TV WEEK

'TV Week' debuts tomorrow

Readers of the Sanford Herald will be introduced to a new TV magazine in Friday's edition.

'TV Week,' a tabloid-size magazine featuring all local listings of network and cable television shows, will debut in tomorrow's edition of the Herald. The new publication will appear in your newspaper every Friday.

The new magazine was planned, designed and created exclusively for residents of Seminole County.

In addition to listings and viewing highlights, the magazine will also feature tidbits and stories of interest to TV viewers of all ages.

The new Sanford Herald, we continue to change for you.

Sniper wounds six, kills himself

LOS ANGELES — A sniper opened fire, sending bullets "flying like bees," wounding six people and forcing a police SWAT team to storm his building early today, but the gunman was found dead apparently of a self-inflicted wound.

The body of gunman, described as a 40-year-old "loner" with a history of narcotics abuse, was found in an outbuilding behind a private home, Lt. Rich Molony said.

Molony said the gunman, who was not identified, apparently had shot himself.

A police SWAT team fired tear gas into the building and stormed inside at about 3:45 a.m. today.

Controversy jars Olympics

SEOUL, South Korea — An unscheduled fight in the boxing ring gave the host country an embarrassing black eye today and created an international furor at the Olympics.

The incident overshadowed the first triple gold-medal performance of the Games, that of East German swimmer Kristin Otto, and two gold-medal efforts by American swimmers Janet Evans and Matt Blondi.

Some 12 hours after the melee, five Korean boxing officials, including team trainer Lee Heung-Soo, were suspended through the Olympics for their part in attacking a referee.

Five Oviedo teens taken into custody

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

OVIDEO — Oviedo police said today they have arrested five teenage electronic whizzes they accused of stealing $15,000 in equipment from area high schools and burying it in their yards over the past year.

The equipment was taken mainly from Oviedo High School and Catholic Bishop Moore High School in Orlando. Oviedo Investigator Alan Curtis said.

One of the boys was arrested at Oviedo High School on Monday. Police Chief Dennis Peterson said. "I hope this sends a message," he said. "One was arrested at school to show others if you do this you're going to get arrested. Other people know when you do something like this. And we will find out. Most brag about something like this and we catch it. The good kids in school won't put up with this. They'll help us. There's a lot of good kids around."

Curtis said he and another Oviedo officer began recovering the stolen goods Sept. 12 when their investigation led them to the Winter Springs house of one of the suspects. Police said stolen electronics equipment was recovered and they got leads to the location of more stolen goods and other suspects.

Two of the suspects attend Oviedo High School. One suspect lives in Casselberry, one in Geneva, one in Orlando, and two in Winter Springs. All five boys were arrested Sunday or Monday, police said. Two were confined in the Seminole County juvenile jail. The others were released to their parents to await trial.

Police said the boys each have been charged with several counts of burglary and grand theft.

Curtis called the suspects electronics whizzes who apparently wanted the equipment for their own uses, although police said one suspect sold some items to his older brother.

Police said they recovered a master key to all doors of Oviedo High School from one of the boys. The key was stolen last year and the burglaries occurred during the past 13 months, police said. Some items were taken during school hours, Peterson said.

I'm nuts about ya

Harriett Mixon of Lake Mary entertains a house guest, who seems to be fascinated by the world of humans. Mixon, Lake Mary's resident squirrel lady, enjoys the company of the furry rodents. A few weeks ago, when her house had to be moved about a block from its former location to make way for a new town hall, Mixon used food and squirrel goodies to entice the animals into following her to her new address. Both squirrels and human were adjusting well to their new environment at last report.

Defeated candidate files suit

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

OVIDEO — Cliff Shepard, the City Council Group 5 candidate who lost by two votes to Tom O'Hanlon, has filed suit to block the winner from being sworn in on Oct. 3.

Shepard is asking for a new election, claiming the votes in his 478-476 loss were miscounted.

"I'd like to win," Shepard said. "Obviously, I thought I had something to offer the city. But on the other hand, we as taxpayers expect that elections are done correctly. Sometimes human errors are made and that is what happened here, I'm sure."

O'Hanlon said. "Cliff is exercising his right. I'm not sure the (votes in question) are statistically significant. If another election is held, I am confident of being re-elected."

O'Hanlon, seeking a second term, survived the Sept. 6 election with a four vote margin, 473 to 469 votes. Because of the less than half a percent difference in the results, an automatic recount was held Sept. 12 by the county elections canvassing board. The recount, twice by computer and once by hand, found O'Hanlon still held the winning edge, but by a two-vote margin, 478-476.

A day or two after the election, Shepard called Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard and asked if she had heard that some people voted who shouldn't have. Goard said she told Shepard she hadn't, but agreed to check the voter roster.

In a check completed over the weekend, Goard discovered one Oviedo resident in Precinct 55 and one city resident in Precinct 73 apparently had not received ballots to vote in the city elections. They each were given county-wide ballots, but not the city ballots, Goard said.

In addition, Goard said two other city residents in Precinct 85 weren't given city ballots, although they received the county ballots. Also in Precinct 85, another two county residents were given city ballots, although as residents of an unincorporated area they were not eligible to vote in the city election.

She said the six discrepancies were unintentional errors by deputy clerks.

Goard said she called Shepard on Sept. 12 to tell him of the discrepancies.

A hearing is scheduled for Wednesday before Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth Lettler.

Mercer bows out of race

By SANDRA BOUGHANINE

SANFORD — Sanford City Commissioner John Mercer announced that he will not run for re-election for the District 1 commission seat.

Mercer is completing his first four year term as commissioner. He said that long absences during the summer months will not make it feasible to hold a commission seat. He said he and his wife plan to spend three to four months of the summer in North Carolina. "So, I just decided not to run," he said.

Mercer said that he will miss See Mercer, Page 5A

Hosie new Herald editor

SANFORD — Ronald W. Hosie is the new executive editor of the Sanford Herald.

Hosie has been a reporter, editor and newsroom manager for newspapers in California, Ohio and New York for the past 22 years.

He was born and raised in Buffalo, New York. He attended the State University of New York at Cortland and the University of California at Los Angeles where his career in journalism began on the university's daily newspaper in 1966.

Hosie went on to become a reporter at the Press Courier in Oxnard, Calif., and the Press and Daily Enterprise in Riverside, Calif., where he held a number of positions including investigative reporter and Action Line Editor. In 1974, he was named the newspaper's city editor.

New tuition plan kicks off

By Carol Rumsey
Herald staff writer

Starting today, a child's college tuition and dormitory costs in Florida can be paid in advance at fixed rates lower than the amount that would be paid at the time of enrollment.

The Florida Prepaid College Program, which takes effect today, allows parents to pay a lump sum or monthly payments for their child's education at one of the state's nine universities or 28 community colleges.

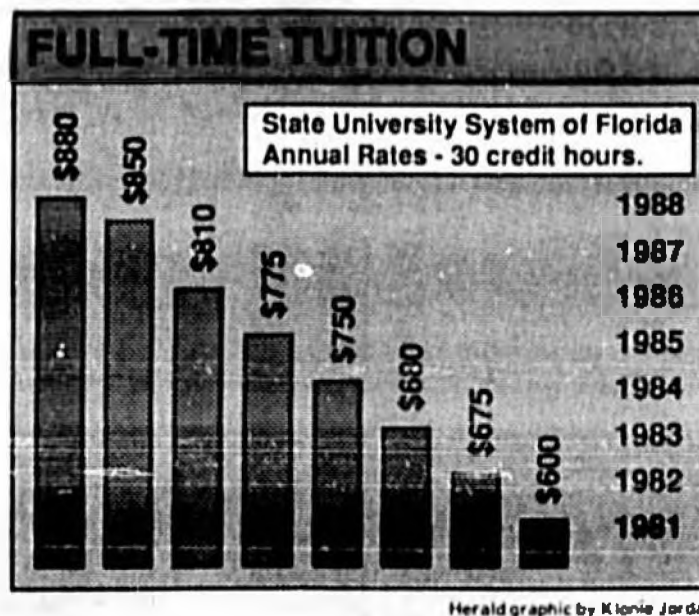

According to Rep. Richard Crotty, R-Orlando, who originally sponsored the legislation two years ago, college tuition is guaranteed and risk-free, but acceptance into a university is not. Grades and test scores will still be used to evaluate and determine acceptance into an upper-level state educational program.

The same is true of prepaid dormitory costs — payment and not space is guaranteed. Crotty said a parent or grandparent can transfer payments to another child or have the amount of the original deposit refunded.

The program does not earn interest like a traditional savings account, so only the original deposit is returned. What the program does is guarantee to meet the rising costs of college education, which according to the state department of education have increased an average of 7 percent yearly over the past decade.

Florida gets federal drought aid

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez says the U.S. government has approved a request for 30 drought-stricken counties in Florida to be declared natural disaster areas, thus making the counties eligible for federal assistance.

"This year's severe drought disrupted the lives of many Floridians whose livelihood depends on agriculture," Martinez said Wednesday as he announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture approved the request.

Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng designated 18 counties as primary-county natural disaster areas and another 12 counties as contiguous to primary-county natural disaster areas.

The designation allows farmers in all 30 counties to apply for federal disaster assistance, Martinez said.

Daily king mackerel limit set at two

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Marine Fisheries Commission has voted to set a daily king mackerel limit of 2 fish per person and has adopted a policy on the sale of tarpon tags.

Commission officials said Wednesday the daily limit, which applies to state waters in the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, will revert to one king mackerel daily per person when the federal commercial fishing zone closes.

The bag limits include the captain and crew members of charter fishing boats.

The commission also adopted an initial policy for the management of the statewide sale of tarpon tags. Under the proposal, a maximum of 10,000 tags will be sold next year, with 5,000 of those reserved for licensed, professional guides.

The tarpon policy will not be finalized until another public hearing, if needed, is held next month.

Migrating fish draw sharks

FORT PIERCE — Authorities are warning swimmers to beware of hungry sharks chasing schools of migrating fish swimming close to shore along the Southeast Florida coast.

There have been no reported shark attacks in the area this year, but St. Lucie County sheriff's detective Lou Ericsson said Wednesday people should use caution.

The yearly migration of sharks and bait fish such as mullet and menhaden from northern Atlantic waters can last several months, said Mark Perry of the Florida Oceanographic Society, a non-profit marine research and education group.

Melvin convicted in courthouse shooting

PENSACOLA — Paper mill security guard Clyde Melvin has been convicted of murdering a judge, a lawyer and his former sister-in-law and wounding his ex-wife during an alimony hearing last year in the county courthouse.

The jury deliberated more than six hours Wednesday night before convicting Melvin, 63, of one count of first-degree murder in the death of Judge Wilson Lamar Bailey and two counts of second-degree murder in the deaths of Panama City attorney Tom Ingles, who represented his ex-wife, and Peggy White Paulk, his former sister-in-law.

Melvin also was convicted of attempted first-degree murder in the shooting of his ex-wife, Eleanor Inez Huckeba, 60, who survived a gunshot wound to the head in the melee, after a July 1987 hearing in Bailey's Port St. Joe chambers.

Mack, MacKay exchange charges

TALLAHASSEE — GOP U.S. Senate nominee Rep. Connie Mack opened fire Wednesday on potential Democratic opponent Rep. Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay, charging MacKay wants to establish a national sales tax.

MacKay, D-Fla., who said he welcomed the Mack attack, meanwhile blasted his opponent for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination. Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter.

"It's a compliment to me that Connie Mack is aiming his barrage at me. I think that means his polls show I've got the momentum," MacKay said.

MacKay suggested Mack would rather face Gunter than himself in the November general election. Mack, R-Fla., said it made no difference to him who wins the Democratic nomination.

Gunter attacks MacKay, pledges unity

TALLAHASSEE — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter has attacked Rep. Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay's votes on benefits for veterans and the elderly, but each said he would support the other in the November general election.

"Despite my differences with Bill Gunter, I can support him as the nominee," MacKay said Wednesday. "I of course hope this doesn't come to pass, but if it comes to pass, with no problem I would support him over Connie Mack."

Gunter, who was campaigning in Panama City, replied "Yes, I will," earlier in the day when asked during a telephone news conference if he could support MacKay in the general election.

Discovery: One week to target date

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The crew of the shuttle Discovery, scheduled to blast off on the first post-Challenger flight in one week, goes into medical isolation this afternoon after meeting with President Reagan at the Johnson Space Center.

Shuttle commander Frederick Hauck, 47, co-pilot Richard Covey, 42, John "Mike" Lounge, 42, David Hilmers, 38, and George "Pinky" Nelson, 38, are scheduled to blast off Sept. 29, a week from today, at 9:59 a.m. EDT from launch pad 39B at the Kennedy Space Center.

Taking a break from hectic last-minute training, Hauck and company planned to meet with President Reagan, who was scheduled to give a late-afternoon speech at the Johnson Space Center to wind up a presidential campaign swing through Texas.

After the speech, the crew was scheduled to go into a limited quarantine, standard procedure for shuttle fliers a week before blastoff to prevent contact with people who might pass on an illness.

Shuttle commander Frederick Hauck, 47, co-pilot Richard Covey, 42, John "Mike" Lounge, 42, David Hilmers, 38, and George "Pinky" Nelson, 38, are scheduled to blast off Sept. 29, a week from today, at 9:59 a.m. EDT from launch pad 39B at the Kennedy Space Center.

The astronauts were scheduled to practice re-entry techniques Friday using a computer-controlled shuttle simulator and planned to get in a final round of launch practice in the simulator Monday before flying to the Kennedy Space Center later in the day for final launch preparations.

The families of the astronauts will be allowed to watch blastoff from an area declared off limits to most non-essential personnel because of the risk of injury in a launch failure.

Post-Challenger studies conducted by the Air Force indicate that in the event of a major failure early in the launch phase, a shuttle's solid-fuel boosters could prove more dangerous to spectators on the ground than had been previously believed.

The studies indicate large pieces of debris containing booster propellant could re-ignite or explode on impact after a launch disaster and that debris could be thrown farther than originally expected.

As a result of these and other considerations, the Air Force and NASA have extended the safety zone around the launch pad and restricted access to the area around the launch control center 4.2 miles from the pad where off-duty spaceport workers and journalists have traditionally viewed shuttle launchings.

NASA access to the area will be limited to about 4,800 agency and contractor personnel based on an estimate of the number of first-shift workers at the Kennedy Space Center.

Emergency system gets good grade

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's emergency network for dealing with natural and man-made disasters has received a passing grade from the state Auditor General's office, but still can be improved, a report shows.

"The Division (of Emergency Management) has improved its communications systems, but did not meet its 1986 objectives," state Auditor General Charles L. Lester wrote in a study of DEM activities released Wednesday.

