Student saves life

Seminole High junior aids choking classmate

By NICK PFEIFAUER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A quick-thinking student with knowledge of the Heimlich maneuver is credited with saving the life of a fellow student at Seminole High on Monday.

Gina Lovly, 16, a junior, responded quickly in the school cafeteria when she saw a fellow student in trouble. "I saw this girl at an adjacent table and I noticed everyone was moving away from her because she was choking," Lovly said. "I saw that no one else was doing anything, and I knew the Heimlich maneuver, so I went over there and did it."

Lovly said she did not know the girl. "All I know is that she was having a hard time breathing," Lovly said. "I saw her chest rise and fall, but she couldn't breathe at all."

When she shared what had happened with us she said, 'I'm no heroine.' That's very like her; the queen of understatement

-Gina's mom, Jacqueline Smith

Although she apparently saw allowed the girl to breathe, Lovly said she did not know the girl.

Lovly is a member of the school's cheerleading squad and is at the only school level of instruction at Seminole High School. "I plan to be a doctor of electrical and electronics," she said, "and I'm currently taking the course."

Commissioner's Choice Lyman senior earns scholarship

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Stan Goykham learned from his parents that hard work is essential. Goykham, whose family emigrated from the Soviet Union 14 years ago when he was four years old, was named the Commissioner's Choice Award winner from Lyman High School.

"I believe that hard work is the key to success," he said.

The Commissioner's Choice Award is presented to the hardest working senior at each of the district's six high schools and at the Crossroads School of Choice by County Commissioner Larry Furlong.

The award comes with a $900 scholarship.

Goykham said he will use the money to help finance his education at the University of Florida. He hopes to pursue a career in corporate law.

Goykham said he is able to see what his parents have been able to achieve after starting with nothing.

He said that he is proud of his parents and hopes to be able to accomplish as much as they have. He sees high school as the beginning of many important accomplishments.

"I believe that everything I do in high school will in some way help me in college and in my future," he said.

Goykham, who has a grade point average of 3.6, successfully petitioned the school board to give Lyman seniors who have a 3.0 or greater GPA the option of not taking their final exams. Despite the option, he said he will take his final exams to try to raise his grade point average.

Goykham also organized Project STORM (Students Offering Resources and Materials), a relief program for the victims of Hurricane Andrew in South Florida. He organized other students to help collect money, materials and food to be delivered to the victims.

He also serves as a school ambassador to the community, speaking to groups, to organizations and even to radio stations about the things happening at Lyman.

"I enjoy doing that sort of thing," he said.

Between a full class schedule that includes three college-level courses, he tutors several students who need some academic assistance.

"It is truly a nice feeling to know

Way paved for girl to divorce parents

SARASOTA — A judge paved the way for 14-year-old Kimberly Mays to go ahead with "divorce" proceedings against her biological parents.

The teen-ager has been at the center of a baby swap court battle since 1988 between Robert Mays, the man who raised her since birth, and Regina and Ernest Twigg, the biological parents she barely knows.

Without ruling on merits, Sarasota Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan Monday granted Kimberly's request to proceed as part of an upcoming claim by the Twiggs for visitation rights. Trial is scheduled for August.

Kimberly, as a newborn, went home with the wrong parents following a mix-up at a rural Florida hospital and was raised by Mays.

The baby swap came to light after Ariens, the girl the Twiggs brought home from the hospital in 1978, died 10 years later of a congenital heart defect. Genetic tests showed she was not related to the couple.

McDill scheduled to change command

MACDILL AIR FORCE BASE — U.S. Special Operations Command is scheduled to change hands in a May 20 ceremony attended by Defense Secretary Les Aspin and Joint Chiefs Chairman Gen. Colin Powell.

Gen. Carl W. Stiner will relinquish command to Lt. Gen. Wayne A. Downing, pending Senate confirmation of Downing and his promotion.

Downing, commander of the U.S. Army Special Operations Command at Fort Bragg, N.C., would receive his fourth star prior to the ceremony at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa.

It will mark the second change of command since the unit was formed in April 1987.

Lab icicles damage planes

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — The Air Force's stealth fighters escaped the Persian Gulf War without a scratch but not the McKinley Climatic Laboratory.

"We actually poked a hole in the F-117 with an icicle," said Col. Elton Pollack, commander of the 48th Test Wing. "We bombed the F-117 with icicles three times."

Icicles falling from the rafters also are a hazard for the people working in what is probably the world's largest refrigerator. It is used for weather testing of aircraft of all sizes and other equipment of all branches of the military and some civilian agencies.

As temporary measures, a protective barrier of chain link fencing has been installed below the ceiling and a boom truck is used to lift workers in parkas and bunny boots to chip away at the icicles, which can be several feet long and weigh up to 200 pounds.

A two-year, $62 million overhaul scheduled to begin in January is expected to permanently cure the icicle problem and bring the 48-year old laboratory up to date.

Politician puts commissioners on the air

MILTON — Stunt pilot-broadcaster-politician Byrd Mapoles is doing his bit for open government by putting Santa Rosa County commissioners' meetings on the air.

Mapoles started broadcasting the meetings on WBYB, the radio station he owns and operates, when he was elected as a commissioner in 1990.

"It was not my intention to broadcast the meetings," Mapoles said. "I think that's what it's going to take to get this country straightened out — getting everyone involved."

Exec begins sentence at federal prison

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — Former General Development Corp. chairman David Brown reported to the federal prison here to begin serving his five-year sentence.

Brown, 52, started his sentence Monday. He was among four top GDC executives convicted last year on charges they conspired to cheat thousands of home-buyers.

While Brown serves his sentence in the minimum-security federal prison camp at Eglin in the Florida Panhandle, former president Robert Ehrling will serve his 121-month sentence at the Tallahassee Federal Correctional Institution, a low-security facility.

Brown and Ehrling, 53, were convicted last August along with two GDC vice presidents.

Unlike their colleagues, however, Brown and Ehrling were allowed to delay reporting to prison so that they could complete repairs to their South Dade homes, which were ravaged by Hurricane Andrew.

Image improvement sought

16 recommendations endorsed to battle tourist crime

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A Senate committee endorsed 16 recommendations to combat tourist crime and improve Florida's international image following widely publicized attacks on Sunshine State visitors.

The recommendations range from criminal background checks for all hotel and motel employees to a long-term prison construction program to keep violent offenders behind bars longer — just like the plan sought by Gov. Lawton Chiles.

"The image of tourism is clean, wholesome, family tourism," said Orlando State Attorney Lawson Lamar. "Crime has no part of that mix."

Tourism is Florida's largest single economic force, generating $30 billion in taxable sales every year and drawing an estimated 40 million people to the state.

The committee, chaired by Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Altamonte Springs, agreed in general that tourist crime is simply a high-profile offshoot of Florida's overall crime problem. And the best way to address that is by building enough prison beds to keep violent offenders off the streets.

"We know we have to embark on a long-term building program," Siegel said.

But unlike Siegel — who supports the 21,000-bed plan Chiles wants to pay for with a 25-cent-a-pack cigarette tax hike — most of the tourist crime panel's members had some objections to the program. Others support a different tax, such as a 1-cent or half-penny increase in the sales tax.

