America And Old England Meet Today In Match For Amateur Golfing Honors

Bobby Jones, Atlanta's Wizard Of Links Plays Tom Perkins, Britain's Cold Blooded Fighting Champion

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

WEST NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 15.—(INS)—Good old, merry old, jolly old England was on the verge of floating the tradition of 17 long years today provided a man meeting Bobby Jones over 36 holes of golf can be said to be on the verge of anything except personal disaster.

But not Thomas P. Perkins cold and seemingly impersonal with the deceptive chill so true to British type. Defeat, maybe, disaster, hardly.

Jones, the American champion, and Perkins current champion of England was the billing for this final round for the national amateur title attraction utterly without precedent in the history of American golf.

Hilton, like Perkins was champion in his own right before he ever saw America, but Herreshoff, unlike Jones never was. And, so, not only does the analogy cease at this point but it does so with disquieting effect upon Perkins' chances of repeating the Hilton triumph and become amateur champion of the two major countries.

He will be meeting, as a matter of fact, at once the greatest amateur and the greatest medal player the world has ever known and a man keyed up to the dual responsibility of defending a title he won in 1924, 1925, and 1927, to say nothing of the prestige of American golf.

Jones on the other hand will be meeting what many term the finest amateur England ever has sent here.

He is all of that, a fighter first, last and at regular intervals in between. This is one element that gives Perkins a chance. Another is that he is quite a golfer. Anyhow, Boston the cradle of American golf, won't muff this one. There probably will be as many as 10,000 mountain goats in human guise on the premises by midday.

The only depressing feature of the occasion is the record of the Jones-Perkins match in the Walker cup series a few weeks ago. Jones won that one so easily that the dog-biting-the-man thing became news again. His margin of victory was 13 up and 12 to play and maybe the writer would regard this as important if it wasn't for two considerations.

One of these was Hagen's 18 and 17 defeat by Compton this year and Walter's victory in the British Open just a week later. The other is the fact that the Tom Perkins who blew that one is only the same man today. He isn't the same golfer. He has found his stride during the acclimating interval, as Hagen did, and this record in the championship proves it. Barring Jones himself no golfer has been quite as impressive this week as was Perkins in successive disposal of dangerous Don McJoe, Yates, Dawson and Volgt. Official medalist for the tournament. At that only in flashes against Wolcott, Brown and Ray Gortuh was Jones more effective than was Perkins. But of course, his 70's against John Beck and Phillips Finlay the last two days left no room for comparative arguments.

Matching cards with Perkins yesterday, Jones would have been three up at the 24th hole, the point at which he had definitely crushed Finlay by 13 and 12. He was "up" on Perkins the day before too, annihilating Beck, another Englishman by 14 and 13.

And if Jones is really Jones he will be up again today. For that really is all there is to any match between Jones and another amateur—the latter's hope that even perfection may not be quite the chronic thing the records indicate. Otherwise, he the opponent ever so good, he can have no real hope of beating the best when the latter is right.

Will Jones be right? Well, he hasn't been wrong these many years and there is no reason to suspect that he intends to start at this late date. But neither is there anything to prevent him from taking Perkins too lightly, if he so wishes, and this is one of the many things that shouldn't be done. From what he has shown here, the Briton should be taken almost as lightly as a load of pig iron.

Cochet Has Become Eager For Play In Tennis Tournament

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 15.—(INS)—Henri Cochet, he of the fiery Gallic temperament, has apparently at last taken to the championship pitch and may be expected to be the Cochet of recent Davis Cup play memory when he takes the court this afternoon against Frank X. Shields of New York in the semi-final round for the national singles tennis title.

Cochet has demonstrated clearly this week a fact which has been suspected for a long time. He is without doubt a wonderful "money" or special match player but he is not a good tournament contestant and the prospect of meeting seemingly mediocre players in early round matches bores and even irks him. The Frenchman's failure is that he has the tendency to underestimate any opponent whose name does not get into the headlines.

This explains in some measure why he had such terrific battles with Junior Cohn on Tuesday and with Fritz Mercur the following day.

Bombay Court Will Decide Important Point Of Legality

BOMBAY, Sept. 15.—(INS)—The important legal point of whether the registration and production of a motion picture in the United States guarantees its copyright in India, is soon to be decided by the Bombay High Court.

The point has arisen in the course of a motion for an interim injunction by Douglas Fairbanks and others against "The Indian Pictures Distributors," restraining the defendants from infringing upon the plaintiffs' copyright in the film "The Thief of Bagdad."

The plaintiffs allege that the Indian distributing company imported into India and distributed for exhibition authorized copies and imitations of the film alleged to have been made in France. The producers ask for an injunction and damages.

The defendants have denied that the films in their possession are unauthorized copies or imitations, and further contended that the film was not copyrighted in the British territories.

A temporary injunction has been issued in favor of the plaintiffs, and a definite decision is expected shortly.

GRID PROSPECTS GROW BRIGHTER AT GAINESVILLE

Candidates For Team Work Hard Under 3 Assistant Coaches

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA, Gainesville, Sept. 14.—(Athletic News Bureau)—With the second week of practice fast growing to a close varsity football prospects at the University of Florida are beginning to assume a bright hue.

