Longwood Selection Panel Decries Intrusion

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Members of a professional screening committee, which has been asked to screen applicants for the city administrator position in Longwood, threatened Monday night to withdraw if the city commissioners insisted on suggesting applicants they might like who weren't among the finalists.

A member of the selection committee, former Sanford city manager Warren A. "Pete"

Knowles, met with the city commission at a worksession prior to the regular meeting to find out what qualifications the city officials are looking for in a city administrator. So far 29 applications have been received and the deadline for applications has been extended to March 15. Among the applications is that of former Matland City Manager Steve McMahon, who is retired in North Carolina.

Commissioner Richard Bullington said he wanted copies of all the city administrator applications so that he could go over them to see if there were some he particularly wanted considered, but which the screening committee might have overlooked.

Knowles reminded the commission of what occurred after he retired as city manager of Sanford. He said a professional screening committee was named to screen applications for his replacement, but three weeks later the city commission decidated they also wanted a five person citizens committee to review the applications and submit their choices. He said at that point the ethics committee withdrew the professional screening committee because they didn't want to get involved with a struggle within the commission or a competition.

Knowles said this would be the case in Longwood if the commissioners insisted on coming up with their own selections in addition to the 5 or 10 top finalists chosen by the committee for the commission to interview and make the final selection.

He said he would withdraw and at least one other member of the three-man committee had said he would do the same. Other professional administrators on the committee are Phil Penland of Altamonte Springs and Dave Harden of Winter Park.

Aviation Director Defends Air Crash Search Efforts

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The aviation director of the Greater Sanford Regional Airport said Monday he believes security guards at the airport did an outstanding job in their efforts to locate the wreckage of a plane that crashed there Thursday night despite questions from the survivor of the crash as to why it took so long for him to be found.

J. S. "Red" Cleveland said bad weather and the fact that the plane was never reported as having crashed, but just late, caused searchers to make only routine checks, rather than an extensive search of the entire area.

A 47-year-old West Virginia man had to spend 12 hours trapped in the cockpit with the dead pilot of a Cessna 441 twin-engine turbo-prop after it crashed about 300 yards north of the runway. The crash occurred at about 10:15 p.m. Thursday.

The plane was found at about 8:50 a.m. Friday in a grassy field about 300 yards north of the runway next to an unused taxiway.

John Hardesty, a businessman from Morgantown, W. Va., said all he could do was wait for rescuers to come to his aid, but that he couldn't understand why no one saw the plane sooner. He said he could see cars traveling on nearby State Road 16 not far from where the plane crashed and was frustrated no one saw him.

Hardesty is listed in fair condition at Orlando Regional Medical Center. He was airlifted there after Sanford fire department personnel got him out of the plane Friday morning.

Doctors at ORMC said Hardesty is suffering from a compression fracture of his back and will require surgery in the future to correct the problem. ORMC Spokesman Joe Brown said today that no decision has been reached yet on when or if Hardesty is to have surgery.

During an interview from his hospital bed Monday, Hardesty said he has had back problems in the past, mostly due to his participation in aviation over the years. He said he obtained his own pilot's license at the age of 17.

The plane was reported overdue by air traffic controllers at Orlando International Airport at about 10:40 p.m. Thursday, according to Cleveland. The controllers had given the plane clearance to land at the Sanford airport at 10:12 p.m.

Hardesty said that on the plane's approach he could only see the blue lights on the ground, which indicated a taxiway instead of a runway. White lights indicate runway lights at airports, he said.

When he saw the blue lights, Hardesty said he suggested the pilot turn around and try another approach. He said the next thing he knew he was upside down in the cockpit of the plane.

The runway lights at the Sanford airport are activated by pilots as they make their approach to the airport, according to Bill White, a maintenance employee at the airport.

Sex Suit Settlement Rejected

Housing Authority Says No

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Housing Authority voted unanimously Monday night to reject an offer from former interim director Linda Williams for payment of $35,000 in return for her dropping a sex discrimination suit against the authority, and her claim for reinstatement as executive director.

Ned Julian, the authority's attorney, recommended the offer be rejected. He said he expected no testimony in addition to what was presented before a Florida Commission on Human Relations hearing officer to be presented at a trial in the case. The hearing officer ruled that there was insufficient evidence of sexual discrimination in the hiring of Elliott Smith as authority director in 1982.

Julian also said Williams' offer to settle for $35,000 plus attorney fees and costs does not represent a compromise, but the full amount of settlement a court could be expected to award if it ruled in her favor.

Authority members voted to reject the offer and let the case proceed to trial. Julian said the trial would probably be scheduled for late March or early April.

Williams was interim director at the time applications were taken for a new executive director. Julian said authority members, none of whom are still serving on the authority, deadlocked, with two applicants getting two votes, and a third applicant getting one vote. When it became apparent that none of the applicants under consideration could get more than two votes, authority members compromised on Elliott Smith, who was hired by a 4-1 vote. Julian said. Smith is still executive director.

Julian said unfortunately, the tape recordings of that meeting cannot be located and so are not available to find out exactly what debate and conversations were held leading up to the

Discrimination Suit

Sanford Housing Authority members voted to reject a settlement offer in a sex discrimination suit.

- Plaintiff: Linda Williams
- Defendant: Sanford Housing Authority
- Settlement offer from plaintiff: $35,000 and reinstatement as executive director
- Claim: Plaintiff claims she was passed over for selection as executive director of Authority based on sex
- Prior ruling: Florida Commission on Human Relations held there was no basis for suit votes. The board also was scheduled to approve plans and specifications and authorize advertising for bids for re-roofing buildings in the Redding Gardens project, and for termite eradication in the Lake Monroe Terrace project.

However, members Bob Ball and Terri Buratti argued that the consulting architects were to provide a plan to provide ventilation for apartments in the Redding Gardens development in conjunction with installing new roofs.

The work is to be completed with a $197,000 emergency grant from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. Estimated cost of the work is $152,000 for the roofing and $45,000 for the termite eradication.

Smith told the members that the money should be spent as soon as possible since it is an emergency grant. He said HUD would be more likely to approve future emergency grants if this one was handled properly.

He told Buratti and Ball that the architects reported that pro See SUIT, page 8A

Attorney Announces Second Bid For County Post

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood Attorney Jerry Korman has entered the Republican primary for Seminole County Commission, District 3.

Korman, 51, is the third Republican to enter the race so far. Incumbent Fred Streetman, who is serving his first term as a commissioner and his second one-year term as board chairman, has filed papers for re-election, and Robert Webster of rural Apopka in southwest Seminole County has also filed for the position.

Korman, who says he has phased out the majority of his legal practice over the past couple of years, now manages real estate investments from his office on State Road 434 just west of its junction with U.S. Highway 17-92.

He says one of his chief objectives if elected to the board

Candidate For County Commission

Jerry Korman has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Seminole County Commission, District 3.

- Residence: Longwood; 15 years in Seminole County
- Occupation: Attorney
- Party: Republican

• Political Background: Unsuccessful candidate for county commission as a Democrat in 1980

• Post Sought: Republican nomination Seminole County Commission, District 3

• Opposition: Fred Streetman, Robert Webster

will be to foster better relations between county government and the cities of the county, a task which he thinks can better be accomplished with some fresh faces on the county board of commissioners.

"County government is in a leadership position among governments in the county, and should set an example for cooperation," he says. Citing lawsuits between the county and cities, Korman says: "Cities share some of the blame in this, but the county should lead the way in fostering cooperation and make a greater effort to understand the problems of the cities. I think the county's attitude has too long been one of arrogance. County officials seem reluctant to sit down and discuss differences with city officials before going to court over them."

Korman, who has served on the Altamonte Plan 2000 steering committee and as a sub-committee chairman, and is presently chairman of the Longwood Planning Commission, also thinks the county should take more active steps in complying with the state's growth management law before it takes effect in 1991.

He proposes a special review committee, made up of representatives of the cities, and county government to review proposed developments of county-wide impact in the same way that developments of regional impact are now reviewed by the county and regional planning agencies.

"I am not against development, but don't want to let it get out of hand. The county has approved developments in the

CORRECTION

Due to a reporting error Sunday's Sanford Herald inaccurately reported that City County Investigative Bureau Commander Lt. Donald Eslinger had been arrested Friday afternoon on charges of trafficking in cocaine and possession of cocaine. Eslinger was not arrested. The Herald regrets the error.

The story reported on the arrests of two Sanford men who allegedly kept about two kilograms of cocaine, which was part of a total of about 13 kilograms of cocaine one of the arrested men found in woods in rural Longwood Wednesday. Eleven kilograms of the cocaine were surrendered to CCIB agents after the find, but at least two kilograms were withheld, and that led to the arrest of the pair, agents reported.

Seminolians: Fair And Cool

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Yesterday it rained - just as suggested, mainly because lots of us need some water on our grass. Today, nay. Just cool air and, for the most part, clear skies. It'll be even cooler tonight. Down into the low 40s but tomorrow it will bounce right back into civilized numbers on the thermometer. Will stay that way the rest of the week.

Now before you start getting smug, the week-end will not warrant as gold medal except for real, died-in-the-wool couch potatoes intent on watching the Winter Olympics. It'll probably be raining some of the time, and cloudy most of the time. But, no cold weather on the way.

In fact, our sister city to the south, Vero Beach, tied three towns out in California for having the highest high temperature in the nation yesterday - 82 degrees. A place you've heard of often, Gunnison, Minn., had the lowest low, but that was only minus 14. Things are warming up in Minnesota.

Fact is, traveling up the Atlantic coast will not be a terrible thing right now. Temperatures rang in the lows from the 30s to the 40s, and highs from the 40s to the 50s from Georgia to D.C. "Course, noth of there it gets a little silly, but what do you expect for places north of Virginia.

