

Have A 'Sweet' Holiday Season

Try Tiny Tim's Pudding...

Christmas is a time for tradition. So what could be more fitting than to take a leaf from Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" and serve a glorious steamed pudding? As you may recall, the climax of the Cratchit family's Christmas meal was such a pudding, a symbol of opulence and good will.

This updated version is lighter in texture than the English classic. But it is just as rich in flavor. Serve the pudding with a hot brandy sauce, another Christmas tradition.

BANANA-APRICOT STEAMED PUDDING

2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

1/4 cup cut, dried apricots
1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup molasses
2 cups mashed ripe bananas (6 medium)

Sift together dry ingredients. Add apricots and nuts. Mix to coat. Stir in milk, molasses and mashed bananas. Pour into a well-greased, floured 8-cup mold.

Cover lightly and place on rack in kettle. Add water to come 1/4-way up the side of the mold. Cover kettle and simmer for 3 1/2 hours over medium heat, until cake tester inserted in pudding comes out clean.

Remove top of mold and let stand for 5 minutes. Turn out onto platter and serve warm with Hot Brandy Sauce. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

HOT BRANDY SAUCE:

1 cup butter or margarine, softened
2 cups sifted con-

fectioner's sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon lemon juice,
2 tablespoons brandy
With electric mixer, beat butter until creamy. Gradually add sugar and beat until fluffy. Add eggs and beat until smooth. Refrigerate overnight or for several hours.

To serve, place mixture in top of double boiler over simmering water. Add lemon juice and brandy. Stir occasionally until hot.

Remember the Cratchit family from Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol!" The glorious steamed pudding served to Tiny Tim and the family has been updated—combining bananas, apricots, nuts and spices.

Make individual Christmas puddings and seal for freezing—a gift idea for sharing the season.

...Or Serve Individual Puddings

A few organized souls already have their Christmas shopping done and their gifts neatly wrapped and ready for the big day. For everyone else, however, it is still a rush to the ho-ho-ho hour.

For family eating and gift giving, we made an evening for making a special Christmas pudding that can be divided into individual servings. By making the puddings early and freezing them, you will be ahead of the game.

Prepare the sauce at the same time and freeze it, too. This job and other treatable food projects are made easier with the use of a sealing appliance. In fact, that might make a good holiday gift item to add to your list, especially if there are small children in the family, since it allows for more economical preparation of soups, stews and desserts in large batches to freeze in one- or two-portion quantities for later use.

CHRISTMAS PUDDING

1 1/4 cups dark seedless raisins
1 and one-third cup chopped pitted dates
Two-thirds cup diced candied pineapple
1/4 cup dried candied lemon peel
1/4 cup stout or ale
1/4 cup dark rum (not Jamaica rum)
1/4 cup butter
1 1/2 cup dark brown sugar, packed
4 eggs
2 tart apples, peeled, cored and chopped
1/4 cup chopped almonds, toasted
1/4 cup dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1 1/4 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
Grated rind of 2 lemons

In a large bowl, combine dried and candied fruits with stout and rum. Marinate 3 hours or longer, if desired.

In a mixing bowl, cream butter with sugar. Beat in eggs. Stir butter mixture into fruit mixture. Stir in apples, almonds and bread crumbs. Sift together dry ingredients. Stir into mixture along with rind. Mix thoroughly.

Place batter into 18 buttered custard cups (allow two-thirds to 3/4 cup for each), filling them a square of heavy aluminum foil. Tie securely with string. Trim foil to just below string. Place on racks in large pots. Add enough boiling water to each one-third of the way up sides of custard cups. Cover. Place over high heat. Steam 2 hours, adding boiling water as needed to maintain correct level.

With tongs, remove custard cups from pots. Let stand 5 minutes. Remove foil covers. Cool 1 hour. Unmold puddings, loosening with thin-bladed knife, if necessary. Seal 2 puddings each in 18-1/2 inch boilable cooking pouch material. Store in freezer.

To serve, heat from pudding pouch in boiling water 10 minutes. Begin timing when water returns to boil after adding pouch. Remove pudding from pouches. Spoon hot sauce over puddings just before serving, if desired. Makes 18 servings.

(If you have a Seal-A-Meal or similar appliance, follow procedure for freezing and reheating in the boilable pouch.)

To heat in a microwave oven, pierce one corner of each pouch to make a steam vent. Set frozen pouch in center of microwave oven. Heat on full power 5 minutes.

Sauce Recipe

1 egg
1 tablespoon water
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons brandy

In a small saucepan, beat together egg and water until foamy. Stir in sugar and salt. Cook over medium-low heat 2 to 3 minutes, stirring constantly until slightly thickened.

Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice and brandy. Fill 8- by 4-inch boilable cooking pouch material with sauce. Seal. Store in freezer.

To serve, heat from pouch in boiling water for 5 minutes, until heated through. Serve hot over pudding.

To heat in microwave oven, place from pouch on paper toweling or plate in center of microwave oven. Cook on full power for 3 minutes. Turn bag over and pierce one corner to make steam vent. Cook 2

CUBAN PREMIER FIDEL CASTRO

SANFORD'S DR. LUIS PEREZ AND STAMPS

Sanford's Castro Opponent: Open-Refugee Rule An Error

By TOM GIORDANO
Herald Staff Writer

The announcement by U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell that the United States will accept 1,500 prisoners jailed in Cuba has evoked sharp criticism from Sanford physician Dr. Luis Perez, a longtime anti-Castroite.

Bell made the U.S. position clear Tuesday when he told a House Judiciary Committee the jailed Cubans would get first priority for immigration and hopes to process them at the rate of 400 a month.

"That will open the door to admitting pro-Castro agents and propagandists who will infiltrate the Cuban population in the United States to improve Castro's image," warned Dr. Perez on learning of the screening of those prisoners to be released by Castro will be less stringent than usual.

Dr. Perez, himself condemned to death by Castro and unable to return to Cuba even if the United States develops a tourism relationship with that country, labeled the Cuban doctor's actions a three-pronged political ploy.

Castro announced last week he would release the prisoners if the United States would accept them.

in addition to 1,000 past and present prisoners earlier permitted to emigrate to the United States.

The move is the latest in a recent series of Castro acts to improve Cuban-U.S. relations, but Dr. Perez views them with a cautious eye.

"In the first place, the announced release of those prisoners has divided the exiled Cuban community in Miami. On the one hand there are those excited in Miami who will encourage the United States to expedite accepting the prisoners, while on the other side will be those ideologically opposed to freedom for just a few who will say they prefer all of Cuba be free. This will put those factions at odds," Dr. Perez pointed out.

"Number two, Castro's efforts to improve Cuba's ties with the United States by releasing these prisoners at 400 or so a month is 'Machavillian.' You know, if you're going to do something bad, do it quickly, but if it's good, do it piece at a time and reap the benefits of the 'good' publicity.

"That's what Castro's doing here. If he wanted to, he could release the 3,000 prisoners all at once, but I doubt he will," Dr. Perez continued.

The Sanford physician, chief of staff at Seminole Memorial Hospital, said in his opinion the third prong in Castro's efforts is the attempt to normalize the federation and in turn chan-

$3,590 IRS Bill Jeopardizing Seniors Club

By DONNA ESTES

If the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) "downs" waive the penalty, we'll have to go out of business," said Sam Kaminsky, president of the Federation of Senior Citizens Clubs of Seminole County, today confirming that the organization is having problems with IRS.

