Downtown Facelift: Sanford Group Names Coordinator For Next Phase Of Restoration Plan

By LEONARD KRANSORF
Herald Staff Writer
Buildings in downtown Sanford are "in good shape but just need a little painting, need to be cleaned up a bit or just a minor facelift."
These are the words of Gerry Gross, a Winter Park architect and contractor who was selected Thursday to coordinate the next phase of the downtown restoration project.
Gross, 31, will have specific duties to perform during a 30-day probationary period and his success in those areas will determine whether he is hired on a permanent basis, according to Sara Jacobson, who along with Shirley Moak has served as project manager for downtown restoration on behalf of the Greater Sanford Development Corporation, Inc.
Gross will evaluate the designs and cost figures which have been developed for the 11 buildings targeted for restoration. Additionally, he will meet with the property owners to develop a schedule for the restoration.

plan of the downtown area."
Once the restoration is completed, Gross will have the option of developing the plans for the landscaping by the city.
The city agreed to participate in the restoration of public property once at least as property owners agreed to the private restoration.
For Miss Jacobson the selection of Gross will give her an opportunity to return full-time to her contractor and interior design business.
"I feel that because Gerry is not just a tradesman but is knowledgeable about restoration, the coordination of the project can be turned over to him without jeopardy," said Miss Jacobson, who noted she will still serve on the corporation's board.
She added that Gross will "serve as a coordinator who will be a persistent reminder to the property owners that it can happen, and it's not just talk."

The Plan: Speeding Up Emergency Services

By MAX ERILETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

Rural areas lend themselves to a lifestyle different than urban areas. They are said to be generally more peaceful and removed from tension.
They are also removed from highly technical medical facilities which might mean the difference between life and death in an emergency situation.
However, the "gap" between emergency services for urban and rural areas may be closing in Seminole and four other counties in east central Florida. The Department of Health.
The money is directed to be used where it is most needed.

MACK LAZEBNY WITH DAMAGED WATER METER AND RATE BOOK

Break It, You Pay?

The city of Sanford spends an estimated $2,000 a year to repair damaged water meters which often are vandalized by property owners to repair or pay for repairs to damaged water meters.
But if that city official, Mack LaZebny, city engineer and utility director has his way, the person whose name the account is in will be paying to repair them in the future.
LaZebny is preparing a policy program he said he'll present to city commissioners for approval - one which will require property owners to repair or pay for repairs to damaged water meters.
The issue is expected to come before city commissioners during one of three scheduled public hearings before commissioners adopt a final budget. Hearing dates are Aug. 28, Sept. 11 and Sept. 25.
LaZebny said average cost to repair vandalized water meter has been $30.
Holding a damaged water meter in his hand, he pointed to where the glass had been broken and the meter vandalized to illustrate his point.
It's just depressing to know that people would do something like this," said LaZebny. "Those few who do it could make it bad for the rest."

SIZING UP HIS FUTURE?

Chris Pedersen still hasn't made up his mind what he wants to be when he grows up, but he hasn't ruled out the life of a fireman - especially after he got a chance to try part of that life on for size when he visited children at the story hour at the Altamonte Springs Fire Department.
Education and Welfare is pouring $251,211 into Seminole, Volusia, Broward, Orange and Osceola Counties for the development of an emergency medical services program which would cut response time and ensure better emergency treatment to those needing it.
The East Central Florida Regional Emergency Medical Services Council (REMESCO) will administer the program through the five counties. REMESCO is a non-profit agency with three Seminole County representatives serving on its board. They are Drs. Benjamin

Chlorine Gas Routs 1,000, Injures 27

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) - At least 27 people, including three fire chiefs, were injured and nearly 1,000 evacuated today as a cloud of lethal hydrogen chloride gas sprang from a railroad tank car drifted over a semi-residential area on the west side.
Police Information Officer Mike Gould said most of the injured from inhaling the poisonous fumes were not in serious condition. They were treated at six Jacksonville hospitals.
The leak occurred when a worker, identified as Sam Smith, opened the lid on the tank car about 7 a.m. Smith reportedly suffered a burned throat when he inhaled the toxic fumes.
Robert Webb, vice president of Union Camp Corp., said the gas was escaping from a 30,000-gallon capacity car owned by Dew Chemical Co.

The Sanford Police Department - 11 Days Later

By DENNIS FIEDLA
Herald Staff Writer
It has been less than two weeks since the surprise firing of Sanford Police Chief Wallace LaPeters and since then some major changes have taken place within the department.
Three administrative officers of the department say the changes have improved morale, efficiency and police protection in the community.
The changes were initiated by City Manager Warren E. Knowles who has personally taken charge of policy and protection during certain hours."
The administrative division of the department has been cut from six to three persons including Butler and two captains. Lt. Paul Whitley and administrative aide Steve Harnett serve in that capacity along with Bernady.

