A former Lake Mary city commissioner has been arrested on a charge of grand theft possibly in connection with alleged misuse of $21,340 belonging to a non-profit organization.

Arrested at 9:05 a.m. Friday on a warrant issued by the State Attorney's Office was Colin R. Reogh. 30, of 115 W. Lake Mary Ave., Lake Mary. He was charged with one count of grand theft, second degree. According to sheriff's department records. Keogh bonded out of jail on a $1,000

surety bond.

Keogh ended his one term as a Lake Mary city commissioner in September 1985. He resigned one month before his term was to end, after missing several commission meetings. He did not seek reelection citing employment reasons.

Keogh said Saturday that apparently the arrest was in connection with an allegation by the Lake Mary Cemetery Association, Lake Mary, that he converted some of its funds for his own use. A civil suit has been filed by the association against Keogh in connection with that allegation. The association maintains Lake Mary's oldest cemetery and sells plots. It was started in 1895 and Keogh took over the chairmanship from his grandfather.

Reogh said he would contact the State Attorney's Office monday about the case, and while it appeared to be related to the cemetery fund situation, he said he was not sure.

"I don't know what it's in reference to or what it's about," he said.

Keogh is scheduled to appear in court July 7 on the criminal charge.

In the law suit, filed May 17, 1985, the association claimed Keogh converted $21.340 of the association's money for his own use. He has denied it.

The alleged conversion reportedly occurred on April 23, 1985, and some cemetery association members said he used the money to pay a personal mortgage. Keogh has denied that claim as well.

The association, which is suing to get its money back but did not ask for additional damages, said See ARREST. page 6A

Area MADD May Founder Due To Funds Shortage

By Veronica Edwards

Funds for Central Florida's MADD, Mothers Against Drunk Driving, are running out and the organization may be forced to disband, say its supporters.

Mary Wiley, Orlando, founder of the MADD chapter, said many people verbally support her efforts but they are not helping financially. She said they say they stand behind her, but she needs them to "stand by herside."

Her efforts against drunk driving began when her daughter, altee, was killed by a drunk driver in 1980.

Candy Lightner, founder of the first MADD chapter, in California, contacted Mrs. Wileyafter receiving a contribution from Mrs. Wiley's sister-in-law on behalf of Alice. After the local chapter was organized, a campaign was launched to change laws and to chauge the communities ideas of drinking while intoxicated.

One of Ms. Wiley's efforts took her to Tallahassee where she lobbied for a mandatory minimum sentence upon conviction of DUL She told the story presented her research findings to the Legislature. She told of the suffering of the families and victims caused by drunk drivers.

In 1982, the bill passed in Florida thanks to the echoing voice of Ms. Wiley.

The organization's principal goal is to assist the victims and their families in any way it can.

The organization also sponsors programs at schools, such as 'Project Graduation'' which provided booze-free parties for graduates. Another MADD effort is the Designated Driver Program. It is an effort to encourage groups that go out drinking to designate one person who will not drink during the evening and drive the rest home.

MADD also uses presentations. billboards, and public events to increase public awareness of the problem of drunk driving.

Because of MADD's successful efforts to prevent needless deaths due to drinking, Mrs. Wiley said she cannot understand why receiving financial support from the community is becoming so difficult.

"It's an uphill battle to raise of her personal tragedy and funds to keep such an important program in our community." she said.

Sophisticated Radio System Coming

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Thrill seekers and newshounds who cavesdrop on the radio transmissions of police and firefighters will be cut out of the action when Seminole County is equipped with a new 800 megahertz radio and microwave system. The system will operate on a level beyond the capabilities of receivers in the hands of the public and press.

The shut-out isn't intentional, Seminole-County Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser said. It's just a side effect of advanced technology, which doesn't mesh with old technology. A receiver compatible with the new $5.5 million system would cost about $4,000, he said.

Increased clarity and greater channel availability are major advantages of the system, to be located at the county's Five Points complex. The system will link, with the aid of a 280-foot tower and satellites dishes stationed throughout Seminole, all county communication services, Kaiser said.

The switch in communications systems has been considered for two years, he said.

Not only will sheriff's deputies, firefighters and rescue workers utilize the new system. the county computer and microwave telephone systems will be linked through It. The county commission and all other county services that use any type of radio communications will have space in the 800 system, said John Spolski, spokesman for Seminole County Sheriff John Polk.

Firefighters and rescue workers, who are under Kaiser's direction, will continue to use the existing VHF. 150 megahertz band to make and receive their initial dispatches.

Funds for the 800 megahertz system have been approved by the Seminole County Commission and the Federal Communications Commission has issued the necessary license. The system is expected to be operational within about 18 months and said, for six to 12 months after that his department will continue to dispatch over the old system, using it as a backup until any bugs are worked out of the new one. After that, Spolski said, all sheriff's communications will be through the new system.

NATION IN BRIEF

Soviet Spy Caught 'Red-Handed' In FBI Clandestine Coup

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A high-ranking Soviet military official, caught red-handed trying to dig up secret documents at a "dead drop" in rural Maryland, has been expelled from the United States and will leave Sunday, officials said.

FBI Director William Webster announced Friday that the senior air force officer at the Soviet Embassy, Col. Vladimir Makarovich Izmaylov, had been meeting for months with a U.S. Air Force officer voluntarily working undercover for the FBL

The State Department, which ordered Izmaylov, 43, out of the country, said the Soviet would be leaving the United States Sunday, when the next scheduled Aeroflot flight leaves New York. He was turned over to Soviet Embassy officials late Thursday once his diplomatic immunity was established.

FBI agents approached Izmaylov in secluded woods across the Potomac River from Washington Thursday night while he tried to dig up a stack of documents, said FBI special agent Dana Caro. The Russian claimed to be lost and looking for a fishing spot.

When agents moved to apprehend him, a suprised Izmaylov struggled and swung at the agents, who handcuffed him and confiscated a knife.

The apprehension abruptly halted more than a year of clandestine esplonage activity in which the Soviet military intelligence agency paid the unidentified American officer more than $41,000 - in payments usually buried in milk cartons - for what they thought were U.S. secrets, including plans on President Reagan's prized "Star Wars" space shield, Caro said.

Marathon Phone Talks Continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Settlement of the three-week nationwide walkout against AT&T hinges on the results of around-the-clock negotiations in New Jersey between the company and the striking Communications Workers of America.

The marathon talks continued Friday with both sides expressing optimism.

Although the union and the company reached tentative agreement on a national contract Tuesday, the deal is contingent upon settlement of a thicket of essentially local issues in six sets of talks in New Jersey.

Officials of the union and American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said negotiations were continuing around the clock in the hope of settling the local talks by midnight Saturday.

Senate Whittles Amendments

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate has dropped a limited tax amnesty program from its tax reform bill and is steadily whittling down the glut of amendments lawmakers want to push before they pass the measure next week Plodding through a list of 65 possible changes to the sweeping legislation, the Senate dealt with mostly minor matters Friday, ranging from potash mines to reindeer income. By the time the Senate recessed for the weekend, Finance Committee Chairman Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said 22 of the amendments had been disposed of through votes or by being withdrawn. He said he expected most of the others would not be offered when the Senate returns to work Monday. In the most significant actions of the day, the Senate agreed to strike from the bill a limited tax amnesty program, and it voted to place in the measure a special deduction for severely handlcapped workers - an item sponsored by Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, a disabled World War II veteran.

Drug Firms Recalls All Capsules

SEATTLE (UPI) - Two Seattle-area deaths linked to evanide-laced Extra-Strength Excedrin and the discovery of a third case of apparent tampering with an Excedrin container has prompted manufacturer Bristol-Myers to withdraw all of its over-the-counter capsule medications.

Bristol-Myers, one of the nation's largest pharmaceutical manufacturers, said it will also stop making capsules of Datril, Comtrex and Bufferin.

The New York company earlier this week pulled Excedrin capsules off the market following announcements that two Auburn. Wash., residents, bank manager Sue Snow, 40, and state maintenance worker Bruce Nickell, 52, died of cyanide poisoning. Snow died June 11: Nickell collapsed June 5.

The two appeared to be the victims of a random, although "localized," poisoning of Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules, a U.S. Food and Drug Administration official said.

American Model Found Guilty

MILAN, Italy (UPI) - Terry Broome, an American model who came to Italy seeking fame and fortune, faces a 14-year prison term for the slaying of a playboy who provoked her with insults about her sex life.

An Assize court Friday found Broome, 28, guilty of voluntary homicide - the equivalent of second degree murder in the United States - in the death of Sergio DAlessio, son of a top Italian horse-breeder. She was sentenced to 14 years in prison.

The trial had been front-page news in many Italy newspapers for weeks.

Broome pleaded guilty, confessing she shot the 40-year-old D'Alessio with her boyfriend's .38 caliber pistol June 26, 1984, while trying to convince him to stop insulting her in public by claiming she took part in an orgy.

Glory In Stone

A Monumental Era Comes To Close

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Mil- Tripolitan War, and it was fiitons of people will pause on the weekend of July Fourth to commemorate the 100th birthday of the Statue of Liberty. And it's well they should. The lady with the lamp in New York Harbor represents the best intentions, ct cetera, ct cetera, of a grand nation, and so forth and so on.

But the statue also represents something that is not so readily evident or repeatedly belabored on the occasion of this centenniat celebration. She is a symbol as well of a day when Americans did not need anniversaries or special circumstances to get out and glory in their monuments.

The nation cbbs and flows on the proposition of memorials. And the tide is generally low right now. Lady Liberty was crected at a time when the nation put stock in the preservation of heroics in metal; if the French had walted until today to make the presentation. this country might not even accept.

That's a personal opinion. But It's rooted in a considered conclusion. I once wrote a book about a statue in Washington. In which the subject was thoroughly researched. The nation used to build monuments for everything from gods to government, but that, I submit, is the past.

The past goes back to the colonies in this case. The people who came from Europe brought with them ancient traditions of honoring the lords. The English put up several statues of King George III, for example, including a gilded representation in New York City that was made entirely of lead.

Then the Revolution took place. The Manhattan statue of the king was melted down and recast into 40,000 rounds of ammunition for the Continental Army. America suddenly had tavorites of its own, and monuments were constructed for George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and others of local reputation.

The monuments did not yet proliferate, however. The new republic was too poor and fragmented to promote extrava-nanced privately by the participants.

Still, the capital was soon to generate a growth industry in this kind of thing. And it started with the peace and prosperity that followed the War of 1812. The Southern city began to be connected to the rest of the Union by railroads and canals. and the government used statues to mark a new era of nationalism.

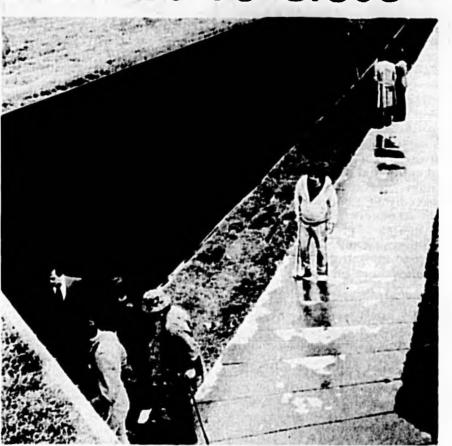

It used George Washington again, and the rest of the founders. And it continued to concentrate on revolutionary statesmen until the Civil War created a different kind of idol. Veterans groups lobbied for the recognition of the military then. and the same thing has happened after every war since.

The result is that there are presently more open-air monuments to military leaders in Washington (27) than there are to presidents (10), and the statue of liberty on the Potomac may be said to be the lwo Jima Memorial, Ulysses S. Grant is thus honored, as are Winfield Scott and Thaddeus Kosciusko.

But there is nothing for Dwight Elsenhower or Douglas MacArthur or George Patton. Washington is not quick to immortalize its captains anymore, military or whatever. The Vietnam memorial is the last monument of consequence to be built in the capital, and it does not exactly pay homage to leadership.

One reason for this is that the city is running out of space for dead heroes. The circles and squares here have by and large been taken by 400 outdoor sculptures. The guess is that fewer than 50 central spots are still vacant, and there is an argument as to how they can most properly be filled.

Some think that people would make the most suitable statues for the sites. And there is a long list of nominations. There is a group promoting Martin Luther King Jr., on the one hand, and Congress has already agreed to permit something for Franklin Roosevelt, and a Lebanese-American poet named Kahlil Gibran.

The Vietnam Memorial, above, could be the last monument of consequence to be built in Washington, D.C. The capital is running out of room for such things, and almost any proposal for a new monument is likely to produce controversy.

Suspicious Citrus Areas Inspected In Canker Outbreak

PALMETTO (UPI) - Agricultural researchers should know by Monday whether suspicious lesions found on fruit, leaves and twigs of citrus trees in backyards throughout Anna Maria Island are the result of the dreaded citrus canker.

Suspicious lesions also were found on trees in two yards in south St. Petersburg.

Ernie Collins, training and information specialist with the state Department of Agriculture, said officials anticipate sending inspectors into the mainland areas of Manatee County Monday to determine if the highly contagious disease may have spread there.

Collins said the suspect trees include young trees and old trees and include all varieties of citrus, including grapefruit, sweet oranges, key limes, navels and tangelos.

Historical Society To Elect Officers

The newly formed Seminole County Historical Society will elect officers Tuesday when it meets at 7:30 p.m. at the Seminole County Agricultural Center auditorium at 4300 Orlando Drive, Sanford.

Cecil Tucker, a member of the Seminole County Historical Commission, has chaired the committee to get the historical group organized as a complement to the commission. Tucker said there are only 10 members named by the county commissioners to the historical commission, but the society will offer an opportunity for a broader spectrum of the community to become involved.

Membership is open to anyone interested in learning more about the county's history or helping to preserve its heritage. "We want to involve as many as possible," Tucker said, "oldtimers as well as newcomers. those who want to take an active part and those who are only able to show their support through their membership and fees."

Tucker said about 50 persons have already joined the society. Those joining at or before the meeting will be considered charter members. The annual membership fees have been set as follows: regular. $10: family, $15: student, $5: patron, $50; and life, $200 (one time payment).

Fees can be paid at the Seminole County Historical Museum, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Monday through Friday, or mailed to the museum at 4318 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford, Fla., 32771.

Checks should be made out to the Seminole County Historical Society.

Fishing Captains Held In Old Jail

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) -Three Florida fishing boat captains face at least another week in a 19th century Caribbean jail despite what their attorney calls a legal victory.

Stanley John claimed the victory Thursday after the St. Vincent Supreme Court ordered the prison superintendent to come to court next Thursday to explain why he is keeping the men locked up.

Harry Burgess of Fort Lauderdale, Colin Baldwin of Fort Pierce, Fla., and Mike Traynham of Atlanta have been in the 100-year-old stone prison in Kingstown, St. Vincent, since last Friday. Their fishing boats were seized June 3 and a fine of $200,000 was demanded for members were allowed to leave fishing in foreign waters.

GWTW Anniversary Gets Cold Shoulder In Atlanta

By Cindy McAfee

ATLANTA (UPI) - The city scandalized by Scarlett O'Hara, who drank with Yankees and married a swashbuckler named Rhett Butler in Gone with the Wind, is giving the cold shoulder to the 50th anniversary of her story.

Visitors worldwide clamor to see Tara and get a true taste of Dixie when they visit Atlanta.

But big Southern shindigs to celebrate the June 30 anniversary of Margaret Mitchell's novel about the Old South - a costume ball, barbcques and plantation tours - will be left to Scarlett's tiny hometown of Jonesboro, 30 miles south of the citv.

Atlanta, now a glass and steel metropolis that is proud of its role as the leader of the New South. will offer token tours, lectures, exhibits, a showing of Gone with the Wind and the presentation of a 1-cent Mitchell stamp.

Atlanta's black administration and its major corporations gave little support to the idea of an anniversary celebration, officials said.

"A lot of people say the book gives the wrong idea about the South." John Ott. director of the Atlanta Historic Society, said of the novel translated into 25 languages, sold in 37 countries and ranked as the second most popular book in the world, next to the Bible.

"They say the South isn't really like that," he said. "They say the more you reinforce 'Gone with the Wind,' the more you reinforce that stereotype."

The city's black administration did not try to squeich a Gone with the Wind celebration. "but there was no effort on the part of the black community to really promote it, either," Ott said.

'Maybe we don't want to seem like we are looking back too far." said Karin Koester of the state tourism office. "We don't want to offend too many prominent politicians by capitalizing on an era that had a dark side."

Earl Shinhoster, regional director for the NAACP, said black leaders did not try to stop a Gone with the Wind celebration.

"But I don't think it will be a great tragedy, a loss to the South, if that memory slips away to obscurity," he said. "The whole 'Gone with the Wind' idea should remain gone with the wind, I don't think we should expend any unnecessary efforts to try to preserve an idea whose time has come and gone."

Atlanta anniversary organizers said the city's corporations were tight-fisted this year - Coca-Cola saved its money for its 100th anniversary extravaganza and the others gave to Dr. Martin Luther King's first national holiday celebration.

"Nobody gave us any money." said Herb Bridges, chairman of the group trying to arrange an anniversary shindig in Atlanta. "The city hasn't done anything."

Bridges said his group is happy it was able to arrange exhibits, tours and lectures without funding. Tours will show visitors landmarks like the Georgia Pacific building, built on the site of Locw's Grand Theater, where the movie premiered. Bridges and other Gone with the Wind experts will lecture.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Syrian Officers Escort Freed French Hostages To Damascus

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Two French hostages who were released unharmed by their kidnappers after three months in captivity left for Damascus Saturday apparently without the knowledge of the French ambassador.