The problem came about because a federal form "990" which tax-exempt, non-profit corporations are required to file was "not done in a timely fashion in 1977," according to Andy Knight, director of

The problem came about because a federal form "990" which tax-exempt, non-profit corporations are required to file was "not done in a timely fashion in 1977," according to Andy Knight, director of congregate meals for Project OASIS, an off-shoot of the federation.

Knight said the form was filed 250 days late and IRS has notified the federation it is subject to a $10 daily fine or $2,500.

"We have no money and no director right now," said Kaminsky.

The problem could have a far-reaching effect. The federation is an organization composed of the various senior citizen clubs in Seminole County.

Project OASIS (Older Americans Service in Seminole) is an agency created by the federation and operating under the direction of the federation to administer federally funded congregate meals and meals on wheels programs including the Senior Citizens Meals on Wheels program. The federal moneys are granted to the federation and in turn chan-

The SCA board of directors at a meeting two weeks ago voted to take whatever action necessary to recover the federal money for MOW, saying Project OASIS renewed on its promise to continue feeding the one but could daily in the elderly poor who had been served by SCA. SCA executive director Rev. Arnos Jones told the board that of the 30 clients who had been served by SCA, Project OASIS dropped 13 from the project, despite its promise. He said the 13 were told they could participate in congregate meals and would be based to congregate meals sites, but that slots were not available for those meals for the clients dropped from MOW Oct. 1, the day Project OASIS took over agency for its MOW program.

Seek Changes In Testing

Teachers Meet To Oppose Kids Doing 'Level Best'

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
Herald Staff Writer

This is the second year Seminole County elementary school pupils are being tested on a countywide "leveling" basis and at least 100 teachers say they would like to see that changed.

The "leveling" system, used to determine how first through fifth grade students are progressing in any subject—math, language, reading—was started last year in Seminole County on a pilot school basis, and this year went countywide.

The test is issued every nine weeks to those first through fifth grade students in each of the subjects taught to determine if the student has mastered one level, say of math, so he or she can progress to the next level in that subject.

Those teachers opposed to the test are scheduled to meet today with school administrators and ask the test be eliminated or some changes be made.

The teachers are claiming the tests are unfair to students because while the test is the same for all students in those grades throughout the county, there are sufficient socio-economic differences between the students making it difficult for some, say for others to pass.

Moreover, the teachers, who met Tuesday at Winter Springs Elementary School to discuss what they said are common problems with the leveling tests, also said they want more individual control over those tests.

The teachers said at present students are tested soon after tests are received, but that teachers should have access to the tests in ample time to assess them and properly prepare their students.

The teachers also said they feel they themselves should be permitted to use independent judgment to determine whether the student will advance to the next level, instead of relying only on the leveling test.

The teachers pointed out they are able to observe students on a daily basis and recognize many student abilities the tests do not assess. The 100 teachers dealing with the issue represent about 13 percent of the 811 elementary teachers.

There are some 11,700 elementary school students given the leveling test.

One of the school officials expected at today's meeting will be Mary Grooms, director of elementary education for the county schools.

"I think the leveling test is a tool that gives people an opportunity to see the youngsters in school meet the district standards in the various areas," Mrs. Grooms said.

She noted there have been certain recent changes which have been made on the test since it was last given.

"Several areas have been deleted or testing of the items has been delayed a year or so depending on the particular item," she said.

Oxford Greeting To Ex-President: 'No More Nixon'

'We'll take it as it comes'

RICHARD MILHOUS NIXON

'Nixon crawl back to your hole'

OXFORD, England (UPI)—More than 100 American and British students, waving placards and shouting "No more Nixon," demonstrated outside the Oxford Union debating society building today while awaiting the arrival of former President Richard M. Nixon.

The students started assembling and blocking traffic on the main Cornmarket shopping street more than 90 minutes before Nixon was due to start addressing the society at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EST). About 30 uniformed policemen stood by and tried to keep traffic moving.

The demonstrators were mainly from a group formed by American students of Oxford's Pembroke college to try to disrupt the Nixon visit. The organization was called CREEP, an acronym for Campaign to Resist the Efforts of the Ex-president.

Some of the placards they waved bore the slogans: "Nixon crawl back to your hole" and "Where is Lee Harvey Oswald now that we need him?"

Mark Hulbert, 22, from Manhattan, Kan., and one of the CREEP organizers, told reporters: "The protest movement started with the American Union debating society while more than 100 U.S. and British students outside the hall chanted 'No more Nixon.'"

"We plan to make as much noise as possible during Nixon's speech and to make things as uncomfortable as possible without getting into a punch-up (row),"

Only Life Members of the Oxford Union were eligible for seats in the auditorium where Nixon was to speak. Long lines of them formed in near-freezing temperatures hours before Nixon's scheduled arrival in the hope of obtaining seats to not.

Nixon, on his first visit to Britain since resigning as president, was scheduled to deliver a half-hour address on foreign affairs followed by an hour of questions to 800 students jammed into the Union debating hall on Oxford's medieval, spired campus.

A group of American and British students, protesting Nixon's visit to the city, said they would

Nixon: Nuclear Gap

OXFORD, England (UPI)—Former President Richard M. Nixon, speaking through the chants of angry demonstrators, today said the Soviet Union was closing any remaining nuclear weapons gap and warned that "we are going to lose unless the trend is changed."

Nixon spoke to 700 life members of the Oxford Union debating society while more than 100 U.S. and British students outside the hall chanted "No more Nixon."

"I want to express my appreciation to those inside for their warm welcome and to those outside who have made me feel very much at home," Nixon said.

disrupt the meeting and seek to prevent him speaking at all. Another group, this one all Americans, said they would stand on the street in front of the union and pass out a statement they had signed denouncing the visit.

Security precautions were tough. More than 100 extra police were drafted into Oxford to bolster its normal 100-man police force.

Because of a lack of space, the British commercial television companies on the condition it would feed the coverage to other companies and the three American networks.

Nixon, on what he himself described as the "public, but not political" comeback trail in Europe, arrived in Britain Wednesday after a Paris stopover whose highlight was a 3-hour, 15-minute talkshow question-and-answer show on state-run French TV.

Told on his arrival at London's Heathrow airport that students were threatening to disrupt the Oxford meeting, Nixon said "We'll take it as it comes. I appreciate the invitation and I look forward to fulfilling it."

Although the visit was billed as "private," British officials were humbled to see Nixon step off the plane from Paris with a squad of aides and several security men. He was greeted by U.S. Ambassador to Britain Kingman Brewster.

The Foreign Office merely sent out one of its group of "official greeters."

Barbara Christensen, the only woman among the 12 Casselberry city council candidates, is the wife of Gerald Christensen, former mayor of the city. She is a bookkeeper for Casselberry Gardens, a position she has held since 1969. Noting that she assisted her husband during his two-year term as mayor by going over the budget in detail to assist his effort to keep taxes down, she said her current campaign is her first bid for public office. Mrs. Christensen said a major issue in the campaign is the way the city council transferred $300,000 from the utility fund to the general fund and spent it without listening to input from the citizens. "Women are more used to handling the family budget and are more conservative with finances. I feel a woman on the council would give it a better

Others On Tap

The views of the remaining nine candidates in the Dec. 5 Casselberry election — plus the five running for Lake Mary City Council — will appear in The Herald Friday and Sunday.

Gene McDonald, Francis Mark and Bill Smathers, candidates for the Lake Mary City Council, will appear in The Herald Friday at 1:30 p.m. Saturday to meet and answer questions from the public.