DEAR DR. LAMB - We need your advice. My husband has high blood pressure and takes one Hydroflurid and one Agresin each day. Recently he read an article that said a drink of alcohol a day is good for high blood pressure so in the evening he takes a shot of whiskey. He says it helps him relax. I am worried that it doesn't mix with his medication. What is your opinion?

DEAR READER - I really hate to see anyone develop a regular alcohol habit such as a drink a day for any reason. An occasional social cocktail is one thing but a regular habit is somewhat undesirable. There are studies that show that at least drinking moderate to excessive amounts of alcohol increase the likelihood of having high blood pressure. There was also a spate of news stories not too long back about drinking protecting people from heart attacks.

I'm sorry to say that the new stories weren't really representative of the true nature of the scientific articles that were published in medical journals and dwelled upon the sensational rather than the factual. The truth is that individuals having one to two drinks a day in one study showed a lower instance of heart attacks than those who did not drink. The rest of the story is that those who drank more had an increased rate of heart attacks. Associated with the mechanism were changes in the blood fat composition which may be related to a decrease in the amount of circulating male hormones in those who used the alcohol.

WIN AT BRIDGE By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag South looked over dummy and was mighty glad to see that he had placed the contract in diamonds. At either diamonds or spades the contract would make if only one spade were lost, but South had two reasons to be happy with the diamonds. The first and important reason was that a 4-1 spade break might hurt a spade declarer; a 4-1 diamond break would hurt a diamond declarer. There was a 4-1 spade break and a heart lead, a second heart would force South to ruff and there would be two trump losers no matter how well the hand was played. South had no trouble at six diamonds. He won the trick lead, drew trumps and led the four of spades toward dummy. Since West held both spade honors there was no way for South to go down. "I thought the correct play would have been to lead spades twice from dummy," said North. "Why didn't you make that play?" "It's lucky I didn't," replied South. "My plan was to play the nine from dummy and if that lost to a hypothetical jack in the East hand, I would then lead a spade from dummy and finesse. This would only lose if East held the jack, West the king and was smart enough to duck with it."

Evangelism A La Karate

Evangelist Dean Blakeney, an expert in Karate, is performing at Victory Baptist Church, corner of Hester Avenue and Route 477, at 4:45 and 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday, and 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday. Although it might seem strange to mix religion and karate, Blakeney does just that. An expert in the Japanese Samura sword, Turkish Kuzie knife, Filipino Bolo knife and Vietnamese sword, he compares his sword to the Bible, the sword of God. He says his sword cuts fruit, but the Word of God cuts into a man's heart. While at Victory Baptist he is scheduled to sever a watermelon on a man's stomach with a razor sharp Samura sword, break a loaf of concrete with his hand, slice a banana from a man's neck and have 30 pounds of concrete smashed from his stomach with a sledgehammer while lying on a bed of spikes.

'Good Samaritans' Needed

Newspapers carried the headline, "Last Blind Man Ignored." As the article went on, a 70-year-old blind man got on a bus in Miami to ride to West Palm Beach. About 19 miles short of his destination, he was mistakenly got off the bus. When he discovered he was in the wrong city, he felt around for a bench and sat down and started asking for help from the passerby. As he later related, "I cried for people to call the police, but nobody listened. I didn't know where I was, so I prayed and hoped help would arrive."

How To React To Rudeness

Question: I try to be a good Christian in my daily life, but I see so much rudeness and disrespect everywhere I go that it's really getting to me. How should I react to this kind of thing without letting people walk all over me? Answer: Your question reminds me of an incident related by a young mother. Her day began with spilled milk and lemons; the wife was flat, and the children were ready for school. The baby was sick, and the nurse in the doctor's office was talking and laughing to carry out the groceries, and the bicycling wasn't finished. By the time she got home that afternoon, she was so upset that she could change her mood. As she related and asked God to quiet her jangled nerves, she seemed to see bright and sparkling jewels. What did they mean? Deep inside her God said, "These are my precious jewels which I have placed before you to care for. They represent my children... the ones who have been so rude and unkind to you today." Then she remembered Malachi 3:17, "They shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels."

Hunt, whose No. 8 jersey was retired at A&M following his illustrious college career, died Monday. Following his career at A&M, Hunt served as a salesman for Wilson Sporting Goods.

"Joel was probably one of the best backs that's ever been in this league, no doubt about that," said Dallas businessman Field Scovell, one of Hunt's teammates.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Pete Rose says he loves big home crowds — they get him revved up.

Texas Runs Red Sox Out As Matlack Beats Tiant

By United Press International
Los Matlack didn't feel too well and Mike Hargrove doesn't like to hit against Luis Tiant, but the Texas Rangers still managed to run the Boston Red Sox out of town Thursday night.

