Downtown Sanford merchants brainstorm for a better city

By VICKI BOBROWER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Some merchants in downtown Sanford's historic business district are angry. They're angry at the false reputation their area has gotten and held onto as a crime-ridden district with nothing but junk shops to offer. They're angry at those who perpetuate the myth without coming to the area to check out the facts. And they're angry at the city of Sanford for failing to follow through on promises made and for not using the resources they have more efficiently. Last week, several of the merchants gathered at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce to air their complaints and to offer suggestions. See Merchants, Page 5A

Is something rotten in county government?

By VICKI BOBROWER

SANFORD — The attorney for a high-ranking county official who was fired over alleged improprieties says there's something rotten in Seminole County government. And a county commissioner says he's beginning to smell something foul too and he wants to know what it is. County Property Acquisition Coordinator Joyce Suber, who was fired last month from her position with the county, is appealing the decision saying she was let go without good cause. After nine years of glowing job evaluations, including one in Aug. 1995 in which her work was lauded for efficiency and dependability, Suber was terminated, in effect, for allegedly working on her son's Gulf County property appraiser's election campaign for an hour and a half while on county time.

Then, instead of being put on paid leave during the appeals process, she was simply let go. Someone seems to have been in too much of a hurry to get Suber out, attorney Mark Biechman and his partner Marc Lubet said. "Why?" asks Lubet. "Who is so afraid of her" See County, Page 5A

Judge knows where Goff lives

By VICKI BOBROWER

SANFORD — The question of Bob Goff's residency at the time he qualified to run for the Seminole County school board has finally been put to rest. Or has it? After hearing evidence from both parties, Circuit Judge Alan Dickey ruled this past week there was nothing to indicate Goff did not comply with elections law with regard to residency when he qualified for office on July 18. Warren said she is considering an appeal of the judge's decision. An appeal can be made only if Dickey made a legal error in his See Goff, Page 5A

Paying for new safety complex

By VICKI BOBROWER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford commissioners Monday will begin discussing the financial side of the new, approved public safety facility to house both the Sanford Fire Department and Sanford Police Department. Plans presently call for the facility to be built on city owned property on French Avenue, across from Sanford Middle School. The next steps include a selection from approximately three proposed structure plans, how much whatever is selected will cost, how to obtain the financing for the construction and the step procedures to be followed in construction over the next 20 years (allowing room for expansion as needed). According to information supplied to the commissioners through studies undertaken by the city staff and others, there are four funding mechanisms: A bank qualified loan, usually See Paying, Page 5A

Running for mayor of Sanford: Bob Thomas

By RUSSELL WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Robert B. Thomas, Jr., survived a dreadful childhood. Most nights he went to bed hungry. He says he still sees his mother weeping as she lulls her four children to sleep, rubbing their stomachs and pleading to God that they will live through the night. He sees his father, an "illiterate" man, working seven-day weeks in Sanford's celery fields or in the orange groves - earning less than a quarter an hour during the Great Depression. He remembers running out of the classroom when his second-grade teacher wrote on the blackboard that Robert Thomas, Jr. was "the most untidy boy" in the class. At 68, Robert Thomas, Jr., is not only a survivor but a striver, a "tidy" man who would be Sanford's next mayor. "My time is now," Thomas says, solemnly. He asks that voters take time to think about Bob Thomas before voting on Dec. 3. Think about "the untidy boy," in his soiled, hand-me-down clothes, playing hockey from school after being cruelly taunted by his teacher. Consider the fact that the same Bob Thomas grew up to be one, terribly tough truant officer for more than 30 years in his own hometown.

11 a.m. Sunday is the most segregated hour in America. See Thomas, Page 5A

"Tough?" he asks. "Yeah, I was tough. Of course, I was tough." Thomas said that one teacher - one, caring, loving teacher, changed his nightmare into a positive situation. By the time he went back to what was then called the "little red school house" (Goldboro Elementary), he found encouragement, not negativity. "I shall not forget Miss Sally Fields Bentley," he says. "She's 88 and still lives here. She looked at me and saw potential. She saw a youngster who needed to be accepted. "Miss Bentley would have a spelling contest each week...and I won many of them. Most of them, in fact. She always gave the winner a great big, juicy Baby Ruth candy bar. "The others used to call me "the Baby Ruth Kid." When Thomas was 18, he joined the Army, was shipped to the Pacific and See Thomas, Page 5A

Former Lake Mary mayor looks ahead

By SHAWN BRIDGES
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY Where do former mayors go when they have turned over the reins of city government to a new leader and feel like it's time to rest on their laurels?

They become a director on the board of a chamber of commerce, of course, and spearhead a new program to be adopted by the business group.

This is exactly what former city of Lake Mary mayor Lowry Rockett is going to do.

Rockett, who declined to run for a third term as the city's mayor has recently been appointed a director for the board of the Lake Mary Health or Chamber of Commerce. Rockett said that his intent in cloveing his involvement with the local business group is to "define and implement a program of community outreach concerning substance abuse."

Rockett said that one of his failures, "if you can call it that," in his four years in office was not to realize the magnitude of the drug problem in Central Florida, because, he said, he hadn't always been eye to eye with him but it's always been professional.

"I also need to thank (city manager) John Litton. He can't make everyone happy all of the time but he's served the city well. I haven't always been eye to eye with him but it's always been professional."

What is the state of the city government Rockett is leaving in the hands of the new commission. It is one, he said, that has been able to provide a continued improvement of service to the citizens during a period of orderly growth. Rockett states that the city has

The program will first be presented to the chamber board at their annual planning meeting on Nov. 15, to verify their support and involvement with the roundtable to be held Nov. 18.

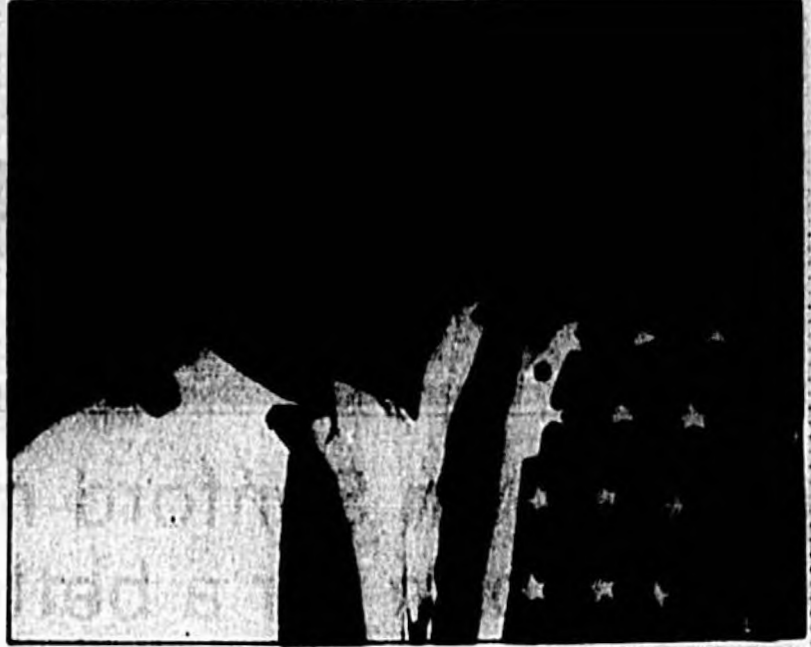

Rockett is a founder and partner in the engineering firm of Mount, Sikes and Assoc. He said he decision not to run again was based a lot on the concerns of his business over the course of the next two years. Rockett said two of his partners are considering retirement and this will greatly affect the firm's direction in the future.

He also said that while his wife, Pat, was one of his greatest supporters, his "honey-do" list had gotten a little too long and she deserved a little more of his time.

"I want to thank my wife and family," he said. "She and my staff have been my biggest supporters and regardless of anything that has happened, they've always been professional."

"I also need to thank (city manager) John Litton. He can't make everyone happy all of the time but he's served the city well. I haven't always been eye to eye with him but it's always been professional."

grown in population 150 percent since he took office.

Is Lake Mary better off than it was four years ago? Rockett responded, "With that type of growth there could have been turmoil but there's been none and that is an accomplishment."

Rockett met with criticism from "old" Lake Mary when the expansion of the western part of the city started but feels he has created a happy median.

"There was a lot of concern in old Lake Mary but I think it has been alleviated," he said. "I don't think their lifestyle has changed a whole bunch."

Other accomplishments listed by Rockett include the completion of Lake Mary Boulevard, which was "very important to the business community;" the creation of a true five-year budget, "not just a project list;" no increase in the millage rate; the passing of the First Community Improvement Package, which includes the financing of the current drainage and paving program, landscaping of Rinehart Road after the widening is completed, and the building of a new public safety facility; and the institution of a Total

Cops arrest robbery suspect

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford police say one of two persons wanted in connection with the armed robbery of a Circle-K store in Sanford has been apprehended.

Timothy Bernard "Al Capone" Jamison, 30, of 2425 S. Princeton Avenue, was located by Sanford police Thursday in the 1100 block of Cypress Avenue.

According to the arrest report, on Oct. 31, two men entered the Circle-K store at 2901 W. First Street, one of whom was reportedly armed with a small silver revolver.

The man with a gun pointed it at one of the clerks and forced her to the ground. The other clerk was said to be in the cooler at the time and unaware of what was taking place.

The robber first asked the clerk to open the safe. When she reportedly said she could not, he managed to open the cash register and take an undetermined amount of money from it as well as some lottery tickets.

The two men then took the purses from the two clerks before making their escape.

Police said several persons including the store clerk and members of Jamison's family were called to the police station, and all identified Jamison from the video taken during the robbery.

Police have now charged him with armed robbery, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, and carrying of a concealed firearm. Jamison is the son of a clergyman and a nurse.

Police are continuing their search for the other person suspected of having been involved in the robbery.

The way we were: Finding treasure in book about family's early life

One Saturday afternoon while I manned my weekly post behind the desk at the Sanford Museum, I picked up a book lying there and found a treasure. The book is entitled The Jackson-Moore Family History and Genealogy and was written by Mary L. Jackson Fears. It was published this year by Heritage Books, Inc., and this copy was presented to the museum by Edward Blackshear.

There had been some publicity about this book in the Sanford Herald, but I didn't pay much attention as I didn't know the people. I have yet to skimmed through the book. I felt like I almost know them.

That first afternoon, I fascinated with Mrs. Fears' research, and also how readable it was even to someone who didn't know the family. I have done some genealogical research myself and understand the many problems.

Although much of the genealogy of this family would not interest outsiders, the reminiscences of their early life in Sanford hooked me, as I thought this part of my book would also interest you. Therefore, on several subsequent Saturdays, I took notes. Mrs. Fears interviewed

Minority opportunity conference focuses on business

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

The 1988 Southeastern Minority Opportunity Conference will convene Wednesday, Nov. 13-15 at the Orange County Convention Center. The conference will include a luncheon, welcome reception and recognition banquet.

The Southeastern Minority Opportunity Conference features The Honorable Meyer Bill Campbell from the city of Atlanta, who will be the keynote speaker at the recognition banquet. Mayor Campbell was asked to participate because of how he urged and sought the implementation of measures that give minority and female business owners equal footing with mainstream companies when it comes to contract bidding for the city of Atlanta.

Other top corporate business leaders will be a part of this conference. Harris

Rosen, President and CEO of TAMAR Inns, Inc. Rosen's company owns and manages more than 5,000 guest rooms in the Central Florida area alone. He is also founder and creator of the Tangelo Park Program which supports business and minority community improvement that could ultimately help to increase all companies bottom line profit.

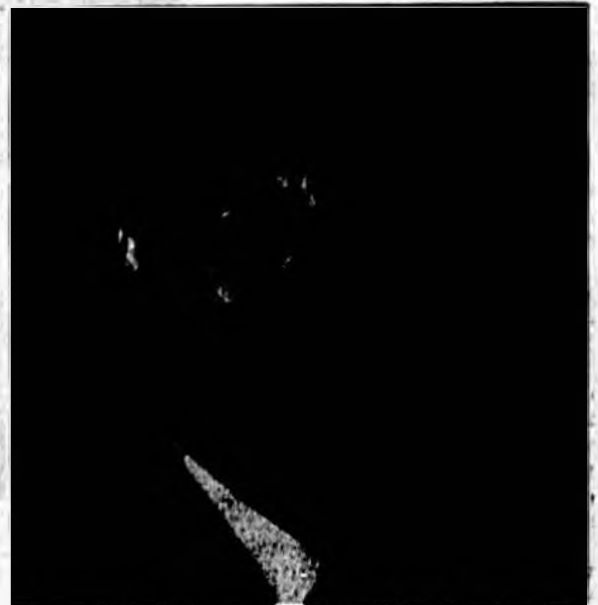

Yolanda Clark of Victoria International says that Ryan Kelly, National Director and founder of MOC stresses that "this conference focuses on the attitudes and perceptions toward minorities in business and seeks to sensitize majority owned companies to the benefits and strengths of what cultural awareness brings to business. It also serves as a catalyst to revitalize our inner cities with sustainable economic partnerships."

Throughout the two-day conference, you'll discover new insights as well as learn about proven and workable programs in the special interest areas of:

- attitudes and perceptions
 - self-evaluation
 - discover the history of minority businesses
 - communicating with cultural flexibility
 - minority staffing
 - minority business development
 - success money
- A Program For Corporate & Community Development, presented by Harris Rosen

The Minority Opportunity Conference is a unique, intensive business training. Companies will learn how to increase bottom-line profit through minority business development and enhanced community conscience. Registration is $249, per person; Power Luncheon only $45; Recognition Banquet only $65; corporate tables, $750.

