Longwood Group Tours HCA's Tennessee Hospital

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The Longwood City Council will decide after a public hearing Aug. 16 whether the Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) will be allowed to build an 80-bed psychiatric hospital on a 26-acre tract north of State Road 434 and west of State Road 427. In preparation for that decision, HCA officials and employees Friday gave 10 Longwood officials and residents the red carpet treatment while touring HCA's psychiatric facility, Valley Hospital, near Chattanooga, Tenn.

HCA also plans to begin construction of a 100-bed medicalsurgical general hospital on the same Longwood site within nine months after the psychiatric facility is built.

The Longwood group was jetted to the Tennessee hospital by an JHCA plane from the Sanford Airport.

Mac Nation, an HCA employee who has been working on the Longwood project for nearly a year accompanied the group.

James Kestner, administrator of the Valley Hospital, acted as tour director, noting that his facility is used exclusively by patients with mental problems, both adults and adolescents; those afflicted with alcoholism or drug addiction; and senior citizens who are having trouble communicating.

The Longwood hospital, if it's approved, would have identical programs, Kestner said.

There are only 200 such private psychiatric hospitals in the country, he said, compared with 7,000 general hospitals.

The patients are not subjected to electric shock treatment nor are restraints used. In addition, he said, few hospital doors

He added that violent and criminally insane patients are not

The average stay for an adult psychiatric patient is 21 days while the alcohol or drug abuser stays for 28 days and children and adolescent patients stay about 76 days on the average. Dr. Faith R. O'Kelley, who heads the adult program, said the hospital's philosophy is to help patients deal with their problems without going too deeply into analytic psychology. "We try after two to three weeks to get the patient well enough to go back to his horne and job," she said, adding that a patient might be readmitted one or two times before he is

While patients with mental and emotional problems are accepted, mentally retarded patients are not.

Bob Urbin who heads the 28-day program for alcoholics and drug abusers, said treatment is completely drug free.

Urbin holds a bachelor's degree in psychology, but more important in his Job is the experience he obtained himself as an alcoholic and drug abuser, he said.

As a recovered alcoholic, he said, he is trying to give something back in gratifude for his being on the wagon. The program used for alcoholics and drug abusers is patterned on Alcoholic Anonymous' 12 steps to recovery.

While alcoholics are being treated, they attend two AA meetings weekly while the drug abusers attend meetings of Narcotics Anonymous.

In the adolescent program, headed by Joyce Gracy, the patients not only receive psychological counseling and assistance, but keep up with their schooling with the help of

Casselberry Paramedic Program Postponed

By JOE DeSANTIS Herald Staff Writer

With $900,000 in state sales tax revenues and federal revenue sharing monies banging in the balance, the Casselberry City Council has voted to put a voter approved paramedic program on the back burner until next year.

The decision came at an emergency meeting Friday called to allow the city to meet a 5 p.m. deadline for filing its tax rate with the Semniole County Tax Appraiser for its proposed $3.6 million budget for fiscal year 1982-83.

Boxed into a corner by language dealing with the sales tax law approved by the state Legislature earlier this year, the commission faced losing about $900,000 in sales tax and federal revenue money or stashing something from the proposed budget in order not to exceed a state-mandated tax cap.

Mayor Owen Sheppard had proposed a $2,09 tax rate per $1,000 assesed property valuation, which included a maximum $1.25 special assessment rate per $1,000 property valuation to fund a paramedle program. Voters approved the paramedic program in a referendum last

However, Casselberry officials learned Thursday from the County Tax Appraiser's office that the proposed $2.08 rate had to reduced to a maximum of $1.12 per $1,000 assessed valuation because the city did not specify an exact. amount of tax assessment in the wording of its paramedic referendum, but instead specified only a maximum amount of $1.25 per assessed valuation. Thus the $2.08 would exceed the city's maximum allowable tax rate of $1.12 after the 40 percent stale-mandated property tax roll back was figured into the final tax rate.