Lester said his department noted deficiencies in the statewide National Attack Warning System, the allocation of federal emergency funds to counties, the Florida Emergency Broadcast System and local plans to help handicapped people if a disaster occurs.

The audit also found problems with DEM purchasing activities and a lack of information about how county emergency agencies were prepared to deal with catastrophic occurrences.

Red planet comes close

Nearly 3,000 planet watchers gather at the John Young Planetarium Wednesday night to greet Mars as the planet makes its closest approach to Earth until 2003. Fourteen telescopes were used to view the heavenly body only 36.6 million miles away. The Planet Watch was conducted again tonight. The public is invited without charge.

Helene plows westerly; expected to grow

United Press International

MIAMI — Hurricane Helene cruised west in the Atlantic Ocean with 85-mph winds today, and forecasters say they expect the storm to grow more powerful over the next few days.

At 6 a.m. EDT, the center of Helene was located at latitude 13.0 north, longitude 42.1 west, about 1,225 miles east of Barbados. It was moving west about 10 mph.

"Gradual strengthening is possible," said forecaster Bob Case at the National Hurricane Center. "Tropical storm force winds extend out 125 miles from the center."

Bob Sheets, director of the center, said the storm was too far east in the open Atlantic to dispatch hurricane hunter planes. He said Helene was about three days from land and there was no way to determine what path it would take.

"It's way too early to say with any degree of confidence which way it will go," he said. "But we do expect it to maintain the western track for the next two or three days and it should gain strength."

Helene reached hurricane status Wednesday morning, less than a week after Hurricane Gilbert, one of the most serious storms of the century, ripped through the Caribbean islands and Mexico with its killer winds and rain.

The hurricane center upgraded Helene to a hurricane just 12 hours after raising it from a tropical depression to storm status at 2 p.m. EDT Tuesday. The storm was born in the same area as Gilbert, but its development was faster.

Forecaster Max Mayfield said the quick intensification that far out in the ocean is not unusual.

"The last thing we want to do is unduly alarm people in the Caribbean, because there is always a chance Hurricane Helene will turn to northwest and miss the Caribbean completely," Mayfield said. "But we want them to be aware there is a hurricane out there moving toward the west."

Helene is the fourth hurricane of the 1988 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, and was from the eighth named tropical storm.

A tropical storm, which has minimum winds of 39 mph, is classified as a hurricane when its winds reach 74 mph.

September is the peak of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, with an average three storms during the month. Two of them usually develop into hurricanes. So far there have been four hurricanes this month.

Gilbert caused hundreds of deaths and billions of dollars worth of damage in Hispaniola, Jamaica, Grand Cayman Island, Mexico and the United States.

POLICE BRIEFS

Woman accused of prostitution

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A woman, who allegedly got into a car with two undercover Altamonte Springs policemen and offered to have sex with both in exchange for $30 each, was arrested on a complaint of assignment to commit prostitution.

Honai Williams, 33, of 310 DePuth St., Altamonte Springs, was arrested in the police car on Hattaway Drive. Police report they picked the suspect up on the corner of State Road 436 and Howell Branch Road, Altamonte Springs.

The woman allegedly offered to have sex with the men together or separately either in their car or a motel room, police said. She also reportedly suggested that they drink beer or smoke crack cocaine together.

Williams, who also had identification as "Tomasina Williams," was arrested at 6:35 p.m. Wednesday, with bond set at $100.

Cab driver spots robbery suspect

OVIEDO — An Orange County cab driver who was robbed at knife-point there early on Sept. 14, drove to Oviedo about noon Wednesday and spotted a man he believed was the robber.

The driver went to the police station and reported his discovery to Oviedo police, who located the suspect on Tyson Street and Avenue B. The driver reportedly made positive identification of the suspect and that led to the arrest of Bennie James Peterson, 24, of 46 Steven St., Oviedo. Peterson was arrested on Orange County charges of petty theft and armed robbery and was jailed in Orange County.

Weapons found in car

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man who allegedly picked up a suspected prostitute on North Street at Central Street, rural Altamonte Springs, was watched by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy, who later arrested him on counts of carrying a concealed weapon and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Gary Paul Summers, 25, of 550 Laurel Court, Winter Springs, was arrested at about 1:18 p.m. Wednesday after the deputy reportedly found two loaded handguns under the driver's seat of the car. A pipe believed used for smoking narcotics was also found. Bond is $1,000.

After being stopped, the man reportedly said he was just giving the woman a ride and gave the deputy permission to search his car.

Arson of fishing poles investigated

OVIEDO — Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating the reported arson of a pile of cane fishing poles outside Black Hammock Fish Camp, 2356 Palm Drive, Oviedo, at about 9:50 p.m. Wednesday.

Victim Gary Van Horne, 50, of the above address told sheriff's deputies he heard a noise and handed a shotgun to his companion, Patrick Heidergerken, 32, of 2600 Independence Drive, Oviedo. Heidergerken was reportedly told to check the area where Van Horne heard the noise, while Van Horne went inside to see if the back door of the building was locked.

Van Horne said when he came back out he saw a pile of fishing poles burning on the dock. He told deputies he took the gun from Heidergerken and fired a shot at an unknown person entering nearby woods.

Heidergerken told sheriff's deputies he never had possession of the gun, but did see Van Horne fire a shot at a shadowy figure entering the woods, a sheriff's report said. Arson investigator Barry Brady said his probe of the incident will continue today. Brady said he found no sign of anyone having been wounded by the reported shotgun blast.

Cavazos says no deals made

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Newly installed Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos, saying progress in education is his main concern, insists "absolutely no deal" was made for continuing his job beyond the last days of the Reagan administration.

One day after being sworn in as President Reagan's third secretary of education, Cavazos appeared annoyed with questions about whether his nomination was influenced by Vice President George Bush or others who may have had political objectives.

"I struck absolutely no deal and I never even discussed the possibility of my staying on beyond the January date," said Cavazos, the first Hispanic to serve in the Cabinet.

Bush, the Republican presidential nominee, had promised to appoint the first Hispanic Cabinet member if elected in November, but Reagan selected Cavazos in mid-August to succeed William Bennett.

"I have certainly known (Bush) over the years because he's a Texan," said Cavazos, 61, who is on leave of absence from his job as president of Texas Tech University.

Cavazos acknowledged that political motivations in his nomination "could be somebody's viewpoint," but he said, "I'd like to really believe that I was picked because I'm a person who is fully qualified."

Maude, the elephant at the Central Florida Zoo, seems to be offering to take the shovel from Zoo Director Pam McConnell during ground-breaking ceremonies Wednesday at the same time as Joe Rucolph, co-chairman of the building project, reaches for it.

Building addition planned for zoo

SANFORD — Ground was broken Wednesday for an addition which will double the size of the Central Florida Zoo's administration building. Material and labor for the addition are being donated by the Home Builders Association of West Volusia County. Estimated value of the project is $33,000. The addition is scheduled for completion by mid-December.

Pam McConnell, executive director of the zoo, said additional space in the zoo's administration building is desperately needed and the zoo's staff and board are grateful for the donation.

"We are pleased to see these very busy people taking additional time and effort to help and to have Volusia County get involved with the zoo," she said.

McConnell said the 1,280 square feet of additional space will serve as office and storage space. "Right now, we have two people sharing the conference table, and there are files stored in the attic and in trailers."

Rudolph, president of the West Volusia Homebuilders Association, said the project was selected as the organization's first community involvement project. Members of the association and businesses are donating time and material to build the addition.

"We are excited about our first community involvement project and how it will benefit the Central Florida Zoological Park. The zoo is a very special part of the community," Rudolph said.

He said additional manpower and materials are needed to complete the building and anyone interested in donating time or material should call him at 904-734-7935.

Moose loose in Guard armory

SUPERIOR, Wis. — A 700-pound moose wandered up to the National Guard Armory and spent a day contentedly roaming the motor pool, a Guard spokesman said.

The armory is in a wooded area and deer and other wildlife are common.

Bed tax endorsed by Sanford Chamber

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce board of directors voted unanimously to support the tourism tax which will appear on the Oct. 4 referendum.

James B. Young, chairman of the chamber's tourism committee, and Sanford manager for First Union National Bank of Florida, took the recommendation to the board of directors.

"Basically, as chairman of the tourism committee, we studied its (tourism tax) effect on Sanford," Young said.

The two-percent "bed tax" will be tacked onto the motel room bills and apartment rentals for six months or less, according to Young. Meals and other sales are not included.

The county-wide tax is expected to bring in $500,000 in the first year, according to Young.

"The income from the tax will greatly enhance the Sanford area," Young said.

A minimum of 25 percent will be used toward improvements at the Central Florida Zoological Park located on Seminole Boulevard along Lake Monroe west of Sanford. There has already been discussion about putting in a learning center at the zoo. Other needs of the zoo include more spacious animal habitats, correction of flooding, construction of a new entrance plaza to divide large groups from single-car visitors, and restroom improvements.

The remaining 75 percent of the income is to be used for arts and cultural affairs for the county, Young said.

Seminole County commissioners endorsed the tax in July. It approved by voters in October. The tax is expected to bring in $477,338 during 1989 and $501,205 in 1990.

Twenty-six counties in Florida already levy the tourism tax.

"We feel it's an opportunity for a source of income we have not used before," Young said.

Shevardnadze-Shultz talks renewed today

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Humanitarian issues, including the right of emigration from the Soviet Union, were on Secretary of State George Shultz's agenda for renewed talks today with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

U.S. officials set low expectations for the 28th series of meetings between the diplomats, occurring in the shadow of the American presidential election.

For example, at the suggestion of Republican White House candidate George Bush, some of Shevardnadze's time Friday will be spent with the vice president and with President Reagan in separate personal meetings.

Still, Shultz, Shevardnadze and their interpreters arranged to meet alone today and set an agenda for various working groups that will report back to the two leaders periodically.

Assistant Secretary of State Rozanne Ridgway said continuity is the theme of the latest meetings. She noted that superpower relations continue despite the approaching shift in U.S. administrations.

The series of low-key meetings between Shultz and Shevardnadze has unfolded in a period marked by advances in those relations: the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty, which eliminated missiles with ranges from 300 to 3,400 miles; the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan; and a dramatic increase in emigration rates from the Soviet Union.

Ridgway said the United States would stress human rights during this week's talks. Shultz planned to raise specific issues including Soviet emigration policies and hoped to persuade the Soviets to live up to the human rights commitments in the 1975 Helsinki Agreement.

Though arms negotiators have been summoned back from Geneva for the talks, Ridgway said the United States would be unable to complete a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty by the end of the year.

Putting together a START treaty was a priority in the December 1987 Washington summit, but the negotiators were unable to get around basic disagreements on such issues as limiting defensive weapons and setting up rules for counting and verifying submarine-launched cruise missiles.

Ridgway said both sides are close to putting together a protocol that would permit the United States to ratify the 1974 agreement on limiting peaceful nuclear explosions. U.S. and Soviet experts have been exchanging information on underground nuclear tests.

But Ridgway said the United States would reject the proposal by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev that the large radar at Krasnoyarsk, in eastern Siberia, be turned into an "international space center."

The United States will insist on the dismantling of the radar installation because it violated the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, Ridgway said.

En route to the United States, Shevardnadze said in Denmark he had urged the administration to contribute the U.S. Air Force base radar complex at Thule, Greenland, to a world space center.

"This radar complex is a phased array system which contravened the Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty," Shevardnadze said.

The candidates and the cities

Twenty years have passed since Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty. In that time, America has learned much about the limitations of trying to combat urban and rural decay with massive infusions of federal money. Sadly, however, it also seems to have unlearned a few things — especially about the toll that such decline can take on human lives and the overall well-being.

The United States can no longer afford to throw money at its domestic problems as it did in the 1960s and '70s. But neither can it afford to continue the indifference shown by the Reagan administration to the plight of the inner cities and economically depressed rural areas. The next administration must find a workable middle course between the extravagance of the Great Society and the inattention of the Great Communicator.

To a large extent, the problems of inner cities and troubled rural communities are the problems of the nation as a whole. In a letter to the National League of Cities, George Bush accurately identified drugs, schools and homelessness as "the most pressing matters on the urban agenda." But like the economy, those are issues that affect all Americans wherever they live.

And the evidence is clear that one of the economic assumptions of the Reagan administration — and, to a slightly lesser degree, of the Carter administration as well — just isn't valid. A rising economic tide doesn't raise all boats. Thus Michael Dukakis can speak of a "Swiss-cheese economy," with holes of persistent economic depression in the midst of general prosperity.

Those urban and rural holes require Washington's special attention. As the U.S. Conference of Mayors recently proclaimed, the time has come for the federal government to revive its "central role in urban growth and development." The mayors seem to mean, "Give us more money."

Some new outlays of federal cash may have to be part of the answer, but this time there can't be much of it. And what there is will have to be targeted to places that need it most and can use it best. Also, this time federal actions should be in close support of state efforts, which have had to expand to fill the Reagan gap.

Federal government efforts must also be in partnership with the private sector. Government alone cannot fill all the holes in the cheese. Any presidential candidate who suggests that government can do it all is not to be believed. The same goes for any candidate who suggests that it can be done without federal help.

Notes on how to watch election 'news'

The 1988 presidential election campaign is now officially under way. Since the private but intense ambition of somewhere around 80 percent of the people who control what you see on TV is to throw the conservatives out of Washington and replace them with the Massachusetts Miracle and his Harvard handlers, you are going to see mostly what the media think will push you in the Dukakis direction.

Here, then, are a few suggestions to help you recognize some of the TV news-twisters' favorite stunts:

1. Compare the length and other characteristics of the TV reports on Bush with those on Dukakis. Are they about equally long? Does the report on Bush consist largely of comments by the TV "reporter," while the one on Dukakis is loaded with shots of juicy statements by the candidate himself? Is the tone of the Dukakis report basically upbeat, while Bush is suavely trashed?

That was the case with ABC's "World News Tonight" on Wednesday evening, Sept. 7. Sam Donaldson, assigned to cover Dukakis, offered his own enthusiastic opinion that a vague Dukakis proposal, to withhold payments on student loans from their earnings retroactively, was "dramatic." He acknowledged that "critics might" wish Dukakis had been more specific, but ended by repeating that the proposal was "dramatic" and adding approvingly that it addressed an issue the American people were concerned about.

And George Bush? Well, The New York Times (no friend of Bush's) gave the lead the next morning to his warning, to an American Legion convention, that we are "not out of the woods" in dealing with the Soviet Union, and that continued modernization of American nuclear forces is the only way to achieve further arms reductions. But Peter Jennings, on ABC the previous evening, focused the network's whole coverage of Bush's talk on his brief and quickly corrected misdescription of the date of the Pearl

Don't believe everything the networks tell you.

