CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

THAT evening the doctor came to my room and told me: "I'm sending Russell in to the Paducah hospital. I think it might be best if he has X-rays taken. Since I'll have an ambulance for him, I hope I might persuade you to join him."

"Not a chance," I said. "Why are you so eager to get rid of me, doc?"

The doctor said: "I'm responsible for the well-being of passengers, and you need proper rest and medical care."

"I'm not sick," I said. "How is Russell?"

"All right, really. But I hate to take chances."

Then the captain came and I got off the bed, where I had been all day.

"I brought your mail, Mr. Wilde," Jellicoe said. "And here's a gentleman to see you."

The slim, dark man was about 30, I guess. He had a tight, nervous face with thin lips that smiled only with an effort. He wore a dark suit, and he wore a watch with a gold chain and a watch fob that he held in his right hand. He was looking at me with a steady gaze.

"Would it be possible for me to speak to you privately for a few minutes, Mr. Wilde?" he said.

I took the telegraph company's envelope from Capt. Jellicoe and looked at it before I answered. Through the cellophane window I could see that it had been sent from Philadelphia.

The doctor bowed himself out. Capt. Jellicoe stood smiling. Something amused him immensely.

"Alone would be fine," I told the cop.

"Well, now," Jellicoe said heartily. "I'm captain..."

"Would you mind, captain, please," the young cop said.

"You want me to leave?"

"If you don't mind," the captain muttered to himself and left.

"Let's see the buzzer," I said.

There was no surprise in the young man's face. He brought out a leather case and opened it. I didn't need more than one glance. I sat numbly on the edge of the bed, feeling slightly sick. Cops wouldn't matter much, not local cops. But this ruined a lot of things for me. This was a federal cop, one of J. Edgar's boys and he would have no interest in whether or not I got Stewart. Whatever leads I had, they would want. And right now...

"Just a minute," I said. I ripped open the telegram.

It was from Grodnik and read: "Obtaining Resonance in Cincinnati. No trace of girl. Alarm out. FBI notified."

ROGER C. WILSON JR.

VJ-62 Sailor In New Field

Roger C. Wilson Jr., aviation maintenance second class, USN, became the first man from Photographic Squadron 62 to be selected by the chief of Naval personnel in a program to qualify men to change their rate to one of the electronic branches in accordance with a recent Navy directive.

The new bulletin is a plan to train qualified career petty officers in the electronics field and obtain additional technicians to perform the Navy's increasing tasks in electronics. The growing emphasis on the aspects of electronic warfare are multiplying daily and the need for highly skilled electronic specialists prompted this new directive. It provides for the retraining of the best qualified volunteers of other ratings, whose present specialty is no longer so urgently needed.

Wilson will spend 20 weeks at Aviation Electronics Technicians school at Memphis, Tenn., learning the rudiments of electronics.

Upon completion of this course, Wilson will be selected for either advanced Electronics Technicians School (AT), Aviation Fire Controlman School (AF), or Aviation Guided Missiles School (GF). Assignment to this complementary school depends on which qualifications Wilson best meets. Graduation from the later class will bring a change of Wilson's present rate, AM2, to one of equal rate in which ever specialty he is trained for.

Wilson and his wife, Joan, have resided in Sanford since the arrival of VJ-62 and has been attached to the squadron for two and one-half years.

TOP SHUTTERBUG—George W. Cloer, photographer's mate third class, of Photoron 62, is putting into practical use the latest skill that he has acquired through his attendance of the Navy specialized school for camera repairmen, NATTU Pensacola. (Official Photograph, U. S. Navy)

Cloer Of Photoron 62 Named One Of Best Navy Shutterbugs

George W. Cloer, photographer's mate third class, USN, has been working hard to attain the knowledge that the Navy is willing to give naval personnel in their technical schools.

Cloer not only has graduated from the primary or basic course of photographic instruction but at this writing is the junior petty officer to attend and satisfactorily complete the advanced photographic school for officers and rated photographic technicians. It is to be noted that this advanced course of instruction is normally limited to second class petty officer and higher of the photographic specialty.

