Lodge and Son Is One Of Sanford's Leading Grocers

One of Sanford's leading independent grocery merchants, M. J. Lodge has operated the store now known as Lodge & Son, since 1925. He is associated in business with his son, Jesse Lodge, who spent three years with the Third Division Marine Corps, serving overseas for 15 months.

Mr. Lodge, a former city commissioner, opened his first store on Palmetto Avenue with his father, the late I. F. Lodge, later entering into a partnership with the late Mrs. J. T. McClain. The store was then known as Lodge & McClain.

Handling only the well advertised brands of staples and fancy groceries, Lodge & Son is also distributor for the Richelieu brand of fancy canned goods. All Western meats are sold from gleaming white porcelain Frederick floating air cases. The latest installation was the Self Service and Frozen Food case where all lines of frozen foods and dairy products are displayed and easily reached by the customers. Locally grown produce is sold as much as possible, said Mr. Lodge.

The interior of the store, occupying a space of 40 by 60 feet, has all white walls with natural color plywood graduated cases where the merchandise is attractively displayed. Venetian blinds are fitted across the entire store front windows, cutting down the glare while fluorescent lighting gives a maximum of light. The floors are covered with a natural color linoleum and the natural color checking stand is in a U-shape.

Mrs. Lodge acts as cashier for the store while her sister, Mrs. Letha Tatum assists Mr. Lodge in other departments of the store. P. T. Lodge and Jesse Lodge handle the meat department.

Mr. and Mrs. Lodge with their daughter, Mrs. Mary Cash and another son, "Sonny", live in their home at 202 West Twentieth Street. Jesse Lodge and his wife reside at 111 East Eighth Street.

Heavy Rains Spread Northern Floods

CHICAGO, Mar. 22 (AP)—Heavy rains spread floods today over lowland areas of south central New York and northeastern Pennsylvania, driving hundreds of persons from their homes.

A downpour of 2.76 inches at Cleveland, O., flooded thousands of homes in that city, disrupted transportation and power service, and did $100,000 damage at Cleveland's zoo where many animals perished.

The Chenango and northern Susquehanna Rivers spread far out of their banks, reaching some residential area with six to eight feet of water and blocking highways.

At Vestal, N. Y., the Susquehanna was 12 feet above flood stage, and downstream at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., forecasters warned of an imminent 10-foot flood. Nine feet of water above the flood level was predicted for Towanda.

Meanwhile the Mississippi River rose approximately seven feet above flood stage at Quincy, Ill., where volunteer workers labored to strengthen levees.

The Quincy stage reached 21.3 feet, but fair weather over the Missouri and Iowa tributaries eased the threat of a levee break.

Municipal League

It is estimated from page one that taxes be enacted which will amply provide for the needs of municipalities and replace the operating revenue lost by homestead exemption and other constitutional prohibitions against taxation by municipalities.

4. That the legislature give all municipalities the general right and authority to impose whatever taxes, levies or assessments as may not be specifically prohibited by the state constitution.

5. That a constitutional amendment be proposed that will permanently grant and secure to the cities a definite part in the financial structure of the state.

The resolution was presented to the conference on behalf of its pre-legislative committee by Mayor John Marshall Green, Ocala. The committee is headed by C. Harold Hippler, city attorney of Eustis.

Adoption of the resolution was the concluding feature of the conference, which began Saturday.

The seventh cent of the state gasoline tax is authorized every two years by the legislature. Half of its proceeds go to the state's general fund and the other half to schools. It is proposed, in a constitutional amendment to be voted on next November, that the levy as now set up be made permanent.

Salt may be obtained by three methods: evaporation of sea water; evaporation of brine spring water, and by mining rock salt.

Blast Wreaks Havoc In Palestine Street

JERUSALEM, Mar. 22 (AP)—An explosion wrecked the thickly populated Iraq street in the center of the Arab section of Haifa today. A government spokesman said there were "very many casualties." First unconfirmed reports said 17 Arabs were known dead and 60 injured. At least eight houses were destroyed.

Meanwhile at Lake Success, Jewish Agency leaders met in emergency session to plan their fight on the new United States proposal for Palestine trusteeship. Informed quarters said the entire Palestine situation was under review in the light of last Friday's announcement that the U. S. was dropping its support of the Palestine partition plan.