Journalists stalking the seaside Beaurivage hotel saw French Ambassador Christian Graef arrive at the hotel 15 minutes after they were informed by Syrian observers that television journalists Philippe Rochot and George Hansen had left by the back door, escorted by Syrian officers.

Rochot and Hansen had told journalists from their 2nd floor hotel balcony they would leave for Damascus after breakfast and from there to France.

However, word of their departure came from Syrian observers stationed at the Beaurivage to supervise a cease-fire between Shilte Amal militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas.

Ambassador Graef, apparently uninformed of the scheduled departure, left the hotel immediately after finding out they had left. He refused to answer questions.

Broad Police Powers Approved

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - The President's Council has endorsed two internal security measures that were rejected by Parliament last week, a rejection that precipitated the nationwide State of Emergency.

Approval came late Friday after day-long debates in the council, which steps in when legislation becomes deadlocked in the tricameral Parliament.

The council vote, by delegates from all three houses, led to speculation in Cape Town that the State of Emergency might be lifted as soon as the bills become law.

Since the nationwide state of emergency was declared 10 days ago, the number of deaths and the incidents of violence has steadily decreased, according to government figures. Although 54 people have died, it says the figures show the emergency measures are effective.

President Pieter W. Botha, in his first public appearance since the emergency was declared, rebuked the West for losing its "common sense" whenever South Africa and apartheid were mentioned.

(This report was written subject to South African government restrictions on the media.)

Police Prevent Witches' Invasion

LONDON (UPI) - A police cordon around Stonehenge Saturday prevented a feared invasion by sun worshippers and hippies hoping to watch the first sunrise of summer from the center of the mystical, prehistoric stone circle.

Instead, about 50 white-robed Druids and 100 hipples were allowed to hold sunrise ceremonies on a road near the monument under the watchful eyes of police.

The Druids burned incense and blew a ceremonial horn as the sun rose over Salisbury plain at the start of the longest day of the year.

May 8 arrest, according to court records

Investigators said Friday it is too soon to know if alcohol was involved in Thursday's accident.

Also injured in the accident were Ms. Weld's younger daughter, Natalie Weld, 7, and Natalie's aunt, Ms. Wright, 41, of 610 Camellia St., Sanford. Natalie Weld was treated and released from CFRH and Mrs. Wright was in the hospital in satisfactory condition with a broken chest bone.

While a final accident reportwill not be completed until nextweek, a preliminary report indicates a Datsun truck drivensouthbound on U.S. Highway-17-92 by McGuire crossed themedian just south of 27th Streetand ran into the northbound-Isuzu driven by Ms. Wright.

Bomb Explodes On Election Eve

MADRID (UPI) - A bomb hidden in the garden of a military housing complex exploded early today on the eve of general elections, causing damage but no injuries, authorities said.

Police said the blast appeared to be the work of the Basque separatist group ETA, which killed two army officers and their driver in a machine-gun ambush Tuesday in Madrid.

Officials have stepped up security throughout Spain to prevent terrorism from disrupting Sunday's voting. The ruling Socialists are expected to win.

British Lambs Found Radioactive

LONDON (UPI) - The government has banned the movement and slaughter of sheep in some parts of England and Wales because lambs in the areas were found to have higher than normal levels of radioactivity from the Chernobyl disaster.

Agriculture Minister Michael Joplin said Friday in a statement to the House of Commons the ban would stay in effect for 21 days.

He said the levels of radioactive Caesium detected in lambs not yet ready for market in the southwest Cumbria area and north Wales were higher than the national norm.

The city Scarlett knew, burned to the ground by Union General William Sherman in 1864 and then rebuilt, has disappeared under skyscrapers.

Five Points, where Scarlett nursed injured soldiers, is the site of the main subway station and Macy's Department Store. Peachtree Street, where she lived with her first husband Charles Hamilton's Aunt Pittypat, is lined with office buildings.

But Jonesboro, about 30 miles south in Clayton County, is still little more than the depot where Scarlett left Tara for Atlanta at the outbreak of the Civil War. Its chamber of commerce is playing up the anniversary in hopes of pulling Florida-bound tourists off nearby Interstate 75.

The town has planned a nine-day celebration starting with a June 21 black tie and costume ball, followed by train trips from Atlanta during the week. It will end with picnics and tours of Stately Oaks, a working antebellum mansion, and other plantation houses from June 27-29.

Clayton County is fighting with nearby Coweta County for the right to build a monument to Tara and Mitchell - a project Mitchell's brother opposed in his lifetime - and for Talmadge's Fitzgerald homeplace, the inspiration for Tara. Jonesboro will use the profits from its costume ball to bolster its Tara coffers.

Anyone who could pay $45 was invited to the ball. Jonesboro has mailed more than 1.500 invitations to Georgia leaders and antebellum enthusiasts, including one to Young, said project spokesman J.D. Coleman.

But planners of the costume ball recognized there could be no glorification of the Old South and the slavery it was built on.

"We will have a minimum of Confederate flags," Coleman said. "We are celebrating the anniversary of the book, a fantasy novel, rather than glorifying the Confederacy and its peculiar institution.

Bias Demise 'Suspicious;' Hunt Grows

COLLEGE PARK. Md. (UPI) -Police, calling the death of former Maryland basketball star Len Blas "suspicious," are widening the investigation into his death.

Terrapins coach Charles "Lefty" Driesell said Friday investigators told him Blas, who had a reputation of being drugfree, had apparently used cocaine shortly before he died. "From what I understood from the police there was a trace of cocaine in his urine." Driesell said on ABC's "Good Morning America" news show, "But again, if that's the case, it's completely out of character for Leonard Bias. I would be completely shocked." Prince George's County police spokesman Bob Law said police 'are listing (the Bias case) as a suspicious douth. "Here's a man in perfect physical condition and everybody you talked to and everybody who knows him verifies he's never been involved in drugs." Law said. "For a person in that kind of condition to die is suspicious." Bias, 22, of Landover, died after suffering an apparent cardiae arrest Thursday morning. The world champion Boston Celtics had selected the Terrapins star second overall in Tuesday's NBA draft. In another development, Bias's agent. Lee Fentress of Washington-based Advantage International, told United Press International Bias took out a large disability and accidental death insurance policy with Lloyd's of London last August.

Amateur Coaches Knock On Wood, Blast Aluminum

NEW YORK (UPI) - National League batting champion Tony Gwynn hit with an aluminum bat in college and says it doesn't compare aesthetically.

"There's nothing like the sound of a well-hit ball off wood," the San Diego right-fielder says. "With aluminum there's that 'ping.' With wood, it's crack! Hove that.'

So, apparently, do many amateur baseball coaches.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has decided to experiment with wood bats in league games next season, the junior colleges are looking for alternatives to aluminum after their championship tournament averaged more than 18 runs. per game this season and the Cape Cod League, a summer circuit for college players, banned aluminum in 1985.

Amateur baseball teams have made the switch from wood over the last 15 years or so for economic reasons. Wood bats often break; aluminum ones do not. Using aluminum bats can save a colege team more than $10,000 per year.

Nevertheless, some college coaches are willing to experiment with the past to bring down scoring and make their players better pure hitters.

The eight-teams in the ACC will experiment with wood bats during their 20-game schedules next fall and coaches will then decide whether to use wood exclusively in conference games next spring. Rawlings will provide each team with a supply of experimental, supposedly more durable, "quarter-grain" wood bats, says Clemson coach Bill Wilhelm.

Baseball

"The boys are the ones being cheated by using aluminum," Wilhelm says. "They lose appreciation for the sweet spot on the bat.

Wilhelm cites statistics from the Cape Cod league that apparently link aluminum with offense. With wood bats in 1985, the league batting average was down 20 points, carned run averages dropped 18 percent and home runs were down 56 percent.

Major league hitters who swung alumimum bats in college say it is easier to hit a variety of pitches with power with an aluminum bat.

"In college, I used to love to hit sliders." says the left-handed hitting Gwynn, who played at San Diego State. "I didn't have to worry about breaking a bat. They could throw me fastballs inside all day long and I could fight them off and hit them to left and hit them hard to left."

San Diego left fielder Kevin McReynolds, who starred at Arkansas, says the transition to wood in the pros made him more conscious of his abilities #### at the plate.

"You're more aware of what your strike zone is," McReynolds says. "You learn the areas where you can drive the ball and the areas where you lay off a pitch."

Says Pittsburgh's Johnny Ray, a .300 hitter and another Arkansas alumnus: "Without a doubt, aluminum can add 40, 50, 60 points to your average.

The word on aluminum in the majors is not all negative. Ray says colleges should use wood if they can allord it, but recommends younger players learn with aluminum. Ben Hines, hitting istructor for the Los Angeles Dodgers, also says aluminum is a good teaching tool.

"It teaches aggressiveness and con-Indence at the plate." Hines says. "One of the things you want to do with a young player is develop confidence. If a young player gets a bat with enough strength it'll be too heavy for him. A light bat might not be strong enough to allow him to hit with power."

Hines worked with several curent major leaguers in college.

"I don't think aluminum hurt Kevin McReynolds' or Oddibe McDowell's or Tim Wallach's transition to the major leagues," he says. "Look at the large number of outstanding young hitters like Canseco, Joyner and Puckett - all of these kids used aluminum bats in amateur baseball and they all are great voung hitters."

Fentress would not comment Friday on the amount of the policy, although one source estimated it was valued at more than $1 million.

Bias bought the policy after he decided to return to school for his senior year rather than turning pro.

there should be no reason that the fact the death is drugrelated, if it is, would affect the pavoff." said Rob Bier, a spokesman for the American Council of Life Insurance in Washington, "I have never heard of a case that the fact that the death was drug related affected the payoff."

Bias also took out additional insurance coverage in May after signing with Advantage. Fentress said.

Driesell's disclosure came amid reports that police investigators and doctors have evidence Blas used cocaine in the hours preceding his collapse in his Washington Hall dormitory, and speculation that the drug may have contributed to his death.

But Law denied authorities are focusing their probe on the cocaine allegations.

"We are not investigating the possibility of drugs." Law said. "We cannot go on the alleged findings of a local hospital, we can only go on the report of the state medical examiner."

County detective Michael Ferriter told The Washington Post that police, who cordoned off Bias's dormitory all day Thursday, found no evidence of drugs in the suite he shared with teammates.

No information will be released for about a week to 10 days on Thursday's autopsy while toxicological and tissue tests are completed, said chief state medical examiner Dr. John Smialek in Baltimore.

A university spokesman said funeral services for Bias are scheduled for Monday.

There will be a small, private ceremony for close friends and family at 10:30 a.m. EDT at the school's Memorial Chapel while a public ceremony will be held at 7 p.m. in Cole Field House, with Driesell giving the eulogy.

For the second straight day, state flags on campus were flown half staff Friday.

Sanford Umpires Get 'Thumbs Up' For Superb City Series

Somewhere along the line, Rodney Dangerfield was probably a Little League umpire. Why else would he go around saying, "I don't get no respect."

Unipiring in the youth leagues is a tough jobbut the crew that worked last week's Sanford City Championship Series called the series about as well as it can be done.

The Little Major League umpiring trio included Bob Meyers, Tom Nye and Chris Miller.

Meyers, the veteran of the crew, has been a fixture in Sanford baseball for many years and has always been regarded as a fair umpire who knows the rules. Mevers worked behind the plate in the opening game of the City Series and at third base in game two.

Meyers also isn't one to put up with antics from coaches as was evident a few years back at a district tournament when he thumbed Grovcland's John "The Terrible" Reagan.

Before becoming an umpire. Nye was a coach in the Little Major League. Nye worked behind in the plate in the second game of the series and at first base the opening game and he got more compliments for a job well done than complaints of "Are you blind, ump?"

Miller is the newcomer of the umpiring trio and one of the first, if not the first, female umpires ever in Sanford. Miller was involved in a number of close calls during the series and was not once second-guessed by a manager, player or fan. One thing that makes the job of umpire in

Sanford a little easier than in other areas is this city's fans are always supportive and rarely unruly. Cardinal Industries kept the Sanford City

Championship trophy in the American League for the third year in a row. In 1984, Adcock Roofing won the championship while Sun Bank won the erown in 1985. Sun Bank's crown was tarnished however, when it was later learned the team played with two players who were too old.

The last time the National League won the series outright was in 1983 when Poppa Jay's won its second consecutive title.

For Sunniland, it was the second time in the last three years it has won the National League but lost the series.

Cardinal Industries' pitching was exceptional in the two-game sweep as Anthony "Redman" Roberts tossed a two-hitter in Monday's 2-1 victory and Britt Henderson fired a three-hitter in Wednesday's 10-6 win. The Cardinal duo gave up just two earned runs in the series for a 1.00 carned run average. They also combined for 16 strikeouts and only nine walks.

The 1986 series was also one of the best

Report: Bo To Forego Bucs, Sign With Royals

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) -Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson will announce Saturday he is shunning professional football to sign with the Kansas City Royals, according to a published report.

The Tampa Tribune reported in its early Saturday editions Jackson will spurn the Tampa Bay Buccancers' five-year. $7 million offer and accept a 5-year, $5-million dollar baseball contract from the World Series Champion Royals.

Jackson flew from Tuscaloosa to Memphis. Tenn.. site of the Royals' AA affiliate. Friday where he met with Royals owners Ewing Kaufman and Avron Fogelman, and team general manager John Schuerholz. He will announce his intentions in a 1 p.m. EDT news conference in the Birmingham Hilton Hotel.

Jackson, a two-time All-American running back, struggled through his senior season in baseball and lost his eligibility midway through the season

Brown, Giants BASEBALL ROUNDUP Chill Houston

United Press International

Candlestick Park has been known to turn into an icebox during baseball games and it would be understandable if Giants third baseman Chris Brown mistook this for being fall instead of summer.

To Brown. October was definitely in the air for Friday night's game against the division-leading Houston Astros.

We thought this first game was the most important," Brown said after the Giants defeated Houston 3-1 in the first game of their four-game weekend series. "We needed to pull to within a game and a half to give us momentum going into the remaining games. Everyone wanted to go out and play this game like it was the last game of the World Series.

The Giants last seriously contended for an NL West title in 1982 when they battled down to the wire with the Braves and Dodgers, only to finish third.

Vida Blue and Juan Berenguer combined to pitch a two-hitter against the Astros. Blue, who notched his 204th career victory, improved his season record to 5-3 by allowing only two hits in seven innings. Berenguer pitched two hitless innings for his second save of the season. He struck out three and walked one.

Houston starter Bob Knepper, who is 2-3 with a no decision in his last six starts, pitched seven innings and fell to 10-5.

In other NL games, Cincinnati swept a pair from Atlanta. 6-4 and 8-5. New York pounded Chicago 10-3. Montreal beat Pittsburgh 7-2. Philadelphia trounced St. Louis 9-2 and San Diego edged Los Angeles 5-4.

Reds 6-8. Braves 4-5

At Cincinnati, Pete Rose went 3-for-5 while Bill Gullickson and John Franco combined on a nine-hitter in the second game. In the opener, Buddy Bell went 3-for-4 and drove in three runs to lead the Reds.

Mets 10, Cubs 3

At New York, Keith Hernandez homered to break a 2-2 tie and Gary Carter hit a three-run homer to cap a six-run seventh inning and power the Mets behind the combined six-hit pitching of Sid Fernandez, 8-2, and Roger McDowell. Scott Sanderson, 3-5, was the loser.

Twins Catch Hrbek Habit, Slug Indians

Kent Hrbek

United Press International

The American League West could wind up a Twin-killing if Minnesota players catch Kent Hrbck's hot streak.

Tom Brunansky, Tim Laudner, Randy Bush and Ron Washington matched Hrbek with a homer apiece Friday night, lifting the Twins to a 9-8 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Hrbek was 3-for-5 in the game, including a two-run double and his 17th home run of the season. The homer came in the fifth inning. following Washington's solo blast, his second, and preceded Brunansky's clout, his 17th. The five-homer barrage raised the Twins' major league-leading total to 105.

Hrbek, fourth in the American League in hitting with a .343 average, now has five homers in his last 13 games and is batting .547 (29-for-53) over that stretch.

"I think it's contagious but then this is the way everybody's played all year," Hrbek said. "You try not to really think about it. You try to think about what you're doing right. ## Expos Top Pirates, Raines Hurts Wrist

MONTREAL (UPI) - Bob McClure and George Wright, recently acquired by the Montreal Expos. both adapted to the National League with trouble.

McClure threw three strong innings of relief to earn his first NL save and Wright, playing in only his second game with Montreal, smashed a double and scored a run Friday, helping the Expos to 7.2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"That's why we got McClure and Wright," Montreal manager Buck Rodgers said. "We knew they would contribute and help us out. Bob helps us in the bullpen where he is strong while Wright knows how to swing the bat."

Wright came over from the Texas Rangers Wednesday.

"Over there I wasn't getting a chance to play any more." Wright said. "But I know I can help Montreal

Said McClure, who was obtained from the Milwaukee Brewers two weeks ago: "It feels great to contribute. I sure was well rested so the three innings seemed like nothing. I was pumped up at the end."

Hubie Brooks went 4-for-4 with two RBI and Tim Raines also drove home two runs to spark the Expos.

Andy McGaffigan, 5-2, pitched six innings for the victory.

"I feel if I can go six or seven innings and allow three runs or less we are going to win." McGaffigan said. "I sure am happy with five victories at this stage of the season."