"I don't really see the nexus between smoking and prisons," said Sen. Jim Hargrett, D-Tampa. "That's not my first choice."

The panel, formed in the wake of the April 2 murder of German tourist Barbara Meller Jensen in Miami, made several other recommendations. Most will take legislative action, possibly during the May 24-June 6 special session on prisons, or department action.

The recommendations include:

- Requiring criminal background checks of hotel and motel employees to cut down on thefts by workers. In addition, no one on prison work release would be given a job at a hotel or motel — which has happened in the Orlando area.
- Replacement of "Y" and "Z" license plates on rental cars, used by some crooks to target tourists.

— Improved information and cash exchanges at airports, better signs to tourist destinations and hot lines for tourists to find things out quickly.

— Asking airlines to provide free travel for crime witnesses and victims to return and appear in court. State money could be provided.

— Beefing up police forces in crime "hot spots" around Florida, with increased dollars directed to those areas.

— Spending more money for advertising Florida overseas, where reports of tourist crime have caused some foreigners to cancel their trips.

The committee backed away from recommending that rental car companies install security systems in their vehicles. Keyna Cory, lobbyist for Fort Lauderdale-based Alamo Rent-A-Car, said the cost of installing such devices in the company's 45,000 vehicles would range from $6 million to $13 million.

She said 287 Alamo vehicles were stolen in 1992, and all but 30 were recovered. Of those stolen, 132 were in carjackings in the Miami area — where a security system would do little good because a criminal takes the car by force from the driver.

"It's a little hard to justify the numbers," Cory said.

Lake Mary links with Lynx

MIAMI — A meeting of the new Lynx bus system by the Elderly Affairs Commission of Lake Mary, FLNXX is a branch of Grey Lines and is the new bus on the road in the vivid hot colors. The meeting was the outlining of the proposed route. The LYNX representatives at the meeting were Tim Grobans, senior planner and Ann Joalin, manager of Ridesharing. There was discussion of the various routes that would eventually be chosen. Also, debates on the needs of the less affluent Lake Mary residents and the county route in areas where residents have more cars and use them more readily.

Jury hears different versions of shooting that sparked riot

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — More than four years after a Miami policeman's shooting of a black motorcyclist touched off racial riots, attorneys again asked jurors to decide whether it was a reckless killing or self-defense.

William Lozano's manslaughter retrial opened Monday with strikingly different versions of the inner-city shooting that killed the speeding motorcyclist, caused the death of his passenger and led to three nights of burning and looting.

"Pow! One shot, that's all it took," prosecutor Jerald Bagley said in his opening statement. "This was not a justifiable shooting. This is a case of a police officer who ... violated the very laws he took a solemn oath to protect."

But Lozano's attorney said the Colombian-born officer made a split-second decision to save his own life when the motorcycle veered out of its lane and bore down upon him at 70 mph.

"The officer is caught in no man's land, he's frightened, all he can do is act on his instincts — his instincts for survival took over," defense attorney Roy Black told the six-member circuit court jury.

The shooting occurred on Martin Luther King's birthday — Jan. 16, 1989 — as Miami began a week of celebration leading up to the Super Bowl.

The motorcycle was fleeing from another officer in a patrol car through the predominantly black Overtown neighborhood, where Lozano was answering a call.

English war on in Dade

By Associated Press

MIAMI — Opponents of a 13-year-old, English-only ordinance expected to be repealed Tuesday by a newly elected, ethnically diverse Metro Dade County Commission say the policy hurts both economically and emotionally.

But supporters, already preparing for a federal court battle, say the policy is divisive and imposes Spanish in a country whose official and only language should remain English.

"We're not having two languages. No way. Over my dead body," said Enos Schera, vice president of Citizens for Dade-United, a group which has led a statewide battle to keep English the only language of government affairs.

"It seems like their motto is 'When in Rome, do like the Cubans,'" he said, referring to the more than 50 percent of the Miami's population of Hispanic origin, the majority of which are of Cuban descent.

But some commissioners and opponents of the ordinance said doing away with the policy wouldn't be a precursor to conducting business in an array of languages.

Oswaldo Soto, president of the Spanish American League Against Defamation, said the ordinance prevents citizens from having equal representation under the law.

"The matter is not that we're saying we want the county to be made bilingual," he said. "The ordinance is unjust. It is unfair. It is harmful to this community, and on top of everything, it is illegal."

POLICE

Home-made license

Nosavana Luangrathkhamkeo, 26, of Deltona, was arrested Saturday following a traffic stop at Peralmon Avenue and 13th Street. Sanford police said they stopped his car when they noticed a hand-made license tag on the vehicle. They said Luangrathkhamkeo told them his tag had been stolen in Fort Myers. During a search of the vehicle, police said they found a marijuana cigarette. He was charged with possession of marijuana, under 20 grams.

Warrants and charges

Officers charged him with driving with a suspended/revoked license, and resisting arrest without violence. A computer check found he was wanted on two separate warrants for violation of parole on convictions of grand theft.

Lewd act

Sanford police arrested Domingo Espinoza, 26, of 101 N. Holly Avenue Sunday. A report filed with the police reportedly identified him as a man who was seen performing a lewd act in a parking lot near a convenience store earlier in the day. The report said he attempted to lure a young girl to his car. He was charged with lewd and lascivious act on a child.

Charges after crash

Domestic violence cases

Michael David Vinciguerra, 33, of 63 Kent Court, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at his residence during the weekend, following an altercation with his wife. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Lester Allen, 40, 700 E. Airport Blvd., was arrested at his residence by Sanford police Sunday following a dispute with his wife. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Fathi A. Dahab, 28, of 465 Suniaks Circle, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his residence Sunday. He was reportedly in a fight with his wife. Deputies said he resisted arrest and required three officers to subdue him. Dahab was charged with aggravated battery domestic violence, battery on a law enforcement officer, and three charges of resisting an officer with violence.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

Two men told deputies they drove their golf cart to a grocery store on International Parkway in Heathrow Thursday, and left it outdoors as they went in to shop. They said when they came out, the golf clubs and bags, with a total estimated value of almost $1,500, had been stolen.

A man reported $7,992.50 in baseball cards were stolen during the first week in May. On Thursday, he told deputies he had left his cards in boxes at his booth at Flea World during the preceding week, but when he returned he said he found the boxes of cards were missing. Deputies said the man was told his items were in storage, but he said when he examined the boxes, the contents were missing.

Eleven packs of cigarettes, valued at $27 were reportedly stolen from a convenience store on C.R. 415 and C.R. 427 last Thursday.

Two saddles, valued at a total of $3,000 were reportedly stolen Friday from a stable at a horse farm on Thomas Stable Road.

Deputies responded to a call Friday at Seminole Community College. The 46 year old man who met them reported he had been approached by a man demanding his money, at a bar on E. S.R. 48 on Thursday. He told deputies the man forced him to give up his wallet with $12 and various credit cards. Deputies said when they asked why the man had delayed in calling them, he said he didn't want to miss classes at the college.

Four vehicular burglaries were reported during the weekend at Pebble Creek Apartments. Saturday, a woman reported someone had broken a window on her car, then opened and stole the engine compartment hood, valued at $600. Three vehicles were reportedly burglarized Sunday in the same general area. A $7 fishing knife and $250 damage was reported on vehicle #1. Nothing was missing in vehicle #2. $100 in jewelry was said to be missing from vehicle #3. The second and third vehicles were reportedly unlocked.