Harbor attack — which the Times sensibly relegated to a two-inch box.

2. Watch how the "reporter" ends his story. He can other-hand things around to a fare-thee-well in the earlier parts of his account but his final sentence (right before "This is Larr Liberal, with the Bush campaign in Grand Forks, Nebraska") will — like Donaldson's, described above — contain his personal singer.

3. Don't believe everything the networks tell you. Take, for example, a particularly malodorous piece of Limburger dragged through NBC's "Today" show recently by the network's "chief political correspondent," Ken Bode. During the 1970s, as I have noted before, Bode labored openly in the service of liberalism. Now, however, he plays reporter for NBC — in this case touting a cheap attack on George Bush's record as CIA director, which will appear in the next issue of a rag called Mether Jones.

I wouldn't blame you for not having heard of Mether Jones; few people have. Even in San Francisco, where it's published, it is regarded as flaky. But Bode treated it like The Christian Science Monitor, and interviewed the two authors of the article obsequiously without disclosing that one of them also writes for The Nation.

White House backs climb

WASHINGTON — When Wyoming's "Cowboys on Everest" climbing expedition ran into financial trouble, Wyoming's cowboys in Congress rustled up a deal with the White House.

Perhaps never before has a mountain climbing team had the president's signature on its backpacks. But out in Wyoming where the state's conservative senators and congressman have been Reagan loyalists for almost eight years, anything is possible.

The 34 members of the expedition are now ascending toward the 29,028-foot peak in the Himalayan. But unlike climbers before them, this expedition arrived at the foothills of the Himalayas in an Air Force C-5 jet.

Why is the Air Force rolling out the red carpet for civilian mountain climbers? "We were given orders to provide transportation for them," an Air Force spokesman told our associate, Jim Lynch. Those orders came down from top brass at the Pentagon, which gets its orders from the White House.

Wyoming Sens. Alan Simpson and Malcolm Wallop, along with Rep. Dick Cheney, all Republicans, jointly sent a letter to the White House earlier this year urging presidential support for the "Cowboys on Everest" expedition.

Reagan's top science adviser, Dr. William Graham, took a liking to the expedition and endorsed it. With his backing, the expedition was vaulted to the status of White House sponsorship.

Everest climbs are costly and teams normally raise money from corporate and individual sponsors. The White House credentials helped the cowboy climbers trim $36,900 in transportation costs from their $1 million budget.

"I've never heard of anything like this before," said a spokesman for Citizens Against Government Waste. If the expedition is a precedent setter, what will we see the White House sponsor next? Could a pack of powerful California conservatives get the Air Force to fly a band of Californians to Cape Town for a "Surfers in South Africa" competition? As far fetched as that sounds, the climbing expedition is just as far fetched. Everest climbs are a personal challenge for climbers, but the public benefit is questionable. It holds nowhere near the interest generated by Olympic athletes who compete without the benefit of Uncle Sam's largesse.

"Cowboys on Everest" emerged as a promotional brainchild for the 1990 Wyoming centennial celebration. The climbers plan to scale Mount Everest's East Rongbuk glacier and the Northeast Ridge. Only six of the 34 members of the team will attempt the summit. Two female climbers hope to be the first American women to reach the top of Everest.

Scientists on the expedition will do medical research with a new high-altitude breathing apparatus and geologists will study the terrain.

The climbers approached Everest from Tibet, and that is where the Air Force came in. Boeing had already leased the C-5 flight to carry a helicopter to Tibet for a demonstration, so the Air Force arranged to have the cowboys dropped off in Lhasa, the capital. An Air Force spokesman noted that Boeing, not the taxpayers, paid for the flight to Lhasa. But free flights have a way of irritating commercial airlines. China Airlines was so disgruntled with the American's failure to fly on its planes that it charged the expedition a $25,000 landing fee in Beijing.

Whither goest the planet

WASHINGTON—Just when you thought it was safe to go home and hide under the bed from all the bad news about the environment, the government warns that a man's house may be a menace because of cancer-causing radon gas. No wonder the mood of the moment is ecophobia, the fear that the planet is increasingly inhospitable.

The radon warning came on a day when the St. Louis weather forecast was for "smoky sunshine," a result of windborne haze from forest fires in the far West. The fires are partly a result of the drought, which may be related to a general warming of the planet—the greenhouse effect that might result in a disastrous rise of the oceans.

If you go to the beach, while there is a beach, to brood about this, do not sit in the sun. The thinning ozone layer raises the risk of skin cancer. And do not go near the water which, even if it is free of medical waste, may have other pollutants that degrade it even more than acid rain is degrading lakes.

Any widespread anxiety should have a political echo, and ecophobia should serve the Dukakis campaign. In 1976, Pat Moynihan wrote that there are two critical choices affecting the quality of American life: "One is how much growth we want; the second is how much government we want." In the third quarter of the century, Americans had opted consistently for more government and less growth. Moynihan saw it coming.

It came. It was called conservatism. Now anxiety about the environment may push the ideological pendulum in the other direction.

It may do for Michael Dukakis what his attempt to portray today's prosperity as a chimera can not do. It may make the Democrats' specialty—government activism—more attractive. It gives him more than a subject; it gives him a theme—stewardship. He can ask: Has growth been purchased at too high a price? The price can be measured in accumulated public debt and the inadequate husbandry of the Earth's resources.

The public's attention on such matters is, however, hard to get—and harder still to hold—for several reasons. The intersection of science and public policy is a dark and bloody ground of contention. Today's saturation journalism pounces on environmental episodes—oil spills tomorrow—and quickly wrings them dry. So there is a constant media hunger for new crises, each one less convincing than the last.

Some environmental activists have played fast and loose with facts to arouse alarm. Zero-growth was advocated in the 1970s by people who already had acquired a nice portion of prior growth. ("Let's all consume less. Someone tell those Sybarites in Bangladesh to tighten their belts.") And the resiliency of the planet has been consistently midjudged.

That said, so must this be: Most environmental difficulties derive from a virtually universal aspiration—economic dynamism. By such dynamism mankind has made more of a mark on the environment in the last 100 years than in the preceding 3,000. But the dynamism has done more to improve life for more people in the last 100 years than was done by all developments in all history prior to that.

Environmental issues are of limited political utility because they illustrate the universality of costs. George Bush says, "I am an environmentalist." That statement is as vacuous as any statement that can be constructed from four English words. Does Bush's environmentalism dictate a "let burn" policy regarding forest fires? Is he for higher fuel-efficiency standards for automobiles, standards that would mean smaller cars and higher fatality rates in highway accidents?

Dukakis is no different. He will not challenge any popular behavior, regardless of its environmental impact. Instead there will be tough talk about easy choices, such as "cracking down on polluters"—as though the environmental danger comes down to a few bad people putting things where they do not belong.

But do not despair. Draw a deep breath and consider this. In 1900, America's cities contained three million horses, the healthiest of them producing up to 25 pounds of manure a day. Manure in the streets attracted swarms of flies until, in hot weather, traffic ground it into a dust that in a memoirist wrote "flew from the pavement as sharp, piercing powder, to cover our clothes, ruin our furniture and blow up into our nostrils." Then came a solution—one of today's problems, the internal combustion engine.

Want a new worry? Space junk. Science magazine says there are 48,000 man-made objects one centimeter or larger orbiting Earth, with an average relative velocity of 10 kilometers a second.

Market moderate, prices dip

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened slightly lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 3.02 Wednesday, was off 2.13 to 2088.37 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 328-268 among the 1,051 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6,441,000 shares.

Stock prices closed narrowly mixed Wednesday in slow trading as many investors stayed away from the market in observance of the Jewish holy day of Yom Kippur.

"There was no real excitement but the volume was all legitimate and the breadth was pretty even," said Dennis Jarrett, a technical analyst at Kidder, Peabody & Co.

"At first glance it might look like a nothing day, but underneath the surface there was some action," Jarrett said. "You have a lot of deal, or story stocks. If you stop looking at the indexes, you find some selective pluses."

"Recently we have seen more and more caution at the 2100 level," said Jim Andrews, vice president at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc. in Philadelphia. "Around that level you begin to hear people talking about selling."

Dollar opens higher; gold continues drop

United Press International

The dollar was higher today in light trading on major foreign currency markets. The price of gold slipped further and opened below $400 an ounce in Europe for the first time since February 1987.

Bullion began the day both in Zurich and London at $399.50 per ounce, against $400.50 and $401.25, respectively.

Bullion dealers have attributed the slump in gold price worldwide to a lack of investor demand for physical gold and an absence of significant inflation. It was the first time it had slipped below $400 in Europe since February 1987.

Gold recently has been stuck in a narrow trading range around the $425-an-ounce level. Until Wednesday, the market was not able to move out of that range as perceptions walled about the outlook for inflation, said John Norris, vice president of Citibank's precious metals department.

But credit tightening moves by the Federal Reserve Board and recent economic data have lessened investors' anxieties about inflation.

"This combined with a very weak oil market — really helped push the market below that trading range," Norris said.

In London, the morning gold fixing was $399.60, off 65 cents from Wednesday's close.

North Sea oil rig on fire;

United Press International

ABERDEEN, Scotland — Fire broke out Thursday aboard the Ocean Odyssey, an oil rig in the North Sea operated by Arco oil company, and scores of workers on board were being evacuated, the coast guard said.

News reports put the number of people aboard the semi-submersible vessel at 67 or 69.

There was no immediate word of casualties in the fire some 130 miles northeast of Aberdeen.

"They are abandoning the Ocean Odyssey at this moment," a coast guard officer said.

He said the oil rig is operated by Arco oil company.

In London, a spokeswoman for Arco, the British arm of U.S.-based Arco Oil & Gas Co., said, "We are dealing with the problem," but gave no further information. Arco stands for Atlantic Richfield company.

News reports said the vessel, a drilling rig, was operating in the Fulmar Field when its support vessel reported the blaze.

Bush receives Boston police endorsement

United Press International

With a poll showing voters increasingly brand him a liberal, Michael Dukakis is outlining new programs in a bid to define himself better. But George Bush continues to get mileage out of the "liberal label," flying today to his rival's home base to accept the endorsement of the Boston police union.

The Republican presidential candidate arranged the quick trip from Washington as soon as he heard that leaders of the Police Patrolman's Association snubbed his Democratic opponent, the third-term governor of Massachusetts.

Bush obviously hoped to sting Dukakis by playing up the union's contention that the Democrat is too liberal on crime-related issues. The vice president then was flying to Texas to join President Reagan at a Republican fund-raiser.

Dukakis, in Boston, moved quickly to combat the political embarrassment, with a spokesman pointing out endorsements from other law enforcement groups across the country — including in Bush's adopted home state of Texas — and asserting the governor has a "record of leadership in fighting crime."

Nevertheless, a survey by the Gallup Organization for the Times-Mirror Co. showed today that Bush leads the White House race with 50 percent support to 44 percent largely because he has succeeded in portraying Dukakis as more liberal even than 1984 Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale.

At the same time, voter commitment remains soft with less than seven weeks left in the race, according to the survey of 2,001 likely voters Sept. 9-14 with an error margin of 3 percentage points.

Dukakis, trying to define himself better for Americans, followed up Tuesday's call for a national health care system with a proposal Wednesday for an annual $100 million program to fight infant and maternal mortality.

As both nominees scaled back their public appearances to prepare for Sunday's nationally televised debate in Winston-Salem, N.C., Dukakis took time to visit Brigham and Women's Hospital in Brookline, the Boston suburb he calls home, to outline his plan for providing increased health care to pregnant women.

Under the program, a version of which is operating already in Massachusetts, the federal government would fund state programs that provide needed prenatal care to uninsured expectant mothers.

"Each year, more than 40,000 American babies do not survive to celebrate their first birthday," Dukakis told a group of nurses and doctors. "Today, an infant born in this country has less chance of survival than those born in 18 other countries, including Spain and Singapore."

Pursuing his argument that the economic recovery under Reagan has left many Americans behind, Dukakis promised his administration would make sure every child gets "a fair shot at the American dream."

He then slammed Bush, saying, "When children and their families have needed a helping hand, Mr. Bush's administration has given them a cold shoulder. When the time came to stand up for our children's health care needs, George Bush was nowhere to be found."

Bush, preparing for the debate, mapped some strategy with Reagan at a White House lunch, with the president later telling reporters he advised his loyal deputy to "take no prisoners."

Bush also got some unsolicited advice from "Mr. Conservative," former Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., speaking just as bluntly as he did during his own 1964 presidential campaign.

the friends he has made during his time on the commission and being a part of the decision-making and progress of Sanford.

"I would have enjoyed serving longer, but for personal reasons I cannot do it," he said.

James Sweeting III, a Sanford attorney, has said he plans to run for the District I seat, but according to City Clerk Henry N. Tamm, no one has filed nomination papers for the seat.

Tamm said the only candidates to file for the city election so far is Mayor Bettye Smith, who filed for reelection.

The deadline for qualifying is noon, Nov. 1 for the Dec. 6 city election.

Elected officials will take office on Jan. 3, 1989.

Goldwater, introducing Bush's running mate to a campaign audience in Phoenix, told Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, "I want you to go back and tell George Bush to start talking about the issues, OK?"

A startled Quayle stood speechless before he recovered enough to joke, "I wish Barry would just say what's on his mind, don't you?"

In other campaign developments:

—Dukakis's running mate, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, campaigned in the West and had a brush with danger when his aircraft's landing gear signal malfunctioned as he approached Sacramento, Calif. The plane landed safely and Bentsen went on to promote Dukakis's health care proposals throughout the day.

—Former President Gerald Ford, campaigning for Republicans in Vermont, said Dukakis's plan to require employers to provide minimum health insurance for employees and to pay at least part of the cost would bankrupt the nation. The day before, Ford had offered some indirect criticism of Bush when he said the candidates should debate as Dukakis wanted, without a panel of questioners.

—A pre-debate debate between the 6-foot-2 Bush and the 5-foot-8 Dukakis was resolved when aides decided each man could use a podium as tall as he chooses Sunday. Bush will use a 48-inch podium; Dukakis will use something shorter.

Police said the boys buried most of the items in their yards, or at other locations in Winter Springs and Geneva. Police still are searching an area of Geneva with a metal detector. Curtis said he hopes to recover all of the property. Cash and checks totalling $1,100 also was stolen.

Police recovered a video tape the boys took of themselves posing with some of the property, Peterson said.

"They didn't need money," Peterson said. "I guess they forgot the part of when you steal and get caught it's not a lark anymore. There's the possibility of going to jail. I think they forgot that."