Montreal jumped on Pirates starter Bob Walk. 2-4, for two runs in the first inning. Vance Law walked and scored from first on Raines' double off the left field wall. Brooks followed with a single up the middle to make it 2-0.

Walk, making only his second start of the season, gave up two more runs in the third. Mitch Webster led off with a walk and Law and Raines followed with singles making the score 3.0. Raines was thrown out at second trying to stretch his hit to a double and he sprained his left wrist on the play and had to leave the game. Brooks added an RBI scoring single to increase the margin to 4-0.

Wright collected his first hit as an Expo when he doubled to lead of the fifth. He advanced to third on a wild pitch by Walk and scored on Mike Fitzgerald's single making the score 5-0.

Tony Pena led off the fifth with his fourth homer and Pittsburgh added another run that inning when Barry Bonds singled home Rafael Belliard.

Montreal added two runs in the eighth on an RBI single by Andres Galarraga and an RBI double by Fitzgerald.

Yankees 10, Blue Jays8

At Toronto, Rickey Henderson doubled home Mike Pagliarulo with the winning run in the 10th inning to lift the Yankees, who had blown an 8-2 lead in the ninth inning. Brian Fisher, 3-3, earned the victory in relief of Dave Righetti, who yielded a game-tying grand slam to George Bell in the ninth.

Orioles 14, Red Sox 3

At Boston, Tom O'Malley had three hits and five RBI to help Mike Boddicker become the American League's second 10-game winner. Boddicker, 10-1, was backed by a 20-hit attack. Mike Brown, 4-4, was the loser.

Mariners 5, White Sox 3

At Chicago, Mark Langston combined with two relievers to five-hit the White Sox and spoil the Chicago managerial debut of interim skipper Doug Rader, who was named earlier in the day after Tony LaRussa was fired. Langston improved to 7.5. White Sox starter Tom Seaver dropped to 2.6.

Brewers 1, Tigers 0

At Milwaukee, Ben Oglivie's second-inning single knocked in the game's only run to boost the Brewers and give Tim Leary, 6-5, his first major-league shutout. Tigers starter Walt Terrell. 6-5, took the loss despite yielding only four hits in eight innings.

Rangers 10, A's 7

At Arlington, Texas, Gary Ward and Larry Parrish keyed a nine-run second inning with home runs to spark the Rangers. The A's have lost 12 straight games on the road, a club record. Bobby Witt, 4-5 struck out nine en route to victory. Greg Harris earned his 13th save. Chris Codiroli, 5-8, was the loser.

Angels 6, Royals 2

At Kansas City, Mo., Rupert Jones hit a solo home run and two-run triple to pace the Angels. Ron Romanick, 4-5, pitched eight-hit ball over seven-plus innings to corral the victory. Royals starter Dennis Leonard, 6-6, was tagged with the defeat.

FREGOSI HEADS WHITE SOX LIST

CHICAGO (UPI) - Former California Angels manager Jim Fregosi heads the list of candidates to replace Tony LaRussa as skipper of the Chicago White Sox.

LaRussa, who survived a threatened firing in mid-May. Friday was released by Chicago's vice president of baseball operations Ken Harrelson.

Fregosi, currently managing the Louisville Redbirds - the Cardinals' Triple A affiliate in the American Association, had been contacted by Harrelson in May when the first-year executive openly shopped for a new manager.

Fregosl said Friday he had not been contacted by the White Sox.

"I would have to be able to have a good working relationship with the people in the organization, he said.

Fregosi also said he would ask for a multi-year contract, rather than the one-year deal the White Sox usually offer.

PORTS IN BRIEF

MVP Anthony Catches 69-Yard Scoring Toss, North Tumbles

North MVP Terry Anthony caught two passes for 87 yards, including a 69-yarder for a touchdown, but the South prevailed, 21-14, in the Florida Athletic Coaches Association North-South All-Star Football Game Friday night before 3.500 fans at Bradenton Southeast High School.

Anthony, who played at Daytona Beach Mainland High School, took a pass from Crestview's Dean Mason and sped 69 yards down the sideline for quick North lead.

The South, though, came back with three consecutive scores. Fort Myers quarterback Mike McQuagge hit St. Pete Lakewood widcout Pat Terrell for a 44-yard TD. Manatee's Al Clark scored on a 14-yard burst and Browning Nagles ran 16 yards for a third-quarter score.

The North raffied on a 14-yard halfback touchdown pass from Wildwood's Lorenzo Fields to Frostproof's Alvin Harper, but a Terrell interception with two minutes left secured the South's win.

Terrell, headed for Notre Dame, was the South's MVP.

Amritraj Moves Into Prix Final

BRISTOL, England (UPI) - Vijay Amritraj of India moved into his first Grand Prix final in two years by defeating Australian newcomer Mark Woodforde, 6-4, 6-1. Friday in the $126,000 Bristol Trophy.

Amritraj will face Henri Leconte of France in Saturday's tinal. Leconte blasted American Bud Schultz 6-3, 6-0 in just 49 minutes to advance.

Asked if it was a surprise to win. Amritraj said, "It certainly was to me."

Amritraj, who has spent a lot of his time in California recently working on a television series, said he felt in great shape,

"When I play as good as I did today it doesn't matter whether I am against McEnroe or Woodforde." he said. "They will have to be at their best to beat me."

Woodforde, from Adelaide, has won one Grand Prix event this year in Auckland, New Zealand, but his relative mexperience showed.

Martina Masters Kohde-Kilsch

EASTBOURNE, England (UPI) - Martina Navratilova crutsed to a 6-2, 6-0 victory over an aching Claudia Kohde-Kilsch Friday to reach the final of the $200,000 Eastbourne Championships.

In a similarly one-sided affair. Helena Sukova captured the other semifinal from Robin White, 6-0, 6-2, to set up a repeat of the 1985 final.

Navratilova defeated Sukova, 6-4, 6-3, last year to capture the Eastbourne title for the fourth straight year and fifth time overall. In all of the five years that Navratilova won here she went on to a Wimbledon singles title

The last time Navratilova and Sukova played was in the semifinals of the French Open, and Sukova came within three points of winning in the second set tie-break before Navratilova won in three sets. Overall, Navratilova leads the series 13-1

Lewis Runs Wind-Aided 9.91

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) - Carl Lewis says he now best serves the sport of track and field by escalating the performances of his opponents.

Lewis says when he is at his best, as he the winner - 28-51-2. was Friday when he captured the 100-meter dash and long jump at The Athletics' Congress national championship meet. competitors excel to their limits.

The last time Lewis dominated competition like he did Friday was during the 1984 Olympics when he won two sprints, the long jump and anchored the winning sprint relay. team, accumulating four gold medals.

In the 100-meter dash Friday, NCAA champion Lee McRae of Pittsburgh led for 90 meters until Lewis exploded past him for the victory. The 9.91 clocking topped Calvin Smith's world record, but was wind-aided.

"I controlled that race for 90 meters and I know now that I just have to maintain my form a little longer." McRae said. "I controlled it until the last 10 meters when 1 lost my concentration and king Carl took over."

Fifteen minutes later, Lewis, whose 28-feet-10 1-2 long jump is second only to Bob Beamon's world-record of 29-2, needed his first two attempts to adjust from the sprint to the long jump. On his third leap, he safled 27-4 3-4. His fourth effort produced

Track/Field

"I finally got into the flow," he said. Larry Myricks, who jumped 28 feet a month ago, then sailed 27-9 1-2. Mike Conley, who owns the second-best triple jump ever. responded with a jump of 28-3 3-4.

"When I perform well, others respond." Lewis said. "I lift the level of competition. I knew Mike and Larry could go 28 feet, so 1 couldn't be conservative despite that fact I was tired from running the sprints. Switching in 15 minutes from the sprints to the long jump is tough, but I'm here for the competition. Hove it."

Said Conley: "For the first time, I really competed with Carl. I'm just glad I could give the fans something else to look at besides Carl. I am now confident I can go as far as Carl."

Lewis said he welcomes the competition.

"Records don't mean a thing." he said. 'We're all here for the competiton, and the better it is, the better I will be."

Lewis will try Saturday to complete his first triple since the Olympics with the finals of the 200-meter dash.

The women's 100-meter dash produced the first time three women have finished under 11 seconds in the same race.

Long Beach's Pam Marshall exploded in the last 10 meters to hand Olympic champion Evelyn Ashford, who is still recovering from giving birth last year, an unexpected loss. Marshall won in 10.80, just shy of Ashford's world record 10.76. Alice Brown finished at 10.84, while Ashford was third at 10.85.

"I never thought I could beat Evelyn and now I've finally done it." Marshall said. "It feels great. I'm so excited."

Greg Foster of Los Angeles won the 110-meter high hurdles in 13.26 seconds. running away from runnerup Keith Talley over the last 30 yards. Talley, a 22-year-old from Indianapolis, was timed in 13.43, Benita Fitzgerald-Brown of Austin, Texas, upset Stephanic Hightower of Columbus. Ohio, in the women's hurdles. Fitzgerald-Brown won in a wind-aided 12.83, Hightower finished in 12.90.

The men's shot put went to John Brenner of Fullerton, Calif., winning at 69-feet-2.

Former Lyman High star Schowonda Williams was one of the top qualifiers in the 400-meter hurdles and will compete in the finals Saturday.

But a marine angling. couple of years ago, the pace quickened, indeed, charged forth at a gallop. First came tapered braided nylon mono builts welded to knotted mono tippets, followed by level braided nylon butts. Just in the past few days we have been offered tapered braids that come in sections to be looped together, making it possible to build a leader of varying length without tying a single knot - and while wading the middle of a river. And from England, where fly fishing began, we get tapered mono braids that, in the larger salmon sizes, include the tippet. Not only that, you have a choice of a steep taper or a less steep taper, and you can order floaters or sinkers. Simultaneously, manufacturers are making extravagent claims for solid nylon leaders made with newly developed formulas. Catalogs are filled with superlatives that exceed each other from one page to the next. Since the leader is the most critical link between man and fish, it seems that any serious fly fisherman would want to keep abreast of developments. But things are happening so fast it's almost impossible for an angler to sensibly evaluate one of these products before he is confronted with a newer one. Skipping the latest in conventional knotless monofilament leaders, about which great claims are made, I tried the U.S.-made braided butts, tapered

They forgo a butt and simply attach a class tippet 18 or 24 inches long to the end of the line with a loop-to-loop connection and add a shock tippet when necessary.

Last Parade: Love For Browns Can Never End

(Editor's note: Shortly before his untimely death on June 9, Milton Richman, UPI columnist and former sports editor, wrote a story which now serves as a sort of last testament to his love for baseball. In this final story, the subject was the old St. Louis Browns and a happy experience involving the Brownies more than 30 years ago. Excerpts are included in the following dispatch.)

The date was June 15, 1953 and the St. Louis Browns, who were to lose 100 games that scason, showed up at Yankee Stadium with a string of 14 straight defeats.

The New York Yankees, on the other hand, had won their last 18 in a row. They were always fattening up on the pitching-poor Browns anyway, but were doubly anxious to get at them now because one more victory would enable them to equal their own American League record.

I loved the Browns. Still do, as a matter fact, even though they're long gone and out of existence 32 years now. I know there isn't supposed to be any cheering in the press box and at last inventory no one ever caught me doing anything so gross as that, but I must confess my heart has always belonged to the Browns Same thing with my brother, Arthur, an otherwise loyal employee of the Mets for the past 21 years, and if you construe this as some kind of villainous conflict of interest go ahead and make the most of it.

All Brooklyn went wild when the Dodgers won their first world championship in 1955. My brother and I were way ahead of them. We stayed up all night, got the family dog drunk and had our own private celebration in our own cracker box Bronx apartment 11 years earlier when the Browns won their first pennant ever in 1944.

Naturally, they lost the World Series that year to the Cardinals. All good things have to come to an end sometime, don't they?

We always thought the Yankees considered themselves too high and mighty in those days. At least, the Brownie players would talk to us as kids. Why not? Nobody else would talk to them. They got to like my brother so much, they'd sneak him along on train trips with them.

Anyway, on that day in 1953. I was covering the game as a sports writer for United Press. Marty Marion was player-manager for the Browns. He was the mainstay with the Cardinals before that for 11 years, earning the name "Mr. Shortstop" by being the best one in the whole universe at that position.

The day I came into his office Yankee Stadium that afternoon in 1953 he had a blank lineup card on his desk and was getting ready to fill in the names of the players he wanted to use against the Yankees.

"Here." he said, suddenly handing me the card. "you make it out."

I looked at him thinking he was kidding. But he wasn't. I told him I had no desire whatsoever to make out the Browns' lineup, that it was his job and not mine, and he said he knew all that.

"Go ahead and make it out," he instructed me. "These are the nine guys I wanna play today and you bat 'em any way you like. It's not gonna make a helluva lotta difference where they hit or what position they play. I've tried everything and every way I know and look at us. You realize we've lost our last 14 in a row? And over there down the hall, those damn Yankees have won 18 straight? I'm ready to try anything. Now go ahead and make out the lineup."

I knew all the names: Vic Wertz, Johnny Groth. Clint Courtney. Dick Kokos. Jim Dyck. Billy Hunter. Dick Kryhoski, Don Lenhardt, Les Moss. Bobby Young, Roy Sievers.

"Pick out any nine you like," Marion said. "Except (Duane) Pillette is gonna pitch today because it's his turn and my back isn't bothering me, so I'm gonna play third.'

Finally, I put together a lineup and wonder of all wonders, the Browns won the ballgame and snapped the Yankees' 18-game winning streak and their own 14-game losing slide.

My cup of joy ran over, but you should've seen the way the Browns carried on in their dressing room. You would've thought they had just clinched the pennant again.

I had finished writing my story and was so happy with the way the game turned out that 1 completely forgot I had made out the lineup. None of the Browns' players were aware of it. I don't think they would have cared one way or another had they known. But Marion knew and insisted on giving me the "game ball," the last one in play,

He had caught it himself. Gil MacDougaid had hit a foul pop to him and he had gloved it not far from the Browns' dugout.

I declined the ball, telling Marion I felt he should keep it. If I wouldn't take it, he said, he wanted to give it to my mother, whom he had met, and he autographed it for her. My mother is gone, but the ball still rests in a special place of honor in my home. Right alongside another one given me by George Brett.

The day after the Browns ruined Casey Stengel's day by beating the Yankees, Marion was taking some ground balls at third base during infield practice when his back suddenly acted up so badly he was forced to take himself out of the lineup. He made it out this time, not me.

As it turned out, the game the day before was the last one he ever played and the ball he gave my mother was the last one he ever caught in regulation contest. He never played again.

Marty Marion is still spry and picking up pebbles approaching his 70th birthday. I called him the other day in St. Louis and asked him if he still remembered the time he let me make out his lincup.

"How can I ever forget it?" he said. "You won't let me."

Snow Chief: No Interest In Breeders

By Pohla Smith UPI Sports Writer

Snow Chief's owners have learned it would cost $240,000 jess than they originally thought for a supplemental nomination of their 3-year-old colt in the $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic Nov. 1 but apparently they still aren't interested.

"I kinda doubt we'll be running in it," said Mel Stute, who trains Snow Chief for owners Carl Grinstead and Ben Rochelle, "Mr. Grinstead figured out that if we'd go for the $3 million race, it would cost us $360,000 to enter, and if you win it, you get about a millionfour ($1.4 million). He didn't like those odds." That's basically the same reason Grinnicad gave for skipping the Classic, which could determine the 1986 Horse of the Year, after Snow Chief won the Preakness Stakes May 17. But at that time, Grinstead thought it would cost 20 percent of the purse, or $600,000, to supplement Snow Chief, who is not a Breeders' Cup nominee. Breeders' Cup officials, who read Grinstead's comments. knew that Snow Chief's sire. Reflected Glory, was a Breeders' Cup nominee - a fact which means Snow Chief could be supplemented into any Breeders' Cup race for 12 percent of the total purse, or $360,000, rather than 20 percent. Spokesman Rob Schneider said a Breeders' Cup official telephoned Stute to tell him the news and then sent Grinstead a confirming letter by overnight mail. Schneider said Grinstead has not responded.

McGuigan Sheds Homesickness, Seeks Limelight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) - After his first fight in the United States, Barry McGuigan cared little if he ever returned. When he defends his World Boxing Association featherweight title Monday right, the Irishman's top priority will be an invitation to return.

McGuigan was homesick when he went to Chicago for a July 9, 1983 bout against Lavon McGowan. He won in the first round, and it wasn't soon enough to return to Ireland.

"I am a country boy," McGuigan said. I like the country air. I was also away from my family for the first time for that light.

I wanted to wait to come back. To make a big impact on the people over here, I wanted to wait for a big show."

The McGuigan-Steve Cruz title bout shares top billing on Monday night's closed circuit show with Thomas Hearns and Roberto Duran.

Boxing

McGuigan helped case homesickness this time by bringing his family with him. "I haven't come out here and taken all my friends and family from Ireland to lose," said McGuigan, who spent the past month training with Duran in Palm Springs, Calif. "I want to win and have the people here want me back. I like to think I have a future here. I like to think I've achieved whatever I can achieve back home."

McGuigan is guaranteed $800,000 plus percentages that should bring his purse to $1 million against Cruz. That is nearly triple his highest purse in Great Britain, where he often fights before packed outdoor stadiums on U.S. network television.

McGuigan, 29-1 with 24 knockouts, is more than just a top fighter in Ireland. He is a Catholic married to a Protestant. and a McGuigan bout is one of the fewevents that can bring those hostile groups together in his native land.