A Longwood man, on New Waterford Place, told sheriff's deputies he drove his car into his garage on Saturday, when five men approached him. He said two came in and pointed a silver handgun at him demanding his car, wallet and bracelet. He reported the other three men stood outside. When he said he had no money, the two grabbed his gold bracelet and fled in his car. He said the other three men fled in a white Cadillac. His vehicle was later reportedly used in a hotel robbery in Ocoee, and was recovered at approximately 4 a.m. by Ocoee police.

Rims and tires valued at $1,050 were reportedly stolen Friday from a vehicle in the parking lot of Sun Lake Loop in Lake Mary.

Shots from an unknown weapon reportedly broke a window and caused $135 damage to a home on Promenade Circle in Heathrow on Sunday.

A vehicle was reportedly stolen Sunday from a bar on Southwest Road. The owner said he had left the car, and when he returned he noticed it was gone. The vehicle is a 1991 red Dodge convertible, with license number Ex-Pow 2074.

Bitten off finger leads to suspect

By The Associated Press

BRADENTON — A missing fingertip bitten off by a woman during an assault three years ago is what eventually led to the arrest and conviction of a Bradenton man who turned up in Ohio with amnesia.

Nancy Slagle was desperately fighting off the attacker who had ripped off her clothing and had beaten her when she bit off the tip of his finger in a church parking lot.

But it wasn't until the day after the July 1990 attack that Slagle's sister, wandering around the rape scene the next day, discovered the fingertip, which police had overlooked.

Slagle told investigators she didn't know the man but had accepted a ride home from him after the bouncer at a bar where her sister worked refused to let her drive home because she was intoxicated.

While investigators had the one fingerprint, they couldn't match it with any prints of known local rapists. And nothing came of the case until Detective Ned Foy, a Manatee County sheriff's deputy, went on vacation to his native Cincinnati.

There, he read a newspaper article about a man with amnesia found wandering at a local shopping mall.

The man had been identified as Stephen Michael Brinker, 25, of Bradenton, and had received treatment at a local hospital for losing the tip of his finger.

"My instinct told me this was the guy we were looking for," Foy said. "Someone from Bradenton, missing a finger. It was just too coincidental."

After calling the Hamilton County, Ohio, sheriff's office, Foy and local authorities compared Brinker's fingerprints with that from the attack on Slagle — and found they matched.

Prosecution was delayed after his arrest because Brinker, a diagnosed schizophrenic, was twice found incompetent to stand trial and sent to a hospital for the criminally insane.

Last month, Circuit Judge Paul Logan rejected Brinker's insanity plea and he was convicted on two counts of sexual battery and one count of aggravated battery. Brinker, who is awaiting sentencing, could spend the rest of his life in prison.

Slagle, who agreed to be identified and to have her photograph published with an article in Monday's editions of the St. Petersburg Times, said Brinker's conviction has brought some relief.

"Once I paraded the 584 clams in front of him, his old a/c was history."

His home's old central air conditioner was probably increasing his cooling costs. So I mentioned FPL's Cooling & Heating Discount, up to $584 towards a qualifying high efficiency central cooling and heating system. "Call FPL before the summer," I said, "for a list of FPL participating independent contractors." Next thing I know, his old a/c hit the dumpster.

Where's the Seminole spirit?

Many people take great pride in living in Seminole County. Some were born and raised here while others moved in from elsewhere.

Most of these people feel hurt when things are done to downgrade the area or make it appear as if it is a bedroom community for Orlando, and nothing more.

Apparently, not everyone seems to care about their community. Those who had to grant approvals and permits allowed the recent air show at the Sanford airport to be identified as "Air Show Orlando."

In publicity for their "Taste of Lake Mary" event earlier this month, the Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce issued a press release saying that some of "the finest restaurants in the Orlando area" would be represented. Most of the outstanding restaurants were located right in Lake Mary or its nearby neighborhoods.

Our local high schools are not helping to promote the Seminole spirit. Seminole and Lake Mary High Schools held their Senior Prom nights in Orlando. Lake Mary is holding its graduation at the Orlando Arena.

What ever happened to home-town pride? Is being a resident of Seminole County and/or its cities something we no longer care to admit?

We see no reason for this slap in the face. We are neither a poor community nor lacking in facilities. Lake Mary certainly has its own outstanding stadium. It doesn't need to go to home for this event, with graduation scheduled at the Thomas E. Whigham stadium on its campus.

Let us brag about our airport, our excellent Lake Mary restaurants, and have school graduations where the parents and students can feel like they belong.

Prison sentences

The highest priority of the state is to protect innocent citizens' lives and property. This is imperative — not an option. Florida cannot weaken its current sentencing laws. We are already not incarcerating enough criminals for long enough periods under the current sentencing provisions.

In 1992, the Department of Corrections had 33,786 admissions and 33,973 releases. In 1992, 18,759 prisoners were admitted only to serve six months or less, due to early release.

The State of Florida's apparent position is that they would rather release criminals to again prey on innocent citizens rather than find a way to confine them. "Cost" is the reason usually offered, but the cost of crime on victims appears not to be a consideration.

The state must devote general revenue dollars as a matter of course to build prisons commensurate with the importance of the issue. We cannot adopt a public policy which includes the building of prison beds only if new revenues are found. Our state cannot send the message to criminals that we do not have the resources to punish them for their acts.

The state has built only 183 prison beds in the past two years, nowhere near the actual need. And, the need for protecting the public by adding prison capacity transcends politics.

We must build more prison beds before October 1, 1993, to prevent the early release of prisoners. The state must allocate existing Department of Corrections resources to build immediate beds to avoid further early release, and replace those resources with future revenues if necessary.

The Governor's Safe Streets Program changes sentencing laws which result in habitual offenders and those serving minimum mandatory sentences not being sent to prison as effectively as they are now. Under the Governor's Safe Streets proposal, control release eligibility would be expanded to "non-violent" habitual offenders and drug minimum mandatories. By their definition, this "non-violent" habitual offender includes the burglar who breaks into your home.

The Florida Sheriffs Association proposed quick structures that can be built in 75 days. To date, The Governor has not expressed an interest in requiring the Department of Corrections to build structures of this type which would avoid inmate "gridlock."

The Florida Sheriffs Association's priority is to build enough prison beds to prevent early release — "period." Early release inmates perpetrate further crimes on victims and must be re-arrested, re-prosecuted, re-adjudicated, and re-incarcerated. Florida has not met its responsibility to increase prison capacity to the degree which adequately protects our citizens. If the State is sincere in its efforts to protect the public they must act immediately.

Voucher plan levels the field of play

It may be the most significant civil rights case since Brown vs. Board of Education. The parents of 34 poor Los Angeles schoolchildren have sued the state of California for violating their children's constitutional right to an education.

The parents ask not that their kids be bused to far-off suburban schools or that more good money be spent on the inferior inner-city schools to which their children are now captive.

Instead they want Sacramento to proffer them vouchers equivalent to what the state spends on their children's education. That would enable the parents themselves to see to it that their children are placed in better schools.

