlando's rookie coach, Lee Corso, has no quarrel with the betting line.

"If we think we can stop them completely, we're in Dreamland." says Corso, the former Louisville and Indiana University coach making his regular-season pro debut. "Their offense has a dynamite program. Any offense that can't use a Cris Collinsworth has to be good."

Just four days before their opener. the Bandits parted company with Collinsworth, an NPL All-Pro wide receiver three times in four seasons with the Cincinnati Bengals. A physical administered by Tampa Bay physicians revealed an injured ankle and Lloyd's of London would not provide the necessary insurance.

But don't fret about Steve Spurrier's options. The Bandits' coach still has John Reaves, a 4,000-yard passer, throwing to Eric Truvillion and tight end Marvin Harvey. Add in 1,000-yard rushers Gary Anderson and Greg Boone and it's easy to see why Tampa Bay has the attack necessary to challenge in the rugged Eastern

"We've got the same problem we've always had," he admits. "It's our pass defense — we just don't play it very well. Moore's Gutsy Gals Keep Record Intact

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer ALTAMONTE SPRINGS District Tournament. There's something about those two words that brings out the best in Lake Mary's Lady Rams.

In the 1981-82 season, the young Lady Rame, with only sophomores and freshmen, won the 2A district and region. In 1982-83, Lake Mary upset powerful Orlando Jones in the 3A district final. Last season, the Lady Rams upset Seminole in the semifinals of the 4A-9 tourney before bowing out to eventual state champion DeLand in the final.

This year, however, the Lady Rams were not supposed to be that strong after losing three starters to graduation and another (Andrea Fenning) to injury. But Lake Mary still had two veterans of all those district tournament wars returning for the 1984-85 campaign — senior point guard Kim Averill and coach Bill Moore.

Moore, as usual, had his team geared up for the district tournament while Averill, along with senior forward Alleen Patterson, came through with strong performances down the stretch Friday night as the Lady Rams advanced to the district finals for the fourth year in a row with a 51-48 victory over the gutay Lady Patriots of Lake Brantley in a thriller before 450 fans at Lake Brantley High.

"My kida are just not going to be denied," Moore said. "We've got a guisy bunch of kids and Lake Brantley does, too."

Averill, a four-year starter for the Lady Rams, pumped in a game-high 18 points including two free throws with 15 seconds left that provided the margin of victory. Patterson added 14 points and 12 rebounds while senior center Courtney Hall contributed 13 points and 12 bourds. Michelle Brown was high for the Lady Patriots with 16 points and four assists. Lubenow tonsed in 12 points and Waln contributed 11 and six rebounds. Twaddell had a strong game inside with eight points and eight boards. Lake Mary Improved to 22-7 overall with the win while Lake Brantley, which was without junior point guard Sherry "Ice" Asplen who injured an ankle Thursday night, finished its most successful season at 24-8 with all of its losses coming to the two teams (three each to Seminole and Lake Mary) meeting Saturday at 8 for the district

"I'm so proud of this team," Lake Brantley coach Renny Betris said. "There were several occasions where Lake Mary could have blown us out but we just kept pushing. The ball just didn't bounce our way in the Much like the last meeting between the two Seminole County rivals (43-41 Lake Mary victory this past Monday) the first quarter was played with each team working patiently for good shots. And the result was a 6-6 tie going into the second

Lake Mary tightened up its full-court press in the second quarter and Lake Brantley had trouble just getting the ball inbounds past Patterson. On a couple of occasions, Brown had to slam the ball off Patterson's legs and back out of bounds to prevent a five seconds call.

"It hurt when she (Brown) hit me." Patterson said pointing to a spot on her leg where the ball hit. "After a couple times I just stepped out of the way and we wound up getting the ball."

Lake Mary reeled off the first, six points of the second quarter, four by Patterson, for a 12-6 lead. Lake Brantley scoring and rebounding leader, senior center Kirsten Dellinger, sat out most of the second quarter with three

The Lady Rams went up by as much as 10, 19-9, before Waln and Lubenow hit successive jumpers on assists from Brown to bring Brantley back within six, 19-13, at halftime.

Lake Mary continued its relentless defensive pressure in the second half and went on an 8-2 run in the first three minutes to bull a 12-point lead, 27-15. Lake Brantley shaved five points off the lead and went into the fourth quarter down seven, 36-29.

Waln, a junior forward who was starting in place of Asplen. put the Patriots right back in the thick of things early in the fourth quarter with a three-point play that made It 36-32.

Averill awished in a jumper for a 38-32 Lake Mary lead but Twaddell came back with four straight points to make it 38-36 and Lubenow's jumper tied it at 38-38 with 4:55 left to play. Lake Brantley lost Dellinger to fouls though with 4:14 left. Dellinger was held to just one point and five rebounds.

The two teams then took turns trading the lead but it was still tied, 46-46, with 2:15 remaining.

Patterson then worked inside for an offensive rebound and was fouled on the followup. She made one of two free throws for a 48-47 lead with 1:32 left. The rebound on the second shot came out long and Karen De-Shetler grabbed it for the Rams. DeShetler fed to Fenning who drove inside but was fouled. Fenning missed both free throws though and Twaddell rebounded for the Patriots.

Brown missed a long range jumper with 1:01 left but Lake Mary couldn't control the rebound and the Patriots had the ball out of bounds under their own basket. Brown inbounded the ball to Angle May and slid inside. May gave the ball back to Brown who, with her back to the basket, somehow put the right English on the ball in order for it to go in as Lake Brantley took a 48-47 lead with 57 seconds left. Lake Mary then came down and worked the ball around before Averill took a shot with 20 seconds left. The shot was off but no one could control the rebound and it rolled around loose. Averill lunged for the loose ball as did Waln. Averill got there first though and Waln was whistled for a foul.

Lake Brantley called a timeout before sending Averill to the line but the senior sharpshooter had been in the same situation so many times before it didn't matter. Averill, a 70 percent free throw shooter, hit both shots for a 49-48 Lake Mary lead with 15 seconds left.

Lake Mary kept up its defensive pressure but Brantley got the ball in to Brown who dribbled the length of the floor and put up a shot with eight seconds left. The shot was off though and Patterson latched onto the rebound.

Brantley immediately fouled Patterson with six seconds left and she made one of two free throws for a 50-48 lead. Hall tied up Waln on the rebound then won the jump ball and Patterson was fouled with one second left. She made one of the two free throws to seal the victory, 51-48.

He felt confident that he could jump behind the wheel of his Rolls and get the Silver Hawks in gear. He was right. The Hawks drove off to their quickest start in the school's history, winning their first four games and the Lake Brantley Patriot Tip-Off Tournament.

Robinson said there's just one thing that the college acouts are heattant about when evaluating his senior standout. "Efrem's one drawback is his size. But his strength is his quickness and jumping ability. He doesn't have any trouble getting off his shot. It's only been blocked three or four times all year."

Brooks is open to recruitment but he has done some shopping around. "I really like this area." he said. "SCC would be okny and so would UCE. I've watched them a couple times and they need help at guard. Both coaches are good, I'd love to play for them.

Florida Small Businesses Snagged Fewer Federal Contracts In '83

Small businesses in Florida received $754.5 million in federal prime contracts during fiscal 1983, a study by the U.S. Small Business Administration shows.

Florida ranked seventh among all states and the District of Columbia, Douglas E. McAllister, director of SBA's office.

The federal government awarded a total of $143.3 billion in prime contracts during the year, which ended Sept. 30, 1983. Small businesses across the country received 14.7 percent of that total.

Small businesses in Florida received 13.06 percent of all prime contracts received in the state.

The SBA study. McAllister said, also showed that small firms in Florida received $23.5 million of federal prime research and development contracts, $193.9 million of construction contracts and $304.7 million of supply and equipment contracts.

Nationwide, the SBA study showed that the percentage of prime contracts going to small firms has declined in recent years - from 16.8 percent in fiscal 1979 to 14.7 percent in flacal 1983. Florida's small business prime contract share was 17.01 percent in flacal 1979.

And before his "Sand Dragon" came on the scene, Mims said plants would have to shut down while the tanks were cleaned. That presented plant operators in an almost impossible situation because sewage must go on.

"You can't tell those people (customers) 'Hey, you can't flush your commodes for three days," Mims said.

The machine, mounted on a truck, has a pipe that is lowered to the bottom of the tank where the sand is settled. A pump then sucks the sand and accompanying sewage into a separator which sifts the mixture, churning out the almost dry sand, and returning the sewage to the

It took Mims four years to develop the "Dragon." Drawing on skills he acquired as a water purification and sewage specialist in the Marines, he said he designed it after a plant operator voiced frustrations over sand build-up.

China's Black Market Burgeons As Economic Rules Are Relaxed

PEKING (UPI) - A young man in dark glasses and a fake fur hat stood against a brick wall a few yards from his curb-side banana cart - stalking his next target.

Fang Limang, 22, craned his neck and spotted a foreign woman approaching down a quiet sidewalk in Peking's sedate diplomatic quarter.

As the woman neared the cart, Fang and a toothy male companion jumped out.

"Bananas?" called one, brandishing a bunch of the mushy. Equadorian decoys.
"Change money?" saked Fang with a sly

The banana assault, unthinkable a year ago, is hard for tourists and foreign residents to avoid in Peking today, as Chinese brashly risk arrest to get their hands on foreign currency certificates needed to buy stereos. VCRs, motorcycles, refrigerators, cars, imported fashions and other scarce consumer goods. Fang (a pseudonym), who wants a color TV, is one of scores of sidewalk black marketeers who began surfacing in the capital last summer, growing more ag-gressive as their ranks burgeoned into a small army of illegal currency dealers. Strategically stationed outside all major hotels, at prime tourist spots and near foreign residence compounds, these daring dealers do a brisk business, some trading more than $350 a day - quite a handful for the average Chinese, who carns a third that amount each year. The black market is so widespread that some shops and restaurants are charging Chinese customers different prices depending upon whether they pay in local currency or foreign exchange. "I give 1.6 renminbi for one yuan foreign certificate," barked Fang, offering to exchange the local "renminbt," or "peoples" money" used by Chinese, for the notes issued only to foreigners. A few blocks away in front of the posh, Jianguo "Build-the-Nation" Hotel, a hatless, shabbily-dressed man assailed passing foreigners with a 1.8 to 1 offer.

"I use the foreign money to buy imported cigarettes," said the man, 23-year-old Ying. who sells the tobacco for a small profit.

"I've been doing this for several months." and Ying, who, like many of his fellow profiteers, turned to the blackmarket after years of "waiting for work" — the Communist Party's euphemism for unemployment.

Around the corner and down the street, a tall young man sporting a leather jacket hovered over a tangerine cart near the gate of Sun Altar Park.

"Help me out, change a little money." called 21-year-old Mao to a passing foreigner, flashing a cocky smile. Mao sells the foreign certificates to professional buyers, who routinely shuttle 1,300 miles south to Canton to buy consumer durables shipped in from the neighboring capitalist colony Hong Kong.

"Don't worry about the police, they're my buddies." Mao said.

Peking taxi companies have built up such hefty stocks of foreign certificates that factories, firms and other organizations turn to them for currency rather than to the state-run Bank of China.

Some factories have even set up their own fruit stands as fronts for obtaining the foreign exchange they need to buy imported materials and equipment.

Western diplomats and businessmen said they doubt authorities will supress the black marketeering - some of the most brazen unlawfulness they said they have encountered in China. They said officials in Peking, Canton and other major cities are tolerating the black market because it stimulates consumption and enables people to buy imported goods unavailable in state stores.

"it gets more goods into circulation, more goods that are in high demand," said the Peking representative for a top U.S. bank.

"The black market serves a useful purpose in tamping domestic demand for consumer goods," said an economist study-ing Chins. "It creates a defacto rationing system... so they don't have to deal with the fact that they can't satisfy all consumers."

Some diplomats view the black market as part of a wave of economic crime and illegal arbitrage unleashed by pragmatic leader Deng Xiaoping's loosening of rigid state controls over the economy.

"It's somewhat politically threatening to have such a blatant disregard for the law." said the banker. "But I have confidence that if they wanted to crack down they would.

that they have the ability to stifle this." Peking authorities, however, deny they have allowed the blackmarket to bloom under their noses.

"Those things are all lies," said an official from Peking's Economic Inspection Bureau. a municipal police unit. "The regulations are clear. Foreign certificates should be used by foreign residents of Peking and foreign tourists.

"If a policeman came across this sort of thing, he would certainly interfere. We remain committed to our regulations and rules," he said. But, he added, "sometimes" money trading goes on "under cover or without the presence of police."

Traveling Sales Costs May Rise 5 Percent In '85

NEW YORK (UPI) - The average costs of keeping a selesperson on the road for a five-day week will increase 5 percent this year, to $732, Sales & Marketing Management magazine reported Tuesday.
The 1985 Survey of Selling

Costs, which the magazine compiles from per diem rates reported to the magazine by restaurants, hotels and car rental companies in 86 metropolitan markets, said the 5 percent increase is nearly double the 2.2 percent growth for 1984 costs.

Prior to 1984, annual cost increases had been 10 percent or more. This year's projected gain of $37 a week is based an 8 percent jump in cost for lodging, 5 percent in restaurants and a 2.3 percent cost increases for a supplied to the cost increases increase for auto rentals.

Lawyer Releases Nazi Documents

ROCKLAND, Mass. (UPI) - Declaratified Cold War documents show U.S. intelligence agents helped Soviet Nazi Party leaders enter the United States, including one man blamed in the deaths of 250,000 civilian Jews, a former federal prosecutor says.

John Loftus, a former member of the Justice Department team that helped hunt Nazis living in the United States during the Carter Administration, released the documents he obtained under the Freedom of Information Act.

"The truth of the matter is that the entire leadership cadre of Nazi puppet governments was systematically and knowingly brought to America." Loftus said. Among the documents is a letter from Radaslau Ostrowsky offering assistance to the State Department in their intelligence war with the Soviets. Loftus identified Ostrowsky as head of what remained of the Nazi Party in Allied-controlled Germany in 1952. "It is utterly unimportant with whom we collaborated — Germans or devils. What is important is that we were never collaborators of Stalin," wrote Ostrowsky from Munich in 1952.

Loftus said Ostrowsky led a group of Soviet Nazis responsible for the killing of 250,000 civilian Jews, and an unspecified number of Allied soldiers in his World War II work with Adolf Hitler's army.

Shortly after he wrote the letter Ostrowsky came to the United States and headed a Nazi group in America, living in Michigan and New Jersey before dying in 1979, Loftus said.

Loftus said the documents prove State Department officials, some with connections to the CIA after World War II, brought members of the "Nazi Party in exile" from Allied-held Germany to America to assist intelligence work. He said their help was sought for their knowledge of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union because officials expected World War III to break out between the Sovieta and United States. His allegations are outlined in a brief he is sending to Congress describing "covert violations of congressional restrictions." A State Department spokeswoman said there would be no immediate response to Loftus' allegations.

From Ugly Duckling To Swan

Seminole County's Junior Miss Challenges Florida Beauties

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Krista Henry an 18-yearold with a flare for drama and a dream of being a movie star says she has an ugly duckiing to swan story.

And Krista has proof she's made the transition. This brown-haired, dark-eyed Sanford swan is bubbling on cloud nine as Seminole County's America's Junior her title is revenge over her classmates who "treated me so bad when I was so ugly and nobody liked me. It's like I'm going to show you. I think people grade whether they're going to like you or not on your appearance. The first time they look at you they decide if they're going to like you.

Shocked by her October win and preparing to go on to Pennacola to challenge Florida beauties next week, Krista sald

I wasn't the most gorgeous kid you've ever seen. I used to have very bad buck teeth. I had to have braces, so I had a complex. People didn't like me because I was ugly, so I didn't like myself.

"I talked my parents into getting me braces in the 9th grade and I started to improve. People started noticing me more and thinking I was pretty. But still in myself I hold that old look. To me I still look the way I did back in the 6th grade. I never thought I could have a look for a beauty contest or to be a model," Krista said.

She isn't president of her class, she gave up cheerleading to take a job and her report card usually shows more C's than A's or B's, but Krista's winning personality and her ability to talk to anyone about almost anything helped her beat out the cheerleaders, class presidents and A students who vied to be Seminole County's Junior beauty queen. But it wasn't always that way.

"When I was in middle school I was a bad kid. I got into fights all the time. I figured I had to beat everybody up to get them to like me. Then I decided, why not be nice to everybody and slowly but surely I changed," she said.

Krista, the daughter of Lonnie and Patricia Henry. has confidence in her acting skills after four years of studying drama at Seminole High School. She entered the October pageant seeking recognition and laughs in her comedy routine as Sophie the Southern Belle.

"I don't even know why I got into it. I just saw a sign and said I think I'll do that," she said. "All I wanted out of the whole thing was to win the talent contest. It was proving to myself I could do it." And she did.

I was really proud because I had learned my monologue so well and had gotten into character so good. There was no way I could mess up. At first I was doubtful. I'm going to mess up. I'm going to make a fool out of myself,' but after it was over I was really proud."

And while on stage Krista knew she was doing well when she nudged one of her most skeptical fans, her dad, to laugh along with the

when I saw my dad laughing."

With the coveted talent accolade awarded to her. Krista stood ready to push forward the girl she thought was sure to win the crown. "I never thought about winn-She was shocked to tears to hear her own name called and was quick to protest. 'I didn't want this. I don't deserve this," but it was really near.

"I kind of keep remembering it for a long time and kind of shiver, because it was really neat and I never thought I'd ever win anything like that," she said.

Despite her doubts about her beauty and winning ways Krista has utmost confidence in her ability to attain her career goal. She knows she'll be a movie star.

She's been praticing her act as "a mirror movie star" since she was eight. "I'm a movie critic. I watch movies all the time. I love TV. 1 like old movies. Gene Kelly and Judy Garland are my favorites. I would watch them and wish I could do that then I'd get in front of the mirror and do like they do.

"It had a lot to do with, I wanted the attention they get and it's an easy way to be rich and to be liked. I mean who doesn't like a movie star?" Krista said.

And Krista, one of six children, who at the urging of her parents started mowing lawns to earn money at 14 is ready to be rich. "At 16 I was pressed into getting a job and got a job. I think that's right. I had to give up cheerleading and a lot of things like that and I couldn't get into a play or sports because I couldn't go to afternoon pratice.

"But when you're growing up there are some sacrifices you have to make and I think it turned out well because I'm going to be able to make it and these girls who sit home and don't have a job and their parents pay for everything, they're going to have a hard time because they're not expecting anything. It's like they haven't gone out into the world yet and I've gotten a little piece of that. I'm just a jump ahead of them. That's good. My parents are strict on me. I appreciate that and wouldn't have it any other way. It proves they care about me," Krista sald.

She's convinced her parents that acting is her future, "It's something you don't have to make straight A's to do." Krista's grandfather is urging her to become a model, but she's decided after she completes high school this year she will study drama at Seminole Community College before heading to Califorina to follow her dream, she said.

it's won't be easy because Krista's parents encourage her to be financally independent and at this point. with expenses related to being Junior Miss taking a toll on her budget she's having a hard time making ends meet with her earnings from her part-time job at the Lake Mary Veterinary Clinic.