In the absence of Head Coach Charles W. Bachman, the tutorial staff of Joe Bedenk, Nash Higgins and Joe Holsinger have been carrying on in splendid manner, and the "Gator mentor" would undoubtedly be pleased to see the great spirit and enthusiasm that has become so noticeable in the ranks of the candidates. It's going to be a real scrap for berths on the team this year, and judging from the vim and vigor the boys are putting into their efforts, not even the "greenies" of the lot is conceding a single thing as yet.

Olin Ferguson, fine backfield player of last year's frosh team, and under supervision of Coach Higgins, end-coach, Ferguson has a difficult task to break into the fold with Stanley, DeHoff, Vansickel, Green, Nolan, Wilson and others bidding for places, but with Stanley and DeHoff finishing their careers next spring, good men to carry on their fine work is necessary, so Bachman is not taking any chances on passing up potential end material. The entire South is going to watch the play of Stanley, Vansickel and DeHoff this fall, for no team in Dixie is regarded as having finer material.

More than a score of backfield men continue to impress the spectators with their work on the field. Just which combinations are going to be picked out is the big puzzle for the fans at this time. Whether Captain Boyer will play quarter or half, what Crabtree is going to do, and a host of other questions are being asked daily, however that Rainey Cawthon will play back. As the successor to leave little to be desired. His job seems assured.

WORTHINGTON—Road leading to Worthington being paved with asphalt.

SOVIETS TO HAVE BIG FARMS WHICH WILL RAISE GRAIN

Hope For Solution Of Agricultural Problem Seen In Plans

Moscow, Sept. 13, 1928.—(INS)—The white of Soviet surrender is waving over the Kremlin in the direction of the capitalist peasant horde in the provinces who refuse to accept Communism on any other than a cold cash basis. Plans are afoot, with the help of American farming experts, for a lasting peace in the bitter broad war between a comparative handful of Communist factory workers and employes 120,000,000 tillers of the soil who still cling tenaciously to the "shocking" ideal of private property.

Hopes for a solution of the grain problem are pinned on a gigantic project of industrialized farming, which Communist party and government leaders are discussing.

The plan tentatively calls for the establishment of 125 wheat ranches of about 100,000 acres in the next three years. It calls for an expenditure of approximately $500,000,000 for agricultural machinery, tractors, peasants' homes, stations.

To Be Americanized

"The farms must be Americanized." That is a slogan which has at least temporarily supplanted the vain glorious attempt to make Communist out of the peasants. It is probable that a crop of American agricultural experts will be called in at fat map out and manage the ranches on which every bit of work will be done by machinery.

With any kind of normal development of commercial relation between the Soviets and the United States, American agricultural implement firms ought to be able to corral about $250,000,000 worth of business.

One American farm expert, Harold Weir, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is already working with government authorities. He has started out to "harvey" the first model ranch of 100,000 acres in the fertile grain producing area of the North Caucasus.

ENGLISH GOAL DISLIKE COURSE IN THIS COUNTRY

Britons Find Link Wet, Turf Too And Greens Too

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—American golf courses are too wet, the turf is too bad, the greens are too fast, the course is too British.

That is the opinion of members of the British Golf Club team here, who visit in the United States to play in the Walker Cup matches at the Golf Club, Wheaton, Ill.

Govent leaders are coping with numerous obstacles in this respect one of the existing things is a profit, including the collecting and state farms is being made. Mr. Weir, foreign director of the German firm of Krupp, has been compelled to stop outcaising in addition to grain in order to prevent huge debts.

The government, however, is not particularly raising grain at a profit on a basis of the legally fixed static grain prices. Export grain cost from 10 to 15 per cent, because it is used to get a balance of trade and per the importation of industrial machinery. The idea is that high priced grain is better than no grain at all.

The problem presents the greatest difficulty. Peasants are reluctant to give up their private farms and work as ordinary wage slaves on land which they cannot call their own.

"Give us the same wages that we get in the factories," says one of the peasants. "Give us the same wages as we get in the factories and we'll be jobs on industrial farms," says another.

The government obviously can't pay as high wages to peasants. And the political experiment may rack on this issue.

LOVELORN

By Dorothy Belle Flanagan

In the Commonwealth—She went down the little road away from town. Leaned over the half-way bridge and watched the brook. Flucked tall buttercups in vain against her gown.

But all she could remember was his look. She went down through the meadows to the apple tree. Pressed her cheek against the branches old and wise. Gathered crimson fruit that hung there placidly.

But all she could remember were his eyes. She went down into the forest, silent-green and cool. Stumbled across a mirror in a secret place. Knelt to behold her portrait in the magic pool.

But all that she could vision was his face. The Herald's telephone rang so much yesterday it sounded like a burglar alarm. If Bobby Jones didn't win the national amateur championship, that would be news.

It was exactly two years ago yesterday that the worst hurricane in the history of this state struck the coast at Miami. A friend of ours says that in spite of bolting Democrats, Al Smith is going to sweep the country. Using as he is a Hoover vacuum cleaner, he should do a good job of it.

People love to talk. The national campaign headquarters can issue all the orders they want to, but folks will still say that Al Smith is a Roman and Herb Hoover is a Britisher.

Clinton Carnes, it seems, was something of a ladies' man as well as an unusual financier. Somebody connected with the Southern Baptist Home Mission must feel like a sucker.