Sheppard had proposed slicing this year's hase property tax rate from $1.95: to $1.08 per $1,000 assessed valuation. But even with that, Casselberry's tax rate (with the $1.25 per $1,000 for the paramedic program added in) would exceed the maximum $1.12 rate allowed under state tax law.

By moving to delay implementation of the $147,000 paramedic program for a year, the council agreed on a proposed tax rate to be filed at $1.08 per $1,000 property value, $.04 below the state cap. But the decision did not come before some lively debate by the Fire Department staff, Commissioner Jim Lavigne. and the remainder of the board.

Lavigne contended that the commission could fund the $147,000 program this year with money from the city's general fund.

He indicated that items such as a $55,000 street sweeper, $30,000 for the Plumosa Avenue paving project, and a reduction of $5,800 in capital outlays and a few other "non crucial" items should take a back seat for a year instead of delaying the paramedic program.

Sheppard didn't agree, however, recommending postponing the paramedic program because city residents voted to approve a specific tax assessment to fund it.

"I agree with the mayor's recommendation," said Commissioner Frank Shutte, "People were led to believe the paramedic program would be funded by a separate tax. They voted with the idea that the paramedic program wouldn't dilute any general fund programs," he said.

Fire Chief Paul Alegri attempted to strike a compromise on the issue by telling the council the size of the program could be reduced to around $90,000 by cutting origianl staffing from six to four paramedics for a nine-month funding

But the majority of the board remained

Deer In Worse Shape Than Ever

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) - The Everglades deer that were restricted from a stateordered "mercy hunt" are dying in alarming numbers and are in worse shape than ever, a state wildlife official reports.

Lt. Biff Lampton of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission said the carcasses of 59 deer had been found in an area where wildlife preservationists blocked hunting during the "mercy kill." In the adjacent area of the Everglades where hunters bagged more than 700 deer during the "mercy kill," only four deer have been found dead.

Lampton said the deer that escaped the hunt have suffered severely, probably from months of standing in the water, and have an unusually high number of parasites, mostly stomach worms.

"The condition of their hooves is very, very poor. They're swollen to twice or three times their normal size and they're splitting, with puss running out," Lampton said. In addition, he said there is practically no fat on even the larger animals,

Those are the preliminary findings of a study of deer in two areas of the Everglades, one of which was opened up to hunters briefly last week. A team of University of Georgia scientists is conducting autopsies on deer that have died in the swamps since the hunt.

A more complete picture on the plight of the Everglades deer will emerge later this year after the study is complete, he said.

The hunt was called to reduce the number of deer competing for an ever-shrinking food supply caused by extensive flooding. Water from agricultural areas to the north was drained into the swamp, robbing the herd of much of its food supply.

Preservationist groups tried to block the bunt in court, saying the animals could be rescued and moved to higher ground. Seventeen deer were eventually rescued, but Lampton said many more suffered while the issue was argued in court.

By the time the hunt and rescue operation took place. Lampton said it was too late to complete an effective mercy kill.

Growth Rate Won't Alter Much: Price

By MICHEAL BEHA Herald Staff Writer

Growth-it's become a way of life in Seminole County. And there's no indication it will change any time soon.

A recent study by the University of Florida foresees about 345,000 people living in Seminole County by the year 2000 That is an increase of 30,000 over previous projections. The county currently has about 181,000 residents.

But county Planning Director Woody Price said the revised figures won't really change his job too much.

"We had always expected to get to. 345,000. We're just getting there quicker," he said. "What it does say for the near term is we've got to do things faster."

He said the need for more public facilities, roads, schools, police and fire protection, sewer and water service becomes more urgent. For county administrators, it also means more records to keep, more tax bills to send out and more voters to register.

And what does Price think Seminole County will look like in 20 years? "It will probably look like we do now but there'll just be more of us."

Price said he will use the past and the present to plan the future,

He said the county can draw upon the experiences of other areas that have gone through similar growth to avoid the problems they encountered.

And by using current living patterns he can set some idea what the future will look like. The living patterns people have now are probably the same ones they will have in the future, he said, noting that Seminole County has few high-rise apartments now so it is unlikely there will be many more in 20 years.