"It's very hard. I worry a lot. I got a $100 gift certificate for a dress, but the slip, shoes and alterations came to

Medication Can Prevent Heartworms

If you recall, you as the owner of a dog brought in for a physical, have just been told that he has heartworm disease. After the vet has gone through an explanation of the disease you at there wondering what is the best thing to do. "Can this be treated?" you ask. "He is only 5, and I'd like to do something if I could."

It is at this point that the owner may receive different answers to this question, or may already have a prejudiced outlook on the disease because of what others have said. This variation in attitude to the possibility of treatment is usually the result of two factors: one is the present state of health of the animal, the other is the opinion of

Most dogs that are infected will die from its complications shortening their lifespan dramatically. It is difficult to say how long a dog has to live after the disease is discovered. Each case is different. Many showing no outward signs at the time of diagnosis may live years longer without treatment. This does not mean that these are healthy years, and it is usually years less than they could have enjoyed.

When deciding to treat, the first thing to consider is the present health of the animal. Many owners have been told by one source or another that dogs greater than five years of age abould not be treated for heartworm disease. I disagree with using an arbitrary age as a determining factor for treatment. Unless the dog is already in heart failure the decision not to treat should be based on medical evidence that the animal is a poor risk not simply that he is middle aged.

The drug (thiacetarasmide) used to kill the adult heartworms is actually a product that was initially being investigated as a treatment for humans infected with similar parasites. It is an arsenical compound which is injected intravenously. The side affects associated with treatment include coughing, difficult breathing, depression, vomiting, and possible liver and kidney damage. Because of these potential complications it is recommended that the dog be evaluated for pre-existing problems before

Chest x-rays (radiographs) should be done if there are already signs of lung and heart involvement. Bloodwork should always be done to check for the presence of liver or kidney disease. These tests coupled with a good physical exam will give you a better idea of whether the animal can handle will give you a better idea of whether the animal can handle treatment than just looking at his age.

The animal undergoing treatment is admitted to the hospital for two days. Twice a day the drug is injected for a total of four treatments. If there are no complications the animal will go home for a minimum of six weeks of rest. Some veterinarians will put the animals on antiinflammatory drugs and antibiotics during a portion of this period.

As with most treatments this is not a 100% cure. Some worms may survive and so a few animals may require a second treatment. After treatment the dying worms may lodge in the lung and cause coughing and inflammation. To decrease this problem the owner must restrict the animal's activity and contact the vet when these

The young produced by the adults are not killed by this therapy. They are still circulating in the dog's blood stream so the dog is still a source of infection for others. To kill these larvae another compound is given 3-6 weeks after the arsenic treatment. Then the blood is checked once or twice to be sure that the young have been

As you can see this whole process is complicated, time consuming and can be expensive. The vast majority of the dogs do very well, but what is sad is that this is a preventable disease. The animal should not have to go through this and neither should the owner.

ideally every dog in Florida should be on heartworm preventative medication unless they are allergic to the drug. Some owners feel that because their dog is kept indoors he is free from being bitten by the mosquitoes. This is a weak form of logic in Florida because of the long mosquito sesson, the fact that most dogs do go outdoors, and that mosquitoes often get into our

The best way to approach the use of a preventative in Florida is to start the dog on the medication at 6 weeks of age. Give it every day and do not stop during the short unpredictable winter period. If you have a dog that you acquired as an adult have it checked and then get it on the medication as soon as possible.

There are a number of preventative products available at different price ranges so if your finances are tight ask your vet for a comparison of the cost per day to treat your animal.

Sanford Sergeant Cited For Squadron Honors In Europe

Good news has come from Bitburg, West Germany, about the good work of a local hometown man, Master Sgt. Scott Bookman, who is considered the finest first sergeant, according to Lt. Col. Michael Zettler, squadron commander.

Sgt. Bookman makes himself available to all 860 people in the squadron at all hours of the day and night. He is a marvelous listener, yet a realist, Zettler says, adding that his advice is sound. He relates to people, their altuations, and solves problems, the colonel said. Through Sgt. Bookman's accomplishments, the squadron was named the Best AGS in the United States Air Force in Europe for 1984. Sgt. Bookman was instrumental in establishing a second classroom for the Professional Military Education courses on Bitburg, and also for simplifying the squadron below the zone program, to name a few projects.

Scott, a native of Sanford and a graduate of Seminole County schools, has completed the Senior Noncommissioned Officer academy in residence in 1984. Sgt. Bookman currently has 89 hours toward a degree in business management. In spare time he is an assistant Scoutmaster with Bitburg Boy Scout Troop, and a member of the Elfel Toastmasters group. He is active in the base chapel activities, the monthly dorm dwellers dinners.

Sgt. Bookman and his wife Tech. Sgt. Maxine Bookman of the 36th Transportational Squadron have a 12-year-old son. Sgt. Bookman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Bookman, 1206 Golden Gate Circle.

The East-West Kiwanis Club of Sanford's recent was honored to have Dr. Sara Irrgang as the guest speaker at a recent meeting. Dr. Irrgang spoke Diabetes in Adults and Youth, . Her message was quite informative to those present.

Thanks to Dr. Irrgang and to Kiwanian Benny Alexander for this special program,

"I look ahead to the future all the time. The past is gone. You have to plan ahead. I worry all the time.

"Things make me think and I'm glad because somebody's got to think. I'd rather have it all planned out than to bump into it for." and not know what to do," she said.

And one thing Krista plans to do when she's a famous, rich movie star, is to give half her cash to CARE.

I put myself in their place. It makes me mad that they're not like us. If I marry somebody rich, half his money is going to go to CARE too," she said.

But Krista is planning on marriage to a rich man only in the unlikely event her career plans fall through. "At times I say I'll get married but then I watch a show on TV and I'll, say 'nah.' I can't give that up. I want that. I watch those girls with Rob Lowe. I want that. I just quickly change my mind.

"I want to be my own person. I want to build my own house and have my own money. I don't want to rely on someone cise."

Although she wants the secu-rity of wealth Krista said, "You don't have to have a big estate and any kind of car you can think of to be happy. I don't have to have everything in the world, because if you do you're never going to be happy, because pretty soon you're going to run out of things to want and you're not going to be happy with yourself, because you've never done anything but buy, buy, buy, You've never done anything but buy, buy, buy, You've never done anything with your money but please yourself."

Krista's second love is animale. For now she's content with her two cats, but one day he'li have her own personal zoo, she said.

Noisy Stomach Story Has A Familiar Refrain

DEAR ABBY: I do believe you've been had.

Sandi Russell: Crafts Award of Merit.

Your column in the San Francisco Chronicle ran a letter from a man who signed himself 'Noisemaker." Seems he had a noisy stomach problem every time he kissed his girlfriend.

When I read the column, as I always do, that particular letter seemed very familiar to me. I had heard it before. Let me quote to you the third stanza of the song "Dear Abby," by John

"Dear Abby, Dear Abby ... "You won't believe this

"But my stomach makes noises Whenever I kiss.

"My girlfrend tella me "It's all in my head "But my stomach tells me "To write you instead. "Signed Noisemaker." I thought for sure that you would have heard the song as. after all, it is about you. However, your reply to "Noisemaker" was a serious one. Were you really had. Abby, or is the joke on us? Sign me ...

DEAR FAN: I was had. And if there's a joke here, it's on me. I heard the song "Dear Abby" when it first came out about 12 exotic dancer. Ask Salome to years ago, but I was not familiar with the lyrics.

Thank you, and the hundreds of other Prine (and Abby) fans who wrote to call this to my attention. I also received about 50 casettes of that catchy song that caught me with my guard

DEAR ABBY: My best friend. "Denny," was engaged to be married three months ago, so I threw a stag party for him that turned out to be a big mistake.

1 hired "Salome," an exotic dancer, to entertain at this party the night before the wedding. and Denny ended up in bed with her. To make a long story short. Denny's flancee heard about it and called off the wedding.

Now Denny is making plans to marry Salome. My question: Should I give Denny another stag party?

DEAR LESTER: I vote no. but if you do, don't hire another dance - and retain the seventh veil for her wedding.

DEAR ABBY: It takes a liberal rabbi and broad-minded priest to perform a mixed marriage without going through a lot of red tape. Those in the New York area should investigate the Chapel of the United Nations. It's a beautiful setting!

Elsewhere, inquire at the nearest college or university. A rabbi and a priest can be found to perform the ceremony at a non-denominational chapel where the dignity and spirituality of both religions are combined. You don't have to be a young college kid to be married in a chapel on a college campus. Anyone of legal age and up - can get married there.

The girders go higher and higher. It seems as if eventually they will snap and break like sticks. The workmen seem small and vulnerable from a distance. Passersby marvel at their ability to work at such heights. "Too much for me," a man mutters, and a woman says, "I'd get dizzy and fall."

Still, the girders go higher and the work goes on until one day the building is finished. It stands tall, shiningly new, waiting for the history that will be written between its walls. Then people will forget about the steel girders beneath its surface, forget its hidden strength. But this is no structure that will collapse in the wind.

In all of us there are reservoirs of unsuspected hidden strength. Do you really know yourself and your own potential?

Just as the steel in a building needs tempering, so we need to fortify our inner strength. In our churches we learn to know what we are and what we can be. Worship every week—you will be the stronger for it.

Subculture Sapping Churches

By David E. Anderson UPI Religion Writer

Recent statistics from the National Council of Churches show mainline Protestant denominations continue to show membership declines and one parish development expert thinks he knows why.

A new religious subculture is developing in the United States, according to Lyle Schaller. parish consultant, writer on church growth and staff member of the Yokefellow Institute, Richmond, Ind., with characteristics that sharply differentiate its churches from traditional denominations.

Writing in a recent edition of "The Lutheran." the official publication of the Lutheran Church in America, he pinpointed four characteristics of what he calls an emerging subculture that separates it from other religious bodies:

-In the new subculture. "one's personal experiences, rather than the promises of God. constitute the central validation of one's faith."

-The centrality of word and sacrament, characteristic of traditional denominations, has been supplemented by word and music.

-A theology of glory over-shadows the theology of the

-A far greater emphasis is placed on the immanence of God rather than the transcendence of Schaller also found that most of the congregations in the emerging religious subculture maintain very loose or no denominational affiliations and even when afiliated often use names that do not reflect denominational membership.

"Frequently," he said, "such churches are built around the attractiveness of a magnetic preacher who possesses a strong personality. Long pastorates are the rule. Members often declare their basic loyalty is to the pastor, rather than to the parish or denomination.'

Those attracted to churches within the subculture, Schaller argued, see their membership in the churches "as a way station for the individual on a religious pilgrimage, not as a destina-

"One result is these congregations often embrace persons from the entire ecumenical spectrum," he said. "Former Catholics, Lutherans, Methodists. Baptists and Presbyterians are present in substantial num-Another result is a high turnover, and he cited one study that referred to such turnover as "the

Seven Deadly Virtues Of Devil Worship

Why would anyone want to worship the devil?

A neurosurgeon in Illinois suspected of poisoning several paramedics at the hospital where they worked is said to have engaged in devil worship. A fellow neurosurgeon, who knows the doctor being investigated said. "He had some weird hobbies, but you have to be weird to go into neurosurgery in the first place."

Devil worship may indeed be weird, but some forms are weirder than others. There are satanic cults that perform ritual murders, rob graves, unearth caskets and even human skulls, and dance around tombstones at

But the misfits, like Charles Manson and his followers, constitute a minority of satanists, although they have received most of the publicity. The high priest of satanists in this country. Anto LaVey, complains that people like Manson have given satanism a bad name.

LaVey, who played the devil in the movie, "Rosemary's Baby," is regarded as the founder and leader of the modern satanic movement. He established the Church of Satan in San Francisco in 1965.

To the average Christian,

Satan is identified with evil. which makes it obvious to ask, "Why would anyone want to worship the devil?"

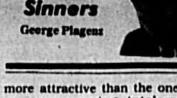

But in the minds of satanists like LaVey, Satan is identified with "what Christianity calls evil" - that is self-indulgence. LaVey considers the seven deadly sins (greed, pride, envy. to be virtues.

He maintains that the Christian Church instituted the seven deadly sins to ensure that it would have control over people. It compounded a list of sins, he says, to which everybody falls subject, and then made everybody dependent on the church for absolution of those

One writer on the subject explains the appeal of satanism in this way:

People were told that Satan was evil because he dared to oppose God. But at a deeper level of consciousness, the devil reminded them of somebody they knew very well -themselves. He was selfindulgent and so were they. He had great pride and so did they." He rebelled against tyrannical authority as they had often wished to do.

"He painted a picture much anger, gluttony, lust and sloth) more attractive than the one of an overpowering intolerant, faultless God whom nobody could ever hope to approach."

Satan, says Arthur Lyons in his book on satanism in America, has all the aspects of a Dear Abby of the underworld to whom people turn when they need to identify with a powerful friend.

Many satanists, like LaVey, don't even believe in the devil. Satan stands principally as a symbol of material and carnal pleasures.

But there is more to it than that. LaVey believes there is a magical quality about some of the ceremonies used in the estanic rituals. Magic he defines as "a change in situations or events in accordance with one's

Schmaltz, Bunny Suffering Highlight Coming TV Fare

UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) - CBS offered the gritty "Atlanta Child Murders" for its February miniseries, ABC opted for glitzy 'Hollywood Wives," and now NBC comes along with its schmaltzy "Evergreen." Schmaltz, according to Webster's New World Dictionary, came into the American to "highly sentimental" litera-ture, music, etc.

That's "Evergreen," a three-part six-hour miniseries version of Belva Plain's bestseller, to air Sunday, Monday and Tuesday

9-11 p.m. It's about a beautiful Jewish girl who comes to turn-of-thecentury New York, starts out in the slums of the Lower East Side and winds up mistress of a Westchester mansion overlooking Long Island Sound.

Lovely redhaired Anna, played by Lesley Ann Warren with a singular version of a Polish Jewish accent, takes her first step up the ladder of success when she hires on as maid in the home of a wealthy Jewish fami-ly. Predictably she is seduced by the rich son, Paul, played by Ian McShane. Predictably he marries the daughter of family friends, although it is Anna he loves. Anna, predictably brokenhearted, marries her suitor, Joseph (Armand Assante), American-born and ambitious for wealth. Joseph goes into real estate — with Brian Dennehy as his predictably Irish partner - and success follows success. Mean-time he and Anna have two children — but her heart belongs demeaning, unglamorous and to her first love. By the end of underpaid life of a Bunny. The Part 1, Paul has asked her to same fascination with Bunleave Joseph — but her connyhood remains the high point Kristie Alley has traded ir .er pointy Vulcan ears from Star Trek II" for Playboy Bunny ears in "A Bunny's Tale," to air on ABC Monday 9-11 p.m.

The Bunny is Gloria Steinem of women's lib fame. Back in 1963 she was a struggling freelance writer who posed as a Bunny at New York's Playboy their costumes are so tight they leave painful marks, and all the girls stuff the tops with anything from cotton fluff to gym socks. Watching these Bunnies hob-ble around in their three inch heels, trying to keep the customappeal. It also is enough to send a girl scurrying back to her typing class or steno pool.

The show drags toward the end, when the audience is presented with sorrow and sisterhood in the Bunny hutch. Just because a girl wears rabbit ears, three inch heels and a corselet doesn't mean she can't

Ulcer Patients Spell Relief: CFRH N-e-w D-r-u-g Test

Herald Staff Writer

Testing of a new medication that might prevent the recurrence of stomach ulcers, the scourge of 5 percent to 10 percent of the nation's population, is underway at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

And one of the patients involved in the study for the past nine months says the new medicine is a "godsend."

"The medication stopped the cramps and pain and now I don't worry about my ulcer anymore." said Thomas Testagrose of Sanford, "and I am sure I'm easier to live with. With the pain, my attitude was not so good. With the new medicine I have made amazing progress."

Testagrose, married and the father of two children, after seeing an advertisement - Testagrose, 36, of 2847 Grove Drive, was seeking volunteers for the study, called the hospital last May and offered himself as a guinea pig.

He is not the only one of the seven volunteers in the program who is reporting glowing results, said Carol Potami, R.N., coordinator of the Central Florida Regional Hospital study. She said the others are saying much the same thing.

The experimental program at the Sanford however, was only temporary. hospital is to end in December and ."Under this program sometime after that results from the nationwide experiment will be tabulated and evaluated by the pharmaceutical firm.

The names of the mystery medication and the national pharmaceutical house are being kept confidential.

usually at night, and have no pain.' Testagrove said.

The purpose of the atudy, said Dr. Maliatah, to to see if the new medication prevents recurrence of the ulcers, promotes healing and mortens the duration of treatment. Testing of the new medicine for gastric ulcers is alated to begin in the next few weeks at the hospital. Volunteers are being sought for both programs and there is no limit on the number of persons who can participate, said Mrs. Potami. Those who indicate an interest in the program are preliminarily screened by Mrs. Potami, often by telephone. Persons with liver or kidney disease are not accepted, one of the rules set down by the pharmaceutical

Those accepted submit a case history, and the hospital does a blood workup and an electro-cardiogram on each candidate. If anything in the case history, the blood workup or the electro-cardiogram proves to

Administration Knows, For The Bible Tells It So

Presidents have always at tempted to garner support for their budgets from a wide range of interest groups. But President Reagan has broken new ground in this department

The President announced last week that the Scriptures back his fiscal 1986 budget.

This impressive breakthrough in coalitionbuilding did not come by accident. It represents the painstaking work of O. Stanley Smedley. Director of the Office of Spritual Support in the White House.

I interviewed Mr. Smedley in his somewhat cramped quarters down the hall from the Oval Office. There were cardboard packing carions everywhere. I began by asking him if he were moving.

'Oh. no," he replied hurriedly. "I just keep them here to impresa people. Everyone who is anyone in the administration is in the process of changing offices; stacks of unpacked cartons are something of a status symbol,"

I asked Mr. Smedley about divine support for administration budget policies.

'We're quite taken with the concept," he said. "It all started when I ran across a passage in Jeremiah, 'And with you I shatter the farmer and his team. And with you I shatter governors and pre-

'We here at OSS are quite certain that the Lord was talking to David Stockman in that passage, ordering him to cut farm subsidies and aid to the states.

"The key to our work," he added. "is care in finding the right passages. 'Selectivity' is the watchword here at OSS,"

Mr. Smedley seemed to have hit on something. I seked him if the Bible app ported President Reagan's proposed defense buildup.
"Oh, yes," he said eagerly.
In Jeremiah, we have

"We're working now on a package of new initiatives, all supported by the Scriptures," he said. 'For example, when David Stockman spoke out against military pensions, we had already backed him up with John the Baptist's admonition to a group of soldiers, as reported in Luke." asked what that was. "Be content with your

"We're trying to limit the deductibility of home mortgage interest," he said. "We've decided it's unwise to encourage such borrowing: He that buildeth his house with other men's money is like one that gathereth himself stones for the tomb of his burial.

"We also want to crack down on tax benefits to apartment owners; we're basing the program on laniah: 'Woe unto them that join house to house...

I asked Mr. Smedley if the Bible had anything to say about a flat tax.

'Certainly. Of course. there's the whole notion of tithing. And in Exodus, we learn that 'The rich shall not give more, and the poor shall not give less than half a shekel.' And in Psalms, we are assured that 'The Lord preserveth the simple."

I wondered if Mr. Smedley had come up with anything on the Balanced Budget Amendment.

'We've got a whole drawer replied. "The most pertinent seems to be from Deuteronomy. 'Thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrown's That takes care of the foreign debt issue as well."