Eaton Talks

It is estimated from page one that deciding when a bill is to be considered in the House.

Eaton told the Rules Committee session, there was an informal understanding that the big foreign aid bill would come up tomorrow. Leaders predicted passage by next week.

Eaton told the Rules Committee members the world is coming to a cross-roads. He said he did not know whether the decision as to which road it will take will be made through armed conflict, "but the possibility is not very remote."

He said: "Sooner or later, slavery and freedom will stand face to face in this world for a decision of who will rule."

In Greece and Turkey, he added, "we certainly are facing a challenge from which it is impossible for us to retreat."

In its report the Foreign Affairs Committee recommended speedy action.

U.M.T.

It is estimated from page one that our trouble, for if the situation continues to worsen and we continue to hope for the best while doing nothing unpleasant, we may lose freedom.

Compton declared that UMT would give America twofold insurance coverage.

"In the first place a strong military posture will be a deterrent to actions of any nation which might provoke war.

"In the second place, if war should occur, then we would have a much better chance of coming through successfully and at less cost."

Questioned about President Truman's request for a limited draft law, Compton said he believes the proposal is a wise one. He endorsed action to bring the armed forces up to authorized strength.

The commission he headed foresaw a possibility that it would not be possible to recruit enough men to fill up the armed forces, he said, and therefore it urged prompt action on universal training.

"Perhaps the delay has been too long and this other supplementary move (a draft) should be taken in the light of world conditions," he said.

Senator Baltusztall (R-Mass.) wanted to know whether the country could bear the cost of universal training on top of what it is already spending for the armed forces.

Compton said it could—that "the amounts we have been talking about, while large, are small compared with what we spend on luxuries each year."

Fortune Exists In Chinese Have New Waste Thrown Out Military Terms In By Fish Canneries Internal Fighting

By VERN HAUGLAND AP Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON—There's a fortune in fish-heads in Alaska and another fortune in fish-tails, fins and viscera.

As of now it's being dumped into the sea or allowed to rot at the canneries. Estimates of its potential value range from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year.

Experts say that about 30 per cent of Alaska's annual salmon catch of 360,000,000 pounds is waste—head, collar, tail, liver and other offal. Government chemists and biologists have determined that this smelly cannery garbage could become a great source of:

- 1. Proteins which may be used as food or for medicinal purposes.
- 2. Oils and vitamin A.
- 3. Meal for the rearing of fish in hatcheries, which in itself is a rising young industry.

In an effort to salvage this waste material and to promote a year-around industry in Alaska, the Commerce Department's Office of Technical Services and the Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service are conducting a $47,000 research program.

First reports tell of investigations by bio-chemists Charles Butler and David Miyachi at Seldovia, Alaska; G. Ivar Jones and Edward J. Carrigan at Seattle, and Roger E. Burrows and Neva L. Karrick at Leavenworth, Wash.

Roe (eggs), mill (male sex substances), digestive organs, heart and fins contain proteins with "very specific properties." Mill, particularly, contains a simple protein, protamine, used to make a modified insulin for treating diabetes.

The head portion of salmon waste has the greatest proportion of oil. The viscera has the major share of vitamin A concentration. The visceral portions of frozen salmon waste are superior to beef liver as meal for growing fish.

Salmon viscera preserved by dehydration suffer serious losses of nutritional factors.

Salmon waste without the viscera produces "very poor growth rates." Fish fed on such a diet were on the verge of acute anemia at the end of 12 weeks.

Alaska's canneries have no facilities for freezing or storing waste, and the cost of building them might be prohibitive. Rejection of waste into meal might be the easiest solution.

However, means must be worked out of preserving the mysterious "factor H," present in salmon viscera but not in salmon flesh, which is essential to life and growth. Studies as to whether and how this can be done are continuing.

PEIPING—Strange new terms have been added lately to the glossary of China's civil war.

One of the latest and most popular is "cubic bombing." This is supposed to denote "bombing from the top and sides" of a given area, presumably square. It apparently is intended to convey the idea of saturation bombing.

This winter there have been references to "freezing warfare." This, according to Chinese explanations, means that government planes circle over Communist-occupied areas for prolonged periods. The theory is that the Communist armies, unable to leave without inviting aerial attack, will freeze to death as they lie motionless. The theory doubtless works better than the practice, but Chinese reporters regard the strategy as faulty.

