

Statistics Show Florida Farmers More Numerous, Prosperous Than In 1920

TALLAHASSEE, July 23.—In spite of the depression in agriculture that has prevailed over most of the United States in the last few years, Florida farmers are not only more numerous but more prosperous than they were in 1920, as shown by statistics just compiled by Roland M. Harper, geographer, from the preliminary returns of the federal census of 1925.

"Nearly every county in the two neighboring states that has been reported on so far shows a marked decrease in number, acreage and value of farms in the last five years, and the same is true of a few counties in northern Florida," says Dr. Harper, who continues, "but in the state as a whole the average size of farms. Preliminary reports from all but two Florida counties are now available, and the figures for these two have been estimated, so that the final ratios for the whole state are not likely to differ much from those here presented."

"Between 1920 and 1925 the number of farms in Florida increased eleven per cent, while the population increased thirty per cent, the difference being due to the fact that cities have been growing faster than rural population ever since censuses were first taken. The number of white farmers increased about 16 per cent, while that of colored farmers decreased about 5 per cent."

"Some comparative figures for 1920 and 1925 are given in the following tables. Those for 1925 may have to be revised slightly later:

Per cent of farm managers	34	1:7
Per cent of farm tenants	25:3	21:6
Per cent of land area in farms	17:1	17:5
Per cent of land area improved	5:5	6:4
Average number of acres per farm	112:0	102:1
Improved acres per farm	42:5	34:0
Value of farm lands per acre	37:78	67:90
Value of land per farm	$4230	$6940
Value of buildings per farm	982	1050

"Separate figures for the size and value of different races for this year are NOT available yet, but part of the increase in the percentage of owners and in value of farms doubtless is due to the increase in proportion of white farmers. That however is not sufficient to explain the decided increase in value of lands and buildings, and the average Florida is unquestionably more prosperous today than he was five years ago."

"The difference is even greater than the figures indicate, for, the dollar of 1925 has a greater purchasing power than that of 1920. The peak of war-time prices was reached in the summer of 1920, when the dollar was worth less than half what it was in 1910, and about one-third of what it was in 1900; and this fact has led to many exaggerated statements about the apparent increase of wealth in various parts of the country."

"Although crop values have not been given out yet, the decrease in size of farms and increase in land values indicate that farming in Florida, already more intensive than in other southern states has become still more so in the last five years."

Per cent of population, white	65:9	68:0
Per cent of farmers, white	76:0	79:6
Per cent of farm owners	71:4	76:6

Influx Of Letters Prison Population Is Evidence Great Of Florida Remains Interest In Florida Same During Year

TALLAHASSEE, July 23.—One of the most conclusive evidences that Florida is to have an unprecedented influx of visitors, next winter, it is believed here, is found in the contents of letters being received by the agricultural department asking for information about this state.

Requests for literature descriptive of the state's resources and possibilities so far in July of this year have been twice as large as for a similar period in 1921, it is stated by employees of the department whose duty it is to supply the data asked for by the writers.

One of the striking features of the letters is that a great many of them convey the information that the writer is planning a trip to Florida next winter, but that first he wants to make a thorough study of the different sections of the state with the view of locating most advantageously.

Complying with requests of this character the department sends out its booklets and pamphlets describing each county in the state. These publications give in detail the acreage, type of lands found in the counties, the kinds of crops are produced, with the suggestions as to what might be grown, and such other information as has been thought worth while in compilations heretofore made.

Lake Okechobee is the largest lake in Florida and one of the largest in the United States. It is around 700 square miles in its surface area.

TALLAHASSEE, July 23.—Florida's prison population during the first six months of 1925 remained almost at a standstill; its tendency was slightly downward. On June 30, there were in state road camps and the state farm altogether 1,372 as compared with 1,381 on January 1.

A majority of those in prison were of the type physically able to do manual labor and were at work in building state highways. Seven hundred and sixty seven were on June 30 engaged in doing this kind of work, 185 of them whites and 382 negroes.

At the state prison farm at Raiford there were 605 altogether, 233 white males, eight white females, and 313 negro males and 51 negro females.

Two hundred and sixty four new prisoners were received at the state farm during the first six months of the year. To offset this number 201 were released because of the expiration of their sentences, fifty-five were paroled or pardoned, eight died, natural deaths, and one, I. C. Couchman, a negro from Manatee county was executed May 6, for criminal attack.