Domestic case

Seminole County sheriff's deputies responded to a domestic dispute call Thursday at 4407 Francis Avenue in Sanford. As a result, both a man and woman said to have been involved in an altercation were taken into custody. They were identified as Brady S. Maddox, 23, and Elizabeth N. Bohn, 20. Each was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Drug arrests

Members of the Sanford police QUAD-Squad made two arrests Thursday as the result of an anti-drug surveillance at 13th Street and Oleander Avenue in Sanford. Maslene J. McGill, 23, of 1403 Roosevelt Avenue, was arrested on a charge of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute. Darius L. Moore, 20, of 2551 Crawford Avenue, was arrested on charges of attempted sale of cocaine and possession of cocaine.

Sheriff reports

● A $335 clothes dryer, installed less than one week earlier, was reported stolen Wednesday from a home under construction in the 900 block of DelFino Place near Lake Mary.

● A Lake Mary High School student reported that an unknown object was thrown at his 1991 Toyota pickup truck Wednesday, as he drove on Greenwood Lakes near Greenway, near the high school. An estimated $150 in damage was said to have been done to the vehicle.

Sanford police reports

● An estimated $391 in cash was reported stolen Thursday from a residence in the 1100 block of W. 16th Street in Sanford.

● Police said $179 in currency was reported stolen early Friday, from a business in the 200 block of Towne Center Circle.

● Someone reportedly threw a brick through the front window of a convenience store early Friday in the 1100 block of Celery Avenue. The only item reported missing was $12 in cash from the register.

● A business trailer was burglarized Thursday in the 500 block of Pecan Avenue in Sanford. An estimated $911 in spare parts were said to have been stolen.

Candidates' signs are being stolen

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

Though the landscape seems cluttered with signs promoting this or that political campaign, at least two candidates are complaining about a drop in the number.

Sanford mayoral candidate Lyn Donato and Laura Mylrea-Morris, who is in a runoff for the District 3 Lake Mary commission seat, both say their signs are being taken from both public and private property.

Donato said nine yard signs have been pilfered and three of the four large signs she had placed around town were taken late last week.

She described the signs as being "yellow and blue, just like Larry Blair's" and said she would like them returned. Trying to operate a thrifty campaign, she said, was complicated when signs, some of which are valued at $30 each, were taken.

"I feel like I've been victimized," she said. "I'm not accusing any of my opponents, but I don't have any earthly idea why kids would take those big signs with the posts and everything."

Mylrea-Morris said "numerous" signs had been removed, mostly from residential properties. She said she confirmed with the property owners that they had not been the ones who removed the signs.

Both candidates said they had reported the incidents to the police. No signs had been recovered.

"It really bothers me that the race has to be so nasty," Donato said. "Stealing campaign signs is a federal offense and if they catch who's doing it, I will prosecute."

In addition, Mylrea-Morris is See Signs, Page 8A

Merchants—

about how to make things better.

"We're no better and no worse than any other area," Sally Segrest of Granny's Square antiques on First Street, said. "We're working very, very hard to make this a special place. We need some cooperation from the media and from the city if we're going to do that."

Crime does occur in the downtown district, they conceded, but to "plaster the statistics on the front page" does nothing to enhance the image of the business community.

"It's a 'road block,'" said Wanda Kelly, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. "We're all working hard to continue making improvements down here. We take six steps forward and get pushed eight steps back."

DeLoree Lash, owner of Antiques, Etc., suggested the business owners downtown should organize a "Business Watch," based on the Neighborhood Watch program recently organized by Bob Kuhn in the downtown historic residential district.

"We are very thankful for what police protection we have," Segrest said, "but there has to be some more."

Lash noted signs should be erected in the district making the public aware of the business watch so that criminals would be aware to move on and citizens would be aware that it is safe.

Still, the group agreed one of the easiest solutions to their woes would be increased activities downtown after dark.

Fred Rogers of the Ritz Theatre agreed. He has noted the area around the theater is less likely to attract a criminal element or undesirable activity when a production is going on.

"You get that activity going on and there are people and lights and the criminal element moves on," he noted. "They don't like to be in the spotlight."

Cafe Jake's has sponsored a variety of events that brought people downtown into the late evening hours, some of the stores have remained open at night on evenings when plays are presented at the Ritz. Some restaurants are regularly open into the evening.

Sara Jacobson, whose family-owned businesses have operated downtown for 50 years, said she has regularly worked downtown late at night and never had a problem.

Shoplifting is always a concern in retail, but she suggested controlling it with less cluttered displays, enough help to watch the merchandise and by treating customers well. She believes shoplifting can sometimes be a vendetta by someone who feels he or she has been slighted by a clerk.

Lash is also testing the waters at night. Her store has been hosting an open house from 4 until 8 p.m. each night this weekend and will do so tonight as well.

Better lighting would be another way to deter criminals, the group said.

"We need to take a look at the successful places like the Disney

Sally Segrest and DeLoree Lash listen and take notes on constructive approaches to a safe and appealing downtown business district.

Village," Lash pointed out. "They all have lights in the windows. Even if it's just those twinkle lights. That's attractive and people will want to come down to see it, but it also acts as a crime deterrent."

Sharon Koning of Bigger and Better Fashions said she has run into nothing but opposition from the city when she has tried to get improved lighting on First Street.

"We have to work together to get the city to see what has to be done," she said. "But we have to get some action."

Koning took her case to a consumer program on a local television station and after it aired on Thursday night, she said, crews were replacing burned out streetlight bulbs. No more calls, she noted, were necessary.

"We call and call and promises are made," she said prior to her television appearance. "Nothing ever happens."

City Manager Bill Simmons did not return calls to the newspaper regarding his "lack of cooperation" with the merchants.

The group also suggested the police department might better use the resources they already have by having the officer who patrols the area work from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m., rather than the 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift she currently works.

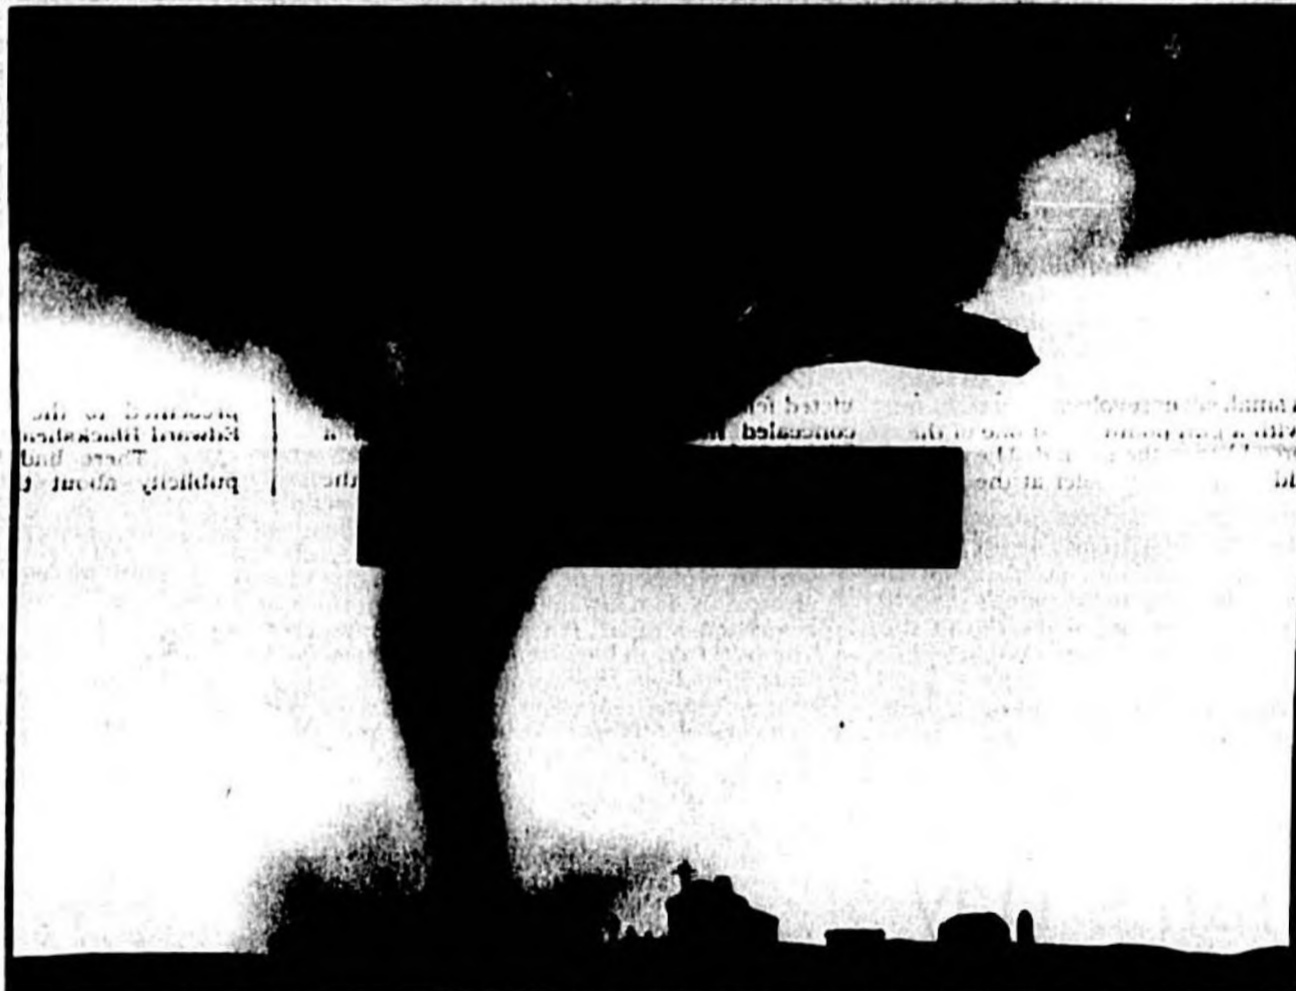

"We just need her there while we're there and when we're leaving," they suggested. "We don't need her here early in the morning."

Lash suggested the police could be "much more effective if they would just use what they have a little better."

The group agreed they needed to have a more unified presence at city commission meetings and made plans to take their concerns to an upcoming meeting as one entity.

GRAMKOW FUNERAL HOME
322-3213

Located in Brevard County with a Sanford address, this 4 plus bedroom LOG HOME (of 4,000 sq. ft. under roof), is an ideal residence with the possibility of converting into a Veterans or Senior Retirement Center. With a large country-style family room that is gleamed in and surrounded by woods, this secluded area has 3 acres of fenced woods to insure privacy. Other amenities include 2 zoned CNA units, 3 full bathrooms, a 2-car garage that can be converted to a game room. The 40' "country" kitchen with a dining room that could seat 12 people, also has a breakfast bar. The living room opens up into the family room, to keep a feeling of openness and easy living. There is even a front porch to sit and watch the birds. The asking price is $185,000 and with an adequate down payment the owners will consider carrying a First Deed of Trust.

LAKE MARY/HEATHROW — Carol Howell, a financial management executive with over 30 years experience, has been named vice president of Finance and Administration, for Higgins & Heath, Inc./Better Homes and Gardens.

Carol Howell

Howell will oversee the overall financial, accounting and management information systems for the 17-year old, full-service real estate company with offices in Lake Mary/Heathrow and Altamonte Springs. Howell has been with Higgins & Heath since 1993 serving as the company's comptroller.

Higgins & Heath has also announced eclipsing the $200 million plateau in home sales activities for this year's first three quarters, spurred by $70.7 million in home sales during the third quarter, a 15.3 percent increase over last year.

Brighter business outlook

The future appears to be looking brighter for the business world in Central Florida. According to the Tourism Business Confidence Index prepared by Dick Pope Institute for Tourism Studies at the University of Central Florida, most of the area's tourism and travel executives foresee another increase in business opportunities for the fourth quarter (October-December) of 1996 as compared to the same time period last year.

More than 85 percent of those polled said the Central Florida tourism business improved during the third quarter as compared to the same quarter last year.

Additionally, 75 percent said this new fourth quarter is more promising for the Central Florida Tourism and Hospitality industry than last year.

On the other side of the coin, only 46 percent of the persons polled predicted there will be any increase in employment during this fourth quarter.

The tourism and hospitality index is published by UCF to develop quarterly data on the future economic health of the tourism and hospitality industry in Central Florida.

For additional information on the report, phone (407) 823-2182.

Two custom homes have been completed at Summer Oaks Estates on Markham Woods Road near Heathrow, north of Lake Mary Boulevard. Roger Soderstrom, partner of Stirling International Realty, Inc. made the announcement this week. Stirling is marketing the development.

Orange State Contracting has completed the Granville with four bedrooms and four baths, priced at $674,000.

Arthur Rutenberg Homes of Altamonte Springs has completed the Catalina, priced at $648,900.

There are still 15 estate sites in this community ranging in size from one to four acres.

Calton Homes of Altamonte Springs announced it sold 33 homes during this past October for a dollar volume of $3.4 million. Calton has 10 active communities in Seminole and Orange counties.

M/I Homes of Altamonte Springs sold 36 homes during October for a dollar volume of $4.9 million. Linda Campagna was named top sales person of the month for selling eight of the homes, with a dollar volume of $625,800.

Olympia Homes of Altamonte Springs sold 23 homes during October for a dollar volume of $3.3 million. Olympia has eight active communities.