Tuition

This morning as part of a special kickoff at Barnett Bank Plaza in downtown Orlando. The tuition contract will be for his 19-month old daughter, Christina Nicole. In Tallahassee, Gov. Bob Martinez will purchase two contracts for his twin granddaughters.

Interested parents can pick up an application from any of the 500 Barnett Bank offices in the state.

Parents who purchase a tuition contract before Jan. 20, 1989, will do so at current tuition rates. After January, new rates will be established and contracts will again be available for purchase.

For example, a parent of a 7-year-old child could pay a lump sum (total of approximately $3,860) or monthly payments of $44, which would guarantee payment of tuition for their child in a four-year college or university in 1989. Parents have the flexibility to choose from a four-year plan, two-year community college plan, two-year community college and two-year university plan and both one- and two-year dormitory contracts. The tuition contracts do not cover fees for health, athletic, laboratory or student activities. Also, the cost of graduate or professional schools are not included.

Crotty said the state deposits all money into a trust fund, much like a pension fund. The fund is administered by a seven-member Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Education Expense Board. Although Crotty is expecting success with the program, he said if the state could not cover tuition costs due to poor participation, payments would either be returned and the program ended, or new contracts would be discontinued and those already sold honored.

Florida will be the third state to engage in a prepaid tuition program. Three years ago, the Florida Student Association approached Crotty, an alumnus of the University of Central Florida, about instituting such a program in Florida. According to Crotty, Michigan is well underway with its program, and both Crotty and the board studied it before developing their own.

Naked man kills church usher

United Press International

NEW YORK — The man who rushed naked into St. Patrick's Cathedral and beat an elderly usher to death before being shot dead by police had previously committed vandalism at the shrine and disrupted a service hours before the fatal attack, Cardinal John O'Connor said.

O'Connor said the unidentified man had confronted him during a morning mass at the Gothic Revival cathedral and that a priest had warned him that the intruder might be violent.

The attacker rushed naked into St. Patrick's about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, beat the usher to death with a brass stanchion, struck an intervening police officer with the makeshift weapon and slapped a woman praying in a pew near the front altar, police said.

"All of a sudden I see a naked man," said Luis Gonzalez, 18, of Brooklyn, who was in the church lighting votive candles with his mother. "He was hitting a large woman in a pink dress who was praying in the front of the church. She started screaming for help, but no one helped her because everyone was starting to run to the back of the church." Police identified the attacker as Jorge DelGado, 32, a Cuban-American who lived in Manhattan. Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell, a police spokesman, said DelGado "has numerous previous arrests" but refused to be more specific.

Witnesses said the burly attacker, dressed in black with a red carnation, peeled off his clothing across the street under Rockefeller Center's statue of Atlas and stormed into the Fifth Avenue church carrying sneakers and using the bouquet of flowers to cover his groin.

As panicked parishioners and tourists fled, the man pulled the large brass stanchion from the floor where it was supporting prayer books and used it to beat the usher, John Winter, 77, of the city's borough of Queens, police said.

Police Officer James McMann, 50, who was on patrol in the nearby theater district, raced into the massive stone cathedral and confronted the attacker, officials said. But the large, muscular assailant clubbed the officer about the head and body, leaving him slumped on the floor in an aisle, police said.

A member of a backup police team fired a single shot into the attacker's chest, killing him.

Pinochet linked to slaying of ambassador

United Press International

SANTIAGO, Chile — The opposition seeking to oust Chilean president Gen. Augusto Pinochet in an Oct. 5 plebiscite has linked him to three attacks against opponents in foreign countries, including the slaying of a former Chilean ambassador in Washington.

The opposition late Wednesday described the lethal attacks in Washington, Rome and Buenos Aires, as a narrator, speaking with Pinochet's picture being transmitted, blamed his government for the slayings.

Former Ambassador to the United States Orlando Letelier died in Washington in 1976 and Gen. Carlos Prats, commander in chief of Chile's armed forces, was killed in Buenos Aires in 1974. Both men served under Socialist President Salvador Allende, who died in the coup that brought Pinochet to power.

Also killed in the bombings were Prats' wife and U.S. citizen Ronni Moffit, who worked with Letelier and was in his car when a bomb exploded.

"Our country and our families need to know the truth," said Soñia Prats, the general's daughter, appearing on the daily 15-minute television spot allotted to the opposition before the plebiscite.

The third attack maimed a Chilean official in Rome.

Pinochet, 72, who assumed the presidency after the Sept. 11, 1973, coup, is the only candidate in the plebiscite, facing a simple "yes" or "no" vote. Approval would keep him in office eight more years, while a majority "no" vote would lead to an open election in about a year.

Opposition newspapers said Wednesday's television spot would feature Armando Fernandez Larios, a Chilean official who surrendered voluntarily to U.S. authorities last year. He confessed to a role in the bombing of Letelier, implicating two intelligence agents.

Larios did not appear Wednesday night and no mention was made of him.

The Letelier-Moffit bombing has strained U.S.-Chilean relations. Santiago has refused to extradite the two officers indicted in the case, which Washington has called a "clear case of international terrorism."

Letelier's son and sister called Wednesday for the reopening of the investigation of the Letelier case in Chile. No one was ever charged in Chile despite Larios' testimony and other evidence pointing to the two intelligence officers.

Genaro Arriagada, executive secretary of the opposition coalition of 16 political parties, said Pinochet backers have held rallies in several downtown locations denied the opposition for a planned Oct. 2 gathering.

"We cannot accept this," Arriagada told reporters. "That would be to accept injustice."

Pinochet supporters have held rallies outside the presidential palace in the downtown area and twice in the major street running by the palace.

But the military governor of the Santiago area, Gen. Sergio Badiola, said the opposition could not use a downtown street or a nearby park where the military held a parade Monday.

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE

The Seminole County Board of County Commissioners has tentatively adopted a measure to increase its property tax levy by 9.1 percent.

All concerned citizens are invited to attend a public hearing on the tax increase to be held on September 27, 1988, at 7:00 P.M., or as soon thereafter as possible in the County Commission Meeting Room, #W120, Seminole County Services Building, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida.

A FINAL DECISION ON THE PROPOSED TAX INCREASE AND THE BUDGET WILL BE MADE AT THIS HEARING.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Teenagers rob teacher at gunpoint

CLEVELAND — An armed robbery in a fourth-grade classroom prompted an order for increased security at the school where two teenagers held up a teacher at gunpoint and stole her purse before 25 terrified pupils.

Two youths, believed to be between ages 15 and 17, stole the teacher's purse containing $7, credit cards and checks, police said. The thieves left the school without harming the teacher or any students, said authorities. No arrests were made.

The children in the classroom remained in school the rest of the day.

Hunts seek Chapter 11 protection

DALLAS — Though confident a $130 million judgment against them will be overturned, millionaire brothers Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt said they filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection to shield their assets.

Hunt spokesman Tom Whitaker said in a statement that the filings were prompted by the Hunts' appeal of a $130 million judgment they were ordered to pay Minpeco S.A. of Peru, which claimed it lost $150 million because of the the Hunts' scheme in the early 1980s to corner the silver market.

Arsonist strikes 20 times since May

JEFFERSON, N.H. — Fearful residents of a small town hit by its 20th suspicious fire in four months are sleeping in shifts and praying for a snowfall that could help police track down the arsonist suspected of torching homes and barns in the "numbed" mountain hamlet.

The latest fire broke out Tuesday night at a log cabin home, reawakening fears among townspeople who had just gone one month without any fires.

Since May 5, 20 arson fires have destroyed or damaged homes and barns and left fields charred black in the sprawling town of about 800 people. Police have declined to say whether they have suspects.

Wright defends himself against criticism

WASHINGTON — In the face of White House outrage, House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, maintains he violated no confidence by saying the CIA has tried secretly to provoke repression by Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

Officials say 'powder keg' of racism sparked riot

United Press International

SHREVEPORT, La. — A riot by neighborhood blacks sparked by the drug-related shooting of a black man by a white teenage girl was the result of a "powder keg" of racial strife that finally exploded, state legislators said.

Tamala Vergo, 17, of Greenwood, was charged with second-degree murder Wednesday, several hours after the melee of gunshots, flying rocks, broken bottles and threats of violence riddled through the Cedar Grove neighborhood.

"Shreveport is still a racist city," state Sen. Greg Tarver, who represents Shreveport, said after learning of the destruction that left several cars and one building burned and other stores looted while authorities stood helplessly by until the mob calmed down.

The scarred neighborhood was calm by daylight Wednesday, but tensions flared again after nightfall as 100 police officers were called to the Cedar Grove area to handle reports of random gunshots, minor grass fires and "general rowdiness," police Sgt. Wayne Alford said.

"We have activated our command post and moved it up to be closer to the problem area," Alford said. "We have reports of shots being fired, although not at officers. There are rocks and bottles being thrown at officers and passing cars."

Only residents were being permitted into the nine-block area.

City officials, police and black community leaders met with area residents Wednesday in an attempt to ease tensions.

"We're sitting on a powder keg in this community, and nobody wants to come to grips with it," said state Rep. Alfonse Jackson, who also represents Shreveport, one of the black leaders called to City Hall.

The 5-hour riot erupted moments after William McKenney, 22, was shot to death at 9:45 p.m. Tuesday in A.B. Palmer Park, a well-known drug haven where he was involved in a transaction with two women in a car, police said.

"We feel now from our investigation that (the shooting) is not going to be racially motivated — that it was a drug deal that went sour," Sgt. Rick Ware said. "We don't know who was ripping who."

Vergo and another woman, who were in the car with McKenney, got out of the vehicle and ran into the white-owned Pack and Sack convenience store adjacent to the park immediately after the shooting and police were called, Ware said.

"That's when the riot happened," said Reba White, who was in the convenience store at the time. "They were throwing bottles and anything that was there. I've never seen anything like it before."

The mob in the predominantly black southside neighborhood quickly grew into the hundreds and demanded that the women be brought out, police said.

Police backed a van to the front door of the store to pick up the young women. As they dashed into the vehicle, the mob pelted it with bottles and bricks, a witness said.

Six people were arrested in the riot.

There was only one reported injury, a woman who was hit in the face by a bottle. She was treated at Schumpert Medical Center and released.

The convenience store, an adjacent liquor store and several vehicles, including White's car and a television news car, were burned.

Firefighters let the torched building burn after members of the crowd shot at a fire truck as firefighters tried to battle the blazes.

Cool, rainy weather helps contain fires

UPI report

Firefighters held the line against a 27,000-acre arson blaze that destroyed eight homes north of San Francisco, and Oregon's worst blaze of the year was declared contained after destroying nearly $30 million worth of timberland.

After several days of cool, wet weather, firefighters were mopping up the fires that raked Yellowstone National Park, where some officials said Wednesday the damage to the environment was not as devastating as first thought.

The arson fire in California's Solano County had been expected to be contained Tuesday, but winds gusting to 50 mph sent flames shooting across the lines Monday night, and the blaze burned to within a half mile of Vacaville, a city of 65,000.

It briefly threatened 50 homes in a tract west of Vacaville, but a row of bulldozers and fire engines staved off disaster, and residents have been allowed back in their homes.

The fire was expected to cover 35,000 acres before it was ringed, with containment now predicted for Friday night. The increased acreage will include backfires set Tuesday and Wednesday to reduce the source of fuel for the fire.

One of those backfires was slated to go through part of a 577-acre nature reserve owned by the University of California at Davis.

"We are expecting to lose a good portion of this nature research, the site of a half-dozen research projects," said Wes Weathers, manager of the reserve. "This loss is catastrophic."

The fire has destroyed 17 buildings, including eight homes, and $1.8 million worth of electronics and communications equipment.

Also Wednesday, the California Department of Forestry and the Red Cross revised their damage estimate for the state's worst fire of the year, saying the Forty-niner fire near Grass Valley earlier this month consumed 33,500 acres, destroyed 178 homes and caused at least $30 million damage. The blaze was started by a transient burning trash.

Fires have burned over 154,000 acres in California this year.

In Oregon, a 9,000-acre blaze believed caused by a careless smoker was declared contained Wednesday night after destroying almost $30 million worth of valuable timberland in the Willamette National Forest, the second worst fire in the forest's history.

The Shady Beach fire 6 miles southeast of Oakridge took 10 days to control by an army of firefighters that peaked at 2,500.

WORLD BRIEFS

Armenians demand talks on violence

MOSCOW — Troops backed by armored personnel carriers sealed off streets in the Armenian capital of Yerevan today as thousands of Armenians demanded an emergency session of the republic's Supreme Soviet to discuss ethnic violence, reporters with the official press said.

Armenians took to the streets and boycotted work in Yerevan to protest a state of emergency declared Wednesday by Communist authorities amid continuing high tensions since Christian Armenians and Moslem Azeris battled with knives and pistols Sunday in the village of Khadzaly.

Massive toll feared in Iraqi gas attacks

WASHINGTON — The number of Kurds killed in Iraqi poison gas attempts to crush their separatist movement may have reached hundreds of thousands, Senate investigators report.

Two staffers from the Foreign Relations Committee, joined by a representative of the U.S. Embassy in Ankara, Turkey, managed to talk to more than 200 of the Kurdish rebels who fled to Turkish refugee camps in late August.

Many of the Kurds, an ethnic minority in Iraq, had symptoms associated with chemical weapons — vision defects, vomiting or diarrhea — and gave graphic descriptions of planes and helicopters dropping bombs on their villages that produced a sour smell.

Haitians applaud Namphy arrests

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Military supporters of the ousted Namphy regime were herded by soldiers into army headquarters in a roundup applauded by Haitians, eager to see the removal of the last vestiges of the bloody Duvalier legacy.

Violence also erupted in a city north of the capital Wednesday, where troops killed a teenager and wounded two men when they opened fire on a mob.

The killing in St. Marc, 45 miles north of Port-au-Prince, came as demonstrators wielding machetes and clubs marched there in protest against the new military government of Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril, radio reports said.

Secretary-General arrives in South Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar faced tough questions from his South African hosts on his trip to assess progress in U.S.-brokered talks on gaining Namibian independence and ending the Cuban presence in Angola.

Burmese general responds to opposition

United Press International

RANGOON, Burma — Gen. Saw Maung, responding today to appeals from Burmese opposition leaders for peace talks and an end to weeks of bloodshed, promised access to state-run television and radio to forces battling his newly installed government.

Saw Mung, in a letter signed in his name by a senior aide, said the Southeast Asia country's burgeoning opposition can help to achieve peace and pledged that his military junta would arrange media access.

"We believe it is necessary for everyone to help bring about an end to violence and demonstrations (staged) with the intention of persuading the armed forces to take sides," the letter said.

Six months of mounting demonstrations and strikes by Burmese calling for democracy have brought the country to a standstill.

Opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyt called Saw Mung's offer "hypocritical." She cited the military's crackdown on the media since Saw Maung led a coup Sunday and overthrew the month-old government of President Maung Maung.

A spokeswoman for Suu Kyt expressed skepticism about the offer and said official television and radio have broadcast accounts of the civil strife with casualty figures that are considerably lower than those reported by diplomats and other independent sources.

The aide to Suu Kyt also noted that Saw Mung's letter did not mention the possibility that government and opposition representatives might meet in an attempt to stem the violence sweeping Burma.

State-run Rangoon Radio has reported about 100 deaths in sporadic clashes.

Dissident joins refugees at South African consulate

United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A black dissident claiming he escaped from police detention took refuge in the U.S. Consulate, joining three others holed up in the downtown office suite for 10 days, a U.S. official said today.

Barry Walkley, spokesman for the United States Information Service, identified the person as Clifford Ngkobo and said, "He has been allowed to remain in the consulate."

"A fourth person entered the consulate premises on Sept. 21. He has apparently escaped from detention and is seeking temporary refuge," Walkley said.

Ngkobo entered the downtown office suite Wednesday some hours after police in Cape Town detained 11 dissidents allegedly linked to a weekend conference of opposition groups trying to forge a new anti-apartheid front against the white minority government.

The detentions and latest arrival at the U.S. Consulate came as at least 32 people were wounded in a spate of bomb attacks late Wednesday and early today.

A blast at a predominantly white downtown Johannesburg bus station wounded 19 people Wednesday and a second explosion about 1 a.m. today wounded 13 blacks at a nightclub in the racially mixed Hillbrow area, police said.

In Pretoria, a bomb damaged the home of an Asian man seeking election to a town council, and two other explosions slightly damaged buildings in Fort Beaufort and King William's Town in eastern Cape province, police said.

There was no immediate indication of a link between the detentions and the bomb explosions.

Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok blamed the explosion at the bus station on agents of the outlawed African National Congress fighting to topple the white minority government. Vlok branded it a "gruesome deed" to obtain support for a "sickening cause."

Ngkobo joined Murphy Morobe and Mohammed Valli Moosa, officials of the gagged United Democratic Front, and Vusi Philip Khanyile, an activist in the National Education Crisis Committee.

PUBLIC MEETING TO CONSIDER DRAFT LAND DEVELOPMENT REGULATIONS

The City of Sanford has drafted new land development regulations that will apply within the area shown in the map of this advertisement.

As the City of Sanford's designated Land Development Regulation Commission, the City of Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission will hold public workshop meetings on draft land development regulations on Thursday, October 6, 1988 and Thursday, October 20, 1988 at 6:00 o'clock P.M. in the City Commission Room, City Hall, Sanford, Florida. The Planning and Zoning Commission will consider draft regulations, requirements and procedures related to zoning, subdivisions, site plans, landscape and buffers, tree protection, parking, signs, drainage, streets, utilities and other related subjects, all of which are embodied in the draft Land Development Regulations. These workshop meetings are optional opportunities provided for public information, comment and input regarding draft land development regulation proposals. The workshops are being held prior to public hearings required by law.

Interested parties may appear at the workshop meetings and be heard regarding the draft land development regulations. A copy of the Draft Land Development Regulations is on file with the Department of Engineering and Planning at the City Hall, Sanford, Florida and may be inspected by the public.

ADVICE TO THE PUBLIC: If a person decides to appeal a decision made with respect to any matter considered at the above meeting or hearing, he may need a verbatim record of proceedings, including the testimony and evidence, which record is not provided by the City of Sanford.

Walsh may bypass senior year

CORAL GABLES — Redshirt junior quarterback Steve Walsh says he will consider bypassing his senior season at the University of Miami to enter the NFL draft.

Walsh, who is in his fourth year at Miami and will graduate next summer with a degree in finance, said he will either pursue a master's degree in finance next fall or turn pro. Walsh has a 14-0 record as a starter at Miami.

"It's something I'll discuss with Coach (Jimmy) Johnson and with my family," Walsh said. "I don't know if I'm ready to make a huge step like that, but it's something that definitely will be talked about at the end of the season."

Included in Walsh's perfect record as a starter are miracle comebacks against Michigan and Florida State. He rallied Miami from a 30-14 deficit at Ann Arbor, Mich., last weekend to a 31-30 win, and last year at Tallahassee the Hurricanes overcame a 19-3 deficit to win 26-25.

Walsh, who led Miami to a national championship last year and a current No. 1 ranking this season, also said he would like to win the Heisman Trophy. His chances of winning that award this year, however, must be regarded as slim.

Pallone takes leave of absence

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — The lawyer for Dave Pallone said the major league umpire's leave of absence announced Monday by the National League was taken to address false allegations that he was part of a local sex scandal involving teenage boys.

Several men, including an Episcopal priest and a millionaire insurance executive, have been convicted on charges of having sex with teenage boys.

Pallone's attorney, E. Stewart Jones of Troy, said his client has been investigated by the district attorney's office concerning the sex scandal.

Jones said he was retained by Pallone after the umpire learned of a series of anonymous telephone calls to the National League and to the district attorney's office. But Jones said the allegations against Pallone "are without substance. They are not accurate."

Tyson: 'Out of control'

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champ Mike Tyson admitted in an interview published today that he suffers from manic depression and wants to start working toward a more rational life.

"I was born with this disease," Tyson told the New York Post. "I can't help it. Maybe that's why I'm successful at what I do. I can't help it — this is the way I was all my life."

The paper said that Tyson made the admission as his marriage to wife Robin Givens was near the brink of dissolving.

During a recent trip to Russia, the paper quoted a source as saying, Tyson terrorized wife Givens, his mother-in-law, Ruth Roper, and Givens' social secretary, Phyllis Polaner.

"Mike is out of control," the source told the Post.

Curren, McEnroe triumph

LOS ANGELES — Second-seeded Kevin Curren and third-seeded John McEnroe posted easy victories Wednesday to advance to the quarterfinals of the $415,000 Volvo tennis tournament.

Curren, of Austin, Texas, used an effective serve and volley game to quickly overcome Jim Courier, 18, of Dade City, Fla., 6-1, 6-3, and McEnroe ousted unseeded Paul Annacone, 6-1, 6-2.

Defending champion David Pate advanced with a 6-3, 7-6 (8-6) victory over Pete Sampras, a 17-year-old wild-card entry, but sixth-seeded Dan Goldie was upset by unseeded doubles specialist Jim Pugh, 6-2, 6-4.

McEnroe, currently ranked No. 24, smothered Annacone's chip and charge game with an aggressive all-around game during the 75-minute match.

Otto wins 3rd gold

United Press International

SEOUL, South Korea — An unscheduled fight in the boxing ring gave the host country an embarrassing black eye today and created an international furor at the Olympics.

The incident overshadowed the first triple gold-medal performance of the Games, that of East German swimmer Kristin Otto, and two gold-medal efforts by American swimmers Janet Evans and Matt Biondi.

Some 12 hours after the melee, five Korean boxing officials, including team trainer Lee Heung-Soo, were suspended through the Olympics for their part in attacking a referee.

Anwar Chowdry, president of the Amateur International Boxing Association, announced the suspension after a meeting of the Executive Committee.

"We have suspended immediately five officials for taking a leading part in this incident," Chowdry said. "They cannot officiate in any capacity in this competition."

Evans shattered her own world record by almost two seconds in the 400-meter freestyle. A half-hour later, Biondi captured the 100 free, with teammate Christopher Jacobs earning the silver.

Biondi has won four medals this week, including two gold, and he and Evans have captured four of the five gold medals for the United States.

"I can't believe it," said Evans, a 17-year-old Californian, when she saw her record time of 4 minutes, 3.85 seconds. "When I hit the wall and looked at the time, I couldn't believe it. It felt more like a 4:05 than a 4:03. I didn't feel like I was going that fast. "I was pleased and a little bit surprised, but not shocked."

South Korea's prime concerns since being awarded the Games seven years ago have been security and image. Both were tarnished with one blow when the chief of ringside security attacked a referee and boxing officials heaved chairs and bottles.

The referee, Keith Walker of New Zealand, was surrounded at one point by as many as 25 people in the ring, some of whom were hitting and shoving him. Within a few hours of the incident, Walker was on a plane home.

Although officials involved in the incident were not at ringside for Thursday night's program, the security chief, S.H. Yoon, watched as South Korean Lee

Redskins lose Williams

United Press International

ARLINGTON, Va. — Doug Williams, who quarterbacked the Washington Redskins to the Super Bowl championship last season, Wednesday underwent an appendectomy and will be sidelined for at least four and as many as seven weeks, the team said.

Mark Rypien, 26, a sixth-round 1986 draft choice out of Washington State who has not taken a snap in a regular season NFL game, will start Sunday when the Redskins face the Phoenix Cardinals at Tempe, Ariz.

The Redskins two weeks ago traded disgruntled second-string quarterback Jay Schroeder, a 1986 Pro Bowl player who lost his starting job last season to Williams, to the Los Angeles Raiders.

Williams, 33, was taken to Arlington Hospital in suburban Washington after complaining of abdominal pain following Wednesday's team practice. He went into surgery at about 10:20 p.m. and was out of the operating room at 12:05 a.m. He was listed in fair condition this morning.

Marty Hurney, a team spokesman, told an impromptu hospital news conference Williams is expected to remain in the hospital five to seven days and will be out of action from four to seven weeks.

Coach Gibbs came up and told me that Doug was feeling some pain and said he was going to go in for tests after practice today and just to be real attentive to what's going on in practice, and if my number was called to be ready," Rypien, who was activated for five games last season, told WUSA-TV. "I feel that I'm capable, I'm ready. I know the system and I'm excited to get a shot. I wish it wasn't under these circumstances."

A Redskins team physician accompanied Williams to the hospital after practice Wednesday.

Williams' appendectomy leaves the team, which at one point this season had four quarterbacks on the active roster, with only one — the 6-foot-4, 234-pound Rypien.

The rivalry continues

By CHUCK BURGESS
 Herald correspondent

Editor's note — Chuck Burgess is a 1985 graduate of Seminole High School.

Seminole vs. Lake Mary — what else needs to be said?

The rivalry resumes Friday night when the Seminoles host the Rams on the gridiron in Sanford. To say these two teams are just cross-town rivals is like saying Tim Raines is just another baseball player — and we all know what Raines can do.

Having graduated from Seminole it's more than easy to describe what this game means to both teams and both schools. The Seminoles are 2-0 overall and the Rams are 0-2, but for all practical purposes, you can throw out the record books. Let's face it, this is in-your-face football and bragging rights for another year.

The atmosphere around Seminole this week has been buzzing according to senior class president Kathy Boyer. "We've been preparing for this the whole week," Boyer, who is also Seminole's cheerleading co-captain, said. "Every time we play Lake Mary it boosts school spirit. We're ready for lamb meat!"

This is the same attitude that the 'Noles had when yours truly roamed the halls of Seminole. There's only one thing on the minds of teachers, students, players and coaches: Beat Lake Mary. A coach can go 1-9 on the season and if the one win is against the Rams, even though it wasn't a successful year, the season was still worthwhile.

"The Lake Mary game is always the game of the year," 1985 SHS graduate and former football player Steve Boney said. "When we played it was really intense and that's all anyone talked about the whole year. I think we got up more for Lake Mary than any other team the whole season."

This intense competition between the two schools started as soon as Lake Mary was built. Students and athletes from Seminole High, Sanford Middle, and Lakeview Middle now were divided, depending on where they lived or moved to, of where they wanted to go to high school, thus creating an athletic war.

"I think the rivalry is a little different than when we went to school," Boney said. "When Lake Mary was first built a lot of the middle school kids who grew up together were now going to different high schools and playing each other. That's when it all started because neither school likes to lose."

This rivalry filters into all of the other sports because one dominating factor keeps reappearing — These two schools just don't get along when it comes to athletics.

You can bet the farm that when the two teams take the field Friday night that both teams will battle to the death and take no prisoners. The two schools don't seem to like each other, at least not how good neighbors should, and athletic competition is just a reason to prove who is really the best school in the county.

When attending the game tomorrow night one word of advice: Don't blink because if you do, you could miss the only score of the game.

Lake Mary vs. SHS: Time for war

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

Editor's note: Mark Blythe is a 1983 graduate of Lake Mary High School.

When Lake Mary and Seminole High School take the field this Friday night don't expect a football game, expect a war.

The two schools have a love-hate relationship in that they love to hate each other. The two schools are off to different starts this season with Seminole being 2-0 and the Rams off to a rare 0-2 start.

There have always been some interesting sidelights to the Lake Mary-Seminole rivalry since it began. Two people who know about that are Mike and Tammy Gaudreau. Mike is a teacher and coach at Lake Mary High and Tammy is the cheerleader sponsor at Seminole High.

"People have been talking about this games for two weeks," Tammy Gaudreau said. "This is our biggest rivalry and everyone is really fired up for this game. Both teams are very talented and everyone is expecting a really good game."

Seminole won two years ago but dropped a heartbreaking 7-6, decision a year ago. The Seminoles are playing well and are hungry for another victory. Lake Mary, on the other hand, is looking to get into the win column and have a tough opponent to try to do it against.

"I think this is a bigger rivalry for Seminole students than it is for Lake Mary students," Mike Gaudreau said. "We're still the new kid on the block and we've pulled students from a variety of different schools so everyone is our rival. Some of our kids get up to play Lake Brantley, some Lyman and some against Seminole. It all matters which school you were pulled from."

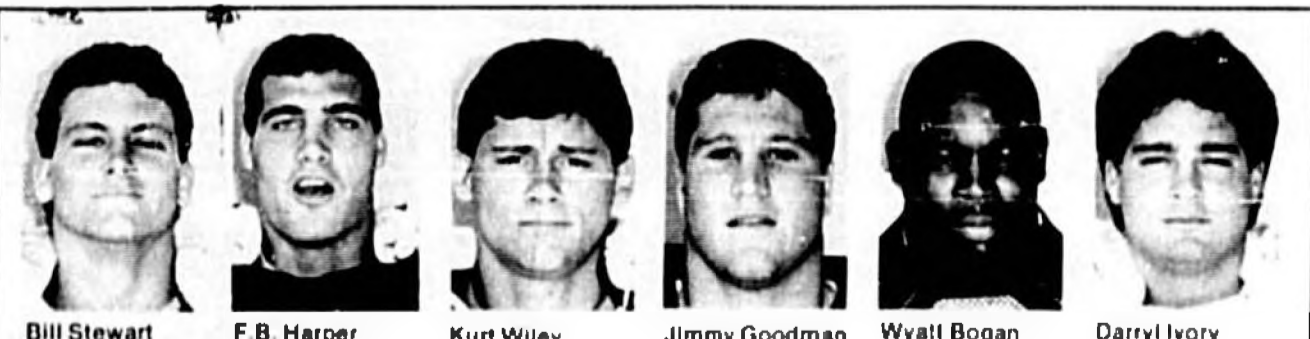

"This is the kind of game everyone loves," Tammy said. "Kids get off work to go to this type of game. I think this will be our biggest drawing game of the season and we're all looking forward to it."