Matlack raised his record to 6-4 with an eight-hitter over the faltering Red Sox, who dropped the two-game set to Texas and have now lost eight of their last 10. Hargrove's sixth homer of the year followed Bump Wills' sixth in the fifth inning.

"It was the same tonight as it was my last few starts," said Matlack, who has been fighting a head cold as well as poor hitting support from his teammates. "I had to be damned careful tonight but it's a lovely feeling to win a ballgame for a change."

The one-run performance lowered Matlack's earned run average to 2.11, second best in the majors to New York's Ron Guidry. Tiant's record fell to 7-3.

"I really don't like to hit against Tiant," said Hargrove. "He's got four different pitches and throws 'em from 15 different motions."

Sam Bowen's first major-league homer accounted for the only Red Sox run. The third Texas run came after Butch Hobson's error in the fourth inning.

In the National League, San Diego topped Pittsburgh, 6-3, and Houston dumped New York, 8-1, in the only games scheduled.

Yankees 11-4, Indians 6-17: Reggie Jackson celebrated his return to right field by driving in three runs in the opener with two singles and his 15th homer to lead the Yankees to their first game.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 3: Mike Cubbage hit for the cycle and drove in four runs and newcomer Stan Perzanowski pitched a six-hitter in his debut to win it for Minnesota.

Orioles 7, Tigers 3: Gene Richards' sacrifice fly and Orzie Smith's third single accounted for two seventh-inning runs that lifted San Diego to its third straight victory over Pittsburgh.

Astros 8, Mets 3: Enos Cabell and Bob Watson each drove in two runs and J.R. Richard, 19-6, pitched his third two-hitter of the season to lead Houston.

Altamonte Rained Out; To Play On Saturday

DeLAND — Rain was a winner for the second straight day Thursday as the District 14 Little League finale between Altamonte Springs and West Volusia was washed out again.

"The game has been rescheduled for 11 a.m. in DeLand.

"We tried four different fields, and they were all under water," said Altamonte Springs manager Ralph Cochran. "There was an 80 percent chance of rain, so we decided not to even bother with rescheduling it for Friday. It doesn't usually rain at 11 a.m., anyway. In the event Saturday's game is rained out, Altamonte Springs will play Sunday morning, and if it wins, drive to Miami for the state tournament in the afternoon.

Burt Bombs With Poles

Burt Reynolds kills his new movie "The End," as a comedy — but the Polish American Guardian Society isn't laughing. The Chicago-based anti-defamation group is suing on grounds the film represents "an irresponsible violation of the motion picture production code."

Group President Leonard Jarach doesn't say exactly what the suit will ask, but he does say the film defines the Polish people as "being stupid and vulgar" — and he adds, "Possibly the most irresponsible action in that movie is where they ridicule the Polish national anthem. The movie is deliberately offensive to the Polish people of this country, almost the world."

Putt-Putting: A Carpet Of Fun For The Family

PUTT-PUTT PUTTERS

Text by Jim Haynes

BO DAVIS, 2 1/2, IN ACTION

There was a day when Putt-Putt was synonymous with a spitting motorboat. Or the sound junior blurted out as he pushed his toy locomotive across the playroom floor.

No more.

Putt-Putt has quietly taken its spot near the top of the heap in this nation's multi-colored spectrum of family-participation sports.

While Putt-Putt is obviously carpet golf, it is not to be confused with its rival, which relies on dinosaurs, five-rail slots and sheer luck.

Putt-Putt courses are easily recognized as straightaways for the most part, with a few wrinkles like hills and slopes which challenge the putter to utilize perfect speed and placement to get a hole-in-one.

And therein is the big difference in Putt-Putt and its competitor. Not only is every hole designed to be ace'd, but regulars get as good as some of the holes they are known as "automatics."

The Fern Park Putt-Putt is the most successful course in the Orlando area, its business outdoing rival courses in Orlando in Pine Hills. Fern Park and Pine Hills course owner Clarence Daniels points to the family appeal as the primary asset.

"It is a family recreation," says Daniels. "It's the game where you don't have to leave mom and the kids in the clubhouse. And you'd be surprised how often the wife is the one who comes in with the best score."

Most customers score a little over par, which is two shots per hole. Weekly tournaments are staged on each course, and those regulars come up with 20-30-year rounds which are astounding. A good score for a 94-hole round play tournament would be in the low eighties, or something like an ace on every other hole.

The poppa of this game is Dan Clayton, who formed the potential in 1964 while standing in a long line to play on a nine-hole course in Fayetteville, N.C. He eliminated the type holes where the ball goes into the dragon's mouth and trickles out its tail.

