The Henry Shelton Sanford museum on Lake Monroe in Sanford is gearing up for an expansion.

City museum raising money

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The curator of the Henry Shelton Sanford Museum said the county's proposal for an agricultural museum won't conflict with the city's historical objectives.

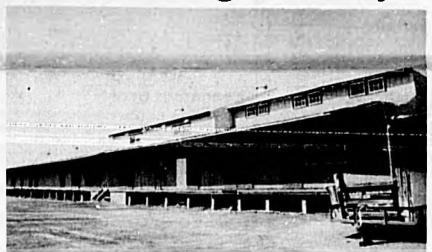

"We try to be supportive of the county museum and the school museum," said Alecia Clarke, city museum curator, "We focus on the development of Sanford which does include agriculture and Henry Shelton Sanford. But the county has a fine agricultural implement collection. We don't have anything like

Clarke said an expansion of the county museum system would enhance the museums in the county by making residents aware of their heritage and the history of the county.

The city is in the process of expanding the museum on East First Street with a $150,000 grant from the Seminole County Tourist Development Fund, $25,000 from the Sanford Historical Society and a $100,000 city appropriation. The current 2,000-square-foot facility will be doubled in size with the addition of a new gallery, offices and renovation of existing space for displays.

The city is in the process of negotiating a contract for final architectural plans for the additionaand renovation, Clarke said. She said she did not expect construction to begin before this winter.

SANFORD - The proposal to remodel one of the earliest buildings at the Sanford State Farmer's Market into a county agricultural musuem could not have been considered if the building's tenant had not left last year and the demand for market space not declined.

The Florida educators meeting in Tallahassee earlier this week, announced they will undertake such services in a program to be named Operation Open House.

MIAMI - A schoolteacher who allegedly shot a woman as he followed her car on the Florida Turnpike was jailed after a judge set his bond at $50,000.

Vernon A. Jackson, 61, a vocational teacher at Palmetto Middle School, was arrested Tuesday and charged with attempted second-degree murder, shooting into an occupied vehicle and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

The arrest came 12 days after Lourdes Lopez, 27, was shot in the back of her head as she rode north on the turnpike in southwest Dade County with her husband and 2-year-old

The .357-caliber bullet pierced the back seat, where her daughter sat, then shot through the front passenger seat, striking Mrs. Lopez. She was treated at AMI Kendali Regional Medical Center and was in good condition, Metro-Dade police spokesman Bill Kinnebrew said.

Dade Circuit Judge Murray Meyerson on Wednesday set Jackson's bond at $50,000 pending arraignment on April 2. and he was returned to jail until he could post bail, a spokeswoman for the Dade State Attorney's office said.

BROOKSVILLE - The Hernando County Sheriff's Office has devised a way to install radar units outside patrol cars because of the concern over whether the units cause cancer.

Eight radar units are being mounted inside the light bars atop squad cars, said Sheriff Tom Mylander. The vehicles should be back on the road by the end of the week. "We did what we needed to do for the safety of our deputies."

The safety issue was raised by an Ohio State Highway Patrol Trooper who cited case histories of traffic officers who developed cancer in areas of the body exposed to radar.

In mid-January, the St. Petersburg Police Department banned the use of radar. Several other law enforcement departments in the area followed the lead, including the Hernando County Sheriff's Office.

Criminal case returns to spotlight

MIAMI - A criminal case that divided Miami over the deaths of two black men at the hands of a Hispanic police officer

Defense attorney Roy Black contended Wednesday Miami police officer William Lozano had no chance of obtaining a fair trial because of jury fears that an acquittal would rekindle the rioting that wracked Miami's black neighborhoods for three ingles after the deaths in January 1989.

In this community, everyone knew that in William Lozano's case, a verdict of not guilty would result in rioting and violence and a verdict of guilty would give us peace," Black told the 3rd District Court of Appeals panel.

He made similar arguments before the double-manslaughter trial, but the judge refused to move the case and allowed extensive interviewing of prospective jurors.

Lozano was sentenced to seven years in state prison on two manslaughter counts in the deaths of the two black men.