Armresting tournament in Longwood

The Florida State Amateur Armresting Championships will be held this Saturday afternoon at Willett-Toyota on Highway 17-92 in Longwood. The top amateurs from around the state will compete for a chance to go on to the World Tournament in January.

Weigh-ins will be Friday from 6 to 9 p.m. with competition beginning Saturday at 2 p.m. Semifinals and finals are expected to be from 5 to 6 p.m. with over 100 competitors scheduled for the event.

The champions at the state level will represent the United States in the world championships on Jan. 20-21 at Daytona Beach.

7 UCF linebackers 'magnificent'

By DAVID CORCORAN
 Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — In 1964, the Florida State Seminoles under coach Bill Peterson had their first great team, going 9-1-1, and defeating the Florida Gators for the first time ever.

They were led by a group of players headed by NFL Hall of Famer Fred Biletnikoff called the "Seven Magnificents."

At the University of Central Florida, they have their own "Seven Magnificents."

Vince Lombardi coined the phrase "offense sells tickets, but its defense that wins championships."

UCF's defense is led by a group of seven linebackers, probably the best in the country in either Division IAA or Division II who have been nothing short of magnificent this season.

Their names are Wyatt Bogan, Bill Stewart, F.B. Harper, Kurt Wiley, Jimmy Goodman, Jose Trujillo and Darryl Ivory.

Bogan (6-2, 230), is the leader of the group. He missed the 1987

Browning handcuffs Giants

Tom Browning came within one out of a little-known major league record, five days after hurling a perfect game.

Browning followed up his perfect game against Los Angeles with a five-hitter over eight innings Wednesday night, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Browning needed to retire the first three Giants to equal Jim Barr's mark of 41 consecutive outs, registered Aug. 23 and 29, 1972, ironically as a member of San Francisco. Browning induced leadoff batter Brett Butler to strike out and Robby Thompson to flyout in the first inning before Will Clark ended the string at 40 with a single to right on a 2-2 pitch.

"I wasn't worried about that record," said Browning, 17-5, who won for the ninth time in 10 decisions covering 14 starts. "I just wanted to pitch well and keep us in the game, and I felt I did that tonight."

Ken Griffey singled home the tie-breaking run in a four-run eighth inning to move Cincinnati 1-2 games ahead of San Francisco in the chase for second place in the National League West.

Dodgers 3-6, Padres 9-5

At Los Angeles, Mike Devereaux delivered an RBI single off Mark Davis, 5-10, with one out in the 10th inning to give the Dodgers a split. In the opener, Benito Santiago hit a grand-slam to cap a seven-run second inning.

Mets 4, Phillies 3

At New York, Sid Fernandez, 10-10, scattered six innings in eight-plus innings to help the Mets gain at least a tie for the NL East title. Darryl Strawberry hit his league-leading 36th homer for New York.

Pirates 8, Cardinals 0

At St. Louis, John Smiley, 12-10, allowed two hits in his first career shutout to prevent the Mets from clinching. One of the hits was the 1,500th of Ozzie Smith's career.

Expos 8, Cubs 5

At Chicago, pinch hitter Graig Nettles doubled home the go-ahead run off Goose Gosage, 3-3, in a six-run ninth inning. Gosage had wild-pitched the tying run home.

Astros 1, Braves 0

At Houston, Bob Knepper 14-5, permitted a second-inning single by Dale Murphy in his first career one-hitter. Gerald Young hit an RBI single off Pete Smith, 7-15, in the eighth inning.

Pressure still on Red Sox

On Sept. 21, 1964, the Philadelphia Phillies had a 6-1-2 game National League lead with 12 games to play. They lost to the Cincinnati Reds 1-0 that night and proceeded to drop 10 straight and lost the pennant to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Twenty-four years later, the Boston Red Sox suffered a 1-0 loss to the Toronto Blue Jays. If the Red Sox follow their history — they haven't won a World Series since 1918 — Wednesday night's defeat could be an omen for things to come.

Boston opens a three-game series in New York against the Yankees Friday.

Yankees 3, Orioles 2

At New York, Don Slaught slugged a solo home run with one out in the 12th inning to give New York a sweep of their three-game series. Slaught, who was 1 for his last 27, drove the first pitch from Mark Thurmond, 1-8, over the left-field fence for his ninth homer. Dale Mohorcic, 4-7, was the winner.

Tigers 3, Indians 2

At Detroit, Darrell Evans doubled home Matt Nokes from first base with two out in the eighth inning. Nokes singled with two out off Brad Havens, 2-3, and Evans doubled to right center for a 3-2 edge. Doyle Alexander won his second straight start to raise his record to 13-11.

Athletics 6, Twins 3

At Oakland, Calif., Dennis Eckersley pitched one inning to earn his 43rd save, giving Oakland a major-league record 61, and Bob Welch, 16-5, matched his career high of 16 victories. The right-hander notched 16 victories in 1962 with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Royals 5, Mariners 4

At Seattle, Mark Gubicza earned his 19th victory and Bo Jackson homered twice and scored the winning run on Jim Eisenreich's ninth-inning double, helping Kansas City snap a four-game losing streak. Gubicza, 19-7, allowed nine hits in 8 2-3 innings. Israel Sanchez retired one batter for his first career save.

White Sox 6, Rangers 1

At Arlington, Texas, Shawn Hillegas held Texas hitless for 6 1-3 innings en route to a three-hitter over 8 2-3 innings. Hillegas, 2-2, came within one out of his first major-league shutout and complete game. Bobby Thigpen relieved and tied a club record with his 32nd save.

Brewers 10, Angels 3

At Anaheim, Calif., rookie Gary Sheffield drove in three runs with a home run and a single, and rookie Don August, 12-6, won his fifth straight to carry the second-place Brewers to their seventh win in eight games. Paul Mirabella hurled 3 1-3 innings for his third save. Willie Fraser, 12-11, was the loser.

Olympics

Jae-Hyuk defeated Australian Darrell Hiles.

"It was a one-sided judgment by the referee," Yoon said in defense of his actions. "Maybe the referee was bribed by the Bulgarians."

The attack and ultimate suspensions, along with the removal of a gold medal from a Bulgarian weightlifter because of a positive drug test, darkened what otherwise was a bright, warm day already crammed with 18 medal events.

The United States, which managed to keep away from controversy, registered a couple of early successes in women's basketball and volleyball, although the soccer team was eliminated following a 4-2 loss to the Soviet Union.

The South Koreans, still angered at what they feel were biased decisions four years ago at the Los Angeles Olympics, gave vent to their emotions in ugly fashion following their second big disappointment in as many days in boxing.

Moments after Bulgaria's Alexander Hristov was awarded a 4-1 decision over bantamweight Byun Jong-Il of South Korea, a coach, identified by eyewitnesses as Kim Seong-Eun, punched Walker in the side. The security chief removed his yellow jacket and jumped into the ring, pushing Walker against the ropes.

While Byun sat in silent protest in the ring for 67 minutes before leaving, some 40 other people in various stages of anger climbed into the ring, some joining in the attack on the referee. Walker was escorted by almost a dozen police officers from Chamshil Students' Gymnasium.

"I was hit many times, not so much in the face," Walker said. "It was not a very safe scene at all. Security was not very good."

"I really don't believe I did a bad job. I've seen the bout again. I think I controlled it. I have no regrets. The part that disturbed me is that on Korean television they took long shots of the crowd activity in the ring. You couldn't see what was going on at all.

They were kicking and punching and pulled my hair."

Asked if anyone suggested he go home, Walker answered sharply. "I suggested I leave the country."

Although a referee does not keep score in the Olympics, Walker ordered two points be deducted from Byun's score for a blatant violation. The South Korean team issued a formal protest, claiming Hristov also fouled.

According to ringside officials, Byun would have won if not for the two-point deduction.

"Under the rules of boxing the boy is not allowed to use his head; he was using it in a dangerous manner," Walker said. "I believe that I carried out the rules as I saw them."

A day earlier, South Korea also was disturbed when another of its boxers, Oh Kwang-So, dropped a 3-2 decision to American Michael Carbajal.

In contrast to the Koreans, the United States enjoyed a pleasant short day in the ring. Kennedy McKinney of Killeen, Texas, became the fourth boxer from the United States to advance, stopping Erick-Giovanni Perez of Guatemala in 104 seconds.

Amid all the furor, it was business as usual for the Soviet Union, which padded its lead in the medal standings by capturing six golds and 10 medals during the day. The Soviets have 13 golds — more than double any other country — and 28 total medals.

East Germany was next with 19 medals and the United States, thanks to the efforts of Evans and Blondi, moved into third with 13.

Evans, who previously won the 400 individual medley, can become only the second U.S. woman to win three individual events in the same Olympics by taking Saturday's 800 freestyle.

"I don't feel any different after the second gold medal," Evans said. "It's an honor and I'm proud for my country and that never changes. I'm having fun. That's what it's all about."

East German Helke Friedrich, who was second to Evans, commented, "I didn't think Janet was capable of producing a time like that."

Blondi led his entire race, winning the 100 in an Olympic record of 48.63 seconds, the second-fastest time ever. The 6-foot-7 Californian has two golds, a silver and a bronze, and he is expected to add a fifth medal Friday on the 400-meter freestyle relay team.

East Germany captured today's other two women's races, the 400 freestyle relay and the 100 backstroke, with Otto winning her third gold. The U.S. women were third in the relay. Igor Polianski of the Soviet Union won the men's 200 backstroke.

Earlier, the International Olympic Committee announced Bulgarian weightlifter Mitko Grablev had tested positive for a banned substance, and he was stripped of the gold won Monday night in the 126-pound class.

Tests showed the presence of furosemide, a diuretic used to help athletes lose weight and thus keep them under their weight limit.

Besides losing his gold, Grablev has received a two-year suspension from the International Weightlifting Federation and has been dropped from his national team.

Officials say his gold in the 126-pound class would go to Soviet Oleg Mirzozan. He Ying-qiang of China moves from third to receive the silver. He's teammate, Liu Shoubin, will receive the bronze in a second medal ceremony scheduled for Saturday.

Those recommendations need the approval of the IOC executive committee.

The IOC also announced it had disqualified Australian pentathlete Alexander James Watson because of an excess of caffeine.

The Soviet Union swept the top three places in men's all-around individual gymnastics. Vladimir Artemov edged Valeri Lutin for the gold while two-time world champion Dmitri Bilozerchev, despite three perfect scores, took the bronze.

Soviets sweep men's all-around

SEOUL, South Korea — The Soviet Union swept the men's Olympic all-around individual gymnastics competition Thursday, with Vladimir Artemov upsetting two-time world champion Dmitri Bilozerchev for the gold medal.

Bilozerchev, who came back from a near-crippling multiple leg fracture to win his second world title last November, earned three perfect scores in six events Thursday. But his gutsy attempt to atone for a major mistake on high bar in the team finals two nights earlier was not enough. He was forced to settle for the bronze medal behind Valeri Lutin.

Korean upsets No. 4 Leconte

SEOUL, South Korea — Hong Suk-kim, an unheralded Korean ranked just 361st in the world, thrilled a noisy home crowd and shocked Olympic visitors Thursday with a 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5 tennis victory over fourth-seeded Henri Leconte of France.

It was the greatest tennis victory ever registered by a Korean and a humiliation for Leconte, who had been struggling at the Olympic tournament after arriving late because of other tournament commitments.

In other second-round play, the Americans completed a sweep of their three matches, led by second seed Tim Mayotte with a 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-0 victory over Diego Nargiso of Italy.

Hungary dominates pentathlon

SEOUL, South Korea — Hungary's Janos Martinek, a 23-year-old teacher, won the individual gold medal in modern pentathlon Thursday and sparked his country to the gold medal in team competition.

A consistent performer in all five events — horseback riding, fencing, swimming, rapid-fire pistol shooting and running — Martinek won the gold with a final score of 5,404.

Haly's Carlo Massullo won the silver medal with 5,379 points and Vahktang Iagorachvili of the Soviet Union took the bronze with 5,367 points.

Americans outlast Argentina

SEOUL, South Korea — Jeff Stork, yet to play in the Olympics because of a back injury, came off the bench Thursday to rally the U.S. men's team from a 0-2 deficit to a victory over Argentina.

Stork, a 28-year-old from Los Angeles, quickened the offense and brought life to the defending Olympic champions after entering with the score 4-4 in the third game.

The Americans reeled off 11 straight points to draw to within 2-1, then took the final two games by scores of 17-15 and 15-7 to improve their record to 3-0 in the tournament. Argentina, which took the first two games by 15-11 scores, fell to 2-1.

Stork, who contributed an ace in the third-game flurry, helped take the attack to the middle of the net, where 6-foot-7 Craig Buck and 6-6 Scott Fortune controlled the net.

Seminole freshman win

Seminole High School's freshman football team used a strong running attack along with a stingy defense to hand Deltona an 18-0 defeat Wednesday night in football action at Seminole High School.

Mark Kouch scored a pair of touchdowns with Marlon Knight adding another to lead the scoring parade. Knight opened the scoring with a 12-yard sweep with 3:43 left in the first quarter.

Seminole's defense was led by Quinton Hyrd, a weak side linebacker that finished with seven solo tackles, Darrell Canada, Reggie Smith and Cornelius Wesley.

Elsewhere, Lyman's freshman football team came up with an upset as it downed Lake Mary, 6-0, in overtime. The game was a defensive struggle with both teams playing excellent football.

The score came when Chris Cotton pounded his way to the two-yard line where he was hit and fumbled the ball and Sean Whittaker jumped on the ball for the score and the margin of victory.

At Oviedo it was the Lions whipping Lake Howell, 19-0, led by the all-around play of McGill Hodges. Hodges finished with 80 yards rushing on 12 carries while catching a pair of passes and playing brilliant defense.

Linebackers

season with a broken foot, but has recovered to show the form that makes him one of the top prospects in Division II. He leads the team with 20 tackles, 4 for losses.

"Well first of all, the defense is playing a lot better this year than last as a whole," Bogan said. "What I'm trying to do is trying to mix in my style with a lot of good guys."

"It's not anything special I'm trying to do," added Bogan. "Everybody playing together as a unit will make my job that much easier."