Debra Hackett, one of the 13 low-income Los Angeles parents involved in the lawsuit, says that middle-class parents cannot imagine just how bad schools are in her neighborhood.

"The teachers are scared of the students," she says. "They spend 10 minutes standing in the hallway after the bell rings saying 'get in class.' Then it's 15 minutes of 'Sit down; Be quiet; Don't do that; Leave her alone,' like they're 2-year-olds. Radios are going, they're talking crazy. It's a zoo in there."

Susan Arviso has observed the same kinds of goings-on in her kids' classrooms. "They're allowed to cuss and swear," she says. "They're allowed to listen to rock music. They were watching an R-rated movie ('An Officer and a Gentleman') in a history class."

California is but one of an increasing number of states in which lower-income inner-city parents are seeking liberation from such horrible public schools. Bills providing families at least some semblance of the school choice that the Los Angeles parents seek were either introduced or pending in two-thirds of state legislatures last year.

Lawmakers finally recognize that Americans are ready to end the public school monopoly. In fact, a

It may be the most significant civil rights case since Brown vs. Board of Education.

Harris poll last year, published in Business Week, found that seven of 10 Americans favor choice among public, private or parochial schools.

Moreover, the same proportion of people said they had no problem "with government money going to poor or middle-income children attending private or parochial schools."

The growing school choice movement is borne of the recognition that for all the tax dollars that are spent on public education year by year, America's school children are learning less and less.

Over the last three decades, per-pupil spending throughout the country has more than doubled, from roughly $2,400 for the 1961-62 school year to $6,100 for 1991-92. Meanwhile, American high schoolers today are scoring 100 points lower on the Scholastic Aptitude Tests than they did 30 years ago.

The deterioration of public education falls hardest on America's disadvantaged. Even when poor school children manage to obtain diplomas, they almost always find themselves way behind non-poor kids who have benefited from better schooling.

Environmental goals reasserted

If we do not change our direction, an ancient proverb says, we are likely to end up where we are headed.

That's what last year's Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro was all about, steering away from the course of ecological damage, and where the United States stumbled badly. Now, in his Earth Day address, President Clinton has taken the first steps toward redeeming the promise of Rio and reasserting U.S. environmental leadership on the international stage.

The president has committed the United States to signing the Rio treaty to protect global biological diversity. He also announced a national commitment "to reducing our emissions of greenhouse gases to their 1990 levels by the year 2000," thus setting a reduction target and a timetable to begin implementing the international convention on global climate change signed at Rio.

The job now is to see that the word does not become a substitute for the deed.

Botanists are already talking about the Sixth Great Extinction. It's a reference to the past five natural, and the current human-caused episode of mass species extinction. The damage is most rampant where the diversity of life is most abundant, the world's tropical rain forests.

The Biological Diversity Treaty's intent is to first restrain, and then reverse, the juggernaut of habitat destruction that is snuffing out life forms like stars being extinguished in the night. Perseverance, money to pay for the job, and an unprecedented level of international cooperation are all essential to make the treaty work. This is not a goal that can be declared met by enactment of a three-point plan. It means changing, in some fundamental ways, our appetite for the land.

It also means persuading by example, not exhortation. If we seek others to tread more lightly on the land, then we need start by looking after the plants and animals that share space with us, and keeping their most diverse habitats, like the nation's remaining ancient forests, intact.

Climate change is equally daunting and the president's initiative is equally welcome.

The greenhouse emissions cap announced by the president is an act that by itself can begin to dispel doubts about global warming. Those doubts, in large measure, were deliberately magnified by the oil, coal and utility industries, abetted by the Bush White House and its Energy Department, and left unchallenged by a timid Office of Science and Technology.

There is no scientific uncertainty that greenhouse gases warm the Earth's surface temperature. The planet could not sustain life were that not true. There are many unanswered questions, to be sure, about how, when, where, and by how much the current rate of human-caused greenhouse emissions will push temperatures upward to levels last experienced hundreds of thousands to millions of years in the past.

Climate scientists need to be encouraged to pursue their research vigorously to narrow the uncertainties. Their findings and formulas must also be translated into language we all understand.

Mr. Clinton has already initiated several policy changes to get on with the practical task of reducing greenhouse emissions. It is vital that every step, from buying low-energy computers to mass manufacture of electric cars, be seen not just as an efficiency measure to lower oil import costs. They need be recognized as commitments to stop the wholesale transfer of carbon, stored in the ground for aeons as coal beds and oil fields, back into the atmosphere from whence it originally came.

Tax policy in this nation is debated without reference, or only scant of late, to the environment. That can change. Mr. Clinton's energy tax within his economic package is a modest bow in this direction. Increasing the cost of fossil fuels responsible for the majority of greenhouse emissions discourages their use. That's part of the logic behind the proposed Btu tax.

The same logic can increasingly tie the need for national revenue (whatever total the public debate resolves upon) to the need to discourage burning fossil fuels. More taxes on labor that discourage hiring — which is what the recently floated value added tax for health-care financing really is — are anachronisms in this era. Real cuts in taxes on labor and income by shifting to equally real increases in taxes on fossil fuel energy use should now receive the consideration they warrant.

In redeeming Rio, Mr. Clinton has set a mark worthy to be judged by.

If we do not change our direction, an ancient proverb says, we are likely to end up where we are headed.

WASPs proved women belong

Every time I read another article about women being allowed to fly combat missions, or hear another yahoo on a radio talk show expounding on women pilots' menstrual cycles, I wonder what Delores thinks.

I'd love to ask her, but I've lost track of her in the years since I interviewed her. I wonder if she's still competing in cross-country races and pushing her plane down beaches by its wing. She was 62 years old when we last talked, and she'd be about 70 now. I'll bet if she's still walking, she's still flying.

I met her at a reunion of WASPs (Women's Airforce Service Pilots), the elite corps of 1,074 women pilots who flew the biggest, fiercest and best planes the armed services had in World War II. They ferried planes to front-line airbases, and they flew worn-out planes to reclamation centers. They towed targets for gunners to practice on, and they simulated a variety of dangerous missions. And they did it all with a lower accident rate than their male non-combat counterparts.

The WASPs didn't fly in combat, but 38 of them were killed in the war and more than 30 others were injured. Many of them suffered hearing damage from the loud planes.

There aren't that many days out of my entire life that I'd like to live over, but that day, listening to Delores and her fellow WASPs tell war stories, is one of them. I hadn't had nearly enough when it was time for them to shoo me away and climb into cocktail dresses for their banquet that evening.

For someone who wasn't all that crazy about flying, their stories should have been terrifying — taking off with ice on their wings because the fighting men needed the planes so badly, watching engines fall off, being shot at. But I was too fascinated to feel anything but the emotions they relayed — gritty determination, cool calculation, the absence of any thought but what it would take to bring in their ailing planes.

I hear the current arguments against putting women in combat and imagine the speakers debating Delores. "Delores, you might have known every knob, bolt and shimmy of a P-47 like the back of your hand. You may have flown hundreds of successful flights in the middle of the most gruesome war in the history of mankind. But women just don't have what it takes to make it in combat. And hey, what did you gals do when you had them PMS days, anyway?"