Photographers Mate Cloer is the second exception that the Navy has made to this regulation in permitting a third class Petty Officer to attend. It is an outstanding attribute to Cloer that at this time he is the only photographer's mate third class in the Navy to satisfactorily complete this highly technical photographic instruction.

He has been assigned to Photoron 62 since March of this year, yet taking advantage of all the training that he can, Cloer has just returned to the squadron after a three month further period of training in the specialized school of Camera Repair at NAS, Pensacola. He also satisfactorily completed this course and is presently doing this type of work for VJ-62.

Cloer states that this latest course was the one that required the longest period of study. Normally he spent from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. five days a week plus many hours on his own week end time.

Rhee Orders Investigation

SEOUL, (AP)—President Syngman Rhee today ordered his Cabinet to make "a thorough investigation" of alleged improper procedures involving South Korean government financial officials.

A National Assembly investigating committee reported last Tuesday that former Prime Minister and Finance Minister Paik Too Chin and other financial officials used "favoritism and pressure" to obtain improper loans for their friends.

Paik now is economic coordinator handling the U.S. aid program. He called the report "a political intrigue schemed by a group of ambitious men."

Smokey Says:

WOW! THIS MUST BE THE NEW TREE RUNG THEY'RE TALKING ABOUT!

Timber has greater value without fire scars!

He also states that his Navy training has been excellent and it is his prime objective and desire to learn all he can of Naval Photography and its specialties, that he may qualify and perhaps be assigned to do a yet more advanced course of instruction in Naval photography interpretation.

Cloer is a native of Dallas, Texas, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Cloer of that city. He is married and at this time he and his wife Thelma are residing in Sanford the home port of Photoron 62.

BANDIT'S COMPANION RETURNS MONEY

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Joe Johnson, 25-year-old service station attendant, reported this incident to deputy sheriffs Tuesday night.

An old car drove up to his station. A man pointed a shotgun at him and demanded the receipts he given to his woman accomplice, Johnson handed over $30.

The woman hesitated momentarily and then suddenly shoved the money back to Johnson.

"This isn't right, honey," she said to the bandit. Before he carped away, she said: "He's been out of work since January."

Negro Publisher Speaks On Issue

(Editor's Note: The following story was brought to The Herald by J. W. Knowles, secretary of the Welfare League, small Negro organization in Goldsboro, Davis Lee, publisher of a daily newspaper in Washington, is a leading authority on racial problems. This story is reprinted from the June 1 edition of the Pittsburgh Daily Courier.)

By DAVIS LEE, Publisher
The more I travel, listen and observe the more convinced I become that the Negro has been grossly misled in this matter of segregation and civil rights.

It appears to me that the best things should come first, and that our economic well being is of greater significance than the privilege of attending a white school or to associate with white people on an equal social basis provided by Supreme Court decisions and pressure legislation.

As a Negro and an American, I naturally want to see my race enjoy every right privilege and opportunity enjoyed by any other American, but I am opposed to any type of agitation designed to deprive the other fellow of a right to be associated with his own kind exclusively if he so desires. I would like to reserve such a right for myself and definitely would not want it encroached upon by a Supreme Court edict of any other kind of interference.

The right granted to one or two Negroes in Virginia or some Southern State to enter a state graduate school is of no benefit to the millions of our people who are in need of the bare necessities of life, and when the fortunate situated members of the race conduct such campaigns of agitation for selfish gain, the needy masses suffer.

While the South does not provide ample or adequate modern school facilities for Negroes everywhere, neither does it provide completely modern facilities for white schools, because the money is not available for such a vast undertaking. However, rapid progress has been made and in Montgomery, Alabama, and several other communities the Negro schools far exceed the white school in modernization and physical appearance. Neither do the majority of Southern Negroes nor the majority of the white people of this present program to disrupt a race in which has served both races well down through the years and contributed so much to the Negro's economic security.

Just what would be the future educational status of the Negro in the South if the legislature of all the Southern States would enact legislation withdrawing state financial support from all schools of higher learning starting at the high school level? Not only is this possible, but if it should come to pass, the Negro would be unable to finance his own educational program. Negro financed educational programs have been a failure in the past and nothing miraculous has happened which would cause a normal person to assume that the future holds any better prospect.