There were eighty-seven escapes during the six-months period and forty-one recaptured.

Sir Francis Drake, an English sea rover, sighted evidences of a settlement at St. Augustine in 1586 when he was returning from a free-booting expedition to the West Indies. He fired upon the Spaniards and so excited the Spaniards abandoned the fort and he burned the town.

EPISCOPAL BOYS AND GIRLS SAVE TO BUILD SCHOOL

Is to Be Built In Heart of African Jungle; To Teach Native Boys, Girls There Elements of Civilization

NEW YORK, July 23.—The boys and girls of the Episcopal Church Schools of the United States, are saving their pennies to build a school for the native children of the African jungle. The presentation of the fund will be one of the features of the 48th triennial general convention of the church which will meet in New Orleans October 7, 23 next. It is known as the Birthday Thank Offering. Since 1919, when the Church School Service League was organized, the children of the church throughout the country have been encouraged to make offerings on the Sunday nearest their birthdays, or on Whit Sunday, the birthday of the church. The total sum thus designated to be used for a purpose specified in advance. The amount given is usually in cents, nickels, dimes or dollars, in a sum equal to the number of the donor's years, five pennies, nickels, dimes or dollars for a five-year-old, and so on.

The first Birthday Thank offering was made at the Portland Triennial Convention in 1922, when $8,126 was presented the designated purpose being the support of missionary work in Alaska. With the money, a new steam launch Pelican III, was purchased in the far north, and which was wrecked in an ice-flow. There was enough left over to maintain the launch for some time.

This year the Birthday Thank Offering will be used to build and equip a school at Fortsville, a native Liberian village in that country without school advantages, living in 600 native tents where no Christian teacher ever goes. The Birthday Thank Offering school will have classrooms and a chapel on the first floor and living quarters for the teachers on the second. The fund which is being collected in the various parishes and dioceses of the church and presented at a mass meeting in Convention Hall on October 11. Miss Frances H. Withers, secretary for the Church School Service League in the Educational Department is in charge of the arrangements.

PERSHING GIVES DATA ON U. S. ARMY TRAINING CORPS CAMPS

By General John J. Pershing

The Army's summer camps are modest in comparison with the grand maneuvers which are held annually by most of the great and small nations of the world. These summer camps are without militarism, because our defense system is the most democratic in the world. They are based upon the best ideal of service to country for they are voluntary, and the young men go to the camp because they wish to be constructive, active citizens, not because the government insists upon them being just that. In most countries military service is compulsory.

These army camps modest in size and length, are the beginnings of preparedness in our country. They are purely American in keeping with American traditions, ideals and principles.

At this time it again seems necessary to sound the warning against the danger of unpreparedness. There never has been adequate preparedness in this country. We have come out of all of our wars with the best intentions and high resolves henceforth to be prepared to preserve our peace and liberty. But these resolutions like those made by so many each New Year have always been broken. After each war we have lapsed into our old habit of neglect. Temporary expediency has always tempted us to keep whittling down our military establishment. As a result the preparation that should be made is never made. Always to our great surprise, war, with all its confusion and cost in lives and money, has come to us largely because of our weakness.

We always have heard the "no more war" prophecy. It was particularly strong after the war of 1912. It is of foreign importation having been heeded ages ago by nations which were thereafter destroyed by war and have only left their ruins to be excavated by scientists.

We hear much at the present time of economy. That is all important in government as in business. But there are two kinds of economy—the true and the alleged. When a farmer refuses to point or re-shingle his barn he is not saving money but losing it, for he is merely speeding the day when he will have no barn at all. A farmer may think that it is economy not to fertilize his fields or rotate his crops, but he is merely destroying the value of his land and losing his most valuable possession.

It is not economy to save thirty million dollars a year on national defense and then spend thirty billions in two years during war. It would take a thousand years to save at thirty million a year what was thrown away in two during the World War. This is not considering the most priceless of all things—American lives. A military establishment like a great business is the product of years of labor and thought. It cannot be made in a few months or years. It took us eighteen months, in spite of our 30 billions of dollars, to put an American army in the field for four months in the World War.