With narcissus bulbs, something new in industries hereabouts, bringing fresh, cold cash into this county at the rate of twelve thousand dollars a car, no one can doubt the returning prosperity of this section.

We heard one fellow remark yesterday that he was going to avoid an unpleasant situation by not voting at all. It seems to us that a man is a much poorer citizen who does not vote at all than one who does vote but votes for the wrong side.

We hope northern newspapers will not refer to this one as the "Florida hurricane". It originated in the Windward Islands of the Lesser Antilles, wiped out San Juan, Porto Rico, swept over Turk Islands, and Nassau and did not reach Florida until after it had already travelled over land and sea for several thousand miles.

The ink was scarcely dry on our editorial the other day commenting on the killing of Tony Lombardo, killed in retaliation for the killing of Frankie Uale, who was likewise a vengeance victim, when the body of the supposed slayer of Tony was found in a pool of blood at the foot of a flight of stairs. If it were not for the horrible example it sets for the rest of the country, it might be a good idea just to let these papers exterminate themselves.

In Montgomery Senator Heflin said Dr. Straton were denied the use of the city auditorium for speeches to be directed against Al Smith. While we believe in freedom of speech and think the Alabama mayor erred in preventing the use of the city property for political purposes, still we cannot help but recall rather gleefully that it was this same Senator Heflin who said in the Senate last spring that if Senator Robinson (our vice presidential nominee) made that speech (for religious toleration) in Alabama, he would be tarred and feathered.

Forecasting Storms

In view of succeeding events the report issued Saturday afternoon by Richard W. Gray, chief of the weather bureau at Miami, approaches the realm of the ridiculous. Mr. Gray is an optimist and always views things in the best light. For this we commend him, but for a man in his position we feel that he should be at least pessimistic enough to send out a warning when a warning is due.

Late Saturday afternoon when the storm was lashing the shores of Nassau, Mr. Gray reported, "The location of the tropical disturbance today shows that it has followed the course indicated by yesterday's report. IT WILL NOT CAUSE HIGH WINDS ON THE LOWER EAST COAST OF FLORIDA." And the "course indicated by yesterday's report" was that it would swing to the northeast far off the coast of Florida touching Miami and Palm Beach with nothing stronger than a thirty or thirty-five mile an hour wind.

While we recognize the difficulty of keeping in close touch with the progress of a hurricane sweeping through the West Indies where communication at best is difficult, and while we recognize the present imperfection of modern wind registering instruments, we do feel that a weather man at so strategic a point as Miami should be able to give some idea of the approximate course of a storm and should issue warnings soon enough to do some good.

We distinctly recall that when the 1926 hurricane almost demolished Miami, the weather man there sent out the statement that the storm had veered to the east and would miss the coast. Citizens calling his office at eleven o'clock at night were advised that Miami would receive only light winds. Two hours later the storm struck with its full force and the wind reached a velocity of over one hundred and thirty miles an hour.

In view of the fact that some people are bound to repose a certain amount of confidence in the forecasts of the weather man, we think that if he cannot make his prognostications a little more accurate, he should at least be a little more pessimistic, and occasionally at least predict that a storm sweeping in this general direction will not change its course, but might by some freak of nature come straight on and stir up more than a "light wind." Only then will the people of Florida be prepared for such storms as struck in 1926 and again day before yesterday.

Well Meaning Names

Apparently wondering "What's In a Name" the New York Herald Tribune stops long enough from writing glaring headlines on the "Florida hurricane" to ponder on Max "Boo Boo" Hoff, most recently designated "King of Bootleggers" in Philadelphia. It has just been pointed out to us that the Republican nominee for president is named HEO Hoover while the Democratic nominee is appropriately called Ale Smith. The appellation of Max "Boo Boo" Hoff seems equally as well chosen.

"In the restless days of autumn," says the New York paper, when all of us are troubled by serious thoughts about politics and baseball, prohibition and international peace, there is nothing quite so refreshing as the name of Max ("Boo Boo") Hoff. One retires at night debating whether there is really any use in setting the alarm clock for the next morning—whether it would not be better just to sleep on and on—and one arises the next morning fearing the worst. Then, from an obscure paragraph of the newspaper at which one scowls during breakfast, emerges the name of Max ("Boo Boo") Hoff. It is like a breath of spring, or a mint julep. There is tonic in this little half line of type. After all, we decide, we cannot sneer at a civilization which has produced, if not great art, at least a name such as Max ("Boo Boo") Hoff.

All we have been able to learn about Max is that he is a small man, that he had made money in boxing and in real estate and that in Philadelphia, where he lives, he has just recently been called "The King of the Bootleggers." Mr. Monaghan, the Philadelphia prosecutor, has, in some respects, distinguished himself in the present liquor investigation in his city. We are told by the correspondents that he has uncovered an immense well of graft—or was it a caldron of corruption? Well, or caldron, he has uncovered it, and this is admirable.

But does Mr. Monaghan intend to let slip through his fingers a chance which perhaps no other public man of his generation ever has had or ever will have? Scattered over this country to-day are thousands of people, we feel sure, who are assailed by a curiosity which may, at any moment, prove fatal. We and all those thousands, want to know more about "Boo Boo." What is he like? How did he get his nickname? Does it mean that he frightens all with whom he comes in contact? Or is it that he himself is always afraid? We pray that it is the former—that the nickname should be "Boo! Boo!" instead of merely, "Boo Boo."