Years ago Southern Negro educators made annual pilgrimages to the North to raise funds for the support of their schools and this practice continued until Northern philanthropists found out that the Negro educators were the beneficiaries instead of the schools. The A.M.E. Church, the Baptist, the Presbyterians and some other minor denominations have been active in the field of Negro education, but their achievements have been nothing to write home about. Not only that, but every year charges have flown thick and fast against the misappropriation of school funds. The operation of Negro schools has not only produced some of the nation's finest academics, but a dramatic reflection of the Negro's integrity and his ability to operate and finance an educational program.

No race or nationality in this nation has excelled or equaled the Negro in educational attainment but this educational opportunity was not only created by white dollars, but has been financed by white people throughout the nation. It is an unfortunate fact that Negroes contribute very little to their own community well being and improvement and this fact should be taken into account by those agitators before they initiate their program for demands in the field of education.

Instead of spending thousands of dollars to finance unnecessary court fights for privileges which will cost the race millions in lost valuable friendships and racial goodwill, our leaders should go into the Negro ghettos and twice the local grocer to carry prime meats and sell to our people products which will make us healthy.

I live in Newark, N. J., one of the supposedly liberal cities, and it is impossible to find prime beef or grade A cuts of any kind of meat in the Negro section of the city. This situation is true throughout the United States. Grocers in Negro communities carry the most inferior brands. Go into any Negro community and the meat market vendors are filled with cheap, inferior smoked and salt meats. Some of it was put through some curing process after it had gone bad.

It is no wonder that the death rate is so high among Negroes. When one considers the food situation plus inadequate housing, it is a wonder that the death rate is no higher.

It appears to me that our leaders should direct their efforts toward correcting these abuses which are undermining our very existence. And these abuses are not practiced against us by white people alone; our own people are just as bad.

Negro restaurants buy the cheapest food, and charge the highest prices. Last week on a tour of five states, we were able to get a decent cup of coffee. Some of the coffee sold to me looked like mud and tasted worse.

It is very apparent to me that the Negro leaders of this section have a distorted sense of real values. They appear to me more interested in breaking down racial barriers and conducting expensive campaigns of agitation spreading hate, than in directing their efforts, energies and money towards the attainment of the tangible essentials of life. I was in Atlanta last week and was greatly impressed by the large number of outstanding and progressive Negro businessmen. Atlanta is strictly a segregated city. I was in several New England cities this week where there is not supposed to be any segregation, and I found not one creditable Negro business.

The only owned and operated Negro radio station is not in New York, but in Atlanta. Segregation has not only given the Negro in the South an opportunity to carve out his industrial and economic destiny, but it has forced him to the fore as the most substantial and economically secure Negro in the world.

Shirley Jones Says She's The Luckiest Girl In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Oh, what a beautiful morning. That's Shirley Jones theme song each day she wakes up, because she's the luckiest girl in town. In the nation, maybe. A stage-actress kid of 20, she now playing the lead in the biggest musical ever made. And she is the first player ever put under exclusive contract by Rodgers and Hammerstein. The musical is "Oklahoma." I dropped over to the massive set for the film and found Shirley in her dressing room alone. She had just finished lunch and her motion was nibbled right down to the rind. She likes Melon. She likes the rind pickled too.

I told her she'd have to change her name. Who ever heard of a star called Shirley Jones? No doubt she would be switched in Gloria Lamour to Rita Franca. "I don't think so," she replied with a winsome smile. "I like my name and I want to keep it. When we started the thing, I asked the director, Fred Astaire, if he thought I should change my name. He said it had been discussed. But he voted in favor of keeping it. He said he was tired of all the phony glamorous names and it was time for a good old Welsh one like Jones."

Rock Hudson Has Word Of Warning For Fellow Stars

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Rock Hudson is back in town with a warning for his fellow stars to beware of international film festivals. The stars might have learned this lesson from Robert Mitchum's experience. At the Cannes Film Festival, he was tricked—he says—into posing with Simone Silva, who stripped off her top for the eager photographers. Mitchum is still living that one down.