Our people should be zealous to avoid duplication in government and can still reduce the cost of our government by many millions by preventing duplication. There is no doubt that our Federal, State and City governments have agencies doing the same work and at three times what it actually should cost our people. I think personally we should get back to the Constitution, that our Federal Government should confine its attentions to its own field, our states to theirs, and our municipalities to theirs. That would save money by eliminating waste. At best, only little can be saved even on a yearly basis, and any further

Scheme To Improve Artillery Fire Is Now Being Devised

HONOLULU, July 23.—A scheme for taking maladic wind to be used in correcting the range of guns in night firing, has been devised by Major John H. Hood of the 15th Coast Artillery at Fort Kamehameha here, and is announced to have passed successful tests in improving the accuracy and precision of fire.

Portable searchlights, capable of revolving both vertically and horizontally, were trained on a pilot ascension balloon 26 inches in diameter as it rose. The speed and direction were computed, as is done at the meteorological station during the day. This is said to have been the first time the idea of tracking a small balloon at night had been tried.

The experiment was carried out successfully by the operator of the light the first time and without field glasses. Atmospheric conditions were adverse, with low clouds and a heavy wind velocity; nevertheless the balloon was tracked for 1,500 yards. Military experts said that with better equipment it could be tracked as high as 3,000 yards.

Good Advertising

The man who uses the newspapers tells his story quickly and directly to all the people in the territory covered by the circulation of those papers.

In your ad, be straightforward—be sensible!

The attempt to use clever witticisms in ads has done more to ruin advertising than any other factor.

Don't be sensational.

Tell the simple unvarnished truth about your product.

Invariably your readers will appreciate it and come to your store rather than go to the place of the merchant who exaggerates his product.

Poor goods cannot be sold by sensational advertising.

Foreign Envoys Find Life Rather Tedious In Moscow; Free Entertainments Given

MOSCOW, July 20.—To relieve the tedium of life among the foreign diplomats and newspaper correspondents, the Moscow government has adopted the expedient of giving free theatrical entertainments once a month. Early in June a distinguished gathering of ambassadors, consuls and Soviet commissars were the guests of the Soviet government at a concert given at the State Opera House, which was featured by ballet dances, operatic pieces and vocal solos by Bolshievk Russia's best artists. Theatrical Square, where the ambassadorial automobiles drew up, resembles Times Square, New York, at the busiest theatrical hour. Moscow has not seen so many fine limousines since the days of the Czar. The flags of all nations were seen, the French tricolor being especially conspicuous.

Whether because of the complete absence of social life generally or to the high cost of living, the foreign embassies and legations entertain only on rare occasions. Invitations to dinner or to parties from the members of one embassy to another, or to members of the Soviet government, are seldom given. Perhaps nowhere in the world do diplomats lead a more uneventful, uninteresting life than in the bolshevik capital. Such social amenities as evening dress suits have almost entirely disappeared, and a silk hat is rarely seen.

It was believed the arrival of Jean Herbert, the new French ambassador, would relieve the dullness that pervades the foreign missions, but the hopes of those who sought greater social activity and gaiety have disappeared. The French ambassador and his wife live modestly at the former house of the Nansen Relief Mission, and already have adopted the quiet, unobtrusive social customs of their colleagues in the diplomatic missions.

On the very infrequent occasions when entertainments are given by the government or by families of the diplomats are conspicuous by their absence. The fact is that life in the Russian metropolis is so dull, difficult and dear, that foreign ambassadors and ministers prefer to leave the members of their families at home where normal conditions prevail and where they have the customary social and friendly contact with neighbors.

Does This Dam Menace City?

Salt Lake City is more than usually interested in the condition of this dam, which some engineers declare unsafe. It is under construction at Dell Mountain, Utah, 16 miles from Salt Lake City, and if it should collapse it would turn 600,000,000 gallons of water on the city. New tests of its strength are being made.

Florida had only one representative in congress until 1870 when the census allowed two and 1872 the second representative was elected. Florida secured its third representative under the act of congress in 1901 that provided that the house of congress should be composed of 386 members after March 3, 1903. The legislature of Florida created the new congressional district in 1901, giving the state three congressional districts.

On August 8, 1911 an act of congress was approved that gave one representative for each 212,407 persons in each state. This made 435 members in congress. Because the act was passed after the biennial session of the Florida legislature had ended, the state had a congressman at large for two years.

The Spanish colonists were massacred by the Frenchman, de Gourgues in the spring of 1568.