Honors

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Residence Inn by Marriott's front office manager Mindy Patrick and director of sales Dawn Goss, received the National True North Award at the extended-stay hotel chain's Director of Sales/Front Office Managers' conference recently in New Orleans.

Patrick and Goss were recognized for leading the hotel to outstanding levels in guest satisfaction and revenue performance.

There are four Residence Inns in the Central Florida area, and over 225 nationwide.

Sanford's Gateway retail center sold

From staff reports

SANFORD — Falcon Orlando has announced the sale of Gateway Plaza, a regional retail center adjacent to Seminole Towne Center in Sanford. ZOM Gateway, Ltd., a ZOM Companies investment affiliate was the purchaser.

Falcon developed the 307,330 square foot shopping center last year in a joint venture with Hardy & Callaway Development Group. Tenants include Toys R Us, Service Merchandise, Ross-Dress-For-Less, Homeplace, and Old Navy Clothing Store.

Falcon partner Frank Herring, Jr., said the sale price of $18,466,000 represents the largest single retail property transaction this year. Ray Hayhurst, director of Investment Sales for Falcon negotiated the deal with ZOM.

Trip Stephens, president of ZOM Properties, commented, "Gateway is an excellent addition to ZOM's portfolio of commercial properties. We are bullish on North Seminole County, particularly in the SR-40 and Interstate-4 corridor."

Stephens said another ZOM partnership presently owns 20 acres adjacent to the Gateway Plaza, and plans an additional retail development there.

Falcon Orlando has been retained to manage the property, and will also serve as exclusive leasing agent.

Bag business opens

Knitted Net Fabric Inc., manufacturer of mesh packaging bags, has opened a new business in Sanford. Open house was held on Oct. 26 at the facility, located at 2772 Depot St. More than 125 people attended to tour the plant and dine from a buffet featuring a variety of Greek cuisine. When you want to buy a franchise

Last week, we discussed buying an existing business; this week, I would like to discuss buying a franchise. This week alone, I have counseled two clients about the process of investigating franchises.

The first step in the process is an honest evaluation of yourself. I want you to think about and answer the following questions:

1. Are you willing to pursue every opportunity to investigate the franchiser, and the business itself?
2. Are you willing to follow the franchiser's operating system to the letter?
3. Does the business offer a product or service that you are really interested in and will be proud to sell?
4. Do you have good "people" skills?
5. Are you willing to work very hard? (Perhaps harder than you have for any previous employer.)

If your answers were in the affirmative to the above questions then you are ready to begin the process. I want you to do an inventory of your financial resources. That will give you a range in which to seek franchisees. It doesn't do anyone any good if you spend a lot of time and effort in pursuit of an unsuitable or unaffordable franchise.

What does the franchise do for you? Basically, it means you are purchasing a proven format. The franchiser is there to help you avoid the mistakes that commonly put new businesses under. What kind of mistakes? One frequent mistake is choosing the wrong location for a retail operation. Another is mispricing products or services. A good franchiser should furnish a complete training program. You should also receive on-site consultants.

Small Business

Franchisees according to the Department of Commerce succeed at a higher rate than independent businesses. But not all entrepreneurs are suited for franchisees. A good franchiser would not want a person such as myself as a franchisee. Why? Because it is a partnership that requires each party to adhere to the agreement and to carefully follow the recipe. Personally, I would find it difficult not to fine tune and adjust the system. Your freedom is restricted by the agreement you sign. Needless to say, don't enter into an agreement without professional advice.

If you think the opportunity is for you, please take the time to carefully examine the Uniform Franchise Offering Circular (UFOC). You need to have an accountant review their financial statements and a lawyer to review the agreement. You need a lawyer who specializes in franchise law.

Make sure you talk to several other franchisees to compare their experience versus what the company is telling you. Is the company in the business of selling franchisees instead of being your business partner? Find out about the advertising fees and where they will be spent. You need to know what kind of failure rate they are experiencing and turnover. Stay away from companies that have more than 25 percent of the stores as company owned. If there are very few company stores it might indicate a weak system that the company doesn't want to invest in. Be careful of high up front fees; it might indicate a lack of commitment to ongoing operations.

Wayne Hardy is the coordinator of the Small Business Development Center located at Seminole Community College. He can be reached at 336-0726 ext. 3241. Email him at whardy@ipa.seminole.cc.fl.us.

Condominiums are another affordable housing option

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Yet another affordable housing option is now available in Sanford. What was formerly Coeville Apartments on Ridgewood Avenue is now a condominium complex named Ridgewood Villas.

Newly renovated and decorated, Ridgewood Villas offers comfort and convenience, with well-planned living space. Each villa includes one, two or three bedrooms with a modern space-saver kitchen and a porch or balcony.

Other amenities include a clubhouse, a pool, a gazebo and tennis courts. The entire property is being relandscaped and the parking lot is being resurfaced. The complex will be repainted, as well.

"We are upgrading the neighborhood, turning what was rental property into owner-occupied villas," said the representative of the developer, Victor Rivers. Ridgewood Villas is adjacent to Seminole High School and near Lakeview Middle School, so it should be attractive to families with older children.

The one bedroom, one bath model is 850 square feet, the two bedroom, two bath is 1,050 and the three bedroom, two bath is 1,300. Prices on the villas range from $37,990 to $49,990 with a $1,000 premium for end units.

Ridgewood Villas has qualified to offer SHIP funds, a county program designed to assist lower income families in the purchase of their first home. Qualified buyers can put little or no money down through this program.

For more information on qualifying for the SHIP program or to set-up an appointment to see one of the villas, contact Rivers a 786-8861.

Veteran's Day, 1986: Homecoming

27 years later, missing pilot finally comes home

BY ROSEN HARRISON
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — More than 27 years after their son and brother was shot down while flying a bombing raid over Laos, a former Lake Mary family will be able to close that chapter of their life.

Lt. Col. James W. Widdis, then a captain, was shot down in his third month assigned to an attack squadron during the Vietnam war. He was listed as missing in action since.

The pilot's mother and sister, Helen Ruth Widdis and Margaret Beatty, lived at 394 East Lake Mary Boulevard for several years.

In 1978, the Air Force went to their home in Lake Mary and notified the family that the status of Lt. Col. Widdis had been changed from missing in action (MIA) to presumed killed in action.

However, the pilot's body had never been recovered.

Since that time, Mrs. Widdis had moved to New Smyrna Beach, her hometown before moving to Lake Mary.

On Oct. 23, the Air Force visited her at Ocean View Nursing Home in New Smyrna Beach to notify her they had recovered her son's remains and were returning him home from near Ban Namokhou, Laos, where they had been since 1969.

"This has been a long drawn out war," Martha Parker, sister of the missing pilot, said with tears in her eyes. "This finally gives me some closure. I don't think that a day has gone by that I haven't thought about the fact he could be a prisoner still or was possibly tortured."

Parker, who currently lives in New Smyrna Beach, said the return of her brother's remains had also given her mother peace.

"Mother has been a big girl," she said. "She also said the gentlemen when the Air Force was that he was 'a good boy, such a good boy'."

Mrs. Widdis died Wednesday, Oct. 30, exactly one week after learning her son was finally coming home after all those years missing.

"It gave her peace of mind to let go," Parker said. "She just closed her eyes and went with him."

Only a few miles away, from Parker, another resident of New Smyrna Beach was touched by the pilot's remains being returned.

Mary Ray had lived in Central Florida all of her life, growing up mostly in the Daytona Beach area.

As a sophomore in high school in 1960, she bought a MIA bracelet to show her support for our soldiers. Her bracelet bears the name of Lt. Col. James W. Widdis.

"Everyday at school, we were having a moment of silence for someone killed," Ray said. "I felt like I needed to support them. It was such a terrible turmoil in the 1960s."

"When I read it in the paper, I just cried," she said. "It was like my own family member coming home. It was sort of an emotional thing. I didn't even know him, but I felt like I did. That bracelet has been a part of my life for almost 30 years."

Ironically, Ray never knew that Lt. Col. Widdis had grown up a few miles from her and that her family still resided in the area.

While the return of Widdis' remains will help his family and Ray close a tragic chapter in their lives. Parker vividly recalls the impact the ordeal had on her family.

Lt. Col. James W. Widdis in 1969 three months before he was shot down during the Vietnam war.

For years, Parker said her family traveled to the Orlando Naval Station to review films smuggled out of Southeast Asia depicting Americans held as prisoners of war.

During one visit, Parker, her mother and a sister all picked a soldier out of the films simultaneously. All believed it was Lt. Col. Widdis.

"It was unbelievable," Parker said.

Later, however, the Air Force informed the family that 900 other families had identified the same soldier.

According to Parker, the Air Force excavated the wreckage of an American A-26 attack aircraft more than a year ago.

After nearly a year of DNA testing and comparing medical records to the remains, officials notified Parker they believed they found her brother, along with his navigator/bombardier Major Robert C. Davis.

Officials confirmed the identities of the two Air Force officers on Oct. 9.

The Air Force concluded the two were killed on impact when their A-26, carrying a full load of bombs, was shot down and exploded. Lt. Col. Widdis was 30 years old when he was killed.

Crying as she recalled the story, Parker said she remembered the day the Air Force came to her house to notify the family Widdis had not returned from his mission. "The Air Force woke my mother up at 3 a.m.," she said recalling that March 1969 morning when the family received the tragic news.

"As soon as my mother opened the door and saw the Air Force officer, she knew it was about Jim," she said.

The Air Force officer filled the family in on some of the details leading up to Lt. Col. Widdis' plane being shot down.

According to Parker, the family was told Widdis was on a night bombing raid over an area where Vietcong were regrouping. Their assignment was to cross the Laotian border and bomb supply routes.

"We weren't supposed to be there," she said. "We weren't supposed to talk about his mission over Laos. We weren't allowed to speak of where he was shot down."

Parker said she has carried that burden every day of her life.

"I could never watch any Vietnam war movies," she said. "They are too real for me."

Not knowing whether or not a loved one is alive or dead has a tremendous impact on a family, she said.

"You just can't imagine what it does to you," she said. "I never had any peace or closure. When the government said there were POWs coming home, I don't think I ever left my television. I watched and waited, watched and waited."

Lt. Col. Widdis was never among those returning until a couple weeks ago.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Ray was able to meet the sister of the pilot she had worn a bracelet for.

As tradition has it, when a soldier's remains come home, the bracelets bearing his name are presented to his family.

Wednesday, Ray fulfilled that tradition, presenting her bracelet to Parker.

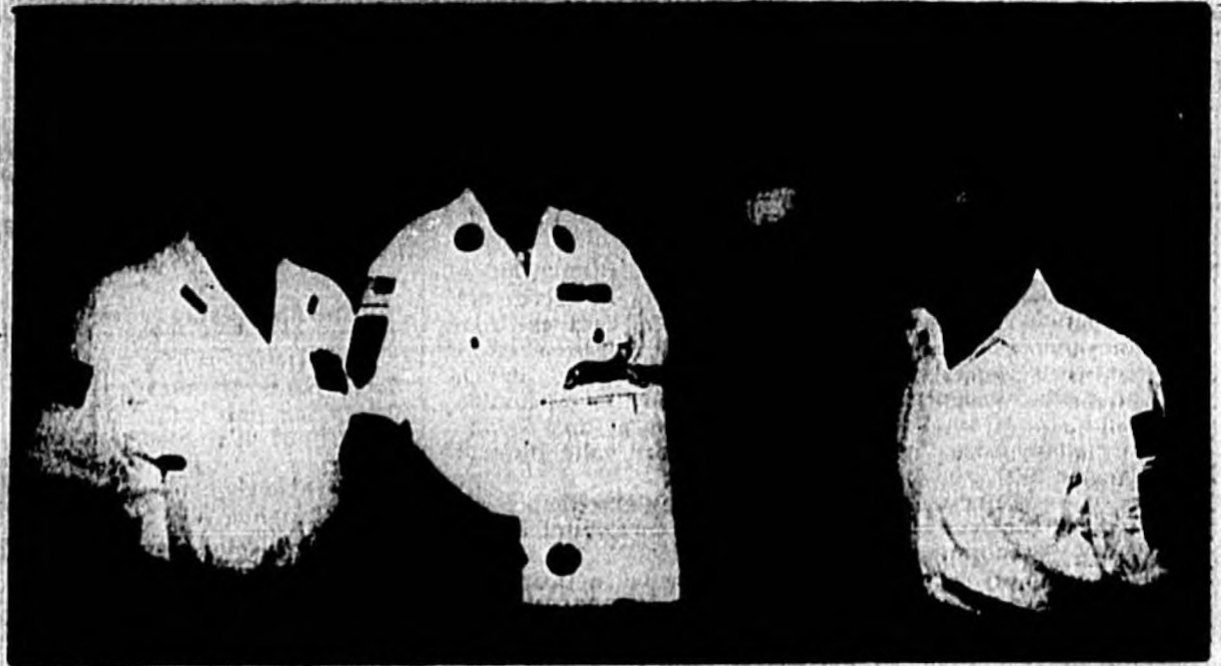

Parker shared photos of her brother with the stranger who had worn her brother's MIA bracelet for so long.

"When I look at his face, he is so familiar," Ray said. "It's like he's someone I knew all along."

The MIA bracelet, along with others, will be laid to rest with the pilot's remains on Nov. 23, at a national cemetery in Colorado Springs, Colo., near the Air Force Academy. That private service is set for 10 a.m.