Seminolians enjoyed temperatures in the 70s yesterday and a real nice rain. Lows dipped into the 40s but weren't bad. Sans rain, today, and maybe tomorrow, will be the same.

Let's take a weather whirl around the nation.

A mixture of sleet and snow lashed northern New England today, with a pre-dawn freezing rain slapping New Hampshire before the polls opened for the nation's first 1988 presidential primary.

In the Granite State, patches of freezing rain early this morning prompted National Weather Service warnings of icy roads, and forecasters called for snow today, with an inch or 2 possible statewide. State election officials predicted a very heavy turnout of voters from both the Republican and the Democratic parties.

A mixture of snow, sleet and freezing rain was reported over northern New England, with rains stretching from central and southern New England through the mid-Atlantic coastal states into eastern North Carolina, the weather service said.

Snow advisories for 3 to 5 inches were up over Maine, and a winter weather advisory for freezing rain, sleet and snow covered much of the state.

High wind warnings were lifted over the northern Rockies after a passing cold front stalled a chinook wind.

On Monday afternoon winds gusting to 70 mph were reported over parts of Wyoming, but the cold front early today caused winds to shift, and "as a result, the chinook effect is no longer in place," forecaster Pete Reynolds said.

The wind shift prompted the cancellation of high wind warnings for southeast Wyoming and snow and blowing snow warnings for the mountains of Colorado, where the chinook Monday gusted to 60 mph in some areas.

New Hampshire Voters To Make Candidates Sink, Help Them Swim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 12 major presidential candidates battled in the final hours of more than a year's campaigning and cajoling in New Hampshire, where today's first-in-the-nation primary will collapse the dreams of some and boost drama locally the hopes of others.

The latest polls released Monday night showed Vice President George Bush, once the heavy favorite among Granite State Republicans, virtually tied with Senate GOP leader Robert Dole of Kansas, winner of last week's Iowa caucuses.

Among Democrats, surveys by CBS News, published in The New York Times, and ABC News together with The Washington Post showed Michael Dukakis, governor of neighboring Massachusetts, with a commanding lead of more than 20 points. The big fight was the struggle for second between Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt, the Iowa winner, and Illinois Sen. Paul Simon, last week's runner-up.

Officials Dismiss Robertson Claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration adamantly denies Cuba has deployed Soviet nuclear missiles, and a Senate aide has traced that explosive claim from GOP presidential candidate Pat Robertson to a speech by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

In the speech, however, Helms suggested but never offered any proof that the Soviets could hide missiles in Cuba. His arguments appeared merely a part of his fight against the new INF treaty, the U.S.-Soviet accord under scrutiny in Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings set to resume today.

Robertson made a much bolder declaration Sunday, and on the campaign trail in New Hampshire Monday he tried to modify it while standing by it in the face of outright dismissal from all corners of the Reagan administration.

Alleged Beatings, Live Burial Of Youths Probed By Military

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The army, reeling from allegations that Israeli soldiers have indiscriminately beaten Arab protesters, said two soldiers have been arrested on charges they buried alive four Arab youths after an anti-Israel riot in a West Bank village.

Also Monday, a secret committee organizing bloody Palestinian protests in the West Bank and Gaza Strip called for the first time for attacks on Jewish settlers.

Military commanders expressed shock at allegations that Israeli troops and a Jewish settler assaulted the four youths, then ordered a bulldozer operator to bury them in a foot of dirt. The youths survived.

Communist Head Reported Killed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The military is investigating reports that a rebel chief was killed in combat in El Salvador's 8-year-old civil war, posing a major setback for the communist insurgency.

Officials said Monday soldiers reported killing Ferman Cienfuegos, leader of one of the five Marxist-led armies fighting to topple the U.S.-backed government, during a battle last Wednesday in northern Chalatenango province.

Researcher: More Deaths, Fewer Births

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — A lower birth rate and increasing deaths among Florida's many elderly residents will slow annual population growth over the next 30 years, a researcher says.

But despite the annual growth slowing from about 3 percent to 1 percent, the number of Floridians will increase by half by 2020, says Stan Smith, population program director at the University of Florida's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

"Florida's population is already very old — the oldest in the United States — and is becoming older still," Smith said. "What that means is that you have a higher proportion of the population in the high-mortality old-age group. So the number of deaths in the state is going up steadily."

It's often said that about 1,000 people a day move into Florida, but it's less often mentioned that 50 people leave for every 100 people that move in, Smith said. And the number of out-migrants will grow relative to the number of in-migrants.

Meanwhile, the "baby boomlet" created by children of baby boomers is coming to an end, and the children of the 60s and 70s — a smaller group than the baby boom generation — are the ones entering their child-bearing years.

A study released by the university's College of Business projects Florida's 1987 population of about 12 million will grow to almost 13 million in 1990, 16 million by 2000, and over 19 million in 2020.

Dade, Florida's most populous county at 1.8 million, will grow by about 187,000 or 10.4 percent by 2000, the study projects. No. 2 Broward will grow by 242,000 or 20.5 percent, and number three Pinellas by 121,000 or 14.6 percent.

Two the 10 most populous counties, Orange and Volusia, will grow by about one-third, and Brevard will grow by 38 percent.

The counties projected to have the greatest percentage growth are not those that will have the greatest growth in actual numbers of people. Counties with smaller populations top the list for percentage growth.

Madison, Washington, Hamilton, Calhoun and Franklin counties are expected to grow less than 10 percent during the 13-year period from 1987 to 2000.

H.S. Grads Need Training For Jobs

The plight of poor young women and children has galvanized state legislatures and Congress to review social policy in hopes of breaking the cycle of welfare dependency.

But what of "the forgotten half"—the non-college youth who are the fathers of those children but, all too often, not the husbands of those young women?

Even though a higher proportion of America's youth are completing high school and delaying parenthood than ever before, they have less and less to show for their accomplishments, as statistics compiled by the William T. Grant Foundation Commission on Work, Family and Citizenship make plain.

The real incomes of 20-to-24-year-old male high school graduates fell by 28 percent between 1973 and 1986. In 1986, fewer than half of high school graduates not in college had full-time jobs two years after graduation. As a result, only 43.7 percent of non-college young men now earn enough to support a wife and child at or above the official poverty line. Lacking adequate incomes, they are less able to marry or hold families together. One American child in five is now born to an unmarried woman, a proportion that has tripled in a generation.

Part of this decline in the well-being of the young stems from causes that have afflicted the entire economy. The slump in U.S. manufacturing and the shift toward service jobs with higher educational requirements has decreased employment opportunities for non-college youth. Fifteen years of inflation and slow growth have squeezed incomes across the board.

But a larger part of the problems of non-college youth stems from sheer institutional neglect. While the United States lavishes more than $100 billion a year on education for college students, it invests a pittance in preparing non-college youth for the work world. Much of public vocational education is outdated, the federal Job Partnership Training Act serves only a small fraction of low-income youth, and the Job Corps has only 40,000 slots a year.

"For the students not going on to college, school ends one day and the search for a job—any job, not a career—begins the next," the commission notes.

In the case of welfare mothers, policy-makers now recognize the need to link recipients to the world of work through the training and educational services of workforce programs. But the larger need is to build reliable bridges between school and work for all non-college youth.

In West Germany, half of all 15-to-18-year-olds participate in apprenticeships that combine schooling with on-the-job training and produce, at graduation, a young person with a skill, a job and an opportunity for adult responsibility.

Such institutions need a serious look in America, as does the whole range of programs the Grant Foundation report recommends: improved schooling for non-college-bound youth, more opportunities for national and community service and greater access to training and educational remediation for dropouts and high school graduates needing to upgrade their job skills.

Without a serious effort to improve the lives and opportunities of non-college young men, America's hopes of ending the welfare cycle, and the wasted lives it produces, are slim.

Matching Funds Don't Improve Candidates

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Someone who is a better mathematician than I has figured out that the current presidential campaign is the fourth the nation has endured since the Internal Revenue Service began permitting citizens to earmark a dollar of their federal income taxes for politics.

I will leave it to others, especially pundits who were in Iowa, to figure out whether all this generosity has achieved the goal of making the candidates less dependent on "outside" campaign contributions.

I can tell you, however, that it has done little to improve the quality of money. And would anyone seriously suggest the batch of candidates now assembled in New Hampshire is superior to those that went queuing for the nominations of both parties before matching funds became available?

I thought not. I can hear such suggestions being made on the back row but there is a question in my mind as to how serious they are.

There were, I understand, nearly 3,000 reporters and photographers in Iowa, or almost one per candidate.

A quick reading of history will show the past four campaigns have done little to improve the quality of our presidents, who, in the order of their appearance, were Jerry Ford, Jimmy Carter and Ronnie Reagan.

And would you seriously suggest that Richard Nixon, say, was as better president than, say, Abraham Lincoln?

If so, you must read different history books than I.

Roll Call, a Capitol Hill weekly newspaper, recently published a list of "negatrends," or "important things that will not happen" in 1988. I realize this is no history, but the list implied that those of us in the media don't consider Iowa a very sexy state except during a presidential election year.

It said, "The day after the Iowa caucuses, no major media figure, except Willard Scott, will mention the state by name until 1992."

Scott, the last time I tuned in, was a television weatherman. However, any implication that the rest of the nation only cares about the amount of snow Iowa exports is entirely false.

Sure there is a trade deficit. But Iowa gets most of its snowfall out of Canada, with whom we recently signed a new pact, like the rest of us.

It may have been a mite chilly during the caucuses, but that is no reason to suppose the entire state will disappear down a pothole, or something, until 1992.