He Has Seven Grandmas

James Dickenson, Jr., aged 2, of Flint Michigan, is probably more plentifully supplied with grandparents than any other lad in the country. He has 12, seven of whom are grandmothers. Above they are: Top row, left to right, Mrs. Susan Eames, Mrs. Mary Dickenson, Mrs. Mary Beardsley and Mrs. Mary Gargel, all great grandmothers; bottom row, left to right, Mrs. Helen Beardsley, Mrs. Mary Brittain and Mrs. Ruth Dickenson. old slayer, however, apparently had failed, and both his wife and father bade him good-bye a week ago last night when a telegram from Detroit came to Gov. Small, signed Robert Scott and stating that he and not Russell, did the shooting, and would surrender. This telegram later was proven to be a hoax. In the meantime James Ball, a Detroit telegrapher, came forth with a story that he was in the drug store when Maurer was slain and that Robert did the shooting. This likewise proved untrue, Ball admitting that his sympathies were aroused and he concocted the story.

During the week of grace given Scott, Detroit club women raised a fund of $5,000 with which to hire lawyers to save him, and two of them are here tonight to aid him. Appeals were not only sent to Governor Small, but to President Coolidge as well. Governor Groesbeck of Michigan was among those to intercede with Governor Small and many others of prominence also tried to use their influence to save the slayer.

would be left to a judge or a jury. Exceedingly improbable. "It is exceedingly improbable to me," he said, "that the matter taught in the district schools could be interpreted as 'disrespect,' particularly within the meaning of the act of congress. It would devolve into a case of determining what congress meant by the word, and it does not seem likely that it was meant prevent the teaching of science in the public schools as this suit would seem to indicate."

A similar view was expressed by William P. Hay, head of the biology department of the high schools, whose salary Wittner seeks to have shut off. Characterizing the suit as "utterly foolish, childish and silly," Mr. Hay said that if the points emphasized were upheld by the courts, history, geography, mathematics and chemistry, as well as biology, would have to be stricken from the high school

Honeymoon Is Ended When Police Arrest Groom In New York

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 24.—Police today temporarily terminated the honeymoon of Frank McKenzie, who said he was a professional golfer and his bride of a week. McKenzie was arrested as he sat with his wife in the lobby of the Hotel Astor.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

WHY WILL YE DIE?—As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked. . . . Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die, O house of Israel? Ezekiel 33:11.

"GIVE BACK MY TREES"

I haven't the need of a poet,
I can fling my own song to the breeze;
I can tell my own story
In epics of glory—
If only you'll give back my trees.

You've squandered my maples and birches,
You've stolen my hemlock and pine;
In unrestrained measure
You've gathered my treasure
To build up your cities so fine.

You've scoured my borders for plunder—
For balsam, for cedar, for spruce;
You've piled in your alleys
The pride of my valleys,
With only a vanda's excuse.

You've ravished my elms and any alders,
You skids with my timbers still groan;
You pluck for your pillows
My bays and my willows—
My largess you pay with a stone.

You've given me desolate reaches
In lieu of my forests of oak;
By rail and by water
You've wrought the same slaughter—
My woodlands you've turned to a joke.

My tamaracks, ash and my poplars,
My ironwood, tough as a nail—
By every enclosure
The hazel and osier
Re-echo their pitiful tale.

I was proud of my virginal forests,
As a maiden is proud of her hair;
From cutting and bobbing
You turned into robbing—
Denuding my lands wasn't fair.

I'm sending my call to the masses,
I've acres of soil that will please;
It isn't a poet
I need, and you know it—
The thing that I need is My Trees.

—John C. Wright, in Current School Topics.

So, What Makes A "Fine" Home?

What is a fine home? Answer that question according to your own ideas, and then apply reasoning to this tale of two products of two homes.

Twenty years ago two boys of about the same age lived in the same town. One boy lived in the town's handiwork residence. It was a beautiful colonial house set in the center of an entire block, and its magnificent trees and velvety lawns, its lovely gardens and artistic arbors were everybody's pride.

Inside the big house, too, were wonderful furnishings, and well-trained servants to keep everything orderly and comfortable. And in addition to all the luxury, happiness was present in that home. The boy had a big hearted tolerant father. His mother was brilliant and charming. His brothers and sisters were the best of chums to him and to each other. There was harmony and happiness in that loving household.