Man sentenced in cat torture killing

INVERNESS - A man has been sentenced to 10 days in jal and three years of probation as part of a plea agreement in the torture killing of a cat.

Robert D. Lasell, 32, also must work 100 hours in an animal shelter and obtain mental health treatment. Citrus Circuit Judge John Thurman ruled Tuesday.

The state said Lasell and two 14-year-old boys tortured and eventually killed a cat Dec. 17 in Homosassa. The boys were handled through the juvenile system because of their age.

Lasell pleaded no contest to cruelty to animals and two counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, according to court records.

1987. Arnold echoed sentiment among many House members that it is difficult to justify finding existing money for political races when schools, social services and local projects are starved for funds. But Arnold told Wetherell he is "100 percent" behind the reform concept.

Study: Foster children risk sexual abuse

Associated Press

Keeping it cool

TAMPA - Some 200 children in foster care assaulted other children during a 12-month period in Florida, according to a state study.

The Sanford Christian Sharing Center this month received a large, walk in freezer through the Seminola County's Community

center director, said she hopes the $8,000 acquisition will boost the center's meat offerings to hungry families. The center currently offers canned pork to families in need. Brown estimates the freezer will hold about $2,500 worth of food.

Lawmakers ordered the first such study after child advocates said sexual abuse is so common it is almost "part of the trip" through foster care.

Greg Coler, then secretary of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said he needed proof before he could address the problem.

Woman fired for declining hair drug test, sues former employer

By Associated Press

ORLANDO - Anita Nabors paid a high price for refusing to let a company cut off a lock of her hair: her $42,000-a-year job.

Now she is suing her former employer, Kirchman Corp. of Altamonte Springs, claiming the banking software company in-vaded her privacy and fired her Improperly.

Her challenge could be the first legal tussle over the hair analysis drug test in Florida. legal experts say.

The test is "still so experimental and so potentially faulty that the results are not being relied on by medical and legal authorities," said Robyn Blumner, executive director of the Miami office of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Nabors, a former computer Kirchman Corp. last fall when she refused to submit to a drug test that would have required cutting a swatch of her hair, according to her suit, filed Monday in Seminole County Circuit Court.

Nabors refused the hair test because she believed it was not scientifically reliable and objected to the potential "cosmetic" damage that cutting the hair sample could do, the suit says. She said that the Oct. 22 drug

Nabors offered to take a urine or blood test for drugs, but company officials denied that request. After five years of an "exemplary work record." Nabors was fired on Oct. 22, 1990, the suit says. She is seeking unspecified damages of more than $10,000.

Company founder and chairman Kenneth P. Kirchman would not comment on the suit Wednesday.

Kirchman told employees the purpose of the drug test was to guarantee customers that Kirchman software was developed in a drug-free environment. according to Nabors.

A growing number of companies are using the hair test method for drug detection retains drug residues for a much longer time than urine or blood.

Critics argue, however, that drug use in the distant past should not be a factor in a person's current employment.

School reform

The idea of reforming the nation's schools by allowing parents to choose which ones their children will attend attracts more adherents with each passing year.

Seven states now have enacted choice programs and several city school districts have initiated pilot projects. The Indiana Legislature is mulling over a voucher plan sponsored by the state's 15 top business leaders.

This spring, the Delaware General Assembly will consider a proposal by former Gov. Pete du Pont to allow private institutions to compete with public schools for students who would be given vouchers to use at the schools of their choice.

Although the details vary from plan to plan, each has a common objective - upgrading education by fostering competiton. Until parents and students have the opportunity to favor good schools, poor ones will have no incentive to improve. And that opportunity hinges on several factors, beginning with finances.

The money problem is best addressed by providing parents with vouchers equal to the state's annual per-pupil expenditure. In California, for instance, the Smiths could apply $4,026 to the public or private school their child wishes to attend. The means of transportation would be resolved by parents and ind'vidual school districts.

To qualify for financial assistance, all schools should conform to state health and safety standards. They should provide a basic curriculum and require that their students read and write at or above grade level before being promoted. Private schools receiving public funds must not be allowed to discrimi-nate on the basis of race, ethnic origin, gender or disability.