Rock's experience at the Venice Film Festival this summer wasn't as sensational as Mitchum's, but he's just as bitter about it. The tall, handsome Wineta, Ill., actor had been in Island making "Captain Lightfoot." When he was invited to attend the Venice affair, it sounded like fun.

"I was invited," he emphasized. "That means I was to be their guest—yes? Well, so soon as the bellows deposited my bags in my hotel room, I was on my own. I never heard from anyone. I had no instructions on anything. I wasn't invited to any event. I was in charge. I finally managed to get seats in the daily showings of movies. They were in the second row. LAS VEGAS, Nov. 9.—It was sex vs. energy on the Las Vegas strip last night as Marlene Dietrich in a revealing gown vied for attention with Betty Hutton playing her "last land."

Both movie queens opened on hotel casinos, and Miss Dietrich put up a canny fight with a gown almost as revealing as the transparent topped dress she wore here last December. But Miss Hutton was hard to beat. She capped her swan song by declaring she would marry after her return from a four weeks.

"I'm gonna be a den mother for my daughter's Brownie troop," she remarked. "I'm gonna learn to play bridge and to sew. I'm gonna be real dull."

Divided But United

In the heat of the election campaign, in the midst of the fury and bitterness it raises, it is important for us to remember that the differences that divide as political partisans are not so important as the things on which we are united as Americans.

It is right that issues should be presented, that the record should be argued, that candidates should make plain their intentions and their positions. It is also right that as voters we should make up our minds to support one candidate or another, one party or the other. But we must not forget that when the elections are over, no matter what the result, it is important that we put disappointment or satisfaction aside.

The men elected will have a difficult task at best. That task will be complicated to the point where they cannot hope to succeed at it if the electorate remains divided after the election. This imposes a responsibility on candidates to see that the things they do and say during the campaign do not tend to create irreconcilable differences. It imposes a similar responsibility on all of us.

Play Put Together In 60 Hours

NEW YORK (AP)—"I have a morbid interest in money," confessed George Axelrod, a young man who wrote in 60 hours a Broadway play he says will earn him a million dollars.

For the actual time he spent at the typewriter in turning out "The Seven Year Itch"—now being filmed as a vehicle for Marilyn Monroe—this comes to $16,666.66 an hour.

Axelrod, who is 32, wears a crew cut, and looks like a fugitive. Princeton freshman thinks this is a fair rate of pay for a writer if he got to keep the money.

But, of course, he doesn't. Today it may take more time to figure out the income tax on a hit play than it does to write it.

But until something better does come along Axelrod has decided

'REFRESHER' COURSE

No. 19137 To Be Alger Hiss Again

NEW YORK (AP)—Two days after Thanksgiving, prisoner No. 19137 at the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., will become Alger Hiss again.

He will leave his five-by-eight foot cell and be offered a going-away suit from the prison stocks. He is expected to decline in favor of a natural-fitting gray, like those he wore in the higher echelons of the State Department, in international conferences at Yalta and San Francisco, in the United Nations and in the perjury trial that profoundly unsettled a nation and sent him to prison three and a half years ago.

He is getting out on a conditional release, having earned "meritorious good time" which was deducted from his original sentence of five years. Until March 21, 1956, he will have to report at least once a month to a probation officer to tell where he's living, where he's working, how much he's earning, whom he's seeing.

If he sees the wrong people or engages in the wrong activities (these limitations are specific but will not be made public) or leaves the area without permission he can be sent back to prison. The day he goes free, Nov. 27, he will be two weeks past his 50th birthday.

His family and friends expect that he will return to New York City to resume life with his wife, Priscilla, and their 13-year-old son, Tony, in their apartment in downtown Manhattan. Timothy Hobson, Mrs. Hiss' son from a previous marriage, is studying medicine abroad.

As a convicted felon, Alger Hiss also loses certain federal civil liberties. He will never get a passport, be allowed to vote in New York; hold public office or be eligible for any civil service job, even a mailman's, unless he gets a Presidential pardon.