Speaking of sexy, I note that Gary Hart finished well back in the Democratic pack. Guess there weren't enough adulterers in the state.

Be that as it may, I personally am glad the IRS provides a blank to check for those of us whom wish to contribute. To me, Hart's attempted comeback in Iowa was well worth a dollar.

Robertson Isn't Reagan

By Arnold Sawaluk
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A fellow in our office with an eye for parallels noted last Tuesday that Pat Robertson is a conservative, an advocate of old-fashioned virtues, an accomplished television communicator and, according to the experts, a sure loser in his 1988 quest for the presidency.

In 1980, he continued, a man with the much the same credentials also was written off by political pundits, but Ronald Reagan won the presidency anyway.

The similarities are valid as far as they go, but there are some differences between Reagan in 1980 and Robertson in 1988 that may be more important.

The first is the experience of the two men. Although his opponents persisted in referring to him as a movie actor, Reagan ran for president with two relatively successful terms as governor of the most populous state in the nation under his belt. Robertson has never been elected to any public office.

This point has some historical significance. Not counting George Washington, only five of the 39 presidents since 1789 have not held some elective office before winning the presidency. Zachary Taylor, U.S. Grant and Dwight Eisenhower were hero generals; William Howard Taft and Herbert Hoover were Cabinet members.

The other 1988 presidential hopeful who never won an election is Jesse Jackson.

Another striking difference between Reagan and Robertson is the political party standing of each.

Robertson has never participated in Republican politics until he decided to seek the GOP presidential nomination and is regarded with some suspicion by many state and national party leaders. In fact, the Robertson effort to date in both Michigan and Iowa pitted his church-based constituency against the party establishment. The party people apparently beat him in Michigan, but he made monkeys of them in Iowa.

Reagan, on the other hand, was well established in the party before 1980. Not only did he restore the GOP to power in California, Reagan began as far back as 1972 to build a national power base.

By 1976, he had loyalists in key party positions and in some cases firm control of state parties across the country. Reagan also established a national political organization under the name Citizens For The Republic to support GOP candidates. CFR converted easily to Citizens For Reagan in 1979.

CHUCK STONE

Polls Distort System

Pollsters who pontificate about an election upset sound like Flip Wilson doing his routine on Columbus discovering America.

"We came here to discover y'all," Wilson's Columbus tells the Indians.

"S'pose we don't want to be discovered," the Indians reply. "How you gon' discover us when we been here all the time?"

So it is with the voters in presidential election 1988.

They have been there all the time. They have decided on candidates. The problem is the pollsters don't know which voters feel the strongest. That's known as intensity, and pollsters don't know how to measure it. Nor are pollsters able to assess how many are likely to make last-minute switches.

Five-and-a-half years ago, a dramatic last-minute switch happened when Mario Cuomo scored an "upset" win over Ed Koch in New York's Democratic gubernatorial primary. But it was no upset. The voters simply switched sides before the pollsters caught on.

In Iowa, Pat Robertson's second-place victory also was no upset. His supporters were there all along but, like America's Indians, they were not waiting to be "discovered."

The pollsters—and even worse, Iowa's political experts—thought their predictive equations had ruled out any new discoveries. But nobody predicted the IQ (intensity of loyalty quotient).

Going into the remaining primaries, pollsters will continue to survey, and TV networks will hustle to predict the outcome before the polls close. (It helps their ratings and increases ad revenue.) And voters will continue to show these "experts" the error of their ways.

Upsets exist only in the eye of the beholder. Or in the odds of the gambler. After New Hampshire and going into the South's "Super Tuesday," we can expect more upsets.

A series of events, moving irresistibly toward a foreordained end, will be labeled an upset, because the experts didn't see it coming.

Tolstoy called it "fatalism in history." When something happens, explained Tolstoy, "at a certain moment in time," it "becomes irrevocable and is the property of history, in which it has a significance, predestined and not subject to free choice." You know, que sera, sera and all that jazz.

Ever since 1948 when all the national pollsters predicted Dewey would defeat Truman, they have continued to make erroneous predictions in state and local elections. But national polls in our national quadrennial town meeting do an awesome disservice to the political process.

They become a substitute for national debate. They replace rational discussion. They weaken personal analysis. They lure the unsuspecting into an uneasy alliance with trends. And they redefine the candidate's battle strategy with gimmicks.

Richard Gephardt's amoral change of tactics is a classic case in point. Three weeks before the Iowa caucuses, the polls revealed that he was slipping. He poured in massive amounts of television money, came up with a couple of mindless, quick-fix solutions, and Iowans bought it.

Gephardt had not undergone any moral or intellectual change of heart on his personal road to Damascus. He simply read the polls.

As Sen. Edward M. Kennedy warned Americans last November in his landmark Harvard speech, potential dangers are built into our statistical obsession.

Soft Lens Popularity Is Fading

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI)—Mary Beth Loughlin wore soft contact lenses for eight years but now she's sick and tired of the hassle.

"When they get gunked up with protein, there's all these different chemicals you have to use and they're expensive," the 24-year-old graphic designer says. "And my eyes must produce a lot of protein, because it was always a pain."

Edith Lee, Loughlin's co-worker, adds this complaint about the soft contacts: "When you drop or lose them, they turn into Saran Wrap."

The two have since switched to using hard contacts—and their glasses occasionally—following a trend that has soft contact lens manufacturers concerned.

According to industry sources, an estimated 23 million people in the United States wear contact lenses, about 80 percent the soft variety. But at the same time, some 14 million Americans have tried and given up wearing soft contacts since they were introduced in 1971.

The reasons, though no doubt varied, revolve around a single theme. Soft contacts are harder to maintain and easier to damage than hard contacts, and the aesthetic advantage over glasses is no longer there. Glasses have become so fashionable that some people who don't even need them are wearing them. So, some 14 million people say, why put up with the hassle?

Ironically, soft lenses are a hassle practically by design.

"Soft contacts were developed to be as much like the eye as possible, to be more comfortable and better for the user," says Dr. Louis Wilson, professor of ophthalmology at Emory University in Atlanta. "The body takes care of the eye, but the user has to take care of the lens."

Soft contacts are soft primarily because their plastic polymers contain a great deal of water, more than 50 percent in some cases. This is easier on the eye and allows for much longer wear than hard contacts.

But unfortunately, these hydrophilic (literally, "water loving") lenses also attract more than water. They also attract bacteria, dust, make-up, and most problematically, proteins.

Protein, the major building block of living tissue, is found throughout the body, including in the tears. So every time a soft contact wearer blinks or their eyes water, a thin film of protein attaches itself to the lenses.

Congress Goes To The Beach, Part VI

By Jack Anderson
And
Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON—The Galapagos Islands, 600 miles off the coast of Ecuador, attract huge tortoises, rare birds and congressional delegations from the United States.

A party of congressional sun birds capped a South American "business" trip last month with two full days of boating, swimming and sightseeing in the enchanting islands just south of the equator. They were led by the chairman of the House Space Science and Technology Committee, Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., and their mission was to improve technological relations with South America.

The visits to Brazil, Argentina, French Guiana, Chile and Ecuador were pronounced a success by Roe's spokesman, Bob Matlin. The two-week trip for the seven members of Congress, five spouses, an astronaut, 13 staffers and five military escorts was the largest congressional junket we studied in a recent rash of foreign travel at taxpayers' expense.

Matlin told our associate Jim Lynch the schedule was "heavy," and daily itineraries sent to the State Department confirm that it was—heavy with leisure.

The trip began and ended with tours of historic islands, starting on Jan. 13 with an excursion to the former penal colony on Devil's Island, off the coast of French Guiana.

When the delegation flew into Rio de Janeiro on Jan. 15, the members were not interested in all-day planned outings, "but would welcome something shorter," a telegram said. Roe's itinerary planner reported that the delegation wanted to spend "most of its free time on the beach, shopping and looking at gemstones."

The Rio agenda may have, at least in part, followed the desires of Patience Brown, the wife of Rep. George Brown, D-Calif. She had gone to school in Rio and wanted to visit the American school and other places she recalled, such as the Gavea Country Club. She also recommended the delegation consider the Antique Market, Hippie Fair and the Botanical Gardens.

After hitting Argentina and Chile, the delegation settled into a hotel in the Galapagos Islands. "It's a rough place to be," Matlin explained. "It's no resort. It's no Club Med."

The sun, the sea, the swimming, the snorkeling. Indeed, it takes a hearty traveler to endure the rigors of the Galapagos in January.

The itinerary called for a brief visit to the Charles Darwin Research Station in the islands. The agenda devoted the remaining time to cruising between islands on three local yachts. The itinerary also dictated swimming and snorkeling while the members of the party made careful observations of the sea birds, iguanas and giant cacti.

The grueling pace of the trip apparently brought the delegation closer. Either that, or they got tight with their expense accounts. Hotel reservations in Rio called for 10 double rooms and 19 singles. Eight days later, the group was staying in 17 doubles and five singles.

They flew home in the same private Air Force C-22 that had leaptfrogged them through South America. The total cost of the trip was not reported. Hotel arrangements likely ran more than $20,000. Large conference rooms were rented for as much as $300 a night in addition to the room rates of from $40 to $82 a night. The C-22 cost about $100,000 to fly.

Other members of Congress along for the ride with Roe were Manuel Lujan Jr., R-N.M.; Marilyn Lloyd, D-Tenn.; Robert Walker, R-Pa.; James Sensenbrenner Jr., R-Wis.; and Ron Packard, R-Calif.

Drivers, Builders Hate New Restrictor Plates

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Stock car drivers and engine builders agree when it comes to a new rule designed to slow cars down on NASCAR's two fastest tracks.