And the boy of the big house has grown into his middle thirties free from evil habits. He is a handsome fellow, too, and he has a host of friends because he is generous and well-mannered and "on the square."

But this boy of the big house has done nothing with his life so far. He is utterly without ambition to do or be anything big. He is dawdling away his days. He stands out as a perfect product of the "fine home" from which he comes. In that home was no sense of responsibility. The children were looked after and "good" and happy. That was all. Everything was handed to them upon the proverbial "silver platter," and their father joyously paid the bills from money that came from vague stocks and bonds, the trustees of his father's estate somehow kept in a safety vault for him.

The "fine home"—but how does it coincide with your own definition?

The other boy lived down a lane not far from the brick yards where his "old man" worked until he got killed in a drunken fight. The day before the funeral, the boy helped his mother scrub all three rooms of their house. And then he helped her scrub the six other children. And in the midst of much howling, helped to comb their hair.

People would have told you that the boy's home was the worst in the town. And it probably was. Indeed the boy himself was so sure of it, he used to lie awake nights figuring out possible ways to improve it. He thought about it so much, he began finding ways to do it! He painted the house an amazing blue, with paint he bought with many hours of "odd jobs" for the paint man. He elicited the aid of the rest of the children, and they planted flowers and vines. They built a shelter for the wash-tubs, at which his mother earned the family's food and clothing.

The story is too long to tell in detail. The point is this: Today the boy is president of the town's Chamber of Commerce. He has as beautiful a home as the one in which the other boy lived. He, too, is "on the square." And he says he is successful because he had such a "fine home" in which to learn to be a man!

A "fine home"—and how does that fit into your definition?

Sometimes It Requires a Boycott

The word "boycott" is not a friendly term. A newspaper never likes to recommend that kind of "medicine" for a legitimate business. But does a business continue to be legitimate in the best meaning of that word when it becomes a menace to health and safety?

The Herald has in mind the danger from unsanitary eating places, and cool drink stands. And it believes in all sincerity that a complete boycott of such places could be justly recommended. The man who knowingly permits food to be served from dirty dishes, food to be cooked in dirty utensils, food to be handled by dirty hands, is a man who not only deserves to lose patronage but deserves to be regarded as a dangerous criminal.

In places where cool drinks and ice cream are sold, glasses, and dishes, and spoons, should, of course, be thoroughly sterilized before they are offered for use to any patron. Containers holding drinks and ice-cream should be thoroughly clean. "Back of the counter" should be as sanitary as anything in sight. And unless this is true, the place dealing out the drinks and the ices should be boycotted, absolutely.

The kitchens of restaurants and hotels should be clean and inviting. Refrigerators, tables, pantry shelves should be spotless. Food to be served at public tables and public lunch counters should be guarded against everything that might make it a carrier of disease.

All of this is well known to every reader of this paper. Nobody really likes to eat or drink dirty things. But the question is, how are the people of Sanford guarding themselves, and visitors in their city, against dirty food and dirty drinks?

The Herald has seen some disgusting conditions, and in places where ignorance could not be offered as an excuse. Will it be necessary to name the places where attention to cleanliness is lax? Will it be necessary, in the interest of the public health, to urge a boycott of certain specified business concerns in Sanford? Or is a hint to the wise sufficient?

Soap and hot water can do wonders. It can remove the filth of counters and tables, of dishes and cooking utensils. It can also take the grime from the dirty hands of waiters and soda-jerkers. It can even wash the dirt from some of the rags used so generously in the mopping up of spilled food.

And Sanford's health authorities could make the use of soap and water so compulsive there would be no need of "boycotts."

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

The late Bert Green, who will be remembered by vaudeville audiences as a gifted pianist and composer, told me this one a few months before his timely death. He said it really happened.

Two very small boys ran away from their homes one day in the town where Green used to spend his summers. The grandfather of one of the truant was a distinguished clergyman of the Episcopal Church.

Toward evening the little runaways found themselves lost in a dense woodland several miles from home. The dusk was closing in. They were tired and footsore and homesick and they were beginning to get frightened.

"I s'pect we'd better pray," said one of the pair, preparing to kneel. "No," said his companion, "let me do the praying."

He sank on his knees, clasped his hands and raised his tear-stained face aloft.

"Oh, Lord," he began, "you must know me. I'm Bishop Rogers' grandson."