As family and neighborhood competition grew, so evolved the Professional Putters Association. Some 200 pros played in the first PPA championship in Atlanta in 1969, featuring a $5,000 purse.

Just last month at Columbus, Ohio, the World Putting Championship was held and the prizes totaled $30,000. The winner, Buddy Taylor of Baltimore, claimed $10,000. Today is offered in Europe, Rhodesia and Japan. There are 216 franchises in the U.S.

Central Florida's putters have distinguished themselves in the putting world, with Mike Pfeiffer and Gary English two of the more feared names of national tournaments across the country.

Pfeiffer, 27-year-old furniture store manager, has been a finalist in two world tournaments. He had two qualifying spots last month at Columbus, but bowed out of contention early, picked up $1,200. The Seminole County resident is known for his consistency.

English, who owns the Oak and Drive course, is called The Bear, and for good reason. He is a regular in the top spots in tournaments and also gained two spots at Columbus. That, with a strong showing in the national tournament, brought him close to $2,000 in Columbus.

Bette As 'The Rose': It's One Big Party

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Parties are parties, even parties staged for movies.

They have a tendency to become infectious, to infect even the actors and crew members with a sense of fun and games.

That may be the explanation for what was happening at 30th Century-Fox, where director Mark Rydell was putting his company through a party for his new film, "The Rose."

That's the picture that is

already famous because it is the vehicle for Bette Midler's movie debut.

The scene is St. Louis. Miss Midler, as The Rose, a big-time rock singer of the late '40s, has just knocked them dead in a concert.

Now, backstage, there is a party.

Alan Bates, as The Rose's manager, is shepherding VIP guests — the police chief, the midwestern sales rep — through and Frederic Forrest, as The Rose's boyfriend, is solicitously worried that she is overindulging in the "70s man club."

So the party scene is important. And Rydell is staging it carefully, choreographing every move.

There are musicians, as they are (supposedly) smoking marijuana and snuffing cocaine.

And Rydell interpolates bits of that kind of business for the camera to pick up, as it moves through the crowd.

He calls for more grass. The prop men have a plastic sack of joints he passes out. I leaned over to have a closer look at them, and he let me smell. Tobacco.

BETTE MIDLER: 'THE ROSE'

And yet, as the day wore on, there was a small in the air that was definitely not nicotine.

It was the real thing, and the party-goers, or some of them, were having an increasingly high old time.

Rydell opened the scene with the camera in close on a cake on the table, a big cake that was decorated with sugar roses and sugar words: ROSE WELCOMES ST. LOUIS. At first, the cake was whole, but then he suggested the prop men cut a wedge out of it.

As the camera looked at the cake, he wanted to see an extra's hand grab a big hunk of cake and then have the extra stuff it in his mouth.

The scene was shot, perhaps, a dozen times and the prop extra had to eat a big mouthful of cake each take.

There were bits of the gossamer cake all over the floor, and Rydell stopped in some as he moved around. The icing got on his shoes and he bent down to brush it off.

"Can you believe this?" he said. "Seven hundred dollar shoes full of cake!"

Each time the camera rolled, the director made sure that each of the extras knew what he was doing, that each was supplied with whatever prop he needed, whether it was a drink or a plate of food or a pinch of coke.

She and the rest of the production team are making a big point that she is not — repeat, not — playing Janis Joplin, although there are definite similarities between Joplin and The Rose.

"The Rose is a composite of many '60s performers," says Marvin Worth, the coproducer (with Aaron Harman).

But Worth also says that he has been working on this project for four and a half years and that it was Joplin who inspired it.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I have a Sony Betamax cassette tape player. I am interested in purchasing a Sony Betamax cassette tape of the last Carol Burnett Show. Could you please inform me as to where I could get one? J. W. MCLEMORE, JR., Wimsboro, La.

As far as I can tell, you can't get one anywhere — legally. The networks are not permitting their shows, understandably, they can make more by re-running them or syndicating them to TV stations. So your only chance is to find a pirated copy — and that means big trouble if you're caught. The networks are cracking down on pirates, just as the film companies are.

DEAR DICK: Is it true you don't give any addresses? C. K. Kalamason, Mich.

Yes. If I started, my column would be cluttered with nothing but addresses. I wouldn't give home addresses anyhow — even if I knew them — and, anyway, you can write your favorites in care of their TV network or movie studio or recording company, and they'll eventually get the letter.

DEAR DICK: Since the episode when Mary went blind on "Little House on the Prairie," did the series end or is it being "untimely"? There only seem to be re-runs now. J. ALLEN, Victoria, B. C. C., Can.

The always are only re-runs in the summer. But "Little House" will be back next fall, with the family first moving away and then, later, moving back home again.

DEAR DICK: I was so happy to learn from your column the name of the Lowenbraun commercial singer, Arthur Prysock. A great voice. Now could you tell me — has he made any records and where might I acquire them? R. E. HOLLAND, Ogdes, Utah.