They hate it. Sunday's Daytona 500 was the first race run using one-inch restrictor plates on carburetors, which restrict the amount of fuel and air that can flow into the engine, thereby reducing horsepower. NASCAR implemented the rule to slow cars down — it worked — and to keep cars from flying into the stands — that did not work as well.

The plates will be used only at Daytona and Alabama International Motor Speedway. The first race at AIMS is May 1.

"We take the restrictor plates off at Richmond (this week's race) and I wish we could figure out a way to keep them off," said Waddell Wilson, crew chief and engine builder for Geoff Bodine. Added Daytona 500 winner Bobby Allison, who said the rule reduced most engines to 450 horsepower, no matter what their advantage without the plate: "What it's done, it's really kicked the engine builders right in the shins." Allison's average speed of 137.531 mph was the third-slowest among Daytona 500 winners. The race was competitive, with a record 17 cars finishing on the lead lap and 26 lead changes among 12 drivers.

Debris flew into the stands during the Goody's 300 Grand National race Saturday, slightly injuring six people, and Richard Petty's Pontiac flipped its way toward the start-finish line during the 500, banging against the fence in front of the grandstands.

Petty's accident was a result of contact from other drivers, proving that with the advanced aerodynamics of the cars, anytime a machine gets sideways or backwards it is a candidate for flight, even at slightly slower speeds.

The competition was partly deceptive. While there were many cars on the lead lap, no one could make a move on Allison at the end of the race due to a lack of power with the restricted engine and a fear of losing several places by breaking out of line.

"The cars are slow enough for right now," said Allison, who's trip into the fence at Talladega last year inspired the new rule. "In fact, some of the guys feel they're not driving hard enough. I don't know if safety comes from miles per hour. The lack of safety comes from the cars driving bunched together."

The cars ran closer than in recent years, with trains of up to 15 cars common. Davey Allison said the closer racing is more dangerous, especially with cars set for looser handling than when speeds exceeded 200 mph.

"When you're running on the ragged edge, when you have the car as loose as you possibly can to get everything out of the car, how can that be safe?" Davey Allison said.

As expected, drafting — the technique drivers use to cut wind resistance — was important. Cars that dropped out of line, except for Bobby Allison and Darrell Waltrip, almost invariably found themselves shuffled to the back of the pack.

Buddy Baker learned that the hard way, falling from second to ninth late in the race. The draft had drivers thinking of saving their spots instead of going for the win at the end.

"The last 10 laps weren't a matter of what you could gain, but what you could lose," said polesitter Ken Schrader, who finished sixth. "Just ask Buddy. With everybody running about the same speed, it was mighty tough to pass."

4A-5: Rams Take On Winter Park

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Editor

Lake Mary's Rams have their sights set on a second consecutive berth in the Class 4A State Tournament and the Rams will encounter the biggest obstacle standing in their way tonight when they take on Winter Park's Wildcats in the Region 5 playoff at Ward Park. Game time is 7 p.m.

The winner of Region 5 will play what is believed to be the weakest region in the state this season in Region 6 which has Merritt Island playing Boca Raton Spanish River.

Lake Mary, 19-4-5, owns one win over Winter Park during regular season play, but also lost in penalty kicks to the Wildcats in the Lake Mary Tournament.

"Winter Park is a team that always plays under control," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said. "They usually look for you to make a mistake and try to take advantage."

Winter Park, 22-4-1, advanced to the region with a 4-0 victory over Orlando Boone in the District 10 finals. The Cats won all three of their district games by shutout.

"Winter Park is a hard team to come from behind against," McCorkle said. "They don't take too many shots but make them count. They scored four goals on 11 shots against Boone. They play a careful, kind of a defensive game and if they see someone out of position they go for it."

The Wildcats, who have won five consecutive district titles, have strength on both ends of the field. Offensively, John Duguid leads the team with 34 goals while Mike McAvoy has 23. The defensive leaders are sweeperback Danny Kratt and stopper Roger Handberg. Goalkeeper David Turner has had a tremendous season with 14 shutouts.

"We've had excellent play from our people up front and our defenders all year," Winter Park coach Terry Offner said. "The midfield was shaky early in the year because it was reconstructed from last year. Everything has seemed to fall into place now, though, and we're getting a little stronger

"This has developed into a good rivalry," added Offner. "And I expect it to be our toughest test at this point."

Lake Mary is coming off one of its best performances of the year as it dominated Lake Howell, 3-0, in the District 9 finals. The Rams' defense held Lake Howell to just two shots in the game.

Defensively, there are not many teams in the state, if any, better than Lake Mary. Sweeperback Scott Schmitt anchors the defense while James Noble and Rod Bitterling have marked out some of the top offensive players in the state. Goalkeeper Pete McNally had 11 shutouts during the regular season and added one in the district.

Offensively, the Rams have been hurt by injuries all season but are finally starting to get everyone back at 100 percent. Ernie Broennele, Manny Roldan and Jon Brooks are the Rams' top goal scorers

3A-4: Lions Roll Into Land O' Lakes

Oviedo's Lions go into tonight's Region 3A-4 playoff at Land O' Lakes hoping to keep their postseason roll going. The tough regular-season schedule Oviedo played has paid off in its first district title and having played that tough competition will give the Lions an advantage going into tonight's game against the Gators who play in one of the weaker areas in the state.

The Lions own a school record in wins with a 15-6-2 mark and will hope another fine performance will up the school record. The Gators, 16-1-2, are known to be led by Willie Dornic who has pumped in 38 goals this year.

"Their (Land O' Lakes) claim to fame is a 0-0 tie with Tampa Jesuit which has a very good soccer team," Oviedo coach Dave Jekanoski said. "We're going in believing we're playing a good soccer team, not a great one."

Scott Waisanen will be marking Dornic in tonight's matchup. Waisanen had a brilliant game in the Lions' win over Bishop Moore, 4-2, as he shut down all-state striker Tim Geltz.

Rob Seltzer will be back playing sweeper with Derek Bates moving up to play the other striker for Oviedo. Both Seltzer and Bates have seen plenty of action at both positions but a head injury to Bates has placed him up as a striker.

"We're ready to go and looking forward to the game," Jekanoski said. "We'll have Eric Dullmeyer back and that will help us quite a bit, he's been out with a knee injury. It's only right that he gets to play in this game though."

Jekanoski will hope Jimmy Guggenheim, Oviedo's leading scorer, can keep playing exceptional and, along with Bates, put some goals in the net. Duncan Jones has been playing brilliantly also as he scored a goal and served three assists in the game against Bishop Moore.

"Duncan is a midfielder and I keep telling him to get back," Jekanoski said. "He's done a great job for us all season and we expect another good game from him."

Oviedo will be breaking new ground tonight as this is the school's first time to reach the regional playoffs and the Lions' first district championship could also be the first time Oviedo has hosted a state tournament.

"This is a big, big game for us," Jekanoski said. "We feel if we win this one, we'll have the winner of the Seabreeze-Melbourne game at home and possibly the state finals after that."

Jekanoski is also satisfied with the way his team is playing right now and though Dornic presents a threat, he feels he doesn't have to change his style of play.

"We're definitely not going to change a thing," Jekanoski said. "We'll have Waisanen on Dornic and I'm confident he can do a good job on him, our offense will not change at all, we'll look for both Guggenheim and Bates in the middle and take it from there."

Czechs Knock Off Americans, 7-5

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — Although his team twice blew three-goal leads, U.S. hockey coach Dave Peterson blamed Monday night's 7-5 loss to Czechoslovakia in the Winter Olympics on bad officiating and lucky goals.

"The refereeing was just lousy," Peterson said after the Americans fell to 1-1, hurting their chances of making the medal round. "In all honesty, the penalty called (that led to the Czechoslovakians' tying power-play goal) was just ridiculous."

"It's disappointing because we worked hard and played well. But it's not heart-breaking. We lost a hockey game; we're big boys, and we're not going to pick up our marbles and leave."

The penalty that cost the Americans was a slashing call against defenseman Lane McDonald. With the United States leading 5-4, Czechoslovakian goaltender Jaromir Sindel made a glove save and McDonald attempted to knock loose the puck with his stick and was called for slashing by the Swedish referee.

The winning goal came at 14:31 of the third period when Igor Liba scored a short-handed goal to break a 5-5 tie.

With the Americans pressing deep in the attacking zone on a power play, Liba sprang loose with Dusan Pasek on a 2-on-2 break. Pasek drew defenseman Scott Young and Brian Leetch to one side and fed Liba, who beat goaltender Mike Richter from 10 feet into the top of the net. Pasek added an empty-net goal with nine seconds remaining.

Zurbriggen Goes For Olympic History

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — Pirmin Zurbriggen, a deeply religious Swiss ski racer with devilish instincts, starts on the second leg of his journey today toward making Winter Olympic history.

Zurbriggen, whose dramatic, ferocious attack on the Mount Allan course Monday earned him the gold medal in the men's downhill, competes today in the downhill portion of the men's combined — an event being held in the Winter Games for the first time.

One of the few racers on the World Cup circuit who excels at both downhill and slalom, Zurbriggen is entered in all five Olympic ski events. He is the favorite in the combined; a two-day event that consists of a downhill and a slalom race. He is trying to become the first skier in Olympic history to win four gold medals.

OLYMPICS

Only Toni Sailer of Austria in 1956 and Jean-Claude Killy of France in 1968 ever won as many as three gold medals in Olympic alpine competition.

Zurbriggen has the chance to surpass them since the Super G and combined were added to the alpine program for Calgary, and he is among the favorites in both.