There also has been reference lately, both in the press and by official spokesmen, to "tunnel warfare."

This derives from the alleged Communist practice of digging underground tunnels for troop hideouts and ammunition depots. The entrances are supposed to be so cleverly camouflaged that detection is difficult.

The nationalists claim they have developed experts in finding and sealing such passages, with the Communists inside.

In originating such odd-sounding phrases, the Chinese are running true to form. During the recent world conflict, several of their terms became famous.

Perhaps the best known of all was "the scorched earth," to denote the policy of destroying everything that would aid or comfort the advancing enemy.

Another, attributed to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, was "waiting space for time."

The Chinese also christened the American Volunteer group the "Flying Tigers."

Another term, not so popular outside China but widely used here, was "magnetic warfare," meaning to draw the enemy into ambush as iron filings are drawn to a magnet. Foreigners said the idea didn't work too well.

Half a dozen bleak, barren Antarctic island groups are in the same general latitude as the U.S. Canadian border, but are chilled by streams of cold water moving up from the Antarctic continent.

Rural Common Sense

By SPUD JOHNSON

Spring-time is a busy season indeed for Florida farmers. Corn, peanuts, cotton, tobacco, and vegetables are being planted. Citrus fruits are being harvested from trees that carry the bloom of next season's crop.

Vegetables of the very early spring crop are going to market. Chickens are being hatched and raised for market or for the laying house next fall. Lusty calves are showing up in increasing numbers on the range. Sows are farrowing. Beef and dairy cattle are munching hungrily on the fresh green pasture growth.

There are many things to keep the farmer busy, and there are some details to which he will do well to pay particular attention in this spring of 1948. The State Agricultural Extension Service lists a few of them:

If there is doubt about adequate pastures for livestock during the summer, spring is the time for planting temporary pasture crops such as cut-tail millet.

Feed is high and all available is needed for animals and poultry. None can be spared for rats, as rat control is necessary for maximum benefits from feed. Feeding according to production and judicious culling also are necessary.

Four out of 10 pigs farrowed are lost before they get to market, which means waste of feed, loss of pork to supply a meat-hungry nation, and generally economic loss to the farmer. Proper farrowing quarters, early immunization against cholera, clean pastures, and adequate all-round care for sows and pigs will reduce these losses.

Food for the family is or should be the first consideration of the farmer, and the home garden should be given much attention now.

Insect pests and diseases become more active with the coming of warm weather, and the wise farmer will be ready to combat them.

The farmer and his family are being called on to produce large crops to help feed this country and to help in the European relief program. Busy months lie ahead, but if rural folks work systematically and do not waste effort and time, they ought to find a little whilow and then to do a little work in the flower garden and in the home grounds and, yes, go fishing, too.

70 Year Old Ship Lookout Has Never Been To Sea Once

By BILL BALDWIN AP Newsfeatures

BAITIMORE—Walter Gellach's slip comes in every day, but he has yet to go aboard.

Gellach, Baltimore's 70-year-old ship lookout, spends eight hours a day thinking, talking and dreaming about ships.

From a shack on north point, at the harbor's entrance, he keeps tabs on port traffic, notifying the maritime exchange in downtown Baltimore of each arrival.

This gives notice to customs men, ship chandlers and agents that their ship will dock within the hour.

Gellach's travels are by proxy aboard tramp steamers spotted through his marine glass and duly recorded in his log. He has never been to sea and never wants to go.

"My only trip on the water was years ago on an excursion boat across Chesapeake Bay," he says. "I'm not interested in going anywhere now."

Gellach leads a snug life in his nine-foot hut atop an old concrete powder house overlooking the harbor, where "you can see anything that come up the bay."

He goes through the day in a rocker by the window, warmed by a kerosene stove, keeping a lookout for tugs, steamers, barges and tows. Some 200 vessels move past his window each month. Gellach identifies each through a four-foot telescope trained on the harbor through one of the narrow slits cut in the walls of the shack.

Recording the time and the name or general description of the vessel in his log, Gellach telephones the maritime exchange.