Town Remembers, Tries To Forget, Clarence E. Gideon

By Janice Kalmar HANNIBAL, Mo. (UPI) — A hero is supposed to live a life of truth, honor and decency. Clarence Earl Gideon didn't, but he's still a hero of sorts. He was a no-account punk. A nickel-and-dime thief. A uscless human being.

But he was also the man who in 1983 benefied a note from his prison cell to the U.S. Supreme Court asking why he had to go to prison just hecause he couldn't afford a lawyer to defend him

The Supreme Court answered Gideon with a

Leffler Speaks Out For Children

Children often get the short end of the stick. and there generally isn't much they can do

If they happen to have the misfortune of being born to parents who don't care a whole lot about them, they can have a most disruptive childhood, leaving them confused and unable to cope in adulthood.

If they have parents who drink heavily and constantly battle in their presence during their formative years, the experience can be traumatic enough to leave them emotionally scarred for life.

If their parents are drug abusers and often leave them to fend for themselves, or their parents abuse, neglect and otherwise mistreat them, that can leave them all fouled up for life, too.

If they have the ultimate in uncaring parents, they're abandaoned at an early age. And there isn't much they can do about that, either.

For those unfortunate children of abuse and neglect, the community's answer sometimes is nothing more than placing them in an institution with delinquents. Not with just the troublesome kind who have problems in school, or get a kick out of running away, but with the tough, street-wise kids who learn at an all-to-early age to steal, cheat, use drugs, commit rape and so on.

Sometimes, though, there's a caring human who feels so strongly about the injustices at times perpetrated upon youngaters, through no fault of their own, he speaks out. Whether he's heard, is another matter. Whether he's believed enough to urge others in the community to act to correct those injustices is also another matter.

In Seminole County there is such a caring human. He's Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler. Leffler spoke out the other day on just that topic. And Leffler is no bleeding-heart liberal who makes his observations based on distorted beliefs lacking facts or on "gut feelings." He's spent many a year as a judge overseeing cases involving juveniles.

Judge Leffler spoke out before the Seminole County Legislative Delegation.
"It makes my soul hurt when I have to lock up these kids in the juvenile detention center with criminals. Judge Leffler was making a pitch for a facility other than the one used for young "criminals" so youngsters who are neglected. abused and emotionally disturbed, but not yet criminals, can be housed and helped. Did he approach the county commission with the prospect? the legislators wanted to know. No he hadn't, the judge said, pointing out he knows commissioners consider the matter a state problem.

The care of a community's young people is not a state problem. It's a societal problem. certainly, but should be dealt with at its core - the local community level.

Why? Judge Leffler put it eloquently, if not boldly, "Children are our most valuable resource and are the most neglected element of our society. While "stray dogs and cate ... are provided for, there is no secure shelter for children."

If the judge ever decides he should approach the county commission to speak out for the needs of neglected children, commis-, sioners should listen carefully.

How Much Is That Postcard At The Window?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The price of first class postal stamps having gone up a couple of pennies, one wonders how much it now would cost the Pentagon to mail a defense contract.

We are all familiar with the horror stories about contracts for $436 hammers, $7,900 coffee-makers and $640 tollet seat covers. But nothing has prepared us for conjecture as to price of postage the Defense Department might shell out on one of those suckers.

Speculation along that line came to mind as I was reading about the practice of prorating overhead expenses on military contracts so there is a single fee, whether the item be cheap

Thus, the markup is the same for a $25,000 part as it would be for one coating only a nickel.

That system also might recommend itself to That system also might recommend itself to the Postal Service. Post offices have overhead estified that a 50-stamp sheet, under the new first class rates, would cost OPP $1,100.

"Advised by Cavil that the stamps could be bought at any post office window for 22 cents apiece, Lickstapps looked perplexed and promised an in-house investigation. the Postal Service. Post offices have overhead expenses, too, you know. They have to buy light bulbs, etc., just like defense plants. So why not recover the costs the same way? I can see it all its a Christmas tree in his office. Only instead of being decorated with the usual trinkets and baubles, the tree has no ornaments except postage stamps.

Templehair explains to reporters that he got the idea from hearings on Pentagon postal expenses. He cites the following news story:
"The Senate defense postal appropriations subcommittee disclosed today that the Pentagon has been paying $22 each for stamps.

"Sen. Twiddlemore Cavil, the subcommittee chairman, held aloft a book of 20 stamps all marked with the letter 'D' and saked the witness, Gen. Custer Hornbigg Lickflappe, head of the Defense Department's Office of Postal Procurement, how much that Item would cost the Pentagon.

"Lickflappe replied that his office purchased stamps by the sheet rather than the book. He

"I'll have to get back to you on this, Mr.

Chairman," the general said." Fortunately, at about this time, a university professor brings out a book explaining how the military procurement system works.

It has been established, the professor writes, that the pre-item overhead on stamps obtained by the Office of Postal Procurement is $21.78. This includes postage for both small and large contracts, even those sent "book rate."

Added to the cost of mailing a contract running to several thousand pages, the overhead fee might appear insignificant. But when tacked onto the cost of a little contract, the postage seems extraordinarily high.

In line with standard Pentagon policy, OPP, when computing the price of stamps, did not take into account the relative costs of mailing packages and postcards.

These costs are real costs," the book says, dismissing 822 stamps as an "accounting quirk."

Or maybe OPP should switch to another

Toying With Truth

It was one of television's most dramatic moments - Wayne Williams, convincingly portrayed by actor Calvin Levels, marched halfway up the wide walk to Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson's palatial home and insisted the mayor come Dramatic, yes. But it never happened.

That scene and many, many others, were part of the reason the CBS docudrama "The Atlanta Child Murders" aroused so much resentment in a city that has always proudly boasted that it was "too busy to hate."

But the film's writer, Abby Mann, and the CBS brase that approved Mann's highly dramatized version of events in Atlanta between 1979 and 1961, have real reason to fear that many Atlantans might not be so charitable toward them.

Mann's account of the child murders clearly suggested that Atlanta's police force was incompetent, and that Atlanta officials from Mayor Jackson on down -were more interested in protecting the city's image than in protecting the city's children.

Through selective use of quotes from the trial transcripts, and through made-up words spoken by imaginary characters, Mann created the illusion that great doubt still exists concerning Williams' guilt.

But there were important facts left

Not mentioned in the television film, for example, were the bloods-tains found in Williams' station wagon that matched the blood type of two of the victims.

The viewer did not see or hear the 14 eyewitnesses who placed Williams with one or more of the murder victims before their bodies were discovered.

The state's principal evidence — 700 different fibers used to connect Williams to 12 of the victims - was reduced to one example in the film.

Mann also changed witnesses words; ignored contradictions in Williams' alibi for the night his car was stopped by police on the Chattahoochee River bridge: manufactured a meeting between the trial judge, defense attorney and prosecutor, in which all three gave the impression they expected Williams to be acquitted; overemphasised the role played by private detective Chet Detlinger; and put words spoken by one witness into the mouth of another.

This tampering with reality is excused, we presume, by calling the film a "docudrama" - part documentary, part fiction.

House Works Liquor Bill

By William Cotterell
TALLAHABBEE, (UPI) — Coffege students who think they've won the great drinking age debate of 1985 might want to toust their victory quickly, before the legal age for bellying up to the bar goes up by two more years.

When the Senate Commerce Committee shelved its version of the bill early this month with a bit of huffing about federal arm-twisting. liquor lobbyists and the college crowd gleefully proclaimed they had struck a blow against prohibition.

Several Capitol observers, including proponents of the bill rais-ing the drinking age from 19 to 21, were surprised that it had not zipped through the committee. Opponents, including some collegiate student body presidents and "Citisens Against Prohibition," a non-profit corporation formed by a drunken driving defense lawyer and two liquor lobbyists, praised the committee for bucking a 1984 congressional mandate that would withhold a portion of federal highway funds from states not making 21 the legal drinking age by late next year.

In their exuberance at holding back the bill by Sen. Don Childers. D-West Paim Beach, opponents may have underestimated a House companion that looms large in the Regulated Industries Committee.

The bill by Orlando Democrat Fran Carlton has picked up 82 sponsors — 21 more votes than it needs for passage on the House floor - and the list includes eight of the 20 members of the committee considering it. Thus, if the bill gets just three votes among the committee's dozen non-componeurs, it would be sent to the floor — and then to the Senate.

Some of the most influential members of the House, including Regulated Industries Committee Chairman Carl Carpenter of Plant City, are among the cosponsors. Others include Rules chief Herb Morgan of Tallahassee, Finance and Taxation Chairman Carl Ogden of Jacksonville, Education Chairman Tom Hazouri of Jacksonville, Health and Rehabilitative Services Chairman Ron Johnson of Panama City, and House Transportation Committee chief Steve Pajcic of Jacksonville, a Democratic candidate for governor.

Paicic and Morgan are statewide candidates — for governor and insurance com- missioner, respectively - indicating a vote to raise the drinking age is not much of a political handicap in next year's sweepstakes.

The bill is also getting some important lobbying support, such as the endorsement of the Retail Grocers Association of Florida - an organization with money to lose if it The Senate bill was hung up in committee when Sens. Dempoey Barron, D-Panama City, and Jim Scott, R-Fort Lauderdale, rebelled against portions of the 1984 Na-tional Highways Act that will withhold 5 percent of a state's federal highway money next year — and 10 percent in 1967 — if the state does not raise its drinking age to 21 by Oct. 1, 1986. In Florida. that would be about $68 million.

Shopping Habits Changing

Most working women are spending less time browsing through the dress racks - and enjoying it less.

That's been a hunch of mine for several years now, and some recent surveys, including one of my own.

At a recent regional convention of Women in Communications, Inc., I passed out a questionnaire asking women to rank their enjoyment of wardrobe shopping on a scale of one

Less than a quarter (23 percent) gave shopping a 10; the majority ranked it between one and five.

The women didn't hesitate to write why shopping was usually a pain: "Don't enjoy the time it takes to find what I like"; "Before I worked, it was a treat - now, it's a necessary burden"; "I would rather do other things"; "It's always frustrating and time-consuming." They complained mostly of the time involved, but also mentioned ficulty finding a good fit ("I feel too fat") or a style suitable to their

Most women said they try to shop quickly, targeting specific needs. They also look for sales. A few comments: "Can't stop being thrifty"; "Always check the sale rack first"; "Sales make me feel better about the final bill."

Some women, including a newspuper reporter and a psychotherapist, estimated they buy 75 percent to 90 percent of their clothes on sale. That's considerably higher than findings in a study by Celanese, the fiber company. Celanese's results indicated that 38 percent of the working woman's wardrobe is bought at reduced prices.

The attraction of sales was also borne out in a J.C. Penney survey of 120 married couples. The majority of those interviewed said they tried to buy only merchandise on sale, partly because they felt the sale price represented the actual value of

Also evident in the J.C. Penney findings was that working women felt "herassed by time," a major factor affecting their shopping habits.

A number of women I questioned said they shopped for clothes as seldom as three or six times a year.

That reminded me that during an eight-year period I worked on a newspaper not close enough to stores to pick things up on bunch hour. So, twice a year, I set eside a Saturday for shopping. I overdoed on clothes and shoes, buying almost everything that fit, so I would be suited up for the next six months.

Having failed to cultivate contacts in the ranks of Ayatollah Kho-meini's lalamic revolution, U.S. intelligence has been flying blind in Iran for the past six years.

Melanomas Can Be Seen

Q. More people I care about are getting cancer or have died of cancer. It frightens me. I learned a friend was disgussed as having melsnome. Tell me more about this kind of cancer.

A: Malignant melanoma is a cancer that arises from moles or tanning cells (melanocytes). Unfortunately the rate of melanoma is rising faster than almost any cancer in the United States — it doubles every 12 years. One in every 250 people may develop it in his or her lifetime.

Unlike internal cancers, melanoma can be easily seen. It is very important to learn of melanoma's early warning signals because, if found early, before it spreads, it is usually curable.

Melanoma's spreading has been described as the disease sending down "ruots" into deeper layers of skin. where these microscopic extensions may enter blood vessels or lymph channels and spread to other areas of the body.

Possible early warning signs of melanoma include: discoloration of skin (especially development of pink, red. gray-white or bluish-black colors); enlargements, particularly audden growth in a mole; and pigment leakage or when the color from a mole spreads into the surrounding skin.

You should be alert to changes in your skin's surface such as "bumpy" or ulcerated marks. Look for unusual marks or growths on your skin's surface.

The cure rate for melanoma is very high when it is treated early. Most unusual marks or growths may be nothing to worry about, but you should always have a doctor look at them. He can generally determine whether the mole or discoloration is benign, precancerous or malignant just by looking at it carefully. For confirmation, he may remove a portion for microscopic examination.

For more information, write to the American Academy of Dermatology, 820 Davis St., Evanston, IL 60201, or to the Bubcommittee on Health and Long-Term Care, 715 HOB Annex 1.

Washington D.C. 20515.

Q: I am 72 years old. For the last year I haven't been able to get a decent night's sleep. I wake up early in the morning and cometimes in the middle of the night. I take naps because I get drewey during the day. Is this normal for my age?

A: We are learning that many elderly people have sleep problems. Their most common concerns are that they have difficulty failing asleep and awaken often in the night. Another problem is that many elderly people may have breathing problems during sleep which may cause problems like daytime sleepiness.

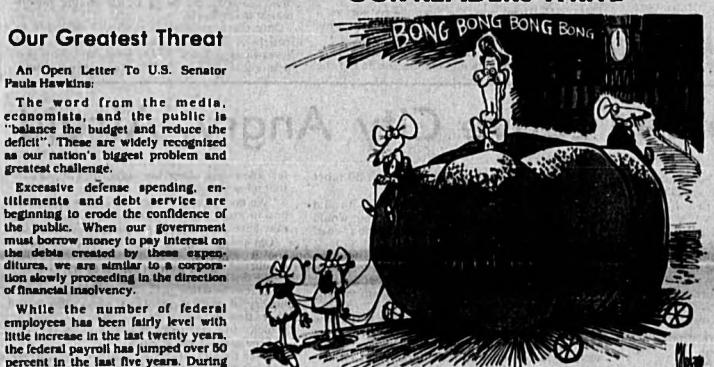

There is no evidence that elderly people require less sleep. If you feel tired during the day and wake at times that are not normal, you may have a sleep disorder, and sleep disorders can seriously affect the quality your life. Severe enoring, for example, which is a type of eleep disorder, can seriously affect the quality of life for both the snorer and everyone in the household. Sleep disorders should not be taken lightly. Often they are symptoms of other, more aerious conditions.

If you have more than occasional problems falling asleep or other pro-blems with your sleep, you may wish to contact a sleep disorders center. These centers opecialise in the treatment of sleep problems. For more information write to ABDC, P.O. Box 2604 Del Mar. CA 92014-5604.

adequate representation, a notion that 20 years earlier the high court had rejected.

On March 18, 1963, however, Gideon got his response. The court overturned his sentence, ruling the poor were entitled to legal counsel. Two years later, lawyer Abe Fortas at his side. Gideon was retried for the pool hall break in and was acquitted.

Lawyers say Gideon's case was directly re-sponsible for the public defender system in America's courts today. His legal struggle was the subject of a best-selling book. "Gideon's Trumpet," by New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis.

But when Gideon died in Florida in 1972, after more jail terms for more crimes, his body was quietly returned to Hannibal. Only a small obit appeared in the paper and he was buried in an

The folks in Hannibal promptly forgot him only to have the memory restored by the American Civil Liberties Union, which gathered to dedicate a marker on his grave.

"I never could view what he did as such a great, wonderful thing," says Gideon's half-sister Frances Ogden today. "He was just a petty thief, as far as I'm concerned."

Walter Stillwell, 82, who served as Marion County prosecutor from 1932 to 1942, said, "I don't think he's a hero."

Stillwell doubts that Gideon even had the mental ability to draft the letter to the Supreme

"I believe the whole thing was prepared by what we term a jailhouse lawyer and Gideon in turn copied it in his own handwriting." Stillwell said. "And I certainly don't think it's any basis for praising Gideon. I think he was the instrument in which a principle of law was established.

"Locally I think he'll just be remembered as a wayward young man who never found his place

James Alexander, 77, has different memories - memories of Gideon pointing a shotgun in his face in 1928. Alexander was working at a confectionary and he and his boss just handed over the day's profits. Gideon was arrested the next day.

"He was a punk at everything he tried to do." said Alexander, who keeps a copy of "Gideon's Trumpet" on his coffee table. "The one thing the guy ever did that was worthwhile was writing (to the Supreme Court) and establishing this law.

But lawyer Rory Ellinger has a kinder view.

"I think he's a symbol of the little man who can make a big difference," Ellinger said. "I guess personally he wasn't a very noteworthy person. but I think his case demonstrates that in America even the most disliked person and the least important can have an effect."

Ellinger acknowledges that Gideon may have been "the right man in the right place" because the court apparently was looking for such a case to rule on. "The local older attorneys don't speak highly of him." Ellinger said. "But I think the younger attorneys perceive the importance of the man and what he's done for the legal system."

Asked if Gideon would ever be a hero in Hannibal, Ellinger responded, "I think so. But it takes some time ... People have to forgive him and all the people associated with him have to die off. And then he can take his rightful place."

Slayings Of Young Women Leave City Angry, Afraid

UPI Feature Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) - Cathy Davis, 23,

was the first lost and last found. She was the first of six young women to disappear mysteriously. But her body wasn't found until a few weeks after Christmas in a field

Now police are wondering whether her killer may figure in the rapes and disappearances of 11 other women, and a special task force is searching decades-old records for links between the current string and 30 other deaths.

'Nobody's comfortable when there's a nut out there somewhere," said Mayor Bob Bolen. "There's a feeling of great uncasiness."

To date police aren't sure if they are looking for one person, who rapes and then kills some victims; two unrelated persons, one a killer and the other a rapist; or even several killers - there is some evidence of "copycat" murders.

Women at normally tranquil Texas Christian University, the area where several killings and disappearances have occurred, are arming themselves with mini tear gas bombs, stun guns and knives.

"It makes me mad that we can't just live our lives without fear," says Cindy Bruss, a junior who attended a college-sponsored class in self police alert banners that can be attached to the unsolved slayings going back to 1967. rear windows of autos and unfurled in emergen-

"But now we know what happened to her," Mrs. Davis said. "The Lord will give us peace."

The Fort Worth deaths gained national notoriety Jan. 5 when the body of Cindy Heller, 23, was found in a shallow lake near TCU's fraternity row. Nearby the same day police found Ginger Hayden, 18, stabbed 50 times in her

What police know about the killings is that the bodies of all but one victim were found in southwest Fort Worth, most within walking distance of TCU. The vehicles of several victims were burned.

What officers know about the rapes is that the assailant may be bisexual, wore a T-shirt over his face, a baseball cap and took pictures of his victims, according to those who survived the

The painstaking process of checking tips may take months, perhaps years, excepting a major breakthrough, Hogue said.

"We must carefully prioritize each (tip) and check them off one at a time. Obviously some will not pan out."

The case has taken some bisarre twists. At one point, police believed a Satanic cult was involved. An abandoned apartment near where one victim disappeared was covered in graffiti that included devil symbols. The victim's name was inscribed nearby. Authorities later said it was just a

"We don't know if they knew him (their killer) or if he knew them," said Lt. Ray Armand. "They may have known each other only visually."