Delegation Organizing

The Seminole County Legislative Delegation will hold its organizational meeting at 6 p.m., Dec. 16, at the Citrus City Villa State Rep. Bobby Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, chairman of the delegation said. Anyone wishing to present a matter to the delegation should notify him at PO Box 864, Altamonte Springs prior to Dec. 15 for the matter to be placed on the agenda, Hattaway said. The meeting is open to the public and a portion of the agenda will be set aside for public discussion.

Who, What

About 25-to-30 percent — 1,150-to-1,542 — of Casselberry's 4,000 qualified voters will turn out at the city hall polling place Tuesday to select three councilmen from a field of 12 candidates, predicts City Clerk Mary Hattaway.

Winning candidates will be the three carrying the highest number of votes in the field. Council candidates do not run for designated seats in the City of Casselberry, a unique method of choosing city councilmen in Seminole County. In all the other six cities of the county, candidates run for a specific seat against specific opponents.

Names of the candidates as they appear on the ballot are: Barbara Christensen, Thomas E. Embree, Charles H. Glasscock, James W. Hill, Tom Kelley, David G. McCoy, Salvatore Orlando, Carl Robertson Jr., Frank Schmitt, George Thomas Smith, James L. Smith and Don Wilson. Incumbents are Schmitt, Wilson and Robertson.

Voting machines will be in the city hall council chambers.

More than 40 absentee ballots have been requested, said Mrs. Hattaway, and more than 20 returned to city hall, a record for a city election.

Orlando: What About Cuts In Utility Rates?

Sal Orlando, who served one term on the Casselberry City Council in the past and was chairman of the board for several months toward the end of that term, is seeking election again to the council because he is "concerned with the current city council's unwillingness or inability to continue a program set up two-to-three years ago."

"We had established utility rates and promised the people that the rates would be reviewed within six months to a year and reduced if the system was generating sufficient revenues," said Orlando. "This year the utility department generated surplus revenues of $750,000. Instead of reducing the rates, however, the city fathers decided to transfer that money to the general fund and spend it needlessly," he said, adding that the persons responsible for transferring the money are the same ones who criticized a past council for levying a property tax.

Orlando, 47, a senior engineering technician with Land Engineering, and his wife, Edna, reside in the city for the past eight years. Live at 128 Eldorado Way with their two children, Michael, 21, a student at Seminole Community College and Diana, 19, a student at Valencia Community College. Orlando, a native of New Jersey, served in the Army with the 4th Infantry Division during the Korean War and he remained in the active reserve for 15 years prior to moving to Florida. He is a vice president of the Altamonte-Casselberry Chamber of Commerce; the city's representative to the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council; immediate past president of the Casselberry Lions Club and is a certified trainee instructor of first aid and CPR with the

George Smith: Ex-Planner Vows A Full-Time Role

"Let George Do It." is the campaign motto. George Smith, 56, of 564 Diana Circle, who is running for a city council berth in next Tuesday's city election.

Smith, 56, served 18 months on the city's planning and zoning commission. He has been a resident of the city for the past three years and a resident of Florida for many years.

He is a retired Army master sergeant, active in veterans' organizations and founding commander of the Winter Park Veterans of Foreign Wars Post. He and his wife, Glor'ia, are members of the Red Bug Elementary PTS where their son, Andrew, 4, is a pupil.

Noting he aided the city in the final adoption of the city's land use and zoning plans passed by the council this year, he said he has also attended more than 90 percent of the city council meetings during the same period of time.

"I will serve the city on a full-time basis and will conduct myself as an elected official in the best interests of all the citizens of Casselberry," said Smith. "The city should be run on a proper fiscal, planned progressive way."

From his experience on the planning and zoning commission, Smith said the city needs light industry in the future to create jobs for the community's children so that they will not move away. "I'm not going to change government, I'm going to improve it by working," said Smith.

Smith, who grew up in Miami, attended the University of Miami for two years and majored in government, economics and business law.

NATION IN BRIEF

Final Guyana Suicide Toll Reduced By One To 911

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (UPI) — The final body count of the People's Temple mass suicide-murder victims in Guyana has been reduced by one as a result of the fingerprinting process. Maj. Robert Groom, an Air Force information officer, said the number has been revised from 912 to 911. The State Department, Defense Department and the FBI are in agreement about the 911 figure, said Groom.

7 Temple Members Home

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Seven elderly survivors of the Jonestown death ceremony came home to the West Coast early today, saying little, reportedly because they still fear the vengeance of supposed Peoples Temple hit squads.

City Chiefs Back Carter Plan

ST. LOUIS (UPI) Officials attending the five-day convention of the National League of Cities voted to endorse President Carter's anti-inflation plans and withdrawing from their earlier position that full employment should be the nation's top priority.

Suspect Confesses Slayings

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jailed ex-Supervisor Dan White reportedly has confessed to the City Hall slayings of Mayor George Moscone and Harvey Milk, a Board of Supervisors member who opposed White's reappointment to the lawmaking body.

Casselberry: 3 Seats Up For Grabs

Hill: Bar Hours, Zoning Concerns

James W. Hill, 40, of 340 Golden Days Drive, has been hearing two major concerns from the people as he has walked the streets of the city seeking votes in his quest for a seat on the city council.

"After two weeks on the streets, I have found the people are concerned about the proposed 4 a.m. closing of establishments selling alcoholic beverages and the proposal to rezone industrial the area fronting on SR 98 at the entrance to Indian Hills subdivision," said Hill.

"The Indian Hills residents really used a traffic signal on SR 98 at their entranceway to make it safer for them to travel out of their subdivision to shop," said Hill. "Instead, it is being proposed that the area be rezoned industrial and that will only compound their problem. "The people know as well that the issue of 4 a.m. closing is not dead, but will be coming up again. We don't want beer joints to stay open until 4 a.m. in Casselberry," said Hill.

Seven-year residents of the city, Hill and his wife, Gloria, have two daughters, Dawn, 16, and Brenda, 9, both students at Longwood Elementary.

Hill and his family moved to Florida 19 years ago from their native New Jersey because of his father's health. Retired from the postal service, Hill also served a nine-year tour of duty in the U.S. Army security. His hobbies are coin and stamp collecting.

He previously ran an unsuccessful campaign for the mayor's office.

McCoy: I'm There To Get Job Done

"The citizens of Casselberry and both graduated from deserve councilmen who will serve them on more than a part-time or time-available basis," said David G. McCoy, 46, of 311 Queens Mirror Circle, candidate for the city council.

A retired businessman who specialized in sales and accounting, McCoy believes the city needs councilmen who will be there to get the job done. "That's the type of councilman I will be," he said.

A native of Maryland, McCoy has lived in Casselberry for nearly 24 years. His family settled in Ashbrooke when they first came to the state in 1953.

Both his children, David and Donna, were born in Tampa

James Smith: More Tax Base

Casselberry needs new developments says James L. Smith, 32, of 1138 Winter Park Drive, candidate for the city council.

"It seems like the only things that get approved for building in the city are fast food restaurants, while the tax base of the city should be expanded," said Smith.

Smith also stated his support for the anti-topless law which he proposed by Sheriff John Paul for the county. "I really feel the people do not have a responsive voice on the city council right now," he said.

Smith and his wife, Donna, have been residents of the city for the past three years. They have one daughter, Navia, 2 1/2 years old. A native Floridian, he is originally from Tavares in Lake County. He served a four-year tour of duty in the U.S. Air Force during the Vietnam War. His hobby is golf. Smith is a printer foreman at Sports Graphic, Fern Park. In his first bid for public office, he is conducting a door-to-door campaign on a "one-on-one basis."