Over 60 members of the British press have followed McGuigan to the United States and over 1,000 fans from Ireland are expected. The BBC paid $400,000 for the British television rights, although the bout will start at 2 a.m. Tuesday morning there.

McGuigan's wholesome image is a bigreason for his success as an attraction. His manager, British bookmaker Barney Eastwood, attributes McGulgan's strength and stamina to "good country" fresh air and plenty of buttermilk."

"He doesn't drink and doesn't smoke." Eastwood said, "and I'd be surprised if he ever does.

When McGuigan left for Palm Springs. he said he would end his career with five or six fights in the United States. But promoter Bob Arum recommends he alternate fights between Britain and here in order to keep his strong home base.

McGuigan now says his next fight he must defend against Antonio Esparragoza within 90 days if he wins Monday - will probably be in Britain. If successful, he will return to the United States in October or November.

"I'm gonna retire when I'm 27," he said. "I'm 25 now, but if someone wags a couple of million dollars in front of me I'm gonna have to come out of retirement."

Circumstances could, however, change Grinstead's mind about skipping the race at Santa Anita.

Though Snow Chief, with career earnings of $2.73 million and wins in the Preakness and Jersey Derby, is currently the leading candidate for division champion and Horse of the Year. he faces stiff competition that could get even tougher before the season's dramatic culmination in the Breeders' Cup extravaganza.

Ferdinand ranks close behind Snow Chief already just by virtue of being the only colt to run - and hit the board - in all three legs of the Triple Crown. The handlers of highly-rated Ogygian and Meadowlake, who missed the Crown with injuries. have vowed to campaign all out for the championship. Trainer Woody Stephens has indicated he will do likewise with Belmont winner Danzig Connection.

Should Snow Chief run against - and lose to - any of those colts this summer, his owners might be forced to reconsider the Breeders' Cup Classic in an effort to win the championship and maintain his future value at stud.

Snow Chief, meanwhile, is being pointed toward 1-mile Silver Screen Handicap at Hollywood Park July 5. That race, rather than the Saint Paul Derby Stute originally planned on, will serve as a tuneup to the July 26 Haskell Invitational. In the Haskell Snow Chief will continue his pursuit of a $1 million bonus offered a horse that sweeps that race, the Jersey Derby and the Pegasus Stakes at The Meadowlands Sept. 12.

The 1986 Sanford Junior League season may come to be known as "The Season That Wouldn't End.

Again on Friday, the league's two scheduled games were postponed due to rain. The Junior League games have been rained out three of the last five days. Friday's games were supposed to be the last of the regular season but, beacause of the rainouts, makeup games have been scheduled for Wednesday and Friday of this coming week.

"The Junior League field was so wet from the rain the past week that we couldn't play on them even though it wasn't raining tonight," Sanford Recreation Department's Dean Smith said. "There was water still standing on the field after today's rain. I don't when we're going to be able to make up tonight's games."

While the rain has prolonged the season, it also looks like there will be a Sanford Junior League Championship Series between Knights of Columbus and Moose. It will be pretty tight getting that series in since the Junior League District 4 Tournament, which Sanford is hosting, is scheduled to begin July 10 although Smith said it now may start the 14th.

While the Sanford Junior League season is still going, the Sanford Little American and Little National League all-star teams are preparing for play in the upcoming Sub-District 2 Tournament. The Sub-District Tournament will be played in Tavares beginning Monday, June 30 and will run through Monday, July 7 with the teams off for July 4th.

The Sanford Americans won the sub-district a year ago and advanced to the district where they lost two straight. The Nationals finished second to the Americans in last year's sub-district.

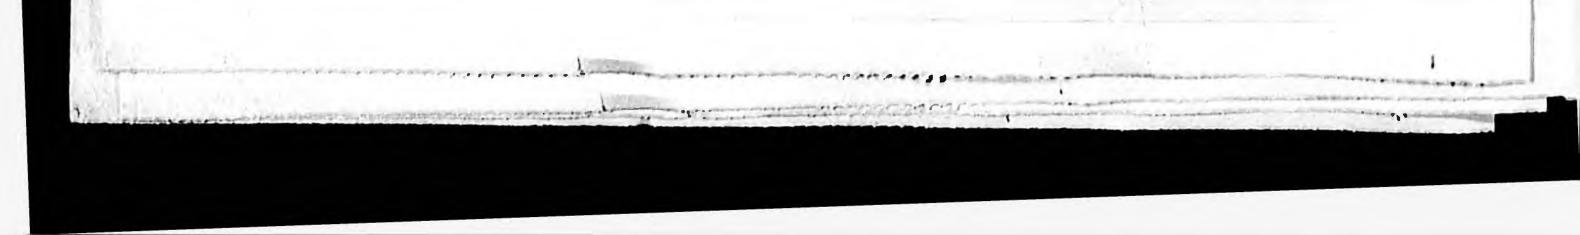

Skip Mitchell, who managed last year's Little Nationals, will be at the helm of that team again while Otis Raines takes over the reigns for the Americans.

Sanford is looking to re-establish itself as a state power by sending one of its teams to the Florida Little Major League State Tournament, Sanford sent the Little Nationals in both 1982 and 1983. but hasn't been back to the state tourney the last two years.

Grand Prix Qualifiers Save Cash

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) -Financial considerations partially dictated Saturday's qualifying format for the first Grand Prix of Palm Beach.

In Saturday's qualifying session, the 12 cars with the fastest times will run two laps later in the day to determine the first six positions. The position of any car not in the top six will be determined by the car's fastest lap.

The solo qualifying is interesting for fans, and also gives International Motor Sports Association officials a chance to save on tire costs, said IMSA President John Bishop.

"It's dictated in part by the high cost of tires." Bishop said. Teams were using up their tires. in four laps. The tire companies didn't like it and we didn't like

To combat that, the cars will have to start Sunday's race with the tires used in qualifying.

Drivers said Friday the new course will equalize the cars because no one has driven the 1.6-mile, 10-turn course before today.

Bob Wollek, winner of this year's Lowenbrau Grand Prix of Miami along with Paolo Barilla, said Friday he was upset more practice time was not scheduled.

The official race schedule calls for one hour of practice before qualifying begins.

"Nobody knows the circuit, you don't know what's going to work on the car," Wollek said. "I think it's bad. They don't give us enough practice time. We should (have) practiced Friday.

"It (setting up the car) is going to be part luck." he said. "Which I don't think is the way it should work in sports and motor racing."

"Absolutely," Corvette GTP driver Doe Bundy said when asked if he would like more practice time. "From a driver's standpoint, I would say yes. Looking at it from a business standpoint, there's no way they

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Sunday, June 22, 1966-58 Business-Smart Tewell Takes Lead At Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) - Doug Teweil made a smart business decision when he stuck to golf.

Tewell thought about making golf a part-time profession and turning elsewhere in search of more money, then convinced himself his best source was on the PGA Tour.

"The first four or five weeks (of this year's Tour). I wasn't sure I'd made the right decision." he said. "Now, I know I did."

Tewell, who has $212,413 in golf carnings so far this year - $52,000 more than he made in his best previous full year - entered Saturday's third round of the Atlanta Golf Classic with a one stroke lead over Scott Hoch and two shots ahead of Hal Sutton, Bob Tway and Mark O'Meara.

Victory in the $500,000 Classic is worth $90.000 and would vault Tewell. who earlier this year won the Los Angeles Open, past the $300,000 mark - nearly double the amount he took home in 1980 when he won the Heritage and Philadelphia classics for his only other Tour victories prior to this year.

"I had decided I wanted to go somewhere else to make more money and play golf part time.' Tewell said. "But. I realized you can't do both. that playing golf is what I do best.

"I'm finally playing up to my potential, something I hadn't done since those two wins in 1980,"

The 7.007-yard Atlanta Country Club course played so casy the first two days. It took a 1-under-par 143 to make the cut. Defending champion Wayne Levi (145) was not among the 75 golfers who survived.

Tewell had eight birdies and no bogeys Friday while shooting a 64 that gave him a 12-under-par 132 for the first two rounds. Hoch, who also didn't have a bogey, had a 66-133.

Sutton, furious for not scoring better, had a 68 for a 134 that tied him with Tway (66), who started off birdle-cagle-birdle, and O'Meara (67).

Gary Koch had the lowest score of the first two rounds Friday, a 63 that saw him birdie half the holes, and tied him, at 135, with Bill Bergin (66) and Willie Wood (68).

"The course could hardly have been set up any easter." Sutton said. "From the way they placed the pins, apparently they wanted some low numbers today,"

"It was kind of funny about the second nine." Tway said. "I started the day with a bunch of birdies. Then, through the middle of the round, I hit the greens, had some good opportunities to score, but just didn't drop them."

David Frost (65) and Andrew Magee (69) were at 8-under 136 and Danny Edwards (68) was at 137.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) - Morning rains left the Locust Hill Country Club course soggy Friday and the leader board crowded entering Saturday's third round of the $255,000 LPGA Rochester International.

Three-time U.S. Open champion Hollis Stacy and Patti Rizzo share a one-stroke lead after matching rounds of 72 Friday following a one-hour rain delay.

Rizzo made two birdies and two bogeys for a 2-under 142 total to stay one shot ahead of Judy Dickinson, who shot a 69, and Carolyn Hill, who had a 71.

"It was especially wet on the front nine and then the wind started blowing on the back nine and made things very difficult." Rizzo said. "I hit a lot of two-irons into the greens and sometimes they weren't enough."

Stacy made three birdies and three bogeys on the 6.162-yard layout, that has allowed only two scores in the 60s in the first 36 holes.

Ballesteros, the defending champion, carded two birdies and three bogeys on the demanding 7.147-yard Portmarnock course to finish two rounds with a 1-under 143.

Two strokes behind the former British Open and Masters champion were Australia's Wayne Riley (78). South Africa's Hugh Baiocchi (75) and Britain's Robert Lee (79).

Sandy Lyle, the British Open champion. survived the cut of 154 by shooting an 84.

Although there weren't any special tournaments this past week, there was a great deal of play over the weekend. Now that we are getting some good showers, the fairways are actually getting lush.

Everybody says that the "Old Course" is in better shape now than it's been in 20 years.

Before it's forgotten, let's pass on a few reminders:

• The free clinic for youths between the ages of 10-17 years every Thursday starting at 9 a.m.

•The weekly scramble every Thursday at 5 p.m. You do not have to be a member to play.

• The beginners clinic every Saturday starting at 10 a.m. (through a program with the adult education department of Winter Park High School).

• Availability of private lessons from a teaching pro (by appointment only) are open to everyone.

• The reduced rate for weekday golf can be obtained by merely asking about the special coupons.

Here's a good subject to think about this time of the year - heat! Golf can be unbearable in hot weather. Scorching temperatures sap your strength, wreak havoc with your concentration and generally make playing less fun.

To stay cool during the dog days of summer. try these suggestions:

• Wear a hat. A lightweight hat that covers the top of your head and allows air circulation is best.

• Wear light-colored clothing. Dark colors absorb heat, light colors reflect it.

• Keep a damp cloth on the back of your neck. It lowers your body temperature.

• Drink lots of water. Drink small amounts frequently rather than filling up once or twice a round.

• Eat sparingly. If you get hungry, eat lightly and select foods that digest quickly. Fruits are excellent.

• Watch your pace. No need to break any speed limits.

Now for the results of the Tuesday Dogfight: Low Gross (39): John Natkins and Ed Mioducki: Low Net (30): Harold Davis and Ron Taylor: Second Low Net (31): Jim de Ganahi and Ed Mioducki.

And, finally, the winners of the Thursday Scramble on June 19 were as follows:

With a superb 7-under was the foursome of Ron Howell, Bill Craig. Don Hess and B.E. Link. One shot back at 6-under was the quartet of Wayne DeLawder, Ray Binder, Carl Tillis and Matt Repass.

In third place at 5-under was the group of Ken Holecek, Joe Bishop, Dave Wheeler and Gene Miller. Rounding out the field at 3-under was the UPI Phote

Small Business Trade Mission To Visit Korea And Hong Kong

The U.S. Small Business Administration has announced tha it is recruiting 15 Florida firms to participate in a small business trade delegation to Seoul, South Korea and Hong Kong, Sept. 1 through 13.

The participating firms will be selected from among three high-tech industries: Medical and health care equipment: scientific/analytical instruments and equipment; and electronic industry production and test equipment.

Douglas E. McAllister, director of the SBA office in Jacksonville, said that the trade mission "represents an excellent opportunity for small firms not now in these markets to meet face-to-face with Korean and Hong Kong business people who have expressed an interest in becoming agents, distributors, buyers, joint venture partners, licensees or franchisees for the participating American firms."

Interest firms can contact Fred Bethea at the SBA office in Jacksonville. Deadline for completed applications in July 25.

Huskey Cites Soaring Sales

E. Everette Huskey reports sales during the first quarter of 1986 topped the $16,000,000 in all of the Huskey offices with Mount Dora leading the other offices with $2.250.000.

Vice President Budge Huskey announced sales in April were more than $11,722,000 and cited lowered interest rates, influx of people and real estates values as influencing the increased sales.

Japanese Acquire Banks

NEW YORK (UPI) - Japanese banks are acquiring U.S. banks and financial institutions to expand their American base. which has replaced Latin American sovereign lending as a priority target.

Their U.S. offices initially served Japanese clients in this country and served as a launching pad for lending to Latia American borrowers in the 1970s.

But since the Latin American debt crisis emerged in 1982, the focus has shifted to business with U.S. corporations and other clients, Japanese bankers said.

One effective way to accomplish this goal was to acquire local banking and nonbanking firms and their customers, including smaller corporations.

Several acquisitions have been made over the past few years and almost all major Japanese banks are looking at possible acquisitions. The latest agreement, announced in February, was by Sanwa Bank which will purchase a commercial banking unit in California of Britain's Lloyds Bank PLC. 'Sanwa wants a substantial position in California's retail banking industry to survive fast changes being caused by finan-cial deregulation," said Michitaka Motoda, senior vice president at Sanwa's New York branch. Golden State Sanwa Bank, a Los Angeles-based unit which has grown through three small acquisitions, will merge with Lloyds Bank California into the state's eighth largest bank with more than 100 branches, he said. Sanwa also acquired a leasing unit in Chicago from Continental Illinois Corp. The leasing company, renamed Sanwa Business Credit Corp., is expanding business in the middle market. Motoda said. Fuji Bank bought Walter E. Heller & Co., a major Chicagobased finance company, in 1984. Renamed Heller Financial Inc., it has more than 40 offices in the United States to cover the U.S. middle market, sald Yutaka Komatsu, vice president and manager at the New York Branch. Fuji's acquisition was followed in 1984 by Mitsubishi Bank's purchase of Bank of California, a commercial bank covering California, Washington and Oregon.

40 Years Later A Dream In England During World War II Ended In America At The Grand Old Opry

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Country musicmakers dream of performing at the Grand Old Opry. It's a dream that doesn't die. On the flip side of that dream are the fans who want to see their favorite stars on that famed stage, a dream that started for a Longwood woman in England during World War 11 and came true 40 years later.

Barbara LaBrusciano's fascination with country music began when few Americans, much less her fellow Britons, were atune to these twangy stories in song broadcast to servicemen and civilians on the Armed Services Network.

Ms. LaBrusciano became a war bride and came to the U.S. in 1945. "My husband was from the United States and that was where I was meant to go." It just worked out that the U.S. was also the home of country music, which she had grown to love. But it was a love that she didn't act on, other than to watch country music performers on television and listen to them on the radio.

Her husband not only shunned the country sound, but was "dead set against it." and until her divorce about five years ago Ms. LaBrusciano, 58, didn't live out her dream to be a full-fledged country music fan.

Since then she has visited the Grand Old Opry and for four straight years attended Fan Fair, an annual Nashville event where the country music entertainers treat their fans with pienies. parties, dinners and shows.

She also travels to country music concerts to hear her favorite performers. and collects their photos and autographs. She belongs to a list of fan clubs that read like a Who's Who in country music: Lee

At the top of that list is Lee Greenwood. who caught her eye first in Lakeland and then at a Longwood auto dealership before he rose to stardom.

When she sat and chatted with Greenwood at his Longwood appearance she and another woman were the only fans in sight. "The next time I saw him three or four months later there was maybe 20 people and then a few months later there was 100. You see it grow. To me that's a big thrill to see somebody really make it to the top. I go to concerts now and he'll wave or wink, because he recognizes me," she said.

Ms. LaBrusciano now has her eye another performer whom she said is destined for stardom, Benny Wilson.

The star quality she sees in Wilson is his rapport with the audience. When he steps out from his spot as back up to Janie Frickie to center stage. Ms. LaBrusciano said. "Everybody knows who he is and he gets almost the same ovation that Janie Frickie does. He's just a very likable person."

Ms. LaBrusciano said she doesn't think being a fan is a great big deal. However, she said, country music stars have special relationships with their fans. "How many rock stars give picnics for their fans?" she asked. "You maybe think being a fan is kind of like a dead caught her ear, at a time when her homeland was under slege. Britains were in hiding from German bombers and evenings were spent in bomb shelters.

"It seems like a bad dream now. There were times when it was pretty bad. mostly at night. Of course when war first broke out they just disbanded the schools. There was no school for several months. Then they broke us up. Some would go in the morning and some in the afternoon, so that you were not congregated in a large group in one place at a particular time, because of the bombing.

"But it actually got to be kind of fun after a while. Really. That's an awful thing to say, but it was fun, because we went into air raid shelters at night and we had partles."

in the shelters Ms. LaBrusciano didn't hear her favored country music. "They would broadcast just certain parts of the day, maybe for half an hour and just certain days.