Lt. Col. Widdis is survived by wife, JoAnne; two sons, Doug of the United States Air Force, and Dan of the United States Navy; and three sisters, Martha Parker of New Smyrna Beach, Elizabeth Miller of Newark, Del., and Margaret Beatty of Scottsdale, Ariz.

For service to his country and in Vietnam, Lt. Col. Widdis was awarded the Air Medal, the Distinguished Flying Cross, the National Defense Medal, the Purple Heart, the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, and the Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal.

Parade, local observance will honor all who served

By ROSEN HARRISON
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Once again, the veterans will be marching through the streets of downtown Sanford, heading for the annual Veterans' Day observance at Veterans Memorial Park, on Sanford's lakefront.

The event will begin with a parade, to form in the parking lot of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce building, 400 E. First Street. It is expected to get under way at approximately 10:40 a.m., west on First Street, then north on Park Avenue, to arrive at the lakefront at the 11th hour.

This year's program is sponsored by the Seminole County Area Veterans Advisory Council (SCAVAC). The host organization, handed on a rotational basis from year to year, will be American Legion, Campbell-Lensing Post 83 in Sanford.

Acting post Commander Frank Harrison said the participating units in the parade and ceremonies will include: Florida National Guard, Co. B 2nd Battalion (leading the parade) all local veterans organizations, their auxiliaries and color guards.

Also included in this year's observance will be the Paralyzed American Veterans of Central Florida Chapter, VFW post 8406 from Winter Springs, VFW Post 10139 from Oviedo, and VFW post 8207 from Longwood.

Firing squads will be furnished by American Legion Post 83, Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 30, Florida National Guard, Co. B 2nd Battalion, and the Seminole County Sheriff's Honor Guard.

As has been the case in the past years, with no marching band obtainable, music will be supplied by the Dixieland

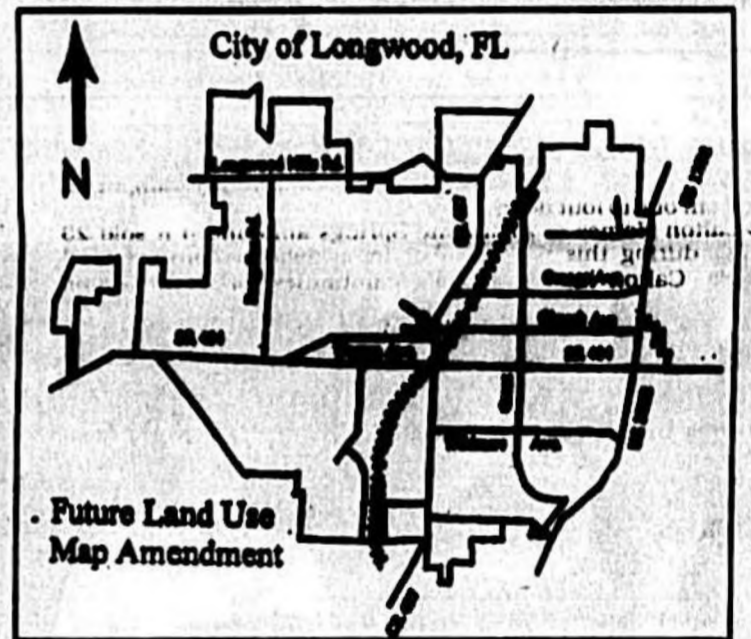

Rascals Band. Music will feature traditional music for each of the services, as well as other patriotic selections. The band will be on a flat-bed trailer to participate in the parade.

Also participating in the parade and ceremonies will be the Seminole High School Air Force JROTC, Elks Lodge 1241, Nam Knights Motorcycle Club, and the Corvettes Automobile Club.

With Carl Fairley, Commander of VFW post 8307 as Master of Ceremonies, the Veterans' Day message will be delivered by Duke Shannon, from the American Legion Department of Florida Adjutant. Awards will be presented by SCAVAC President Russ Germain.

IN BRIEF

Call home

SANFORD — Hospitals in the Columbia Central Florida Division, including Columbia Medical Center, Sanford, are giving patients upon admission a special AT&T card worth 10 minutes of free domestic long distance phone calls in an effort to make their hospital stays better.

The cards, designed by AT&T specifically for Columbia patients, can be used by either the patients or their family members any time from any phone and are valid through September 1997.

These free long distance cards are being distributed nationwide at the over 340 hospitals operated by Columbia HCA Healthcare Corporation.

The company is building comprehensive networks of healthcare services including home health, rehabilitation and skilled nursing units in local markets around the country. Gallup surveys show 94 percent of former patients were "satisfied" or "very satisfied" with the healthcare received at Columbia facilities.

Recovery Inc. meets in Sanford

Recovery Inc., a self-help mental health organization for people who suffer from panic attacks, depression, fears and general nervous symptoms, meets every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Sanford Meadows Seventh-Day Adventist Church, 5615 N. County Road 427, Sanford. Those interested are invited to attend. For information call 680-2003.

Free seminar

SANFORD — The Arthritis Foundation and the American Diabetes Association have teamed up once more to present the Arthritis and Diabetes Seminar.

Central Floridians interested in learning more about the link between arthritis and diabetes are urged to attend this free seminar.

Arthritis and Diabetes, scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 21 at the Winter Park Medical Library from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., will offer a series of lectures addressing the unique challenges faced by individuals with diabetes who also suffer from arthritis.

Featured speakers include rheumatologist Jayad Sheikh, M.D., endocrinologist Marvin C. Mengel, M.D., physical therapist Dawn Smith, P.T., and Heather Janos, P.T., from the Winter Park Memorial Hospital Physical Therapy department and a registered dietitian/nutritionist.

In addition to the lectures, attendees will have a chance to view exhibits from area diabetes and arthritis product and service companies, as well as receive information from the Arthritis Foundation and the American Diabetes Association representatives.

Light refreshments will also be served. For more information call 1-800-510-5696.

Studies show laughter can make you healthier

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — Researchers have made a discovery: A good laugh not only will banish the blues, but it's good for your health.

"If we look what we now know about laughter and stress, it would require FDA approval," said Dr. Ted Berk, a professor of pathology and laboratory medicine.

Berk, who teaches at Loma Linda University in California, told delegates at the American Association for Therapeutic Humor in Orlando on last week that a good belly laugh may boost the immune system and trigger pleasure-inducing chemicals in the brain.

Berk's research partner, Dr. Stanley Tan, an expert on laughter's effects on the nervous and endocrine systems, said humor provides a safety valve that shuts off the flow of stress hormones.

People who are typically hostile and prone to anger are more likely to suffer heart attacks and sudden death than their easy-going, jovial friends, according to recent studies at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and at Yale University.

The pioneering studies by Tan and Berk show that laughing lowers blood pressure, helps control pain, increases muscle tension and triggers a flood of endorphins, the brain's natural compounds that can induce a sense of euphoria.

The researchers said laughter's most profound effects occur on the immune system.

Natural killer cells that destroy viruses and tumors increase during a state of mirth, according to the study. Gamma interferon, a disease-fighting protein rises with laughter, as do B-cells, which produce disease-destroying antibodies and cells that orchestrate the immune response.

The immune system responds quickly to humor. Dr. Sol Klotz, an immunologist from Winter Park, told the association — a group of physicians, nurses, psychotherapists and other health-care specialists trying to inject humor into day-to-day medical care.

There's more and more interest in humor as medicine, said Dr. Edward Dunkelblau, president of the association.

Exercise reduces the risk of glaucoma

By IRA DREYFUSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — From a stationary bike in an exercise room at his neighborhood aquatics center, Dick Bocci can keep an eye on the people in the pool.

Watching the people is not important to Bocci; he simply wants to continue to see the 54-year-old McMinnville, Ore., man says regular exercise has reduced pressure inside his eye — and thus the risk that he will contract glaucoma.

There are doubters — among them, glaucoma sufferer Kirby Puckett. The disease ended his major league baseball career.

But Bocci believes in the value of exercise. "I've been doing it since 1987," he said. "I sweat a bit."

Bocci rides 30 minutes, three times a week, at a moderately strenuous 142 heartbeats a minute as part of a program set up by his doctor, Michael S. Passo, an assistant professor of ophthalmology at Oregon Health Sciences University in nearby Portland.

Passo found that regular aerobic exercise seems to reduce the elevated pressure that is associated with the vision-destroying eye condition. His research was prepared for presentation at the American Academy of Ophthalmology's annual meeting in Chicago Oct. 27-31.

Glaucoma can develop when the fluid that supplies nutrients to the interior of the eye builds up, putting higher pressure on the optic nerve.

 many, many relatives in addition to her researching genealogical records, and the following are some of their memories. I know many of us have similar memories, or have listened to those of our parents and grandparents. This will be related in three parts.

Family History

First, a little family history to explain relationships and how the family came to settle in Sanford.

Mary L. Jackson Fears' parents were Sylvester and Jewell (Moore) Jackson. Her grandparents were Horace and Mattie (Roberson) Jackson and Lucious and Irene (Ray) Moore.

Horace Jackson had four children by his first wife Augusta; when she died, he married Mattie Roberson. They had five sons, including Sylvester, who was born in 1908. Mattie died, also, so Horace took as his third wife, Mary Roberson Brown, Mattie's sister. In addition to raising Horace's children, she brought eight children of her own into the marriage. She was known to all as "Aunt Babe" and worked as a seamstress and a midwife. The family moved to Pelham, Georgia (Mitchell County), circa 1912, where Horace rented farmland and was also involved in the pulpwood industry.

Lucious Moore and Irene Ray were married May 1, 1910, in Mitchell County, Georgia. They had five children including a set of twin, Neesley and Greeley, born in 1911. Some white ladies had worried Irene to use these names they liked instead of Jewell and Julious that she had picked out. The twins changed their names to Jewell and Julious in 1934. Lucious left his family in 1920, and moved to Miami. Irene worked as a maid, picked cotton, etc. She later married Robert Durden in 1926.

Sylvester Jackson and Jewell Moore first met at Saco Baptist Church where they both attended school. They were married in 1929. Mary Louvenia Jackson was born April 3, 1930, and Doris Jackson in 1932.

Sylvester Walks to Florida

Life was hard in Pelham at the time, good jobs were hard to find. Sylvester Jackson was working in a sawmill for 50-cents a day where he heard from a co-worker there was plenty of money in Florida. Thinking that this might be his chance, in July 1934, he started out walking to Florida.

He first caught a ride on a turpentine truck from Pelham to Jacksonville where he spent a few days with George Jackson. While there, he worked as a bellhop in a hotel.

After he walked across the St. Johns River bridge, which cost a penny, he caught a ride to West Palm Beach. His first night there was spent in a wash house. The next night he slept in a pool room that stayed open all night. From there he went to Pahokee where he worked on the muck for a while.

Sylvester's next stop was Miami, where he stayed with Julious Moore, his wife's brother, for about a week. He found work cleaning a pool room and cutting down trees. From there he worked his way back to Pelham via the west coast.

On his next trip to Florida, he went to St. Petersburg and on his way home, he stopped in Sanford where he ran into Jack Brown. He found jobs cutting cord wood and also picking oranges; evidently, he thought he could make a future here. He sent for his wife and daughters. They came to Sanford on the Greyhound bus November 1934.

Jackson Family Homes

The first place in Sanford the family lived was in a rented room out 714 Hickory Avenue. They spent the next few months in a two-story house on Fourth Street next door to Mrs. Fanny Frazier.

In 1935, the Jackson family moved to 415 Cypress Avenue where they lived until 1942. They lived there again 1948-52. This is the house that the author remembers fondly as her childhood home.

In between the two times they lived on Cypress Avenue, they lived in a house on Fifth Street near Locust Avenue (behind the Church of God), and also at 903 E. Seventh Street, a house in the Caldwell Quarters.

In 1952, the family was one of the first tenants in the William Clark Court. They had an indoor toilet and bathroom for the first time.

Jewell Jackson bought a lot in 1957, on which was built the family home at 1211 W. Seventh Street. Mom, Dad and all six children helped pay for the house.

Four more children were born in Sanford. These were Christine, 1937; Jimmie Dean, 1943; Sheralyn Darnel, 1945 and Sandra, 1946.

Mary described herself as a skinny girl with braided sandy hair. She claimed her sister Doris was the pretty one with round fat cheeks and long black hair. They both had light-colored skin (called "yellow" sometimes by their darker-skinned playmates).

Doris' nickname was "Skeet", which Mary thought added something special. Her mother calling her Mayrel was the closest she came to a nickname.

415 Cypress Avenue
 The house at 415 Cypress was described as a two-family dwelling which stood on a stack of bricks high off the ground. The children enjoyed playing under it, but one time they built a fire to do some "cooking," and Mrs. Ida made them extinguish it.

Mrs. Ida Clemons lived on the other side of the house. She had three children—Hattie, Sonny and Richard. She kept an eye on the Jackson children while their mother, Jewell, worked.

Aunt Emma Lee lived across the street with children Roosevelt, Jr.; Buddy and Gladys. Grandma Irene Moore Durden, Jewell's mother, rented an upstairs apartment behind the Jacksons.

Most evenings, all of the grown-ups would gather on the Jackson's front porch. They sat in rocking chairs and talked in hushed tones. The children played on the steps. Tin cans with burning rags sat at their feet to keep away mosquitoes.

Mrs. Fears describes their home in great detail; one can tell that she has many happy memories there.

Quality Management program, which affects all city employees except fire and police personnel.