The church-state issue could be defused by ensuring that state funds serve a secular purpose and neither advance nor inhibit religion. Nor should choice programs foster "excessive entanglement" between government and a particular religion.

These criteria, set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court, can be satisfied by letting parents and students decide where the money will be spent; avoiding any financial incentive to attend religious schools; and limiting government regulation to ensure that secular educational goals are accomplished.

These criteria, set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court, can be satisfied by letting parents and students decide where the money will be spent; avoiding any financial incentive to attend religious schools; and limiting government regulation to ensure that secular educational goals are accomplished.

By observing these procedural safeguards, choice plans should be able to clear all statutory and constitutional hurdles. Du Pont's choice proposal takes the added precaution of reducing the amount of vouchers for students who opt for parochial schools. This is aimed at preventing public money from financing the 10 percent of the curriculum that is devoted to religion.

Parental choice is increasingly viewed as the reform most likely to bring about better schools by breaking the public education monopoly. It's worth fighting for.

New vice president for Bush?

After the euphoric victory in which we have all been wallowing. Americans are now shifting speculative concerns to more weighty gossip. Will George Bush retain Dan Quayle as vice president? If not, whom he will anoint?

Right now, the odds overwhelmingly favor incumbent Denny Dimwit. Not because he is qualified, but because there is no compelling qualified, but because there is no compelling reason to dump the darling of the conservatives. After all, he can still count to 10, he has dutifully carried out his few assignments, and he has been unimpeachably loyal to his president.

George Bush understands loyalty and appreciates it more. For eight years, he labored in Reagan's vineyards, supporting his president's Neanderthal conservatism even when he knew better. The Yale Phi Beta Kappa also stoically suffered the foolishness of his president, who is suffered the foolishness of his president, who is living proof that a college degree does not guarantee intelligence.

In the first two years of the Bush administra-tion. Quayle hasn't yet had the opportunity to compile a record of loyalty comparable to Bush's during his eight years with Reagan. But he's working on it.

Still, overriding all positive factors in Quayle's behalf is the "V" factor. The way things look right now, George Bush could pick Godzilla as a running mate and humiliate the Democrats in

But even with patriotic fervor rushing over the country like flood waters and politicians of both parties gushing over Powell's military leadership, the majority of Americans are still not quite ready to accept a black vice president who would be in line to be the GOP presidential candidate in

More U.S. rights for Guam

WASHINGTON - The island of Guam was liberated by the U.S. Marines in 1944, after being held under Japanese occupation during World War II, and Ben Blaz remembers it very well. He says the soldiers were "so big and friendly that all of us who were boys at the time wanted to grow up to be just like them."

And many of them did. The people of Guam have since joined the American military in large numbers and served with distinction. They suffered more casualties per capita than any other U.S. community during Korea and Vietnam; and more than 800 of them (from a total population of 128,000) were engaged in Operation Desert Storm.

Yet Blaz notes there is a sour side to the patriotism. He says that while the Pacific island's troops are equal with other Americans in war, they are not on the same level in peace. Guam is a U.S. territory, its residents are American nationals, but, as Blaz puts it, Guamanians in fact "live with the onus of partial citizenship."

Blaz is Guam's delegate to Congress. And his grievance regarding inferior territorial status is one of the island's perennial concerns. Blaz, for example, sits in the House of Representatives. and even votes on committees. But he points out that he is not allowed to vote on the floor of the House, or in presidential elections:

"I'm just a real small fish in a big pond. It's true for everybody on Guam, and it runs counter to the spirit of this country. One of the things I do as a delegate, occasionally, is to swear in new U.S. citizens. Every time I do, I know that they will have more rights than the people of Guam, who have been citizens all

The people of Guam have been citizens for 40 years. And they like to claim they live "Where America's Day Begins." The "Where America's Day Begins." The 209-square-mile island, southernmost of the Marianas, is located just west of the Interna-tional Dateline. It was originally ceded to America by Spain in 1898, and it became a self-governing U.S. territory in 1950.