U.S.-Mexico
Border Woes

The proposed renovation and extension of the fence along the Mexican border has been described by Immigration Commissioner Leonel J. Castillo as "a symbol of our frustration" in dealing with the immigration problem.

But to many of the 2,800 Border Patrol agents and some 500 officers of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in this area, the commissioner himself is a factor in the frustration. He has been accused by department employees of initiating policies that protect the illegal aliens, while publicly proclaiming that immigration laws must be enforced.

They believe that he has been less than forceful in support of agency requests for more manpower to help stem the flow of illegal traffic across the border.

He has testified frequently that "undocumented immigrants," as he prefers to call the hundreds of thousands who have successfully eluded border personnel and established residence in the United States, are useful in filling jobs considered undesirable by citizens or legal immigrants.

Castillo, however, is in a no-win position. A former vice president of the Council of La Raza, his acceptance of the INS post is viewed as a betrayal by Chicano activists.

At the same time, those concerned with the impact of the illegal alien population on the job market and tax-supported services, question his commitment to enforcement of INS regulations. President Carter's appointment of Castillo 16 months ago was designed to regain the confidence of Mexican-Americans who had criticized his predecessor, Leonard Chapman, as insensitive to the rights of individuals of Latin origin and accused him of exaggerating the "legal alien problem."

The president's choice was self-defeating. Castillo is not entirely to blame for the government's failure to provide an answer to the dilemma of illegal immigration.

Support for a legislative solution has diminished. Legislators from states with a heavy concentration of illegal aliens reflect the lack of enthusiasm of the employers who exploit them and the union leaders who recruit them to membership.

Most in this country are apathetic. But Castillo's inability to provide leadership has compounded the morale of INS workers and demoralized the illegal alien population.

Around

The Clock
By DENNIS FEOLA

We call them "non-stories." Stories which, for any number of reasons, may not have any real news value. I worked on such a story Thanksgiving eve. Like many non-stories, the problem with this story was a faulty synopsis. But this non-story deserves mention. There were some admirable decisions made by our county officials and I don't believe their compassion should go unappreciated. A migrant worker, staying at a camp in Midway, complained to the Central Florida Legal Services Inc. that people at the camp, including children, were not being fed. Director of Human Services Troy Todd sent a man to the Sanford attorneys because he said his department could do nothing because the people were not Seminole County residents. Attorney Stanley Stone of legal services has worked for more than one year on the legal problems at the county's three migrant labor camps. Managing attorney Trenea Kaye and attorney Toby Lee were also deeply concerned about conditions at that particular camp. But all the attorneys, with all their knowledge, couldn't feed those 30 or more people without help. When Todd learned Legal Services couldn't do anything for the people and they would have to spend the four-day Thanksgiving holiday without food, he acted.

He contacted County Manager Roger Neiswander, who authorized an emergency allocation of food coupons for the migrant workers. It was 4:36 p.m. Thanksgiving eve. In another two minutes every county office would be closed for the holiday.

Todd arranged to have a staffer stay at the county health center until the migrants arrived to get the food coupons. Todd then drove to the Midway camp to personally assess the situation.

It appears now as if the original report of people not being fed was exaggerated. Conditions at the Midway site were typical of such camps. Six or seven men slept together in small rooms on filthy cots. There was open garbage in the area.

But, there was also a large freezer full of meats. The people I spoke with said they were being fed by the crewman.

Todd, satisfied there was sufficient food to feed the people, called off the emergency food coupon allocation in his history.

Problems at the camp are not all solved. It still faces inspection by the County Health Department and continuing investigation by Legal Services and various federal officials. But it's nice to know, when an emergency situation demands cutting through red tape our county officials can get it done.

ANGLE-WALTERS
Census
Queries
Change

WASHINGTON (NEA) - A century ago, it was wage rates, crime and pauperism. Today, it is ethnic identity, carpool arrangements and unruly "roommates."

The self-portrait of America—who we are, how we live, what concerns us—is about to be painted anew in the 1980 decennial census of population and housing, the largest headcount in our history.

The results of this census, the 29th in an unbroken chain that began in 1790, will determine how federal funds are distributed in the next decade, reallocate political power through congressional and legislative redistricting, and shape the marketing decisions of private businesses.

But however important the answers may be in practical terms, it is the census questions which provide the most fascinating clues to the changing economic and social conditions of the nation.

The 1980 census questionnaire will not simply duplicate the 1970 version, anyone that those copied the 1980 forms. Certain fundamentals will be repeated—how many persons in the household, their ages, sex, marital status, etc.—but some questions have been added since 1970 while others have been deleted.

For the first time, for instance, the U.S. Census Bureau is not asking that the "head of household" fill out the questionnaire. In the era of working wives, too many women found that terminology objectionable.

The 1980 census forms also contain a new category of "partner-roommate" to describe a non-related household member who is neither a paid employee nor a roomer-boarder. Census officials admit they had quite a time coming up with that precise phraseology.

All households will be asked for the first time to identify any member of "Spanish-Hispanic origin or descent." Since federal laws and programs now specifically mention that particular minority group.

Some 30 percent of all households will be receiving a "long" questionnaire, with 65 questions more than the 13 which will go to most homes. And the long form in 1980 will include for the first time an ethnic origin question designed to reflect the growth of ethnic awareness and pride which was so evident in the 1970s.

Like the "head of household" deletion, the addition of the ethnic origin question was prompted by public pressure—not by any push from the bureaucrats.

The housing section of the 1980 questionnaire will also contain some new queries. It is aimed at pinpointing the number of condominium and cooperative apartment buildings; another at determining how many people live in mobile homes.

Gene from the 1980 forms is an old standby—a query about the presence of television in the home. Census officials assume television ownership is now virtually universal.

On the other hand, long form recipients will be asked new questions about how they get to work each day, how long it takes and whether they drive alone or in a carpool if they commute by car.

VIEWPOINT
Legend
Status
Shrinking

By DONALD GRAFF

Mao Tse-tung may have been a legend in his own time, but the way things are going that legendary status may not outlast by much his own demise.

One of the more interesting developments of late in People's China is the increasingly bold criticism of the late party chairman and font of revolutionary truth. It is now being suggested in the official press that Mao was something less than ideologically inflexible. A work by a radical writer once printed by Mao and the inspiration for his Cultural Revolution has been attacked as having been, in fact, "a reactionary signal of practicing fascist dictatorship."

Wall posters, that uniquely Chinese contribution to mass media, cite Mao's "errors of judgment" in connection with the disgraced "Gang of Four."

As China watchers see it, the criticism amounts to an indictment of the entire Cultural Revolution, that convulsive effort of the late 1960s to cleanse China of foreign influences and bootstrap economic development through reliance on its own human and cultural resources. Since the Cultural Revolution was the chairman's particular baby it is also a deliberate move to downgrade Mao himself.

It follows wholesale rehabilitation of victims of Mao's various purges, most notably Premier Deng Xiaoping, who was dismissed from office in 1976. Deng's complete reversal of the Maoist isolationist policies in favor of today's enthusiastic political and economic rapprochement with the capitalist West.

The surprise is not so much the dashing of some of Mao's divine status — authoritarian regimes as well as democracies are prone to post-mortem on leadership — but that the divination has come so swiftly.

It was three years before Nikita Khrushchev took aim at the departed Josef Stalin, and that was a secret revelation to the Soviet leadership. It was several more years before the Soviet public was let in on the awful truth. In Mao's case, the process has progressed to the next step: open popular opinion within little over a year of his death.