His downhill triumph was electrifying. Skiing from the 14th start position, Zurbriggen appeared on the verge of losing control of his skis early in his run. However, he recovered to register a time of 1 minute, 59.63 seconds and beat his arch-rival and compatriot Peter Mueller by a half-second — about the time it takes to blink your eye. Mabie, Lions Welcome Challenge Of Tough Schedule

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Editor

With only three starters returning and one of the toughest schedules in the state, don't be surprised to see Oviedo's Lions go 0 for February. Once the newcomers pick up some experience after having played against the best competition around, though, watch for the Lions to be on the prowl for another district championship. Coach Howard Mabie did not build one of the state's most solid Class 3A programs by backing away from a challenge and this year he will have one of his biggest challenges in his 12 years with the Lions.

"We have a lot of experience to pick up in very short time period," Mabie said. "It's one thing to develop confidence by playing an easier schedule, but it's another thing to challenge the kids with a tough schedule. It's the only way I feel we'll be productive by the end of the year."

Oviedo already has an 0-2 record this season after losses to Metro Conference powers Orlando Colonial and Orlando Boone. The Lions return to action Wednesday at Winter Park, another tough Metro opponent. The Lions then go to Boone on Thursday and Colonial Saturday. Along with its always-tough opposition in the Seminole Athletic Conference, Oviedo has also added state power Apopka to this year's schedule.

"We will take our lumps early but I think by midseason we will be very competitive," Mabie, who has 193 career coaching victories, said. "It's the hardest schedule I've had in 12 years."

"Right now, I would diagnose our ballclub as being a team that needs a spark," added Mabie. "We to ignite ourselves and, if we do, we are capable of being an excellent baseball team."

The four returning players who will form the nucleus of the Oviedo team this year include seniors Alan Greene, John Cox, Gary Pelczar and junior Jody Spellman. They will be counted on heavily with the graduation of three all-state performers in Mark Merchant, Glenn Reichle and Tony Bellflower.

Greene, who had a 5-0 record last season, is the No. 1 pitcher on the Oviedo staff at the present time while Spellman (7-1 a year ago) and senior Richard Cobb will also see extensive mound duty. Mike Lounsberry, a junior transfer from Gainesville and Cox will also contribute to the pitching staff.

"The pitching staff overall is going to be better than last year," Mabie said. "It will be especially tougher down the stretch. We may not have as good an ERA because of the people we're playing early but we will be much stronger later."

The infield will have Spellman at first base when he is not pitching and junior Stan Merrell will play first when Spellman takes the mound. Senior John Bowers holds down the second base job while Cox moved from second base to fill the shortstop position. Greene and Cobb will be the third basemen.

The utility players in the infield are sophomore Greg Hughes, a transfer from West Virginia, and sophomore Mirah Kinnard, who can play practically any position on the field.

"The infield can be as strong or stronger than last year," Mabie said. "The corners are very strong. We miss the offensive stick of Reichle but will be as good defensively."

The catching duties will be handled by senior Joey Beasley senior and junior Steve Schultz, a transfer from Mount Dora Bible. "Between the two, we should be pretty adequate behind the plate," Mabie said.

"We don't have the Merchant out there anymore and we've had some problems with injuries and illnesses so far," Mabie said. "But we will have a solid outfield as the year goes on."

Oviedo's goal is to build on the competitive schedule and once again challenge for district championship honors. Oviedo has won the district the past two years and figures to be in the running again.

"Seminole may be the team to beat this year and Edgewater looks strong, too," Mabie said of the two new clubs in the district. "What we're doing right now is taking the young kids and letting them know they can pay on this level and to keep trying to improve. If we can develop enough inner-strength we will be a heck of a ballclub."

Whyte's 32 Pave Way For Lady Rams

Teri Whyte scored a career-high 32 points and grabbed a game-high 18 rebounds while blocking six shots to lead Lake Mary to a 62-56 victory over New Smyrna Beach in girls prep basketball action Monday night at New Smyrna High School.

The Lady Rams finished their regular season at 11-13 and will enter the district tournament in Mainland at the end of the week. New Smyrna completed its season with a 7-22 record.

"We pressed late and that's what enabled us to win the game," Lake Mary coach Mac Blythe said. "I didn't want to go to the press, but we fell behind and had no other choice."

Lake Mary was led, 29-28, at halftime but the Lady Barracudas had a strong third quarter to take a 43-39 advantage into the final period.

"Whyte had a great game and a strong fourth quarter to really help us," Blythe said. "New Smyrna also shot the ball very well tonight."

Tara Jackson had another strong game as she netted 15 points and pulled down nine rebounds. Jackson also had five steals and three blocked shots.

Kristie Spellers led the Lady Barracudas with 18 points, Lara Hall, who attended Lake Mary last year, netted 16 with a pair of three-point field goals.

Lake Mary will open the district tourney with Lake Brantley in the opening round of the districts this Thursday.

LEWIS LEADS HOWELL

Tammy Lewis led four players in double figures with 15 points as Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks closed out the regular with a 64-52 victory over Spruce Creek Monday night at Lake Howell High.

The Lady Hawks finished the season at 20-6 overall while the Creek finished at 7-14. Both will resume action Thursday in the Class 4A-9 District Tournament at Daytona Beach Mainland High.

Along with her 15 points, Lewis added seven rebounds, five assists and five steals. Sarina Winston led the way Wileatha Hartsfield and Kim Prather made the key plays in overtime as Lake Mary's Lady Rams nipped Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots, 56-54, in the Vero Beach Junior Varsity Classic finals Monday at Vero Beach.

The JV Lady Rams of coach Mike Averill improved to 20-2 for the season with their 16th consecutive victory. The game will be played at 6 p.m. at Daytona Beach Mainland High, prior to the varsity district title game.

Young Rams Shoot For Consistency

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary High School's baseball team, which has dominated the Seminole Athletic Conference over the past few years, returns just three starters and will start a number of underclassmen.

The Rams have won two consecutive SAC titles but may be slowed this season with the uprising of a couple of county teams.

"We're a real young ballclub," Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle said. "We only have three returning starters and one was the designated hitter last year."

Lake Mary is known for its strong pitching and will look to five hurlers to carry it this season. Both Senior Eric and Alex Birle, a junior, will be on the mound for the Rams. Juniors Andy Anson and Aaron Iatrola along with sophomore Curt Prom.

Jeff Hagen will be at first base for the Rams as transfer Shane Stuffed will be taking over responsibilities on second base. Wes Weger will move to shortstop this year and, when not pitching, Eric Birle will be on third base.

"We're going to have to play real good defense this year and not beat ourselves," Tuttle said. "I think we have an above average defense and a little more depth on the bench this year, more than we've had in the past."

Iatrola will be playing in center field when he's not on the mound for Lake Mary. Trevor Moore, a junior, will be in left field with senior Rob Shanlin to attend right field.

Tuttle is hoping that everyone can contribute offensively and expects Eric Birle, Hagen and Iatrola along with Jason Sewell to be the strong hitters in the Ram lineup.

"We have good hitting strength all around," Tuttle said. "We were weak in the bottom of the lineup last year and we've improved in overall hitting this season."

With the loss of six seniors and a top notch pitching staff one would expect Lake Mary to be down this season. Tuttle, though, does not feel that way and believes the Rams are a stronger team overall than in the past years.

"Everyone keeps telling me I'm in a rebuilding year," Tuttle said. "I don't you can have a rebuilding year in high school, you just go out and form a team by the players that show up."

Tuttle is happy, though, to be in the underdog position this year and not having every team that plays the Rams looking to knock them off.

"I'm hoping we can sneak up on some people this year and not be the one being snuck up on," Tuttle said. "We'll be alright and I imagine we'll sneak up on some people."

With hard work and some concentration Tuttle feels the Rams can put together another strong season and give the leaders a run for the money.

"We'll have to hustle all the time and keep our heads in the game," Tuttle said. "If we play smart baseball we'll be able to hold our own."

The Rams will open their season today with a game against Evans in the opening round of the Apopka Classic being held at Apopka High School.

Seminole High School qualified seven wrestlers for this week's Region 5 Class 3A match to be held at Gateway High School.

The Tribe, though, will only have six wrestlers in competition as Cecil Scarbrough has been pulled out with a shoulder injury.

Troy Rollins was the only member of the Seminole squad, which finished fourth overall, to reach the finals in the 160 pound weight class, where he dropped a 10-2 decision. Bishop Moore's Jake Nelson won the match and was the top seed.

Don Sellers won the consolation match at 125 pounds for the Tribe. Sellers pinned Jay Braumen of Gateway at the 4:40 mark. Larry Nathan finished fourth at 130 pounds as he dropped a 6-3 decision to Jason Vangan of Gateway in the wrestlebacks. Trent Schake captured third place with a pin over Leon Renton of Edgewater. Marshall's Cocaine-Induced Death Shocks South Carolina

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — University of South Carolina athletic officials described highly regarded football recruit Rico Marshall as a model student-athlete, but his death by apparent cocaine overdose and reports of a recent arrest on a drug-dealing charge are clouding that reputation.

Police said Marshall died Saturday after he reportedly swallowed six chunks of crack, a powerful cocaine derivative. A Washington, D.C., television station reported Monday that Marshall was arrested Dec. 22 on a charge of possession of a narcotic with intent to distribute.

Citing sources within the Prince George's County Police Department, WJLA-TV said Marshall was found in the possession of 66 bags of crack.

"We got the impression, and I think rightly so, that Rico was not only an outstanding athlete, but an outstanding person," South Carolina Coach Joe Morrison said at a Monday news conference. "His death was a great shock to me."

FOOTBALL

Mike Bender, an assistant coach who helped recruit Marshall, said university athletic officials had no indication the star high school running back had any drug involvement.