Guam is one of the nation's four principal insular possessions. The others are Puerto Rico (a commonwealth). American Samoa and the Virgin Islands. These territories operate much like states: the residents have citizenship standing. But they all grumble to differing degrees regarding the limitations on their Sometimes the grumbling works. Ben Blaz says the territories have won a few rounds over the years. The governor of Guam used to be appointed by the White House, for instance, but the islanders were granted the right to elect their own in 1970. They also squabbled until 1971 to be able to send a delegate to Still, they are not satisfied. Blaz says Guamanians continue to be first-class patriots and second-class Americans. He says the islanders do not qualify for some public welfare benefits, they have inhibiting shipping laws, and Guam Gls serving in the States are separated from home by sky-high international telephone tolls.

Then there is the matter of passports. Blaz says Guamanians traveling to the mainland have to prove their citizenship. He says he is a former Marine Corps general, as well as a member of Congress, "and it doesn't matter who you are, it is where you are from. If you are from Guam. you must show your bloody passport." Finally: The Vote. Blaz says the islanders want a full franchise, and the need is especially apparent in time of war. He explains that the soldiers now serving in the Persian Gulf could not vote for or against the president who sent them there, or for an unencumbered representative in the federal legislature:

"I want to emphasize that soldiers from Guam are always proud to serve their country. And they are doing it again in the desert, despite the fact that they had no voice when Congress voted for the action. But right is right. This is simply not fair. When it comes down to it, some Americans are more equal than others.

Delegate Blaz has been arguing the inequities for three terms in the House. He calls it "chipping away." He says the obvious solution would be statehood, but it is likewise an obvious impossibility, owing to distance -Guam is nearly 4,000 miles west of Hawaii and population factors. Therefore, he has concentrated his efforts on a perennial com-

The commonwealth bill is HR-98. The number corresponds with the year the United States acquired the island. Blaz says the bili would not resolve the voting question, but it would at least bring Guarfi up to the rank of Puerto Rico: "That would be a big help in reforming the relationship between the island and the 50 states."

INS backed off meeting at resort

WASHINGTON - Sunny coastal Georgia was supposed to be the site of a conference last month for the federal government's top immigration officers. But the conference is now a casualty of the Persian Gulf War.

Officials at the Immigration and Naturaliza-tion Service canceled the get-together fearing it would look like they were "living it up" at the beach "while half a million U.S. serv-icemen are eating sand in the desert."

That wording comes from an internal INS memo dated Jan. 18, two days after the allies began bombing Baghdad. The memo was written to INS Commissioner Gene information office. It raised several questions about how the INS would look spending more than $100,000 on a conference at an island resort when it can't even afford adequate detention facilities for the illegal aliens it rounds up.

they were living

It up.

The memo also raised concerns about senior INS managers being away from their jobs during a national crisis, and said the INS couldn't take "any more 'hits' now" after a string of bad publicity. The conference, according to the INS, was "a readymade Jack Anderson column."

Some apparently agreed, and shared the memo with us. So we asked the INS more about the conference that never was. INS spokesman Duke Austin told our associate Scott Sleek that the conference would have been held at the King of Prince Hotel on St. Simon's Island off the southern Georgia coast. Nearby Brunswick, Ga., is the home of a law enforcement training center for INS inspectors and other federal law enforcement officers. Austin said it didn't cost the INS anything to cancel the conference.

The decision to call off the meetings is a sign of the changing climate in Washington. Opulence in government isn't as stylish as it used to be during the Reagan years. Bureaucrats have long enjoyed traveling on the taxpayers' dime, but the war and its aftermath have put a damper on that. Half a million troops risked their lives to keep Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein from taking control of rich oil fields. Now, fresh from a war and still wrapped in a recession, the whole nation is in a mood to retrench, and government officials are feeling the pressure

They remember the public tongue-lashing President Bush got last summer when he went boating off the coast of Maine after ordering troops to Saudi Arabia. Bush gamely tried to maintain the illusion that the war was not disrupting his life and shouldn't disrupt anyone else's life either, but it did.