What Price does envision is an increase in mid-rises, buildings that are several stories high, and a higher population density. He also sees the opportunity to develop a public transportation system.

"There will probably be more multipleuse buildings-retail stores downstairs and apartments or offices upstairs," he said. "And they may be located in areas that support condominiums." Why?

Price said zoning laws have historically worked to separate com-See SEMINOLE, Page 10A

Working With Troubled Youth To Keep Them Out Of Prison

Having already gained national attention for its juvenile arbitration program, Seminole County and its new Juvenile Alternative Services Project (JASP) may also be destined to become a model for handling kids who have had run-ins with the law, officials say.

"We are very excited about JASP which will go into effect Monday under manager Phyllis Oliva," sald Gayle Bair, juvenile court coordinator, JASP, a pet project of Circuit Judge Kenneth. Although the JASP offices will open Monday morning in the former Roumillat Building, First Street and Park Avenue, Sanford, workers are uncertain when they will begin handling their first case.

What exactly is JASP?

"JASP is the step between arbitration juvenile arbitration program which tries and the court system," Mrs. Hair said. "While arbitration, which began her in Oct. 1978 and became a model program in the state and across the country, deals only with first-time offenders, JASP deals with kids who aren't what you'd call really bad kids, just kids who don't

According to Mrs. Hair, JASP will function similarly to the juvenile arbitration program in that volunteers will work with the child, his parents and the crime victim to arrive at a suitable punishment for the child and to provide for restitution of any loss the victim may have suffered.

In truancy cases, a member of the School Board will be included in the talks with the child and his parents, she said. In cases where volunteers are dealing with an ungovernable child, the entire family will be involved in counseling

Mrs. Hair said JASP, like the juvenile arbitration program, will need volunteers if the project is to be a success.

"Many of the arbitration volunteers may be used in JASP after they have a little more subsequent training in dealing with the ungovernable and truancy cases," she says. "We will be beginning another arbitration volunteer class on Sept. 9 and we'll probably combine the potential JASP workers in that class so now would be a good time to call Mrs. Oliva at 322-7534 and ask her about becoming a volunteer in the project as well as in arbitration."

IN BRIEF

Administration Budget Projections Doubtful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has issued a set of budget and economic projections that apparently few of its top officials entirely believe in.

The midyear report of the Office of Management and Budget released Friday projected a $115 billion federal deficit for fiscal year 1983, which starts Oct. 1, $23 billion higher than the administration had forecast in

The Congressional Budget Office, a non-partisan research arm of Congress, has estimated the 1983 deficit at $146 billion.

"The more you change the more confusion you sow," an Administration official said, adding any changes could jeopardize current legislation carrying out deficit reductions.

The dispute is important because high deficits require more government borrowing, tending to keep interest rates high and slow economic recovery.

USW Vote Jolts Industry

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United Steelworkers rejected a new contract containing "millions of dollars" in concessions, a move steelmakers say shows the union is unwilling to help embattled American companies deal with foreign competition.

Union members rejected the contract Friday, one day after steelmakers asked them to scrap a $100 million pay raise, a scheduled cost of living increase and accept the new three-year pact immediately.

With the end of concession talks, the union and industry were left preparing to bargain next spring on a successor to the current three-year contract covering some 275,000 workers that expires Aug. 1, 1983.

More Arms To Taiwan

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan has secretly told Republican lawmakers U.S. arms will flow to Taiwan for the time being, but Capitol Hill sources say the sales won't continue indefinitely.

Reagan told a White House meeting of about 25 senators and congressmen that a joint communique will be issued by Peking and Washington affirming the Taiwan Relations Act, which provides for military aid to Tajwan, administration officials said.

A source said that under terms of the communique, Taiwan will not receive better arms in bigger quantities than it now gets.

Copter Crash Draws Fines

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Calling it an "obscene tragedy," state labor officials fined director John Landis, Warner Bros., and two assistants $5,000 each for the movie location helicopter crash that killed actor-Vic Morrow and two children.