The internal implications are not entirely clear. The campaign is believed to threaten most directly a handful of radicals still in positions of power. Party Chairman and Prince Minister Huo Kuo-feng, Mao's nominal successor, may himself be in the line of critical fire. Above all, it would appear to demonstrate the rapid consolidation of power by the pragmatic and supercilious survivor of the multiple purges and rehabilitations who now sees his own pragmatic positions dominant in Peking policy. The demythologizing of Mao is thus clearly a part of Peking's opening up to the world.

There is undoubtedly much still to be written in the current Peking story. But even at this stage, the lessons of a sort to be drawn from it. It's true, money can't take it all away, it's also true that you can't control what you leave behind, particularly your own reputation. In his eventual judging by posterity, it will be a great man to have built pyramids to himself, even of the ideological variety.

WASHINGTON WORLD
Jockeying For Position

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservative Republicans are riding high these days after scoring some major wins in Senate races made doubly tough by a list of losers that includes some of the chamber's most unwavering liberals.

It's no surprise, then, that conservatives are jockeying for places on the Senate GOP leadership team that will be elected when the 96th Congress convenes in January.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker has enough commitments from incoming and current senators to assure himself of re-election to the top leadership job. But for the rest, the GOP is in a tangle for spirited races that will prove whether more moderate Republicans will continue their dominance of chamber strategy positions or be forced to yield to the right.

Conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was rumored to be considering a challenge of Baker but he has apparently backed off, and his supporters are focusing instead on the lesser leadership spots.

Conservative Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., has announced his intention to challenge the moderate Sen. Steve D'Amato. Another Sen. James McClure, Idaho, another staunch conservative, is running for chairman of the Republican Conference, composed of all GOP senators. He is being challenged by moderate Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon.

Freshman Sen. John Danforth of Missouri has also indicated he will challenge the more conservative Sen. John Tower of Texas for chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee. But moderate Republicans are reportedly siding with the more liberal Danforth.

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona had some critics from conservatives but he has so far is considered for reelection. Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., was challenged for leadership of all GOP House members. Kinross, a conservative, said Anderson's maverick who is too liberal for the Republican line.

Holtz, Pell, Curci Head List Of Dickey Replacements

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Arkansas' Lou Holtz, Clemson's Charlie Pell and Kentucky's Fran Curci head speculation today over who will replace Doug Dickey as Florida's head football coach.

Dickey got his "Dear Doug" letter from university President Robert Q. Marston at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, firing him after nine years coaching the Gators.

The central fact is that I have become persuaded that a change in coaches at this time is more likely to improve the health of the university than would be the case should you be continued," Marston said in the letter.

Dickey's dismissal despite a respectable 58-42-2 record and four bowl appearances had been reported as fact in several newspapers around the state in the last two days. Dickey's biggest problem was his inability to bring Florida its first Southeastern Conference championship in history.

Dickey will be paid about $150,000 for the remaining three years of his contract, officials said, the bulk of it coming from alumni contributions.

Dickey declined to comment at length on the dismissal, promising he will have more to say after his 4-6 Gators wind up the season against Miami Saturday.

But he did say, "I'm disappointed that we are at this point," then added, "This university is deserving of the best and I am hopeful that this university and the players will have the best."

The best, in the minds of many Gator fans and alumni, would be Holtz, who has topped the rumor list ever since it became common knowledge Dickey's job was in jeopardy.

But Holtz said Wednesday he had not been contacted about the job and was not seeking it. "Florida is one of the places in the country I have always wanted to coach at, but I want to coach at the University of Arkansas more than anywhere else. So I am not a candidate for the job."

Does that mean he will not take the job if it is offered? Holtz said he is sure he will take the Florida job he has said he would enjoy the championship challenge. Other columnists have said the rumor Holtz may leave Arkansas is a long-standing coaching play to get better salaries and facilities when the Legislature meets in January.

Holtz has been at Arkansas two years, third away as head coach of the Razorbacks. His first year the team went 11-1. This year they are 8-2 with Texas Tech left to play.

Ole Miss Topped By Charlotte
BY United Press International
Mississippi Coach Bob Welch didn't win't vary happy with the performance of his veterans in the first half Wednesday night. But the coach turned out to be worse than the disease.

The greatest disappointment was that the players who have been with us didn't play the way they should have played," Welch said after his team succumbed to the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, 46-47. "That's why I want to see the freshmen in the second half."

The team, however, proved too much for the young players, and the 49ers yielded off a 18-3 spur to open the second half, breaking a 26-26 tie and setting a loss.

Kerwin Tucker scored 24 points overall and James George took charge in the second half, hitting 18 of UNC's 16 points over an eight-minute stretch as Mississippi scored just 6 points. "He was really tight in the first half, but hung in there," said UNC Coach Mike Pratt of George, who finished with 15 points, including 12 in the second half. Chad Kinch added 14.

Holtz Plays Down Report He's Heading For Gators
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas coach Lou Holtz says he did not hear from the University of Florida after it fired its coach, Doug Dickey, Wednesday.

Holtz has been mentioned as a front-runner for the Florida job.

Asked about the chances of his going there now, Holtz said, "Florida is one of the places in the country I have always wanted to coach at, but I want to coach at the University of Arkansas more than anywhere else. So I am not a candidate for the job."

Does that mean he will not take the job if it is offered? Holtz said he is sure he will take the Florida job he has said he would enjoy the championship challenge. Other columnists have said the rumor Holtz may leave Arkansas is a long-standing coaching play to get better salaries and facilities when the Legislature meets in January.

Holtz has been at Arkansas two years, third away as head coach of the Razorbacks. His first year the team went 11-1. This year they are 8-2 with Texas Tech left to play.

Mississippi Coach Bob Welch didn't win't vary happy with the performance of his veterans in the first half Wednesday night. But the coach turned out to be worse than the disease.

The greatest disappointment was that the players who have been with us didn't play the way they should have played," Welch said after his team succumbed to the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, 46-47. "That's why I want to see the freshmen in the second half."

The team, however, proved too much for the young players, and the 49ers yielded off a 18-3 spur to open the second half, breaking a 26-26 tie and setting a loss.

Rangers Break Jinx
BY United Press International
It was pretty simple. The New York Rangers hadn't beaten Atlanta in the NHL since Oct. 10, 1975 and they needed to win one soon.

"Coming into Atlanta and winning has to give our young guys a confidence," Ranger goalie John Davidson said Wednesday night, after two goals by Dean Talafous propelled New York past Atlanta, 2-0.

"We were down after we lost to them in New York. But Fred Shero told us not to worry, it was only one loss. He tried to take the pressure off us, make us relax and be a bit. Talafous broke it with his goals, and by the time Lucien Delisle and Pat Hynes added insurance tallies in the third period, the jinx was over. These are old-time goals by Ken Houston could upset the Rangers."

"They were opportunistic," said Atlanta Coach Fred Crotchell. "They played better than we did. Their wit tonight will make them tougher the next time for us."

U.S.-Mexico Border Woes

The proposed renovation and extension of the fence along the Mexican border has been described by Immigration Commissioner Leonel J. Castillo as "a symbol of our frustration" in dealing with the immigration problem.

But to many of the 2,800 Border Patrol agents and some 500 officers of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in this area, the commission himself is a factor in the frustration. He has been accused by department employees of initiating policies that protect the illegal aliens, while publicly proclaiming that immigration laws must be enforced.