The police task force is modeled after one in Scattle, where an unknown "Green River killer" is believed responsible for killing 28 women.

The Intense Fort Worth Investig ialion seemed to yield results when police arrested a man with a history of mental problems whose fingerprints were thought to be on a victim's burned out vehicle. But the print match proved erroneous and the suspect was released.

Police thought they had another break when a television reporter tipped them to a free-lance photographer. The photographer fit the psychological profile: He was smart, a loner. articulate, cautious and a photographer.,

With his arrest the media had a fleid day. One station said the man had been "charged with murders and rapes," which wasn't true. Newspapers did scathing profiles of the suspect and one station interviewed the man's neighbors.

However, the suspect maintained his innocence and police could not prove guilt. He was released. When the dust settled, the Dallas Society of Professional Journalists held a special session entitled "A Conflict of Ethics?" to examine the

Dr. Mallaiah explained that a gastroscopy involves inserting a tube through the mouth down to the stomach for a visual examination by the physician. Using this method an ulcer can be detected that may not show up in x-rays in an upper gastro-intestinal series. The volunteer is sedated for the procedure.

Once in the program, new gastroscopies are done regularly on the volunteers to monitor their progress. In the beginning, Mrs. Potami says, they are monitored every two weeks, then every month during the acute care portion of the study. They come into the hospital to get their medication and are monitored via gastrocopy by one of the physicians. They may be on the program for up to a year.

Toward the end of the treatment, while they are on maintenance (taking the medication regularly), they are monitored every three months. Reports are sent to the pharmaceutical house regularly.

Ulcers and ulcer study are not new fields to Dr. Maliaiah, a specialist in stomach and intestinal disorders. He studied ulcers and ulcer treatment in New York prior to coming to the Sanford hospital 34 years ago.

Doctors working with him in this study are Dr. Harvey W. Schefsky, Dr. Frederick Weigand, Dr. Gary W. Sneil, Dr. James E. Quinn, Dr. Suhkinder Joshi and Dr. Robert A. Gay. Mrs. Potami said there is no limit to the number of persons who may participate in the program, but those included must sign a consent-for-treatment form and be willing to follow the program through.

He also gives his duodenal ulcer patients some sound advice about what not to do. First, "amoking is a no-no for persons with ulcers. The nicotine in the tobacco will double, triple or increase by 10-fold the acid secretions. And smoking delays healing." Maliatah says.

In the past, doctors put ulcer patients on bland diets and forbade the use of spices, on the presumption that spices added to the patients' pain and worsened their disease. They also recommended that the ulcers would be helped by the patient drinking milk and some even went so far as to recommend that patients drink half-and-half (helf cream and half milk). District Elections, A Woman Mayor, Black Commissioner And A Building Boom That Won't Quit...

By David Farr Seaford City Commissioner and Donna Estes

Berald Staff Writer When 1984 rolled in, Sanford employees were battling the contamination of six of 11 city wells with the cancer-causing penticide ethylene dibromide (EDB). And before the year ended, long-time City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles had announced his retirement and three new members had been elected to the city commission including a black and woman mayor, both firsts. In addition. Fire Chief W.C. "Byd" Gailey had announced his retirement and Assistant Fire Chief Thomas Hickson was tapped to take over as fire chief.

The building boom which hit the city by mid-year was continuing into 1985. The new year had barely begun when ground was broken for construction on a multi-million dollar shopping mall - Seminole Center - on a 57-acre site on the east side of U.S. Highway 17-92 near Lake

Mary Boulevard. The four largest stores in the 251,000-square-foot shopping center, owned by Horne Properties inc., are to be a Wal-Mart, J Byrons, a Publix supermarket and Eckerd Drugs. Faced with a possible water shortage the city leased two irrigation wells near the Sanford Country Club Water Plant early in the year and laid lines connecting them to the water plant.

With the irrigation wells, the one city well still functioning at the Mayfair Golf Course and four wells at the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Airport Boulevard, enough water to serve Sanford's 9,000 water cusalternative sources were sought.

The city's attempt at rehabilitating the six contaminated wells was in large part successful. The rehabilitation Julian Jr., that there was little

Meanwhile, the city quickly began construction on four new wells in the Hidden Lake Park area and got those wells functioning. And as the year ended the city had purchased an additional well field for five more new wells as they become neces-

The staff, with the encouragement and support of the city commission, also began a complete re-evaluation of the city's future land-use plan. With the anticipated growth, it is critical that Sanford avoid the development-related problems that have occurred in our neighboring cities to the south. Only by updating, reviewing, and strengthening our land-use plan. development codes and engineering requirements, can we ensure our quality of life in Sanford. Each past and present commissioner is committed to this important goal. Tremendous progress was also made in 1984 with the renovation and remodeling of our downtown area. This is a project initiated by private business and civic sector, and implemented by the city. Although the work continues, results have already been seen in customer approval and similar improvements by individual landowners. The commission feels that this downtown effort will result in renewed pride throughout our community. In April, a group of five Sanford blacks filed suit in federal district court in Orlando, claiming the city's at-large system of electing city commissioners effectively took the right tomers was provided while to hold office away from minorities.

They agreed to a plan to create four districts within the city. with the people in each district voting for their own city commissioner. The mayor was to be elected at-large.

Months before the suit was filed, 17-year veteran city commissioner and mayor, Lee P. Moore, announced he would not seek re-election.

Eight-year commission member Eddie Keith also decided to forego seeking reelection and a third commission member. Ned Yancey, decided to run for mayor rather than for a return to his commission seat.

He lost. Bettye Smith, a civic leader and an adjunct history instructor at Seminole Community College, won the election for mayor, the first woman ever elected to a Sanford government post. And with election within districts, Bob Thomas, a visiting teacher with the Seminole County public school system, became the first minority representative ever elected in the city. A second city commission office was won by banker and civic leader, John Mercer.

Earlier in the year - on May 25, 1984 - Knowles who has been employed by the city of Sanford for nearly 32 years, all but nine months as city manager, announced that he will retire on April 30.

Knowles said after retirement. he may teach city government on the university level or go into municipal management consulting.

Throughout much of the year, the city experienced a spurt of growth, mostly of single-family homes, apartments and condominiums. In the first eight months of the year, building permits had been issued for 446-single family homes, valued at $14.5 million. And permits concrete casing inside the wells, that the cost of fighting it would were issued for a 564-unit condominium project, valued at $13 and Airport Boulevard. Other developments containing five or more family units, for which building permits were issued. had a total valued of $23.3

Progress was also made during 1984 in improving the surface transportation needs by the resurfacing of some 3.5 miles of major streets. This enhanced the quality of our life through improved driving conditions, as well as safety. The new city commission has indicated a continuation of this important work through 1985, using the money generated to the city of Sanford by the county-imposed 4 cents per gallon gasoline tax.

Cardinal Industries also announced it will be constructing a $3 million regional headquarters on a seven-acre tract across the street and west of its Sanford Avenue manufacturing facility. Sanford agreed to help the industry by sponsoring $3 million in tax exempt bonds and Cardinal agreed to annex to the city.

Editor's Note: Farr is the senior member of the Sanford City Commission in terms of years of service. He is in his seventh year on the commission.

A Test well is drilled at Sanford's new well field off Oregon Avenue. Faced with a water shortage after EDB contamination was found in city wells at the Mayfair golf course, the city, in addition to rehabilitating the wells there, drilled four new wells at Hidden Lake park and purchased the new well field for future expansion.

'Year Of Crises'

Lake Mary Handles Water Feud, Arson and Political Woes

By Rick Brunson Herald Staff Writer

For Lake Mary city officials. 1984 will probably be remembered as "the time we kissed and made up with Sanford," according to City Manager Kathy Rice.

After a drawn-out water war between the two cities that lasted six months, representatives of the two municipalities closed out 1984 by burying the hatchet and proposing a cooperative water agreement, which went into effect Feb. 1.

The battle started when Sanford, which has been supplying water to Lake Mary since 1976, tried to impose a $550 impact fee on new Lake Mary residents. Sanford argued that the fees were justified since Lake Mary, a booming community, was draining its water supply. Sanford officials also charged that Lake Mary was dragging its feet in getting its own water supply. Lake Mary officials said they couldn't cough up the fees because the money was needed to build its proposed $1.4 million water plant.

The issue came to a head in Commission threatened to cut off Lake Mary's water supply. Lake Mary went to court to stop the turn-off. On July 27, Seminole County Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi issued an injunction, ordering Lake Mary not to add any more customers to the water lines and telling Sanford not to shut off the water. He also said Lake Mary did not have to pay any impact fees.

However, the ruling didn't resolve the issue. Lake Mary still kept its lawsuit against Sanford simmering and officials from both cities say attitudes were chilly. In addition, Salfi's moratorium on water customers in Lake Mary froze construction in the city since no projects could be connected to water

But a thaw came in December when newly-elected Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess proposed an agreement calling for a shelving of the lawsuit and payment of impact fees with the stipulation that the money be put in an escrow account and returned when the Lake Mary water plant is completed in December 1986.

The Sanford City Commission bought the agreement and, through a series of meetings July when the Sanford City about the pact, better relations

A study of 13 cities comparable in size showed they had an average of one city worker for every 95 residents. In Lake Mary there is one for every 153. They really care about the city and they share responsibilities,' said City Manager Kathy Rice. 'How many other cities can make that claim?"

were hammered out.

In other progress in 1984, plans for the water plant got under way. The city secured funding from the Farmers Home Administration and started accepting bids by year end. The plant is expected to be completed and operating by December 1986.

While 1984 ended on a good note, it got off to a tumultuous start.

"It's been a year of crises,"

Mrs. Rice said. Residents were threatened by the cancer-causing chemical EDB which was found in some Sanford water wells in late 1983. The chemical leaks were stopped in early 1984.

In March, arsonists started a fire a city hall which burned the front of the structure and caused $24,000 in damage. The building was later refurbished.

On the city's political scene,

Walter Sorenson, mayor of the city for 10 years, was soundly defeated by banker Dick Fess in September. The investigation of Sorenson's alleged misuse of city funds and equipment dragged on with the state Ethic Commission deciding late in the year to hold a hearing on the matter in March.

City staff changes included the departure of City Clerk Connic Major in May. She was replaced by administrative secretary Carol Edwards. Ms. Edwards' position was filled by Mid Thompson.

The city also added Stan Welling to the staff as building inspector.

Jim Orioles, the chief of the city's volunteer fire department for 5 years, resigned. He was replaced by Bob Stoddard.

The City Commission approved a 4.4 percent cost-ofliving pay increase for city staff and moved to stop a serious turnover problem at the Police Department. The commission voted to pay for police equipment out of city funds and started a merit pay plan for police department employees.

1984 was also a year of planning, Mrs. Rice said. Studies were conducted of the city's sewage, water, traffic and land use. Ordinances were changed member Paul Tremel was and others are expected to be elected over Penny Gunn to the upgraded so the city can go into the future with a charted course.

About 300 new residents called Lake Mary "home" in 1984. City officials believe the city's population will swell to 39,000 people by 2010.

Lake Mary continued its explosive growth in 1984 with more than 20 developments on the drawing board. Mrs. Rice. said 96 residential building permits were issued for $7.1 million worth of construction. Five permits were issued for

But Mrs. Rice said growth is paying for itself in Lake Mary. Added fees left developers picking up more of the tab for city services. As a consequence taxes were slashed $65,000 in 1984. she said.

Citizens got more government for their money in 1984, she added, as the number of city workers remained the same while workloads increased. City Hall was also computerized. making operations more efficient, Mrs. Rice said.

"We're trying to keep the same number of staff while doing more work," she said.

She also pointed to a study she conducted of 13 Florida cities of comparable size. Those cities have an average of 1 city worker per 95 residents. In Lake Mary. however, there is one worker for every 153 citizens.

"They really care about the $794,000 in commercial con-city and they share responsibilities," Mrs. Rice said. "How many other cities can

Her Honor The Mayor

Voters Change Sanford's 107-Year History; Send Bettye Smith To City Hall

By Rick Brunson Herald Staff Writer

It took 107 years but Sanford's political scene was changed forever in 1984 with the election of the city's first woman mayor -

Although the voters swept her into office Dec. 18 past her opponent, attorney Tom Speer. the former nurse, teacher and sheriff's deputy said there are many people in the city who are waiting to see if she will "fall on

Showing them that she has a firm hand on the wheel of city government is her top priority in the early days of her term, Mrs. Smith said.

I have to establish leadership so people will know the city is in good hands and that we are working in a cooperative effort for the good of the city. That's especially important since I am a woman.

"I have to show that I am the mayor. I can run the commission and the city is in good hands.

Questions about her capabilities because of her sex may be floating around in Sanford reataurants and living rooms, but Mrs. Smith said she doesn't Johns Hopkins University Hosexpect it to be an issue at city

She will, however, rearrange some furniture in the commission chambers.

"They don't make these chairs for women," Mrs. Smith said, shifting uncomfortably in the high-backed mayor's chair. She said she plans to get another chair or have the existing one modified to make it more comfortable.

She has already sized up support among the four men she will be working with most — the Sanford City Commission. She said all of the commissioners are her friends and have pledged their support.

She has chaired other boards which were made up of mostly men and said there are only problems where courtesy and respect by all parties gives way to suspicion.

"Men are just people too, for goodness sake."

In fact, Mrs. Smith is more new-found vocation - politics than she is about her sex. The notion that the public may perceive politicians, male or and are conscientious and, thrown together, are more good than bad," she said.

Politicians are forced by the public to act the way they do to get elected. They should not be criticized as insincere by jaded citizens, she said, because campaigning is part of the electoral process. Nothing would have suited me more than not putting up signs that were a blight on the landscape. I didn't like standing on the street waving at cars and shaking hands," she said. "But I had to do it. People make us that

For Mrs. Smith, politics is just one of the threads running through the multicolored tapestry that is her life. After being a homemaker for 30 years, she faced the prospect of an empty nest. Her three sons, John, Robert, Cary, were growing up and making their way into the

She decided to go back to school and get her master's degree in history. After commuting to the University of Florida in Gainesville for two years, she got her sheepskin. Through class projects, she became familiar with police work. It fascinated her. During one semester she spent two hours a week working at the county jail.

That interest was heightened after she returned to her hometown, Tuscumbia, Ala., and learned about a program to help victims of sexual assault. It triggered a desire to start the same kind of program in Seminole County.

In 1977, she began working with Sheriff John Polk to develmore op a program to help victims of ut her all types of crime. In order to run litics — the program, she had to become ex. The a certifled deputy. She did, and today the program still exists, but under different leadership.

in helping others, she said she found the cure for her depression. She recommends it to others who are sick or floundering in despair.

Start doing things for other people and you'll start getting better."

After scurrying around, busying herself with her various activities for 12 years, Mrs. Smith decided to try politics. To her, it was the next step she was supposed to take in her life.

After challenging and being defeated by State Rep. Art Grindle in 1982, she regrouped and decided to wait for a shot at the Sanford City Commission. She was still eyeing the District 4 seat this past summer, when a twist of events sent her on a different political quest. City Commissioner Dave Farr, who up until then had been a candidate for mayor, announced he wouldn't pursue the post. Mrs. Smith said her phone rang off the wall with friends trying to persuade her to run. For three weeks she wrestled with the decision. Finally, during a relaxing two-mile walk with her physician husband, "He looked at me and said

'Let's go for It." That was the clincher, she said. With her family's backing she tossed her hat into the ring and started a 12-week trek to

Two weeks later, she edged out Speer by about 400 votes to become the first woman in Sanford's 107-year history to be elected into public office.

That a city steeped in Southern conservatism would elect a woman to its top political post represents a seismic attitude change. But new attitudes and the winds of change are what Mrs. Smith sees as the stimuli that will keep the city on the St. Johns from becoming stagnant.

Change is hard on a pretty little town like Sanford. But I want to make change work for the city ... Without change a life is stagnant and without change a city is stagnant," she said.

As for the rapid growth and development the city and surrounding area are experiencing. she said she welcomes that as a challenge. 'We can no longer say Sanford is just for people who have lived here 30 years," said Mrs. Smith, who has resided her 26 years. "It's for everybody, including the person who pays little or no taxes. That person is a citizen who deserves equal treatment. It's also for the middle class husband and housewife who don't yell a lot. They're Sanford

But just because she is challenged by growth does not mean she believes it should sprawl itself upon the city unchecked.

Vivid memories of a trip to Houston last year convinced her that growth can be an ugly creature. There, unmanaged growth and lax soning regulations have made the booming Sunbelt city a hodgepodge metropolis, she said.

So one of her first priorities will be to set up workshops with the commission and city staff to update Sanford's comprehensive development plan.

"We'll be another Houston if we don't - complete with churches next to gas stations

The road from what was then he used those experiences to nown as the Canaan City sec-improve himself — turned rotten known as the Canaan City section of Sanford for Robert "Bob" Thomas to the Sanford City Commission was long and hard.

Despite his hardships along the way or perhaps because of them, he feels he is a sensitive man and he believes deeply in and follows the biblical rule to be

"our brother's keeper." No one could have foreseen Thomas would make history in Sanford and Seminole County. becoming the first black elected to a Sanford City Commission berth and the first of his race elected to any city or county governing body (with the exception of the school board) since the county was founded in 1913. Born Feb. 20, 1925 to a "dirt poor" family on the Meriwether farm, he was one fo four children of Lessie and R.B. Thomas, R.B., he says, was illiterate and Mrs. Thomas could read and write.

Poverty was a way of life for the family that never had quite enough clothing or shoes to go around among the children. Nevertheless, the Thomases were a happy family. The senior Thomas worked hard to earn a living as did Mrs. Thomas to rear her children.

As often happens with poor families, the children didn't know they were poor and their mother did the best she could to keep them spotless.

The most traumatic experience Thomas had as a child which he can recall was the day a second grade teacher wrote his name in purple on the blackboard under the title,"most untidy boy in class."

"I didn't know what untidy meant. When I found out, I was crushed." he says. Thomas said his mother would send him off to school each morning spotlessly clean, but like most boys he would play along the way and get his clothing soiled. 'The teacher was not compassionate," he says today.

His mother wasn't terribly compassionate either, after the leacher explained Thomas' second grade failure by saying that the boy had not been in school vear, which wasn't true. His nother, like most adults of that day, believed the adult rather than the child.

Mrs. Thomas gave her son a thorough spanking when they got home. The next year he returned to school to find a oving and kind teacher - Sally Bentley — who recognized he was a good student.

As Thomas has tended to do with bad experiences all his life.

apples into apple butter. Today. he is considered almost a fanatic about personal hygiene.

By the time he got to sixth grade he was a big boy, times were hard, he had no decent clothing and he simply quit.

He got a job with a local drug store delivering medicines on his bicycle. During his off hours he wandered about town and stayed out of trouble.

In 1943, when he turned 18, it was the midst of World War II and Uncle Sam had plans for him. Drafted into the U.S. Army. the unit he was with in the Battle of Saipan received a presidential citation for bravery in action.

By 1946, he was out of the service and had dreams, impossible as they seemed. He wanted to go to college.

His mother put an end to his consideration of becoming a professional boxer. Education was more important to his future, she said.

Thomas talked to Dr. Crooms, the founder of Crooms Academy. about picking up his schooling where he left off. The educator told him that perhaps he could pass a test and get his high school diploma. But Thomas insisted he needed the basics because I am going to college."