Prysock is a veteran, and has made quite a few records over the years. I don't think he's made any lately — at least, I have no record of his records — but some of his oldies should still be available. Check your record store; they ought to be able to order them for you if they're not in stock.

DEAR DICK: When does taping start and end for most television shows? About how many episodes are they required to make? It seems like some shows start re-runs sooner than others. ROBERT SCHUSTER, Constantine, Mich.

The average show starts shooting in July, and works for six months, until January. There are many exceptions to that rule, of course, but that's basically it. They are supposed to do 26 episodes, but more often than not there are some pre-empted during the season and they usually have no more than 23 or 24 episodes on the air in a season. The shows that are pre-empted the fewest number of times start re-runs sooner, that's all.

DEAR DICK: Our local paper carried a picture of "Jimmy Durante" and said he was recovering from a respiratory illness. Is this the original comedian, Jimmy Durante? How old is he now? I was under the impression he passed away a number of years ago. EPHRIAM HUSTAND, Miami, Okla.

That's the one, the only, the original, the great Jimmy Durante. He's been ill, off and on, for several years now, and hasn't made an appearance of any kind lately. But he's still in there fighting — at 85.

DEAR DICK: Which one was built first — Disneyland in California or Disney World in Florida? DENISE WHITEHEAD, Tucson, Ariz. Ours, here in California, was the first.

'How Did You Get Out Of Back Of TV?'

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — When Gordon talks, children listen. Gordon, one of the human stars of public television, says a square is different from a triangle and leads them through their letters and numbers.

Playing Gordon leads to respect him as an actor, Orman said, but he thinks the character has changed him as a person.

"Kids are so honest, so direct, that they've probably made me more so, too. When I do this show, I couldn't help

But Roscoe Orman, the New York-born actor who has played Gordon for the last five years, says it's only natural for his fans to be a little awed by seeing him in person. After all, when they see him every day at home, he's only a few inches tall.

"They get so used to seeing all of us on TV, it's hard for them to adjust to seeing us in person," he said during a St. Louis County stop on a nationwide tour. "They wonder how you ever got out of the back of the TV in the first place."

Besides, he said, it's easy for him to tell an audience to stand up, clap, or hands and hush so he can sing a quiet song.

"I don't have to deal with them 24 hours a day, like their parents do," he said. "That's another job altogether."

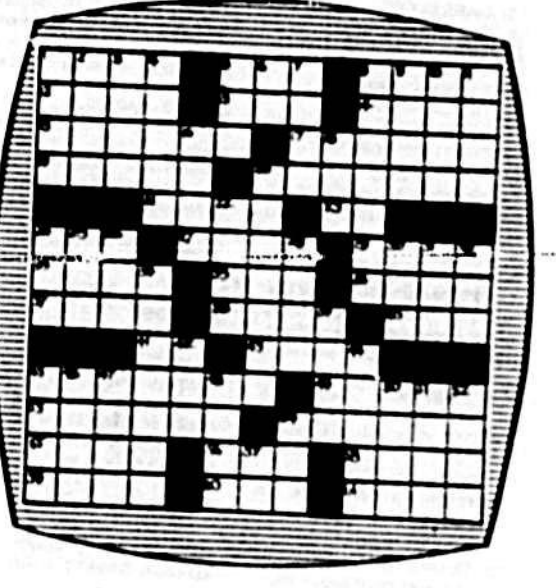

Orman, a veteran of 15 years in the theater, still has time for off-Broadway shows because his Sesame Street studio work takes only four months out of the year. He makes occasional stops at shopping centers to sing songs, talk with fans and hand out autographed pictures.

It's not always easy being a superstar to the preschool crowd. When he's walking with his own wife and 3½-year-old daughter, Orman said children often spot him and give him a strange look, wondering why he's not with Sesame, his wife on the show.

Not even a floppy hat and megaphone he carries to avoid recognition work all the time, he said. On a recent Sunday morning, he tried to have breakfast by himself in a restaurant in Indiana. As soon as he sat down, the autograph line began to form.

"The first thing in the morning, you don't want to have to deal with that," he said. "But you have to either excuse yourself graciously or just grin and bear it."

Nancy Walker: Singer To TV Mom

As Ida Morgenthau, Nancy Walker is mother to two daughters each week on CBS' "Rhoda."

She was born on May 16 in Philadelphia, Pa., to Dorey and Myrtle Baro, a famous vaudeville team.

As a child, she toured Europe with her parents. Her formal schooling was at New York's Professional Children's School.

Although she studied to be a serious singer, Miss Walker never utilized her real talent fully until producer George Abbott witnessed her audition for "Beat Foot Forward" and realized her true forte was comedy.