They believe that he has been less than forceful in support of agency requests for more manpower to help stem the flow of illegal traffic across the border.

He has testified frequently that "undocumented immigrants," as he prefers to call the hundreds of thousands who have successfully eluded border personnel and established residence in the United States, are useful in filling jobs considered undesirable by citizens or legal immigrants.

Castillo, however, is in a no-win position. A former vice president of the Council of La Raza, his acceptance of the INS post is viewed as a betrayal by Chicano activists.

At the same time, those concerned with the impact of the illegal alien population on the job market and tax-supported services, question his commitment to enforcement of INS regulations. President Carter's appointment of Castillo 16 months ago was designed to regain the confidence of Mexican-Americans who had criticized his predecessor, Leonid Lopez, as insensitive to the rights of individuals of Latin origin and accused him of exaggerating the illegal alien problem.

The president's choice was self-defeating. Castillo is not entirely to blame for the government's failure to provide an answer to the dilemma of illegal immigration.

Support for a legislative solution has diminished.

Legislators from states with a heavy concentration of illegal aliens reflect the lack of enthusiasm of the employers who exploit them and the union leaders who recruit them to membership.

Most in this country are apathetic.

But Castillo's inability to provide leadership has dampened the morale of INS workers and compounded the illegal alien problem.

FBI Code

The code of conduct and dress for Federal Bureau of Investigation agents during the reign of the late J. Edgar Hoover was severe to say the least.

Conservative suits were to be worn, not slacks and sport coats. Shirts were to be plain, preferably white.

And most of all, an agent had to conduct his personal life as if his brother was watching — because he was. If an agent had more than two drinks at a party it was bound to be reported and disciplinary action taken.

William H. Webster, the present FBI director, has ordered some significant changes in the old policies.

"I have lowered the level of our involvement in the personal lives and moral conduct of our people," he said.

Webster is at the right track. The old code of conduct was as long as an agent or any other employee of the bureau conducts himself or herself within the law and usual community standards, his or her personal life should be no more a factor than it would for any other public servant.

Get Taxpayer's Money—U.S. Motto?

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department's gargantuan budgets offer singular evidence that familiarity breeds contempt. Massive military spending, become so familiar over the years that the Pentagon bureaucrats have grown utterly contemptuous of the taxpayer's money.

With billions of dollars being tossed around like confetti at a New Year's Eve party, the value of each dollar has become so pallid as a flock of colored paper. The attitude that "this little bit won't be missed" and "everybody gets a little bit" are rampant, even though the Pentagon's "little bits" are often quite sizable by civilian standards.

Properly disposed is a classic example of the waste that is spread by this cavalier, let-it-bleed-out attitude toward the overburdened taxpayer. Close to $5 billion worth of military hardware — from tanks to refrigerators — is turned over to property disposal warehouses annually.

The Harry and Marine Corps Reserve Center in Harrisburg, Pa., possesses 1,800 cans of canned beef worth $900,000. According to personnel at the base, 701 cans were used in personal camping trips, a form of petty larceny that reportedly is rampant in the Armed Services.

Millions of dollars' worth of still-usable property is literally blown away each year in target practice. The targets include tanks, trucks, automobiles and personal effects. Fort Benning, Ga., for example, obtained 23 trucks worth $148,000 to use for target practice. Although base officials deny it, defense records show that 18 of the trucks were in running condition, and the other five needed only minor repairs to make them usable as trucks instead of targets. By coincidence, the trucks had conventionally been turned over to property disposal by Fort Benning officials shortly before they were requisitioned.

Expensive electronic equipment, often brand-new or of good working order, is requisitioned by training units and destroyed through abuse and neglect. One facility destroyed $7 million worth of equipment in a single year. Sophisticated communications gear, costing up to $60,000 each, is often razed when it is not needed for a training exercise.

Jockeying For Position

By CHERYL ARVIDSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservative Republicans are riding high these days after scoring some major wins in Senate races made doubly sweet by a list of losers that includes some of the chamber's most unwavering liberals.

It's no surprise, then, that conservatives are jockeying for places on the Senate GOP leadership team that will be elected when the 96th Congress convenes in January.

Senate Republicans fear Howard Baker has over-extended himself. He was removed from the top leadership job, and current senators to assure himself of reelection to the top leadership job. But from there on down, the GOP is bracing for spirited races that will prove whether more moderate Republicans will continue their dominance of chamber strategy positions or be forced to yield to the right.

Conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was removed to a non-leadership position, but he has been appointed chair of a subcommittee. Helms supporters are focusing instead on the lesser leadership spots.

Conservative Sen. Harrison Schmidt, R-N.M., has announced plans to challenge the more moderate Sen. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., in the second highest job, assistant Republican leader. Stevens was first elected to this slot two years ago when the entire Senate leadership on both sides of the aisle changed hands.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, another staunch conservative, is running for chairman of the Republican Conference, composed of all GOP senators. He is being challenged by moderate Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon.

Freshman Sen. John Danforth of Missouri has also indicated he will challenge the more conservative Sen. John Tower of Texas for chairmanship of the Senate GOP Policy Committee. But moderate Republicans are reportedly determined to see Danforth's performance in the policy committee job and it's unlikely Tower could be unseated.

Instead, the moderates hope to convince Danforth to step into another race — chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee — and free them from a serious dilemma. The campaign committee post is an important job since it involves raising the funds and doling out the dollars to incumbent GOP senators and GOP challengers around the country.

The two announced candidates for the committee chairmanship — Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah and John Heinz of Pennsylvania — offer moderates what could be considered a "best of the worst" choice.

Hatch is an ultra-conservative, heavily involved in right wing causes and closely associated with the far right. His efforts were vital in many of the conservative victories this fall.

There's fear in GOP circles that with Hatch at the helm of the GOP campaign committee, the Vigneresque-style drive might slip into institutional politics, and a reactionary signal to the Senate GOP fund raising, giving the Vigneresque a degree of legitimacy that makes the moderate Republicans shudder.

But the moderates have trouble, too, with Heinz, who played some $3 million of his hunch and picked fortune into his own Senate race two years ago. Although he is probably more acceptable to moderates than Hatch, Heinz clearly has an image problem.

Moderates could avoid this dilemma entirely if somebody in the middle — specifically Danforth — could be persuaded to make it a three-way possible compromise. Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, flirted with the idea of running for the campaign committee chairmanship but abandoned it last week.

Over on the House side, the leadership will apparently see only one challenge, but it too involves a power play from the right wing of the Republican Party.

Rep. Thomas Kindness of Ohio says he will challenge Rep. John Anderson of Illinois for the chairmanship of the House Republican Conference, the governing body and research organization of all GOP House members.

Kindness, a conservative, is a pragmatic maverick who is too liberal for the Republican line.

House Republican leader John Rhodes of Arizona has had some criticism from conservatives but has no fear in unchallenged reelection.

Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., was considered a possible challenger to Rhodes, but Michel — now assistant minority leader — may be more interested in becoming the House Republican on the House Appropriations Committee than running a risky race against Rhodes.

Census Queries Change

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A century ago, it was wage rates, crime and pauperism. Today, it is ethnic origin, carpool arrangements and unwed "roommates."

The self-portrait of America who we are, how we live, what concerns us is about to be painted in the 1980 decennial census of population and housing, the largest headcount in our history.

The results of this census, the 26th in an unbroken chain that began in 1790, will determine federal funds are distributed in the next decade, allocate political power through congressional and legislative districting, and shape the marketing decisions of private business.