Dr. Crooms sent for the seventh grade teacher, Zelma Trammel (now Johnson), who accepted him into the 7th grade.

On the first day of school, there was Thomas, a man, sitting in row all by himself when Mrs. Trammel told the class of regular young students to prepare to conjugate the verb "to be," saying anyone who could not "would get 10 licks." Calling on Thomas first, he stood up and trying to remember the conjugation, he said, "I am, you are..." and the rest was gone from his mind. "I just couldn't get the rest out even though the children on the other side of the room were trying to help."

"There was I, a grown man, but I took the 10 licks," he said. Thomas remembers his time in the public school from that point on as fun. And in 1951, he graduated and proceeded to enroll at Florida A & M Universi-ty, majoring in health and physical education. There were no jobs available in his major, so he went back to their life is their adopted daugh-school nd additional courses to ter, Monica, 8, a second grader qualify himself for certification then-County Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr., the juvenile judge. conducted the interviews. Mize told Thomas he had interviewed others for the post, but that he would recommend Thomas because he liked the way he dressed, the way he expressed himself and appreciated his experiences and what he had done to get where he was.

"Judge Mize said I had a message to give and would be an inspiration to troubled kids," Thomas said. He got the job.

I've spread the message through the years. I've told young people that if they want to succeed in life, they must make sacrifices, be disciplined to authority, must have a good attitude and they must get as much education as possible. I have saved a lot who would have dropped out of school."

Thomas has remembered his early years of being "dirt poor," as he calls it, and his heart goes out to children. Often as he visited various schools, before there were free or reduced price lunches for the poor, he has bought a hungry child lunch.

Sometimes as part of his job, checking out why youngsters are not in school, he has had to "get rough" with a parent or two, lecturing them if need be on the fact that young people must get their education, must not grow up untrained and unskilled if they are to survive.

And sometimes he has had to take parents and children to court, something he doesn't like to do and does as a last resort.

Occasionally, a boy or girl he has lectured severely on the necessity of getting an education, has come back to say Thomas was right and to tell of the job or promotion lost because of the lack of a high school diploma. Many also tell him they went on to get a high school diploma.

"It's very gratifying and satis-fying to hear that," Thomas

Over the years, he and Doris, his wife, have taken children who needed help, particularly to stay in school, into their home in Academy Manor. Some stayed a short time and others stayed

Thomas threw his hat in the ring and proceeded to gather to himself 35-to-40 volunteers in a campaign committee who did everything necessary to win - from putting up posters, to taking people to the polls to cast their ballots.

Doris was his biggest supporter and worked as hard as he and everyone else.

While Thomas wasn't sure he would win, his wife and the committee were positive. Being a native of Sanford, he remembers the days of segregation, the subtle insults of days gone by, but, he says, he is not bitter. This is a new day.

His only regret is that his mother and father and his brother, all of whom are dead, are not here to see the new direction his life has taken.

The motto of his campaign was: "A new direction - A voice for all people" and that sums up his political philosophy. "I feel sympathy for those whose bad attitudes are so deeply embedded." Thomas says. "But I remind all those who demonstrate negative feelings, who are so resentful because of unpleasant experiences and hardships, that these things have made me a stronger person who cares.

Thomas calls his political victory "an historical accomplishment" that should change the attitude of black citizens in Sanford about politics and encourage them to get involved.

Persons of voting age in the black communities of Sanford for years felt "apathetic." Thomas said, because "they felt their vote wouldn't do any "Everyone's vote does count and did count in the District 2 election," he said.

Airport Development Takes Off

The Sanford Central Florida Airport continued expanding its air related facilities in 1984 and even though 144 companies are located there now, "develop-ment has barely scratched the surface." at the 1.685 acre facility since it was acquired by the city of Sanford in 1969, said J.S. The facility was operated as a department of the city for the first two years after the acquisition, but it has functioned as an independent airport since 1971. It is governed by a seven member authority, appointed by the Sanford City Commission. Five of the seven members on the authority have served since the board was created by special legislation, Cleveland said.

The authority's budget in 1984 was slightly more than $4.7 million and its budget for 1985 is slightly less than $4.7 million. The city commission approves the authority's annual budgets.

Cleveland says when the airport began operating in 1969 Sanford loaned the authority $10,000 to begin, but those funds were paid back within six

For 1985, Cleveland said, there are plans underway for the development of six acres of ramp space and a taxiway on the north side of the airport. Water and sewer will also be made available to that area.

"We are going to try to open the north area of the airport to cargo and cargo plane rehabilitation," he said.

The airport authority also will be considering permitting commercial activity on the north side of the airport.

immediately behind the building on 1st Street. Seminole purchased the land from Marna Hunt for $130,000. Sanford acquired the building from the federal government years ago for a library and operated a city facility there before donating it to the county.

New Sanford Library Top Priority

By Deane Jordan Herald Staff Writer

Construction of a branch library in Sanford and the selection of sites for four other libraries marks the end of the "preliminary planning year" for the creation of a library system in Seminole County.

The coming year will be a time of purchasing library sites and construction of one and perhaps two libraries, according to Jean Rhein, county librarian.

The county has four years to spend $7 million for the construction. Libraries are planned, in their priority of construction, in Sanford, Forest City-Wekiva, Oviedo-Tusskawilla, Casselberry and Lake Mary

According to John Percy, the county's director of public services, the estimated cost of services, the estimated cost of each library will be:

—Sanford, $420,000, to be finished this year;

—Forest City-Weikiva, $720,000. Building may begin late this year or early next year;

—Oviedo-Tuskawilla, $720,000 with construction tentatively set for 1987;

—Casselberry, the main library.

-Casselberry, the main library, $1,080,000, Building may begin in 1988; and.

-Lake Mary, $480,000, building to begin in 1989. All five libraries are to be built from proceeds of a $7 million bond issue approved by the voters in a special referendum in October, 1982.

As far as the proposed Sanford library is concerned, construction will begin this year with the county closing the deal on the land in late January. The site is north and next to the present library in downtown Sanford off

'We are not building one library, we are building a whole system in four years.'

With the purchase of the land. plans will now be drafted concerning how the library should be designed, according to Ms.

"We didn't want the architects working on plans for the Sanford library until we have the deed for the property in hand," said Percy. When the new library is built, the old facility — a 1918-vintage post office donated by the city of Sanford to the county, will be used for library administrative offices.

The new Sanford library is to have 7,000-square feet of space. more than double the 3,000-square feet the old library has. And the facility will be designed to permit expansion as will all five libraries.

Ms. Rhein said the year was spent deciding what type of equipment would be used in the libraries, how the libraries' books would be stocked, personnel scheduled and making flow charts. The flow charts, she said, help architects design a facility by providing such in-formation as what route would a book take after it was returned to when it was taken out again.

"We are not building one library. We are building a whole system in four years." she said.

Rich-Plan Finds Sanford Ideal Site For Progress

For 103-Year-Old Woman

Progress Was Another Year Of Living

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Isabella Marcia Rodgers is not very well, but she said she's pretty good for 103. Miss Rodgers, who celebrated her 103rd birthday July 15, still has a smile to share with her wellwishers and that, she said, is a surprise to some.

A good many people seem to think it's funny that I can still smile," said Miss Rodgers who spent more than half her life in Geneva, and now shares a home with other elderly Sanford resi-

"I've always told the good Lord that I'd like to be able to smile as long as I live." But Miss Rodgers said her longevity is a surprise to her.

"I don't think I've done any thing special (to live to be 103.) I can't remember anything special. The last five years I've been perfectly willing to go any day," she laughed. "I ask the Lord to please take me without me getting real sick. Just let me go to sleep someday.

"I haven't been out in the world for five years. My eyesight has gotten so bad now I can't read paper print anymore, except the headlines. I can't read a word of the smaller print, even with my expanding (magnifying)

"I've always been crazy about reading. I like fiction, and historics, everything. I like them all." And Miss Rodgers, a Virginia native who never married, said she preferred books to boys. I never cared for boys in the slightest when I was growing up. because I liked reading so much better than I liked the boys," she laughed, and recalled the boy who sat behind her in school about 90 years ago and dipped the tips of her long black braids into the inkwell of his desk.

Whenever I've had any time to spare I've read, all of my life. Now I have plenty of minutes to spare, but my eyes won't hold

"I've had nine bad strokes. don't give me any warning. They just hit and I'm on the floor. Before that sixth one I didn't mind them so much, because once they helped me up I could move around.

"The only thing I worry about now is living too long. I'm afraid I'm going to put other people to some trouble, I've never wanted to be dependent on other people. I've always tried to do for myself. It's hard to give up your in-

But Miss Rodgers has given up just about everything. Her room holds no mementoes of her youth, but she has no regrets over that.

"I've gotten rid of everything that would be a keepsake," she said. "I gave the things away. I can't say that I miss them, because I had them so many years and they should belong to somebody younger who might possibly want them to enjoy. I'm past the age."

With her dark brown eyes failing her, a loss of hearing and the inability to move around freely, Miss Rodgers said, "What I am doing mostly now is absorbing what I've already lived. I think about a great mixture of things."

She recalls the Geneva of about 60 years ngo. "I started coming down here in '24. I spent four or five winters in Geneva in the '20s, visiting my uncle Henry Baker and his family.

"Geneva was a real small place, but it had three orange packing houses. It had three stores and two, two-story boarding houses for workers or anybody who came down here as tourists."

Miss Rodgers decided to make Geneva her home, so she left behind the Nelson County Virginia farm where she was born and reared and began life as a Geneva farmer.

But her earliest memories take her back to Virginia. "I was fond of all the animals, especially horses," she laughed. "That was the only way we had to get around, riding horseback and in a buggy and what they used to call surreys. I rode mostly horseback.

"The first thing I remember was when I was three years old I remember my brother Harry and I riding across the pastures. The pastures were hills coming down from the mountains. Great big

"My brother and I were both riding the same horse. I was riding behind him. We had been used to riding a horse apiece without any bridles. We used our heels to guide the horse. And what were those two words we used to make the horse go? Gee and haw — gee was right and haw was left," Miss Rodgers remembered and laughed.

"I was used to all the farm animals because we raised them. We had mares that had colts, we had cows. We always had five cows we milked. I was so proud when my fingers gor long enough for me to milk. I was crazy to get big enough so I could milk like my brother. He was nearly three years older and he could milk and I couldn't. I got long enough, but then I had to do half the milking.

"When I was first growing up. 16, say, I had my dresses almost dragging on the floor. You had to hold them up every step you took," Miss Rodgers said. "If you didn't hold them up you would get them either wet or very dirty.

"I remember when they got up to eight inches above the ankle. That was exactly right. I never wanted to change again, but they finally got up to 15 inches above the ankle, before I stopped looking after the fashions.

"I never cared very much about styles. I wore hats and gloves. I did it, but I've liked it much better since then. I like being more casual." Miss Rodgers said.

Recalling her childhood Miss Rodgers said. "They used to have parties of different descriptions. People before they had televisin and all those other things had parties of their own. In Virginia we even had plays. My two sisters were in plays, real plays, not just pictures. We had lots of fun then, more fun than children seem to have now it seems to me."

Her mother, Isabella, of whom for Queen Isabella and I got the name from my mother," would sometimes sit down at her rosewood piano and play for her children and their dancing partners, creating a party for eight, she said. Her mother, who could play by ear or by note, was sensitive to other sounds as well as music, Miss Rodgers said. "I had a nickname from Isabella - Issic. was really glad when my fingers anything but Marcia from the time I was born until she died. She had named me Marcia. She had read a book that had a Marcia in it she liked, so she named me Marcia.

When Miss Rodgers was a young woman she pursued a career. She taught school for eight years and went on to become a civil servant, working for the U.S. Census Bureau in 1910. But in 1916 she gave up her career as a bookkeeper and returned to the family farm.

Miss Rodgers enjoyed travel-ing and easily adapted from the horse to the automobile and then to the airplane. But she said she has no desire to go to the moon. "I think that belongs to the good man up above - the moon the stars, althought I like flying very much," she said.

But now she flies only in her thoughts and she has plenty of time to think.

"Everybody has run out on me," she said. "I would like to have a few more cards than I get now, but I'm not able to answer cards or letters. Right now most of my wishes in the last three or four years have been to go to

"Yes, I'm very much looking forwar to that. I wonder why it taken so long. I ask the Lord real often why he's not ready for me yet. I can't think of any reason he would want to keep me here this long." Miss Rodgers laughed.

"I'm not quite as young as I used to be. I've always wanted to be independent. I think women as just as capable as the menfoll, and some are more so. The Lord gave me the ability to be inand my mother couldn't bear dependent for a great many that name. She never called me years. I want to do for myself for as long as I'm able."

Sanford Facelift Nears Completion

By Donna Retee Herald Staff Writer

Within the next month, the downtown Sanford beautification project is scheduled for completion.

City crews are scheduled to finish up all the work except the resurfacing of First Street from Magnolia Avenue to Palmetto Avenue. The resurfacing is to be done under private contract in March.

Sanford's new look downtown includes sidewalk reconstruction to install flower planters. The Magnolia pedestrian mail was created with the street closed to vehicular traffic.

City personnel removed old noting bricks from beneath the sphalted street. The bricks, said y City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles to be worth about $1 each, were cleaned and then placed at the downtown intersections as accents. Paving bricks also were placed along the outer edge of the sidewalks. Portions of the sidewalks on both sides of the street were widened while others were narrowed slightly to permit the construction of planters for flower decorations.

Modern street lights are being removed to be replaced with antique-style streetlights. Hardy trees were planted at various points around downtown.

Decorative posts were installed at Magnolia mail interspersed with trees. Drainage lines under Magnolia Mall was completed early in the project. Areas in the mail, called leisure spots by Knowles, were set aside where downtown workers can rest and eat their lunch.

Although money was allocated In the city budget for the beautification since 1979, the project was held up by a lawsuit which claimed the work was an inappropriate municipal function and the flower planters would present a hazard for motorists on First Street.

The circuit court ruled the project could properly be done by the city and that the work presented no hazard. Knowles calimates the entire project cost about $300,000. The beautification project in-spired an innovative construction plan to connect three 19th Century and early 20th Century buildings downtown with a bridge-restaurant and an eleva-

By Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer

Over the past decade, Sanford's Golden Age Games have become synonymous with fun and fitness for senior adults. In addition to attracting thousands of participants 55 and older from Canada, Puerto Rico and all over the United States each year in November, Sanford's olympiclike competition has become a model after which cities and states throughout the country have patterned similar events for senior citizens.

SCC Developing Program To Help Students In 1985

A STATE OF THE PROPERTY OF THE

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

In early 1984 Seminole Community College was upgrading it's academic program to help would-be graduates pass a new test they were required to take before getting their diplomas. The added instruction has apparently paid off, but now college officials are making plans to help potential students pass another new test which will become a state requirement before they can sign up for some courses that would lead to a degree going for a community college degree and or planning to go on to another college for a four-year degree were required to take and pass the test beginning in August 1984. In the most recent CLAST testing, Sawyer said SCC students taking the test for the first time showed a 20 percent improvement over the students who first took the test last year.

Jim Sawyer, dean of student development, said students faired well after SCC in early '84 beefed up its writing and math requirements, which helped prepare them for the College Level Academic Skills Test

"Eighty-seven percent passed. We think a 20 percent improvement is very significant," he said.

Sawyer attributed the success to the addition of 12 word processesors, a writing lab and a math lab, along with the new requirements that students write 24,000 words on various assignments and take two math courses at or above the intermediate algebra level before they can graduate. The size of writing classes was also limited to 22.

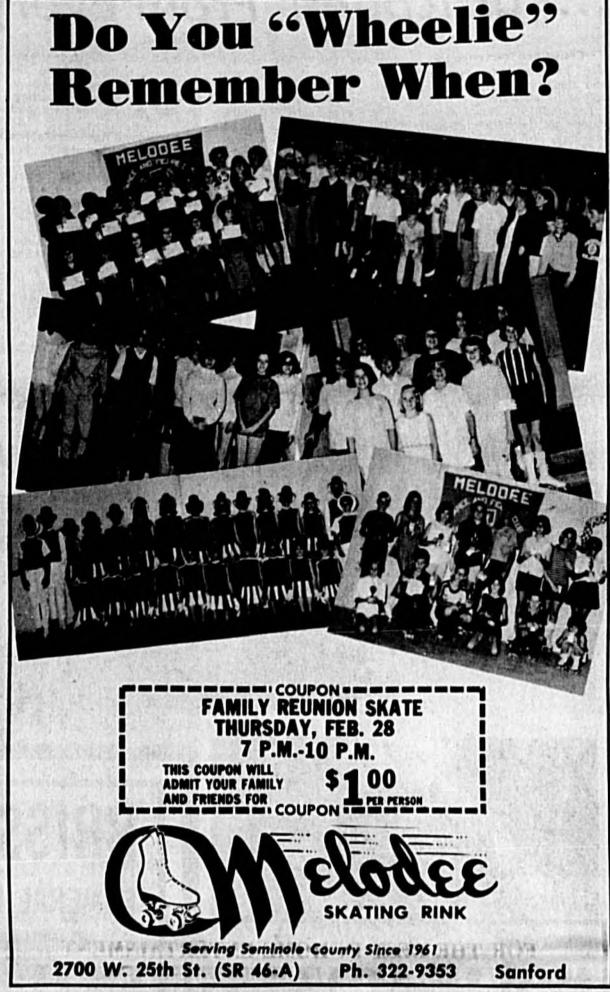

Sawyer also said students are now more aware of what they are expected to know to be able to pass the CLAST.

For 1985 Sawyer said he expects SCC's greatest challenge to be developing a program to help college applicants pass a new state ordered preadmittance test of their math and writing skills before they can enroll in an academic or vocational degree program or take courses that have an English or math prerequesite.

The test is, Sawyer said, intended to screen out students who are not capable of college level work, even though they may have a high school diploma.

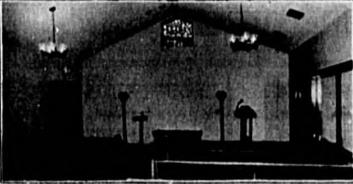

SCC will, he said, work with high schools to help prepare potential SCC students to pass the new state test for admit-graduates.

"The average age of our students is over 30. We have to offer refresher courses to that group as well," he said. Although SCC officials are familiar with the test, they can't complete the assistance program because state officials haven't determined the cutoff level for More than half of SCC's students would not be required to take the test. Sawyer said, because they are "just taking four to five courses related to their employment. They aren't going for a degree. We hope to always keep that door open. They won't have to take the test unless they take courses that have a math or English prere-

With an anticipated 1985 enrollment of 21,000 in SCC's academic, vocational and leisure time programs, Sawyer said, the school is bursting at the seams and the state has determined it has the greatest building need of any Florida community college.

The newest building on campus is the eight-year-old Fine Arts Building. But Sawyer said, the state in 1985 has identified $42 million in additional building needs at SCC, with the major need being for an adult continuing education building.

Sawyer said SCC has hopes of seeing $10 million allocated for construction of that building this Big 1984 successes at the SCC were the use of the new oncampus placement center by 600 students and about 200 potential employers and the maturation of compentency based instruction in the vocational and technical programs.