CANADIAN LIQUOR SYSTEM

Governor Smith's proposal for the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor by the state governments in states which so desire is the sort of thing in which a careful fact finding study would be far more useful than Mr. Hoover's proposed study of present day enforcement conditions with which everyone is already tragically well acquainted. But the study should come when political heat is abated and scientific judgement is possible.

The proposed Smith system is similar in many respects to that now used in some provinces of Canada and it would be to Canada that a fact-finding body would look first for experience with such a system and its results. Already the conditions in Canada as regards control of the liquor evil are being reported. The reports are as variant as the points of view. A correspondent writes the Republican New York Herald Tribune from Canada that the sale of hard liquor has increased fifty per cent under the Canada system and "as much liquor is sold by bootleggers as is sold in the government stores."

Drunkenness among women, he reports, has increased 53 per cent. In contrast to this another Canadian correspondent writes the Democratic New York Times that visitors from the United States to Ontario and Quebec can hardly report that they have seen a single drunken man there—unless, by chance, it be one of themselves, finding, as it were, an oasis in the desert. There are no saloons, he declares, and "everybody appears completely satisfied with the operation of the law. It is commended by prominent church people, while I am told not a murmur has been heard from the Dominion Alliance—the Canadian counterpart of the Anti-Saloon League."

NOT A JUDAS

TAMPA TIMES

By long odds the most despicable thing which has locally been injected into the present campaign is the innuendo that Walter F. George, United States senator from Georgia, made his Tampa speech in advocacy of the national democratic ticket for a price—that "if Senator George is not being paid, he should be paid, for making such speeches. Perhaps the best treatment for such revolting statements as that is to consider the source, as the fellow who was jacked by a mule, and let them go at that. There are times, however, when such flagrant injustice has been done and decency has been so outraged that something needs to be said.

There are now residents in Florida many former Georgians—probably thousands of them—who know Walter F. George and know the unutterable cruelty of such an insinuation against him. His character is too well established to be damaged by having shot at it poisoned word-bullets which carry a suggestion that their authors would not dare openly make. Whoever knows the senator—former Georgians now living in Florida, those resident in his home state, whoever they may be—knows that he is not a Judas, willing to barter himself into infamy for a few pieces of silver. To insidiously charge that he is such borders closely upon the worst form of attempt to assassinate character.

Before the people who know him Senator George needs no defense against such baseless and unwarranted attacks. Nor does he need such defense before the people of this nation, we anticipate. The Times is not undertaking to perform as his defender. The matter is only referred to at all for the purpose of directing attention to the miserable lengths being gone to by some in the present political exigency.

It is not out of place to say, however, that of all the men in the public life of this nation Walter F. George is an outstanding example of honor and integrity. There is not one among his neighbors and fellow-townsmen, among the men and women with whom he has lived for years, who will not bear witness that he is honest and honorable, that he is a high-toned Christian gentleman in the best and fullest meaning of that designation. His word is his bond. His character is his riches.

In view of all this it is past understanding how he could have been expected to do anything save speak for the national democratic ticket, if called upon to do so. As a candidate before the Houston convention for the democratic nomination for the presidency he expected party support in the event of his nomination. Having failed of nomination he could not have withheld support from the party without proving himself an unworthy scoundrel. Before the convention met he publicly stated that he would support the reformer, that the pre-convention fight was wholly one within the party—one that ended as soon as the convention had performed its functions. He reiterated that almost immediately upon the convention's adjournment.

A casual acquaintance with the facts is amply sufficient for making one to know that the taking of such a position by Walter F. George was a courageous thing. The senator's acquaintances also know him to be courageous. Having pledged himself to stand by his party and its ticket there was nothing left for Senator George to do but to stand by it, to speak for it and to vote for it, unless he chose to appear as one who counts his promises lightly. It is not going too far to say that neither friend nor foe has ever known him to break his pledged word.

Under such conditions, to say even though he has most insidiously way, that he has sold out is to say the unbelievable and the unjustifiable. It has frequently been said that anything is fair in politics. The Times is pleased that it is not fair to hold that opinion. It is not fair to put an honorable, upright man in the category with Judas. It is cruel to innuendo a loyal democrat into a palaverer for money.

And the Times is much mistaken if there are not many who will resent such unwarranted aspersions having been insinuated against Senator George.

Let it be repeated—Walter F. George is not a Judas.