"That was short wave radio and in those days it wasn't as perfect as it is now, so maybe you'd get it if the weather was good and maybe you wouldn't.'

The first country singers Ms. LaBrusclano heard were the original Carter Family. "I'm sure I was the only one in England listening. Everbody else was listening to the Big Band sound and I liked that okay because you couldn't hear

Parenting Matters Child Care Centers Not Guilty As Accused

The alleged and actual sexual exploitations of children in child care facilities in Miami (unlicensed). New York and California enraged the public. Parents were horrified. A Congressional directive to require national criminal background checks on day care employees was issued. States not complying lost half their share of a $25 million FY85 appropriation for training to prevent child abuse. Florida reacted precipitously to local headlines and passed legislation that requires fingerprinting and background checks for those who work in child care facilities. Neither Congress nor many of the states did any homework before enacting legislation.

Important facts were entirely overlooked in everyone's rush to pass remedial legislation for prevention of child abuse. Day care was the casy facilities! larget, but questions needed to be asked. Where does sexual abuse most often occur? Who does Children report that less than one-half of one the abusing? Where are the children most likely percent of sexual abuse occurs in child care pedophile to do. to be abused while parents work? centers. Statistics also reveal that the gross According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics in majority of known child molesters are male, while 1984, 60.5% of all women with children under 18 years old worked outside the home. Of the 24.09 million children age 13 and under, 7.0 million were left alone to take care of themselves, 15.59 million were cared for by relatives or in family day care which is unregulated. A mere 5.1 million children are enrolled in licensed child care over 975 of child care employees are female. Overall, licensed day care is most clearly the safest place for children to be while parents work.

Without the support of statistics, common sense should dictate that child molesters would not seek employment in licensed facilities. They would be working alongside co-workers, be subject to regular unannounced inspections by several regulatory agencies, and be under the surveillance of the center director and the parents who drop off and pick up children throughout the day in an open-door policy center. It would seem quite obvious that pedophiles would plan to take children into their own private homes or take over the leadership of children's groups wherever they are to be found, such as in churches and youth organizations. This would allow for them to be alone and unchecked by regulatory agencies. Their only problem would be to convince parents of their trustworthiness, which is fairly easy lor a Thousands upon thousands of wasted dollars have gone into fingerprinting and background checks of day care employees. One Florida county ran 2.000 checks and found no criminal records. Georgia disqualified 12 people in 1985. In 11,000 state checks in Virginia, one problem turned up, Clearly, day care centers are not guilty as accused.

The state of Florida, in its quest to prevent the sexual exploitation of children, should redirect its energy toward the real problem - the child's home. Sexual abuse/incest information should be available and taught at every level of the public and private school, and the state should encourage the media to provide regular public announcements and referral information.

The first step, however, in coming to terms with sexual abuse, would be the most difficult and expensive. This necessary step would be to formulate plans for rehabilitation, both punitive and therapeutic for the inevitable deluge of exploited children and their families. The response to a public media campaign would be overwhelming considered the private torment that families are enduring.

Choosing A Wardrobe Is Not Easy These Days

By Florence De Santis It's not easy these days to feel well-dressed or even appropriately dressed. Fashion influences come from all sides -classic preppy, ethnic or even street-wild. Choosing on a budget can be tough.

The problem has encouraged a number of fashion advisers to set up shop in recent years. An extension of the old-time "personal shopper." the advisers work one-on-one with their customers, helping them assemble suitable wardrobes, as well as change or add to them season by season. They also save their clients time by bringing accessories together. Emily Cho and Neila Fisher have been doing all this for some years at their company. New Image, in New York City, but they've now gone a step further. As they explain in their new book. "It's You!" (Villard Books. New York) the real guide book shows you how to place sonality points for the six basic yourself in one of these groups. types.

A final chapter shows how to make an occasional breakout into another type. (We all like a change now and then.)

The authors enlisted Chervi Lickona to help with the many sketches that illustrate choices one might make in each group for varying occasions, whether business or social. With the old idea of fashion "rules" gone, it is now possible to discover your own type and create an impressive image by dressing accordingly. A scattered assemblage of fashion choices makes no personality impression, as "It's You!" clearly shows.

Cho and Fisher think that clothing possibilities should include some items made by you or by a hand-picked dressmaker. You'll get custom fitting, more quality for the money and exclusivity. It saves shopping time, too.

The authors have worked out through today's fashion maze is a group of outfits for vou. They've divided women Vogue/Butterick patterns that into six basic types, and the incorporate some of their per-

"You don't hear that in any other music really, except for folk songs, I guess. It's changed a little bit over the years. It's more pop now, but I just fell in love with it. I still love the traditional music. I said one day I'm going to go to the Grand Old Opry. It took me 40 years to get

Marilyn Cruz, G.B. Hendricks Repeat Vows

Marilyn Cruz, 4705 Bay Willow Court. Orlando, and George Bud Hendricks, 346 Springview Drive, Sanford, were married at 2 p.m. on May 24 at Church of the Nativity, Lake Mary, Father James Siebert was the officiating cleirgyman for the candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Ines and Baldomero Cruz. Lansing, Mich. The bridegroom is the son of Dee and George Hendricks of Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a white Mori Lee organza gown fashioned along the bouffant silhouette. Tiers of Chantilly lace ruffles accented the skirt of the gown and flowing semi-cathedral train. A V-shaped pearlencased headband held her fingertip veil of imported illusion. The bride carried a crescent style silk bouquet with trailing spray of white orchids, white roses, white rosebuds and baby's breath.

Jenny Martinez served the bride as maid of honor. She wore a sleeveless orchid taffeta gown with an overlay of crocheted lace that terminated in a scalloped hemline. Satin ribbon accented the fitted waistline. She carried a silk bouquet of white and orchid carnations and lavender freesia showered with baby's breath.

Sharron Attardo and Shelly Martinez were the bridesmaids. Their gowns were identical to the honor attendant's and each carried a Colonial nosegay of white mini carnations tipped in lavender and lavender freesla.

Jimmy Hendricks served his brother as best man. Ushers were Sal Attardo and Rick Martinez.

Lisa Harvey, niece of the bridegroom was the flower girl. She wore an orchid dress and carried a casdade of stephanotis and baby's breath. Michael Harvey, ring bearer, carried the rings on a heart-shaped pillow.

The reception was held at the Sanford Garden Club. Following a wedding trip to and attention.

My problem concerns two long-time friends of my husband. Both have come on to me with pompous offers to alleviate my "sexual frustrations." Can you imagine such unintimidated gall?

One I was able to deal with in short order. But the other is more persistent. I am unable to avoid him because his wife is a very good friend of mine and we see each other often, so I have been indulging in the following fantasy.

I set the time for our rendezvous, leaving the door to my house unlocked. He enters my house and gropes his way to my dimly lit bedroom, which I have generously sprayed with Chanel No. 5. As he approaches my bed. I reach up and turn on the bright overhead light. I am lying draped in my late husband's old government-issue bathrobe. My face is devoid of makeup, my hair is in rollers and my partial plate is on the bedside table. I smile widely, revealing the large hole left when I lost a front tooth in a skling accident years ago. As I open my arms, my bathrobe falls open, revealing the orthopedic corset I wear to relieve the chronic pain of a bad back. "Come to me." I whisper huskily

How's that for a seductive scene? Of course, I doubt if I'd ever carry it out - or should I?

PAT IN PORTLAND DEAR PAT: I don't recommend it. But as I read your fantasy, 1 fantasized the following: The egomantac in your fantasy was not discouraged and proceeded to have his way with you, and then I saw you explaining to his widow why her beloved husband suffered a coronary in your heavily scented boudoir.

DEAR ABBY: For many years it has been my custom to attend early church service followed by breakfast at a nice restaurant.

Recently a new waitress has been hired who must literally shower herself in perfume. Abby, don't food handlers realize that we taste only sweet, sour, bitter and salt, and most of our enjoyment comes from the aroma? Bacon and eggs that taste like "essence of rose petals." or whatever, is neither what we expect nor find pleasant.

This woman does not look like the type who would take kindly to criticism, so I am quietly taking my business clsewhere.

Perhaps I am one in a million who finds this offensive, but I still find moderation in all things a good practice.

Council Endorses Boycott In Support Of Farmworkers

The Priests Council of the Orlando Catholic Diocese has called for "a full boycott of products of Adams Packing Co., Auburndale, Fla., and its parent company, RC Cola."

According to an article in The Florida Catholic, at issue is the company's alleged refusal to bargain with farmworkers for better wages and working conditions. The boycott resolution was passed at the June 2 meeting of the council in Altamonte Springs.

Reports were heard from church workers and a labor organizer, but RC Cola and the Adams Co. declined to send representatives, the newspaper said. Adams, a subsidiary of RC. disclaims responsibility as it hires pickers through independent labor contractors, who they say are responsible for workers' salaries, benefits and working conditions, RC officials deny involvement since Adams Packing handles contracts for harvest.

The council also voted to increase priests' salaries by $100 a month to make up for loss of income from stole fees. The Bishop had previously, at the council's request, abolished the practice of accepting the donation for performing a baptism. wedding or funeral.

The council passed a resolution that priests have the choice of declining Mass stipends. The action if approved by the Bishop would allow priests the option of continuing to accept Mass stipends or receiving the $100 salary increase.

Clergy Group Fights Anti-Semitism

BOSTON (UPI) - A delegation of Christian sity of Vienna, told the clergymen of "an clergymen has returned from Austria. where they hope to form a Christian-Jewish alliance to fight the "latent anti-Semitism" that surfaced during Kuri Waldheim's presidential campaign.

The eight American elergymen, who flew home from a one-week stay in Vienna Monday, said the Waldheim campaign "triggered a latent anti-Semitism that had manifested itself many times before in Austrian society.

We found in many Austrians an indifference toward and a reluctance to do anything about contempt toward Jews," delegation leader Rev. Frank Eiklor of Salem said upon his arrival at Logan International Airport.

Eiklor, a national Christian radio broadcaster, organized the delegation of clergymen representing Roman Catholic, Protestant and Evangelical congregations across the United States to "reach out in solidarity with the Jews."

Erika Weinzierl, a professor at the Univer-outpouring" of hate letters directed at Jews during and after the Waldheim campaign. Eiklor said.

He said Jewish students told him that "during the campaign things were so volatile that Jewish youths reported being kicked and spat upon."

The clergymen said they spoke to both Christian and Jewish leaders, including Vienna's chief Rabbi Paul Eisenberg and Nazi hunter Simon Weisenthal, and laid the groundwork for an alliance similar to a Christian task force against anti-Semitism founded by Eiklor on Boston's North Shore last year.

Waldheim, 67, won a clear victory in Austria's presidential elections runoff June 8 despite allegations throughout the campaign that he tried to hide involvement in Nazi war crimes more than 40 years ago.

The World Jewish Congress described Waldheim as a senior Nazi intelligence officer involved in brutal interrogations and massacres of innocent civilians in the #### Balkans.

Waldheim, a former secretary-general of the United Nations, acknowledged serving as a desk officer in an army group whose commander was later executed by the Yugoslavs for war crimes. He denied involvement in any criminal activities and said his job required merely that he verify field reports.

The clergymen said they had arranged to stay in touch with varous Christian and Jewish leaders in Austria who are "in various stages of commitment to combatting anti-Semitism.

Both they and we are determined that Christian indifference such as occurred 40 years ago during the Holocaust... must be challenged and replaced by the biblical mandate of loving and defending our neighbor." they said.

Other Waldheim affairs may come and go," the delegation concluded in its report. "But the scourge of anti-Semitism and indifference toward it must not be permitted to come and go. It must go."

Church elected the following officers last Sunday night: Lisa McGrotha, president; Carrie Smith, vice president and worship; Shelly Freeman, secretary and publicity: Eric Patten, treasurer: and Stephen Dickison, social chairman.

Jewish Center Opens

Deltona Jewish Center, a Conservative congregation has opened its doors in Deltona. The temple offers Saturday morning services and a Sunday School program. Services are held at 9 a.m. on Saturday at locations to be announced. For further information contact Paul Barr at 574-5684 or Nina Edelstein at 574-6038 or write to the center at P.O. Box 6276, Deltona.

Couple Attends Meeting

Pat and Doreen Cavenaugh will leave Sanford this Sunday for Estes Park, Colo., for the national meeting of the National Association of Congregational Churches. She will be assisting with the youth portion of the conference, the National Association of Pilgrim Fellowship. He will be the official delegate for Sanford Congregational Christian Church to the adult meeting. The Annual Meeting will run through Wednesday.

Miss Bryant Gets Degree

Dr. and Mrs. Virgil L. Bryant of First Presbyterian Church of Sanford have returned from a trip during which they attended the graduation of their daughter, Susan, from Columbia Theological Seminary with a Master of Divinity degree on June 1. Miss Bryant will be spending the next two months as a student intern at Georgia Mental Health Clinic and the following year she will intern at Grady Hospital in Atlanta. She plans a career in counseling and toward the end of her Internship she plans to be ordained as a minister.

Diaconate To Meet

The Sanford Congregational Christian Church Diaconate will meet at noon Sunday in the fellowship hall.

A Bible study will be held Wednesday at 11 a.m. in the small chapel emphasizing the work of the Holy Spirit.

Saturday morning at 8 a.m. there will be a Men's Club Breakfast in the fellowship hall with the Rev. Ed Weber in charge.

Bible School Set

Pinecrest Baptist Church will hold its summer Vacation Bible School June 23-27 from 9 a.m. to noon for two year olds through sixth grade. There will be a closing service on Friday night for parents and children.

Groundbreaking Held

The Rev. Scott Harris, a former associate minister at First United Methodist Church of Sanford, and his congregation at the Riverview United Methodist Church in Ormond Beach. broke ground for a new sanctuary and office complex on June 1. The new sanctuary will seat 410 people and will cost an estimated $450,000. DeLand District Superintendent participated in the service.

Harris and his wife, Patsy, are natives of Sanford. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Harris. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Carver, long time Sanford residents.

Harris served here for two years under the leadership of the Rev. Leo King before moving to Ormond Beach.

To Speak

George Davis, veteran missionary pilot, will speak at New Life Assembly located at 100 Kennel Road, Sanford, at 10 a.m. Sunday. Davis is coordinator of CLASP (Caribbean-Latin American Special Projects) of the Division of Foreign Missions of the Assemblies of God to South/Central America. He serves as regional director of International Correspondence Institute for Mexico and Central American countries.

Carris Appointed To Casselberry

The Rev. Jerry Carris is the new associate pastor at Community United Methodist Church, Casselberry. He replaces the Rev. James Hebel, who has begun a new ministry in Ocala.

Carris graduated from the Candler School of Theology at Emory University in Atlanta on May 12 and comes here from Decatur, Ga.

He is a probationary member of the Florida UM Conference. His primary responsibilities at Community will be in visitation and evangelism.

Carris and his wife, Linda, have been married for 141/2 years. They are both from Winter Garden, where they Methuselah lived to be 969 years old. "And then he died." says the author of Genesis casually, as if there was nothing unusual about that, no need for exclamation points.

It was like being in your you consider that one Babylo-90s today. Willard Scott, if he nian legend mentions a king had been on TV back then, may not even have considered their longevity worthy of mention.

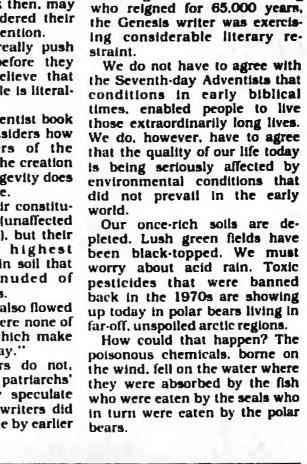

Did these people really push the age of 1,000 before they died? Those who believe that everything in the Bible is literally true say yes.

A Seventh-day Adventist book says, "When one considers how close these pioneers of the human race lived to the creation of the world, their longevity does not seem unreasonable.

"Not only were their constitutions nearly perfect (unaffected by hereditary disease), but their food was of the highest excellence - grown in soil that had not been denuded of health-giving minerals.

"The stream of life also flowed more gently. There were none of the fierce tensions which make people old so soon today."

Most Bible scholars do not, however, take the patriarchs' ages literally. They speculate that the early Bible writers did not want to be outdone by earlier

Our major worry used to be nuclear war. That is still a clear and present danger, which could bring an end in one horrible afternoon to 2 billion years of the earth's patient growth and, what is sadder still, an end to human love, earth's crown and glory.

But more and more it appears that the world will end "not with a bang but a whimper," in T.S. Eliot's memorable words. We or our children will not be snuffed out in the twinkling of an eye. but will end our days in helpless agony on a planet that is no longer our friend and benefactor and can no longer sustain and nurture us.

Many of us will settle for 69 years on this earth. Forget 969. We don't want to add years to our life so much as life - the good life - to our years. It won't happen unless we start to take the environmentalists more seriously than we have.

Champion Of The Merchant Marine

Captain Fights For Rights Of Those Who Gave Vital Wartime Service

By Jane Caseelberry Herald Staff Writer

Capt. Jim Ryan. who spent much of his life at sea in the United States Merchant Marine, including service during World War II and the Korean War. has embarked on a campaign seeking justice and recognition for those who served the nation 40 years ago in the war-time Merchant Marine.

Ryan, a Longwood area resident, has been busy writing to representatives in the U.S. Congress, who he says are very supportive, and to the White House, the Department of Defense, local and state governments and newspapers in an effort to stir up interest and support.