I feel confident those points would have earned the debater a surprise uppercut to the chin when his guard was down, or at the very least a mild cussing. If the talk turned to the risks of rape, I think Delores would have considered the arguments politely before fixing him with a steel blue fire. "Are you trying to tell me that's any worse than what the fellows went through on Bataan?" she might say. "And that's my risk to take, my decision. It's not yours to give."

Something the women-in-combat naysayers will never understand is that commitment, the need for the ultimate challenge of one's abilities and the desire to serve one's country are not gender specific. Another thing they will never understand is how it feels to be just as good at a job as someone else and still not be allowed to do it — because of race, gender, ethnic origin, sexual preference or whatever. If they did understand, they wouldn't be saying nay.

The WASPs I talked to that afternoon were sad and bitter that they had been classified as "civilians" and denied the service benefits other soldiers received after the war.

The need for the ultimate challenge and the desire to serve one's country are not gender specific.

"That's fine with me," said Phyllis Bouley, a Sanford smoker. "It's a start I guess."

"I'm in favor of it," said Alex Serrano, a Sanford former smoker. "It's not fair. I would support a tax on cigarettes or something else."

"I have no qualms with taxing smokers," said Dick Jimming of Winter Springs, a "reformed" smoker.

But some opposed the proposal.

"Everyone should pay for them, not just people who are so-called sinners," said Judy Fullen, an Oviedo smoker. "It should be something that everyone pays."

"I don't think the people who smoke or drink should be the ones to pay," said Ellie Baterson, a Sanford smoker. "But I don't think we should build prisons. We ought to just pack 'em in. Maybe they'd think twice about breaking the law."

Chiles said the statewide poll shows Floridians support the tax.

"That poll is just as strong in Pensacola and Jacksonville and Miami and Tampa among blacks and whites, Republicans and Democrats, young and old," Chiles said during a visit to this Panhandle city Monday. "People are saying we are tired of this."

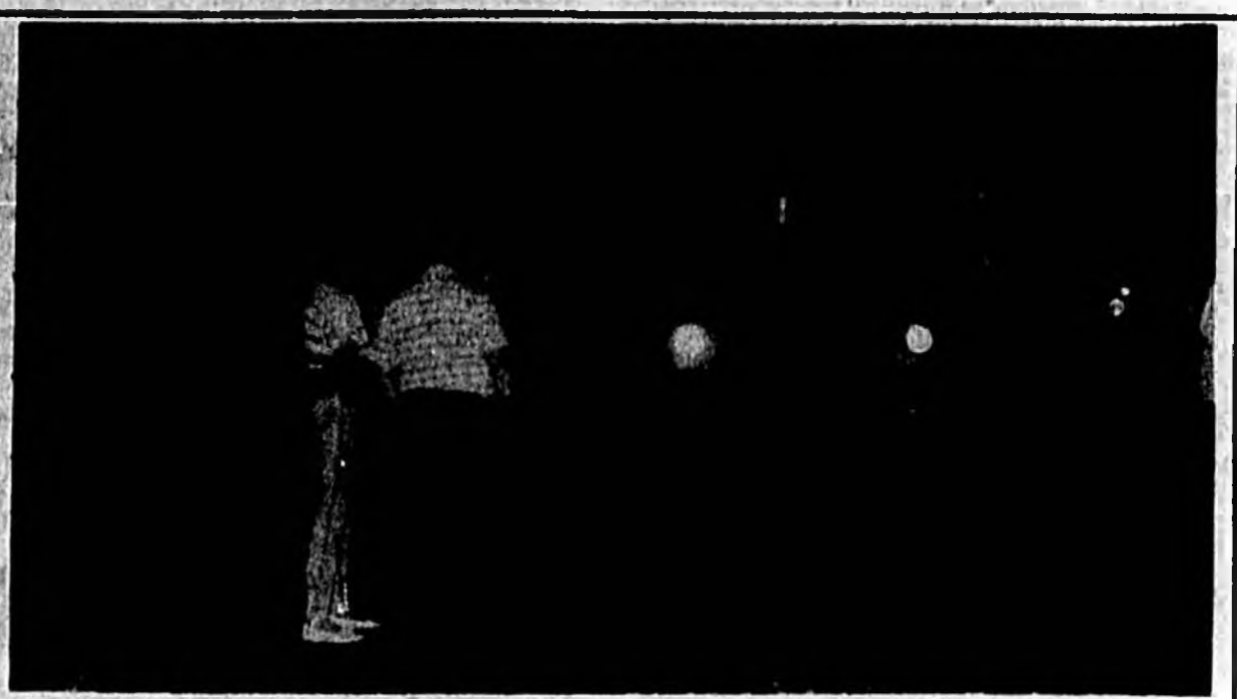

The plan is designed to reduce prison overcrowding that has forced the early release of inmates, many of whom then commit more crimes.

An part of his campaign, the governor toured a neighborhood plagued by crack cocaine dealing only a couple blocks from the Escambia County Sheriff's Department and met with crime victims.

Sen. Gary Siegel, an Altamonte Springs Republican who chairs the Corrections, Probation and Parole Committee, announced Monday he would file the cigarette tax bill for the special session the governor has called beginning May 24 to consider the issue. Chiles called the session a "true-false test" because the prison plan is the only item he is putting on the agenda.

Emergency Medical Services units from the Sanford Fire Department responded to the school. The 18-year-old girl was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, where she was checked and released.

After an hour and a half discussion, Mayor Paul Lovstrand, Deputy Mayor Harvey Smerilson and Commissioner Rex Anderson agreed to have recreation coordinator Sandy Lomax work out scheduling for both leagues. Priority was still given to the Babe Ruth League which has been active in the city for over five years. The Babe Ruth League requested priority for scheduling their games, citing the number of Longwood residents on their teams and the improvements the group has made to the fields. About $5,000 in improvements were made by the Babe Ruth League last year.

"I think this discussion points out ladies and gentlemen, that Longwood needs more parks," Lovstrand told the audience. "We need soccer fields and we haven't even addressed baseball leagues for girls."

Lomax said a field is also available for non-league youth to use upon request. Some members of the audience expressed concern that fields paid for by the taxpayers were being used exclusively by leagues, effectively shutting out pick up games by local residents.

According to figures given the commissioners, Babe Ruth League players from Longwood associated with Babe Ruth than with the year-old Little League. However, Little League organizer Rick Shiarla challenged the figures, claiming many of the Babe Ruth players live outside Longwood city limits.

Babe Ruth president Mike Bono told the commission there are 240 players in his league from Longwood including 174 in the 32750 zip code area. Shiarla said there are 80 Longwood players in his group. Shiarla said for the fall season, Little Leagues will be chartered in Longwood, Lake Mary and Sanford.

Shiarla, who was associated with Babe Ruth, broke with that group and started the local Little League about a year ago.

Some Babe Ruth supporters were angry and threatened legal action when Shiarla presented a letter to the commission containing their names, their children's names, addresses and telephone numbers, some unlisted. Shiarla claimed the information was accessible to anyone who asked to look at the files of the not-for-profit organization. Bono contended Shiarla had not returned all of the league records when he resigned. Prior to departing from the Babe Ruth organization, Shiarla handled the group's insurance, according to Bono.

Shiarla said he would work out the scheduling for the two leagues, giving priority to Babe Ruth based on the proportion of Longwood residents involved in its teams. Lovstrand said, "Sandy needs the wisdom of Solomon to work it out."