Of the controversial economic incentive program the city is participating in, Rockett said he disagrees with the major contention that the program is not benefiting small businesses in the community. "In my opinion, we are doing something for small companies," he said citing the "trickle down" effect created when large corporations move into an area. Small businesses benefit in the increased demand for services by new employees and higher retail traffic.

Rockett also said that with limited commercial space left within the city limits, it was in the city's best interest to get "more bang for your bucks" by attracting larger corporations.

The potential of "build out" of revenue-generating property in the city is the number one challenge facing city commissioners for the balance of the century.

The city is running out of undeveloped land and there is virtually no large residential space remaining. What does remain would be best utilized by industrial/commercial development. Once this land is gone, the city can expect no increase in revenue unless there is a tax increase. The best option for the leaders of the city government is to consider annexation of existing corporate center just outside of the city limits. Rockett said the city is already essentially serving these areas to a certain degree without much of an impact to existing city personnel.

"If this city is not successful with annexation in the next few years," said Rockett, "the commission will be faced with raising taxes or cutting services."

Rockett said the city must "play salesman and make a pitch" to the owners of businesses in shopping centers such as Lake Mary Centre (Albertsons) and Lake Mary Village (Publix), convincing them that coming into the city is an attractive proposition.

The second most important challenge of the commission is that of stormwater abatement. Rockett said the implementation of a basin management is the only other city-related project he would continue to be involved in.

The environmental engineer said that the citizens of Lake Mary were not going to be happy with the "middle of the road compromise" that will be the solution to the city's high water woes.

The parameters established for development of the communities most effected by the high water in the Crystal Lake Basin where set based on the normal high water levels as of the 1960s. "Mother Nature has shown that a mistake was made," Rockett said of the increased rainfall amounts of this decade.

Water levels in the basin currently stand at 43 feet above sea level. Rockett said the best anyone could hope for in the future is 41 1/2 feet and not the 40 foot level that existed when Timacuan and Crystal Ridge were built.

"There is no black and white solution," said Rockett. He added that a tri-party agreement is near completion, with the county and the St. Johns River Water Management District, but it will be two years before any relief can be expected.

Four years ago, the name of Lowry Rockett was unknown but to a hand full of people who had dealings with the city's planning and zoning department. Rockett feels that with the growth of the city, there are quite a few who still don't know who he is, or who the current city commissioners are. He might not be remembered for his accomplishments and his quiet and efficient years in office. That's all right, Rockett said. (Staff writer Joe Bertalio contributed to this story.)

Pilots mark 75th anniversary Club reviews adult education at SCC

In celebrating 75 years of Pilot International, local members Doris Stein, Marian Rethwill and Ruth Gaines joined 670 other Pilots at a luncheon in Macon, Ga. on Oct. 18.

That date was the anniversary of the first and chartering meeting and the luncheon was held to honor the club's accomplishments. Special speaker was the International Director of Para-Olympics, which was held in Atlanta following the Olympics. Members toured the 1884 Mansion in Macon, and a tea at the Rogers house hosted by the Pilot Club of Macon.

Sanford Pilots shared the founder's day and anniversary celebration with the five Pilot

Clubs of Volusia County on Oct. 22, at the Palmetto Club in Daytona Beach. Annually, the Sanford Club and Orlando/Winter Park Club celebrate Founder's Day together. Following that tradition, local members were hosted by Orlando/Winter Park at Orlando Lutheran Towers on Oct. 29. The special guest was International President Joanne Horton of Alabama, who was in Orlando to receive awards for Pilot from the National Safety Council at a convention at the Orange County Civic Center.

Pilot's 75 years of history has been published in a book entitled "True Course Ever" which is also the motto. The name was chosen for this service club because...

In 1953 to emphasize Pilot's commitment to Youth, Anchor Club was established at the high school level, a volunteer service organization for young people. The International Foundation was established in 1975 to support Pilot's humanitarian efforts through charitable, educational and scientific research programs.

Its purpose is to improve the lives of people affected by brain-related disorders through grants and scholarships. As an additional phase of the 75th celebration, Sanford Pilot conducted a membership drive Oct. 29 at the Seminole County RSVF building. Communications were sent to local businesses and additional membership activities are planned. Increasing membership is a goal of the 75th Anniversary Year in this community service organization for business and professional leaders.

which to be thankful right down to the catered turkey luncheon with all the trimmings. Betty Halback, the club's education department chairman, introduced guest speaker, Harriet Little, coordinator of the GED and Adult Basic Education at Seminole Community College. Harriet also carries the title of a fifth generation Floridian. She praised Dr. Earl Weldon, charter president of SCC for his unparalleled success in bringing the college from an orange grove to a highly professional and technical institution. Harriet also recommended Dr. E. Ann McGee for bringing new energy to the college as the 21st century emerges. The speaker noted that 25 percent of the students at SCC attend the Adult High School there. She also informed the members that according to the 1980 United States Census, 9,000 adults in Seminole County reported that they had an eighth grade education or less. With the influx of new residents in the county, Harriet said that although some of these people are highly educated, while many are not, they need tutoring help with English as well as other subjects. The SCC Learning Partners volunteer program assists adult learners in improving their skills. Tutors work one-to-one with these adult students to build basic skills. Volunteers are needed for this worthwhile program. They need to be a high school graduate and comfortable with their own reading, language and basic math skills. Prior teaching experience is helpful but not necessary. Those interested in becoming tutors for this program may call 330-8317 for information.

which to be thankful right down to the catered turkey luncheon with all the trimmings. Betty Halback, the club's education department chairman, introduced guest speaker, Harriet Little, coordinator of the GED and Adult Basic Education at Seminole Community College. Harriet also carries the title of a fifth generation Floridian. She praised Dr. Earl Weldon, charter president of SCC for his unparalleled success in bringing the college from an orange grove to a highly professional and technical institution. Harriet also recommended Dr. E. Ann McGee for bringing new energy to the college as the 21st century emerges. The speaker noted that 25 percent of the students at SCC attend the Adult High School there. She also informed the members that according to the 1980 United States Census, 9,000 adults in Seminole County reported that they had an eighth grade education or less. With the influx of new residents in the county, Harriet said that although some of these people are highly educated, while many are not, they need tutoring help with English as well as other subjects. The SCC Learning Partners volunteer program assists adult learners in improving their skills. Tutors work one-to-one with these adult students to build basic skills. Volunteers are needed for this worthwhile program. They need to be a high school graduate and comfortable with their own reading, language and basic math skills. Prior teaching experience is helpful but not necessary. Those interested in becoming tutors for this program may call 330-8317 for information.

Tutors are required to attend a 9-hour instructional program and ongoing workshops. At the conclusion of her informative address, Harriet was presented a certification by President Ruth Gaines.

The president conducted the business meeting and heard routine reports. She announced that she attended several recent out-of-town meetings including the District VII Fall Tour of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs. Ruth also visited longtime club member Elizabeth Huff at the Deltona HealthCare Center where she celebrated her 88th birthday. Ruth presented her with a "Celebrate Women" certificate and said, "She was slated"

It was with great sadness that Betty Steffens reported the death of Joan Edwards, a Junior Woman's Club member and wife of Dr. Chip Edwards, Sanford dentist. Joan, 43, has been ill for several years with a brain tumor. She was active in the Sanford community, and she will be mourned by all who knew her. She leaves three sons and a daughter.

ENGAGEMENTS

McClendon-Cohen

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Jones of Miami, are announcing the forthcoming marriage of their niece, Sandra Denise McClendon, to Jacob Cohen, son of Mrs. Helen Adams of Sanford and Cliff Cohen of Newark, N.J.

The bride-elect, a 1978 graduate of Seminole High School and completed the Central Florida Police Academy, Orlando, formerly the J.C. Stone Police Academy. She worked as a police officer for 15 years and is currently employed as director of education and community outreach at Highlands Presbyterian Church, Daytona Beach.

Her fiancé, a 1971 graduate of Seminole High School, attended Seminole Community College and is currently employed by the Sanford Police Department where he serves as a school resource officer at Lakeview Middle School.

Jacob Cohen and Sandra D. McClendon

The church wedding will be an event of Jan. 4 in Orlando. The couple's daughter, Yolanda, will serve as maid of honor. The newlyweds will honeymoon in the Smokie Mountains at Gatlinburg, Tenn.

Bistline-Riordan

Carolyn and Fred Bistline of Longwood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Marie, to Keith Edward Riordan of Longwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bart Riordan of Summerville, N.J.

Born in Orlando, the bride-elect is a 1983 graduate of Lyman High School, Longwood, and graduated from Florida Southern College at Lakeland in 1967. She is employed as office manager for a medical facility.

Born in Summerville, N.J., Riordan is a graduate of Hillsborough High School in New Jersey. He is employed as an auto body technician.

The wedding will be an event of March 8, 1997, at St. Marks Church, Altamonte Springs.

Guys need to know how to just say no as well as girls

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your letters on how to say no to sex, and have been cutting them out to share in a few years with my daughter. They've become great one-liners and comebacks to use as needed. However, they were primarily addressed to women.

Also urgently needed by young men and teen-age boys is an arsenal of comebacks to counter the usual locker room banter of, "Did you score last night?" or, "You mean you've never gone to bed with a girl?"

Peer pressure for young males today is greater than ever. Please ask your readers to provide my son with some verbal ammunition to approach and finesse this pressure with a sense of humor — and his dignity intact.

MOTHER OF A PRE-ADOLESCENT

DEAR MOTHER: Tell your son that because a classmate claims to have sexual experience doesn't necessarily mean he has. It is not unusual for a boy to be unsure.

One way to handle the question, "Did you score last night?" might be to respond, "I didn't score last night because I didn't 'play' last night. But if I had — I wouldn't talk about it."

You are not the only reader who voiced concern about sexual pressure on teen-age males. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I appreciated the letters you printed from people about how to say no to sex. I work with a teen pregnancy prevention program as a certified Family Life Educator and I often assign your column to the group for discussion and ideas. Teens appreciate your "real" approaches to their issues.

Please ask for letters from guys on how to say "no." Guys are the other half of the problem when it comes to unwanted teen pregnancy, and they need support and role models in order to behave responsibly. There are advantages for both sexes in having the courage and confidence to behave responsibly when it comes to sex.

Think of the positive feedback that might be generated from a column with the head, "How Macho Guys Say 'No' to Sex."

BETTE SCHLOSSER, R.N., B.S.N., MARSHFIELD, WIS.

DEAR MR. SCHLOSSER AND ALL OF THE READERS WHO WROTE TO ECHO SIMILAR SENTIMENTS: I would be pleased to hear what young men have to say on this important subject.

DEAR ABBY: I am disturbed that the responses to your "just say no to sex" column were exclusively from women. To me, this one-sided representation serves to reinforce the double standard.

When are young men going to take responsibility for their own sexual behavior? Why are young women still burdened with the sole responsibility of decision-making when it comes to sex? And finally, why are we not hearing from teen-age males who are virgins?

Abby, young men need to be taught to respect women regardless of their virginity status. Young people in general need to hear that there is only one "first time." When young people feel self-worth and self-respect, they in turn respect and value others, which helps them make responsible choices.

If you have not already asked young men to share their views, I suggest you do.

KATHY KIRK-MALTERS, M.S.W., BRAINERD, MINN.

DEAR MR. KIRK-MALTERS: The original question posed to my readers was "how do you just say no?"

I asked both sexes to respond, commenting that people of all ages (and both sexes) also struggle with this dilemma. The responses came almost exclusively from women and girls, offering advice only for girls.

The clerk gave me a gift card on which was written the pattern and quantity of the wineglasses. Due to the festivities that preceded the wedding, I kept forgetting to call the store to place my order. However, I did put the card in a box and wrapped it, so my friends would know they were getting the wineglasses.

Abby, I still haven't placed the order. A few months after the wedding, my friend asked me about them, and I told her it would take several more weeks. Since then, neither of us has mentioned it.

Abby, at the time of the wedding, my husband and I could afford the glasses, but now the price has gone up. I'm a full-time homemaker raising our son, and money is tight.

This is very embarrassing. What should I do to save face? Come forward and confess my negligence, or forget about it?

WEDDING GIFT WOES

DEAR WOE: Confess. Since you haven't forgotten about the gift you promised, your friend probably hasn't either. If she's a good friend, she will understand. When she celebrates her fifth wedding anniversary, present her with the glasses. I suggest you start saving now.

Hobbyist of the Week

Others blessed through her talents

By SARAH WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Lou Lawrence readily admits that her hobbies stem from a desire to serve God and others. She creates beautiful ceramics, afgans and gifts to enjoy in her home but as a whole to share with those around her.

A 10-year DeBary resident, this generous little lady shies from a lot of attention but charitably gives of her time and talents. Although suffering from some health problems that caused her to need a pacemaker, she has slowed a bit but still finds a way to give of herself through crochet and simply, as Lawrence put it, "in prayer."

She is a former member of the Pine Hills Church of God where she graciously crafted hundreds of ceramic clowns for the bus program. Youth workers and bus riders alike had keepsakes of her love and concern to admire daily.

All at her own expense, now into the thousands, of ceramic treasures have been given to young and old. "I like to make something for all of the pastors' wives," she said. "I learned how to make ceramics in 1978. I went to a class so they could teach me."

Lawrence added, "I used to pour my own molds. I didn't have a kiln so I went to the shop to fire the pieces or to a friend's house."

Ceramic items of a small Bible. The Last Supper, Jesus praying in the Garden of Gethsemane, clown name plates, napkin rings and many more decorate the coffee table of Lawrence. She shared that the hobby gives her "so much joy to share it with others."