The INS has more reason than most government agencies to worry about appearances. Investigative reports from the General Accounting Office have painted an unflattering picture of the way the INS is run.

The GAO found weak and inconsistent management at the INS. Personnel procedures were found to be so lax that many INS inspectors were said to be earning up to $20,000 a year in overtime. The financial operations were projected by the GAO to lose millions of dollars in revenues. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh was so upset about the findings that he appointed a special review committee to oversee a shakeup at the

The INS wisely concluded that the GAO findings aren't the sort of thing that the top INS management should be discussing poolside at the taxpayers' expense.

Greenspan's assessment was echoed in a survey released Wednesday by the Fed's 12 regional banks that showed hints of improvement in such key areas as retail sales, home sales and manufacturing.

"At a time when the risks are for a deeper and longer recession, it is incumbent on the Fed to take aggressive action before and not after bad news." Serbanes said.

Greenspan assured lawmakers that the Fed was monitoring economic developments closely and was prepared to do more if needed to combat the downturn. He specifically mentioned the slowdown in bank lending, which has led to complaints from businesses nationwide that they can no longer qualify for

The Fed's credit-easing efforts have prempted many major banks to lower their benchmark prime lending rate, which is used to set a variety of consumer and business loans, to 9 percent. It was down from 10 percent at the end of last year.

The credit easing has helped to send mortgage rates lower as well. The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported Wednesday that the national average for adjustable rate mortgages dropped to 7.45 per-cent this week, the lowest level recorded since the agency began tracking ARMs in 1984.

Rates for fixed-rate mortgages which have been as low as 9.25 percent in recent weeks, edged up to 9.50 percent, still well below where they were a year

The Bush administration is counting on lower rates to boost housing sales and other business and consumer activity in coming months and lift the country out of the recession.

Thousands without power after big snowstorm hits

By ROGER PETTERSON Associated Press Writer

Thousands were without electricity Wednesday and a state of emergency was declared in six Indiana countles after a storm that blew up blizzard conditions, freezing rain and dust storms across the Plains and Midwest.

Dozens of travelers were stranded when a Minnesota highway was shut down. At least three people were killed in weather-related traffic accidents.

In addition to those affected by the latest storm, occupants of some 11,000 homes were in their 10th day without heat or electricity in the wake of an ice storm that hit western and northern New York state. One elderly woman died of exposure after more than a week without heat in her apartment.

A strong low pressure system produced the stormy weather that swept from the western Plains through the Ohio Valley on Tuesday.

Snow and freezing rain battered Indiana and pulled down power lines, prompting officials to declare an emergency in six counties and one town in the western and central parts of the state.

'No one is to enter or leave," said a dispatcher with the Hamilton County sheriff's department. "It's just ripping power lines down. Power lines and tree limbs are down all over the county."

PSI Energy spokeswoman Pam Chapman said power outages affected about 100,000 customers, or about 17 percent of its 590,000 customers in central Indiana.

Many state and county roads in the area of Lafavette were closed, said state police Sgt. Doug Theobald, whose office was on emergency power.

"We're telling everybody to stay home. Don't try to come into the area at least through tomorrow," Theobald said Wednesday.

Northern Indiana also got up to 10 inches of snow and state police said 2-foot drifts piled up on roads south of Fort Wayne.

Northeastern Illinois also got up to 10 inches of snow that fell in blizzard conditions with near zero visibility, and up to an inch of ice that collected on branches and power lines.

FCC taking another pass

By ROBERT HAYLOR JR. Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The Federal Communications Commission postponed today's scheduled vote on whether to keep barring television networks from the lucrative rerun market. The Item was pulled from today's monthly meeting agenda Wednesday after the Justice Department complained that it had not had enough time to consider an 11th-hour proposal on the rerun issue made by Commissioner Andrew Barrett. The FCC has been considering needed transcripts and other changing the rules since the early 1980s, and it has been heavily lobbled by Hollywood producers, independent TV stations and the major TV networks. Commissioner James Quello said a little more time won't hurt.

'It makes sense to spend some additional time to fully consider students who transfer to a new a plan that surfaced only a week ago," Quello said.