FIGHTING TAMMANY

JACKSONVILLE JOURNAL It will be surprising to some to know that one of the most uncompromising fights ever conducted against Tammany Hall was led by a man named Smith—Alfred E. Smith. It happened in 1922. William Randolph Hearst, after sometimes supporting Tammany and sometimes opposing it, had arrived at a blissful accord with Leader Marbury. Murphy went to the Syracuse convention of 1922 to nominate Hearst for the United States senate, determined to use all of the power of the Tammany organization to put him over. Showed for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was another Tammany man—named Smith. Alfred E. Smith was against Hearst. His reasons may have been good or not so good, but he was against him. And Tammany was for him. What followed is described by Frank R. Kent in his "History of the Democratic Party." "When

Smith met Murphy... made peace, and was prepared to present his arch enemy with the senatorial nomination... "No!" in no uncertain tones, served notice on the boss in effect as follows: "Top or bottom, I will not run on any ticket with you. If Hearst is on, I'm off; if I'm off, I'm on." Moreover, boiling over, he made it plain that if the Hearst plan was pushed he would not only refuse the nomination for governor with him, but would go on the floor of the convention and fight the Tammany ticket with every ounce of force he had in him. There was no way to placate "Alf" Smith. Hearst was "saved in." Hearst was nominated and at that time on there has never been any question as to who was the real leader of the Democratic organization—city and state—doubt in whose hands was left the real power. Tammany is a long word. It is a word which contains some unpleasant historical syllables. But times change and the last syllable in Alfred E. Smith. There is today far more reason to judge Tammany by Smith than Smith by Tammany.

Al Jolson In "Jazz Singer" To Be Seen At Orlando Theater

Warner Brothers will present Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" at the Beacham Theatre, Orlando, for an entire week's run starting Monday. The story of the rise of the son of the cantor, who deserted his home to become a jazz singer and at last was torn between the desire of his father that he succeed him in the synagogue and his own desire to shine on Broadway, is well known. Alan Crossland, who directed the picture, is said to have treated the story in the spirit in which it was conceived.

In "The Jazz Singer" Jolson is not only seen but is heard singing in his own inimitable manner some of the songs which have made him famous: "April Showers," "Mammy," "Blue Skies," "Mother of Mine I Still Have You," "Koi Nidra" and "Dirty Hands and Dirty Face" accompanied by the Vitaphone Symphony Orchestra of seventy five pieces.

Chief in Jolson's support is May McAvoy, as leading woman in the role of Mary Dale. Warner Oland has the role of the sly cantor. Among others in the numerous cast are Otto Lederer, Eugene Bessner, Cantor Josef Rosenthal, Anders Hagdahl, William Demarest, Bobby Gordon, Richard Tucker and Nat Carr.

Included in the same program will be four deluxe Vitaphone presentations, William Demarest in "Papa's Vacation," Brown and Whitaker in "A Laugh or Two," a one act Vitaphone play "The Death Ship" and Conlin and Glass, in a Vitaphone specialty.

SLAIN OFFICER'S WIFE GIVEN FUND RAISED BY PUBLIC

'Happy' Smith's Family Is Provided For By Kansas City People

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 17.—(INS)—The widow Smith, with $25,000 in gilt edge securities tucked away in the family purse, and close beside the neatly folded plans of the $8,000 bungalow which will house her fatherless brood of five, has something to say about that bromide charge that the big city has no heart.

For Kansas City, a typical metropolis from the center of the so-called dreary and uneventful mid-west, has entered a colorful and compelling denial of that charge.

The vindication of the heartless big city is a human document, written in the blood of a hero, the late patrolman, James H. (Happy) Smith. It is as flamboyant a tale as the wildest adventure thriller, yet as real as the city's vital statistics. It has action and pathos; with the villain confounded boasts of enough front page personalities to fill a page of "Who's Who" and has the usual happy ending which delights the soul of America's cinema-educated public.

During Convention
On the morning of June 14, while the delegates to the Republican National Convention were thronging the Convention Hall, Kansas City's compact downtown district cocked its ear to a sharp staccato rattle, as of a riveter beating on steel, and looked about curiously for the source of the sound. It was machine gun fire. A hand car charged down Walnut street spitting fire.

In the wake of the tornado on wheels lay the limp body of Patrolman "Happy" Smith, at his familiar post, at Eleventh and Walnut, where for years he directed traffic. As the cartoning car swept past him, he lifted a detaining hand—and a shot gun, fired at close range, literally tore him in half. Patrolman Darrell Cupshaw, at tenth and Walnut reached for his revolver, and was lifted off his pins by a machine gun slug. On the ground lay sixteen-year-old Lillian Rolan, her jaw pierced by a bullet, and Charles Monaco, 40, who had likewise been in the path of the steel spray.

Driver To Hang
The villain was confounded, or at least one of the seven villains who robbed the Home Trust Company of $19,151.03, was confounded when just one month after the crime had been committed, John Messino, stoically heard a jury of his peers, declare that he must hang by the neck until he was dead. Messino had been identified as the driver of the hand car.

Kansas City was not slow to catch the pathos of the situation—the broken widow Smith, and her brave little brood of five, their leader gone, patiently buckling down to the uneven battle against the world. And Kansas City acted.

And Kansas City was not alone in its charity. Prominent men, all over the country, who had been in Kansas City at the time of Smith's death, or who had heard of the incident, extended a helping hand.

Meighan Has Two Leading Women In Picture At Milane

Thomas Meighan, in his second starring photodrama for The Caddo Company, "The Mating Call," has two leading ladies. They are Evelyn Brent and Renee Adoree, both popular stars in their own rights.

Howard Hughes, president of Caddo, who produced "The Mating Call" for Paramount release, borrowed Miss Brent from Lasky's and Miss Adoree from M. G. M., after considering approximately 50 candidates for the parts.