State Labor Commissioner Patrick Henning said Friday producers of the film "The Twilight Zone" violated state labor laws by allowing the children to work past 6:30 p.m. and by exposing them to "an extreme hazardous situation near explosives."

Renee Shimm Chew, 6, My-ca Dinh Le, 7, and Morrow, 53, were killed last Friday about 2:30 a.m. PDT when a helicopter being used during a Vietnam war scene for the film crashed, mowing down Morrow and one of the children and crushing the other.

Thanks To New Pool Lift

Handicapped Can Swim In Altamonte

By JOE DeSANTIS Herald Staff Writer

Thanks to the combined efforts of Altamonte Springs city officials and residents and the financial support of the Burger King restaurant chain, the city's recreation department can now offer disabled persons the opportunity to swim.

Recreation Director Bill James and his staff completed the installation of an $8,000 poolside lift Thursday that easily transports disabled persons from wheel chairs into the pool at the Westmonte Recreation Center, 500 Spring Oaks Blvd.

"The nicest lady in the world was behind this and the city got a tremendous boost from Burger King which is always heavily involved in community activities," James said. The motivating force behind the disabled pool lift was Altamonte Springs resident Loretta Hobbs who suffers from a neurological disorder in her neck which impairs her movements. In 1981, which happened to coincide with the Year of the Disabled Person, Mrs. Hobbs contacted City Manager Jeff Etchberger about the idea of a pool lift after her physical therapist suggested swimming would be an excellent rehabilitative therapy. Etchberger then huddled with James about the idea of installing such a device at the city's pool at the Westmonte facility. That discussion led to last year's application for a state grant for the lift. Although the city's grant request was not approved, James and Etchberger managed to gather some valuable information. In contacting the state department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) and other agencies such as Muscular Dystrophy and the Arthritis Foundation, the city learned that more than 10,000 persons in Seminole County between the ages of 18-71 were in some way disabled, that according to a 1976 HRS survey. Burger King management supported the idea and with some leadership provided by Vice President of Marketing Yogi Moore and Bob Santulli, $8,000 was raised through various fund-raising activities such as Burger King's annual King-Dewit Golf Tournament.

With the lift now in place, James said the pool will be reserved for disabled persons on Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6 to 8

As always, - the pool will be staffed with qualified lifeguards.

With a few effortless turns of the crank, Altamonte Springs Recreation Director Bill James slowly lowers lifeguard Cindy Grimsley into the pool at the West-

James said plans are also on the drawing board to expand hours for disabled swimmers. But first, "We have to get the word out to the community about the new service at Westmonte.

"Beginning in September, we're looking at a daytime program for the disabled because school will be back in session and it won't be used hardly as much as in the summer months," James said.

James also noted that plans are in the works to assist the Seminole County School Board in starting a regular swimming program for disabled school students.

"If transportation problems can be worked out, it would be great to offer those kids a swim two or three times a week," he said. "I'm pretty sure that the lift is the only one in the county," said James. "I know it was at the time we applied for the original grant." The pool lift is manufactured by the AFW Company of North America, headquartered in New York, which specializes in equipment for disabled persons.

James said the city is looking down the road into the possibility of purchasing an attachable stretcher in addition to the present chair lift. "The swimming program for the disabled may start slow," he said. "But I think once the word gets out, it will turn into a really Ave., to make it more available to disabled beneficial program for a lot of people," even

In addition to the newly-added pool lift, James said the city has spent another $2,025 for modifications to the Westmonte Recreation Center to make the facility more accessible to the disabled public.

"We've modified an access ramp to the building to accommodate wheelchairs, widened the stalls in the restrooms and put up support bars in them," he said.

When we finish the modifications at Westmonte, our next step will be to modify the Eastmonte Recreation Center, 803 Magnolia persons too."

Lebanese Leader Hopes For United Land

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The Lebanese Parliament in the next 10 days will select a new president of that mid-Eastern nation.

And if Bashir Gemayel wins election to the office and peace comes, the Christians and Moslems who together compose the nation's 3 million inhabitants, will unite and make the country strong and independent once again.