Bogan, who also made the key play on Troy State on a fake punt play last week, gives credit to the coaches that saw that Troy St. was a little bit desperate at the time, and they called a defense they were suitable to run at the time, and it was my man who had the ball. I just rushed in and made the play."

Stewart (5-11, 193), a sophomore from Seffner impressed head coach Gene McDowell so much during the spring drills that he was promoted to the starting unit.

In the opener against Bethune-Cookman, though, Stewart was knocked out early with an ankle injury, and after sitting out the West Georgia game suffered a slight concussion at the hands of the Trojans.

But Stewart is from the old school, "tough as nails" and made 7 tackles against the Trojans before the injury, and is ready to go when the Knights play East Tennessee State Saturday.

Stewart said he would like to pattern himself after Jack Lambert of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and loves to hit.

Also Stewart feels there's no jealousy among the linebackers, saying that "we play as a team, win as a team, no superstars."

Harper (6-2, 215), a sophomore from Englewood (Lemon Bay), has 17 tackles thus far and gives linebacker coach Randy Romero credit for his improvement, as Romero "pushed me hard in the weight room in the spring, and told me you could be as good as you want to be."

Wiley (6-2, 195), from Daytona Beach (Spruce Creek), has 16 tackles and is called the "naughtiest" player on the team, who isn't the biggest or fastest player, but may have "the biggest heart" on the team.

The teams who have faced UCF thus far said that Wiley is dirty or borderline, but "that's the nature of my style," said Wiley who is mild-mannered when he's

Kaiser keeps on comeback trail

By MARK BLYNNE
Herald sports writer

SANFORD — After an injury that sidelined him during his sophomore season, Seminole High's Jason Kaiser has been on the comeback trail and has been improving each and every week.

Kaiser, a senior, finished second last week in the highly competitive Edgewater Invitational and led the Seminoles to their first cross country title in over three years.

Kaiser has led the Seminole distance corps for the past two seasons and has become one of the area's top runners. Kaiser will be tested today when he will go up against the state's top runner, Teddy Mitchell at the Lake Mary Invitational.

"Jason (Kaiser) has only one real goal this season and that is to reach the state meet," Seminole coach Ken Brauman said. "After his injury he had to take awhile off, since then he's just continued to improve and has been our leader for the past couple of seasons."

The injury, a stress fracture, limited Kaiser's running and slowed what would have been a spectacular sophomore season for the talented youth. Kaiser, though a senior, is young and has a little more physical maturing to do.

"Jason just ran sparingly during the time he was injured and is just now starting to come on," Brauman said. "He's still not as strong as most of the other seniors around the area because he's a young senior. He's only 16 and most seniors are 17 or 18 right now, he still has a little physical maturing to do and I think his best running days are still ahead of him."

Kaiser had an off race to begin this season due to a road race that slowed him down. Kaiser then turned things around last week with his second place finish and is hoping to continue his improvement this week.

"He hasn't been injured for awhile and he's continually showed improvement," Brauman said. "He's living proof that if you work hard and stick with it you can be successful."

Kaiser, an honor student, has a grade point average of just over 3.0 and has been the team captain for the past two seasons. Kaiser has been one of Seminole's top runners since coming on the scene as a freshman and with the exception of his injury has been the Seminole's dominating runner.

Kaiser has the ability to get the best out of his teammates also, which has helped make Seminole a team contender and gives them an outside shot to make the state tourney at the end of the season.

"Jason is a real nice young man and helps the other runners quite a bit," Brauman said. "I think if he continues he should make it to the state meet."

Kaiser has not picked a college to attend yet, and if he has a strong senior year he should be able to go wherever he wants. Kaiser's times and grades are good enough for most major colleges around the nation.

"You look at him and his times and if you think of him as a junior (which is his age) and his times are awesome," Brauman said. "I just hope he can keep improving and continue to lead us this year."

LAKE MARY INVITATIONAL
The Lake Mary Invitational will be held today with the first race beginning at 5 p.m. The meet will begin with girls junior varsity followed by boys JV at 5:30, girls varsity at 6 and boys varsity at 6:30.

Oviedo tops Hornets, faces Brantley tonight

Oviedo coach Anita Carlson used Wednesday night's nonconference match to see what everyone on her team was capable of doing. And she discovered that everyone on the team can play pretty good volleyball.

The Lady Lions ran their record to 6-0 Wednesday with a 15-9, 15-9 victory over Bishop Moore's Lady Hornets at Orlando.

Oviedo has its biggest Seminole Athletic Conference match of the early season to-night at 7 when it goes to Lake Brantley High.

Among the players who Carlson got a chance to use extensively for the first time were Michelle Wynn and Heidi Steiner. Wynn was used a setter and did a good job while Steiner provided strong play in the back row. Also turning in strong efforts were Siri Harris and Shannon Wilcoxson.

"I was glad to be able to let everyone play," Carlson said. "I Michelle Wynn Heidi Steiner was also happy to see Heidi (Steiner) do such a good job. Now I know that if I need help in the back row against Brantley, I can use her."

The Oviedo junior varsity also kept its unbeaten record intact Wednesday as it won in three games.

Lake Howell sweeps Apopka

Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks picked up their second consecutive victory Wednesday with a 15-8, 15-9 triumph over nonconference foe Apopka at Lake Howell High.

The Lady Hawks, 4-7, return to Seminole Athletic Conference action tonight at 7 at Lyman. Both teams will be looking for their first SAC win.

Lake Howell opened up a big lead early in the opening game and cruised to the victory while the strong serving of Lee Ann Trimble and a solid defensive effort paved the way in game two.

The match was also an interesting one to the coaches Wednesday night as Lake Howell's Jo Lucia went up against one of her former players, first-year Apopka coach Kathy Barma. Barma was a standout player during the time when the Lady Hawks were one of the powerhouses of the area.

"It made me feel a little old," Luciano said of the match against Barma's Lady Blue Darters. "But I'm always thrilled when the kids who played in high school continue through college and carry it on to the teaching level. It makes me feel my job is worthwhile."

Another of Luciano's former players, Christy Scott, is currently coaching the Lake Howell boys volleyball team. Scott's squad has a 2-0 record and puts it on the line tonight at 5 at Lyman. Lyman has a 2-1 record.

In other volleyball action tonight, Lake Mary and Seminole battle at Lake Mary High and Deltona High goes for its first victory in a tri-match at Deland High.

FISHING
JIM SHUPE

National hunting, fishing day

By proclamation of Governor Bob Martinez, Florida will join the rest of the country in celebrating National Hunting and Fishing Day September 24.

Since 1972, Florida has designated one day per year to give recognition to hunters and fishermen for their contributions to conservation. In addition, National Hunting and Fishing Day has received the support of each American president since its inception.

"National Hunting and Fishing Day focuses on the importance of conserving our natural and wildlife resources and the vital role hunters and fishermen play in conservation," said Col. Robert M. Brantly, executive director of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Through license fees and taxes on equipment, sportsmen contribute millions of dollars each year to pay for land acquisitions, research and management of habitat for fish and wildlife.

Brantly said that without the funding provided by hunters and fishermen, Florida's natural and wildlife resources might be depleted by now.

"Hunters and fishermen helped start the conservation movement," Brantly said. "They supported the laws to stop over-exploitation of wildlife and helped establish state fish and wildlife agencies that could implement much-needed conservation programs. They also proposed and supported laws to establish special hunting and fishing fees and special taxes on their equipment to pay for conservation programs."

Since 1937, the Pittman-Robertson Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act has provided for an excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition (and later on archery hunting equipment). State agencies use these funds for wildlife management programs.

According to national organizers, hunters and fishermen have contributed more than $6 billion for conservation. Also, the programs supported and financed by sportsmen have benefited hundreds of wildlife species across the United States.

The governor said he urges all Floridians to join in a renewed dedication to the wise use of our natural resources so they can be perpetuated for future generations.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

There is no better way to celebrate National Hunting and Fishing Day than by sharing the great outdoors with a child or a senior citizen.

FISHING FORECAST

Lemon Bluff Fish Camp still reports slow bass fishing, but good angling for bream and catfish. Some school bass are being caught around the cut by the fish camp.

Steve Gurd at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp reports that high water has hampered fishing action. Bass fishing is tough, but a few bream are being caught around the pilings of the new bridge.

Snook continue to cooperate at Sebastian Inlet. Jigs, Bombers, and Mavericks are the best artificials, while live bait such as finger mullet often take the larger fish. Most of the snook are running from 8-15 pounds, with fish over the 20 pound mark taken each week. Plan to claim your spot early if you fish the weekends.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports good offshore fishing for sailfin, dolphin, and wahoo in 120-240' of water. A few white marlin are also being caught. The buoy line is still a little slow, with only a few barracuda and tripletail.

Call-waiting welcome to some ears

DEAR ABBY: You agreed with a reader who said that a call-waiting signal was a "rude interruption." Picture this: A lonely wife, passing time on the phone with her mother, sister or friend, when her serviceman (or traveling) husband calls home. If he's in the service, he has probably stood in line for two hours to get his turn at the phone. But wait! Abby says it's "rude" to have her call interrupted—so let him get a busy signal.

How about the parents of a runaway finding comfort in a phone call from a dear friend, the child, in a moment of loneliness, decides to call home. The line is busy! The child has a change of heart and decides not to call after all.

In today's busy, hectic world, with so many two-job households, our time at home is limited, and we should all have the option of knowing who wants or needs to talk to us.

Call waiting allows us to know that someone is trying to reach us. If you happen to be on a call that is of vital importance and do not wish to be notified if someone else is trying to reach you, call waiting can be turned off during your conversation.

Please rethink your opinion, Abby.

PENNY RITTER, OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR PENNY: I plead ignorance. I was not aware that the call-waiting signal could be temporarily deactivated by the one who has the service. Thank you. Your letter was one of several hundred to promptly get that message to me.

DEAR ABBY: I am seven and a half months pregnant with my first child, and I cannot help thinking about the many horror stories I have been told since I became pregnant, Abby, even though I have withstood a tremendous amount of physical trauma and have been in and out of the hospital a good deal of my life, childbirth is still a bit unnerving. Just yesterday, a young woman in a store began to chat with me, and went on to tell me of the "horrible experience" she had with her first.

I realize that when a pregnant woman enters a room, all mothers must feel some sort of bond with her and feel it's necessary to "share"—with only good intentions, of course.

Let I wish these women would think about what they are saying and the effect it could have on someone who has never before gone through this experience. Let her doctor tell her the risks and complications that could arise. Just share with her the happiness and joy she is trying to feel. And if you must share something, please let it be courage, strength and hope.

Thank you, Abby, for letting me say this! I just had to tell somebody!

EXPECTING IN SILVERDALE, WASH.

DEAR EXPECTING: Glad to lend an ear. That's what I'm here for. Congratulations, and all good wishes for a healthy baby.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating an older man for almost two years now. (He's 30 years older than me and has been divorced for three years.) He has a daughter who still thinks her parents will get back together again. (Not a chance.) He hasn't told her that he is dating me. He says he doesn't want to "hurt" her. Sometimes I wonder if he is ashamed of me.

We are very much in love, but have no definite plans to marry. I feel insecure about our future. What should I do?

INSECURE

DEAR INSECURE: You are insecure with good reason. Don't build your future around this man. Before you invest any more time in this relationship, ask him what his intentions are and give him a deadline.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old woman who has been divorced for five years. (No children. It was a short marriage.)

Not to brag, but I am a very attractive woman and I've never had a problem getting dates. I have another problem, however. I have broken a lot of hearts. Whenever I meet a man, I work very hard to make him fall in love with me. And when he does, I lose all interest in him. This has happened to me many times, and I am not proud of it, but I can't seem to help myself.

I don't want to hurt any more men, but neither do I want to depend on an electric blanket to keep me warm for the rest of my life. Help me, Abby.

ALABAMA HEARTBREAKER

DEAR HEARTBREAKER: You're like the sportswoman who doesn't eat fish but loves to catch them. You're guilty of a more serious crime than just fishing for the sport of it—you are toying with human hearts.

Get on the couch (alone) and ask an analyst why you work so hard to get something you don't really want. You will learn a great deal about yourself, mature in the process, and will also get over the need to hurt men.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Simple bacteria growth treatment

DEAR DR. GOTT: I work in a nursing home and bathe elderly patients. I have three patients who have very deep, inverted navels which give off the worst odor. I've used cotton swabs with oil to no avail. The doctor just says, "Do the best you can," but I'm afraid to go too deep. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER: Areas of skin that are warm, moist and dark encourage the growth of yeasts and bacteria. Deep navels, deep wrinkles and skin under pendulous breasts are such areas. Alcohol, Betadine or — if indicated by appropriate culturing methods — antifungal compounds will help the odor, irritation and itching of navel infection.

I've found that alcohol is doubly useful because in addition to killing microorganisms, it also dries out the skin that cannot be reached with a towel or cotton swab. Thus, as the alcohol evaporates, it takes with it moisture that encourages infection. After bathing your patients, roll them onto their backs, put about a half-cupful of alcohol into the navel, wait a few minutes, then let the excess alcohol run out. The rest will dry quickly and, I hope, solve your problem. For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "What You Should Know About Nursing Homes."

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column you wrote that plastic implants will not help damaged vocal cords. I would like to point out that, in related cases, the injection of Teflon paste into a paralyzed vocal cord may increase the rigidity, bring it back to the midline and allow it to function in a more normal capacity.

DEAR READER: You are correct. The use of Teflon paste can be a useful measure in restoring speech to patients whose vocal cords have been weakened by nerve injury. I had interpreted the original reader's question to mean a plastic prosthesis, not a Teflon injection. I appreciate you pointing out my misconception; thank you for writing.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

In today's deal, three no-trump is the easy game contract. But North and South bid their cards to the hilt, and South found himself in six clubs. If you would like to rest your play, cover the East and West hands and work out how you would try to make the slam. What actually occurred was that declarer won with the king of spades and forced out the ace of clubs. Later he took a finesse in hearts and was down one when West won the king.

There was a better play available. If you take the heart finesse, your chance of success is 50 percent. A slightly better plan is to play three rounds of spades right away, throwing the Q-5 of hearts. You can then play a heart back to your ace and a club to dummy's eight. East will win and return a club, now a heart can be ruffed, dummy re-entered with another club and a third heart ruffed. The contract will be successful whenever hearts are 3-3 or whenever the king of hearts falls doubleton. In addition, if West shows out on the first ruff of hearts, you can take a ruffing finesse against the known protected king in the East hand. Those chances all add up to more than 50 percent — superior to the play actually taken.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Plutus Books.