"The Mating Call," by Rex Beach, is one of the most popular magazine serials and novels of recent years. The story was adapted for the screen by Walter Woods, and the continuity was written by Ford I. Beebe.

James Cruze directed the picture, which was produced on a lavish basis, with expensive cast and extravagant settings.

"The Racket," Meighan's first Caddo production, is considered his best, starring vehicle in years.

French English Pact Checks Air Attacks

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The defense of London from attacks by air has been strengthened by the agreement concluded between France and Britain, it has been learned.

France has undertaken to cease building air bases upon the northern coast, like that at Cherbourg, and to place her own bases at the disposal of England in the event of the latter country being attacked by a continental power. Belgium is also a party to the agreement, which is in the nature of a private understanding. The arrangement is really the outcome of the Locarno pacts under which Britain undertook to join in the defense of continental powers when attacked, without obtaining promise of corresponding aid if attacked itself.

The air understanding has the advantage of relieving Britain of the necessity of building competitively against France at a time when every item of expenditure on armaments is scrutinized nationally as well as internationally.

ILLINOIS MENTOR HAS PROBLEM TO GET MORE BACKS

Coach Zuppke Has Fine First String But Is Short Of Substitutes

By International News Service. CHAMPAIGN-URBANA, Ill., Sept. 15. The opening of the football season at the University of Illinois has found Coach Robert Zuppke with the big problem of developing substitute backfield men.

Jud Timm, Frank Walker and Doug Mills, halfbacks; Fritz Humbert, fullback, and Dwight Stuesey, quarterback, are the returning lettermen who will dominate the backfield, if they live up to their performance of last season.

Pete Yanushuk revealed possibly the best talent among the freshmen last year as a ball carrier. He was fast and extremely shifty in an open field.

E. P. Chaffin was the leading quarterback of the freshman and may develop into a capable understudy Stuesey job.

While Humbert appears to be the outstanding fullback candidate who will report, he may get some keen competition from S. L. Bodman, a 185-pounder who punts, passes and runs the century in 11 seconds flat.

Edgar "Cowboy" Nickel, a lettermen of two years ago and a squadman of last year, has been used in the backfield at various times.

The intention of Frosty Peters, who drop kicked Illinois to some victories in 1926 but who was not here last year, to return, furnishes another backfield possibility.

"At Deerfield the Postoffice and practically every other building in the town was demolished. I saw only four or five houses which apparently had not been severely damaged.

"There was a six-story building near the depot in Palm Beach where the entire front on the sixth floor had been blown out. In the colored section there were entire blocks where the houses had been smashed absolutely flat.

"The thing which impressed me most about it all," concluded Mr. Haines, "was the evident optimism of the people. They seemed to regard the hurricane as nothing more than the breaking of an egg.

STORM CAUSES BIG DAMAGE TO CITRUS TREES

(Continued From Page 1) the hurricane changed its course somewhere near Inverness and moved toward the northeast. Advice from the Sanford office of the Atlantic Coastline were to the effect that Jacksonville and St. Augustine were receiving high winds this morning.

Telegraphic communications, which were maintained with more or less intermittency throughout yesterday, were cut off completely this morning and no word was received from Jacksonville until shortly after noon.

Reports from Tampa said that although high winds had been felt throughout Sunday, no particular damage had been done. Power, cut off temporarily in some parts of the city, was quickly restored.

"The center of the storm apparently reached as far north as Stuart where the damage will probably reach a million dollars. From there on the destruction was noticeably less.

Every possible effort was made to insure the success of the speaker. East County had 10,000 men in the city at that time.

New York Cop Killed In Mystery Murder

(NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 15.—(INS)—Private James Leonard, a "black" reserved member of the Police Department for 17 years, was shot dead in his room at 37 West 120th Street, Flatting, Queens, in circumstances which baffled a score of detectives under Dept. Police Commissioner John A. Lench.

At 7:30 p. m. Saturday, the patrolman of the street where Patrolman Leonard, attached to the 150th Precinct, was shot.

KILLED IN TAXI WAR

(NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 15.—(INS)—Police were confronted Saturday night with what looked like another "gang" killing when Jacob Silverman, a taxi cab chauffeur, was shot and killed while walking along West 120th Street by the rear of a light-colored sedan.

CITY RELOVES QUICKLY FROM STORM EFFECT

(Continued From Page 1) In most instances they had been cleared from the streets early today. A huge oak tree at Park Avenue and Fifth Street, which was among those to be blown down.

A number of city street crews were busy engaged throughout the day clearing the thoroughfares of debris and restoring fallen limbs. Under the supervision of James Moughtin, the crews made steady progress and this afternoon the city was fast regaining its normal appearance.

Electric light and power lines were being repaired from the city center until this morning. Crews from the Florida Power and Light Company, working under the personal supervision of Cyril A. Dyre, local manager, labored throughout Sunday night, all day Monday and last night to restore the lines.

Local telephone lines were out of order for several hours, but were restored to normal today. Howard O'Connell, local manager, announced many of the telephone lines to the outside world were still down today.

A lone wire to Jacksonville, which was reported out of order most of the day, was the only means of communication to the northward during Monday. This was operated by the Western Union.

The Sanford Herald was unable to publish Monday afternoon because of lack of power to operate linotypes and presses, and also because of wrecked telegraph lines, which rendered it impossible to receive direct news from its home.