Etieene Sacre, chief of staff of the combined Lebanese resistance forces, shared this opinion with a small group of symphathizers and supporters at a Deltona Inn meeting this past week.

The 45-year old Lebanese native was educated in Catholic schools in his homeland and studied philosophy at the College Des Freres in Beirut.

He helped found the political party which Gemayel heads the Guardians of the Cedars - and is a member of its Council of Command of the Lebanese Forces.

From the mountains he led the resistance to the Syrian invasion of Lebanon in 1976. In 1977, he united all the resistance groups into the "Lebanese Forces".

Sacre said the Lebanese government has exerted little or no power in the past eight years. "The current government of Lebanon has no control. Our government is under Syrian and Palestinian control," he said.

Christians and Moslems have lived together in harmony in Saying Lebanon is a very civilized nation, Sacre said

Lebanon for centuries.

"The Moslems of West Beirut have been living in the Christian areas because of the siege. We are not unified now because of the Palestinians and Syrians," he said.

Saying the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) represents all the Palestinians now in Lebanon, Sacre said 80,000 Palestinians moved into Lebanon when Israel was given statehood in 1948. But today, he added, there are 700,000 Palestinians in the country.

Lebanon is a small country, he said. But the Arab countries with territories four times the size of Europe are paying the Palestinians to keep them away from their lands. "They want them in our tiny country," he said.

Of the Arab nations, Sacre said, "If the Palestinians are the Arabs' brothers, why won't they take them in?"

Recently at an Orlando meeting, former U.S. Sen. Jim Abourezk, chairman of the Arab-American Anti-Discrimination Committee, said that money collected by the organization would be used in part to pressure the United States government into letting the Palestinians immigrate to the United States.

Speaking of that meeting, Sacre said the Arab nations are giving the PLO $14 billion a year. "And the PLO tries to buy everything," he said.

Of Abourezk's plans on Palestinian immigration to the United States, Sacre said, "Take them. Please take them." He said he also has suggested to French officials, who support the PLO, to take the Palestinians into their country,

He said once the foreigners in Lebanon leave and the Lebanese people are left alone, "It will be simple to unify the country once again."

He emphasized, however, the Israelis should continue their liberation of his homeland until it is "purified of the Palestinians."

Sacre said he hoped the nation's new president to be selected by the Parliament in 10 days is "one of those who has fought for Lebanon - one of those who had worked to save Lebanon.

He said the current government has been emasculated by the Syrians and Palestinians. Even though Sacre was in Washington, D.C., in recent days he did not make even a courtesy call at the Lebanon embassy. "Yes, we have an ambassador in Washington. He is like our president. He doesn't speak. I didn't stay away from the embassy to embarrass the ambassador. I just didn't want to waste my time," he said. Of the war in Lebanon, Sacre said everyone is fighting but the Lebanese Army. "This is a tragedy," he said.

Asked if the American University in Beirut could offer some leadership, Sacre said it is located in West Beirut and controlled by the Palestinians. He said this has been the case for sometime.

Saying his countrymen are not asking for money or food from the United States, Sacre urged instead that Americans write to the president, senators and members of Congress asking them to let the Israelis complete the liberation of controversial defoliant paraquat Lawyers for the state agreed Friday to a request from U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker to delay any spraying until he has resolved a suit for an injunction brought by the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML). Parker then scheduled another hearing Aug. 11 and said he would rule by Aug. 13.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement announced earlier this month it intended to spray illegal marijuana fields with plant-killing paraquat. If carried out, it would be the first large-scale use of paraquat on marijuana fields in the United States. It has been used extensively on marijuana fields in Mexico.

Opponents said the chemically treated marijuana still might be harvested and warned that it could cause serious lung damage to anyone who smoked it.

More Haitians Released

MIAMI (UPI) - Sixteen more Haitians were released from Miami's detention center Friday while state officials were criticizing relief agencies for permitting newly paroled refugees to apply for state

Gov. Bob Graham and officials of Florida's Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) department charged that the Voluntary resettlement agencies are failing to provide the Haitians with jobs and support.