"His coach and I talked several times, and there is no way he thought Rico was involved in anything like this," Bender said. "I talked to a lot of his teachers and they said he was one of the finest young men in the school."

Marshall's death comes in the midst of a controversy fueled by the recent arrest of a Gamecock football player on drug charges and questions about the effectiveness of the university's drug-testing program for student-athletes.

Marshall, 18, died about 4:10 a.m. Saturday at Prince George's Hospital Center in Cheverly, Md., three days after he accepted a South Carolina football scholarship.

According to police reports, Marshall told his girlfriend he had to swallow about a half dozen chunks of crack as police officers approached him on a Suttland, Md., street corner about 1:30 a.m. Saturday. It was reportedly the same street where the December arrest occurred.

Marshall, a 5-foot-10, 225-pound running back who gained 1,026 yards last year at Forresterville (Md.) High School, was taken to the hospital after falling ill at his Glenarden home.

A spokeswoman for the Prince George's County Police Department declined comment on the report of Marshall's drug arrest because Marshall was 17, a juvenile, at the time the arrest allegedly occurred.

Marshall's father, Leroy, strongly denied his son was involved with drugs, and Morrison said the school had done all it could to check the player's background.

"If we missed (a drug problem), then his parents missed it, too," Morrison said.

The recent focus on drugs at South Carolina was sparked by the Feb. 4 arrest of standout wide receiver Ryan Betha, who was charged with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

There also has been criticism of the school's drug-screening program, but university officials defended their efforts at Monday's news conference.

Dr. Paul Akers, who developed the drug-testing initiative, acknowledged some athletes have received as much as four days' notice before certain drug screenings. But he said they also are subject throughout the season to random testing for which no advance notice is given.

Akers said it is possible — although not probable — that some athletes, through the luck of the draw, might not participate in any of the random tests.

With several days' advance notice, an athlete could abstain from taking drugs such as cocaine, which remain detectable in the body for only a short period.

South Carolina athletes do not face a team suspension until they have tested positive for drugs three times.

Stocks Open In A Dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened slightly lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 72.78 last week, was down 1.65 to 1981.61 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 487-354 among the 1,297 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 8,950,000 shares.

Prices rose on the Tokyo Stock Exchange for the fourth straight session Tuesday, encouraged by hopes for improved corporate earnings and further expansion of domestic demand. Trading was active.

The Nikkei average of 225 selected issues, which jumped 225.53 yen Monday, added another 138.19 yen to close at 24,345.66 yen.

Stock prices were slightly higher in London in light early trading. The Financial Times 100-share index was up 3.2 points to 1742.4.

Dollar A Bit Up, Gold A Bit Down

By United Press International

The dollar drifted slightly higher today in light trading on major foreign currency markets. Gold was lower.

In early trading in the Far East, the dollar weakened slightly against the Japanese currency, closing at 130.50 yen, down 0.50 from Monday's close of 131.00 yen.

Dealers in Japan said the dollar came under selling pressure following the Japanese Finance Ministry's announcement Monday of a higher-than-expected trade surplus in January.

Market players were concerned that Japan's overall trade surplus remained at a high level, totaling $3.072 billion, they said. The surplus, nonetheless, was almost 29 percent lower than the level in January 1987.

Currency watchers said there were no major factors that would affect the dollar's future movement.

In European trading, the dollar opened the day in Frankfurt at 1.713 German marks, up from Monday's 1.7078 close.

The dollar gained in Brussels, opening the day at 35.97 Belgian francs, up from Monday's close of 35.85, in Amsterdam at 1.925 Dutch guilders, up from 1.9185, and in Milan at 1.260.50 lire, up from 1.256.25.

Unions Strike GE Plant

EVENDALE, Ohio (UPI) — About 6,700 union workers went on strike today at General Electric Co.'s aircraft engine plant over unresolved grievances and the subcontracting of work.

Members of Lodge 912 of the International Association of Machinists and Local 647 of the United Auto Workers had authorized a strike several weeks ago. They set up picket lines at the suburban Cincinnati plant at 5 a.m. EST.

The pickets blocked the plant's gates and kept other employees from entering the sprawling facility.

GE spokesman Ron Hess said company executives held informal talks with union leaders Monday, but no formal sessions are planned. The unions' contracts do not expire until July.

Both unions are upset about GE giving work to outside subcontractors, and the UAW is upset with job classification changes.

The job-class consolidation, union officials said, could cost 500 workers their jobs.

GE said the consolidation will result in the loss of some jobs but will mean pay raises for 36 percent of the workers.

About 1,400 striking workers are members of the machinists union, while an estimated 5,300 workers belong to the autoworkers union. GE has about 20,000 workers in Cincinnati, making it the area's largest employer.

The plant has secured numerous multimillion dollar contracts to build aircraft engines, including one from the Air Force to build all the engines for the secret Stealth bomber.

Analysts said that deal could eventually be worth more than $5 billion.

Hess said it is too early to determine how the strike might affect production.

Lady On Train Has Trouble In Breathing

The Auto Train was met in Sanford early today by Sanford Fire Department rescue workers who responded to a report of a passenger on the train who was having difficulty breathing.

At the train station on Persimmon Avenue, at about 8:15 a.m. today, the rescue workers were directed to the train that had just arrived from the Washington D.C. area.

Glenn Crews, who was operating the train ticket office, said he wasn't sure what happened, but he directed rescue workers to the train.

Officials at Central Florida Regional Hospital confirmed at about 10 a.m. that a train passenger was being treated there in the emergency room.

Kay Orr, a spokeswoman for the hospital, said the woman, in her 60s and making a move to reside in Sanford, was in satisfactory condition. Orr said the woman, whose name was not released due to her husband's request, had experienced difficulty in breathing while on board the train. The woman's husband traveled with her to Sanford, Orr said.

The woman's condition was under evaluation. Early today, it had not been determined if she needed to be admitted to the hospital for treatment of any type of illness other than the initial difficulty breathing, which was under control.

Crews said the incident was not unusual since many of the train's passengers are senior citizens who sometimes are overcome by the stress of travel. "Often they get a certificate from their doctor saying they can travel," Crews said.

Felony Suspect Arrested After High Speed Chase

A 27-year-old Orlando man charged with numerous felonies was arrested early today by Casselberry Police Officer Keith Wright after a hot pursuit at speeds up to 100 miles on Highway 17-92.

The chase ended when Kim Brian Woerner was stopped at a roadblock set up by Casselberry police and Seminole County Sheriff's deputies at State Road 436 and U.S. Highway 17-92.

According to Casselberry police reports the car contained the "fruits of three burglaries and a 25 caliber semi-automatic handgun."

At approximately 3:22 a.m. today Wright and Officer Dennis

Stewart responded to an alarm at a cleaning business at 36 Cypress Way, where they spotted a small compact pick-up truck. When they tried to stop it, the suspect fled in the vehicle speeding east on Concord Drive. He lost control of the truck but regained control and while pulling out onto U.S. 17-92 nearly broadsided a southbound vehicle, the report stated. The police pursued the suspect at speeds up to 100 m.p.h. calling for the roadblock to be set up, the policeman said.

After his arrest, Woerner was taken to the Seminole County Jail.

Gun Shots Exchanged On Campus

PENSACOLA (UPI) — An exchange of gunfire on the campus of the University of West Florida Monday afternoon left one person injured, university officials said.

Pat Howe, of the university's administrative affairs office, said personnel at John C. Pace Library called campus police around 4:30 p.m. CST to report an unidentified man "creating a disturbance."

Howe had no details on the type of disturbance. She said a plainclothes and uniformed officer "ushered him outside" the library. Howe said the man allegedly drew a weapon and fired at the officers but missed. One officer returned fire and the man was struck.

Authorities identified the wounded man as Robert David Anthony Alexander, 36, of San Diego, Calif. They reported he had been shot in the leg and was in critical condition. It could not be determined immediately how many shots were fired.

"I arrived on the scene shortly after it happened. The wounded person was on his face on the ground in front of the library," said Howe. She added that the wounded man "has no known connection with the University of West Florida."

She said the library is "used quite heavily" by the general public.

"The timing was such that the university offices had emptied at 4:30," said Howe. "The day students were gone and night students were coming in."

"Nothing like this has ever happened in our history," said Howe. She said the case would be turned over to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement to investigate.

Bullies, Victims May Be Affected For Life

BOSTON (UPI) — Childhood bullying may be a more serious problem than previously thought, with studies showing bullies are likely to grow up to have serious criminal problems and their victims have severe emotional problems, a researcher says.

Dan Olweus, a professor of psychology at the University of Bergen in Norway, said large Scandinavian studies indicate the phenomenon of bullying in schools is common and can damage the emotional health of victims.

"We know that thousands and thousands of students are afraid of going to school in the morning for fear of being bullied and feel anxious and threatened while in school," said Olweus in a paper he delivered Monday at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"It is not surprising that the victims' devaluation of themselves sometimes becomes so overwhelming that they see suicide as the only possible solution," he said.

Studies in Norway and Sweden indicate that about 9 percent of students are victims of bullying and about 7 percent are bullies. Bullying is about twice as common in grades 2 through 6, compared to grades 7 through 9, he said. Boys are much more likely to be bullies than girls.

Although there are no direct estimates of the extent of bullying in U.S. schools, Olweus calculated that 4.8 million American students in grades 1 through 9 would be involved in bullying, with 2.7 million being victims and 2.1 million being the bullies.

But Olweus said a program implemented in his country demonstrates that steps can be taken to reduce the amount of bullying in the schools.

"The results of our preliminary analysis has been very encouraging," Olweus said. Norway instituted a bullying reduction program in which parents and teachers were instructed about how to curtail bullying behavior, he said.