As Brisbane Sees It

Bryan and Noah Win. Scopes, Darwin Lose. Joshua Stopped the Sun. Noah Set Sail 2348 B. C. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1925)

THE GREAT and immortal monkey trial is over. Professor Scopes was convicted, of course, and fined $100. And that ends that, for the time being.

Adam and Eve, Jonah, Noah and William Jennings Bryan win; Darwin and the monkeys lose, and everybody is happy.

The case will be appealed, if it can be appealed, and heard all over again.

THAT TRIAL has probably done as much as anything since the great war to stir up thought in stagnant minds. It entered such pools of thought like a meteorite splashing into a quiet, scum-covered pond.

Darwin, Darrow and the monkeys retire to the shadow. W. J. Bryan holds the limelight and is the hero of the occasion.

MR. BRYAN performed prodigies of valor and learning. He fixed the date of the flood at exactly 2348 before Christ, which is marvelous accuracy when you consider how often the calendar has been changed since then and how hard it is to compute leap years and all the rest of it.

ASKED IF HE had ever investigated the question of man's age on this earth, Bryan said, "I have never found it necessary to do so." In that he does not agree with the Bible which says, "Prove ALL things, hold fast that which is good."

THE CASE may well be handed on to history with a kind word about Darwin. He was not what Mr. Bryan calls an "unbeliever," although of course Mr. Bryan would not understand what Darwin really was.

Without being sure about anything not proved, Darwin believed in immortality, as shown by his statement, printed by Senator Capper's Weekly on its front page:

"Believing as I do that man in the distant future will be a far more perfect creature than he now is, in that he does not tolerate evil, and that all other sentient beings are doomed to complete annihilation after such long-continued slow progress. To those who fully admit the immortality of the soul, the destruction of one world would not appear so dreadful."

DARWIN DIDN'T take this little world too seriously, knowing that our sun is only one among millions, and our planet one of the least important among many millions.

But he didn't believe that a system which prescribes for one another and force would doom the only important thing, consciousness, spirit, or soul, to destruction.

AT SOME OTHER TIME, when minds are calmer and rage dies down, it will be interesting to hear Mr. Bryan's fuller statement as to his beliefs that the statement in the Bible about Joshua stopping the sun is literally true.

Of course, Mr. Bryan, as an educated man, knows that the sun really does not move around the earth. In Joshua's day people thought that it did move around the earth, and to make the day longer all you need do was to stop the sun.

MR. BRYAN knows that even if Joshua had stopped the sun, and the earth had gone on turning on its axis, darkness and night would have come just as soon, with Joshua's battlefield turning toward the East and away from the setting sun.

There is, of course, scientific explanation of Mr. Bryan's belief in the suggestion that Joshua who knew all about the sun and the earth and stopped the earth from turning so that the sun seemed to stand still. But had Joshua stopped the earth the air would have gone on moving, creating a wind of a thousand miles an hour, hard on Joshua's army.

AND, IN ADDITION, with a sudden stopping of the earth, the oceans, lakes and rivers would have rushed from their beds, creating all over the earth more serious floods than the one Noah handled so easily.

Getting into scientific discussions, for learned men like Mr. Bryan, is like a fly getting on a fly paper—easy to get on, hard to get off.

AMONG LESS important matters you notice that Henry Ford will probably get some Government medals, having bid a great deal more for them than anybody else would pay.

THE FRENCH have moved away from the Ruhr. German crowds in the street are singing, "Deutschland Uns Alles." And Germany wants to join the League of Nations.

Germany, NOT the United States, is the country that ought to join the League of Nations. Germany cannot be any worse off than she is.

POLAND is cutting up big estates. Thirteen million peasants will be doing so. Why Poland is able to buy Sweden did before the days of Great Britain and Peter the Great. Had Polish peasants owned their land when Charles was marching eastward he might not have been able to get through Poland with his little army as easily as a sharp knife goes through a piece of cheese.

GETTING BACK HIS SELF-RESPECT

Bringing People To Florida In the Summer

MIAMI NEWS

It takes courage to embark on an educational campaign with the idea of converting unbelievers and of upsetting erroneous preconceived notions, and it takes big money to do this on a national scale.