A coalition of independent TV stations, Hollywood studios and independent producers that has pressed the commission to keep the 20-year-old rules intact, said they appreciated the additional time to study Barrett's proposal.

"The compromise proposal ... tilts too far toward the networks. The compromise grants the networks new and dangerous powers they have been correctly prohibited from exercising for 20 years," the Coalition to Preserve GERARD ALFRED MENARD the Financial Interest and Syn-

House authorizes another $30 billion to help S&Ls

By JIM LUTHER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - A compromise bill earmarking $30 billion more in taxpayer money for the bailout of savings and loan depositors is awaiting final negotiations after winning approval but little

"Passing this bill is hardly going to make you a hero in your district ... but you know it is the right thing to do," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., a member of the House Banking Committee.

"We have a leaky faucet on our hands which must be stopped from leaking," said Rep. Chalmers Wylie of Ohio, senior Republican on the panel.

The key vote in the House on Wednesday night was a 213-197 roll call accepting a compromise worked out by congressional leaders and Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady. The amended bill then was approved. 192-181.

On the key vote, 95 Democrats and 118 Republicans supported the compromise; 157 Democrats, 39 Republicans and the lone independent opposed it.

By DANIEL Q. HANEY AP Science Writer

BOSTON - People reluctant to give up smoking for fear they will get fat can take comfort from a report today showing they will probably put on less than 10 extra pounds.

The House measure is quite similar to one passed by the Senate last week. Negotiators are expected to work out differences between the two versions next week and send the final bill to the president for his signature.

walking Rita Frison and Tiffaney Jones and committing four errors.

During the early going, Seminole (2-4) continued its recent improvement defense. Through the first four innings against Eustis. Seminole played nearperfect defense.

"We played great in the field," said Seminole Coach Greg Register, who may have found the steady outfield he's been searching for. "We've found three great outfielders in Latreace Turner, Nakia Riggins and Andrea Ruffin.

"Our infield played great. Argte Walker (Seminole's shortstop) played a real good game defensively.

But then Eustis mounted a comeback, scoring two runs in the fifth inning and five in the sixth while the old Seminole returned, committing nine errors over the final four innings.

"We used to fall behind early and play well late," said Register. "Now it's the opposite. We need to play seven full strong innings.

Lisa McConnell had an RBI single for Eustis as Seminole committed three errors in the two-run fifth inning. In the five-run sixth inning. Demetria Baggett, Mandy Biggano, Stephanie Boren, and Tonya Contris singled for Eustis as Seminole committed three errors. But Seminole did not lose control and kept Eustis from tying the game. For this, Register credited his players' "great attitudes."

The young Eustis Panthers came in tired and mentally drained.

"We played five games in five days and we only had eight days of practice before we played the games." said Coach Ted Gottiried. "We made too many mental errors, which turned into physical errors. Mentally, we were out of it until we started hitting the ball again."

Leading the Seminole offense were Ruffin (triple, single, two runs), Kennon (triple, single, run). Waber (single, two runs). Walker (triple, run, RBI), Frison (run, RBI), Riggins (RBI) and Jones and Turner (one run scored each).

Kidney stones may cause discomfort

DEAR DR. GOTT: Last November. I had two kidney stones. Since then I've experienced mild pain in the right side of my abdomen. X-rays, an upper and lower GI series and fibe: optic look at my large intestines were normal, X-rays revealed mild inflammation and slight scarring of one kidney. Could excess fiber be causing my problems?

DEAR READER: I'm more inclined to blame the effects of the kidney stones than your intestinal tract for your continuing pain. When kidney stones form and are passed down the ureter (the tube leading from the kidney to the bladder), they cause irritation and inflammation, as well as excruciating pain. Although the effects of the stones ordinarily disappear once the acute affliction is over, scar tissue can sometimes appear in the ureter. This can lead to partial blockage, a swollen kidney and persisting discom-

In my opinion, you should be examined by a urologist who will likely perform either an IVP (a special kidney X-ray) or cystoscopy, a procedure during which the specialist uses an instrument to examine the lining of the bladder. At the same time, the urologist may perform a retrograde study, an examination of both ureters to check for obstruction. With this tech-nique, the specialist can determine whether there is persistent swelling, scar tissue and a blocked kidney, which would require additional treatment such as surgery.