He will not be able to practice law where he used to practice law in New York, Massachusetts or before the Supreme Court. He has been disbarred. It is unlikely other bars will admit him.

How, then, will he earn a living? The question, according to his family and friends, is still undecided.

"He'll want to study and write, if anybody will pay him to do that," says his lawyer, Chester Larr. "I think he'll want to write about foreign affairs or the atmosphere of the time. But the question is what can he write about that a publisher will take except his own story of his own case?"

Those who know him don't expect Hiss to write a personalized diary of his case, the way Whittaker morning when he knows he has nothing more to say.

George looked thoughtful, then smiled. "Gee," he said smiling, "maybe it was this morning for me."

Government Says Judge Biased

By ED CREAIGH
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the things Americans pride themselves on is that every man accused of a crime is entitled to a fair trial.

This works two ways, of course. Just as the trial must be fair to the accused, it must give the accusers — the government — a fair shake too.

Almost always when a cry of bias is raised it comes from the defendant. But now such a cry comes from the government, by way of the Justice Department.

The government claims it can't get a fair trial of Owen J. Lattimore, the long-controversial Far Eastern specialist, because the trial judge, Luther W. Youngdahl, is biased in Lattimore's favor.

And U.S. Dist. Judge Youngdahl, refusing to take himself out of the case, charges Justice Department lawyers with trying to intimidate the courts.

It's a strikingly unusual situation. Here is how it came about: Late in 1952 a federal grand jury indicted Lattimore on charges of lying to Senate subcommittee. There were seven counts in the indictment. They key charge was that Lattimore lied when he said he never had been a sympathizer and promoter of communism and Communist interests.

Lattimore's lawyers went to court — asked that the indictment be thrown out. Their petition went before Youngdahl, a Republican governor of Minnesota until he went on the federal bench, and Youngdahl threw out four of the seven counts. He held the key charge and three others were too vague to have any legal meaning.

But he went beyond that. He also voiced "serious doubt" in his written opinion, whether the three remaining charges would stand up in court either.

The government protested. It asked the U.S. Court of Appeals to put back the four counts knocked out by Youngdahl. The higher court did put back two of them. But it upheld Youngdahl's 3-1 on the main issue and ruled the "sympathizer and promoter" charge must not go to a jury.

So the government in effect started over. It laid its case before a new grand jury. And early this month Lattimore was indicted for a second time. This time that word "sympathizer" was left out. Instead Lattimore was accused of falsely denying he had been a "follower" of the Communist line and a "promoter of Communist interests."

But the government wasn't through yet. The federal prosecutor, U.S. Atty. Gen. A. Hoover, formally asked Youngdahl to remove himself as the judge in Lattimore's forthcoming trial.

Hoover said he wasn't questioning Youngdahl's honor or integrity. But he declared Youngdahl has "a fixed, personal bias and prejudice" in favor of Lattimore. And he said this is proved by the language Youngdahl used in ruling on the original indictment.

Under the law, all Youngdahl had to do at this point — without going into the 34 legal words involved — was either get out of the case or disqualify the government's protest. He didn't have to give reasons. In fact, as Youngdahl himself noted, the law doesn't let him pass on the truth or falsity of such charges as Hoover made.

But Youngdahl, in announcing he would stay on the bench in the trial, chose to blister the hide of Hoover and by implication — of the whole Justice Department. He said

There were the microfilmed documents dug out of a pumpkin on Chambers' farm. There was the old typewriter which Hiss admitted was once his and which the government contended was used to copy the documents.

There was the "red herring" remark which came back to haunt President Harry S. Truman.

Most people found it hard to believe, at least at first, that Hiss could have done what Chambers charged.

But Chambers stuck to his story. Hiss stuck to his denials. And the jury believed Chambers and the typewriter.

Convicts, it is explained, generally don't hold the other fellow's crime against him; they are more apt to unite in a sullen hostility against all authority.

Mrs. Hiss, who has been working in the order department of a New York book store, could have visited her husband at half hour a week or in one monthly session of two hours. Generally she chose the latter because of the expense of travel and the time off required from her job.