Three of the 67 Haitians released in the past week from Miami's Krome Avenue detention center have applied for welfare, despite promises from relief agencies they would not be a burden on state or local governments.

Paraquat In Florida

Once again the federal government is proposing to protect the public from the hazards of marijuana by spraying marijuana fields with paraquat, a chemical herbicide that may be more dangerous than the drugs it's supposed to kill. In this case, the state of Florida will do the actual spraying but it is doing so with the blessing of DEA, the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, which hopes it will be a demonstration for other states and for those foreign countries which are major sources of the marijuana smuggled into the United States.

Florida officials say that there is no danger that they will watch the sprayed marijuana fields until the crop is "down and dead." But given the uncertain effects of paraquat in the soil and in nearby streams, and given the likelihood that some paraquat-treated marijuana will find its way to market despite the promised monitoring, that's hardly reassuring. Paraquat is not registered, nor has it been tested, for this purpose, a fact underlined in public warnings issued by the Chevron Chemical Co., the chemical's manufacturer, that it should not be so used.

Four years ago, the federal government launched a program to encourage and help finance paraquat spraying of marijuana fields in Mexico, then dropped it after an outburst of protests and a warning from then Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano that moderate smoking of paraquat-treated marijuana for several months could lead to "irreversible lung damage." Since then, the federal government has modified its position, but there is still no assurance that paraquat is safe to use. "It would be fair to say," said the acting director of the Center for Environmental Health, "that the health implications are unknown."

The hazards in Florida now are no different from those in Mexico four years ago, Marijuana, it is acknowledged, is a health hazard. Paraquat may well be a much greater one. Until its effects are known with some certainty — and until they are known to be relatively benign — it's the height of irresponsibility to try to protect the public health in this dangerous way.

Prizes 'N' Politics

All those voters who planned on casting their ballots this November in the hopes of winning a prize will be disappointed to hear that the U.S. Justice Department has nixed the voter sweepstakes idea.

The first - and, no doubt, last - voter giveaway took place recently when California voters were promised a chance to win a prize if they sent in their ballot stub to Hollywood producer Ed Shaw - the brains behind this scheme. The invitation drew 270,000 voters. Shaw had planned to repeat this in November, and otherstates were working on their own plans for a ballot

But, according to the Justice Department, the sweepstakes violates a 1940s federal law which makes it a crime "to pay or offer to pay or accept payment either for registration to vote or for voting."

The law is sensible. Shaw's attitude that elections should be fun is not. Admittedly, some recent campaigns have been conducted in a manner similar to that of a three-ring circus, but that's no reason to give door prizes.

BERRY'S WORLD

"No, my dear, a 'cluster bomb' is NOT 'like when Johnny Carson tells a series of jokes which don't get laughs."

By DORIS DIETRICH

Thoughts of Corinne Rye drifted into my mental images all day Wednesday. Maybe it was linked to a photograph I frantically searched for Tuesday in my files.

After locating the lovely picture, which may have been the last Corinne ever made, I was somewhat depressed that the photograph of Corinne and Charmly Mann had faded to a pale yellow. Corinne was presenting Charmly the "Silver Slipper" Award for acquiring the most sponsors as a company dancer with Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole.

I was present when Corinne made the presentation at Lake Mary High School at the guild's annual performance. This was Corinne's very first stage appearance, but she performed with the excellence of a seasoned pro. I'm so thrilled Corinne took center stage that night. She seemed right in place after her backstage roles for so many years.

Wednesday afternoon I phoned the home of Corinne's daughter, Valerie Weld. Sandra Orwig answered to report that Corinne "is in real bad shape" following an automobile accident on June

"She has good days and bad days," Sandra sadly acknowledged.

Corinne was badly mangled in the accident but hung onto the life she loved for one day short of a

Why Corinne! Who knows?