For her, he built up the "blind date" role in that musical from five lines to a

NANCY lead part — and Nancy Walker was discovered "overnight."

MGM brought Miss Walker to Hollywood to repeat her role in the movie version of the play and kept her on for a series of box-office successes such as "Girl Crazy" and "Broadway Rhythm."

She returned to Broadway to star as the lady cab driver in "On the Town" and, later, in many other smash hits, including "Pal Joey," "Wonderful Town," "The Girls Against the Boys," "Along With Me," and "The Boy Friend."

Miss Walker has appeared on most major television shows as actress, comedienne, singer or dancer.

She created the role of Ida Morgenthau on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and directed a segment of that series, her first experience in directing television comedy.

Miss Walker was also a regular on "McMillan and Wife." The role won her the American Women in Radio and Television's "Gemini" Award in 1975.

Miss Walker starred in two television series, "The Nancy Walker Show" and "Blansky's Beauties."

She is 5'11" tall, weighs 110 pounds, and has brown eyes and reddish brown hair.

Miss Walker lives in Studio City, Calif., with her husband, David Craig, a musical theater coach. Their daughter, Miranda, is married and lives in New York.

'Luke' Can't Escape From Peerers

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Mark Hamill says the peering people and craning crowds got so bad he just had to get away from it all for a while. "Star Wars" had made him a star, and he needed a respite.

"So I went to Bora-Bora with Mary Lou," he says. Mary Lou is a long-time girl friend, a dental hygienist he's been going with long before "Star Wars" happened. "I wanted to find a place where nobody knew me, where I could get away from it all."

He rented a house off the beach, sitting high and alone on stilts in the crystal clear South Pacific. And then one day he woke up to the sound of a motor of some kind, and he looked out and there was a speedboat headed for him.

And, driving the speedboat, was Darth Vader, the black-masked villain of "Star Wars."

Wars." And Darth Vader was waving at him enthusiastically.

So much for getting away from it all.

Darth Vader, that day, was a naive who had gone to Hawaii, seen the movie, become a big fan, and wore his Darth Vader mask everywhere. When he heard that Mark Hamill — Luke Skywalker — was there, he got in his speedboat, put on his mask and rode around and around the house for hours, waving happily.

"When you're hot, you're hot," says Hamill. "It's so hot he stalks. The movie made him famous and, happily, also made him reasonably well-off, financially."

He says that George Lucas, the man behind "Star Wars," gave him "a quarter of a point" — one-quarter percent — and he says that mounts up pretty well when you have a property that has grossed the millions "Star Wars" has. "I have already received two checks," Hamill says, "and they were the largest checks I've ever seen."

But, in some ways, he is slightly disappointed in the effect of "Star Wars" on his career.

He had imagined that, once the film became the blockbuster it did, he would be deluged with an unending procession of excellent scripts.

"I expected the 'Star Wars' thing to lead to more than it has," he says. "I do have a pile of scripts, but most of it is garbage. You know — I don't want to mention names — but the kind of thing where I am making out with a girl in the back seat of a car and they tell me not to worry, it will be done to good taste."

He found one thing he liked. It was called "Blincy," but after it was finished they changed the title to what it is now, "Corvette Summer." He hates both titles, but likes the film, in which he co-stars with Annie Potts.

And pretty soon he'll leave for locations in Ireland and Israel to star with Lee Marvin in "The Big Red One."

He says that marks another departure for him — "at least this time I'll be grown up, one of the men."

The overnight success of Hamill in "Star Wars" was, like all overnight successes, the result of years of tough, slugging work.

He was in TV for several years, guest-starring in more than 100 episodic TV shows, plus nine months as a regular on a soap opera, "General Hospital." So he'd done his duty.

When he was approached to play Luke Skywalker in "Star Wars," he was told that Lucas had long-range plans for the character in the film. There would be, if all went well, sequels — perhaps many sequels.

"I knew that George was planning sequels," Hamill says. "I figured I should look as young as possible in the first one, so I'd have room to grow for the others. I think Lucas already has 18 sequels planned."

"I've seen sketches for a lot of them. He has them all lined up in his office. 'Star Wars' I signed to do three and now he wants me to do a fourth. They're starting work now on the miniature and models for the second one."

"Star Wars," obviously, has changed his life.

It has, in fact, totally turned it around.

Before, he was one of those actors who took anything that came along, to make a living. Now, though, because of his fame and financial semi-independence, he is very selective. He can afford to be.

"Star Wars" also made his face familiar. Maybe too familiar.

He won't tell anybody where he lives — "Carrie Fisher made that mistake, and she eventually had to give her bed away" — but some kids find out anyway.

"They follow me home," he says. "They keep peering in the window. The last street where he lives — 'Carrie Fisher made that mistake, and she eventually had to give her bed away' — but some kids find out anyway."