Earlier this year, Lomax negotiated a schedule allowing both leagues access to the fields. The Babe Ruth group had the fields about five days a week. Little League two. However, prior to Monday's commission meeting, she was told not to intervene in the most recent conflict.

Under the proposed plan, playing times and terms of facilities use for both leagues will be written out. Each league will be responsible for field maintenance.

In other business, the commissioners:

• Tabled a public hearing scheduled on charges brought against code enforcement board member Lynette Dennis. Attorney Gerald Korman who will represent Dennis, requested a delay of the hearing so he can familiarize himself with the case. The hearing will be scheduled at the June 7 commission meeting.

• Defeated by a 2-to-1 vote the resolution requiring meeting minutes to be completed within seven days of a meeting. Lovstrand said the proposal should be an ordinance not a resolution. At the May 3 meeting, while Lovstrand was absent, the commission voted against an ordinance on the matter opting to pass a resolution due to the penalties attached to violation of an ordinance. Anderson said a letter from Jimmy Ross "another Rossgram" to the commissioners called for an ordinance not a resolution. He said the mayor was voting as Ross wanted. Love said he would be an adviser.

• Abruptly adjourned the meeting at 10 p.m. before completing the agenda. Smerilson would not second Anderson's motion to extend the meeting beyond the 10 p.m. stopping time set out in the commissioners' rules and procedures. "I'm not going to second your motion," Smerilson said. "I've had enough for tonight." Commissioners Steve Miller and Fred Pearl were absent.

Paulucci to donate meal

SANFORD — Frozen food king Jenio Paulucci will continue free-food donations begun during the holiday season last year.

Tomorrow morning, $75,000 in frozen meals and dinners will be distributed to local organizations serving the needy from The Rich Pan of Florida in Sanford. Last December, Paulucci donated $50,000 in frozen dinners to area organizations. Paulucci will donate the meals from his Michelina's frozen Italian food venture in Ohio. Silver Springs Citrus Transportation, Howey-in-the-Hills, supplied the two trucks to transport the food at less than one-third the typical charge.

Among the organizations to benefit are the Good Samaritan Home, Rescue Outreach Mission, Teen Challenge, Boys Town and Grove Counseling Center. Later this week, another load of Michelina's food will be delivered to The Second Harvest Food Bank in Orlando.

Disorder makes man shun mirrors

By ANNE THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Doug Tyrell recently auditioned for a TV dating show. OK, so he didn't make the cut. But it was a major stride for a man who two years ago couldn't even watch television for fear of seeing his reflection in the glass.

Tyrell, 38, has been diagnosed with body dysmorphic disorder, a psychiatric illness that makes him obsess over imperfections real or imagined on his face.

"I knew it wasn't normal," he said Monday. "But as soon as I knew this had a name, it was like a huge weight lifted off my shoulders."

When he starts feeling an overwhelming self-consciousness, he knows to stay at least 15 feet away from reflective surfaces. He uses one small mirror in his house, for shaving only. He had the mirror on his medicine cabinet turned around so that it faces inward.

"I feel something on my face," he said. "I know in my mind it's small, but I have to check it out. And when I see it, it gets worse."

Millions of Americans may suffer from BDD, which wasn't officially recognized as a distinct disorder until 1987, said Tyrell's psychiatrist, Dr. Katherine A. Phillips of McLean Hospital in Belmont, where she runs the only clinic in the country that focuses exclusively on BDD.

"Patients with BDD are usually extremely embarrassed and ashamed of their disorder. People can suffer for this for decades without telling anybody about it," she said. "And I think that's one of the reasons it's been so under-recognized."

Phillips said sufferers become preoccupied with a slight imperfection, real or imagined, usually of the hair, skin or nose. They stare at themselves in the mirror for hours and let the obsession interfere with work and social life.

Phillips, who claims to be one of only three doctors in the nation concentrating on BDD, said the disorder has a biological basis but can be triggered by, say, being ridiculed about one's appearance as a child.

She and another specialist in the field, Erle Hollander, an associate professor of clinical psychology at Columbia University, prescribe drugs similar to those used to treat obsessive-compulsive disorders.

Hollander said many of the 50 patients he has seen went first to dermatologists or plastic surgeons before seeking help at his clinic for obsessive-compulsive disorders.

One of his patients had surgery 23 times. Another had nine nose jobs, one operation to reduce the size of his left testicle and liposuction on his buttocks before being diagnosed with BDD.

"You can see that it can progress to different body parts," Hollander said.

For Tyrell, it started in the eighth grade when he became obsessed with a facial mole and the hairs it sprouted.

He had the disorder under control enough to get married in 1985, but eventually it came back in full force. He became obsessed with a pimple, which he would pick and squeeze, which he thought everyone was staring at him.

Candace Trumbull, of C.A. Trumbull Disability hard at work on a Social Security benefit claim.

Have You Been Denied Your Disability Benefits?

It's nice to have a helping hand - a caring friend. If you have been denied disability benefits, you have a friend that could help you. C.A. Trumbull Disability Consulting, Candace Trumbull opened her own consulting firm last November 1992 to help disabled people receive disability benefits that they are entitled to under the Social Security system.

Trumbull Disability helps individuals cope with the intimidation and frustration in dealing with the government by completing the necessary paperwork and forms needed for benefit payment. Because Candace has worked for a total of twenty-six (26) years in Social Security administration, twelve (12) years alone in the Sanford area, her knowledge about the way the system works is indispensable to the average person who suddenly, due to unforeseen events is disabled. Anyone, children, young adults and seniors under sixty-five (65) years of age can be eligible for benefits. Trumbull Disability consults the disabled on the benefits available to them under the Social Security Disability Act (SSA). A lot of people get denied these benefits, when, in fact, Trumbull Disability can help them become eligible. Even if your claim has been denied, don't give up fighting there is still a very good chance that she can get benefits for you! Candace can take your claim from the initial file stage, through the reconsideration stage, and the appeal process if necessary. THERE

IS NO FEE UNLESS YOUR CLAIM IS APPROVED! Trumbull Disability will even arrange for an income consultation.

To be eligible for disability benefits, you must be unable to work due to a medical condition which has lasted or will last for at least twelve (12) consecutive months. The condition must be severe enough to keep you from working not only at your usual job but in any other substantial gainful work. Back injuries, epilepsy, heart attack patients, arthritis victims, and brain injuries are some of the medical reasons why this benefit is needed. There is a five (5) month waiting period for SSA disability benefits. Entitlements are determined by your disability, age, education, training and work experience. The less likely that you can return to your normal work life, the more likely you are to receive benefits.

Trumbull Disability can also handle supplemental Security Income (SSI) cases. There is no waiting period for these benefits, but a real financial need must exist.

To find out if you are eligible for disability benefits, call C. A. Trumbull Disability for a free consultation at 407-668-1010. (You can even call collect). Remember, there is no fee unless your claim is approved, and the help of an expert is needed to get the benefits you deserve! Call today - don't wait!

K of C back in finals

From Staff Reports

SANFORD—The streak continues. The Knights of Columbus Cardinals spotted the Rotary Club Royals a 2-0 lead after an inning and a half Wednesday evening in the semifinals of the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League city playoffs at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

But the rest of the game belonged to the National Division champions as they scored at least one run in every inning, thereafter to remain undefeated and champion of the American Division, runners up 13-3 in six innings.