A preliminary analysis based on 2,400 students from 42 schools in Bergen, Norway, found the frequency of bullying dropped by at least 50 percent in two years, Olweus said.

"In addition, antisocial behavior in general such as theft, vandalism, and truancy, showed a marked drop during these years," he said. "Finally, student satisfaction with school life increased at the same time."

The research also showed 60 percent of boys who were considered bullies in grades 6 through 9 had at least one court conviction by age 24, and 40 percent of the bullies had three or more court convictions by the same age. In comparison, only 10 percent of children who were not bullies got into trouble with the law at that age.

"The school bullies thus had a fourfold increase in serious criminal behavior in young adulthood when compared with the control boys," said Olweus.

Olweus based his remarks on three studies besides the intervention research, including a study of 140,000 students in 715 schools in Norway and 17,000 students in 60 schools in Sweden and a study of 900 boys from Stockholm, Sweden, from childhood to early adulthood.

pilot, said the white runway lights can be turned on by keying a plane's microphone if its radio is turned to the correct frequency of the Sanford tower.

"There's no way to know if the lights were activated by the pilot in this case," White said. He added that the only person who could know was Hardesty, and he said he never saw the white lights.

The tower at the Sanford airport closes at 9 p.m. each day and doesn't open until about 7:30 the next morning. During that time the airport is usually manned only by security guards employed by the airport authority.

Cleveland said a security guard searched the runway, ramp and even hangar areas of the airport when first notified the plane was overdue. He said the search is a routine matter because the airport gets hundreds of reports on overdue flights every year.

The security guard on the next shift made a second search of the same areas at about 2:40 a.m. when Orlando flight authorities called again to say they hadn't received word the plane had landed anywhere.

"If we had been told there was a possibility the plane had crashed, we would have immediately notified the local police and sheriff's departments and started a full search of the area," Cleveland said. He added there was no way to see the plane, even immediately after sunrise because of the thick ground fog over the airport.

"I think the security guards did a fine job in looking for the plane. They did everything they could," Cleveland said.

The airport and its personnel did every reasonable thing it could to find the aircraft, according to Cleveland. "We had no reason to believe the plane was even at the airport at all," he said.

Cleveland said an earlier report that the plane's emergency signal locator was activated during the crash was untrue. The device, which sends a radio distress signal, never went off at all, according to Cleveland. "If it had gone off people in the tower (Sanford airport) would have heard it," Cleveland said.

The pilot of the plane was Emmett Martin, 64, of Hopwood, Pa. Hardesty called Martin an experienced pilot, who had flown bombers during World War II, and who has held a commercial pilot's license since 1945.

Martin was apparently trying to land the plane at the fog covered airport when the accident happened, according to Hardesty. When asked if Martin made a mistake that could have caused the crash, Hardesty said, "The only mistake made was to try to land there (Sanford airport) in the first place."

Martin was killed almost instantly after the crash, according to Seminole County Medical Examiner, Dr. Sara H. Irgang. She said an autopsy revealed he had a severe skull fracture caused by the crash.

Hardesty was flying into Sanford to meet with Miami businessmen about a golf course he was involved with in Gainesville called Meadowbrook. He said the plane left for Sanford from Atlanta's Fulton County airport at about 8:24 p.m. Thursday.

Federal authorities have finished their on-site investigation at the airport. An investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board said results of the probe into what caused the crash could take as long as three months to a year to be released.

viding ventilation for the apartments at Redding Gardens is not financially feasible because of the original construction of the buildings. Julian said the problem of poor ventilation in the apartments, which causes them to be very hot in the summer, has been addressed since the buildings were built, and every report says it is not financially feasible.

The authority voted 4-1 to delay approving the plans and advertising for bids until more information can be furnished on recommendations on how the ventilation problem can be alleviated, and the cost of doing so. Authority Chairman Alexander Wynn III voted against the delay, Gunter said he was looking for a city administrator who is good with public relations both with people in the city and the media.

All of the commissioners agreed that the city's consultant Etchberger, who is in the process of doing a comprehensive management assessment study in the city, should be in a position to tell the screening committee the type of city administrator needed in Longwood.

City Clerk Don Terry was named acting city administrator after former city administrator Ron Waller resigned under pressure on Jan. 4. Terry said he has not applied for the job, but is considering it.

Phone Company Employee Fed Up With Criticism

DEAR ABBY: In reply to the letter from "Had Enough," it is certainly the privilege of consumers to criticize merchandise that they deem unsatisfactory for whatever reason, but I take very strong exception to the comment: "Lord knows we pay enough for telephone service..."

I am employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and I've "had enough" of people complaining about what Ma Bell charges for her service. What would the writer pay for what little piece of magic that instantly connects you to a loved one whose voice you need to hear? And, if you're hearing impaired, it gives you special telephone communication. How much is a service worth that summons helps to your door 24 hours of every day from police and fire departments and medical teams (and allows these emergency facilities to transmit data that could save your life through computers via network access to telephone lines)?

Next time you're worried about your invalid parent, your child who has moved away from home, your new grandchild across the country, or the friend you lost contact with years ago, please stop and consider who puts you in contact with these people in just moments, and what that little bit of magic is worth to you.

Your phone is the least expensive utility you have. Ask anyone who has traveled abroad. Thank you, Abby.

CARROL OLIPHINT

DEAR CARROL: Your

message came through clear as a bell! But could someone tell me how much profit the telephone company makes on each call—local and long-distance?

DEAR ABBY: I was most distressed to read in your column the expression: "It's not over until the fat lady sings."

Not only is this insulting to those of us who are involved in the opera, but it is an insult to all people who are overweight.

To perpetuate such a stereotype is certainly beneath you, as a spokesperson for our society. I truly believe that in this instance an apology is due.

MARIANNE H. OAKS, GENERAL DIRECTOR, SACRAMENTO OPERA ASSOCIATION

DEAR MS. OAKS: Oh, come on! I assure you, no offense was intended. But to those I offended, I offer my apologies.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is thinking about getting married. She and Bobby have been living together for nearly seven years and have two children. He wants to be married in a church but neither one of them belongs to one, so his aunt is trying to get them married in the church she belongs to because it's close to the hall where they want to have their wedding reception.

My daughter would just as soon have a quick ceremony by a judge, but Bobby wants a big church wedding with her in a white wedding gown and veil and him in a white tux. He is paying for everything so she is doing it his way. They have everything they need in a house, so how do we go about telling people if they want to give them a gift please make it money? Would that be in bad taste? I have heard it would be. I thought maybe if the invitations were written up explaining their circumstances, it would be OK. What do you think?

KENTUCKY READERS

DEAR READERS: It would be in poor taste to ask for money. And it would be unthinkable to "explain their circumstances" in the wedding invitations.

DEAR ABBY: You casually mention that one can get rid of bad breath by brushing one's tongue as well as one's teeth. You didn't stress the point enough! Abby, I suffered with bad breath for 40 years—and went to 21 doctors for the problem, thinking my foul breath was caused by either my teeth or my stomach. It was neither. It was an accumulation of particles on my tongue!

It is unbelievable that so few doctors are aware that this nasty little problem can be solved by a simple solution. All of the well-advertised mouthwashes and breath mints to mask bad breath are temporary and therefore practically useless.

Please print this to let your millions of readers know how important it is to routinely brush the top of one's tongue as far back as can be reached with a medium-soft toothbrush. Sign me...

Dear Abby To Report On Marital Infidelity

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The results of a recent survey conducted by Abigail Van Buren (DEAR ABBY) of her 90 million readers in which she asked "Have you ever cheated on your mate?" will be made public in three columns scheduled to appear Feb. 22-24, said Universal Press Syndicate President John P. McMeel today.

"We've never seen such an overwhelming response to one column," said McMeel. "Abby received over 210,000 responses and the letters are still pouring in. I have a hunch this isn't the last word on it either," added McMeel. "I've seen the results and I know more people will be eager to tell her their stories, too."

What are the results that McMeel refers to? "I'm saving the news for my columns," said Van Buren. "but I can give you a hint of what I've learned—in spite of recent headlines to the contrary, we are a far more moral society than you would expect."

One surprise that Van Buren did not mind sharing was that even though she had specified the survey was anonymous, over two-thirds of the respondents—cheaters and non-cheaters alike—signed their names. Any other hints of what's to come? "You'll have to wait for the big news on February 22," said Van Buren, "but I can guarantee some surprises that are sure to change everyone's thinking about who does what with whom. In fact, I have enough material from this survey to write a book!"

Martins Signal Spring's Near

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — When the purple martins return, can spring be far behind? For winter-weary Southerners, the answer is no, says Jack Barber, who expects the vanguard of the "Valentine birds" — certain harbingers of spring — to check out the 16 plastic gourds in his backyard around Feb. 19.

Barber's martins have been returning to his gourd houses for the past 14 years. Each year the occupancy rate is about 75 percent to 85 percent.

The first purple martin scouts will arrive in south Georgia a few days earlier, Barber said, after their Valentine Day appearance in central Florida.

A purple martin fancier for most of his 62 years, Barber lives a half mile from the entrance to the Augusta National Golf Course. He says that about five days to a week after the martin scouts arrive, the main colony shows up, ready to spend the summer zipping around rural and suburban backyards, eating literally thousands of insects — especially mosquitoes — per day.

The martin, a member of the swallow family, "is America's most sought-after, most lovable bird," said Barber.

"I would say that since 1960 the popularity of this bird has increased 10-fold. They can, allegedly, devour 2,000 mosquitoes a day." People could stop using toxic insecticides, according to Barber, if they would put up martin houses and attract the birds to their property.

"I tell you what — a lot more people in Georgia and South Carolina are interested in the martins returning than they are in the swallows coming back to Capistrano," he said.