"We probably have the most accessible campus in the state as far as the physically handicapped go." Sawyer said. "We've done a lot of work in that area in the last two years with the addition of automatic door openers and ramps. We're working with that area all the

Sanford Woman's Club Has Year Of Firsts

Visitors entering the auditorium of the quaint building located at 309 S. Oak Ave., Sanford, appear impressed at the elegance of the interior. And many conclude that the handsome edifice was previously an opera house or theater.

The large stage holding a Steinway piano and draped with brilliant burgundy velvet curtains, the overhead balcony and the ornate Areplace probably Justify this assumption. However, the 98-year-old building was the First Pre-sbyterian Church of Sanford until the present church at Third Street and Oak Avenue was completed in 1916. The old church was moved to the lot next door and has been the home of the Woman's Club of Banford Inc. (SWC) since.

The most recent "first" for the club is that one of its members and club officers, Bettye Smith, was elected mayor of Sanford in December, 1984. During World War I, the club raised money to: supplement school teachers salaries. The club also solicited funds for the first White Way (United Way) in Sanford and through Seminole County Commission, obtained the first county school nurse.

Members formed committees to clamor for better street lighting, fire and police protection, beautification and preservation of the city's landscaping and parks.

The club raised over $2,000 toward erecting, equipping and manning the first school lunchroom in Sanford to serve hot lunches at the present Sanford Grammar School.

SWC organized the first San-ford Girl Scout Troop in 1933, the first garden club was organized by a club member, and the first Sanford flower show was held at the clubhouse.

Through the efforts of the clubwomen the first concert association was formed in 1936 - resulting in today's Seminole Community Concert Association.

Childhood Dream Becomes Reality For Eunice Wilson

Sanford Native Named State's Top Mortician For 1984

Herald Staff Writer

Eunice I. Wilson's childhood games played in Sanford about 60 years ago became her vocation - a not so unusual happening, except Miss Wilson played funeral director.

"It was a wonderful life," she said of her girlhood. And from behind her desk at her domain since 1955, Sanford's Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary on Pine Street, she looked back on her youthful ambition and said. Ever since I was small I wanted to be a funeral director.

"My oldest brother wanted to be a minister, which he never did. But we used to — when the cats and dogs died in the neighborhood - I'd get a little shoe box and that would be the

"All my little friends, they'd be the 'family' and my brother, he'd do the preaching.

"We used to have a set-up like a car. I'd hold a tin can like a steering wheel and behind me would be the 'family.

"That's what I always wanted," 68-year-old Miss Wilson said. She achieved her dream and said it's everything she hoped for and more.

As the youngest of the four daughters of Thomas and Gussie Wilson, Miss Wilson demonstrated early she had the willingness to work and the ambition that could lead to success at whatever she chose to pursue.

"I've always been an in-dependent worker," she said. "I told my dad I'm going to work for you and you're going to pay

Her childhood days started at 5:30 a.m. when she would feed and groom her dad's horse, hitch him to a wagon and start her father's ice delivery route. The two would meet along the way when he got off work from his post and the Atlantic Coastline Railroad and Wilson would take over while his daughter rushed to school.

Afternoons she delivered the Jacksonville Journal to Sanford

'Tom, that big old boy of your's did so-and-so, one of those deals - and it was me."

Even after three younger brothers came along Miss Wilson maintained her Tomboy interests. She was the defender of her brother Aaron when classmates teased him because of his crossed eyes.

Her fights on his behalf led to their attending a private school until Miss Wilson was a fifth grader and then she entered Crooms Academy. There she developed another love in addition to funeral directing. She was a star on the basketball court. When it came time for her to prepare for a career her family urged her to become a physical education teacher. "I told my dad, 'No. If you all are going to spend your money. I'll go, but I want to be a funeral director," Miss Wilson said.

And as a high school student. before she headed for the New York School of Embalming to become a graduate of the class of '39, Miss Wilson brushed up on her interest.

After having been turned away from two Sanford funeral homes, because of her sex, Miss Wilson on the recommendation of a family friend became the protege of L.W. Elchelberger.

"I started with Mr. Eichelberger. He had taken a correspondence course and he gave me the literature and quizzed me," Miss Wilson said. 'I saw him embalm two bodies and on the third I said, 'Let me try it,' and I've been doing it ever since."

From the beginning Miss Wilson did a little bit of everything involved with her first love, funeral directing. "I dug graves. I put up tents, I filled graves. And today there's not a piece of equipment I own that I can't operate," she said, noting that today funeral directors don't get that basic foundation, which she loved. "Nowaways they just read a book about how it's supposed to be done. All they know to how to make arrangements. But I have done it all." And the best of what she has done, she said, is her work with families who have replaced her playmates and are real-life mourners.

"Mainly what I like about funeral directing is I get a chance when people are dis-turbed to kind of talk to them and reason with them.

The majority of the time I try to carry their burden. I try to do everything to relieve them of their burden, other than selecting the type of funeral they want and paying for it. Everything concerning the business. I can take care of it for them," she

When she went to New York to pursue her dream, Miss Wilson said that was her first realization that her being black meant being different. She was the only black in her class and she said it took her about three months to adjust to the all-white environment. But she said, "This was the North and they understood

The only discrimination she faced either in the North or South was not because of her race, but because of her sex. when a few funeral firms closed their doors to her because she is a woman, she said.

Miss Wilson returned to Sanford and began her career alongside Eichelberger and after he and his wife died she bought the business in 1955, but retained Eichelberger's name in her logo as a tribute to her mentor, she said.

In her office lined with plaques and awards recognizing her skill in her field and her community service, including sponsorship of a choral group The Wilson Ensemble. Miss Wilson said traditionally, even after integration black Sanford residents have chosen the services of a black mortician - her - while whites have sought out whiteoperated funeral homes.

"I always let people know that we are a black firm, but sometimes white people want us anyway." she said, as she laughed recalling her first white case, which came on the heels of integration around 1985.

She sent her workman to the hospital to pick up a baby and when he returned she told him. "This baby looks white." The man explained that the father also looked white, but "talked

"Chuluota used to be a pretty bad place for black people," Mise Wilson said. "I said, 'Lord, why me?' I said, 'Oh, I'm going to Chuluota, Lord, I hope I don't need you - black people in black cars, with a white baby," but everything worked out just fine."

And Miss Wilson's life has worked out just fine too, she said. "What I've always wanted to do and achieve, so far I've accomplished everything, but one thing. I always wanted a fleet of cars and a nice building. I have everything, but the build-

Miss Wilson travels frequently. but that, too, is in the line of duty. And when she does attend a meeting of morticians she's likely to be honored for her work.

In 1981 she was named top mortician in Florida's district four. In '82 she was honored by her group again and in 1984 was named top mortician in the state.

Miss Wilson's most recent award, which she said she will make room for among her many trophies, is a plaque she picked up recognizing her for her distinguished community service. She was honored on Jan. 18 by the Afro-American Society of Seminole Community College during the Fourth Annual Heritage Jubilee, celebrating black achievement.

"I have no regrets. I guess ! was a born funeral director," Miss Wilson said.

Painter Making 'Sanfordscapes' Very Popular

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Judith Abernethy bubbles with life and vitality so you couldn't say that for her life began at 40, but she did become a serious painter and an acclaimed artist after her 40th birthday. And in he two years since, both her craft and recognition have accelerated at an astonishing

"I'm sure there have been other people who have had one-person shows in two years. I just don't know of any," Mrs. Abernethy said, referring to the showcasing of 26 of her paintings it the Art League of Daytona Beach's gallery through Oct. 25

In August, Mrs. Abernethy and her husband Bo moved her studio and his architect's office from Winter Park to Sanford where she expects to soon immortalize Sanford's roofscapes and scenes in her paintings.

And that will be no small compliment to Sanford because among the roofscapes Mrs. Abernethy produced from her first studio on Park Avenue in Winter Park is "Light Journeys," which has won top honors in many Central. Florida ahowa.

That was a breakthrough painting for me. It was very good and I knew it instantly. It took me from like pre-kindergarten to the seventh grade in one step and it happened immediately. It has won seven major awards," she said.

Mrs. Abernethy expects to find equal subjects n Sanford for her vibrant work. "The beauty that's around us inspires me, people inspire me. People who live in this town. There are fabulous, colorful people here. There's a novel in the faces that walk by."

From Mrs. Abernethy's second-story, kylighted studio, which overlooks 1st Street, she can take in the sights and sense of Sanford but her latest work is a series of paintings that focus more on feelings than scenery

"I really went through a hard time this summer and I thought, 'I'm going to paint some of these feelings." The symbol of a Band-Aid — a painting came to me in a dream. I asked my closest friend to sit for me and as soon as I put the Band-Aids on her it was so powerful, the energy. God, I was covered with goose pimples, and so was she. It was really powerful stuff."

Out of that came a rather simple, but revealing, sad-faced portrait of her friend with a Band-Aidformed X over her mouth and another Band-Aid on her exposed breast. "Mastectomy," which was the beginning of the Band-Aid series is another "breakthrough" painting. Mrs. Abernethy said.

This work, along with another image of her friend wearing a bandage, mask and open-mouth scream, called "Alone at Last," and companion pieces featuring a bandaged couple, entitled "Alienation" and "Reconciliation," have an interesting effect on people, Mrs. Abernethy said.

"They're very provocative. They provoke all kinds of feelings and emotions, depending on who you are. But men really get uncomfortable with

"I think they have a big female message. There's a lot of female pain and hurt in them. The 'Mastectomy' is not necessarily the surgical mastectomy, although it certainly could be symbolic of that. But it's social, it's spiritual. We're not allowed to speak or say. And then the breast being the symbol of the heart, the loving or the nursing. There are so many ways you can

"I think finally I have something very legitimate to say. I think these paintings are very legitimate," she said. And Mrs. Abernethy who has exhibited her work in New York City, added that when she sells a painting, priced around $1,000 to $1,500, "It's more than a compliment. that someone not only wants to put their money in your work, but they want it around them to enhance their life. That's such a feeling to me. It just comes over me like a wash. It's really a high feeling. I expected to sell and I want to sell a lot more. Now I have enough work accumulated and am really ready to expose myself to the world. I'm pretty much of an extrovert.

But Mrs. Abernethy got a late start with her painting, because, even though she displayed talent as a child she allowed herself to be discouraged by a high school teacher "who said to me 'you can't earn a living as an artist.' At that time I thought I wanted to be a cartoonist."

Mrs. Abernethy had spent her Sunday mornings as a toddler drawing the characters in the newspaper comics. "In grade school and high school I got a lot of attention because I could draw. It was instinctive," Mrs. Abernathy, who grew up in Ohio, said.

But in college art wasn't her primary subject. "I just took courses here and there." As an adult Mrs. Abernethy, who entered marketing as a career, continued to take art courses, but she

Her first marriage failed, she was a single mother to her daughter and son for 10 years before she met Abernethy and remarried four years ago. They moved from Ohio to Winter Park and while working in Winter Park, developing her own marketing business. Mrs. Abernethy turned 40 and decided it was time to do what she really wanted to do - paint.

"I was putting all of this work in, all of these hours for something I didn't really care about. It wasn't what I wanted. I said, 'That's it. I quit! I'm a painter now.' And then I got serious. I found a woman at the Maitland Art Center, Jean Schubert. I got in her class and she kind of inspired me and more or less gave me permission to go ahead. I guess she could see that there was something there ready to burst, ready to bud. That's when I started painting full-time.

'I think if you have a deep inner love for art. like with me, it was from my earliest years. I don't think one should deny that, because it's coming from the spirit of the person, the deep inner soul of the person. I think when you deny it, even though you're successful, and I was very successful in marketing, but I was never fully satisfied.

"Now I draw emergy from painting. I've been working for at least 10 hours a day. Most of the time it's painting, but I can't afford an agent, so I have to do everything." Mrs. Abernathy said her marketing background helps her deal with the business end of her work.

She has begun working with photo-sides projected on the wall of her studio, and said, "I'm what you call a working painter. I love getting my hands into it. I love the process of painting, of exploring. It juices me. I can't do it in any place but a studio. I can't just take a little corner of a room somewhere, because that's not the way I'm doing it in my life. It's the biggest part of my life.

"Of course the spiritual part feeds the artistic part and the artistic part feeds the spiritual part and those things make me so happy and together. I have to have a place where I can really do it all the time and do it big because I'm so serious about it.'

Mrs. Abernethy, who works primarily in acrylics, having started with oil paints, said she tried watercolors, but they just weren't exciting

"There's a lot of motion in my painting. I'm not the kind of painter who just dabs. I use the whole shoulder and arm. Sometimes I stand back and actually charge at it. A lot of energy goes into it.

"For me it's not a discipline, it's a love, I can't wait when I stretch my canvas and see all that white space that I get to throw paint on. It's thrilling.

'If you are a painter you have to have some solitude so your ideas can jell. I actually have to put paint on canvas and explore and experiment, go out on a limb and try new things. That's the only way I can really grow. I think that's one reason I've grown so fast. I was ready. At 40, By God, I knew what I was going to do," she said.

Eventually Mrs. Abernethy may turn to teaching, because, she said, "It's like passing the torch. I think after a point it behooves you to share with someone else. I wouldn't want to teach casual, Sunday painters, because that's not the way I go at it. I'm so intense with it.

And Judith Abernethy loves her new, art-filled.

Seminole County Sheriff's Department

Deputies Combine Technology And Experience To Fight Crime

Department, headquartered in Sanford, continues to grow in Seminole County, but much Sheriff John E. Polk was first elected to the office in 1968.

Polk, who has served as President of the Florida Sheriff's Association, remembers when there were only four deputies patrolling Seminole County. At that time you could get from one end of the county to the other in a little more than 10 minutes.

Today the department has nearly 300 employees, one-half of whom are sworn personnel. Traveling from one end of Seminole County to the other will take 30 minutes, if you're lucky, said Polk.

"Back in '68, not only did we have very few deputies on the road, but we actually had trouble communicating with them with the radio system that was in operation at that time," said Polk. "Today, the Seminole County Sheriff's Department has one of the most modern communications centers in law enforcement anywhere in the United States."

Although society has changed dramatically from the time when Polk first became sheriff, there has been no compromise on his interpretation of the law, much less his integrity. Polk has been very active as a member of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement's Standards and Training Commission. He has also been one of its most vocal participants.

At a recent meeting in West Paim Beach, he advocated de-certifying officers who used illegal drugs. His strong stance concerning police and drugs has started some debate about the pressures and susceptibility of police work and police officers.

There are those who favor permitting police officers to use marijuana during off-duty hours police officers are not "supermen." But Polk says "I'm size and stature along with not asking a police officer to be a superman, but how can we remains the same as when expect officers to go out and buy illegal drugs, use illegal drugs. and then expect people to respect them? The officer knows its illegal. He's sort of laughing at the law he's sworn to uphold," Polk said.

The 53-year-old sheriff doesn't mind if people label him intolerant or out of tune with the problems of the day.

"I've got to answer to my own conscience. We shouldn't try to get in tune with what the country is doing if it is in violation of the law."

in addressing himself to the changing of the times. Polk points with pride to the electronic wizardry of the Computer Aided Dispatching System (CAD) now at the Sheriff's Department.

"There is no doubt that all of us are affected in one way or another by the computer. This has become very evident with the progress which has been made, particularly as it applies to handling the incoming calls to our department," said Polk.

Now when a caller seeks the service of the Sheriff's Department, he speaks to a dispatcher who accepts the information and feeds it into a video tube. At the conclusion of the conversation with the caller, this information is electronically forwarded to a dispatcher who is able to read the information off his tube and immediately dispatch it over the radio to one of the units in the field.

The computer not only maintains a complete record of all of those calls, but also, the workload of each of the many deputies who are assigned to cover the county while handling those calls for service. At the conclusion of each day, there is a summary printout as well as a menting all of the activities of the department for that 24-hour period.

The CAD system will blend with the advent of the enhanced 911 system scheduled for implementation in Seminole County within the next 18 months.

Sheriff Polk assumed the leaderahip role in attempting to educate the public on the advantages of passing the 1985 One-Cent Criminal Justice Sales Tax. This item appeared on last years' general election ballot and passed overwhelmingly in Seminole County, It is expected that during this limited one year time, about $13 million is expected to be generated for the purpose of expanding the courthouse and the present correctional facility and building access roads into the facilities at the Five Points location. The growing number of calls the department receives is another sign of its growth. In 1976, the Seminole County Sheriff's Department handled 30,445 calls. In 1977 the total had risen approximately 10,000 calls annually to 39,251. In 1984, the figure escalated to almost 90,000.

If you relate the daily average calls based on the annuals calls shown in the preceeding paragraph, in 1976, the daily average calls for the department was 83; in 1977 it climbed to 107. In 1984 the total was 247 calls for service each day.

An additional responsibility of the Sheriff's Department is that it handles all of the radio communications dispatching for the Longwood Police Department. This is done at no cost to the City of Longwood.

When a resident from Longwood calls for police service, they dial a number which is answered in the Sheriff's Department Communications Center. The information is taken from the caller, keyed into the computer and broadcast to the Longwood Police Department via radio.

"YOUR KEY TO PROGRESS"

SANFORD — Close to everything you want out of Florida.

The county seat of Seminole County, Sanford is located in the heart of Central Florida. Midway between Orlando and Daytona Beach, Sanford is one of the nation's fastest growing locales.

Settling on the shores of Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River distinguished Sanford as a transportation center, and that tradition survives today. We are served by a network of highways, including Interstate 4, U.S 17-92, Amtrak and the Seaboard Coastline Railroad. Our airport serves all manner of private and commercial planes. Our navigable waterways allow for easy water transportation, and the Monroe Harbour Marina serves as port for both pleasure and business.

Industrial sites include Sanford Industrial Park, Sanford Municipal Airport, The Port of Sanford, and the I-4 Industrial Park.

Come grow with us!

Our city stationary bears the slogan, "The Friendly City." In the 25 years I've lived in Sanford, that slogan has been earned over and over again. In our organizations and in our businesses, we show our concern and care for fellow citizens and for visitors to our area.

Humane Society In New Home

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

The Humane Society of Seminole County moved into a new $150,000 home in 1984 and executive director Joanne Prager said the facility, which is more than double the size of the old shelter, was completed just in time as the county's animal count increased along with its people population.

The new shelter, which routinely houses about 100 cats and dogs, is located on land donated by Seminole County behind Flea World off U.S. Highway 17-92, south of San-ford. Mrs. Prager said the new building was funded through donations and it has been paid

"We're handling more animals in the expanded facility and we're more accessable," she said. "In 1963 in the old shelter we took in 1,094 animals and in 1984 in the new shelter we more than trippled that with 3,882."

Among the recommendations was that the post of assistant county administrator be abolished in favor of two deputy county administrators, one to head up the new department of county development and the other to oversee other administrative functions. Other activities included:

the county. Renovations were completed on the old Seminole Memorial Hospital to become the Seminole County Services Building at First Street and Mellonville Avenue in Sanford. The commission and its staff and the offices of county property appraiser, county tax collector and some of the offices of the clerk of the circuit court moved into the building, vacating space in the county courthouse. The courthouse is to be renovated this year to provide solely judicial

in permit fees. • The parks and recreation department improved Sylvan Lake, Red Bug Lake and Sanlando parks.

• The $7 million library bond issue sale was completed and work is underway to select sites for branch libraries in Forest City, Lake Mary, Tuekawilia-Oviedo and a main library in Casselberry. A new branch is also to be built in Sanford on a new site behind the old library on First Street.