Hotel Greeters Use Radio In Effort To Re-Establish Good Name Of Windy City

President Of Organization Asks 10,000 Members To Assist In Overcoming Un- desirable Widespread Publicity

CHICAGO, Sept. 18. (INS)—Voicing an appeal to the 18,000 hotel executives in the United States and Canada who are members of the Hotel Greeters of America to aid in re-establishing Chicago's good name throughout the continent, Clifton L. Corning, national president of the Greeters, has started a broadcast of "Good-will for Chicago" messages to the members of the Hotel Greeters, which is the world's largest hotel organization.

"There is no use denying that Chicago is better known for its crime than for its commercial achievements, education facilities, and spots of beauty and historic interest," Corning declared. "Unfortunately our murders, gang wars, and political troubles have been of an sensational nature as to dominate the front pages of the American press. In reality, however, statistics show that Chicago is second lowest in proportion of crime to population, in a list of twelve American cities, with a percentage of 9.8 p. c., while other smaller cities rate a percentage as high as 25.4 p. c.

"The publicity given Chicago for its unfortunately daring and sensational murders has driven countless dollars of business away from Chicago, and Chicago hotels. We cannot deny but that our losses in conventions, tourists, and visiting shoppers have been of so high a rate that it is vital we do something.

"You hotel men know that in many large cities the proposed 1933 Chicago World's Fair is being looked upon already as a losing

ILLINOIS MENTOR HAS PROBLEM TO GET MORE BACKS

Coach Zuppke Has Fine First String But Is Short Of Substitutes

By International News Service CHAMPAIGN-URBANA, Ill. -- Opening of the football season September 15 at the University of Illinois has found Coach Robert Zuppke with the big problem of developing substitute backfield men. He has several letter men available for his first string backfield but talent for his second string is lacking.

Jud Timm, Frank Walker and Doug Mills, halfbacks; Fritz Humbert, fullback, and Dwight Sweeney, quarterback, are the returning lettermen who will dominate the backfield, if they live up to their performance of last season.

Pete Yanuskievich revealed possibly the best talent among the freshmen last year as a ball carrier. He was fast and extremely shifty in an open field. Chuck Hall of Normal, who was outstanding as a freshman two years ago, is regarded as a possibility.

E. P. Chittin was the leading quarterback of the freshman and may develop into a capable understudy Sweeney job. Hanson, who played with Chittin, is another signal caller.

While Humbert appears to be the outstanding fullback candidate who will report, he may get some keen competition from S. L. Redman, a 185-pounder who punts, passes and runs the century in 11 seconds flat. Conover, who specializes in line smashing, and Flood and Robinson are other possibilities for fullback.

Edgar "Cowboy" Nickel, a letterman of two years ago and a squadman of last year, has been used in the backfield at various times.

The intention of Frosty Peters, who drop kicked Illinois to some victories in 1926 but who was not here last year, to return, furnishes another backfield possibility.

Sanford Man Reports Palm Beach Disaster; Storm Center Shifts

(Continued From Page 1) train to come through after the hurricane and was preceded by a wrecking train which looted the track. We stayed in Palm Beach about two hours while a warehouse which had blown across the track was removed. I got out and walked around town at this time and saw many worse signs than I saw in Miami after that storm. At one place I saw a five room bungalow resting uncomfortably on the roof of another house.

"At Deerfield the Postoffice and practically every other building in the town was demolished. I saw only four or five houses which apparently had not been severely damaged. A man named Hinson told me that his house was picked up by the wind and blown over two hundred yards from where it was dropped with such force that it was completely shattered, severely injuring the occupants.

"There was a six-story building near the depot in Palm Beach where the entire front on the sixth floor had been blown out. In the colored section there were entire blocks where the houses had been smashed absolutely flat. The highest thing sticking up in some instances would be the bedstead. Practically all the garages and warehouses which I saw suffered one hundred per cent damage.

"North of Palm Beach about seventy-five per cent of the land was covered with water. Automobiles were stalled all along in water extending over the running boards. The center of the storm about fifty miles from the coast. It is estimated that the damage will probably reach a million dollars. From there on the destruction was noticeably less.

Telegraphic communications, which were maintained with more or less intermittency throughout yesterday, were cut off completely this morning and no word was received from Jacksonville until shortly after noon. Northbound trains at Jacksonville were being held up pending repairs to tracks and a dimming of the winds of the storm which was said to be passing to the north of Jacksonville.

Reports from Tampa said that although high winds had been felt throughout Sunday, no particular damage had been done. Power, cut off temporarily in some parts of the city, was quickly restored. Wire communications, both to Tampa and to other parts of the state, are expected to be restored to normal condition sometime tomorrow.

of the people. They seemed to regard the damage as nothing worse than the breaking of an egg. Everywhere they were smiling about their losses and going about the work of reconstruction. In all probability within a few weeks they will have the damage repaired and tourists going there this winter will never be able to tell that the storm had struck in that vicinity.

Hoover Opens Fight With Speech Monday

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 18. (INS)—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, opened his fight against organized crime with a speech Monday in Newark, N. J. Hoover, who was accompanied by his wife and two children, addressed a large gathering of citizens in the city.