The reason most ships don't know in advance of their impending arrival is that many skippers do not recognize the spot. At night, when Gellach is not on duty, ships may have to dock without much advance notice.

If all the old well drilled by U. S. oil companies in 1947 could have been placed end to end, they would have passed through the earth 100 and one-half times.

In 1947, the most frequent cause of death among doctors was coronary heart trouble.

BIBLE VERSE TODAY

NO ONE DENIES THIS, BUT SOME IMAGINE THE CREATOR LOST INTEREST IN HIS CREATION AND FORGOT ALL ABOUT IT. THE TRUTH IS THAT THE HAIRS OF YOUR HEAD ARE NUMBERED. GOD IS VERY MUCH PRESENT IN HIS UNIVERSE. (Gen. 1:3) In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

The Democratic Club of Florida has "drafted" Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi as its candidate for President. Whatever else you may say about this choice, you'll have to admit it is an awful kick in the pants for Truman. Personally we'll take MacArthur.

"He that hath a trade hath an estate," says the Florida Apprenticeship Council of the Industrial Commission. Yet its statistics reveal that despite the shortage of labor in most skilled trades, there are only 2,417 apprentices being trained in the whole state. Despite the shortage of printers, there are only 43 being trained. Most young men these days are going to college, but in the years to come a good skilled trade may prove more valuable than a college education.

One of our candidates for governor about whom very little seems to have been said so far is Basil H. Pollitt, Miami attorney. Mr. Pollitt says he favors President Truman's anti-lynching bill though he opposes some of the civil rights program on the grounds that it might bring violence. He pleads in his campaign literature that he expects to spend a part of each year in one of the state institutions and he says he knows how badly some of them are operated as he has been an inmate of one of the mental hospitals.

"Power Politics and How to Play It" might well be the caption for today's editorial. We in this country have enjoyed the comforts of the British Empire on which "the sun never set" and the security of the "Mistress of the Seas" for over a hundred years. We have also enjoyed the luxury of denouncing the British every time they stooped to conquer or resorted to chicanery in their supervision of the world. But the British Empire is through. What the war did not do the Socialists have done. And America trying to take her place is beginning to learn that power politics is not all love and kisses. In the two short years since the war ended, we have had our share of tricks and intrigue. Now we offer Trieste to Italy in order to win the April election. We are not sure we like our new role. There should be, it seems to us, some better way of getting along.

Most veterans, according to the newspapers, agree that universal military training and the Selective Service Act as called for by President Truman are necessary in the face of the trouble abroad, much as they dislike the idea of having to get back into service again. It should be possible, however, to write laws for this purpose which will work a minimum of hardship on individual families. A universal military training law could be enacted which would give a young man the alternative of serving a year in the Army at any time between 18 and 22, that is, either when he finishes high school, or when he finishes college, and which would exempt from such service men who choose to serve three years with the National Guard. And as for the draft act, it should not be necessary even on the temporary emergency basis, to draft married men, or men over 25. That is, unless there is a real war.

Eyes To The South

The State Department will take its mind at least partially off Europe late this month to send a delegation to the Inter-American Conference at Bogota, Colombia, beginning March 30. It may reasonably be expected that some of the southern neighbors will attend the conference prepared to remind Uncle Sam that they, too, have their economic problems.

There are matters of the military defense of the hemisphere to be discussed, and political affairs. All is not rosy in Latin America. Paraguay has been having army and political troubles. Costa Rica has a shooting rebellion, in which the government borrowed warplanes from Nicaragua to help fight the rebels. But economic troubles may overshadow others.

The Latin American nations have dollar troubles, and struggle with the fear of bankruptcy even as the European war victims. Their ministries and business interests have been evolving plans for developing industry, finding new products for export. Such plans require cash, and Uncle Sam will be expected to approach Bogota with his pockets jingling.

Latin America is important to the United States, both politically and economically; yet commitments in other parts of the world may leave little in American funds available for use in this hemisphere at the present time. Some Latin American nations will benefit from Marshall Plan funds, through purchases of their goods.

Secretary Marshall and other members of the United States delegation to Bogota may have a thorny path to tread in satisfying the Latins. American eyes, in these troubled days, do turn sometimes to the south. But Uncle Sam's pockets are not bottomless and at the moment ERP seems to be first.