She further elaborated, "I always make up a piece, whether it's crochet or ceramics with someone in mind. I'd always be careful to note what they liked."

Crochet afgans have been another hit among her family and friends. "I make afgans for ladies that are expecting babies. I try to find out what color they want in advance."

Afgans of lavender, pastel of green, pink and blue all share a pattern of hearts. "I make the afgans more the size of a blanket than a lap size," she said. "I used to watch my grandmother crochet and she tried to teach me. I watched my mother-in-law too. I finally bought a how-to book on crocheting and taught myself. I do need directions and I have a lot of crochet books."

Lawrence mentioned that she previously purchased a subscription to "Workbasket" magazine to get additional ideas for crochet projects. "I did get a lot of ideas from that magazine," she said. "At first I used fine thread to make dollies and tablecloths but now I only use yarn."

Cutting kitchen towels in half,

Lawrence adds a triangular type top of crochet with a button. One can fold the crochet area around the handle of the stove or refrigerator and instantly have a towel whenever necessary.

Bewig the clothes for her six children also occupied much of her time. Occasionally she would "whip up" an outfit for herself.

When Lawrence is not creating for others she is known at her church, Sanford Church of God, as the woman most involved in Bible study and prayer for others. She admits that her daily routine includes an early rise with much time devoted to reading long passages in the Bible. "My faith gives me constant comfort and happiness," she said. "I love to find out people that needs prayer and remember them. It's always nice to make them something too."

Members of her church also comment about her strong commitment to the youth of the congregation. When students are away at college she lifts each and every name to God in prayer as often as possible. She has become a close confidante to many of them through her care and the gift of her time and talents.

Lawrence concluded by saying, "I get so much fulfillment from the crochet work that I do. I always wanted to make ceramics because I thought they were so beautiful. Now it's even more fulfilling to make something and share it with other people."

She is the mother of six children, Dale, Jean, Jim, Ray, Lois and Henrietta. She has 14 grandchildren, 25 great grandchildren and seven great-great grandchildren.

CIA entertains at Halloween party

LAKE MARY

MARY ROWELL

The Lake Mary Community Improvement Association held its first annual children's Halloween party on Halloween night. Prior to the party, the CIA sent out flyers to all the children at Lake Mary Elementary School inviting them to attend.

The party began at 7:30 p.m. with the fun costume contest. There were five categories. The under 2 year-olds, the 2 to 3 year-olds, the 4 to 6 year-olds, the 7 to 9 year-olds and the 10 to 12 year-olds. There were strawberries, princesses, animals, pirates and more. It was a very difficult job deciding on the winners because there were so many creative costumes. All of the contestants received a participation ribbon.

After the contest, the children enjoyed food, games and bobbing for apples. For the bravest in the crowd, there was a chance to walk through the science lab of Dr. Victoria Frankenstein. A descendant of Dr. Victor Frankenstein, the Dr. insisted she and her lab assistants were all relatively sane, although she and the ghouls, that is girls, who were her assistants didn't really look it.

Children, ages 4 to 8, lining up for costume contest at the Halloween party are (from left): Adamowicz, Bobby Adamowicz, Lucas Stevens, Sara Stevens, Conner Poole, Shareika Morgan and Thomas Han.

Due to patents and copyrights, Dr. Frankenstein and her assistants insisted all lab visitors be blindfolded. Once they were, the visitors were led through the lab and allowed to feel the various body parts that are used by the lab. There were fingers, intestines, eyeballs, liver and worms (The intestines bore a remarkable resemblance to spaghetti.) The lab was designed by Girl Scout Cadette Troop 148.

Children leaving the party were given a bag of candy and a toothbrush and tooth-paste. The candy, gifts, decorations and food were provided by the CIA, the Country Club Flower Shop, Lake Mary Florist, Publix in Lake Mary, and several local dentists.

From Toastmaster to Miss America

Being a toastmaster can teach you poise, enunciation and how to speak with confidence to an audience. It can lead to bigger and better things. Just ask the newest Miss America, Tara Dawn Holland, a former resident of Lake Mary, was a member of the Night Owls Toastmasters Club.

Toastmasters President Rosella Bonham said, "We were very sorry, in our club to lose her to Kansas, but all's well that ends well."

If you're interested in becoming a member of Toastmasters, just stop by any meeting. The Night Owls Toastmasters Chapter meets every Tuesday, except the second Tuesday of the month, at 7:30 p.m. at the Frank Evans Center. For more information, you can call Rosella Bonham at 323-8284.

Public invited to hearing clinic

The Lake Mary Seniors will host a free Hearing Clinic on Tuesday, Nov. 12, from 9:00 a.m. to noon, at the Frank Evans Center. Jim Graham with Quality Hearing will be there with an audiograph. An audiograph is a machine that lets you see what the inside of your ears look like. Jim can also test your hearing. This clinic is free and open to the public.

The next meeting of the AARP will be held Tuesday, Nov. 19 at 1:00 p.m. at the Frank Evans Center. Elaine Conney, a medication education specialist from Columbia Home Health Care, will be the guest speaker. Elaine will teach AARP members how to incorporate more exercise in their lives with chair exercises and other low impact exercises.

Don't forget about the 55th Annual AARP Christmas dinner. The dinner is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 17 at the Galleria in Lake Mary. For $14, which includes tax and gratuities, you get your choice of Chicken Francese, Veal Marsala, or Broiled Fish. You also get rolls, salad, tea or Nancy Frye, chairman of the home life department, announced the club will ring bells for the Salvation Army during the holiday season. Shirley Mills reported on the Golden Age Games held in Sanford this past week. The club hosted the bridge tournament Friday.

Forthcoming club events include: the Monthly Bridge at the home of Frances Webster Nov. 13, and the Epilon Sigma Omicron reading society will meet at the home of Charlotte Knowles on Nov. 20 with Kathy Krasnoff speaking on Ireland.

Kathy Krasnoff, senior sponsor of the Sanford Junior Woman's Club, announced the juniors will hold a membership drive on Nov. 21. She also said the juniors are planning a "reunion" of all club members dating back to 1970. Members are needed as well as former members.

If you know of someone who might like to be a junior or have information on former members, please call Kathy at 321-5556.

The president presented her monthly "Celebrate Women" award to Karen Richardson for serving as the club's chairman in the recent Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts. A scholarship in the club's name will be presented to a deserving student for the club's participation.

Honorees were: Emy Sokol, chairman; Polly Pezold, Edith McNeill, Barbara Moore, Gail Stewart and Mary Tillis.

Golden Age Games, then and now

Thomas (Hoppe) Hopkins, right, and his wife, Wilma, reminisce at this year's Golden Age Games

Champion athlete remembers when

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The youngsters in the 22nd annual Golden Age Games should be most grateful they no longer have to reckon with the likes of Sanford SuperduperMan. Thomas "Hoppe" Hopkins was the Games' first overall champ, but was no match in 1976 when Hopkins arrived on the scene.

What made this triumph in 1976 all the more impressive is that nine months earlier Hoppe Hopkins suffered a severe heart attack, causing him to relinquish his truck driving job. He was 65-years-old YET very much alive and kicking.

Twenty years later, Hopkins fondly recalls his golden games of yesteryear.

"I missed the initial Golden Age Games," he said while he and his wife, Wilma, watched this year's fiercely competed basketball events at the Salvation Army Gymnasium. "I didn't even know about the first Games," Hopkins said. "I was off deer hunting at the time."

A man named Herbert Herbst was the Games' first overall champ, but was no match in 1976 when Hopkins arrived on the scene.

This was evident from the first day, when Hopkins won the eight-ball billiards championship.

As if his opponents needed another reminder of his skills, The Sanford Herald stripped his name across a sports page of its Nov. 11, 1976 edition. Hoppe Hopkins was the man of the hour.

The 1976 edition of the Sanford Herald in which Hoppe Hopkins was named Men's Overall Champion in the second Golden Age Games

He would win the Overall title with a seventh gold medal in the final event - angling fly casting.

In between the billiards and fly casting, Hopkins threw a football a longer distance than anyone else, threw the discus farther, a softball farther. Whatever the endeavor, Hoppe Hopkins could not be beaten.

Competing for the next 14 years, Hopkins would win gold medals in 12 different events - believed to be a record. He was still active until two years ago, winning a number of medals in the 80-84 age range.

He still enjoys pitching horseshoes and playing shuffleboard.

Born one beautiful morning in Mountain View, Okla., Hopkins grew up in Colorado and Indiana. He was 40, he said, before he really began to play basketball in Hoosier country.

Years ago the basketball competition in the Golden Age Games included a one-on-one game event. Hopkins won a gold for this and said the other day that he wished the one-on-one was still part of the agenda. "This was the kind of thing that separated the men from the boys," he said.

Watching a man in his sixties find all net on 30 consecutive free throws and another make 25 of 30 overjoyed Hopkins, who wondered aloud how a certain millionaire who plays in L.A. can't improve on his percentage of free throwing.

Mostly though as he watched the men shooting baskets at the Salvation Army Gym, Hoppe Hopkins' keen eyes danced with the joy of the event.

Perhaps, he pictured himself on the court once more - silently calling out, "Move over boys, Hoppe's back!"

Soft-shoe shuffle

It takes skill, timing, and practice. Here are some of the people who had all of these traits. Left, age group 75 to 79 gold medal shuffleboard winners, Betty and William Manganello of Deltona. Right, Pete Walker and Pete Marana, winners of the silver medal. Tom Pritchard, not pictured, is also listed in the winning results.

Seminole High Homecoming '96

After the Seminole High School Homecoming King and Queen, Shawn Eason and Alicia Wells, were crowned (top photo) on Friday evening, the celebration moved to the Sanford Civic Center where a good time was had by all. Unique, chic and freak was the order of the evening's attire, but everyone who attended the Homecoming dance partied, danced and had a blast strutting their stuff. Brandy Brantley, Leigh Long and Nicole Martin (center photo, left to right) have their own sense of style. Robert Garcia, a bit more adventurous, included some leaps of faith in his dancing moves, diving from the stage and counting on his friends to catch him.

Sanford hoop meeting/clinic
SANFORD The Sanford Recreation Department will host a mandatory coaches meeting/clinic at Sanford Middle School tomorrow, November 11 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.
Anyone interested in attending the clinic (either returning coaches or persons wanting to coach) must call Jim at 330-6697 prior to the meeting/clinic.

AROUND THE STATE

Penguins 5, Lightning 5
TAMPA Shawn Burr's rebound goal with 43.2 seconds left lifted the Tampa Bay Lightning to a 5-5 tie with the Pittsburgh Penguins.
Burr scored seven seconds after Lightning goaltender Derek Wilkinson had been pulled for an MMA attack.
Tampa Bay's Duncanson and Pittsburgh's Jayson Liger, who share the NHL goal scoring lead with 13, had put on an offensive clinic prior to Burr's game-tying goal.
Liger already recorded his 10th career hat-trick while Burr scored twice. The Penguins' right wing increased his consecutive goal scoring streak to six games. He has also scored a point in nine consecutive games.

Pupa to have surgery
TAMPA Tampa Bay goaltender Dutch Pupa will undergo surgery Monday in Los Angeles to repair a torn ACL.
Pupa, who has played in just one game this season, opted to have surgery performed after consulting with a back specialist. No timetable has been set for the goalie's return, but he is expected to play again this season.

ELSEWHERE

Magic 86, Nets 82
ORLANDO With Howard's stellar display of work, the Magic scored 29 points in the fourth quarter to overcome New Jersey Nets.
Orlando swept the two-game series at the Roker Dome in front of 18,000 fans.
Robert Horry scored 13 points and contributed a couple of key assists in the fourth quarter as the Nets' rally earned the game, although after trailing by as many as 13 early in the final period. They outscored the Magic 29-20 in the fourth quarter but fell just short.
Howard finished with 18 points and 11 rebounds, Orlando, while Peck's 13 points led New Jersey. Jayson Williams had 12 points and 18 rebounds, and Kendall Gill had 11 points.

Bochy NL manager
NEW YORK Bruce Bochy, who guided the San Diego Padres to their first division title in 12 years, won the NL Manager of the Year.
Bochy, at 41, the youngest active manager in the major leagues, finished with 76 points, two more than Felipe Alou of the Montreal Expos and seven more than Tony La Russa of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Reds resign Harris
NEW YORK Lenny Harris agreed Friday to a $1.675 million, two-year contract with the Cincinnati Reds, and Pat Borders and Ozzie Smith filed for free agency.
The Cincinnati Reds' prevented catcher Jeff Reed from filing by exercising his option.
Smith, who has announced his retirement, filed as a technician to preserve his rights in case he changes his mind.