But she was always different. While other women were carting their kids off to college in mid-life, Corinne was Just beginning a family,

And she devoted about 18 years of her life to accompanying her two little girls, via public transportation (she never learned to drive) to dancing schools. Corinne was whole-heartedly determined that daughters (Valerie and Miriam Wright) were going to dance. And dance they did, and have been dancing since they were toddlers.

After the Rye sisters opened a dance studio in Sanford, their parents moved here later. Corinne. and her husband, the late Walter Rye, kept tabs on all the dancing students and their families just one big happy family, really.

After every School of Dance Arts recital or performance by Ballet Guild, I could depend on Corinne to ask, "Wasn't it the best show you ever

"Yes," I always agreed.

Corinne was just so pleasant - so complimentary about every little detail. She was so gentle with such a flair for lifting people up. Corinne was a lady who loved life, but most of all, she had strong family attachments that took precedence over all else.

She will be missed - deeply missed in the community that she loved so well - and that loved her

"The Sanford people are just the greatest," she repeated many times. "I never want to ever be anywhere else."

JEFFREY HART Foreign Policy Struggle

When William Clark replaced Richard V. Allen as National Security Advisor, then-Secretary of State Alexander Haig no doubt believed that Clark would be his man in the White House. Such expectations were reasonable enough. Clark had functioned amiably and competently as Haig's deputy at State, and possessed a genuine admiration for Haig.

Well, things did not work out that way, Installed in the White House, Clark, a lawyer and judge, acquired a new client: President Reagan. Henceforth it would be Reagan's interests and Reagan's policy preferences that Clark would advance.

Bill Clark is obviously comfortable in that role. During Reagan's first term as governor of California, a major personnel flap on the governor's staff threatened to unravel the administration. Clark stepped in as chief of staff and calmly restored things to smooth working order. He has been close to Reagan ever since, and because of this he knows intuitively what Reagan's policy preferences are and how he likes to operate.

Alexander Haig had his personality problems, which were enough to do him in, but on two key questions of substance Haig adopted - in conflict with Reagan's preferences - the position of the State Department bureaucracy.

This alignment was clearly indicated by Haig's fulsome words of praise in his letter of resignation: "Over the past eighteen months I have come to develop the most profound respect and admiration for the talents and dedication of the people of the Foreign Service and of the employees of the State Department. They have been and continue to be absolutely superb."

Haig's problem was that these superb people were urging accommodation on the Soviet pipeline issue and a cut-off date on arms sales to Taiwan.

Much can be said on those issues, but Haig's vociferously asserted State Department positions flew in the face of the president's profoundest foreign policy instincts.

The core of the pipeline issue concerns both credits and advanced technology. It is not the same as the grain sales to the Soviets for which they pay in cash. The West Europeans are proposing to advance large credits to the Soviets to pay for the pipeline, a major transfer of Western capital. And the Soviets were to take advantage of U.S.-developed advanced technology.

On Taiwan, one of the major trading partners of the United States and a relatively free and certainly friendly society, the State Department people were urging a major signal of lack of support, arguing that our relationship to Peking required this.

It should not be especially surprising that these positions were rejected by the president, who sees little reason why the West should be supporting the Soviets with huge capital transfers, and no reason at all for undercutting a successful small ally in the

What Clark's growing role means is thus a kind of guarantee that the main directions of the Reagan foreign policy will be set by Reagan, and that in any conflict with the State Department Reagan will very likely prevail.

It seems likely that the new secretary of state understands the equation thoroughly, and will escape the blunders of Mr. Haig.

Still Going Strong

At 85, tiny veteran actress Buth Gordon is still playing in movies, doing TV commercials - and writing books. She just penned her first novel, "Shady Lady," about a '20s showgirl, and is working on a second.

She's a senior citizen worthy of accolades, and one of her admirers, Carol Burnett, said recently, "When I grow up I want to be Ruth Gordon.'

To know why the comedienne would say that, you might read Ruth Gordon's autobiography, "My Side," published in 1976 when its author was 80.

That's where I learned that her parents didn't want their daughter, Ruth Jones, to be an actress. Acting was a very questionable career for a high school graduate, class of '14. "Be a nurse... a secretary... a lady." That's what her mother wanted, Miss Gordon revealed in her book. "Be a physical culture teacher," urged her father. These were all more suitable roles for "nice" girls.