The Cardinals capped the ball for 12 hits and all 14 players on the K of C roster reached base during the game.

The two-time defending City Champions will now look for a third title when they meet National Division champions Kiwanis Club Orioles in the city championship Monday evening at Zinn Beck Field.

The best two out of three championship series will start Wednesday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. Game two will be played Saturday morning at 10 a.m. and if the teams split victories in the first two games, the winner take all if necessary game will be played next Monday at 7:30 p.m. All games will be played at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

Both teams threatened in the first inning. With two out, Ronnie McNeil singled for the Royals (7-7). He then swapped two bases, but when the throw to third sailed into left, he tried to score but was thrown out at the plate on a beautiful throw by the Cardinals left fielder, Robert Randall.

Expos rout American champs

From Staff Reports

SANFORD—Patience is a virtue. Monday evening in the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League semifinal playoffs, the Korg USA Expos proved that old axiom to a tee, taking advantage of 22 walks and one hit batter by a sextet of Kiwanis Club Orioles pitchers to rout the American Division champions, 24-5, in three innings at Zinn Beck Field.

The National Division runners up also collected eight hits and the run total was the highest of the season for any Babe Ruth League game.

The Expos, coached by Jeff Small and Charlie Lytle and made up mostly of players who competed in the Little Major League City Championship the past two seasons, will now Orioles starting pitcher Bruce Carter was gone after just four batters in the top of the first inning as Clint Ford and Chaz Lytle walked. Brett Counts singled and Bart Counts walked. But no runs scored as Ford was called out for a rules infraction.

The infraction did not slow the Expos as Gerald Bishop greeted reliever Ivan Byrd with a walk to

Mice cruise to eighth win

From Staff Reports

CASSELBERRY—The drive for 2,000 wins has begun. A week after gaining their 1,000th victory, the Mice women's softball team from Oviedo, sponsored by Paddy McGee's Inc. of Winter Springs, put a "bruising" on their opponents, pounding the Bruisers 18-1 in five innings.

The win improved the Mice's record to 8-3 in the Seminole County Recreation and Parks Department Women's Class C Spring Monday Night Showpitch Softball League at Red Bug Lake Park.

The local squad plays its most important contest of the season next Monday night, when it hosts league leading Most Wanted at 7:30 p.m. Most Wanted is 9-2 on the season and leads Paddy McGee's by one full game, one and one-half games actually.

If the Mice are to win their fourth consecutive league title (including Summer and Fall league), they must defeat Most Wanted next week and hope the league leaders lose again in the final three weeks, because Most Wanted has already beaten the Mice twice this season.

An 11 run third inning was the big one that broke the game open for the Oviedo squad, which is coached by Mickey Norton, who originally formed the team as a fast pitch softball team in New York back in 1968.

What was even more surprising about the case of the victory was that the Mice only had nine players at the game, instead of the usual 19, which normally gives the opponent a big advantage when they come to bat.

Connie Thomas worked the first four innings to collect the pitching victory, while newcomer Brenda Davis, a former basketball star at Orlando Luther High School, hurled the final inning.

Thomas helped herself with the bat, ripping three hits, including one of the Mice's five doubles, scoring two runs and driving in four more.

Also getting three hits each were Terri Mann and Phyllis Baynes. Baynes also scored a team-high three runs, while Mann crossed the plate twice.

Also having big nights were Kathy Tollefson (one double, one single, two runs scored, four RBI), Thomas' daughter, Teresa Walburger, a Lake Mary High School graduate, (one double, one single, two runs scored, four RBI), April Stoner (one double, two runs scored), Denise Evanson (one double, one run scored) and Davis and Lori Lingo (two runs scored each).

Cardinals

Continued from Page 1B. The Cardinals (18-0-1) got things started with one out in the bottom of the first inning as Lloyd Dixon singled, stole second and advanced to third on a throwing error. But Steve Averill got out of the jam by getting a pop up and a ground out.

The Cardinals' reserves brought the game to an end in the sixth inning by the mercy rule. Andy Heaberlin and Charlie McClain both walked ahead of an RBI double by Daniels. McClain then scored on a wild pitch. Ivory Peterson was hit by a pitch and Walter Gaines walked before Daniels ended the game by scoring on another wild pitch.

Doing the damage for the Cardinals were Daniels (double, single, two runs, RBI), Jackson (two singles, three runs, RBI), Dixon (two singles, run, RBI), Burnes (double, two RBI), Hinson (single, two runs, RBI), Perkins (single, run, two RBI), Randall (single, run, RBI), Badger (single, run), Winkle (single, RBI) and Heaberlin and McClain (one run each).

Also playing for the Cardinals, managed by Otis Raines and coached by Robert Smith, Kenny Daniels, David Jackson and Dean Smith, were Peterson, Gaines and Danny Harrison. Facing the Royals offense were Dickerson (double, single, run, RBI), Tommy Raines (single, run, RBI) and McNeil (single, run).

Other members of the Royals, managed by Brian Jones, were Mike Howard, Steve Averill, Chad Sheffield, Jeremiah Cline, Nathaniel Cline, Terrell Wright, Jimmy Parsons, Kevin Hill and Brian Averill.

Expos

Jacot walked in two more runs, Ford singled in a run and Lytle and Brett Counts both walked to plate two more runs and forcing the Orioles to bring in their sixth pitcher of the game, Lorenzo Dixon.

Bart Counts then cleared the bases with a triple and also scored on an error, before Lorenzo Dixon could get the final out.

With the lead in hand, Lytle went to work, retiring the Orioles in order in the second.

The Expos offense was finally stopped without a run in the third as a double play, first to home, retired the side despite a pair of walks.

The Orioles got to Lytle for an unearned run in the bottom of the third. After a strike out started the inning, Quinn and Flannagan ratched on errors before Byrd singled in a run. But that was it as Lytle struck out the next to batters to end the game.

The Expos, who improved to 8-5-1 with the victory, were led by Bart Counts (triple, double, two runs, five RBI), Brett Counts (two singles, three runs, four RBI), Smith (double, three runs, two RBI), Ford and Lytle (one single, three runs and two RBI each), Bishop (single, two runs, RBI), Jacot (three runs, three RBI), Brown (three runs, RBI) and Benevento (two runs).

Also on the victorious Expos squad are Max Howard, David Robards, Billy Wright and Adam Stevens.

Providing the offense for the Orioles, who finish the season 8-8, were Flannagan and Byrd (one double and two RBI each), Bart Dixon (single, run), Quinn (two runs) and Carter and Lorenzo Dixon (one run each).

Following the out, Bishop, Smith and Benevento all walked to load the bases and the Orioles had to bring in pitcher number five, Jose Velazquez. The onslaught continued as Brown and Ripley.

Scouts

has been outstanding... explained Lavefer, who also volunteers his time as a board member of the Central Florida Council of Boy Scouts.

"This tournament is a great way for people to come together and have a fun, relaxing day while supporting one of the truly important organizations available to our young people today."

Chorus best in Region 9

By ED KORGAN
Herald Correspondent

The "Sound of Sunshine" Sweet Adelines chorus once more proves its worth as the singers left Jacksonville with first place honors in Region 9 competition.