But however important the answers may be in practical terms, the 1980 census questions which provide the most fascinating clues to the changing economic and social conditions of the nation.

The 1980 census questionnaire will not simply duplicate the 1970 version, anymore than those copied the 1960 form. Certain fundamentals will be repeated — how many persons in a household, their age, sex, marital status, etc. — but some questions have been added since 1970 while others have been deleted.

For the first time, for instance, the U.S. Census Bureau is not asking that the "Head of Household" fill out the questionnaire. In the era of working wives, too many women found that terminology objectionable.

The 1980 census also contains a new category of "partner-roommate" to describe a non-family member who is neither a spouse nor a roomer. Census officials admit they had quite a time coming up with that precise phraseology.

All households will be asked for the first time to identify any member of "Spanish-Hispanic origin or descent" since some federal laws and programs now specifically mention that particular minority group.

Some 20 percent of all households will be receiving a "long" questionnaire, with 65 questions rather than the 19 which will go to most homes. And the long form in 1980 will include for the first time an ethnic origin question designed to reflect the growth of ethnic awareness and pride which was so evident in the 1970s.

Like the "head of household" deletion, the addition of the ethnic origin question was prompted by public pressure — not by any push from the bureaucracy.

The housing section of the 1980 questionnaire will also contain some new queries. One is aimed at pinpointing the number of condominium and cooperative apartment buildings; another at determining how many people live in mobile homes.

Queries from the 1980 forms is an old standby — a glib about the presence of television in the home. Census officials assume television ownership is now virtually universal.

On the other hand, long form recipients will be asked new questions about how they get to work each day, how long it takes and whether they drive alone or in a carpool if they commute by car.

Legend Status Shrinking

By DONALD GRAFF

Mao Tse-tung may have been a legend in his own time, but the way things are going that legendary status may not outlast by much his own demise.

One of the more interesting developments of late in People's China is the increasingly bold criticism of the late party chairman and fond of revolutionary truth. It is now being suggested in the official press that Mao was something less than ideologically inflexible. A work by a radical writer once praised by Mao as the inspiration for his "Cultural Revolution" has been attacked as having been "too right."

It's a reactionary signal to the Chinese Communist Party leadership. Mao's practice facilitates doctrinaire fanaticism, a uniquely Chinese contribution to the mad, erratic Mao's "errors of judgment" in Kowloon with the disgraced "Gang of Four."

As China watchers see it, the criticism amounts to an indictment of the entire Cultural Revolution, that convulsive effort of the late 1960s to cleanse China of foreign influences and bootstrap economic development through reliance on its own human and cultural resources. Since the Cultural Revolution was the chairman's particular baby, it is also a deliberate move to downgrade Mao himself.

It follows hollow rehabilitation of victims of Mao's earlier purges, most notably present Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping, and the complete reversal of the Maoist isolationist policies in favor of today's enthusiastic political and economic rapprochement with the capitalist West.

The surprise is not so much the divesting of some of Mao's divine status — authoritarian regimes as well as democracies are prone to distortions on leadership — but that the divestment has come so swiftly.

It was three years before Nikita Khrushchev took aim at the departed Josef Stalin, and that was a secret revolution. The Soviet public was left in on the awful truth. In Mao's case, the process has progressed to the next thing an open repudiation within little over a year of his death.

The internal implications are not entirely clear. The chairman is believed to threaten directly a handful of radicals still in positions of power. Party Chairman and Prime Minister Hua Kuo-feng, Mao's nominal successor, may himself be in the line of critical fire. Above all, it would appear to demonstrate the rapid consolidation of power by the junctuous Teng, the superb survivor of multiple purges and rehabilitations who now sees his own pragmatic positions dominant in Peking policy. The demythologizing of Mao is thus clearly a part of Peking's opening up to the world.

There is undoubtedly much still to be written in current Peking style. But even at this early stage, the lesson of the drama is clear. It is true that you can't control what you have behind, particularly your own reputation.

In his eventual judging by posterity, it awaits how many little to have built pyramids to himself, even if the ideological variety.

PROBLEMS AT THE MIDDLETOWN CAMP

Managing attorney Treva Kaye and attorney Tobey Lew were also deeply concerned about conditions at that particular camp.

But all the attorneys, with their knowledge, couldn't feed those 30 or more people without help.

When Todd learned Legal Services couldn't do anything for the people and they would have to spend the four-day Thanksgiving holiday without food, he acted.

He contacted County Manager Roger Neiswander, who authorized an emergency allocation of food coupons for the migrant workers.

It was 4:38 p.m. Thanksgiving eve.

In another two minutes every county office would be closed for the holiday.

Todd arranged to have a staffer stay at the county health center until the migrants arrived to get the food coupons.

Todd then drove to the Midecamp to personally assess the situation.

It appears now as if the original report of people not being fed was exaggerated.

Conditions at the Midecamp site were typical of small camps. Six or seven men slept together in small rooms on Florida cots. There was open garbage in the area.

But, there was also a large freezer full of meats. The people I spoke with said they were being fed by the crematorium.

Todd, satisfied there was sufficient food to feed the people, called off the emergency food coupon allotment.

Problems at the camp are not all solved. It still faces inspection by the County Health Department and continuing investigation by Legal Services and various federal officials.

But it's nice to know, when an emergency situation demands cutting through red tape our county officials can get it done.

Holtz, Pell, Curci Head List Of Dickey Replacements

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Arkansas' Les Holtz, Clemson's Charlie Pell and Kentuckian's Fran Curci head speculation today over who will replace Doug Dickey as Florida's head football coach.

Dickey got his "Dear Doug" letter from university President Robert Q. Marshall at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday, firing him after nine years coaching the Gators.

The central fact is that I have become persuaded that a change in coaches at this time is more likely to improve the health of the university than would be the case should you be continued," Marshall said in the letter.

Dickey's dismissal despite a respectable 38-43-2 record and four bowl appearances had been rumored for weeks and reported as fact in several newspapers around the state in the last two days. Dickey's biggest problem was his inability to bring Florida his first Southeastern Conference championship in history.

Dickey will be paid about $160,000 for the remaining three years of his contract, officials said, the bulk of it coming from alumni contributions.

Dickey declined to comment at length on the dismissal, promising he will have more to say after his 44 Gators wind up the season against Miami Saturday.

But he did say, "I'm disappointed that we are at this point," then added, "This university is deserving of the best and I am hopeful that this university and the players will have the best."

The best, in the minds of many Gator fans and alumni, would be Holtz, who has topped the rumor list ever since it became common knowledge Dickey's job was in jeopardy.

But Holtz said Wednesday he had not been contacted about the job and was not seeking it.

"Florida is one of the places in the country I have always wanted to coach at, but I want to coach at the University of Arkansas more than anywhere else," Holtz said. "So I am not a candidate for the job."

Holtz's Razorbacks are ranked 10th in the nation with an 8-2 record going into Saturday's season finale against Texas Tech. Arkansas finished third nationally last year after staging a stunning upset of Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl game.

Holtz will be in Orlando, Fla., Monday night for a speech to that city's Touchdown Club.

Curci, under the guidance of Pell, is ranked seventh with a 10-1 record and will be making his second straight Gator Bowl appearance next month at the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

Curci's Kentucky Wildcats have had a disappointing year, but the former University of The Philadelphia 76ers were in an awkward situation — everything was against them. "It seems like we have to be backed into a corner to win," Sixers Coach Doug Cunningham said Wednesday night after an overtime 120-114 victory over the San Antonio Spurs. The win was our strong defense and the way we moved the ball." Playing the way they did wasn't easy, either Caldwell Jones and Darrell Dawkins were both sidelined with injuries. Philadelphia's offense started instead of helped. James Silas added 23 points.