Final Four bound

Lake Mary girls win Regional

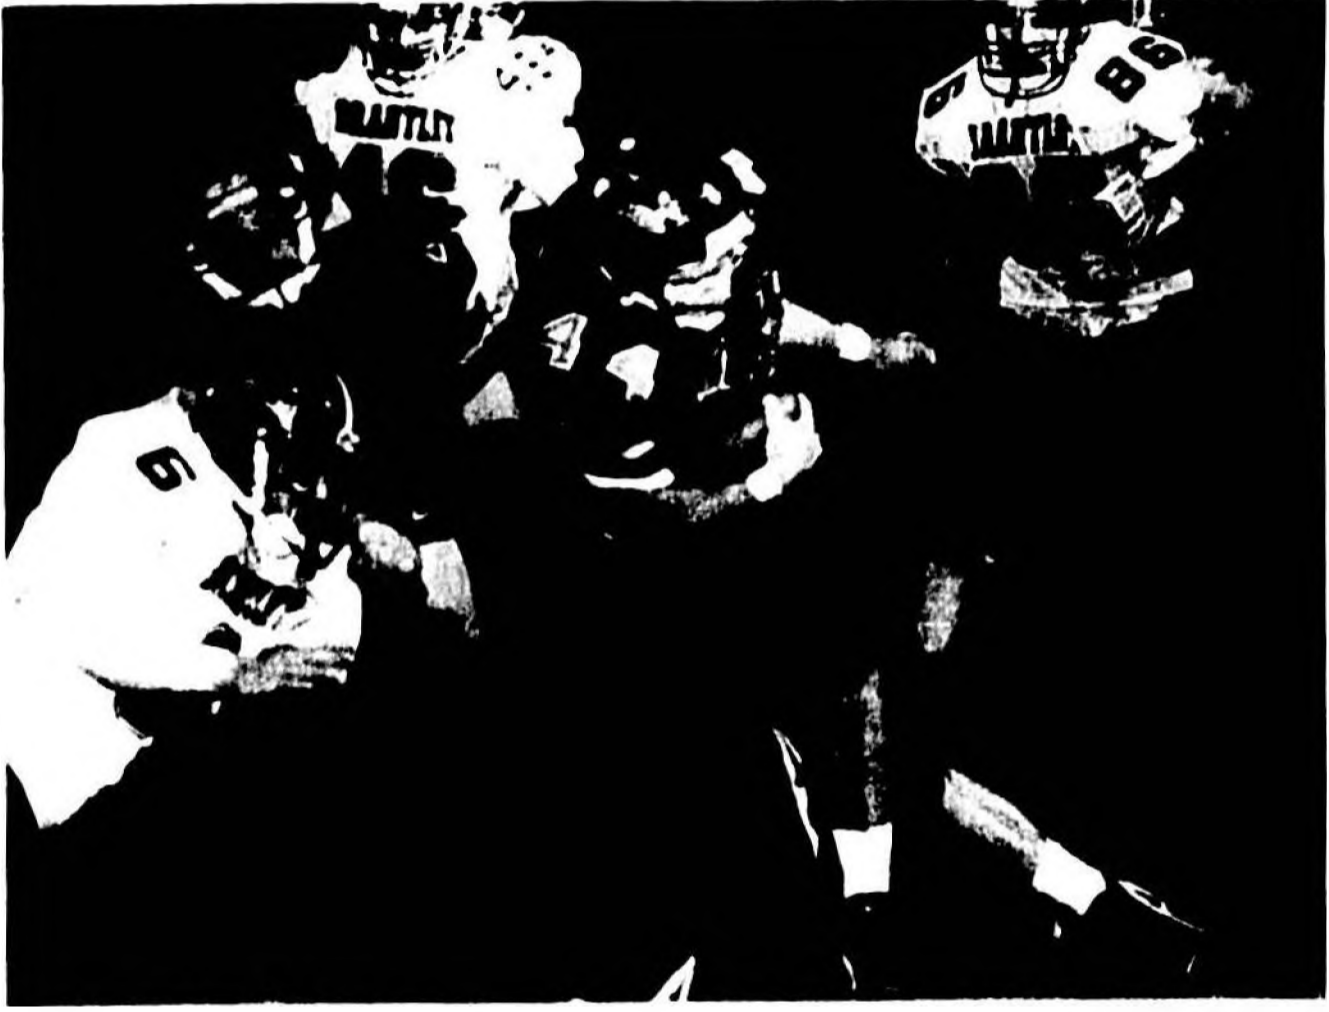

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer
ORLANDO A few short weeks ago, the Lake Mary girls volleyball team was fighting for survival.
The Final Four was merely a dream, a far-distant, always-powdery Rams struggled to simply get by with a winning record.
Friday night, the Lake Mary girls volleyball team stepped out of a possibly losing season and suddenly the state Final Four was no longer a dream but a reality.
We were kicked around most of the beginning of the season," Lake Mary coach Candy Henn said. "We were depressed and frustrated because we fell below .500 a few times. Having a coach who helped me through... We played very poorly at the state tournament in Lakeland but we played good teams. We knew the outcome would be tough to win."
Henn was quoted as saying, "I'm proud of the girls and the staff."
The Rams received National Regional opponent #10 Longwood, who plays at Wake Forest. The Rams defeated Longwood 3-0 in the first round. Lake Mary defeated the 30th-ranked #14 Florida Tech in the second round. The Rams played an overtime match, a point was lost, and their setter, more into a short set and pulled together.
In the final round, the Rams defeated Orange Park 1-0. The Rams put up a fight in the

Oviedo rumbles past DeLand

By TONY DESORMIER

OVIDIO Yes, it was the Lions' homecoming game and yes, they won by two touchdowns, but Oviedo High School football coach Jack Blanton was concerned after his team's 29-14 win over DeLand Friday at John Courter Field.
The reasons for his concern were threefold: turnovers, penalties, and repeats.

While the Lions' offense was in control of their first seven possessions, they tumbled the ball away on three occasions at the DeLand 15-yard line and once at their own 25-yard line.
The Lions had another situation where they led first and goal from the DeLand 15-yard line. Several persons' balls later the Lions were faced with fourth-and-goal from their own 15-yard line and had to

Blue Darters spoil Silver Hawks' final home game

By RYAN ANDERSON
Herald Correspondent
WINTER PARK - On paper, Friday night's game between the Lake Howell Silver Hawks and The Apopka Blue Darters at Richard L. Evans Field was a textbook must-win game for the home team.
It was Senior Appreciation Night. It was the last home game of the year.
The Silver Hawks had a 7-1 record going into the game. The only loss coming two weeks ago in overtime against Lake Brantley.
On paper all the pieces for a Lake Howell victory were there. In reality, the Silver Hawks forgot to show their plans to Apopka, as the Blue Darters thwarted Lake Howell's dreams of finishing the season undefeated at home, crumbling the Silver Hawks hopes like paper in a 21-14 loss.

Following a pregame ceremony honoring the senior members of the Silver Hawks, Lake Howell earned the momentum and put together a 69-yard scoring drive on their first possession. The key play came on the ninth play of the drive when senior Lucious Cooper rumbled 31 yards into the end zone. Victor Nespor added the extra point giving the Silver Hawks a 7-0 lead with 7:25 left in the first quarter.
The Blue Darters answered with a score of their own late in the first quarter to tie the game with a little over a minute left in the period.
Following the score, the Apopka defense gained momentum and held Lake Howell to just 38 yards of offense on their next three possessions.
The momentum came to a halt in the See Hawks, Page 2B team was ousted by the George Jenkins High School Eagles 15-13, 15-4 in the Class 6A-North 1 Regional semifinals at George Jenkins High School Friday night.

In addition to the volleyball team, the Tribe has also seen both its boys and girls basketball teams and the baseball team eliminated in the regional round by a Polk County squad.

"It was disappointing," said Seminole High School head coach Beth Corn. "We played hard. I'm just sorry it had to end like this. We had six seniors on the team and I think three can play Division I volleyball. It was a wonderful season. I've got no complaints."

The Eagles, the No. 1 ranked team in Class 6A, later earned a spot in the state tournament down the road at the Lakeland Civic Center by crushing Crestview, 15-8, 15-3. Crestview had earned a spot in the finals by eliminating Citrus 15-11, 15-7.

"The girls played a great first game," said Seminole High School assistant athletic Director Mike Powers. "But George Jenkins had a very strong team. I would not be surprised to see them win state."

PATRIOTS FALL IN FINALS

TARPOON SPRINGS — The Lake Brantley Patriots, the runners-up in Class 6A-District 4, just missed making the state playoffs as they fell in the Class 6A-North Region II finals 15-8, 15-5 to Edgewater at East Lake High School.

Lake Brantley, under head coach Stan Cutler, had earned the right to meet the Eagles by eliminating Newville 17-15, 15-13 in the semifinals. Edgewater, ranked No. 4 in the Class 6A state poll, advanced by beating host East Lake 15-8, 15-4.

second game of the semis. Service points were hard to come by early, but the Rams quickly got their groove.

Lake Mary would give up the lead only once, but Orange Park followed them like a shadow, trailing by just one point most of the game. The Raiders halted their scoring at 10, allowing Lake Mary to surpass them to a 15-10 win to enter the finals.

The Cypress Creek Bears would not go home as easily. They reached the finals by winning a three-game slugfest just moments before playing a Lake Mary team that had several hours to savor their victory. The difference between the teams was obvious. The Rams came in relaxed, with the look of a champion while the Bears came in ready to fight for their playoff lives.

That was exactly what Lake Mary needed.

Cypress Creek clawed their way to a 6-1 lead in the opening of the first game, leaving Lake Mary to battle their way back to a 7-7 tie.

The Bears would not score again, thanks in part to Jackie Crispell's relentless domination of the back line. She safeguarded the back of the court like the border patrol, allowing no foreign object to pass by. The Rams would close this one 15-7.

This only angered the Bears, who refused to be dismissed like school children. They now begin attacking the net, only to find Debbie Duber.

"I guess I've always been pretty good at the net," Duber commented. "But I think I did real well tonight."

Crispell's defense of the back was made a little easier by Duber, because nothing got that far. Duber was all over the net. When she wasn't stuffing balls onto the opponents court, she was tapping them over for the win. The Bears hung tight for over half the game, but finally conceded, 15-9.

"It's taken a little bit of luck and a lot of talent to get here," Henry said after the win. "I'm excited for me and I'm excited for them. I have never been to the Final Four as a coach."

The Rams have never been there either. They will enjoy their first attempt at a state title on either Wednesday or Thursday in Lakeland.

Are they nervous or excited? "We'll have time to be nervous later," Duber said. "Right now we're just too excited."

Eason, wide receiver Tracie Bass and wide receiver Doug Hughes remained on the playing field as part of the homecoming court.

"Imagine that, three of my best kids didn't hear or see what we planned to do," McPherson said.

No problem.

Even though Merritt Island, which earned a spot in the state playoffs with the win, went ahead, 21-0, and he had to fight the pain from a wretched right ankle, "King" Eason suddenly found the magic touch as he completed a couple of picture-perfect passes that produced an 80-yard scoring drive on seven plays.

The first was a 45-yard connection with Bass down the left sideline. The second was a 20-yard touchdown lob to Ned Raines.

"Both Tracie and Ned ran away from their coverage," Eason said. "All I had to do is put the ball up in the air. I wish there could have been more. There should have been but there just wasn't."

Merritt Island (8-1) simply refused to pay homage to the new king nor his compatriots, adding two more scores and holding off all other efforts by the Seminoles.

The Mustangs, eager to prove themselves in the state playoffs, received a superhuman effort from senior quarterback Peter Irby, who rushed for 140 yards and scored three touchdowns - his second consecutive three-TD game.

Irby also completed eight passes - seven of them to end Dan

Chamberlain.

Irby had one 64-yard run and scored from four, eight and four yards again. Running back Tony Gamble had a pair of touchdown runs.

"They've got a terrific team," Seminole Coach McPherson said of Merritt Island. "They proved that tonight, and I believe they will do extremely well in the playoffs. Their quarterback is a fine player. He beat us badly. We never seemed to be ready for him. He's fake a run and pass. He'd fake the pass and run."

McPherson, disappointed but unbowed with Sanford's 3-7 record, said he looked forward to the season finale this coming Friday against Lake Mary High (at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium starting at 7:30 p.m.).

Shawn Eason, Homecoming King, said he looks forward to matching up with the Rams.

are 3-6 overall, they're 3-1 in 6A-District 3 and have earned the right to play the 6A-District 4 champ on Friday, Nov. 23.

"If they come back here and play us again in two weeks, it'll be a war," Blanton said. "They're a good football team."

What stands in the way of a rematch between Oviedo and DeLand is the Lions' regular season finale next Friday against Lake Howell.

Oviedo (8-1, 3-0 in the district) can win the district title outright with a win. A Lake Howell victory would create a three-way tie between Oviedo, Lake Howell, and Lake Brantley at 3-1 in the district, requiring a tiebreaker the following week.

"Next week is it," said Blanton. "That's the game."

Quarterback Andy Neuhild keyed the Lion attack by completing nine of 10 passes for 183 yards and two touchdowns. His favorite receiver all season, Josh Greer, caught six passes for 128 yards and both touchdowns.

Leroy Jackson added 150 yards rushing on 17 carries. Leon Scott carried the ball nine times for 64 yards, scoring on runs of 1 and 58 yards. Jammie Scott finished with 37 yards on 15 carries.

Andy Dyke kicked two extra points as well as a 39-yard field goal near the end of the second quarter.

During the halftime ceremonies, Lion senior defensive back Christian Sanders was crowned Oviedo's homecoming king.

DeLand's touchdowns came on a 55-yard pass from Rod Jackson to Guy Jopling and a 1-yard dive by Eric Shipman.

Nenon Atkins had 73 yards rushing on 16 carries for the Bulldogs.

What's Up in the NFL 1996...Week No. 11

Morning folk! Welcome to Week 11 of the greatest sports in the world.

Before I get started, I guess I'd better eat a little crow. Contrary to my consistent predictions of the Denver Broncos falling apart, they haven't. The late road and threatening call I have received on the subject have made their intended statement. I'll stop poking fun at the boys in orange and blue.

