State Lottery To Provide Funds For Barnett As Head Aged Is Promised Of Local Jaycees

State of Florida. An old age constitutional amendment has already passed the Senate and will probably pass the House, which provides that the state can appropriate money for this worthy cause. The lottery agreement entirely follows it up and provides ample means to pay the same.

Approximately 40 of the 92 new members attended the meeting along with nearly 25 old members.

An arrangement was made that the Sanford Jaycees organization now boasts of nearly 180 members and that an ambitious program will be mapped out for the new year when the directors meet at the Country Club next Monday night.

In securing the money from these sources no one will be injured, and money will be amply provided for those who are in legitimate charge upon the state.

The present status of the old age who are incapable of doing manual labor since the FEPA dropped them from the relief rolls, is extremely pitiful and greatly to be deplored.

"Under the lottery drawings which will probably be held in the three large cities, Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami, immense crowds of people will be attracted to our fair state."

"The balance of the United States will probably provide 75 percent of these ten millions of dollars. An amendment of similar nature is now before the legislature of the State of Maryland, and I hope and trust that Florida will be the first state in the Union to take advantage of this system which will easily provide the means, as I stated in the beginning, of taking care of the aged, and will go a long way toward taking care of the expenses of the state government."

Georgia Peaches Being Sold In Gotham

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP)—Fresh Georgia peaches became the piece de resistance of certain private tables here yesterday.

Aristocratically ahead of a kilod crop, four crates and a half bushel basket of the luscious fruit were received by Frost & McNabb and Sam Berkowitz, wholesalers, and quickly sold upon by unnamed purchasers.

The prices — $7 per crate and $3.50 for a bushel — were judged to be rather fancy.

Frost & McNabb reported the peaches to be "excellent." Larger consignments of the fruit are expected within ten days.

Wagner men go into the far corners of Florida. They ride the good roads and the trails. They see the grand efforts at progress and note the struggling, pathetic efforts as well. The big cities and the wild places in the roads!

Wagner men daily contact thousands of merchants. Wagner men are "Bill," or "Jim" or "Brownie" to most of these merchants—sharing their confidence, with a knowledge of their hopes, ambitions, trials, failures and successes.

Clearing this information through the sales department led us to visualize a Greater Florida! Pictured in our minds is the settlement, with happy families, of the vast stretches of now unused land, sea and gulf coasts. Pictured also is the greater area of land which can be brought into productivity.

We believe Florida has a marvelous future. We know that, for proper development, it requires a plan supported by the entire population. A VAST PLAN which contemplates greater yields of success for millions of people.

We are offering ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the best ideas and suggestions to spend the day when dreams of Florida are developed into homes for millions of happy residents.

SUCCUMBS

Hughes May Be Boosted For Presidency

Chief Justice's View On Railroad Pension Bill Makes Him Potential Candidate

RICHARD PLUMMER WASHINGTON, May 15.—The dissenting opinion of Chief Justice Hughes in the railroad retirement act test immediately was hailed in some political quarters in Washington as qualifying him for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936 if the party goes "Jiberal."

The converse of that picture would seem to be that Justice Roberts of Pennsylvania, whose name has tickled about in 1936 G. O. P. talk due to his previous affiliation with the liberal wing of the court, has read himself out of the race by joining the conservative bloc of the court on the same issue.

It seems fairly certain, however, to those politicians who have studied the text of the Hughes decision that it will be revived at Republican sectional meetings now in the offing.

The sponsors of these meetings have said flatly no questions of nominations will be permitted to interfere with their effort to evolve a new party code of principles.

As a matter of practical politics, however, they know that personal leadership is the greatest force in shaping party destiny.

Consider William Jennings Bryan in 1908. It was the man who made the issue then and not the issue the man. The same was true with Theodore Roosevelt in 1912, the results of which are obviously the underlying causes of this wave of western party reorganization activity now.

Charles Evans Hughes, 74, will be 74 in 1936. It might be a different story if ultimately the issue between conservatism and liberalism is to reach a crisis in the supreme court, Hughes' attitude and political history in view of his consistently liberal record since he returned to the supreme court, conceivably could make him a figure around which the progressive element of the Republican party could rally.

The decision was unanimous.

The Board voted to call upon the United States Department of Agriculture to continue its market news service for a longer period in the future so that the Orlando section might avail itself of the service until its season has ended.

W. H. Schmidt was elected to represent the organization on the Seminole County Health Council, and each community in the county was asked to select a representative to serve on the council.

An address by Carl F. Bohle, assistant state forester, was the feature of the evening after business had been disposed of.

The Board expressed its appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Williams for the map which they recently prepared in which Sanford is featured as the ideal point from which to start for visits to other Florida points of interest.

Hughes May Be Boosted For Presidency

Chief Justice's View On Railroad Pension Bill Makes Him Potential Candidate

RICHARD PLUMMER WASHINGTON, May 15.—The dissenting opinion of Chief Justice Hughes in the railroad retirement act test immediately was hailed in some political quarters in Washington as qualifying him for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936 if the party goes "Jiberal."

The converse of that picture would seem to be that Justice Roberts of Pennsylvania, whose name has tickled about in 1936 G. O. P. talk due to his previous affiliation with the liberal wing of the court, has read himself out of the race by joining the conservative bloc of the court on the same issue.

It seems fairly certain, however, to those politicians who have studied the text of the Hughes decision that it will be revived at Republican sectional meetings now in the offing.

The sponsors of these meetings have said flatly no questions of nominations will be permitted to interfere with their effort to evolve a new party code of principles.

As a matter of practical politics, however, they know that personal leadership is the greatest force in shaping party destiny.

Consider William Jennings Bryan in 1908. It was the man who made the issue then and not the issue the man. The same was true with Theodore Roosevelt in 1912, the results of which are obviously the underlying causes of this wave of western party reorganization activity now.

Charles Evans Hughes, 74, will be 74 in 1936. It might be a different story if ultimately the issue between conservatism and liberalism is to reach a crisis in the supreme court, Hughes' attitude and political history in view of his consistently liberal record since he returned to the supreme court, conceivably could make him a figure around which the progressive element of the Republican party could rally.

The decision was unanimous.

The Board voted to call upon the United States Department of Agriculture to continue its market news service for a longer period in the future so that the Orlando section might avail itself of the service until its season has ended.

W. H. Schmidt was elected to represent the organization on the Seminole County Health Council, and each community in the county was asked to select a representative to serve on the council.

An address by Carl F. Bohle, assistant state forester, was the feature of the evening after business had been disposed of.

The Board expressed its appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Williams for the map which they recently prepared in which Sanford is featured as the ideal point from which to start for visits to other Florida points of interest.