"They follow me home," he says. "They keep peering in the window. The last street where he lives — 'Carrie Fisher made that mistake, and she eventually had to give her bed away' — but some kids find out anyway."

'Tut, The Boy King: Revisit To 3,000 Years Ago

About 3,000 years ago, a boy-king ruled in Egypt. Tutankhamun, or King Tut, died at the age of 18 and was interred in a modest tomb.

Whether the tomb was over shadowed by the more opulent burials of wealthier kings or was simply forgotten, Tutankhamun's tomb is unique in that it was untouched until British archaeologists opened it up in 1922.

Unlike other ancient Egyptian tombs, Tutankhamun's burial site preserved his personal treasures, the interior decorations and a rich record of life in the ancient Nile kingdom.

On Thursday, Aug. 3, the NBC special, "Tut: The Boy King," will be rebroadcast with Drew Welles, as host. Welles chronicles the treasures of Tut's tomb as he peruses the exhibit which is touring the U. S.

The special was taped at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D. C. The first stop in this country for the exhibit, which has also visited Chicago, New Orleans and Los Angeles, it will be in Seattle July 18-November 18 and in New York City December 15, 1979-April 15, 1980.

The 3,000-year-old tomb of Tutankhamun, which housed the unmatched treasures shown during the telecast, was discovered in 1922 by archaeologist Howard Carter. Photographs taken at the time of the excavation (blown up to mural size for the exhibit) are included in the special.

ORSON WELLES AND KING TUT

Some of the 5,000 precious artifacts from the tomb which are shown during the program include: the young king's elaborate drinking cup, jewelry, a flexible gold collar, a mythical bird made of clear blue glass, wooden statuary which represents the boy king, Tut's cartouch (an oval ring with his embossed name and other identifications) and two balls of hair wrapped in linen. "Some say a wedding contract," Welles explains.

Welles offers some of the background of Tutankhamun. "He came to power some 3,000 years ago when he was 8 or 9 and his life was short. All we really know is he was 18 or 19 when he died. His tomb was modest size, and it was richly furnished, laden with varied articles and ornamented with a panoply of royal life."

Tut was born about 1343 B.C. and historians do not know how he died. When the tomb was opened, headlines in newspapers around the world proclaimed a so-called "curse" thought to be "responsible for the death of the fifth Earl of Carnarvon, who sponsored the excavation."

George A. Heintzmann, Vice President and General Program Executive, NBC-TV, was executive producer of the program, which won a Peabody and a Christopher Award. Sid Smith was the director.

The script was written by W. W. Lewis. The line producer was Joseph P. Calio.

The Striegel Case & Al-Ateen

'You Feel Like You Got A Rotten Break In Life'

By DENNIS FEOLA
 Herald Staff Writer

Seventeen-year-old Scott Michael Striegel murdered his mother.

"You feel hate, anger. You feel like you got a rotten break in life." The speaker is 15-year-old...

"You want to get even for the pain that you've suffered, for the pressure that you've suffered. But, most people keep it inside."

Terri, the speaker, and young

Striegel, shared a similar problem. Both had parents who had drinking problems.

Striegel walked into his mother's bedroom as she slept and shot her to death.

Terri got help from Al-Ateen, a Seminole County program affiliated with Alcoholics Anonymous, for teenagers who have parents who are alcoholics.

"The disease of alcohol causes such a pervasive type of harm," Gerald Rutberg, Striegel's attorney said.

"The young man was under a great deal of pressure, for a great deal of time."

"It's not the kind of thing everyone was aware of, except within the four walls of the Striegel home," Rutberg said. "It certainly contributed to an explosive situation."

"If anything good comes from this case, perhaps there's a lesson for others," the attorney said.

According to court records, Striegel told police his mother's drinking and constant harrassment prompted the murder.

Terri said the problem of teens with alcoholic parents is much more widespread, than most people realize and most of the teenagers aren't aware help is available.

Al-Ateen meets each Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Community Church on State Road 434 at Hermitas Trail in Altamonte Springs.

"We cannot solve their problems, only they can solve their problems," Terri said of parents who drink. "We meet to discuss and work on our problems."

She said meeting with others who have similar problems helps.

"Sometimes you think you've caused it. It makes you feel bad, like nobody loves you, like you shouldn't be here."

"The depression builds up and up and there's no way to get it out."

"It's very hard to live with feelings like that. We all have the same problems in a way, it kind of helps to have others to talk with."

"It's helped me become more outgoing, less shy. I can handle situations better."

Terri said about half the teenagers in the Al-Ateen group have committed some sort of crime, such as running away or stealing, and blamed it on their alcoholic parents.