Florida, however, has accomplished just this and has convinced the nation that its equable climate affords as pleasant a relief from torrid northern summers as from frigid northern winters. Proof of this achievement is being afforded daily by the ever increasing hordes of tourists that throng southern steamships and trains.

Truth is mighty and will prevail, but ignorance and prejudice can delay its recognition indefinitely. Florida has an all year climate, but it has taken 10 years of costly publicity to convince the world that the men who wrote our geographical placed the "temperate zone" too far north. A land where all out-of-doors is available 12 months out of the year is surely more entitled to be called temperate than one where sun-stroke and heat prostrations are common occurrence in summer, and where zero weather keeps people huddled in wraps or huddled around a radiator during the winter.

It was never difficult to bring winter visitors to Florida. The leisure class which was catered to at the beginning, readily reacted to the offer of winter comfort and amusement, and finding that Florida facts surpassed its offers, contracted the habit of coming here every cold season.

Ten years ago, Arthur W. Pye, passenger traffic manager of the Clyde line, who had spent several years in Florida, initiated the first national publicity campaign advertising Florida as a summer resort. In order to draw on the largest possible field, he directed his publicity guns on the middle class, and offered attractive excursion rates, well within the means of anyone intending to take an eight-day vacation. In 1916 the Clyde line brought 1,200 summer tourists to Florida, and each year this number has been considerably increased, until today, with two sailings a week between New York and Miami, in addition to its Jacksonville service, the demand is greater than the company can care for.

Mr. Pye, a steamship executive of national reputation, must derive satisfaction from the way Florida has justified his judgment. He arrived Wednesday at Jacksonville on the Clyde liner "Cherokee," the largest and finest east-wise vessel of the American merchant marine. The Daily News did him welcome as one of the potent factors in the development of this city and state.

THE OLD FOLKS

PLANT CITY NEWS

To all of us who have passed the portals of childhood and have entered upon that great broad highway leading through life there come times when we sit in silent reflection and retrospection, wondering after all what the home folks, the old folks, back in that little community, town or city, think of the lad or girl of years ago who played about the neighborhood. And we would give a good deal to receive an honest opinion of those who through the passing years have ever grown dear to our hearts.

They are still there, many of them, while others have gone out of the land of the living and have joined the silent host in a land across the way.

Sometimes we are privileged to travel back to those old scenes, if we be of those who have wandered from the homeland, and arriving back, we are thrilled with the reception of those we left behind. Their handshake is the warmest, their greeting the truest and their bright look of welcome the fullest. It may be in times past that they spoke sharply of our actions, predicted dire things in our future and in more ways than one indicated their ideas concerning our value to the world.

Time changes all of these things. We may have thought harshly of them as they did of us, but after all, the passing years have strengthened a bond, a bond of kinship, a bond of friendship and a bond of human interest. We still are interested in their going and coming while they too share our triumphs or defeats. We may rejoice at our success and the tribute of a newly found world, but after all the keener pleasure, the greatest joy, comes when we realize in our success and point with pride to the achievements of the boy or girl who was "raised around these parts and who we knew when he or she was knee high to a grasshopper."

Life is full, hearts are glad and success worth while for the boy or girl of long ago who has at last won the recognition and praise of the old folks back home, for after all they are the ones whose praise is enduring, whose friendship is unending and whose happiness is fullest when one of their own goes out into the world and fathers in the fullest measure that filial success which life bids all come and gather.

HAS MCGINNITY QUIT?

ST. PETERSBURG INDEPENDENT

If it is true that Joe McGinnity, of 54 full summers, has quit baseball for good, nothing becomes him more than the manner of his going out. He disagreed with the manager of the Duhague team, for which he had won five games out of seven this season and abruptly turned in his uniform. This is youth itself. Only the fire and impetuosity of a young man can meet privation, real or fancied, in a defiant manner. There was here none of the conservatism of 54 years. He did not patiently bare his back to the storm, but, like A'ax, defied the lightning.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Cry of rage always are to be heard, coming from the National Geographic Society's headquarters over on Sixteenth street, for several days after there's been a public reference to Juan Fernandez as "Robinson Crusoe's Island."
There's been one of these outbreaks lately, following the death of Dr. W. C. Farabee, the famous explorer, whose wanderings were widely described in the obituary notices as having included this particular speck on the map, almost universally alluded to as the home of Daniel Defoe's hero during all the years his literary creator kept him cast away.