Mrs. Hiss, according to those who know her socially, still sees the same circle of friends, has complained of no abuse of herself or her son as a result of the case and speaks frequently of kindness shown by friends and neighbors.

Her son attends a private school in Manhattan. The day after his father was convicted the boy was elected president of his class. School officials evidently have taken pains to see to it that outside influences did not result in abuse in the classrooms.

Donald Hiss says his everyday life has been changed only slightly because of the publicity given his brother's case. He is not a jury those who challenged him acted "irresponsibly and recklessly." And he declared:

"I cannot escape from the conclusion that the purpose of the affidavit is to discredit, in the public mind, the final action of the courts, or else to intimidate the courts themselves."

Now this, if true, would be pretty serious offense by any lawyer. But the Justice Department continues to voice full confidence in Hoover. It hasn't said what it will do next. Nobody doubts more will be heard of this row before Jan. 10 trial date rolls around.

Ike Will Make Swiftly Moving Speaking Tour

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower puts to the acid test tomorrow his ability to stir up the voters and to win support for Republican candidates.

The White House announced last night that Eisenhower will take off tomorrow on a one-day flying campaign trip to Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Ky., and Wilmington Del., in that order.

"This will follow close on the heels of his radio-television talk here to night at a campaign rally staged by the Citizens for Eisenhower congressional organization. Mrs. Eisenhower will accompany him to the rally. The speech will be carried by NBC television and radio and by ABC radio.

It is scheduled for 9:30 p.m. EST.

Tonight's speech has been billed as an effort to arouse in the battle for control of Congress, to be decided at the polls next Tuesday some of the "crucial" spirit of the 1952 Presidential campaign.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerly announced that on tomorrow's trip the President will speak to airport crowds at each stop, with Republican candidates from the surrounding states on hand.

There are heated Senate contests in the four states he will visit.

Hagerly, asked by a reporter whether the four states were chosen because GOP Senatorial candidates were "in trouble," replied "I do not admit your premise." He said they were selected because of central location and because, except for Kentucky, the President had not visited them during the campaign.

Eisenhower told his news conference yesterday his chief objective will be to dramatize his desire to see everybody vote next Tuesday's election.

But the selection of the sites by the Republican National Committee and its financial sponsorship of the tour indicated party officials expect him to come close to the kind of barnstorming in which the President said last April 29 he would not engage.

Eisenhower told reporters yesterday he was puzzled by reports of apathy among the voters who might not share his belief about the importance of Tuesday's election.

The GOP national Committee's guarded here an indicating mixed hopes and fears of party officials about next Tuesday's balloting results.

In Cleveland, Eisenhower will be trying to aid Republican Rep. George H. Bender, who is opposing Democratic Sen. Thomas A. Burke in a state that Eisenhower carried by a half million vote in 1952.

Republicans have been planning large hopes on Bender's regaining the Ohio seat that Burke was appointed to fill after the death of Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft.

A Republican spokesman said Eisenhower's Wilmington appearance was arranged in the hope of tipping the scales in favor of Italian Rep. Herbert R. Warburton in what is reported as an extremely close race with Delaware's Democratic Sen. J. Allen Frear Jr.

In Detroit and Louisville, the President's objective will be to help save the seats of two Republican Senators now depicted as being given strong battles by Democratic opponents.

They are Sen. Homer Ferguson, opposed by Democrat Patrick J. McNamara in Michigan, and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, opposed by Democratic former Vice President Alben W. Barkley in Kentucky.

Suit Would

vely through his attorneys in the court action.

The suit was brought yesterday by Louis Hill, president of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, in the form of an amendment to an earlier action seeking to block construction of the proposed Blox-hum cutoff.

The cutoff is a controversial project which would by-pass Tallahassee and, it is charged, be of principal benefit to Wakulla Springs, a commercial resort owned by Ed Hall, head of the Florida duPont interests.

In a formal statement issued from his campaign headquarters here, Collins said:

"I did not initiate this effort to stop the road department from appropriating further our primary highway funds. But I have considered that such an action would become necessary and I have been accumulating information and material to support a court test of the power of the department to plunge our road program further toward bankruptcy.