The city of Longwood recently declared an American Merchant Marine Day in the city and the state of Florida was the third state to issue a proclamation in support of U.S. Merchant Marine veterans.

'Members of the U.S. Merchant Marine ably manned this nation's vessels in every battle zone. in every theatre of operation, and on every occan." Ryan sald.

"They carried the troops; they carried the guns: they carried the ammunition, the tanks and other war machinery - and they fought the enemy in mortal combat. They did this essentially unarmed and without adequate protection from any major source for life, limb, vessel and cargo."

But since the war, he said, while other groups have been given recognition and support. Merchant seamen have been ignored, insulted and deprived of justly earned benefits.

Today, he said, few if any Americans realize the vital roll played by members of the Merchant Marine during WWII and subsequent conflicts in which our nation has been involved.

'We seek no monetary gain or other largess, in the accepted terminology." Ryan said. "We do, however seek recognition from our Federal Government. We seek the right of burial with an American Flag draped over our caskets when we are put to rest. We seek medical attention for those few of our ranks who suffered inhuman and debilitating atrocitica at the direct hands of the enemies of this nation, and who, for whatever reason, have been unsuccessful in later life are not able to provide for their own medical expenses." "I was absolutely appalled," Ryan said, "to learn that the Defense Department has granted veterans' status to such widely diverse groups as: civilian women telephone operators who served in France during WWI: civilian Signal Corps clerks who never left the U.S.; civilian Polish and Czechoslovakian Partisans, who allegedly fought the 'enemy' somewhere in Europe and were later given American citizenship; civilian dieticians who served in the U.S.; civilian women ferry pilots and civilian defenders of Wake Island." Except for the latter, he pointed out, these did not meet the criteria of Public Law 95-202.

In October, 1985, the Department of Defense did in fact grant full veteran status to a select few Merchant Mariners, approximately 1,000, under existing law and thre is strong indications that they may soon be granting full veteran status to all veteran Merchant Mariners who were POWs. also under Public Law 95-202. But even with these precedents. Ryan believes "there is an obvious designed effort afoot to thwart the quest for recognition sought by all men of the U.S. Merchant Marine who meet or exceed all of the criteria.

Having sailed the seven seas and worked in exotic places such as Saudi Arabia and Libya, Ryan. 64. now calls The Springs near Longwood as his home port. He is principal surveyor with Marine 'Plus'' a business which does marine appraising. surveying. engineering and consulting.

Ryan was working at the Naval Observatory when World War II and vanted to go into the Navy or Coast

'Members of the U.S. Merchant Marine ably manned this nation's vessels in every battle zone, in every theatre of operation, and on every ocean. They carried the troops; they carried the guns; they carried the ammunition, the tanks and other war machinery and they fought the enemy in mortal combat." -Capt. Jim Ryan made the treacherous run to Murmansk with war materials for Russia's fight against Nazi Germany through the Baltic Sea where they were sitting ducks for German subs and planes.

He said he was on ships that were hit, but never had one sunk.

"I didn't receive a scratch, but it wasn't for lack of being where the action was." he added. "I stood on the foc'sle of the ship and pumped 5-inch shells into a 5-inch gun and shot at submarines. I was on ships hlt by bombs and shells from aircraft, but never sunk.

Many seaman were not that lucky. During World War II. Ryan said statistics show. 4.17 percent (more than 7.000) of the 168,000 Merchant Mariners serving on ships with American registry died in enemy attacks. (There were many other U.S. citizens serving on American owned ships with Panama registry.)

He said one convoy was totally destroyed and losing 60 to 80 served in battle zones in the Vietnam and Korean wars." Ryan said.

"I wore the uniform of an officer in the American Merchant Marine." he said told the Longwood City Com-mission recently. "In similar un-iforms, my fellow shipmates and myself served our nation with honor. and without hesitation. during World War II asking and giving no quarter.

"Those of our service fought and died for our great nation, in the same manner and on the same battlefronts in which our comrades in the combined armed forces fought and died. They did so under the auspices of the U.S. Government's War Shipping Administration, and under the strict control and direction of the U.S. Navy - and other military organizations of this country and our alltes."

He said few, if any, realize that hundreds of merchant seamen were taken by the enemy as prisoners of war. The enemy knew us only as "the enemy" and we were subsequently subjected to the same inhuman treatment as any other POW. Ryan said some seaman taken prisoner by German U-boats off South America were later turned over to Japanese subs to be taken to Japan for slave labor.

In 1954, Ryan said he decided he didn't want to continue going to sea and notified the company to have a replacement ready. To his surprise they asked him to become the assistant to the marine superintendent, who resigned only a couple of months later. Then instead of one ship. Ryan had 60 ships under his control.

Six years later, he accepted an offer from a larger steamship company. Marine Carriers. When the company began to diversify they acquired some shopping centers and sent Ryan to Sanford in 1967 oversee the building of Sanford

Tax Shelter Withdrawa

In all the furor over the financial impact of the Senate's tax reform effort, the more profound psychological implications of the bill have been ignored.

To find out what is being done about the emotional consequences of tax reform. I visited the new Shelter Withdrawal Clinic that just opened here in Colorado.

The amiable director of the clinic. Charles Jameson, was kind enough to take me on a tour. Mr. Jameson is in something of a withdrawal himself. An accountant by training, he used to design tax shelters. He is now helping some of his former clients withdraw from them.

"It was tough even for me at first," he said. "But I'm cured. Haven't looked at a shelter in three weeks. But it's not so easy for some of these other people."

Mr. Jameson escorted me into a large chamber where white-coated attendants were working with dozens of patients.

The first man who caught my eye was strapped in a chair. An attendant would hold a dollar bill in front of him for a few seconds, taking it back when the man screamed.

"That's Mr. Hendricks." my host explained. "Hasn't made a dollar in his life, from a tax point of view. Fabulously rich.

"All of the shelters he once used to make it look like he was broke have been shut down. We're trying to get him to adjust to the idea of making money. It'll be a long, tough road, but we're pretty confidant he'll make it.

Mr. Hendricks screamed again. We went on.

The next patient was an attractive young woman, dressed for tennis. She was separated from an adjoining tennis court by a glass wall. I asked Mr. Jameson what was happening.

'Ms. Timmons lives in a ritzy suburb out east." he explained. "It provides wonderful recreational facilities by charging high sales taxes. Ms. Timmons is accustomed to playing tennis for free and having the federal government subsidize her by allowing her to deduct her sales taxes from her federal tax.

"She won't be able to do that under the new tax

Guard, but his bosses considered his work on secret navigational instruments essential to the war effort and wouldn't release him to join one of the military services. "In 1942.1 ran off to sea and joined the Merchant Marine and spent the remaining three years of the war in that capacity." Ryan said.

He started out as an engine room wiper and worked himself up as rapidly as possible. He eventually obtained several licenses including marine engineer, marine superintendent and captain's papers. He served in the Merchant Marine until 1954. During the Korean War, he was on ships shuttling ammunition and war machinery from Japan to Korea.

Ryan said there was jealousy from those in the armed forces and is still a widespread misconception among the public that seamen were highly paid plus receiving big bonuses when they were in the war zones. He said he was paid $78 a month and $156 a month when in war zones "for being shot at by German U-Boats".

Ryan's ship was in convoys that #### percent of the ships was not unusual.

This is a larger percentage than the 2.45 percent (406.000) of American service men and women who died in the war in the total of combined armed forces, 16,545,000. Records show there were more civilian merchant vessels than Navy ships sunk by enemy submarines and surface raiders both numerically and by actual tonnage.

More mariners were wounded. many losing arms or legs. Ryan said men in the Merchant Marine were required to contribute a portion of their pay to for their health care through the Marine Public Health Service up until the war. When the name was changed to Public Health Service, the seamen were no longer eligible, only Eskimos and Indians.

Postal workers were later made eligible for care. During the war the seamen had $5,000 insurance to go to their survivors if they were killed. If they were wounded the $5,000 went to their treatment until the money was used up.

"We think about those who served during WWII, but in fact they should include the Merchant Mariners who Plaza. He also has a general contractor's license.

Ryan was director of the Port of Sanford from 1967 until 1978. He then went to Saudi Arabia for two years and while there he converted a ship into a cement bagging plant and was in charge of building an army camp. He didn't speak any Arabic, but by the time he left he spoke it fluently.

He was then hired by a U.S. firm that had a contract with Libya and put in charge of three projects

When the situation between this government and Libya got to the point of President Carter's ordering everybody (Americans) out, it became a hassle getting the money for payrolls and American manufactured equipment from the U.S. for his projects. Carter wouldnt allow shipment in spite of a contract saying they could.

"I wasn't at risk, but things were getting worse and worse. I didn't need that aggravation any more, so I left," Ryan said.

Back in Sanford, in 1984, he became aware of the plight of his fellow former Merchant Mariners and took up their cause.

reform. We figure that when the feds stop picking up a big part of the tab, her town is going to have to start charging people to play tennis. That glass wall will retract as soon as Ms. Timmons drops a dollar into that little slot.

Ms. Timmons continued to glare angrily at her wall. I then heard a soft walling sound coming from a small group of people huddled together under a large umbrella.

"Those are some of our toughest cases." Mr. Jameson sighed.

"They've spent years in that IRA shelter, and now they're refusing to come out. We've tried to reason with them. Heck, the main reason they liked their IRA's was that they could put money in now, tax-free, and then postpone paying their taxes until they retired, when their rates would be lower.

'We've been pointing out that with the new lower rates, they might well be paying less in taxes on the money now then they'll end up having to pay later. so that eliminating the IRA's isn't all that big a deal, but they just keep wailing and wailing.

Next we saw a large group of people huddled over small desks.

"That's one of the groups were proudest of," Mr. Jameson said happily. "They're learning to write checks.

'The old tax law provided shelters to people who borrowed money - allowed them to deduct the interest expenses on credit cards and that sort of thing. The new law won't allow that, so we're teaching these people to pay for things instead of charging them. "

Suddenly a very prosperous-looking man rushed up to us. He was extremely excited.

The man told Mr. Jameson that he'd just gotten a huge raise and a bonus. Mr. Jameson immediately pulled out a yellow pad of paper and started sketching shelters for the man's newfound wealth.

Two attendants who resembled defensive tackles for the Chicago Bears came out immediately and dragged Mr. Jameson away.

"I'm sorry!" he screamed. "I'll never do it again! I promise! I'm cured! I'll never design

A huge metal door slammed shut, silencing the agonized pleas.

Young Delegates Fill Yugoslav Congress

By Nesho Djuric

BELGRADE. Yugoslavia (UPI) -Two thousand delegates characterized more by youth and inexperience than political savvy and Marxist discipline gather at the 13th Communist Party congress in Belgrade June 25-28 to chart a course out of Yugoslavla's economic doldrums.

"The congress should be a turning point, so much needed to both the party and the country." said Biljana Vukadinovic, 18, who joined the 2.1 million member ruling party last year. "It is high time for this turnaround to happen."

The congress completes a series of party and government elections and conferences that began in March.

Most of new leaders were born just before or even after World War II. They thus replace the wartime generation of Marshal Josip Broz Tito and his Partisans who fought the Nazis in 1941-45. Tito died May 4. 1980, and ever since then Yugoslav leaders have kept saying they will stick to his legacy.

Yugoslavia, a non-aligned, independent Communist country of 23 million, has developed its own unique brand of socialism that features a "workers' self-managing system" in a highly decentralized economy.

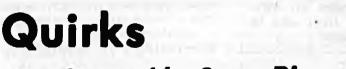

The economy began stumbling in 1979 after years of rapid progress. The standard of living has dropped by some 40 percent in the past six years. More than 1 million Yugoslavs are seeking jobs.

The Communist Party had to regain the trust it has lost among the people. Vukadinovic told Politika.

"The young wish to believe that the Congress of the League of Communists of Yugoslavia will be a sort of turning point, which is indispensable both to the party and another shelter!" the society as a whole." she said.

"It is high time ."

Puzzling Hobby Spurs Divorce

ZURICH. Switzerland (UPI) - A Swiss man sued his wife for divorce because her craze for jigsaw puzzles induced her to spend $440 per month on them and spread them over nearly every square inch of their apartment.

Swiss newspapers related the story Thursday of the 48-year-old plumber who told the court whenever he got home, his wife was "lying on the floor with her puzzles."

"It's been going on for six years, but lately it's become worse," he said. "For the past two years I was even forbidden to go into the living room. She said I would break up the

The man said he gave his wife $660 a month for housekeeping but she spent $440 on jigsaws. "At the end of the month

I was lucky to find a piece of bread. " he said.

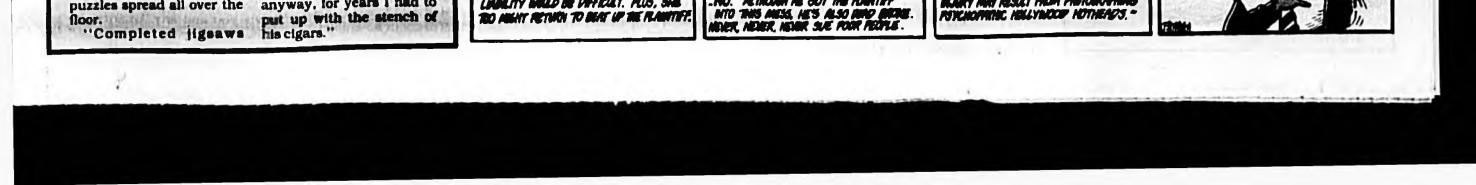

The wife told the court she was not contesting her husband's demand for divorce and said about her love of jigsaws:

Systems Have Built-In Faults

Consider this: You work hard all your life to raise a family, do your part in the community and maintain, to the best of your ability, an honest lifestyle.

Then one night you're driving your pickup truck along the highway and a police car pulls up alongside. The officer motions for you to pull over. You comply. After all, you've got nothing to hide. It must be, you think to yourself, some minor traffic infraction. Maybe one of the lights on the old pickup gave out. SCIENCE WORLD But police aren't interested in talking to you about a traffic citation. What they want, they tell you, is to search your vehicle. And, since you've nothing to hide, you consent readily. One officer makes his way around the pickup to the area of the gasoline filler cap. After a bit of probing, he walks over to you carrying a plastic bag stuffed with other plastic bags containing what he says he thinks is marijuana. Naturally, you're horrifled. You tell him he's nuts, or words to that effect. because: you've never been arrested; have lived and worked in the community all your life; have been a churchgoer since age 11 and a church deacon for 30 years. Besides, you wouldn't dream of using a drug.

But despite your protests, you're hauled into the county jall where you're fingerprinted, have mug shots taken, then are booked on charges of drug possession. This is a nightmare you would never have imagined could happen to you ... but it did. And it could happen to any of us. And it did happen in Lake Mary not long ago ... to Lake Mary High School custodian Junior Blake of Sanford.

And before Blake's ordeal was ended, it would cost him $1,000 in attorney fees. $100 to cover the cost of the $1,000 bond set against him, and $50 to get his impounded truck back. Add to that the $4,000 or so Blake will have to come up with to pay for a two-week bout his wife had with high blood pressure (Blake's insurance will cover part of the cost, but he'll have to make up the rest) and the nightmare is complete. What everyone involved in the flasco was to later learn, was that Blake was the unfortunate victim of a cruel hoax. One perpetrated by a person or persons unknown with either a perverse sense of humor, or vengeance in the heart. And Blake isn't the only victim. The police involved will have to count themselves among the taken-in, as will the law enforcement community which follows precisely the procedures from pursuit to arrest unwilling apparently to assess the matter more closely and incorporate that vital flexibility necessary in such instances to minimize the adverse impact on innocent citizens. Police pulled Blake's truck over after they got a telephone tip that there were drugs somewhere in the truck. An anlysis of the bags at the crime lab turned up some fingerprints ... none of them Blake's. After further investigation and the lab test results showing what they did, the state's attorney's office refused to prosecute Blake. and all charges stemming from that incident were dropped.

RUSTY BROWN Why Some Women Still Aren't At The Top

Long-distance runners. ticking off the miles. worry about "hitting the wall" - the point when they've taxed their energy to the ultimate and the body systems start breaking down.

Women executives, ticking off the years in a climb to the top of the corporate world, can hit the wall too. Their wall, however, is external, not internal. It's after they've paid their dues in years of experience. long hours and exceptional performance. It's when their hopes for a spot on the senior management team reach an impasse.

The woman CEO today is as rare as a 5 percent corporate debenture. In one recent survey, for example, only 2 percent, or 29 of 1.362 senior executives, were women.

A recent Wall Street Journal report describes the invisible barrier at the top as "the glass ceiling" and speculates that it is caused by corporate tradition and prejudice - the same factors that had to be dealt with years ago in order for women to make it beyond the steno pool. Today, women hold nearly one-third of all management positions, but most still can't get the "men only" sign off the corner office.

Ambitious women hunger for a crack at the real power while the power brokers, some of whom mentored their rise, still withhold the final annointment.

A study conducted several years ago by the Wellesley College Center for Research showed that resistance to women in management drops as more and more women first come into a company. When their number reaches 15 percent, however, the men begin to feel threatened and start thinking. "Hey, these women are all over the place and they may get the next job I want." After that, opposition becomes more overt.

in the spate of recent articles about glass ceilings faced by women, it's been said that men at the top feel uncomfortable with women of equal or nearly equal power. One high-level vice president quoted her boss as saying. "It was his problem, but he couldn't make serious decisions if a woman was in the room."

An article in the magazine Savvy, on why so few women in banking make it to senior vice president, theorizes that, as women become obvious candidates, the question switches from "Is she any good?" to "Is she one of us?"