Anybody who ever read Robinson Crusoe knows that Defoe speaks of his island as right in the tropics—hotter than pepper 365 days in the year, and 366 of them quadrennially. Defoe goes into considerable detail concerning the island's fauna and flora and the whole thing is tropical parrots, palms and everything else that goes with a climate mighty close to the line.

Some National Geographic Society members say Defoe had in mind an island off the south of southern Central American Caribbean coast. Some say he hadn't any particular island in mind at all, being more interested in Robinson's adventures than in the part of the world he experienced them in.

Bobbed Hair War Is Cause School Closing

VIENNA, July 24.—A fight over bobbed hair recently necessitated the closing of the university here for a short time. Nationalistic students in an encounter with the social democrat faction pulled the hair of the girl students of the latter group and berated them for wearing it bobbed. The girls were finally rescued by their brother students and 16 of the reactionaries were arrested.

Bob Morris Holds Sanford To Three Hits On Thursday And Saints Win Six To One

ST. PETERSBURG, July 24.—Bob Morris held Sanford to three hits and the Saints won the opening game of the series here Thursday, 6 to 1. Except for one bad inning, the sixth when the Celery Feds got one run on a single, a double error and two bases on balls, Morris had perfect control of the situation, only 25 men facing him in the other frames.

ATHLETICS BEST PHILLIES, TAKING AMERICAN LEAD

Poole's Timely Hitting Largely Responsible for Victory; Yankees Trounce Senators; White Sox and Indians Win

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—The Athletics took the opening game of the series with Boston here Thursday, 5 to 4. The triumph was Rommel's seventh of the season and his sixth victory in as many games with the Red Sox. Poole's timely hitting was largely responsible for Boston's downfall.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The New York Yankees knocked Washington off top place in the American league Thursday by a score of 11 to 7. Gehrig's bat brought New York victory. He hit two home runs and a single and drove in seven runs. His second home run came in the seventh with the bases full.

Game's Largest Pitcher

Meet Mr. Garland Buckeye, more affectionately called "Big Boy." He's a pitcher for the Cleveland Indians. And a good one, even though a left-hander. In his last four starts he's turned in as many victories, allowing but six runs and 27 hits in the 36 innings. This is his initial season with the Speakerites. He's baseball's largest pitcher, weighing 235 pounds.

PIRATES REGAIN LEAD BY BEATING CARDINALS 3 TO 2

Rally in Ninth Inning, Scoring Two Runs, Win Game; Giants and Boston Braves Split Double Bill Thursday

DETROIT, July 24.—Excellent relief pitching by Connally caused the White Sox to defeat Detroit here, 8 to 4. Connally allowed only one hit in 7 2-3 innings; after Thurston had been batted from the box by the Tigers in the second inning, when they scored three of their runs.

PITTSBURGH, July 24.—A ninth inning rally gave Pittsburgh a 3 to 2 decision over St. Louis Thursday, the victory placing the Pirates in the National League leadership once again. With the count 2 to 1 in the ninth Gaylor tripled, Traynor doubled and Wright singled for a pair of runs.

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—Sherod Smith, veteran left hander allowed only four hits and the Cleveland Indians beat the St. Louis Browns Thursday, 10 to 1.

BOSTON, July 24.—After losing the first game to the Braves Thursday, 6 to 3, the Giants won the concluding number 6 to 3. Although drawn an even break in the twin program, the New York club lost first place in the National League to the Pirates, who defeated the Cardinals.

Much difficulty is being experienced in the construction of the road through the Everglades where the muck is several feet deep. Two canals for drainage are being built. The muck is removed from both until the limestone foundation is reached. The rock from one canal is then placed in the other and a rock foundation road made of the canal.

LAKELAND ROUTS TAMPA IN SIXTH TO WIN GAME 5-3

Winners Put Over Four Runs in That Inning When Smokers Go to Pieces; Cusack Pitches For Highlanders

TAMPA, July 24.—The Lakeland Highlanders beat the Smokers here Thursday afternoon 5 to 3, in the first game of the three-game series. The Tampa team went to pieces in the sixth inning and the winners put four runs over on two singles and two errors. Swanson paved the way for his own defeat when he walked Buckley. Ponder singled and second and third were occupied when Welch grounded out. Brazier filled the bases when he walked and then Edwards singled to right center.