• The water and sewer system was expanded with the purchase of Greenwood Lakes Utilities (water and sewer system) near Lake Mary.

 A new county Health Department facility was built off Airport Boulevard in Sanford.

 County Attorney Nikki Ciayton's office negotiated, prepared, drafted or revised more than 150 legal documents, gave more than 700 written or oral legal opinions for county government during the year.

 The computer services department added a second IBM computer system and wrote 20 new programs to provide a completely new budgeting package, a utility billing system and development of a computer aided emergency dispath system.

The activity and secomplishments in county government in 1984 show it was the county's busiest year in history and from all indications 1985 is continuing at about the same pace.

Among the decisions and actions that will be taken by the county commission, we can reasonably expect to see the following occur: • The transportation management program will be completed, emphasing future county road

 An alignment for the new Seminole County Expressway will be selected by the county Expressway Authority.

 Construction and widening of Maitland Avenue from the Orange County Line to state Road 436 will begin and engineering will be completed for the widening of Red Bug Lake Road.

• Ten additional major intersection improvements and traffic signalization will be completed. • 25-30 miles of county roads will be resurfaced.

 Initial design, survey and right-of-way work will be completed for the Lake Mary Boulevard extension from U.S. Highway 17-92 to Sanford Avenue will be completed.

 The paradmedic-advanced life support system program in the public safety department will continue to be expanded.

• A site will be selected for a new Red Bug Road fire station. Construction will begin on at least one branch library, probably in Sanford, and sites will be selected for the other three branches

 Renovations will begin on the courthouse. • Recreation improvements will be made at most county parks.

Planners Tackle Transportation Headaches

By Britt Smith Herald Staff Writer

Driving in Seminole County, particularly the south end, can be an exercise in frustration.

If you've lived here awhile you already know that. And if you've feared things are going to get worse ... you're probably right. But take heart, local officials are at least trying to keep up with the area's phenomenal growth rate which has led to all that traffic congestion.

The near future will see no dramatic changes, but further down the road Seminole may grow to depend more on mass transit and carpooling while introducing such things as park-and-ride shuttle services and paving the way for a new

The fact of the matter is, however, that things will never be as they were. Congestion is as much a part of the local vocabulary as citrus and Disney. Fender benders, frustrating waits at traffic lights, and long lines of vehicles creeping along at a snail's pace are an intergal part of Central Florida life.

But the county's director of public works, Larry Sellers, says he is of the opinion that things will never get as bad as they are in Orange County, mainly because Seminole officials have "gone to school on the problems our neighbor to the south has had and hopefully learned some things."

At the same time Sellers admits that Seminole is somewhat limited in what it can do to ease the transportation headaches that plague local motorists.

The areas of greatest concern — state roads 438, 434, Interstate 4, and U.S. Highway 17-92 "are all state or federal arteries" over which the county has little control.

Perhaps the most important single trafficrelated accomplishment in 1984 was the county commission's "biting the political bullet" and imposing a 4-cent per gallon gasoline tax to fund major road improvements and future planning. Sellers said

"That was a very unpopular thing to do, but one of the hard truths of this business is that there is never enough money to solve the problems the way they should be solved. The 4-cent tax isn't a cure-all, but it will help," he

One of the things that money is helping buy is a $149,000 study of what amounts to a prioritizing of county road needs. The study is expected to be completed by summer.

On a more concrete note, planning was completed last year on two major projects with the letting of bids scheduled for spring. Both projects are in the south end of the county.

The first is the $5.7 million four-laning and extension of Maitland Avenue from SR 436 south to the Orange-Seminole county line. The work, to be funded by 4-cent gas tax money and bond revenue, should take 18-24 months, Sellers said.

The second is is the four-laning of a 1.5-mile stretch of Red Bug Lake Road from SR 436 to Autumn Glen Lane at a cost of about $2 million. The job should be completed within 12 to 18 months, he said.

Then there is, of course, the planning, an ongoing process. Several things are in the works. The most immediate is four-laning a half-mile stretch of Lake Mary Boulevard between 1-4 and Rinehart Road. Several developers with projects in the area have made commitments to help defray the cost of the work.

Within five years the road will be four-laned from Rinehart west to Markham Woods Road and ultimately all the way to 17-92 or beyond, Sellers and

The concern with Lake Mary Boulevard stems from the area's rapid growth and state plans to construct a $15.2 million state-of-the-art interchange where the road intersects with I-4.

Sellers said Lake Mary Boulevard averages about 17,000 vehicles a day. But by the year 2005 that figure is expected to balloon to around so 000

To accommodate that volume, the state Department of Transportation is reviewing plans for the interchange complete with cloverleafs and flyovers. Preliminary plans call for work to begin possibly by 1988 with 90 percent of the cost to be picked up by the federal government. The state would pay the remaining 10 percent.

Which brings up another massive project, the proposed North-South Expressway. As proposed, the $91.2 million tollroad would extend north from the East-West Expressway between Lake Underhill Road and Highway 50 just west of Dean Road in Orlando, across University Boulevard and the Seminole County line to state Road 426.

Plans call for the road to be extended north further into Seminole County but no timetable has been set. Sellers said. A consultant is studying the exact route the extension would take. The $50,800 study should be finished within a month or so, he said.

While all these major projects are going on the county is working on somewhat less grand ideas for easing the traffic tumuit. In May, commissioners agreed to participate in a three-county effort to computerize traffic signals in an undertaking designed to greatly improve traffic flow on some of Seminole's heavily congested roadways.

Orlando is spearheading the work which is being financed by $5 million in city, federal and state funds. Orlando will use the money to purchase a main frame computer and connect it to signals in the city and the heavily-traveled areas of Orange, Seminole and Osceola counties.

In Seminole, just the areas south of SR 434 will be hooked up, but the work will begin in Orlando and move outward so it will probably be at least another 18 months before Seminole's signals are

The advantage of computerized signals is that instead of setting signals for a pre-determined timing of light changes, the computerized signals would have sensors enabling them to actually monitor traffic patterns and adjust themselves to provide the smoothest flow of traffic.

The signals would not be individually isolated, according to the county's former chief traffic engineer. Garry Lester, but would relay information to other signals "so that conceivably you could drive down (SR) 436, for example, and hit mostly green lights."

By the time the system is completed it will be near obsolete which is why Seminole is exploring an emerging technology called microprocessor signalization.

The system allows what amounts to individual computers in each signal rather than having to tie in to a central computer. The county is considering setting up a prototype at 17-92 and SR 436 to determine exactly how it works and whether there are any drawbacks.

As part of a $50,000 Urban Mass Transit Administration grant, the county is also studying the possibility of initiating a park-and-ride shuttle system similar to the one in use in downtown Orlando in which commuters park in outlying lots and take a trolley to their jobs.

The badly congested SR 436 corridor in Altamonte Springs would be a possible site for such a system, according to chief county planner Woody Price.

Another portion of that grant is being used to study development of a massive carpooling system to reduce the number of vehicles on the road. One possibility being considered is to coordinate efforts with major employers in the area.

Look even farther into the future and you'll find a rail line, possibly a monorail, linking the Orlando International Airport, downtown Orlando and Walt Disney World and Epcot. An extension has been envisioned north into Seminole County to the Altamonte Mail, but Sellers says, "We're not ready for that."

Even if the multi-million dollar monorall, which at this point is only a dream, becomes reality. Sellers is skeptical of it ever coming into Seminole, "at least not within the next 20 years.

"We don't have the concentrated residential and work areas to make a rail system like that work," he said. "The one in Orange County is supposed to pay for itself not by capturing the commuter riders like the rail systems in the Northeast, but by getting the tourist riders.

"Only if the Orlando-Disney route is successful will there be even a chance of it coming north," Sellers said.

Seminole Seniors Active, Caring

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

In 1984 Seminole County senior citizens showed their spirit and compassion as they played as well as worked to help others—an established tradition that will no doubt continue through this year and beyond.

will no doubt continue through this year and beyond.

Sanford's Golden Ages Games, hosting senior athletes from across the nation, marked its 10th anniversary in 1984 with the addition of a triathlon, a mini-marathon and with Olympic champion Bob Mathias acting as honorary chairman.

Jack Horner, president of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, a founder of the Games, labeled the 1984 event a great success with 4,000 entrants supported by representitives of 52 local clubs and

Plans are on the drawing board for the '85 Golden Ages Games, Horner said, and the idea of adding racquet ball to the lineup is being kicked around.

The Games are always scheduled for the second week in November. "We've come a long way from the first Games when we had 300 entrants," Horner said. "Everybody knows their jobs. We're going into our 11th years, so it doesn't require as much hard work as it did when we started. It's a great way to honor the seniors and to show off their skills."

The Chamber of Commerce, located on First Street in downtown Sanford, also supports other programs for the elderly which include: The Over 50 Club's Wednesday afternoon dance with a live band at the Sanford Civic Center; Social Security, income tax, medical and home security seminars as well as American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) sponsored in come tax preparation assistance.

In other areas, the Seminole County senior participants of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) donated 80,000 hours of service to the community in 1984. Director Joan Madison said 430 volunteers worked at 50 locations including government buildings in addition to their service at 25

Looking ahead for this year, Mrs. Madison said the RSVP workers "hope to get more involved in crime prevention. We're working with the Sheriff's Department to determine how to help in that. We also plan to get more invloved in consumer education through the Agricultural Department."

In 1964 RSVP volunteers initated a telephone reassurance program and made calls to check on "lonely individuals to let them know we care," Mrs. Madison said.

CFRH Keeps Up With Medical, Economic Revolution

The past year at Central Florida Regional Hospital has been one of both progress and change, according to its administrator James Tesar and Dr. Nicholas Pastis, chief of staff.

Tesar said the hospital continued to expand its services to the community in 1984 both from a direct patient-care aspect and from its health educational programs.

"We have continued to add new services and medical specialities and new equipment to support those services," he said.

During the year, he said, the health care industry has seen a new payment system for the Medicare patient, a change that was considered necessary if there was ever going to be a method for controlling health care costs.

He said the hospital and its physicians have made numerous changes to accommodate the new system which will take four years to fully, implement by the government. The monetary impact is already being felt at the hospital level "Competition is becoming more and more of a factor in controling health care costs," he said.

Competition, rather than governmental regula tion, holds the most promise for controlling costs. Tesar said.

"An institution that cannot change to marketplace competition probably won't survive long into the future," he said.

'We are CFRH are proud of the progress we have made. We feel we are in a favorable marketing position. We have a modern, wellequipped facility. Our staff is excellent and able to respond to the changing times. They recognize the patient as a customer," he said.

Pastis said he believes the level of expertise at the hospital is second to none.

"Our orthopedic doctors, for example, are using the latest arthroscopic equipment to evaluate joint injuries. The laser, or high intensity light, is available to the neurosurgeon for treating lesions in the brain and to the ophthalmologist for treating diabetic eye problems," he said.

He said the surgeons at CFRH are using angioplasty, plastic surgery on blood vessels, to remove obstructions from arteries and cardiologists are using streptokinase, an agent to dissolve clots from coronary vessels before irreparable damage is done to the heart muscle.

"Fewer and fewer patients now need to leave their immediate home area to receive quality care with state-of-the-art equipment and techniques,"

He said residents in this area should have a sense of security knowing that CFRH in their Medical Arts building on Medical Plaza Drive, Sanford, near CFRH houses 11 doctors with room for 10 more.

Florida Hospital's Cancer Center Gives Patients New Hope

The big news at Florida Hospital-Altamonte is that construction is under way for its outpatient cancer treatment center.

The cancer treatment center, the first of its kind in Seminole County, is the newest addition to the services of the hospital's Cancer Center. The center is expected to be completed in nine months, according to Fred Moore, public relations representitive for the hospital.

Moore said the center, at 601 Altamonte Ave., Altamonte Springe, will be staffed by 13 people and will feature a linear accelerator, a device that uses radiation and the latest technology to provide greater penetration for use against cancers in internal organs. It also has greater radiation therapy capability treatment of skin-level

The 12,840-aquare-foot facility will cost a total of $2,850,000 to build and will have almost $3 million worth of equipment in it." Moore said.

In addition to the accelerator. a simulator will permit physicians to "pre-test" patients treatment plans. Along with the simulator is a treatment planning computer used to program help plan the best course of treatment. The day-hospital function of the clinic will provide privacy and comfort for patients receiving anti-cancer drugs, and outpatient services will include radiation therapy; anti-cancer drugs therapy, and blood therapy, Moore said.

In addition to the cancer treatment center, a 74-bed patient tower and a professional office building will be constructed near the hospital.

The 74-bed tower will include a maternity unit and medical-surgical bed floors. It will be about a $10 million expansion and ground breaking is planned

The professional office building will house several offices for doctors. The offices will be sold like condominiums, Moore said.

The number of offices will be determined by the amount of space needed to fulfill each physician's needs. It will be comparable to a new Florida Medical Plaza recently built at Florida Hospital's Orlando site.

The building will be three stories high and contain 40,000 square feet of floor space.

WHOLESALE PLUMBING A HEATING SUPPLIES, INC.
A.D. Rosier, Wholesale Plumbing and Heating Supplies, Inc., at 111 N. French Ave., Santord, began taithfully serving our community and the Central Florida area 42 years ago - in 1923. With the support of Mr. A.D. Rosier, Sr., and his wife Vida A. Rosier, many farmers, homeowners, businesses, and industries were helped in ear community with plumbing and heafing paris and supplies. Their line of preducts and service has established a reputation of being so therough and complete that the common sentiment has been: "If you can't find it go to Rosler's - they'll have it!" During the early 1925's - the "Boom" years began, inventories were kept for farms being supplied with extensive irrigation equipment: pumps, turbines, piping, fiftings and more. The surge in the housing market brought orders for water heaters, pumps, pump tanks, iron and galvanized pipe of all sizes, sewer pipe, and plumbing fixtures. "Everything including the kitchen sink," was evailable from A.D. Resler's; even the plumbing contracts, on the heusing development at 25th Street were personally written up by Mrs. Realer in the 1926's. Later, after the difficult Depression Years, the Resler's essisted many farmers, cattlemen, and grave ewners with supplies and equipment for desper wells plus the old stand-by Pitchen Pumps - remember these? Continued gravith of Seminate County on the re-bound from the Depression Years, the increase in building, and in 1927 the arrival of the Sentent Realer's assisted many farmers, and building, and in 1928 the arrival of the Sentent Realer's in 1929 and beday, he and his wife, Sendre and daughter, Mrs. Sharen Williams, maintain the care in 1923 and beday, he and his wife, Sendre and daughter, Mrs. Sharen Williams, maintain the care in the sendre and daughter, first share well and the resulting service and quality projects the plant, and carefular and firm any prince; Call on them supplies: Call on them severales equipment services and quality projects and services and files there have been share supplies. Santra. The store on Plant

tion for 36 years until opening at Sanford Plaza in January 1966. In the 36 years after their opening, as our community changed, J. C. Penney changed, Millie Peters, Marchandising Assistant changed. J. C. Penney changed. Millie Peters. Merchandising Assistant at Sanford Plaza reflected on some of those changes. "In those days, a besket on a chain teek the money to the office after each sale. The office was located in a balcony overlooking the store." Now computers have speeded up the process and allowed Penney's to keep pace with feat changing fashions. From their basket and chain to their own safelitte in space, the company has changed in many ways. The store at Sanford Plaza is currently undergoing a renovation to allow for expansion in fast' moving apparel lines. Since a company decision to drop many lines of merchandite in 1953, the Sanford Store, as other J. C. Penney stores, has made many changes. The end result is a store that can offer more fashions to a greater number of consumers. It is an effort to be the best, or dominant, in what they sell rather than trying to sell a little of everything. One of the things that hasn't changed since the first Penney's Slogan "Does it square with what is right and just?" Mrs. Edith Cason, an associate who worked in the store on First Street, is now in the Sanford Plaza store. Her attitude reflects that of Mr. Penney. Many previous customers, now adults, come back to Mrs.

Many previous customers, now adults, come back to Mrs. Cason for assistance, remembering her help when they were youths. Sanford's J. C. Penney store has a total of over 340 years of tenure from its' associates experience. Buck Hodges, store manager, cradits Penney's ence. Buck Hodges, store manager, credits Penney's success in Sanford to fine associates, such as: Harold Scott, Mary Rufus, and Wilma Kolozik, each with 19 years experience; Mille Peters, VI Kenton, Jack Stankas, and Charlette Nooney with 17 to 20 years experience. J. C. Penney has a left stending commitment to Senterd, Seminole County, and South Volusia County.

Health Services Facility Will Grow With County

Alter a year of construction, the county's new $2 million Department of Health facility opened at the end of 1984 on its 10-acre site on Airport Boulevard, west of U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford.

The new facility provides space not only for the needs of today's Seminole County residents but also for the public health needs for citizens who will live here 10 years from now, according to Dr. Jorge Deju, director of Health and Human Services for the county.

Before the construction of the new building, the administrative and service sections of the health department were separate, and that was not good. Deju-

The new facility provides more services to the poor and the rest of the public, including an environmental health laboratory which can analyze water and food samples on site; a medical laboratory; a pharmacy to provide medication to health deX-ray unit to replace a mobile unit that served the old department, Deju said.

The building has three dental chairs, rather than two, and an auditorium which can be used by staff and by community organizations.

While the health department has 68 employees and is in the process of expanding to 76, Deju said the staff at the new facility will eventually number 100 including the county welfare office staff, sanitations, administration, nurses and physicians.

The building's furnishings and equipment costs about $2 million, Deju said. It is being paid from interest on $5.2 million the county received when it sold the rights to operate a hospital, the assets in the old Seminole Memorial Hospital and obtained a lease on the old hospital for a time while Central Florida Regional Hospital was built.

County Has It All For Sports-Minded

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

When it comes to chasing a little, little white ball, there's not too many better places to be than Seminole County. Sanford, Lake Mary, Casselberry, Winter Springs, Longwood and Altamonte Springs offer the good and not so good — golfer a variety of courses.

• The Mayfair Country Club in Sanford is the county's oldest and most traditional course. The layout is hilly and intriguing. Sam Snead once played the "Old Course" as did Arnold Palmer and most of the other pros on their way up when the New York Giants operated the course.

 Big Cypress and Tuscawilla in Winter Springs, along with Wekiva, Sabal Point and Sweetwater near Longwood, offer the golfer a challenging layout. All five are long and have their share of water and woods Longwood's Seminole Golf Course and Casselberry's Country Club are not as demanding as the the others and they offer the beginning golfer a good chance to hone his skills.

If golf and tennis are a big too active and you want something a little more laid back. Seminole County is twice blest for fishermen, having both numerous fresh water lakes and the St. Johns River with its many branches where the angler can go after a wide variety of flah all year long.

The St. Johns River flows through two major lakes -- Lake Harney to the east and Lake Monroe to the north. It provides small boat access to Lake Jessup. These three lakes and the St. Johns dominate the fresh water flahing in the area al-though there are numerous amalier lakes which will whet your appetite.