When it comes right down to it, the old-boy network may have yielded a little on the outer edge, but remains tough as titanium at the top.

David Maxwell, 57. CEO of the Federal National Mortgage Association, has said, "Chief executives who are my age or even a little younger still feel uncasiness dealing with women."

There are those who feel that women's management style is one factor holding them back. In a new book. "Why Jenny Can't Lead." authors Jinx Melia and Pauline Lyttle suggest that in making decisions, women are guided more by ethics and values, while men give priority to goals. Example: The authors cite opposite reactions from men and women at sceing two antagonists, conservative preacher Jerry Falwell and liberal Sen. Edward Kennedy. standing together arm in arm for a photo. Women considered it hypocritical, while men thought that the two were sharing a common goal at that particular moment.

NEW YORK (UPI) - Kathy and Debble Caruso spent seven years growing up in hiding after being abducted by their father. It took medical illustrators in Texas about a week to determine how those seven years had aged them.

With drawings of how the girls would look today, their mother appeared recently on national television. Within hours the adolescents had been identified and returned to her.

"It's not guesswork, it's a science." said Lewis Sadler. professor of biomedical communications at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas. who helped create the successful 'aged' illustrations.

WILLIAM RUSHER What's Message In Africa?

One would think that any serious observer, seeking solutions for the problems of South Africa, would spend considerable time describing the kind of future he envisages for its white population. After all, South Africa's 5 million whites now dominate its politics, and no solution can possibly succeed, or even be tried. without their consent.

And yet South Africa's foreign critics dwell almost exclusively on what must be done for the country's 20 million blacks. The list of their needs, including the political rights they are currently denied, is certainly long, and it is the object of endless repetition in the West. For brevity's sake, it is often summed up in some ambiguous phrase Anthony Lewis, for example, declared the other day that the West must "press South Africa (i.e., its white-dominated government) to negotiate." But that isn't, of course, what Lewis and others like him really mean. The South African government is pathetically eager to negotiate with every black group willing to forswear violence. In January 1985, within months after it had enfranchised both Asians and coloreds. the Botha government called for a "national forum" to discuss ways of bringing the black population into the political structure. This so alarmed the African National Congress (the exiled and communistdominated organization that seeks the violent overthrow of the present regime) that it called for the killing of those blacks it described as "collaborators" - i.e., any black rash enough to agree to attend such a forum. The ensuing series of "black-on-black" murders, which continues to this day, has effectively prevented any forum from being held. But if negotiations aren't what South Africa's critics want, what do they want? Concessions. perhaps? There have been concessions galore. from repeal of the mixed-marriages act to proposed enfranchisement of the blacks for purposes of regional government and repeal of the much-execrated pass laws. But these concessions, to the extent that they are reported in the West at all, are invariably dismissed as "too little and too late." What's left? Only one thing, really: transition, as promptly as possible, to a one-man-one-vote system under which effective polities cal power in South Africa is wielded by someone on behalf of its black majority. At that point Western liberal opinion will obligingly forget all about South Africa (as it has already forgotten about Rhodesia now Zimbabwe) and turn its attention to some other offensive regime - Chile's, perhaps, or South Korea's.

Who's to blame?

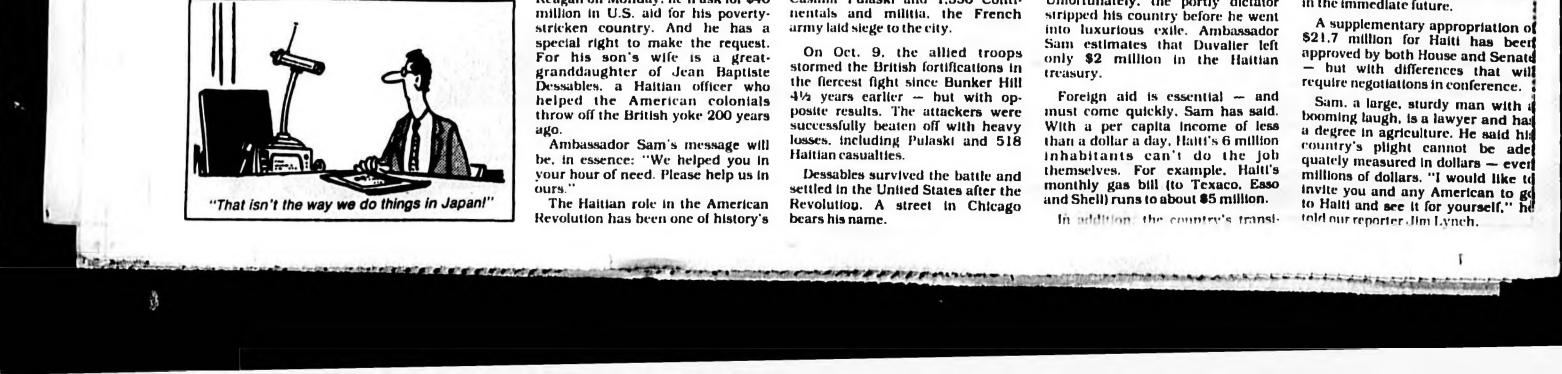

Hard to say. Did Blake, when police initially pulled him over, protest strongly enough and try to convince them that he had absolutely no knowledge of the marijuana in the truck? Did police take him to the Lake Mary department for initial interrogation where they might have had second thoughts about carrying the matter as far as they did without further investigation? Might they at the station have been convinced by Blake that he wasn't leaving town and that they could have released him pending the outcome of their investigation, at which time either he could have been charged or the matter dropped without Blake's having to be booked in the first place? Again, tough to say.

We demand a lot of our law enforcement agencies. We pay policemen (some say not near as much as we should) to maintain law and order and to protect society from the criminal element. When police do a poor job, we scream loudly at them. When they do an excellent job, we don't, for the most part, pat them on the back often enough. Society generally takes the "good job" for granted.

What happened to Blake has happened before and will happen again. All systems have built-in faults and probabilities of risk and error.

It's no different in law enforcement, and until the system can be improved, we'll have to live with it.

BERRY'S WORLD

Sadler and medical illustrator Scott Barrows use reams of statistical data to predict what children in old photographs would look like today. They have illustrated up-to-date drawings of 30 missing children, seven of whom have been identified and returned home.

The statistical data comes from anthropologists and dentists, orthodontists and plastic surgeons, Sadler said. The statistics, which are based on averages, predict how laws, noses and eyes will change as a child ages.

"The statistics have been around for a while." Sadler said. "Orthodontists have studied the mouth, plastic surgeons the nose and anthropologists determine head size.

"It was just never all compiled before," Sadler said. "They look at parts - we look at the whole face."

It took Sadler five years to compile his computerized file of facial data based on hundreds of thousands of measurements made all over the world. But almost all the data pertain to Caucasian children between ages 3 and 18 because they represent the population most widely studied by American doctors and anthropologists. Sadler said.

Sadler said the space between a person's eyes is set by age 3. As a child grows, that space remains the same into adulthood.

Using old photographs of missing children. Sadler and Barrows determine the measurement between the child's eyes and then measure the rest of the face on a corresponding scale. Often the illustrators have a series of yearly school photographs to work with.

The measurements are fed into the computer that predicts the rate and shape of bone and muscle growth based on statistical averages. The two then draw the child's 'aged' face using the new measurements.

Selling South Africa

I feel sorry for Herbert Beukes. He comes across as an intelligent. reasonable individual. You might almost think he really believes what he's saying. As a spokesman for his government, he could scarcely be improved upon.

But reality keeps tripping him up. Beukes is South Africa's ambassador to the United States. I'm on his mailing list, the recipient of frequent reports on what's happening in his country.

He has a way of making that sound very encouraging. His government is committed to change, he says, and the pace is quickening. Apartheid is on the way out. Significant racial reforms are being introduced. Democracy - real democracy for everybody in South Africa, not just the white minority - is right around the corner, if only his government's critics will be understanding and a little patient.

For example, the pass laws, which for 70 years have restricted where blacks could live and work, are to be scrapped. The government promises blacks eventual citizenship and even a share of political power.

It does indeed sound promising as Ambassador Beukes tells it. He does not, however, tell enough, as the carnage we are now witnessing in his country demonstrates.

Take those pass laws again. They require every black older than 16 to carry an identification document specifying birthplace and tribal origin. Official permission to live and work outside tribal homelands must be noted in an individual's pass book. Being caught unauthorized in white areas - even the huge black residential townships around major cities - means prison.

The pass laws have been central to apartheid and, among blacks, its most hated manifestation. Abrogation would indeed be significant. But blacks still would not be free to live and work where they choose. Their freedom would remain restricted to designated black areas. There are no plans to desegregate housing. Education and health services would remain separate and unequal.

And blacks still would be subject to the brutal emergency powers which the government has now resorted to in the effort to curb an incipient revolution, but which in actuality are only hastening it.

The rule of law, in effect, has been suspended. The army and police are empowered to use force as deemed necessary, arrest without charge and search without warrant. They may close down businesses. expropriate essential services. forbid use of cars and travel by the public, ban press coverage and censor communications.

This is change? This is fertile ground for the flowering of freedom and democracy?

The black townships are in a state of simultaneous open rebellion against the white authorities and civil war among rival black factions. Government forces have effectively lost control except when making heavily armed sweeps through the areas, adding to the mounting death toll.

Written Honesty Tests: Alternative To Polygraph?

By Bill Lohmann UPI Feature Writer

A growing number of companies are asking rospective employees some hard questions.

"Did you ever think about committing a robbery?"

"Did you ever think you had a good reason for heating a company out of some money?"

"Do you always tell the truth?"

If the answers are yes, yes and yes, the chances aire good the applicant will not be hired.

Would anyone answer yes to all three? Yes, say the people using and administering "honesty tests," a pencil-and-paper substitute for polygraphs that companies increasingly are using to select employees.

"You'd be amazed at some of the answers." said Walt Kramer, vice president of loss prevention for Harris Teeter Supermarkets in Charlotte. N.C., which has used honesty tests for three years. "Some of them admit, 'If the opportunity "comes up I'm going to steal from you." It amazes me. You wouldn't believe it."

Said Howard Wahl, corporate director of security for Scot Lad Foods, a supermarket wholesaler and retailer based in Lansing. Ill., that has used honesty tests for 17 years. "I guess it shows that dishonest people can at least be honest about the questions."

Business has learned the hard way, through ledger sheets turned red by internal theft and high employee turnover, that honesty and reliability are difficult virtues to determine.

With lie detectors and urinalysis gaining such ugly reputations, these paper-and-pencil tests asking attitudes about everything stealing to smoking marijuana on the job - are gaining wide use

Proponents say honesty tests are cheaper. easier to administer and far less offensive than the alternatives.

Skeptics wonder if a questionnaire that requires less than an hour to complete can be effective in determining honesty. Critics say such tests are simply unfair.

Honesty tests have been around for years, but only recently have they become prominent in the workplace. It is estimated more than 2.5 million such tests are given each year in the United States - easily twice as many as a decade ago. Most are given to job applicants, although some companies also administer them to employees.

According to a recent survey of 390 companies by the American Society for Personnel Administration, 44 percent are considering increasing their pre-employement testing and nearly half are looking seriously at honesty testing.

Honesty Test Questions

By United Press International

Here is a sample of questions asked in the Reid Report, an honesty test for job applicants. Reid officials will not say what is the "right" answer for any question. Instead. psychological experts analyze the entire examination to make a recommendation to prospective employers:

Do you believe you are too honest to steal? • Since you have been 15 years old, have you thought about stealing anything from a store where you were shopping? Do you think policemen are usually • honest?

• If you found when you got home that a salesgirl failed to add a $1 item that you bought, would you return the next day and pay the $1 to the store?

 Did you ever think about stealing money from places where you have worked?

 If you could get into a movie without paying, and be sure you would not get caught. would you do it?

• Do you always tell the truth?

 Do you enjoy stories of successful crimes and swindles?

If you were a large store owner and you found out that an employee had stolen merchandise from you, would you fire him if the total amount was worth less than $5 in one year?

• For 20 years, a man took $10 per week from his employer for needed support of his family of 10 children. When he had raised his last child, another employce told the boss what the man had been doing. Should the boss fire that man?

 Do you think an employee should tell his boss about seeing another employee stealing from his company?

In the past five years, how much money, if any, have you gambled on horse races?

 Have you ever borrowed money from a company where you worked without your employer's knowledge?

Do you feel it is acceptable for an employee to use marijuana or other drugs during work hours or breaks if it does not interfere with his or her effectiveness?

most frequently wind up in the high-risk category.

"I think the major unanswered question is not whether the tests helps in the employment setting but why." said Dr. Carl Willis, a counseling psychologist at the University of Missouri who has studied the Reid tests. "Maybe people respond to the questions from fear their dishonesty will be discovered. Maybe as a society we believe tests work and therefore they do."

The questions include the yes-or-no variety and some needing explanation. Topics range from attitudes toward honesty to employment. financial and social histories to views on drugs and alcohol.

For the test companies, the key might lie in what Walls describes as "distortion questions" that are sprinkled throughout such tests. These are questions the testers believe should be answered the same by all test takers - If they are being honest.

"Did you ever think about cheating anyone out of anything?" is an example of a distortion question on a Stanton test.

"If they answer no," Walls maintains, "the probability is they are being less than truthful."

It is this premise - everyone is at least a little dishonest - that angers the American Civil Liberties Union. Other critics dislike such tests for historical reasons. Twenty-five years ago. some companies were using similar-looking surveys - disguised as employment tests - to weed out potential union members or discriminate against racial groups.

Court rulings later prohibited such practices. but suspicions remain. For example, the AFL-CIO and other employee organizations opposes such testing across the board.

"Generally speaking, this kind of testing is highly subjective, prone to error and could have incredibly unfortunate ramifications for employees who in the minds of their employers might have 'failed the test' even though they might be upstanding, law-abiding citizens." said Phil Sparks, spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Little independent research has been conducted into the validity of honesty tests and the result is plenty of skeptics.

"The accuracy of these things is somewhat questionable at the moment." said a spokesman for the American Psychological Association.

Reports Dr. Paul Sackett an industrial organizational pscyhologist at the University of Illinois at Chicago, "Unfortunately, unequivocal statements about the value of honesty testing cannot be made at this time.'

How To Avoid Home Accidents

Each year, about 23,000 people 65 and older die from injuries sustained in accidents primarily falls. An additional 750,000 or more in this age group suffer injuries whose effects last at least one day.

Older people don't have more frequent accidents than other age groups - but when they do have accidents, they're much more likely to be serious or fatal.

For those over age 74, more than one-third of all falls result in fractures. Broken bones. especially hipbones, restrict acitivity, which is often associated with the development of terminal heart and lung complications.

So accident prevention is important - and the home is the place to start working on it. since most falls occur there.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has begun a nationwide program -Home Safety for Older Consumers - that centers on a home-safety checklist, a 30-page booklet and a room-by-room summary of hazards and remedies that are relatively simple and cheap.

Rugs and stairways are the most common home-accident triggers, and the CPSC offers these tips on minimizing the hazards:

Ruge

 Remove rugs and runners that tend to slide. Apply double-faced adhesive carpet tape or rubber matting to the backs of rugs and runners.

 Purchase new rugs with slip-resistant backing.

· Check rugs and mats periodically to see if backing needs to be replaced.

Stairways

• Stairs should be lighted so that each step. particularly the step edges, can be clearly seen while going up and down stairs.

 Use the maximum wattage bulb allowed by the light fixture.

 Reduce glare by using frosted bulbs, indirect lighting, shades or globes on light fixtures.

 Since lighting is important in preventing falls, have light switches at both the top an bottom of the stairway. If that isn't possible, keep a flashlight at the top and bottom of the stairs.

Using an array of simple "do you believe this is right or wrong?" questions, such personality tests are designed by psychologists to uncover an individual's attitude toward honesty.

In most cases, the answers are analyzed by the company that produces the test and the individual is rated as either a low- or high-risk job candidate.

However, companies that produce the tests stress that they should be used only as a supplement to other screening procedures and never used as the only criterion for hiring or firing employees.

"You should never rely only on the outcome of the tests," said Jim Walls, vice president of the Stanton Corp., of Charlotte, N.C., a major producer of honesty tests.

A big reason for the growing popularity of pre-employment tests is simply the bottom line. A study by Arthur Young & Co., an international accounting firm, shows U.S. retailers lost more than $1.9 billion in 1984 through employee theft. shoplifting and bookkeeping errors.

That figure has steadily increased from year to vear

High-tech security measures have helped, but employers are putting more emphasis on avoiding sticky-fingered workers by not hiring them in the first place.

For a time, polygraph machines - commonly known as lie detectors - appeared to be an answer, but they developed a rather checkered history.

Polygraphs regularly encounter legal questions. can be expensive and are considered by many people - employers and employees alike - to represent an unsavory experience. Their reliability is also in dispute.

Congress is considering stiff federal legislation that would bar most private employers from requiring employees to take lie detector tests in order to get or keep a job. The House has passed such a bill, and similar legislation is pending in the Senate.

Thirty-one states and the District of Columbia already have laws regulating the use of polygraph tests in the workplace.

On the other hand, honesty tests are legal in every state.

"We're more instant and more painless," said Daniel J. Reid, president of Reid Psychological Systems, a Chicago company that first developed honesty tests in 1950 and now serves more than 3.300 clients.

Said Stanton's Walls, who administered more than 25,000 polygraph tests before a change of heart led him to the paper-and-pencil set, "The results of a paper-and-peneil tests are objective. The results of a polygraph test might be somewhat subjective (because of operator interpretation)."