"The simple facts are that this department is feverishly trying to contract roads and bridges with payments to become due, not while they are in office but next year after the next.

"Some carryover obligations are to be expected, of course, but they are trying to carry over obligations they well know go far beyond sound business practices and obligation of such size as will prevent our new administration from having a sound road and bridge program of its own.

"The tragedy of the situation is that in their fever and haste, the taxpayers and people are paying through the nose by:

"1. Loss of federal aid.

"2. Greatly increased cost of engineering, right of way procurement, etc.

"I think this suit raises serious questions which in the public interest should be resolved by our courts. The basic question is whether we are to waste our road money coming in next year and the next fulfilling political promises or spend it on the basis of need in the development of a sound highway system.

"Since these issues have been raised and so that the people will know that I fully support the objectives of this suit, I will ask attorneys representing me to assist in the case in any way they can be helpful."

Navy Coach Ready For Notre Dame

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—"I feel we have the best chance to beat Notre Dame Saturday since I've been here," said Navy football coach Eddie Edelezak Thursday.

"This going isn't afraid of Notre Dame or any team for that matter," he said in reporting on the attitude of his Middles toward the game before an expected 60,000 in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium.

The Middles undoubtedly are eager to get at the Irish. Several upon being congratulated for playing a good game after last Saturday's 57 victory over Penn replied "wait until you see next week's."

Navy hasn't beaten Notre Dame since 1941 and Edelezak had coached the last four losers.

College President Says Schools Shouldn't Be Church-Dominated

MIAMI (AP)—Denominationally controlled colleges cannot allow freedom of mind or spirit, says Dr. Theodore A. Distler, president of Franklin and Marshall College and executive director of the Assn of American Colleges.

"But if the secular spirit should triumph and religion be excluded from education, we would be on our way to national disaster," Dr. Distler told delegates to the International Convention of Disciples of Christ here last night.

He called for church affiliated, but not dominated, schools where the assumption is that "the word and will of God are so much beyond our present human understanding that a great variety of interpretations is inevitable; all have their right to be set forth, partial and incomplete though they are."

He said the sought-for result is that the graduate, of whatever persuasion, is religiously perceptive when leaving the campus might say, feelingly: "Well, I didn't agree with everything taught me here, but this I know: my alma mater is Christian."

Dr. Jesse M. Hader, general secretary of the World Convention of Disciples, announced plans for the convention to be held in Toronto, Aug. 16-21, 1952.

surplus foods while more people starve to death than are being killed by the communists."

Mrs. Arthur M. Depew of Joplin, Mo., was elected chairman of the board of managers of the United Christian Missionary Society of the Disciples of Christ and the Rev. J. Wayne Drash of Birmingham, Ala., was named vice chairman of the 120-member body.

Speaking for Neuberger are Senators Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson, both Democrats from neighboring Washington, and Sen. Wayne Morse, the Oregon independent.

Seven visiting Republican senators backing Cordon are Frank Carlson of Kansas, Frederick Payne of Maine, Frank Barrett of Wyoming, George Malone of Nevada, Edward Thyne of Minnesota, Herman Welker of Idaho and Arthur Watkins of Utah.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

HISTORY RECORDS that in 1916, a young lieutenant just graduated from West Point, was summoned from his post at Fort Sam Houston to coach the football team of a nearby school. The coach, one Dwight D. Eisenhower, found the spirit there willing, but the material sparse. Desperately seeking reinforcements for the skippy squad, he suddenly spotted a husky specimen crossing the campus. "Look here, young fellow," he called sharply. "Why aren't you out to play football?" The husky replied, "Lieutenant, I'll have you know I'm the principal of this school."

A hobo discovered through the years that doctors were comparatively soft touches, so his spirits rose when he saw a medicine's shingle outside a door. A beautiful young lady answered his peep on the bell. The hobo wheezed, "Do you think the good doctor could find an old pair of pants for a fellow down on his heels?" The girl chuckled, and replied, "Quite possibly, but I doubt that they'd do you much good. You see, I happen to be the doctor."