"We try to get them to think about it. They can be driven to

JULIAN STENSTROM

For the first time since the firing of Police Chief Wallace N. LaPeters on July 17, a Sanford city commissioner has told the story, as he saw it, about events leading up to the dismissal.

City Commissioner Julian Stenstrom, an active Kiwanian, told the story to the Sunrise Kiwanis Club Friday when the scheduled guest speaker didn't arrive on time.

The two city commissioners, A.A. McClanahan and Eddie Keith, who initiated the firing of LaPeters indicated their major reasons were that LaPeters was unable to relate to the community; he reorganized the police department without commission approval and he ignored his civic responsibilities which they considered a vital part of a police chief's job.

Stenstrom gave this account of the events prior to LaPeters' firing:

"During the job interview with Mr. LaPeters by the city commission last fall, I asked him if there was any question about his working under and with City Manager Warren E. Knowles. He replied 'none at all.'"

"I also asked if it were possible that due to his apparent over-qualification for the job that he might be using it as a stepping stone to get back to Florida and as a stepping stone to a better-intended to do so, but he never did.

"With the memorandum provided each commissioner in April by Mr. Knowles, it was apparent that not all was well in the police department, particularly due to the chief reducing the work week from 44 to 40 hours without the express approval of the city commission inasmuch as that reduction amounted to a 9.08 percent pay raise not authorized by the commission.

"This brought about the special meeting of the city commission at 4 p.m., April 24, a Monday afternoon. There was a regular meeting that night. We had an eyeball-to-eyeball session with the chief. Some of the commissioners put their cards on the table face up, listing complaints. The chief refused some, explained away some and the rest, he said, he would make an effort to correct."

"By July 11, it was apparent to Mr. Knowles that he could no longer be counted as a supporter of Mr. LaPeters and he explained his position. The mayor was on vacation at the time and I did not see the July 11 memo until July 17 when he contacted the city manager."

"I understand that the mayor called on Chief LaPeters, discussed the matter with him and offered him an opportunity to resign. Chief LaPeters apparently refused to resign."

"We were to begin our budget studies that evening and Mayor Moore said he understood one of the commissioners had a matter to bring up. At that time Commissioner McClanahan made his now famous motion to terminate the chief, three voted in favor, two against."

"Mr. McClanahan then made a motion that put Mr. Butler back in charge of the police department under the supervision of the city manager. Then we got on with the budget studies."

Carter Health Plan: Inflation Key To Who Gets What And When

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

President Carter, in a move that already has encountered vigorous criticism, today ordered preparation of a national health insurance plan "for all Americans" that would be phased in gradually beginning in 1983.

Although 30 million Americans now have no health insurance, Carter indicated success in controlling inflation will be a major determinant in how quickly all citizens are guaranteed quality medical care at a reasonable cost.

The controversial guidelines — already under bitter attack from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and a coalition of union and consumer groups — said private insurance companies should play a significant role in national health insurance. No financing methods were outlined.

Carter said in a statement released by HEW Secretary Joseph Califano that the massive spending involved must be balanced between 20 million Americans who have no insurance at all and its inflationary impact on the economy.

The Carter guidelines included 10 general points, leaving broad discretion on operational details to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"The plan should assure that all Americans have comprehensive health care coverage, including protection against catastrophic medical expenses ... assure that all Americans have freedom of choice in the selection of physicians, hospitals and health delivery systems," said the See HEALTH PLAN, Page 2-A

July Rains Help Focus On Area Drainage Woes

It is almost halfway through the four-month rainy season for central Florida and already Seminole County has received half a year's rainfall.

According to records of the State Division of Forestry, Seminole County received 1.8 inches of rain in June and 14.1 inches in July making the two-month total 23.7 inches.

Creeks, rivers and lakes are swollen to their limits and the county is ripe for serious flooding problems.

The only warning element, according to county Engineer

Bill Bush is a tropical storm like Donna that hit east and central Florida in 1960.

Already many areas in the county have experienced flooding which has caused home damage or inconvenience. Examples:

Tenants of public housing in Sanford joined in a tenants' meeting to seek relief from flooding in and around their homes.

A group of residents on Power and Burton roads will go to the county commission next week in an effort to get relief from flooding on their street.

Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski responded to requests that he view flooding in Wildwood Estates and found people driven from their homes by rising waters.

"There are some areas that when it rains hard I know we're going to have trouble," Public Works Director Jack Schuder said of recent rainfall. Most of these areas are low-lying land where water settles and has no place to run off, according to Schuder.

During heavy rains, the road department has worked overtime to cover a backlog of flooding-related problems.

"I would say 75 percent of the problems reported to us stem from imprudence in purchasing property," said Bush. "Most of our problems come from older areas where little or no engineering was done."

Unfortunately, in some areas growth has occurred without See DRAINAGE, Page 2-A