"What can I say about the game? We were backed into a corner, but we did it," said Cunningham. "We did everything. A guy comes off the bench like that — that's what it takes to win the job." James Edwards hit a 10-foot jumper with less than two

Managing attorney Treva Kaye and attorney Tobey Lew were also deeply concerned about conditions at that particular camp.

But all the attorneys, with their knowledge, couldn't feed those 30 or more people without help.

When Todd learned Legal Services couldn't do anything for the people and they would have to spend the four-day Thanksgiving holiday without food, he acted.

He contacted County Manager Roger Neiswander, who authorized an emergency allocation of food coupons for the migrant workers.

It was 4:38 p.m. Thanksgiving eve.

In another two minutes every county office would be closed for the holiday.

Todd arranged to have a staffer stay at the county health center until the migrants arrived to get the food coupons.

Todd then drove to the Midecamp to personally assess the situation.

It appears now as if the original report of people not being fed was exaggerated.

Conditions at the Midecamp site were typical of small camps. Six or seven men slept together in small rooms on Florida cots. There was open garbage in the area.

But, there was also a large freezer full of meats. The people I spoke with said they were being fed by the crematorium.

Todd, satisfied there was sufficient food to feed the people, called off the emergency food coupon allotment.

Problems at the camp are not all solved. It still faces inspection by the County Health Department and continuing investigation by Legal Services and various federal officials.

But it's nice to know, when an emergency situation demands cutting through red tape our county officials can get it done.

CHAMP SUMMERS SELECTED

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Rick Leach of Michigan and Chuck Fusina of Penn State have been chosen as co-quarterbacks on the "Dream Team" selected by the American Football Coaches Association.

The surprise dual choice completed a backfield of Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims of Oklahoma; Charles White of Southern California; and Charles Alexander of Louisiana State, a repeater.

OLÉ MISS Topped By Charlotte

By United Press International

Mississippi Coach Bob Welch wasn't very happy with the performance of his veterans in the first half of the game against Ole Miss. But the cure turned out to be worse than the disease.

"The greatest disappointment was that the players who have been with us didn't play the way they should have played," Welch said after his team succumbed to the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, 48-8. "That's why I want to be the freshman in the second half."

The lack, however, proved too much for the young players, and the offense reeled off a 16-2 spurt to open the second half, breaking a 35-2 tie and setting a tone.

Kevin King scored 24 points overall and James George took charge in the second half, hitting 10 of UNCC's 16 points on five field goals and three 3-pointers. Mississippi scored just 6 points.

"He was really tight in the first half, but hung in there," said UNCC Coach Miles Pratt of Greensboro, who finished with 18 points, including 12 in the second half. Chad Kirsch added 14.

Elton Turner led the Rebels with 22 points, 16 in the first half.

But Pratt in turn praised his players.

"I think it's a sign of a good team when they shoot off those opening-night jitters. It sure wasn't a thing of beauty."

But it was a victory.

In games involving top teams, No. 4 Kansas ripped off a 21-0 lead in the first quarter at North Carolina State's Thoroater, 97-47. Syracuse bounced North Carolina A&T, 68-7. Alabama clipped Auburn, 67-24; Rutgers defeated Columbia, 79-41; and Memphis beat Belmont Abbey, 76-6.

DELTONA SLATES TOURNAMENT FOR EARLY BIRD SPONSORS

Approximately 80 Golf Spammers are expected to play in the "Early Bird" tournament Saturday at the Deltona Country Club.

This will be a shotgun start and all participants are asked to be at the club at 10:30 a.m. Prizes will be awarded on individual scores according to flights.

Golf Spammers may have a bit of an added incentive. The 100 winners of the 1978 Deltona tournament in West Palm Beach were given a complimentary round of golf in the "Early Bird" tournament in Deltona on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10-11.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine drinks five or six martinis a day loaded with ice, large glasses with five or six shots per glass. He has liver or pancreas trouble as he has a pot belly, nausea, vomits and is red in the face. He visits us for four or five hours or longer and never goes to the bathroom. Where does the fluid go?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I work in a state institution for mentally retarded people. All of these residents brush their teeth two or three times a day and approximately 80 percent of them swallow the toothpaste.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm not sure why I burned when you swallowed the toothpaste as not everyone experiences this. You might be surprised to know that the astronaut's swallowed their toothpaste during space flight. It was planned that way; the toothpaste was specially prepared.

Plants Need Holiday Care

NEW YORK (NEA) — Holidays mean fun, travel, visits with relatives, friends and neighbors. It's a jolly season. Here's how to keep your plants happy, too, during the holidays.

Some of your best plants may be destined to travel with you as gifts for friends. Watch that cold winter weather. Bag plants in a plastic bag to trap warm air around them.

For a large number of plants, use your bathtub. Place wet towels in the tub, several layers thick. Put your potted plants on the towels. This should provide ample humidity for them until you return.

Askew, Graham Join To Tap PSC Members

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — In marked contrast to the disharmony that marked the changing of the guard in past administrations, Gov. Reubin Askew and Gov.-Elect Bob Graham joined forces to pick the first two members of a newly reorganized Public Service Commission.

Veteran State Budget Director Joe Cresse and Titusville City Commissioner Gerald L. Guntz will take their seats on the powerful utility regulatory board Jan. 1 when a law takes effect switching it from a three-member elected body to a five-member appointed commission.

The appointments were announced jointly Wednesday by Askew and Graham, who succeeds him Jan. 1. Graham praised Askew for consulting him on the appointments, which are subject to confirmation by the Senate at next week's special session.

In the '60s, Gov. Farris Bryant challenged appointments of more than 20 judges by his predecessor, LeRoy Collins, in the dying days of the Collins administration. Bryant and Gov. Haydon Burns also exchanged barbs and Askew and former Gov. Claude Kirk were barely on speaking terms when Askew took over eight years ago.

Askew predicted when Graham was elected earlier this month that the transition would be marked by unprecedented cooperation. In the past two weeks, the two officials have conferred frequently at the governor's mansion, and Askew got the okay of Graham before announcing his decision

Tuesday to call the Legislature into special session next week.

Askew and Graham said Cresse and Guntz are the kind of officials that will restore public confidence in the PSC which has come under strong criticism for approving millions of dollars in utility rate increases in the past two years.

Three other members will be appointed by Graham after he assumes office Jan. 1. The present elected commissioners, Chairman Paula Hawkins, W. T. Mayo and Robert Mann, are candidates for appointment.

The PSC Nominating Council, which provides the list of eligible candidates from which the appointments must be made, has not submitted nominees for those three seats.

RHODA-VALERIE

Goodbye, Rhoda, She Says

Valerie Harper has been playing "Rhoda" for so long her fans are starting to call her by that name off-stage — to after this season, she'll be Rhoda no more.

Miss Harper, who broke in the character nine years ago as Mary Tyler Moore's slightly dull neighbor on "Mary Tyler Moore Show," then spun it off in a CBS-TV vehicle of her own, announced the show's demise in Montreal during an impromptu question-and-answer period with the Young Men's Hebrew Association.

Says she, "I loved the series, but I want to move on now to other things." She says the last segment has been filmed, and no "Rhoda" doesn't get married.

"Rhoda The Beautiful" After losing twenty pounds, Rhoda still feels fat and Mary tries to help her realize how attractive she has become.