Health In The Country

City people do not live as long as country folk, on the average, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reports. Urban life moreover, is relatively harder on men than on women.

"The death rate in cities and towns is higher than in rural areas by about one-fourth among white males and by only one eighth among white females," the Metropolitan notes. "Almost every cause of death shows a higher mortality among city dwellers. For the heart diseases, the leading cause of death, the excess mortality amounts to about 40 percent among the men and to about 30 percent among the women. For the diseases of the coronary arteries, the excess is even greater.

"The mortality from tuberculosis among white males is about 20 percent higher in urban than in rural areas, but among the females the situation is reversed. The higher tuberculosis death rate among urban males may be explained by their greater exposure to contacts and to occupational hazards. Urban women, on the other hand, generally lead more sheltered and less strenuous lives than do women in rural areas. Moreover, women in cities and towns bear fewer children than rural women, and hence are less subject to the complicating hazards of pregnancy.

"The excess urban death rate from all causes combined is limited to ages 35 and over. The reverse situation at the ages under 35 may reflect the less adequate medical and public health facilities available to those living in rural areas," the Metropolitan concludes.

News In The Usual

Usually it's the unusual that makes news. There's that old stock phrase about the "man biting the dog" that makes the headlines. But here are some figures -- the result of a nationwide survey -- proving that the commonplace can be newsworthy, too.

During 1948, about 35,700,000 couples won't get divorced. Some 88,480,710 motor vehicle owners and passengers will drive about 360,000,000 miles -- without getting killed.

It's necessary to ride a train an average of 996,000,000 miles to get yourself killed, and some 13,500,000 air travelers flew over United States territory last year without injury.

Latest figures indicate that more than 7,100,000 World War II veterans have never received veterans' unemployment compensation -- more familiarly known as 52-20 benefits. And many millions of workers stayed on the job all last year without resorting to strikes and walkouts.

Yes, it's good to be reminded, on some of these gloomy news days, that the best things in life are not only free, but seldom appear in the headlines. --Tampa Tribune

SANFORD FORUM

Editor The Herald: With hot summer weather coming on, if we have a cow tied out to pasture, let us see if that part of the day it is out of the sun and in a shady place with plenty of good water to drink.

We heard of a cow that had been tied out in the hot sun every day last summer that jumped upon her keeper when he came for her at night time. Bright cow we say. If you don't think so put on a fur coat and let someone stake you out all day in the sun with little or no water, lots of flies and not much to eat. If I wager you, too, will feel like jumping upon the fellow who put you there when he comes to get you at night.

A writer once said, "Let me see how a fellow treats his dog and I can tell you the kind of man he is." If you have a dog, be kind to him. A dog is man's best friend. Do unto him as you would choose to be done by. Put his house in a shady spot; give him enough to eat and plenty of water. Don't keep him confined all of the time.

If you are to be away from home get someone to care for him in your absence. Let him be one of the family. If you do this he will not howl and cry for nights and days and cause your neighbors to wonder what sort of people you are. If you do not love a dog, do not have one. They are entitled to kindness.

It is a great source of pleasure to water and feed the birds and they more than repay for this thoughtfulness. Dumb animals depend upon man for food and drink. Let us be kind to them for the kindness we give will return to us a hundred fold.

Cub Scouts, Pack 10 Have Kite Contest

Cub Scouts of Pack 10 competed in a kite flying contest Saturday afternoon in Fort Mellon Park, and a number of fine prizes, donated by local merchants, were given to winners. All kinds of kites were entered, from the tiny "broom straw" type to the big, beautiful box kite. Many of the mothers and fathers were on hand to assist and advise their sons in the fine art of kite flying.

Those winning prizes were Marvin McKinley, who was awarded an "electric" steam engine donated by Rockey's Tree Shop; Kenneth Ramsey received a book on "Cubbing" donated by Yowell's; Wayne McCoy received a water machine gun donated by McCrory's. A scout knife and belt given by Perkins-Robson, Inc. was awarded to Robin Brown. Tommie Wyatt received a fountain pen donated by Touchton's Drug Store. John Bowen won a flash light from an anonymous donor.

The regular pack meeting will be held Friday, Apr. 2, instead of next Friday, due to the fact that it falls on Good Friday.