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 23, 1988

Good ideas you have had in the past that turned out to be near-misses will bear fruit in the year ahead. The aspects indicate you will no longer think of yourself as an "absorbent."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unless you are sure you can follow through, don't make promises or commitments to coworkers today. Saying you'll do something makes you look good, but not doing it will make you look bad. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be extremely selective about whom you delegate authority to today. Choosing an inept surrogate could prove worse than ignoring the matter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though you might have to spend more time and effort on a project today than you first thought, the effort will be worth it. Don't quit before it is finished properly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let yourself get uptight today. However, by the same token, don't be so loose that you treat your responsibilities indifferently. Find the happy medium.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your financial prospects continue to look rather favorable today. But don't expect your harvest to exceed the number of seeds you've sown.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Try to be equally as sincere with friends today who treat you with kindness and consideration. Pals who feel they're being used won't be very responsive to you later.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though it will be an assignment you won't relish, don't let one who is indebted to you go too long without a gentle reminder. Ask not, have not.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Expenses could get out of hand if you do not determine in advance how much to budget for each of your activities today. Don't step over the line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A joint venture isn't apt to work out too well today if the responsibilities and benefits are not equally distributed. Don't be the one who tips it out of balance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An associate who likes you may present an opportune proposal today. If you fail to listen carefully, you are not likely to appreciate all of its ramifications.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is one of those days when you could reward the undeserving and ignore someone for whom you should be looking out. A blunder of this type could have serious consequences.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are too indecisive today, someone with whom you are involved might make decisions for you that don't serve your best interests.

Lebanese election may decide hostages fate

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Most Lebanese legislators refrained from attending a parliament session today to elect a successor to President Amin Gemayel because of disputes over selecting a candidate and the site of elections.

The boycott of the election came as a senior Moslem militia official said in Damascus he will help win the release of foreign hostages if the candidate backed by Syria and the United States is elected president of Lebanon.

A statement by the Parliament's secretary-general said House Speaker Hussein Al Hussein, a pro-Syrian Shiite politician, postponed the session of elections that was scheduled today until early Friday.

"We announce delaying the session until tomorrow to give time to political efforts to reach a consensus," said Ihsan Abu Khalil, addressing reporters outside the old parliament building in Beirut's downtown.

Only 12 of 76 deputies showed for the vote, officials said.

Political sources said the elections did not take place as Syria refused to withdraw its support for a candidate opposed by the Christian lawmakers.

The voting to pick a successor to Gemayel is considered so crucial to the future stability of war-torn Lebanon that Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy spent nearly all of last week in Syria for talks aimed at brokering the election's outcome.

Gemayel's constitutionally limited six-year term ends Friday.

The election of Parliament member Mikhail Al Daher, the compromise presidential candidate agreed upon by Damascus and Washington at the conclusion of Murphy's visit, could lead to the release of several hostages kidnapped in Lebanon, a senior Moslem militia source said Wednesday.

The source, who requested anonymity, said if Al Daher, a Christian Maronite from northern Lebanon, gains the presidency, the Syrians will try to persuade the pro-Iranian captors of 15 foreigners to release their hostages.

"The Syrians, with Iran's approval, will pressure the abductors, and we will see several American hostages regain their freedom," the source said. "The Syrians, in a goodwill gesture, will use their influence on the captors and several U.S. hostages will be released following the election of Al Daher."

Al Daher faced significant obstacles in his bid for the presidency, foremost among them the possibility that a boycott by Christian lawmakers would sabotage the voting.

Well-informed political sources said most of the 41 Christian deputies in the 76-member Parliament would refuse to participate in the voting today unless it was held in a building at the crossing between Christian east Beirut and Moslem west Beirut, instead of its scheduled site in the legislature's former headquarters in west Beirut.

The Moslem militia source said four American University professors, including three Americans and an Indian-born U.S. resident alien, would be the first hostages released.

With Hirohito failing, Japan looks to a new era

By DAVID BUTTS
United Press International

TOKYO — As Japan sorrowfully mounts a deathwatch for Emperor Hirohito, the nation is edging toward a new era which will finally bury the painful postwar period that forced the defeated nation to hold much of its pride and power in check.

The 87-year old emperor, in serious condition Wednesday after severe intestinal bleeding, has been the symbol of Japan since his coronation 62 years ago.

In his youth he dressed in military uniforms and rode a white horse. He was seen as a living god. He symbolized Japan's military conquest of Asia.

In defeat, he stood short and stiff, a small mortal next to the towering Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the American ruler of occupied Japan.

Out of the wreckage of World War II, Japan has transformed itself into a wealthy and increasingly boastful nation.

The Japanese will be released, liberated from the memories of our devastating defeat. The Japanese will suddenly gain a new spirit.

-Hideaki Kase, Japanese author

But for some, the final break with defeat will come only when a new emperor is enthroned after the death of the world's longest reigning monarch, the last surviving major figure involved in the war. Even though he may recover from his latest illness, the Japanese are preparing for his death.

"After the emperor is gone, there will be a review of our national life," said Toshiaki Kawahara, an author of 12 books on the history of Japan's 124 emperors. "There will be a new way of living."

"The Japanese will be released, liberated from the memories of our devastating defeat," said Hideaki Kase, a conservative author. "The Japanese will suddenly gain a new spirit."

Japanese pride is already on the rise with the country's increasing dominance of world trade and business.

Now Tokyo's investments around the globe are moving Japan toward a greater role in world diplomacy.

Japan has assumed the role of leader of Asia. Tokyo also has taken a leading role with the developing nations, vastly increasing its aid to them, and has made diplomatic forays into the Arab-Israeli conflict.

However, Japan's fear of offending the United States, its diplomatic mentor, and a general tendency toward caution have prevented it from assuming a political role equal to its economic clout.

The passing of Hirohito's era could push Japan further along the road to diplomatic independence.

The next emperor, Crown Prince Akihito, 54, was only 11 when Japan surrendered in 1945 and "was not responsible for the war," Kawahara said.

"Akihito will be the first emperor of the new postwar Japan. He will have an image of peace as Japan takes a share in world leadership."

The political right sees the crowning of a new emperor and the nationalism it will stir as a chance to push its agenda, including reviving Japan's military power to its former glory.

Japan's military role is restricted by the constitution imposed under the allied occupation. But when Hirohito dies, "the revision of the constitution will be easier," Kase said.

But the militarists are outnumbered by those, including the crown prince, who favor small defense budgets.

While the emperor is only a figurehead, people pay close attention to his opinions.

supplies had dried up at higher elevations.

—At Buffalo, N.Y., Lake Erie's temperature reached a record 80 degrees. Normal summertime lake temperatures are in the low to mid-70s.

—Rivers and creeks almost everywhere were reduced to a trickle. Salt water threatened New Orleans' water supply. Barges ran aground on the Mississippi River.

—Salt water also crept through the Chesapeake Bay, spreading a deadly parasite called MSX that killed off half the oyster supply, costing watermen millions of dollars and forcing some to give up the business altogether.

—Swimmers at Whitman Pond in Weymouth, Mass., complained they were bitten by sunfish; the city's Park and Recreation Department canceled swimming lessons for youngsters in early August. Joseph Bergin, an aquatic biologist for the state, said he believed the fish were acting up because of the heat.

—In Houston, marine biologists said a shark and a dolphin followed rising salt water levels up the ship Channel and into a reservoir miles from their normal habitat. Jellyfish harassed swimmers.

—In the West, millions of acres of lush timberland were reduced to ashes by forest fires, some caused by nature and some by man, including 1.5 million acres burned in Yellowstone National Park. And U.S. Forest Service officials said the hot, dry weather created ideal breeding conditions for several species of timber-feeding beetles. In California alone, officials estimated 2 billion board feet of timber would be killed off by beetles before the year is out.

—Even gasoline prices were affected for a time by the summer's unusual weather. Analysts said speculation that refineries on the Mississippi might have to close because of rising salt water levels caused an early July spurt in prices on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The refineries — which never did close — are water-cooled and there were fears they would be damaged by corrosive salt water.

As the summer came to an end, the damage caused by the heat and drought was still being assessed.

"I don't know if we've been able to assess the total crop damage," said Mike Kraemer of the Missouri Agricultural Department. "By no means is it over for some people."

"If this dry weather continues into next year, it's going to make some farmers think about what they're going to do with their herds," Kraemer said. "The drama of the crop story is over with. The crops either do or don't. But until we get some rain, this thing's going to continue for a while."

One agricultural economist said late-summer rains and rising prices at the marketplace brought mixed blessings to farmers.

Generally, for most farmers, higher prices on their reduced production will pay their bills for this year," said Donald Chaffin, an agricultural economist at Wilmington College in Ohio.

But he said the late-summer rains brought production levels in many areas above where farmers would be eligible for relief under the drought bill passed by Congress.

Chaffin said farmers were victims of a "shell game" produced by the drought legislation.

"Thanks to saving rains in late summer, most producers will be harvesting higher yields than would make them eligible for the payment," Chaffin said. "That's the first empty shell."

"Had there not been a drought that caused commodity prices to skyrocket, farmers would have been eligible for about $16 billion of price supports. Because of the drought and its effect on prices, the government will not have to make substantial, if any, subsidy payments. That's the second empty shell."

Forecasters were reluctant to say whether the drought would end anytime soon, though they were encouraged by September's rains. Most forecasters said it would be next spring before the long-range effects would become apparent.

Along the Mississippi River, traffic was moving easily as the summer drew to an end, but the Coast Guard and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said water levels were still well below normal.

"The river is still down low," said Michael Logue, a spokesman for the Corps in Vicksburg, Miss. "The only difference between now and June is we're caught up with our dredging."

The Corps has been dredging the Mississippi since early June, when record-low water levels caused hundreds of barges and tows to run aground and virtually stopped traffic on the river.

"The fortunate thing for us is although the river has been low, it's been consistently low," Logue said. "Right now, we'd rather keep it where it is than see a 10-foot drop or a 10-foot rise."

"A river that rises and falls quickly disturbs the sediment in the bed and creates more sandbars," he said, clogging up the waterway.

But in Louisiana, the low levels on the Mississippi still caused problems as of Wednesday.

The Corps was sending fresh water by barge to Boothville and Fort Jackson — a project initiated in mid-July — because salt water creeping northward from the Gulf of Mexico contaminated local supplies.

"The amount of water being barged as of the 20th of September (Tuesday) was nearly 60 million gallons," Corps spokesman Cecil Sollean said. "We will continue barging until surface salinity drops back under 500 parts per million. The last I saw, it was somewhere around 670 ppm."

Salt water threatened New Orleans' water supply during the summer, forcing the Corps to build an underwater sill across the Mississippi to halt its progress.

While things were slowly returning to normal elsewhere, the worst may be yet to come for the Chesapeake Bay's oyster industry.

Maryland watermen harvested about 360,000 bushels of oysters during the season ending in March, just two years after their harvest exceeded 1 million bushels.

"The oysters are at their lowest point in recorded history in abundance, and that certainly remains drastic," said Bill Goldsborough, staff scientist for the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

Summer of '88: goodbye to a season gone amok

By Alan R. Bruce
United Press International

Remember the Summer of '88? It was the year black bears rummaged through back yards in the Carolinas, a shark got loose in the Houston ship Channel, bugs and fires gnawed away at the nation's timber supply and barges ran aground on the not-so-mighty Mississippi.

Crops wilted in the Farm Belt's rainless heat. Oyster beds in Maryland were ruined by salt water. Sunfish nipped at swimmers in Massachusetts. Farmers moved their herds in search of greener pastures.

People died.

The Summer of '88 passes into history at 3:29 p.m. EDT today, but for years to come it likely will be a conversation starter.

There will be much to talk about: —Forecasters at the National Weather Service said more than 200 cities reported record high temperatures between June 1 and Aug. 31. Scores of cities averaged 5 degrees or more above normal for the period.

—Hundreds of people died of heat-related illnesses from Texas to Missouri to Illinois and Massachusetts in what forecasters said generally was the hottest summer since 1936. Some researchers said the actual number probably surpassed 2,000, though the vast majority were undiagnosed or simply not reported. The elderly and the very young were hardest hit.

—Crops withered and died in the fields across the nation's Farm Belt, burned by relentless heat and dried up by drought. Huge rainfall deficits plagued the area. Produce prices skyrocketed at the supermarket.

—Montana ranchers ran out of green pastures and had to move their livestock to other states where rainfall was more plentiful. The transportation costs and related expenses helped drive up the price of beef, officials said.

—In the Carolinas, black bears ambled down from the mountains in search of juicier berries because

Soviet ambassador in Manila defends Gorbachev bases offer

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — The Soviet ambassador in Manila today defended Moscow's offer last week to shut down its Vietnamese naval base in exchange for the U.S. closure of its Philippine bases but conceded Washington has the larger military operation.

Responding to criticism by Filipino officials that the proposal would leave Southeast Asian allies defenseless, Soviet Ambassador Oleg Sokolov said at a news conference the offer should be based on a "balance of interests, not of terror."

Newspapers and several officials have urged serious consideration of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's proposal last Friday, but at least one senator and other Filipinos have said the plan was aimed at fueling discontent over the U.S. Clark Air Base and naval facilities at Subic Bay.

U.S.-Philippine talks are currently underway to renew the bases' contract. Western allies in the region say the bases have contributed to Southeast Asia stability and protect the region's vital waterways.

Philippine Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos said Tuesday the U.S. bases have a larger security value than the Soviet base at Cam Ranh Bay in Vietnam, and suggested the American withdrawal could leave a vacuum in the region.

The Sokolov, previously assigned in Washington, conceded Ramos's point, saying that the Soviet Union has 10 ships at any given time in Cam Ranh Bay compared to the 35

U.S. vessels at Subic.

He said the Soviets have 7,000 metric tons of fuel reservoirs in Vietnam compared to 400,000 metric tons at Subic, Sokolov said. The Soviets have an ammunition dump of 4,000 metric tons in Vietnam compared to 50,000 metric tons for the United States in the Philippines.

"The matter is not really in numbers," said Sokolov, the first Soviet ambassador regularly brief reporters in the Philippines.

"What I think is at stake here is whether or not the two sides are prepared to contribute to better security in this region on the basis of a balance of interests, not of terror," said Sokolov.

He said that if the argument of asymmetry were to be stretched further, it would invite the Soviet Union to upgrade its facilities at

Cam Ranh Bay, which was originally built by the United States during the Vietnam War. He said this kind of thinking now belongs to "historical dissertations."

The Philippines and the United States are negotiating terms for the last two years of the treaty covering Clark and Subic, host to 17,000 servicemen plus dependents and Washington's largest overseas installations.

The treaty expires in 1991. President Corazon Aquino has said she is keeping her options open on a renewal.

The current talks have been stalled by Philippine demands for $1.2 billion in aid for each of the last two years of the pact, up from the $180 million in aid Washington provides annually.