In addition to the wide variety' of panfish, such as Bream. Speckled Perch or Crapple, Shellcracker and Warmouth, the waters of the county abound with game flah such as Black Bass, Chain Pickerel and Sun-

Expansion Of Library System Ready To Begin

Construction of a branch library in Sanford and the selection of sites for four other libraries marks the end of the "preliminary planning year" for the creation of a library system in Seminole

The coming year will be a time of purchasing library sites and construction of one and perhaps two libraries, according to Jean Rhein, county

The county has four years to spend $7 million for the construction. Libraries are planned, in their priority of construction, in Sanford, Forest City-Weikiva, Oviedo-Tusskawilla. Casselberry

Building may begin in 1988; and. -Lake Mary, $480,000, building to begin in

All five libraries are to be built from proceeds of a $7 million bond issue approved by the voters in a special referendum in October, 1982.

As far as the proposed Sanford library is concerned, construction will begin this year with the county closing the deal on the land in late January. The site is north and next to the present

Ms. Rhein said the year was spent deciding what type of equipment would be used in the libraries, how the libraries' books would be stocked, personnel scheduled and making flow charts. The flow charts, she said, help architects design a facility by providing such information as what route would a book take after it was returned to when it was taken out again and what happens to the book in the library and who would handle it and where.

We are not building one library. We are building a whole system in four years." she said.

Ms. Rhein said the first year was spent concentrating on land purchases for all the libraries because the county wanted to purhcase the land first rather than wait to buy each site each year and have the prices rise.

Ballet Guild Enhances County's Cultural Climate

sleepy little agricultural coimmunity of Sanford has awakened to an industrial boom. And this favorable industrial climate has attracted a new breed to generate an artistic or cultural climate.

Nineteen years ago two enterprising young women, the Rye sisters, Valerie Weld and Miriam Wright, moved to Sanford from Jacksonville to open the School of Dance ARts.

Their talk of starting a ballet company was met with negativism and leiness when they approached communityleaders. But the avalanche of discouraging rejections only incited the sisters to pursue their objective.

Zoo To Stay Where It Is ... But For How Long?

Attendance Up, Improvements Made Amid Talk Of Move To Turkey Lake Park

By Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer

A 21st Century zoo four times the size of the present zoo site north of Sanford with more than 1,500 animals on exhibit in natural settings is the goal of the Central Florida Zoological Society board of directors.

In ahort, that means the zoo will probably be leaving Sanford ... but not right away.

The present 21-acre location along the shore of Lake Monroe near the junction of U.S. Highway 17-92 and interstate 4 does not provide room for such a bold expansion, so zoo officials are looking for a new site in Seminole,

Orange, or Osceola counties. A location favored by the zoo site committee is a 92-acre chunk of Orlando's Turkey Lake Park which has been offered by that city's council. Approval of the state Department of Natural Resources must be obtained before planning the relocation can continue because of federal money invested in the property.

Shyla Reich, president of the zoological society, has said that even if the agency gives its approval it will be a minimum of three years before the society could raise the $10 million necessary to move the zoo from Sanford.

Meanwhile, she said, the zoo board is firm in its commitment to maintain the zoo as it now exists.

Talk of a move apparently has not hurt attendance. Last year's attendance increased 34% over 1983 when attendance was up 31% over 1982.

The zoo has added improvements at its present location and offers visitors a relaxing day combined with a rare opportunity to glimpse hundreds of exotic wildlife specimens in natural surroundings in a living Florida bald cypress swamp.

A new reptile building houses venomous and non-venomous reptiles. Other exhibits and features include an elephant paddock, children's zoo, big cats, primates, exotic birds, hoofstock and domestic animals.

Additional entertainment is provided by elephant rides (complete with framed photo of the elephant and riders for a nominal fee) and Shetland pony rides. A wide variety of both hot and cold menu items, gifts and souvenirs are available.

Admission fees for the 200 are: adults, $3; children under 12. $1; senior citizens, $1.50; children under 3 free membership fees, combined with donations/contributions, pay the entire $750,000 a year it costs to maintain, operate and expand the zoo.

The zoo is a wholly self-sustained (receives no municipal, state or federal support), not-for-profit, public service organization. The admission costs.

Free parking and picnic areas are available, as well as an elevated nature trail, complete with published interpretive guide books.

Docents provide guided tours through the zoo for school, civic and church groups by advanced reservations only, animal encounter locations on zoo grounds (weekends only) and a speakers bureau. Eagle Scout projects, cooperative education training and community outreach programs are available through the zoo's educational department.

More Than A Memory, It's A Step Into The Life Of The City's Founder

The quaint gray building on East First Street across from Sanford's first highrise residential complex, Brain Towers, might possibly remain unnoticed by a visitor to the city.

We've Got It Good In Seminole County

Central Florida, USA: a little bit of heaven on earth; a haven featuring something for everyone - paradise-like.

And that's openers for a description of the super-friendly Sanford-Seminole area, bordered on the north by the exotic Nile of America, the St. Johns River.

Once considered a bedroom community, Seminole County has awakened with more than a long yawn and outstretched arms. Busy minds and bodies have created a peaceful yet bustling community that's just a slight bypass from Utopia - love bugs and all.

The county and surrounding area rate higher than the land of milk and honey. "Gold Rush" is more appropriate - the liquid gold from the flow of citrus growing in most backyards.

A tropical paradise is reflected in the lush vegetation and colorful flowers blooming yearround in the Citrus Belt. Swaying paim trees are likely to form a background for gardens whose products run the gamut from asparagus to zucchini.

The pickings are plentiful. What's your fancy?

Lifestyles vary from rustle and quaint pictures of Early America painted throughout the When the Sanford Naval Air Station was decommissioned several years ago, many men and officers stationed there quoted Gen. Douglas MacArthur and said: "We shall return."

The countryside is dotted with all styles of homes, from the one-bedroom shanty to luxurious split-level residences fit for royalty. Ultra-modern mobile home parks are available for those preferring this lifestyle. High-rise apartments and condominiums are in abundance for residents desiring this multifamily mode of living.

Education here is an ongoing process - once again, something for everyone. In addition to academic subjects, Seminole Community College offers a classes in a variety of subjects ranging from the fine arts to investments and auto repairs. The classes are self-supporting, at no expense to the laxpayer.

Building Booming

Seminole County's continuing rapid growth was perhaps the biggest story of 1984. Seminole is one of the fastest growing counties in the country with between 900 and 1,300 new residents moving in each month. That's why scenes like the one above are scenes like the one above are so common. All those folks have to have somewhere to live. Seminole's Busting Out All Over

'84 Was A Boom Year; '85 May Be Almost As Successful

By Britt Smith Horald Staff Writer

Residential construction was a $400 millionplus industry in Seminole County last year as the area's building boom continued unabated despite building moratoriums in two cities and the ever-rising cost of owning a new home.

And while things may slow down a bit this year as demand catches up with supply, the area seems sure to continue as one of the fastest growing areas in the country.

From 1980 to 1983, Dun & Bradstreet listed Seminole County as the 13th fastest growing county in the U.S., attracting about 900 new residents a month. The East Central Florida Regional Planning Council estimate is even higher - 1,300 new residents each month.

And naturally all those new folks have to have somewhere to live. Local builders have been working feverishly to accommodate them all.

But there appears to have been some changes in the housing market over the past year. Construction of single-family homes seems to have dropped off. But the slack is being taken up by more, many more, apartments and condominiums,

For example, in Sanford where there were building permits issued for 708 single-family homes with a total value of $24,185,872 in 1983. the figures for '84 fell to 384 permits with a value of $13,272,451, nearly a 50 percent decline.
But at the same time, the value of the permits issued for apartments and condos skyrocketed from nearly $4 million in 1983 to over $29 million last year.

Single-family home construction also fell in Longwood, from 313 in '53 to 132 last year, but continued upward in Lake Mary, from 67 to 97 during the one-year period, and from 2,350 to 2,465 in the unincorporated areas of the county.

The smaller cities in Seminole's midsection such as Longwood and Lake Mary saw little if any apartment and condo development, but the heavily-populated south end - Altamonte Springs and Casselberry — and Sanford in the north saw a vertiable explosion in such construc-

Also under construction is the 112-unit North Lake Villas apartment complex going up on Lake Minnie Drive.

The latest addition to the race is the $10 million Lakeview Village Apartments which will consist of 256 luxury rental units on #11.8-acre tract on Lake Monroe.

"We're seeing the most apartment development, now at one time, than we have seen in the 14 years I've been with the city." said Sanford building official Gary Winn.

In Casselberry, there was a fairly even mix of single-family and condo construction last year. There were 49 permits issued for single-family homes with a value of $2,471,951 and permits for 68 condo housing units with a value of $2,445,180.

Just a short drive west in Altamonte Springs. the scales tipped decidedly in favor of apartments/condos as opposed to single-family homes. In 1984, the city issued permits for 115 single-family homes with a value of $5,016,561. During the same period, builders were granted 2,019 permits for apartments and condos representing a total of $52,522,450 in construction

The smaller cities in the county have not been spared this explosive growth. In Oviedo, for instance, the second, third and fourth phases of the Alasaya development were accepted by the city commission last month.

Work on the first phase is nearly complete and homes are expected to start being occupied by

The 783-acre community east of state Road 434 will contain 3,835 housing units if developed to ita maximum density.

The housing picture in Sanford and Lake Mary doubtless would have been more intense had not those cities put the brakes on building for a while: Sanford because some of its drinking water wells were contaminated with the suspected cancer causing pesticide EDB, and Lake Mary because of the city's lack of water and sewer service.

At the beginning of the year, the Sanford City Commission slapped a 60-day moratorium on all new construction, residential and commercial, in order to prevent overloading the ailing water system. Seven of 15 municipal wells were taken out of service while the EDB crisis was resolved.

"That two-month ban obviously put a crimp in some of the builders in town," Winn said. Lake Mary developers asw their plans put on hold when the city imposed a moratorium on all new water connections because a feud between it and Sanford, which has sold Lake Mary water

Sanford, experiencing its own building boom, has been pressing Lake Mary to build a water system of its own. The city did not progress as quickly as Sanford thought it should and Sanford threatened to turn off the tap.

Then there's the matter of sewer service. Several residential and commercial projects now on the drawing boards cannot proceed because of confusion over who will provide sewer service.

Commissioners are debating whether they want to get into the sewer business or require developers to build their own sewage treatment plants. The county may also be asked to provide sewer service to the industrial areas of the city.

Residential construction was a $197,168,402 business in the unincorporated areas of the county last year, a fact which had some adverse side effects for those caught up in the governmental paperwork all that building creates.

In May, former county administrator T. Duncan Rose III said Seminole's building-related departments were at a crisis point. The workload was too great, he said, creating delays in processing such things as site plans, building permits, and resonings and slowing down the county's entire construction industry. Extra personnel were added, but Rose said the new workers only put the county back to where it was a year ago, "still pressed but better off than

So what does the future hold? Much of the same, but perhaps at a somewhat slower rate. according to Dennis Courson, president of Sun Bank of Seminole.

"The area will continue to grow." Courson said. "Business and people will keep moving in and they'll need somewhere to live. New home prices aren't going down but the economy is continuing to show strength and declining interest rates have caused many projects which were on hold to be dusted off and brought to fruition.

"But I think things will flatten out," he said. "he should be a mild slowdown. Most people won't even notice it. But we've had a very aggressive building program in this area and it may ease up a bit until some of the inventory is sold off."

Courson said new residential construction "will continue to go on, but not at the volume of '84."

From Pasture Land To A Billion-Dollar Luxury Community

Heathrow.

The billion-dollar community being developed by the Jeno F. Paulucci family at Interstate 4 and Lake Mary Boulevard is a remarkable achievement, even for these modern times. Heathrow has aprung from a 1,200-acre pasture to a luxury community with its first residents already at home.

Where ground was broken less than two years ago, Roger W. Soderstrom, president of Heathrow Land and Development Corp., says, "We have begun a community that is becoming magnificently beautiful, equipped with state-of-the-art technology, and delivering the promise of a lifestyle worth the effort it takes

The sales center nearby, a 6,800-square foot edifice housing the Huakey Realty sales staff for Heathrow and the Heathrow administrative offices, also is fully operational.

The clubhouse at the country club has been completed through the lower level with the upper level to be finished this month. The 12,000-square foot building, to be doubled in size later, features such architectural detailing as Vermont slate roof, Indiana buff limestone railings, massive fireplace and white oak interior trim.

The 6,600-square foot golf course maintenance complex has been completed, and the 0125,000 enack for and $75,000 rest station, both designed to compliment the Heathrow

Subdivisions

The Chestnut Hill and Bristol Park subdivisions were completed in January, 1984. Within 48 hours of being placed on the market, the 23 one-acre or larger loss in Chestnut Hill and the 62 one-third acre lots in Bristol Park were sold for a total price of 88 million. The East Camden subdivision of 43 one-half acre or larger lots was completed in August, 1984, and placed on the market in September. These lots were sold within 72 hours for a total price of slightly over $4 million. Within these three sub-divisions, 54 homes are completed or now under construc-tion. These homes vary from 3,000- to 10,000-square feet in size and in price from $270,000 to $1,500,000. The total value of homes under construction exceeds $25 million.

The Regency Green sub-division of 40 lots for golf villas was completed in December, 1955 and already many lots have been sold.

Soderstrom said this year will ses significant progress on archi-tectural plans for a 15-acre development comprised of three-story garden apartments with four units per floor. These units are expected to be priced at $140,000 to $175,000 per unit.

Plans for townhomes clustered in a tract surrounded by the golf course also will materialize in 1985, he said. These are projected to sell between $300,000 and $450,000 per unit.

Negotiations are under way for a joint venture to develop the first 25 acres in Heathrow international Center which will generate 350,000-equare feet of offices within three years. This development will occur on the eastern edge of Heathrow, also adjacent to the golf course.

Hit 20,000 Mark In Modular Production

Cardinal Celebrated 30th Anniversary In '84

For Cardinal Industries Inc., 1984 was a year filled with accomplishments worthy of Guiness Book of World Records consideration.

Not only did the company celebrate its 30th anniversary a feat to which few in the building industry can lay claim - but it also reached the 20,000 mark in modular production and came within a cat's whisker of hitting the magic half-billiondollar pinnacle in managed revenues ($458 million).

While many companies would be content to relax and revel in such success. Cardinal will try to outdo itself this year — ag-gressively and methodically. Production and revenues for 1985 are conservatively projected for 26,000 modules and $550 million.

Although there are no anniversary milestones looming on the horizon, 1985 figures to be "no less challenging or promis-

The year already has begun on a promising note. Last month, Guirlinger was honored in Houston at the annual National Association of Home Builders convention for being selected 'Man of the Year' by Automation in Housing & Manufactured Home Dealer magazine for his contributions to the housing industry.

Later in the year, another significant event will take place when Cardinal opens its fifth manufacturing plant in

"We are extremely pleased in what was accomplished during 1984 — it certainly was pro-ductive in all respects," says the 58-year-old Guirlinger, who noted that production and revenues saw gains of 35 and 20 percent respectively over 1983 totals.

"However, if we are going to be successful in our mission, it's important that we concentrate on where we're going instead of where we've been."

Guirlinger's mission is to make Cardinal Industries the world's largest modular manufacturer, a goal he feels is realistic and within reach in the modular housing and the sixth largest developer of multi-family shelter, according to Professional Builder magazine. It manages more than 30,000 apartments and motel rooms in a 21-state marketing area.

In the next 5 years, the company expects to double to eight the number of its manufacturing facilities and produce 70,000 nearly identical 12-foot by 24-foot modules an-nually by 1990, almost the entire amount (75,000) that have been produced since 1970.

The key to Cardinal's success. says Guirlinger, has been its resolve to manufacture a standardized module that has been used for apartments, motels, single-family homes, condominiums, commercial offices and adult retirement housing.

Guirlinger sees the company's growth and the introduction of new products as "evolutionary. The amazing thing is that all of these quite revolutionary things we are doing evolved over 15

NCR Expects To Capture Big Share Of Market

101st birthday Jan. 1, its Lake Mary division put behind it a successful year of bullishly stampeding into a new market and developing two hot items for the computer industry.

And the prospects look good for 1985, according to Leslie D. Sisson, general manager of the Lake Mary division.

In 1984 the Lake Mary company broadened its market and started selling its computer power systems to companies outside of the NCR corporation, Sisson said. At the beginning of the year, it had zero sales but by year's end had captured five percent of the market. In 1985, the company expects to capture 20 percent of the market with its systems, Sisson said.

Harris predicted that Seminole County's industrial base should continue to expand because of those attributes.

At the industrial park west of Sanford, several new companies moved in during the past year and one expanded 30 percent, according to park manager Jim Hickman.

Moving into the park this year was Florida X-ray, a company that makes hospital equipment such as beds and walkers. The move to the industrial park was part of the company's expansion from its Altamonte Springs facility, he said. Also moving to the park was R.L.S. Inc., a drafting company, commission.

Plans call for continuing it indefinitely as long the number of passengers justifies it. Ms. Martin said. Daily departure time is 4:30 p.m. and arrival is 9:30 a.m. on each end of the line.

The northbound discount fare which was scheduled to end in January has been extended through February, Ms. Martin said. Discount fares are $79 for adults: $59 for children 2-11 years; and $124 for the auto. A couple with two children under 12 and their car can ride Auto Train from Sanford to Lorton, a suburb of Washington D.C., for $400. The fare includes a buffet dinner, continental breakfast, after-dinner movie, complimentary snacks and coffee and tea. Sleeping accommodations are extra. Auto Train, which features a domed observation car above the coach accom-modations, has added an observation car with lounge on the lower level.

Auto Train is proving highly profitable to travel agents, who are selling 50 percent of all the tickets, Ms. Martin said.

Auto Train service was revived in October 30, 1983, when Amtrak bought out a defunct private corporation, Auto-Train Corp., for $4.4 million and began rehabilitating equipment and terminals. Auto-Train Corp. declared bankruptcy in September. 1980 after 10 years of operation and halted service on May 1. 1981

The trains are capable of carrying a maximum of 264 automobiles and the number of southbound passengers varies from 200 to 500 per trip.

Economy Industry Environment

PROPER PLANNING IS THE KEY

There's a delicate balance that must be preserved during a period of growth such as Mid-Florida is experiencing. Growth can be managed, harnessed to work to everyone's benefit. Preserving the delicate balance. It takes planning and control

The Industrial Development Commission is a group of MidFlorida business people and industries concerned about the growth and prosperity of Central Florida — and our quality of life.

Careful planning and solicitation of clean, desirable industry for our area supports our commitment to keep Mid-Florida a healthy place to live and work.

A healthy economy benefits everyone

A healthy economy means jobs for all our residents, less inflation and a better quality of living that extends to every area of our lives.

A healthy economy depends on newcomer industries supplying hundreds of new jobs each year, pumping millions of dollars into our community and benefiting us in countless other ways. But growth is not without its problems. New industry can be the answer

new industries, we'll resolve any environmental problems that may occur.

necessary to maintain our quality of life. But we also realize that environmental perfection in any community is an ideal that is virtually impossible.

An eye to the future

By careful planning and continuing control, industrial growth can be balanced with environmental protection. We're committed to a balanced and commonsense approach to industrial development and environ-mental protection in Mid-Florida. We seek a climate where industry blossoms within the environment, not at its expense.

Planning helps us keep our balance

We're committed to maintaining the delicate balance. A balance of industry and environment and progress and quality of life. The solicitation of clean, desirable industry, coupled with careful site planning and preparation, reaffirms that commitment. Our industrial development must be balanced to meet the needs of both life and progress in Mid-Florida. And planning is the key.