The region competition is the first step in becoming international champions, a step they went through two years ago as they distinguished themselves in the race for the title of International Champions. The "Sound of Sunshine," which is now the largest chorus in Florida staged 99 members of its contingent, 108 singers.

Sixteen other choruses from Florida competed for the honors. A chorus by virtue of its first place win at regional level is allowed to advance to compete with the winners of the remaining regions. The winner of that competition is crowned International Champions. The chorus will travel to Reno, Nev. in October 1994 for their second attempt to be number one out of approximately 25 choruses from such places as Great Britain, Sweden, Australia, Norway and the United States.

"Sound of Sunshine" is considered to be a very young chorus in that it was chartered in 1977. Many of the class choruses have been in existence since "Sweet Adelines International" was incorporated in Tulsa, Okla. in 1946. In the last eight years the singers have garnered two third place medals and two second place medals. The first place medal is the second they have received in as many tries.

A victory party was held Thursday at their weekly meeting place, Prairie Lake Baptist Church in Altamonte Springs. The chorus provided its visitors with a show of the competition songs and shared many of their experiences of their weekend in Jacksonville. A video tape was also run of the winning performance and the announcement and presentation of the first place medals.

Plans for the trip and the work involved in the financing of the trip were reviewed. The group will have to raise approximately $100,000 by the October 1994 deadline to make the trip. Recruitment of new members was also discussed.

Nancy Lewis, the chorus's only director in 18 years, announced they have openings for approximately 30 new members as she would like the chorus to be 130 strong by competition time. Most members are recruited from surrounding counties which includes Seminole, Volusia, Lake and Orange counties. For information concerning membership, please call Florence Korgan at 407-322-8254.

In addition to the celebration, new officers were installed as follows: President, Marie Cason; Vice-President, Ann Stegman; Corresponding Secretary, Sharon Vance; Recording Secretary, Leigh Anne Nieman; Treasurer, Jeanne Osborne.

Masons from England visit Sanford Lodge

Langton (left), master of Sanford Lodge, welcomed and presented worshipful brother Jack White, (center), assistant director of ceremonies from London with a Masonic clock, while Worshipful Brother Bernard C. Schenk, district deputy grand master of the 18th District of Florida looks on. The clock was a token from the Sanford lodge for the warm relations with the Grand Lodge of England whom White represented. American freemasonry was chartered from the English lodges. White gave a talk about freemasonry in England.

Readers: Cats are sneaky, jealous

DEAR ABBY: I do a slow burn whenever I see one of your articles defending cats.

When my oldest son was a tiny baby, a cat wandered into our house, and I caught it sitting on my baby's chest with its mouth buried deep in the baby's mouth!

My ex-daughter-in-law told me that her mother claims that a cat loudly. Needless to say, we got rid of the cat.

ADVICE

THURMAN E. CARROLL, DEL RIO, TEXAS

P.S. This happened to another woman in Del Rio. Her mother said the baby had already turned purple when she knocked the cat off her baby.

DEAR ABBY: This is my first letter to you, but I just can't be still. Yes, cats are jealous of babies. I have seen it with my own eyes. I was 8 years old at the time when my mother caught our cat lying across my little brother's face in his crib. The cat had its mouth right on top of the baby's mouth, and it is still clear in my mind now.

I doubt if you will publish this because it disagrees with your so-called experts. I always tell my story to anyone I know who has a small baby and a cat. This is true. You may use my name.

IRMA ORR, OMAHA, NEB.

Mother jerked the cat off and got my little brother to breathing again.

You are wrong about it being a myth. It's a fact. Cats are naturally jealous, and they will suck the life out of a baby if they get the chance.

Mothers, watch your babies! I am 73 years old now, and I will never forget that terrible scene.

Antibiotics can cause diarrhea

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can a person do when antibiotics cause diarrhea, yet the antibiotic is necessary? Is this a common side effect?

DEAR READER: This is a two-part answer because antibiotics can cause acute diarrhea or, after several weeks of treatment, allow it to develop.

In the first instance, diarrhea may be a natural consequence of some antibiotics; ampicillin is the prime culprit here. Also, people with allergies to a certain antibiotic may develop rash, swelling and diarrhea when they are inadvertently given the offending drug. In these situations (which are relatively common), the doctor merely changes the antibiotic and that takes care of the problem.

Antibiotic-induced diarrhea is, on the other hand, a different affliction. By killing off "good" bacteria in the intestine and allowing resistant forms to flourish, prolonged antibiotic therapy may lead to a life-threatening bowel inflammation (colitis). Antibiotic-induced colitis is diagnosed by special stool tests and is treated with intravenous fluids and expensive semi-synthetic antibiotics that eliminate the resistant bacteria.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my new Health Report "Constipation and Diarrhea." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I understand that exposure to laser light can damage the eyes. I was recently in a radiologist's office being shown how treatment is generally performed. A low-intensity red laser light was used to check the position of the patient on the table. This light was shone into the patient's eyes

On the other hand, specially filtered, low-intensity lasers, such as on sighting devices for weapons, are not strong enough to cause health problems.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

You are defending against three no-trump. Partner leads fourth-highest from his longest and strongest. You win an early trick and — all things being equal — do what? Right — you lead back partner's suit. But there is an occasion when you should know that this isn't the best continuation. (No, I don't mean when you have a solid suit of your own.)

You are sitting in the East chair. Your partner leads the heart four: three, 10, queen. Declarer plays the diamond queen: seven, three. How do you plan the defense?

Probably your first thought is to win with the diamond ace and return the heart seven. You hope partner can cash four heart tricks, having started with A-J-x-x-x.

However, there is another possibility: that your partner has

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 19, 1993

Fresh ambitions might be aroused in the year ahead owing to outside influences over which you'll have little control. However, this motivating force could turn out to be one of your best assets.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you want others to do your bidding today, you'd better set a good example, or else they will have no reason to believe you're the one who should call the shots. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a fragile relationship today, you might be still nursing wounds from a past experience instead of dealing with what's occurring now. This could be counterproductive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Sometimes it's necessary to spend money in order to make money. Today, however, you must be careful not to spend it on the wrong things for the wrong reasons.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Subdue your assertiveness today toward a person with whom you recently had a problem. If you're pushy, you will antagonize this individual and reopen old wounds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't let your emotions take precedence over your logic today. If you allow your feelings to influence your judgment, you could make some very poor decisions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If possible, try not to borrow anything from friends today. If you must borrow something, make sure it isn't from a pal to whom you're already indebted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're rather capable of operating effectively, even when the heat is turned up a bit. Today, however, you might make blunders if you're required to make decisions under pressure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Think your ideas through very carefully today before acting on them. Things you do impulsively might have to be done all over again.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Subdue any inclinations today toward being overly possessive of the one you love. The tighter you draw the blinds, the harder he or she will struggle to get free.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a possibility that you and your mate won't be operating on the same wavelength today. If this condition is accentuated, you could engage in silly spats over trivial matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone with whom you're closely associated will deeply resent it today if he or she is subjected to criticism from you. For the sake of peace and harmony, keep your observations to yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't take any foolish risks today that could detrimentally affect your holdings. Yielding to reckless impulses might create havoc.

ANNIE by Leonard Starr