The Broncos, in beating the Oakland Raiders, have proven to this writer that they are for real. E.S.P.N., N.B.C., and Fox are tripping over themselves to label Denver as the best team in the A.F.C. I'm here to tell you that regardless of how well the Broncos have done against the softest schedule in the League, they will not make it to the Super Bowl.

Let's talk viable contenders. The following commentary is an example of what separates me from Joe Six-Pack who claims to know something about football.

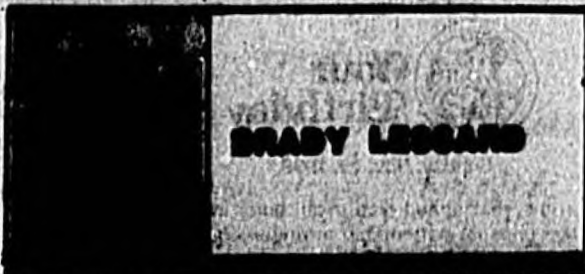

Green Bay at 8-1 is an obvious threat to roll into the Super Bowl after finishing the season against relatively weak teams. However, I caution Skala and Friends to be wary of "teams playing possum" (to borrow a phrase from Vince Lombardi).

Dallas at 8-4, and San Francisco at 7-3 have the exact same odds of making it to the Show. Philadelphia and Washington, both 7-3, are like vendors who sell "gold" chains and " Rolex" watches at Flea World, here today, gone tomorrow.

In the A.F.C., I see the Pittsburgh Steelers at 7-3, after a horrible start, making it to the big game on two things: heart and superb coaching. The only potential spoiler remains the Buffalo Bills at 6-3, a quick change at quarterback and a return to the no-huddle offense will pose a problem for any team.

Let's take a quick look at today's schedule and find some winners.

MIAMI (-4) VS. INDIANAPOLIS
The Dolphins need a win so badly Jimmy Johnson is trying to rent Deion for the game. The Colts looked absolutely horrendous as they fell to San Diego last week. Harbaugh can't possibly throw four interceptions again, can he? Dolphins 27, Colts 24.

BRADY LEPPARD

GREEN BAY (-9) AT KANSAS CITY
The Chiefs are obvious underdogs in this one, but should they be?

Let's not forget, the Chiefs thrashed Minnesota last week, and to keep up with the Broncos they'll have to do the same today. The Packers have resorted to local high school players to find receivers to replace the broken bodies they have now. Big Al is furious that their parents wouldn't let them make the overnight trip to Kansas City today.

My upset special that will have Skala crying foul, Chiefs big Chance 27, Packers 16.

ATLANTA (-6) AT ST. LOUIS
I'm sorry, but a team that is 1-8 has no business being favored in any game.

If the Ramsies show up for any game this season, it will be this one. At home, big crowd, playing a lousy team. Ramsies 17, Yalcoos 14.

PHILADELPHIA (-4) VS. BUFFALO
Ty Detmer is not the answer at quarterback, but he is getting the job done. Speaking of quarterback problems, when will Coach Levy teach Jim Kelly? There was once a time in the National Football League that performance determined playing time, that time has obviously passed. If the Bills are to contend they need a change in the Captain's chair. Eagles 28, Bills 6.

OAKLAND (-5) AT TAMPA BAY
The Raiders broke my heart when they allowed Denver to come back on Monday night. The Bucs will look to build on whatever positives they have assembled in their one win. One win, that means Arizona has won three times as many games as Tampa, we must be hurting. Bucs 24, Raiders 17.

PITTSBURGH (-4) AT CINCINNATI
The Bengals have set a trap for the Steelers today.

They will attempt to pass their way to victory, but I can promise one thing, this will be a battle. I think the coaches may fight in this game between two teams that have hated each other since long before Ken Anderson and Terry Bradshaw. Must see T.V. Steelers 24, Bengals 28.

WASHINGTON (-11) VS. ARIZONA
Get off your high horse! All you handwagon Redskins fans need to stop calling me with claims that you've "loved" them since Riggins played there."

I have no respect for your Johnny-come-lately affection for the Boys from the Capital, besides they are the most over-rated team in the League. You heard this one here first. Cardinals 28, Redskins 17.

SAN FRANCISCO (-4) VS. DALLAS
Perhaps the most talked about game this week, but it shouldn't be. I have a degree in history, so let's put it to use. History lesson: Over the past three years, when the Cowboys have needed a win against the Niners they have gotten it. School is out Jack. Cowboys 28, Niners 18.

SEATTLE (-11) VS. CHICAGO
It is an absolute disgrace that the Orange Flunk is favored to beat the Mighty Bears by double digits! I'll admit the Bears are beaten up with injuries, but I'll guarantee this, not only will they cover the spread, they'll win this one. Take that and put a stamp on it Donald! Bears 18, Broncos 6.

SEATTLE (-4) VS. MINNESOTA
The Vikings are bad, but not this bad. Take the points and run to the bank. Warren Moon is famous for pulling amazing stunts in the Kingdome, and today own't be any different. Seahawks coach Jon Smith has been exposed in a resume padding scandal that looks like it could end his career with the club. We're talking about a man that once stole a Fiat! The Seahawks plummet today. Vikings 27, Seahawks 17.

JACKSONVILLE (-4) VS. BALTIMORE
I can only stick with the poor Ravens for so long. Vinny seems to be doing fine. It's the rest of the team that needs to step up to the plate. The Jaguars continue looking for their first win since beating the Jets weeks ago. Jacksonville just doesn't have the offense to keep up with Ravens today, but it may be a fun game to watch. Ravens 21, Jaguars 28.

CAROLINA (-8) VS. NEW YORK
Who cares?

I'll bet this game, take the Giants and the points, and win, but I doubt I'll be able to stay awake.

The League really needs to consider finding better games for Sunday night's. When you are on the road from dawn to dusk, this is often the only game left to enjoy. Sure, I've heard the rumor that Carolina is tough at home, but not tough enough to cover five points. Panthers 17, Giants 14.

SAN DIEGO (-4) VS. DETROIT
The Chargers looked good against the Colts last week, and the Lions haven't looked good in a bout six weeks.

Any team that had Junior Seau and wide receiver Charlie Jones (who I played Pee-wee football with), has a chance to be competitive in any game. The Chargers will attack the line to stop Barry Sanders from running, and win the game when Mitchell tries to throw the ball. Chargers 28, Lions 17.

Each week I issue what I consider to be the best pick against the spread in the schedule. This is the game that after research and contemplation, I feel most confident about releasing as my patented LOOK OF THE WEEK.

Because of last week's "push," I have decided to up the stakes with a DOUBLE LOOK OF THE WEEK week. I'm going to start the day with ST. LOUIS (+8) OVER ATLANTA. As I return to the couch, after a long day of cranks, I plan to let my winning's ride on NEW YORK (+4) OVER CAROLINA.

Both of these games should be quick and painless for the losing teams. As the Greeks told themselves as they crowded into the wooden horse, "They won't even see it coming." This combination is guaranteed, and with Christmas approaching, we can all use the extra money. Good luck this week!

point kick but the deception didn't work. The snap went to holder Shane Burke who flipped to kicker Kris Kessler at the 13-yard line. Kessler headed for the corner of the endzone but he and Lake Mary's playoffs hopes were slammed to the ground.

Peters said he defended the decision to go for two but wished he had his regular offense on the field instead of his special teams.

"I made the call," a shaken Peters said. "It was the right call but the wrong play. It just didn't work."

As the Lake Mary players waited out the final seconds of play, the Lake Brantley sidelines and their crowd which packed the visiting section of Don T. Reynolds Stadium, celebrated. The Patriots playoff hopes are alive with a worse case scenario most likely being an invitation to the Rotary Bowl. The whole scenario rides on next

"It's been tough," St. Dennis said. "We've played our hearts out all year but sometimes things just don't go your way."

In Lake Mary's four losses, all have come down to the last seconds but this one was brutal.

At first, it looked like a blowout waiting to happen. After the Rams went three-and-out, Lake Brantley quarterback Dominick Shaw went 64 yards for a touchdown on an option play and it was 7-0 quick.

That's how it stayed until halftime but Lake Mary came out strong in the second half when St. Dennis capped off a long drive with a one-yard keeper to even the score. The Rams could have had the lead but two plays later, Lake Brantley's turn of events was a 13-yard run by Shaw to tie the game. In the fourth quarter and Lake Mary looked dead until Randall ran into the end zone and there came time for a decision.

victory over DeLona, the fourth straight loss by the Wolves.

Lyman (3-6) and DeLona (2-7) were locked in a defensive battle until the Greyhounds offense woke up in the third quarter and scored 21 points.

Cummings' 13-yard touchdown run and Rico Brock's extra point (the first of his five on the evening) gave Lyman a 7-0 lead in the first quarter.

Brad Harris, called up from the junior varsity squad, also had a big play in the second quarter. Harris' 45-yard pass to Brock added a 14-yard scoring pass before DeLona got a one-yard scoring run from Lee Field to make the score 21-7. Lyman got the score back before the end of the period as quarterback Ryan Aring found Chris Carwell for a 24-yard touchdown.

Apopka's offense which rallied to a 14-7 halftime lead.

Lake Howell had several opportunities to score but failed to convert. A 45-yard Nespeca field goal attempt, as time ran out in the first half, fell short. The Silver Hawks drove down to Apopka's 6-yard line on their first possession of the second half, threatening to tie the game, but Matt Mara's fourth down pass went through the hands of the intended receiver in the end zone.

Keith Massey led all rushers with 123-yards on 18 carries. Cooper led Lake Howell with 84-yards on 13 carries. Next Friday night, the Silver Hawks will travel to Oviedo's John Courter Field to take on the Lions in a crucial Seminole Athletic Conference match starting at 7:30 p.m. Lake Howell must beat Oviedo to force a three-way playoff for the two 6A-District 4 state tournament berths.

WILDLIFE ALERT helps fight crime

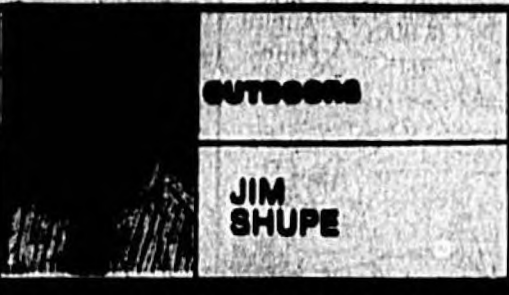

Sportsmen and other nature lovers call the WILDLIFE ALERT Hotline about 1,800 times a year to report wildlife law violations. Callers may be eligible for rewards and need not give their names or testify in court.

Since its creation in 1979, the WILDLIFE ALERT reward program has paid out $230,850 and the hotline has yielded 18,000 arrests. Individual rewards can run as high as $1,000.

WILDLIFE ALERT is funded through tax-free contributions and from fines levied against individuals found guilty of violating conservation laws.

The fund is administered by a mere 13-member board, appointed by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's executive director.

To report wildlife law violators, concerned persons should call the nearest Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission office: Panama City 1-800-342-1676, Lake City 1-800-342-8108

FISHING FORECAST

Bass fishing is hot from Pasco Lake south to Lake Palmetto. Try wild shiners if you want a realunker. One of my favorite types of structure is floating hydrilla in 8-9 feet of water. Bass find both food and shelter in such areas, and a shiner in such a spot is like dropping a piece of chocolate in a diet ward.

Fish near areas of running water for the best action. Gars and mudfish get real thick in areas of still water.

Sebastian Inlet is featuring good snook action with fish under 15 pounds. Large live shrimp are the top offering. One-ounce jigs are the favorite artificial. Tip them with a plastic worm for added attraction. Redfish, trout, small bluefish, jack crevalle and ladyfish are also roaming the rocks.

Star Birthday

Sunday, Nov. 10, 1980

In the year ahead, you might enter into two unusual partnership arrangements...

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 20-Dec. 21) After today, you might develop a fabulous new source of income...

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This will be a good time in a good cycle to begin new projects or endeavors...

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Up until now, conditions have not been conducive to fulfilling an ambition you've nurtured...

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Lucky breaks may not have come your way recently, but don't be dismayed...

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A unique opportunity could help you to strengthen a current involvement...

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It looks as though you will form an exciting new association in this cycle with a person who is a progressive thinker...

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Favorable changes will still be in effect today at work. You might discover a new way to earn additional money...

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A mutual interest could draw you closer to someone you know casually...

Getting out of the way

Still, if that's the worst mistake Poriss has made, he's the best player ever!

I was sent this deal by David Poriss, who lives in Burlington, Conn., and runs a retail business called NE Bridge Supply.

There are several questions today. Was Poriss the declarer or a defender? If the latter, which? How did the play go in three no-trump after a diamond lead to East's 10 and South's king?

South started with seven top tricks: two spades, three hearts, one diamond (given the first trick) and one club. So, the declarer needed an extra trick from each major. As you can see, his luck seemed to be in. He played the ace, king and another spade, putting West in with his queen. He switched to a club, but declarer won with dummy's ace and claimed nine tricks when the heart jack appeared on the third round.

So Poriss was South? No - that was the declarer's plan, but Poriss saw it coming: He dropped the spade queen under South's ace at trick two. Now when the declarer continued spades, East won a trick and pushed a diamond through South's queen: one down.

Good imaginative defense, but I think Poriss was precipitate. He should play low on the first spade. The queen can always be unblocked on the second round. Here, East signals with the jack, showing the 10 and nine. This makes the unblock clear. But if East drops the 10, denying the jack, Poriss knows South has the other three top spade honors. He doesn't sacrifice his queen and hopes East can get in before South has cashed out.