The purple martin looks like a small blackbird but has a forked tail and is blue-black in color. The female is white beneath her neck and has a white breast.

After wintering in South and Central America, with the greatest concentration around Belem, Brazil, the martins must fly thousands of miles to reach their summer homes in the north. "They lose about an ounce of weight from their flight up," said Barber.

The martins are expected to show up in north Georgia the last week of February and a few weeks later in the more northerly states. "Sometimes they will come in early, depending on the weather, and are driven back because they have no insects to feed on. If the weather is cold, they go back south."

According to Barber, the Indians were the first to realize the value of the martins as insect eaters and put up gourds in the crossbars of their teepees to attract them. Farmers continued the tradition of attracting martins, placing gourds near their chicken yards after learning that martins would chase hawks and owls "from here to eternity."

"They have no talons or sharp claws," said Barber. "It's the way they maneuver. They are the world's best fliers and they're good navigators, too."

Although some people build "apartments" for purple martins, many use gourds that should be flat on the bottom and a minimum of 7 1/2 to 8 inches in diameter, according to Barber. The entry hole should be 2 1/4 inches in diameter and there should be drain holes in the bottom. The martin homes should be placed on cross bars about 14 to 16 feet above the ground.

"People who have martins are real interested in them. You can bet four bottom dollar that you're not going to get on their nerves by stopping and talking about their martins."

Barber's interest in purple martins led him to develop a new business. He had a hard time finding organic gourds of the right size, so he found a way to make them out of plastic. "I didn't do it to do away with organic gourds," said Barber. "I did it because it (plastic gourd) has a lot of lasting power."

Barber, with 32 years in the life insurance business, says that when he is 100 percent retired "I really would like to do a story on purple martins or on somebody who just likes martins. I would like to hear from others. Drop me a note and let me know when you got your first scout birds and when the first colonies come in."

Snooty Pups Hobnob At Westminster Show

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mutts called Spot, Pal and such weren't allowed into the big dog show at Madison Square Garden. And maybe that's a good thing. Some of the mixed breed pooches might have gone into shock watching pedigreed canines with fancy monikers behaving heavenly.

These bluebloods were observed during the 112th Westminster Kennel Club show, the most prestigious canine show among hundreds across the nation every year. At the Westminster, fancy dogs really do act like four-footed saints. There were nearly 2,700 from 48 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Canada, and Hawaii during the two-day show.

Westminster is billed as "the oldest, continuous sporting event in America — with the exception of the Kentucky Derby." Patrons dress fancy for the finale, held Tuesday as an orange pomeranian from Avondale, Pa., was named best of show.

Plenty of folks billing the ears of Ch. Great Elms Prince Charming II with applause wore very formal dress, including minks and other furs, long dresses paved with sequins.

Behind the scenes and in the show rings fancy dogs were observed with owners, handlers and friends. Amazingly, the dogs didn't bark, growl, fight or chase one another.

Even when standing on line and waiting their turn at the canine equivalent of a powder room — a fenced saw-dust covered area — the high class pooches exhibited angelic patience, totally ignoring pets in front or behind them and never trying to break to the head of the line.

To observers, it appeared that perfect behavior is a duty to high-born dogs with names such as Ch. Lauryn Cassio Mocha Cake, a German wire-haired terrier from New York City; Ch. Twin-Beau-D Bonkers, a golden retriever from Potomac, Md.; Ch. Music City Serengeti Jazzman, a basenji from Nashville, Tenn.; Ch. Betancourt I'm Grouvy Too, a kerry blue terrier from Sacramento, Calif.

"Ch." is short for champion, a title carried into the show by 58 percent of the dogs.

Longwood Bingo is open seven days a week in Fairmont Plaza, Longwood.

Longwood Bingo Available For Non-Profit Fundraisers

Longwood Bingo opened four weeks ago in Fairmont Plaza, 600 N. Highway 17-92, north of State Road 434 in Longwood. Bingo games are held seven days a week to benefit local non-profit charities with the National Kidney Foundation being the main charter.

The Bingo hall, which can seat 300 persons, opens at 4 p.m. each day and warm-up games begin at 6:30 p.m. and regular games at 7 p.m. Matinees are held Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Doors open at 10 a.m. on Friday and Saturday with warm-up games beginning at 11:30 a.m. On Sunday doors open at 11 a.m. with warm-ups at noon and regular games at 12:30 p.m.

Owners Rose Vogel and her daughter and son-in-law Ann and Bob Slack operate the bingo with the help of volunteers. An avid bingo fan, Mrs. Vogel said she became interested in opening the bingo hall as a way of raising funds for charities — the National Kidney Foundation in particular — after her husband died from kidney failure.

The Transit Authority bus stops on the highway in front of the shopping center and there is ample parking in the parking lot for those who drive their own cars.

Each program includes three $250 jackpots and all other games pay up to $50.

Delicious specials are served each night and hot dogs, sandwiches, snacks, soft drinks and coffee are available for hungry bingo patrons. Prices for regular games are $15 for six strips (each strip contains three bingo cards), $20 for eight strips, $25 for 12 strips, and $30 for unlimited strips.

Longwood Bingo sub-leases the hall for a specific night to all interested non-profit organizations looking for a way to raise money for their charities. For information call 260-8908.

Toy Makers Show New Creations

YORK (UPI) — The big American International Toy Fair opened in New York runs until Wednesday. Thousands of merchants, order books at the ready, are in town to eye the new stuff, walking miles of aisles in exhibit areas, searching for kid-pleasing playthings.

They review television commercials for new toys, listen to sales pitches, play with toys. Some are entertained by the toy makers angling for a respectable slice of the $12.5 billion spent on toys a year — about $200 per kid.

According to Robert Cooper, board chairman of the Toy Manufacturers of America, sponsor of the Toy Fair, the toy trend in 1988 is back to basics. Building sets, trains, basic dolls, kits, educational toys, stuffed toy animals, drawing and chemistry sets.

New offerings include a soap bubble maker that turns out free-form soap bubbles up to 7 feet long. Another spell-binding item: sunglasses that shoot a stream of water 30 feet.

Among dolls, hair goes from long to short — or vice versa — when an arm is raised or lowered. Even Cabbage Patch dolls have growing hair. The latest in Barbie dolls, leader of the fashion doll world and 29 this year, is Perfume Pretty Barbie. This introduces girls to the doll's own signature fragrance.

Among oldies putting in a reappearance are the hula hoop, 30 this year, and Howdy Doodly accessories, the first since 1960. Howdy Doodly stuff includes special edition wrist watches and wall clocks. Some 100 Howdy Doodly items are expected to be out of the pipeline before year's end.

A new View-Master video system, introduced by Ideal Inc., is billed as "the first ever interactive learning and entertainment experience for use with a standard VHS videocassette recorder."

'Pinpricks' Pain May Be Allergy Symptom

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother-in-law suffers from a strange illness every summer that seems to indicate allergies. She gets an intense pinpricking feeling in her legs and trunk while asleep, which is painful enough to wake her. Doctors are at a loss.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your mother-in-law may, indeed, have allergies if she develops symptoms only at certain times of the year. Take her to an allergist to determine if she is reacting to a substance, such as dust or pollen, in her environment.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For the past month and a half, I've awakened every morning with large pink bumps all over me. They usually disappear around 10 a.m. I'm 72 and too old for acne.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Large, temporary red bumps on the skin could be hives. These often develop in response to an allergic reaction. Ask your doctor to investigate this. I doubt that you have acne; this common condition is due to inflammation of pores in the skin that does not disappear as the day wears on.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You received a letter from a reader about her child's lack of speech and referred the reader to a pediatrician. A referral to a speech/language pathologist would also be appropriate. The American Speech-Language-Hearing Association staffs a hotline (800-638-6868), or the local Easter Seals chapter can help.

DEAR DR. GOTT: True. However, I still believe that a pediatrician is the place to start. In my opinion, a child with speech problems should have a medical examination, followed, if appropriate, by referral to a speech/language pathologist. However, I appreciate your suggestion and know that other readers may get help through the two organizations you mention.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My problems started about four years ago, when I was 24. I have to strain so hard to get words out that I feel out of breath. I was hospitalized with depression in 1979 and had three seizures when I was 14, so I don't know whether my problem is psychological or physical. I'm a parking-lot attendant and am having a bad time relating to the public.

DEAR DR. GOTT: From the information you have supplied, I cannot draw specific conclusions. You should see a doctor for a complete examination, tests and possible referral to a specialist, such as a neurologist. Your symptoms of dyphonia (impairment of speech), seizures and depression suggest a physical nerve disorder. This needs diagnosis. Psychological counseling may be

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

There are many advantages to playing a suit contract. You can establish a side-suit by ruffing out opposing high cards, you can ruff losers in dummy's short suit and you can even arrange to have a defender play his high trump on his partner's winner.

The four-heart contract was sound. The defenders were entitled to two spades and the ace of diamonds, with declarer succeeding as long as trumps split 3-2. But South found a way to make 10 tricks even though dummy's ace of clubs and led a diamond, winning the king when East ducked. He then continued with his queen. East won the ace and played the nine of spades. Declarer took the ace, played a heart to the king and ruffed a diamond, hoping the jack would fall. East threw a club, since declarer would simply discard a spade loser if East ruffed with the heart nine. Declarer then played his club king and ruffed his losing club. Next came the queen of hearts from dummy. West showing out, and now dummy's last diamond was led. Once again, if East ruffed, declarer would discard a spade. So East discarded the spade jack, declarer scored his remaining small trump, and the heart ace was his 10th trick. The hapless defenders took the remainder. West's good spade queen and East's heart jack falling together on the final trick.