Users of the written tests - the vast majority of whom are retailers of some sort - swear by the tests, saying losses and employee turnover are down.

According to Reid and Stanton, women routinely score better than men and young people

Officials with the Reid and Stanton companies said studies show their tests rate between 80 percent and 90 percent as effective as polygraph tests. However, polygraph tests have never themselves never been considered foolproof.

No matter. Companies that use the tests are believers.

'Our shrinkage (amount of lost revenues through employee theft, shoplifting and bookkeeping errors) is lower than any of our competitors," said Harris-Tecter's Kramer, who oversees loss prevention in the supermarket chain's 112 stores throughout the South. "I don't know how much of that is because of the tests. but I can tell you it has something to do with it."

"It's getting to be ridiculous." said Scot Lad Foods' Wahl, a 27-year security veteran. "Companies are losing billions of dollars. How many people have actually been apprehended for theft and prosecuted? Very few people get caught and in the retail business, even if someone gets caught, they usually don't get prosecuted. So, you call for a background check and you don't get anything.

We need something. In the near future, I see nearly everyone using these type of tests," said Wahl, adding in 17 years only a handful of people have told him they were offended by the tests.

There should be sturdy handrails fastened securely on both sides of the stairway that extend the full length of the stairs. If they don't, people may think they have come to the last step when the handrail stops. Misjudging the last step can cause a fall.

Worn treads or worn or loose carpeting can lead to insecure footing, resulting in slips or falls.

• Try to avoid wearing only socks or smooth-soled shoes or slippers when using stairs.

Make certain the carpet is firmly attached to the steps all along the stairs.

 Consider refinishing or replacing worn treads, or replacing worn carpeting. Worn or torn coverings or nails sticking out from coverings could snag your foot or cause you to trip.

 Don't store objects on the stairs, even temporarily. You can trip over them. particularly if there's an emergency or fire.

Reporting Shows Negative Bias

Having reviewed the respective columns of the Evening Herald and Orlando Sentinel reporting what occurred before the Seminole County Commission on June 3. 1986 regarding the land use change request, it is, indeed, interesting to note the obvious difference of philosophy of reporting the "news." While both articles use a negative approach to the situation, the Herald's article is much more objective and, at least, offers more of a balance as to what occurred than does that of the Sentinel. While the Sentinel reporter does not mis-state any facts, he is guilty of the sin of omission for not presenting both sides of the controversy.

It is inconceivable to me that a member of the news media. especially the Sentinel who has been so outspoken and vocal against the Commissioners, not only in Seminole but throughout Central Florida and the state, for failing to plan for the future. would suggest that the Commissioners who approved a growth plan should be cast in a bad light.

The irony is that you choose to put Commissioner (Bill) Kirchhoff on a pedestal for his ignorant comments and failed to look beyond the surface of tion that plans should not be approved until services were in place. I will never accuse Mr. Kirchhoff of having good sense due to the fact that it is Mr. Kirchhoff and some of his previous commission cronics who literally strangled the growth and, therefore, the improvement to services in the Longwood, Lake Mary, Lake Emma Road. Longwood-Markham Woods Road areas. His philosophy 10 years ago was for five-acre lots and dirt roads: and therefore. money for planning and development in those areas went to other areas of the county. One does not have to be very bright to realize that an area on both sides of an interstate between two interchanges was not destined to remain residential acreage for long, and anyone with good sense would have planned for water, sewer and transportation needs 10 years ago.

Fortunately, Mr. Kirchhoff's pompous, backwards approach is overshadowed by the members of the commission who recognize the need for planning for the future growth of Seminole County.

Your respective articles fail to make any reference to the fact that immediately across the street from the subject property, the city of Oviedo per annum."

has approved 7,800 residential units. How can anybody with good sense suggest that "we've got to look at this" for another year. The time to plan for future services is now, not sit on our hands and wait until services are installed before land use plans are made. Michael D. Jones

For all of the many comprehensive recommendations of the Rogers Commission designed to prevent a repetition of the Challenger disaster. the report contains one glaring ommission. It does not affix responsibility on anyone for what it calls "an accident rooted in history."

"Accident" in what sense? Certainly, what occurred was unexpected and unintentional. But, just as certainly, the tragedy was not the result of fortune or chance. This one major deficiency is probably symptomatic of the age in which we live. We blame "the system." We blame "society." We blame "the environment." We blame unkind fate. But one must never, ever attribute to the individual responsibility for his or her own actions.

The commission's report is a classic 'whodunnit'' - but without the "who."

Hemingway 25 Years After His Death, A New 'Papa' Emerging

By Cynthia Flash

KETCHUM. Idaho (UPI) - A quarter-century has passed since Ernest Hemingway, who gave the world crisply crafted tales of hunting, fishing, love and war, ended his life at the age of 61 with a shotgun blast.

As the anniversary of Hemingway's July 2. 1961, death approaches, there is widespread new interest in the Nobel Laureate and Pulitzer Prize winner.

Two of his early novels were released this year. Two new biographies were published. The author's eldest son, Jack, who lives in Ketchum. where his father committed suicide, released an autobiography in May.

More books already have been written about Hemingway than perhaps any other American author and critics, supporters, relatives and friends of the one-time war correspondent agree interest in Hemingway is still burgeoning.

For decades Hemingway has been portrayed as a macho, womanizing, hard-drinking outdoorsman, but those who are taking a new look at him say a different image is emerging.

"There is a new way of seeing him now." said Jack Hemingway, who believes much of the new interest was generated this year when his father's books, manuscripts and letters were brought together at the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston.

"Because of that, there has been a lot of scholarship in Hemingway that is more thorough," he said. "If you look at the 1960s, Hemingway was viewed on the basis of the myth of his lifestyles rather than viewing his work. Machismo was badly viewed; feminism was becoming a more noble cause.

"I think the feminists took him apart and assumed he mistreated women. I think the scholarship that is going on now has pointed out that his male protagonists were sensitive people with weaknesses of their own. They were hurt by war and drink."

Patrick Hemingway, the author's second son, who lives in Bozeman, Mont., said his father's public personality was at odds with the prevailing trends following his death.

"To a certain extent his public personality is more in keeping with public opinion now. His public personality is more fashionable now and the passage of time has shown that his writing holds up well," he said.

Tom Jenks, who edited the latest Hemingway release, "Garden of Eden," said, "Those people who have scorned Hemingway for machismo and a kind of brutality in his public life will have to reassess him because of the tenderness and vulnerability he displays in the book."

Also published this year was Hemingway's "The Dangerous Summer."

Family and friends say they are not according any special significance to 1986 as the 25th anniversary year of Hemingway's death.

But events linked to the anniversary have been held in Cuba, where he wrote and fished; in Illinois, where he was born; and a yearlong commemoration is under way at Boise State University in Boise, about 130 miles from Hemingway's grave in Ketchum.

"There has been torrential interest in him." said Norman Weinstein, a scholar who planned Bolse State's year of events.

"It's been astonishing how he has turned up all over the place. Audiences are hungry for information about this writer, who is undergoing a national revival."

Weinstein said the values in Hemingway's books have to do with "maintaining a state of grace and courage in an absurd and violent world."

While scholars seek to re-discover Hemingway. there are still those who cherish him as he was.

Some of Hemingway's friends still live in Ketchum, a town about one mile from the resort community of Sun Valley, where the author wrote and spent his summers during the final 30 years of his life.

"He was a warm, kind man with a wonderful sense of humor." said Clara Spiegel. a Ketchum resident who typed "For Whom the Bell Tolla" and whose late husband was an ambulance driver with Hemingway in Italy during World War I.

Hemingway, who won the Pulitzer Prize for "The Old Man and the Sea" in 1952 and was given the Nobel Prize for literature in 1954, has been called a proud and boastful sportsman aware of his own greatness.

But Spiegel said she knew a different Hemingway.

"I went hunting with him every day and never heard him boast to anyone." she said. "I found him to be modest."

Ruth Purdy, who with her husband owned a ranch near Ketchum that Hemingway visited nearly every day for morning hunts, said the author was fussy about shooting within the legal limit and "was a great lover of wildlife."

Purdy said the Hemingway she remembers has little in common with the Hemingway commonly depicted.

"I never saw him womanizing. He made all women feel special." she said. "I have nothing but good memories of Papa. He was always very kind to all of us."

China's Lost Generation

Editor's Note: They were born just seven years apart, but culturally are separated by a revolution. The older Liu Jianguo, a pseudonym, grew up a member of the Marxist Red Guard and true believer in Mao's "Red Book." The younger Bo Weiping, also a pseudonym, is a disciple of Deng Xiaoping with faith in cold cash and hard rock. In Peking, UPI's Ann Scott has looked at China's "lost generation" and its new "me generation." She has found two Chinas with very little in common.

How did those "bright guys who ran a terrific little revolution and wrote some great stuff" make such a dumb decision? The answer is simple: They took a vote. Any time you get a bunch of politicians together for a vote ... they'll deliberate for hours, days or years, and then come up with a plan that will most likely put the whole deal smack in the middle of a stinking fen.

Congress' decision - seven years in the making - would have consequences disastrous beyond the discomfort of swarms of sweltering summer tourists. #### Capitol Hill In Black And White Robert Parker (Dodd Mead, 261 pps) $16.951

If one were to judge a book by its cover. Capitol Hill in Black and White - billed Revelations of the Inside of Power Politics by the Black Former Maitre'd of the Senate Dining Room" - would appear to be just like another tell-all by White House underlings

But this is a poignant story of Robert Parker - son of a sharecropper and great-grandson of a slave - and the brutal racism he confronted in Washington, Parker, who started as a driver for then Congressman Lyndon Johnson, illustrates his shocking saga with vivid recollections of the leading politicians of the postwar era.

Parker expresses his ambivalence toward LBJ, who was responsible for the most sweeping civil rights legislation, but who regularly called Parker "boy" or "nigger." Johnson once asked Parker if it bothered him never to be called by name. When Parker answered with a cautious ves. Johnson shouted, "Let me tell you one thing, nigger. As long as you are black, no one's gonner call you by your goddamn name. So no matter what you are called, nigger, you just let it roll off your back. Pretend you're a goddam piece of furniture."

LBJ regularly "loaned" Parker to chauffeur such luminaries as Sen. Estes Kefauver and Rep. Carl Albert to an apartment building for blacks where, Parker alleges, the congressmen had regular midnight trysts.

This is not a pretty story - Parker is unsparing in his descriptions of Sens. Richard Russell and John McClellan, among many others - but it is an instructive one. That Parker, had he been white, might have been on the receiving rather than the serving end in the Senate Dining Room will occur to most readers. He was a study in restraint as he served Sen. Theodore Bilbo, who had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan while governor of Mississippi. "The only way to treat a nigger is to kick him." Bilbo said as LBJ agreed.

"I came to Washington believing that the capital's heart was open to blacks." Parker writes. "In Washington sat educated lawmakers who had sworn to uphold the Constitution. But what 1 heard at the private parties where I served was depressing beyond words .... Senators like Bilbo, Russell and Mc-Clellan bragged from one dinner party to the next. There will never be integration. Never

It used to be said that Lyndon Presson for whom Benchley once wrote spectres was larger than life. Benjamin Winslow for whom speech writer Transhy Burnham works in Benchley's G Clearance is larger than LBJ

The man terrorizes everybody except his secretary, who knows him all too well, and Burnham, who doesn't know much about how to behave in the presence of the mighty but can quote Dr. Samuel Johnson at length and blurt out common sense ideas

This is the second book this season by an author who worked as a White House speech writer. Both Benchley and Christopher Buckley, who spun prose for George Bush, undertake to give us a tour of the pretensions, posturing and perk battles that go on behind the iron fence around 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. Buckley's "White House Mess" wins on points for hilarity, but Benchley offers a broader satirical view of Washington life and a more interesting story line.

Benchley's spies are a Russian mole named Pym. his daughter and unwilling accomplice. Eva. and a White House cleaning lady with a sore knee who rifles Burnham's waste basket. The waste basket contains atomic secrets Burnham doesn't want or understand but keeps getting because he is, for budget purposes, an official of the Energy Department on loan to the White House.

The Russians do get some of Burnham's hush-hush documents, but we are led to believe no great harm is done and he eventually rides off into the sunset with the toothsome Eva. One wonders how that will sell in the year of the Walker family, Jerry Whitworth, Ronald Pelton, Larry Chin and the Pollards.

"We were victimized by our faith." he says. "Maoism was almost a religion. After our faith was disavowed, we lost our bearings." Liu's disillusionment is characteristic of members of China's "lost generation," now approaching middle age, whose teenage idealism was shattered by the failure and ultimate damnation of the Cultural Revolution by the Deng regime. "The Cultural Revolution left an indelible mark on my mind." he said. "I've tried to erase the images, but I can't completely."

"It instilled me with a gruesome, somber puritanism." Self-sacrifice was both an economic and moral necessity in Mao's decade of austerity. His egalitarian policies snuffed out private enterprise and caused output to plummet.

"We all wore shabby clothes. Wages were very, very low," Liu said. "But people seemed satisfied, anyway. Today I sense much more unhappiness, even though people have televisions and washing machines. Today all people talk about is money."

Since Mao's death in 1976. Deng has attacked blind adherence to Maoist doctrine, dismantled Mao's personality cult and adopted a pragmatic strategy for modernizing China with the aid of foreign ideas and expertise.

Deng's market-oriented economic reforms have sparked a consumer revolution, as neon

Ireland Puts Divorce On Ballot

By Mary Davis

. . . . . .

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) -Heaven-made or not. marriage is forever in the Republic of Ireland, one of the last bastions where divorce is prohibited by law. But that may soon change.

On Thursday, voters will decide whether to amend the constitution and at least make divorce available - if not easy for the first time in the nation's history. Pre-election polls indicate the vote may be close.

Proposal is tough by most standards. It requires a five-year legal separation before a divorce h can even be considered, and even then a decree is not automatic: During the separation a couple has to prove their marriage has "failed."

Supporters of divorce, many of them feminists, would prefer "marriage breakdown" to "marriage failure" in the language of the proposal. They worry that male-dominated courts will interpret failure more rigidly than many divorce scekers.

Still, supporters have been willing to compromise.

"Sure. it's a long way from no-fault. And we may be stuck with the five-year restriction for a long time. But we have to go at it slowly, one step at a time," said Sen. Mary Robinson of Dublin, a champion of human rights in the Irish Dail (parliament).

Not all Irish women agree.

Opponent Alice Glenn, a Fianna Fail Party representative in the Dail and an outspoken leader of the anti-divorce campaign, said "women stand to lose everything from divorce. We don't want to go down the road sure.

In a "divorce culture" such as America, she said, statistics show that women and children usually get "dumped on. A woman voting for divorce is like a turkey voting for Christmas."

Irish voters are not known for embracing liberal issues. Earlier this decade an abortion amendment was defeated in a similar nationwide referendum.

"It was too much for the public to take all at once." said a member of the Divorce Action Group. Abortion likely will not surface again in Ireland this century.

Divorce advocates have, how-FitzGerald and his Fine Gael-Labor coalition government.

"Legal divorce will not bring thousands of couples suddenly rushing into the courts." said lawyer Mary Ellen Ring. a native American who has lived in Dublin the past decade.

Home, Look To Sanford Place.

LOOK AT THE COMMUNITY

The historic community of Senford offers homebuyers a friendly, family atmosphere. Yet this quiet, scenic town is taking a new direction, with the development of nearby shopping, restaurants and recreational facilities. An emphasis on hometown value has been placed in the foreground of the master plan for Sanford Place.

LOOK AT IT'S PROXIMITY TO WORK

Sanford Place is a convenient 16 minutes from most major employment centers in the Orlando area. Located in central Seminole County, Sanford Place is moments away from Maitland Center, Altamonte Springs and Downtown. The tranguil setting and proximity to I-4 make Sanford Place a natural choice for people working almost anywhere in the Orlando area.

LOOK AT THE VALUE

Through careful planning and stringent guidelines, Sanford Place creates a neighborhood of outstanding value and beauty. Our community gives you the confidence to make one of your most important purchases an easy decision. Priced from the 50's, Sanford Place provides exceptional affordability, quality and the right direction for value and convenience.

LOOK AT THE HOMES

In a Sanford Place home, you'll find custom features you never imagined in homes priced from the 50's. Sanford Place also offers no-nonsense, FHA, VA and conventional financing and pays all normal closing cost.

Sanford Place adds all the extras. Extras you'll not find other places. And, extras that add up to common sense value.

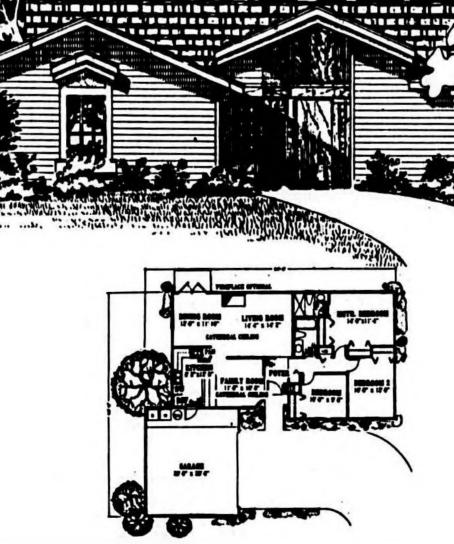

Doesn't it make sense not to scale for a house just to live in? Come and experience the feeling of an exciting Sanford Place home. A home that can be yours, too. Isn't that exciting?