Excess dietary fiber can occasionally cause abdominal pains if it results in large, dry stools that are difficult to expel. However, in your case, your doctor has apparently considered (and rejected) this possibility. Therefore, I think it's appropriate to direct attention to your urinary system.

Of course, the pain may be caused by other ailments, too, such as gallstones, disorders of the ovaries and, yes, appendicitis. So, if the urologist pronounces you healthy, you'll have to return to your family doctor for additional testing, such as an abdominal CT scan, a blood count and gallbladder ultrasound examination.

Sometimes you have to choose which of two suits to attack to generate the extra tricks you need. At other times, as in today's deal, you must play on both of your good suits and devide which to lead first.

In a no-trump contract, always two diamonds and one club. Four more tricks must be found. Three can come from spades, and the club suit will generate two or three more. Neither black suit is sufficient in itself; both must be established and cashed.

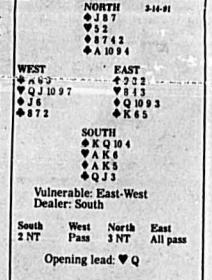

In a team match in Dallas, one declarer ducked the heart queen lead, won the second heart trick and immediately took the club finesse. Disaster! It lost to East's king and another heart came back. With a sinking feeling.

South won and led a spade, but West put up the ace and cashed two heart tricks. One down. At the other table, declarer took the first trick and then led a low spade toward dummy's jack. When the jack held the trick, South called for another spade. West ducked again but had to start by counting your top tricks. Win the third round. With Here there are five: two hearts, nothing better to do. West led nothing better to do. West led another heart. Declarer ducked, won the third heart, and only then took the club finesse.

He didn't care whether it won or lost. If it lost and East had a heart left, the suit must have been 4-4 and he couldn't be defeated. As it was, East had no heart remaining in his hand, and South made an overtrick. His team gained 10 IMPs.

The key was to attack the potential entry of the danger hand, West, first.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 15, 1991

You could be more fortunate than usual in the year ahead in everyone but themselves, inregard to fulfilling your ambitious objectives. This is because both Lady Luck and circumstances will be moving in your favor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you are employed by another. this is not the day to lower your performance level. Your degree of industriousness will be noted. and, if it isn't up to standards. your paycheck may suffer later. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph. c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is not a particularly good day to involve yourself or friends in any type of risky venture with 'iffy" odds. Use your best judgment at all times.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ANNIE

PRE-FABS

GOLLY, I THOUGHT ALL ESKIMOS LIVED IN IGLOOS, LIKE IN TH' PICTURE BOOKS - OR AT LEAST COULD

BUILD 'EM, ETOK!

Discontent on the home front is a strong possibility today: family members may place the blame for things that go awry on cluding you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An indifferent attitude on your behalf might cause you to act without first reviewing the consequences. Try to curb your impulsive instincts today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before the day is over, there is a possibility that your purse might feel like the equivalent of a sieve. Don't compound matters with unnecessary financial extravagance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might have to deal with a rather testy development involving an extremely self-centered individual. Diplomacy and tact on your behalf will help lessen confrontations. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The greatest frustrations that may impede your progress could be self-imposed today. Be very careful not to be the one who puts obstacles in your path.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're involved in some type of group endeavor today, don't allow yourself to be drawn into the middle of the squabblings of friends. This could occur if you let your guard down.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually, you are a very determined person once you set your mind to a specific objective. However, your focus might not be up to par today, and you could veer off course if the going gets tough.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It may not prove wise today to try to make major changes in an arrangement involving others. Conditions are already too confusing and your input could make things worse.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're involved in a collective venture that requires either funding or distribution, be on alert today. Somebody is going to get a good deal, yet it might not be you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In a partnership arrangement today, don't worry too much about your cohort's intentions; be more mindful of your own. If you do what's right, this individual will follow suit.