Every county in the state was a big danger to itself, he said. He estimated that there are 10,000 organized crime rings in the United States. He said that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is now working to break up these rings.

Oil Leases On 20,000 Acres To Be Auctioned

The leases are to be for a period of five years and will be sold for $100 per acre. The land is located in the northwestern part of the state.

New York Cop Killed In Mystery Murder

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 18. (INS)—Patrick Michael Conroy, a quiet, reserved member of the Police Department for 12 years, who was shot back to his East 101st Street home Sunday morning, was stabbed to death Saturday in his tenement home at 377 1/2 101st Street, Flushing, Queens, in circumstances which puzzled a score of detectives under Deputy Police Commissioner Ivan A. Leach.

At 3:30 p. m. Saturday the man called the street where Conroy lived, attached to the East 101st Street station in Manhattan, had been enjoying his vacation since August 29, was broken by his four-year-old daughter, Dora, who had been playing with a toy gun in the front door.

KILLED IN TAXI WAR

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 18. (INS)—Police were confronted Saturday night with what looked like another gang killing when Jacob Silverman, a taxi chauffeur, was shot and killed while walking along West 120th Street by the occupants of a blue sedan.

Silverman, 35 years old, was walking along leisurely on his way to his home at 2 West 117th Street. He passed 114 West 120th Street when a car drove up to the curb and two shots were fired at Silverman, who was dropped with a bullet in his neck and another in his shoulder. Getting up, he staggered toward the curb and was hit again in the chest.

DEATH TOLL AT CEECHOBEE IS NOW PUT AT 21

The path of the storm as plotted by Director W. C. Roper, local meteorologist, shows it crossed the state Monday morning. Near by Palm Beach a northwesterly direction crossed the northern part of Lake Okechobee, and moved gradually northward.

CITY RECOVERS QUICKLY FROM STORM EFFECTS

(Continued From Page 1) In most instances these had been cleared from the streets early today. A huge oak tree, 14 1/2 feet in diameter, was among those to be blown down.

A number of city street cars were hastily engaged throughout the day clearing the thoroughfares of debris and removing fallen limbs. Under the supervision of James Moughton, the street maintenance progress and this afternoon the city was fast regaining its normal appearance.

Electric and power lines were being strung from late Sunday night until this morning. Crews from the Florida Power and Light Company, working under the personal supervision of Clyde A. Byrd, local manager, labored throughout Sunday night, all day Monday and last night to restore the lines. They had succeeded in repairing practically all of the wires by noon today, it was reported.

Local telephone lines were out of order for several hours, but were restored to normal today. Howard Overton, local manager, announced that many of the telephone lines to the outside world were still down today. From Sunday midnight to early today Sanford was practically isolated from the rest of the state. Communication was maintained throughout the day with Orlando by the means of the line. Coast to the south of Orlando could be reached either by telephone or telegraph.

A boat view to Jacksonville, which was reported out of order most of the day, was the only means of communication to the northward. Guide Monday. This was reported by the Western Union. This afternoon, however, improved facilities were reported by both Postal and Western Union Communication. It was stated, would probably be restored sometime today on the East Coast as far south as Fort Pierce.

The Sanford Herald was unable to publish Monday afternoon because of lack of power to operate typeset and presses, and also because of wrecked telegraph lines, which rendered it impossible to receive dispatches over its leased wire of the International News Service. The office, however, was open throughout Sunday and night in the night and yesterday and last night. The most authentic information that could be obtained from newspaper offices was furnished to hundreds of Sanford and Hernando County citizens who kept the telephone ringing almost incessantly from early Sunday morning until late Monday night.

Business was practically at a standstill yesterday in Sanford. Some of the business houses were closed all day while others followed suit at noon. Only a few remained open throughout the day. Hardware stores were especially busy because of the demand for supplies to protect their stock from further fury of the storm.

It is estimated that 10,000 trees were blown down in Sanford. The front of Dixon's garage, a one-story concrete structure, was demolished, and, in addition, the damage from fallen trees had been done in San Isidro subdivision. Huge oak trees, he said, had been uprooted as easily as if they had been small bushes. The roads were littered with brush and fallen limbs, while in some instances traffic was impeded by trees that crossed the highways. The Markham road was reported impassable yesterday, but travel was restored today. It was noted several other smaller roads were also tree-ridden.

Huge Sum Wasted In Curing Hides, Is Claimed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. (INS)—The Department of Agriculture and Commerce are cooperating in a campaign to eliminate an annual waste of $20,000,000 in wasteful methods of curing hides and skinning animals.

These experienced men are at work in the field at the present time, one in Pennsylvania, one in Eastern Ohio, who is working chiefly on the handling of calf skins, while the other is in the Virginia and North Carolina territory, working primarily on hides. Millions of pounds of hides and skins are needlessly lost through wasteful and unscientific methods. America's domestic hide production is falling short of the country's requirements.

Autoists Are Warned About School Kiddies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. (INS)—With the reopening of school, the American Automobile Association is urging motorists to avoid accidents to children.

School days are here again, and the Association, being concerned for the safety of children upon the highways, there are children between the ages of four, five and six who are leaving the protection of their homes to venture into an entirely new world. The effective work of the association has done much to help set the tiny tots, although accidents still remain as a danger to the nation.