But the 5-foot Miss Jones - who first shocked her small town of Wollaston, Mass., by changing her last name to Gordon - set her sights on Broadway.

Her mother bewailed, "Oh, Ruth, why do you have to be so different?"

Being different and ahead of her time became a way of life. It also made life harder.

After three years at the New York Academy of Dramatic Arts, she was told she was "colorless" and didn't show any promise. That would have crushed a lesser woman. Not her. She stayed in New York, looking hard for

She learned the Broadway version of sexual harassment, which was just called "life"

One of her early encounters with "life" occurred during an audition with a casting director. She wrote in her book:

He got a script and opened it. We'll read from this. Stand here, It's with your husband

"He leaned over and covered my mouth with his lips. His tongue went slowly in, out,

"Was that the way a husband kissed? If it's in the part, isn't it all right to. ISN'T IT? Is Confused and bewildered, she went along to get her first role with a road company. Thus began a series of years barnstorming across the country from Ohio to North Dakota. She also writes of the risky and illegal abortions she had while married to another struggling, aspiring actor, Gregory Kelly. One was performed on a cot in the back of a drugstore, closed for Sunday.

"Is there some way we can prevent this?" she asked the doctor. "Why sure," he answered, "have a lot of babies. That's what you were meant to." That's what everybody thought, but she knew motherhood in the '20s would be curtains for a beginning actress.

In time, the roles got bigger and better starring with Michael Redgrave, Humphrey Bogart, "Kit" Cornell, Greta Garbo.

After her husband died, Alexander Woolcott and Thornton Wilder proposed, but, instead, she had a long affair with a famous, married Broadway producer.

This time, when she found herself pregnant, she wanted the baby, but that was scandalous in 1929. So she went to Paris for five months to have the baby in secret.

When she was 45, the sprightly star fell in love with director-screen writer Garson Kanin. He was 29. Her unlikely marriage in 1942 to a man 16 years younger is still going

It was Kanin who interested her in writing, and they co-authored several films, including two of the best Tracy-Hepburn movies, "Adam's Rib" and "Pat and Mike."

She went on to screen roles: with Natalie Wood in "Inside Daisy Clover," "Harold and Maude" and "Rosemary's Baby" that won

Her career spans nearly a century of theater associations, from the Barrymores to Burt Reynolds. But what fascinates me most about this feisty octogenarian are the gutsy decisions she made alone, as a woman, early in the century.

They were decisions about careers, motherhood and marriage not even considered options by most women until 50 or 60

On The Human Giveaway

The Republic of South Africa isn't content with taking citizenship rights away from the majority black population of that white-ruled country. It now wants to "give" nearly 1 million South African blacks to another African nation.

South Africa's attitude toward its nativeborn blacks is well-known. Through a policy called "apartheid," or "separate development," South Africa relentlessly oppresses a majority of its population on the basis of race. The white minority has reserved 87 percent of the land for itself and receives 79 percent of the national income It is an authentic police state, spending 20 percent of the nation's budget on control and repression of the black majority That majority cannot vote, cannot obtain the education that is given free to whites, cannot own land, cannot travel within South Africa without a pass book and can work only at jobs not "reserved" for whites. Recent American headlines about strikes by black mineworkers in South Africa pinpointed race-based wage differences: Black underground mineworkers receive starting wages of $116 a month; whites working underground begin at $900 a month,

The government has asked the South African parliament to tighten restrictions on blacks by passing "The Orderly Movement and Settlement of Black Persons Bill." The legislation would reduce the time that blacks may stay in urban areas of South Africa from the present 72 hours to daylight hour only. Penalties for pass violations would be in creased to a $450 fine or six months in jail from the current $18 fine or two months behind bars. The government is proceeding with its plans for the establishment of separate black states in which all South African blacks will eventually have citizenship.

If this project is successful, no black will have a legal right to be in any area of the country reserved for whites. An estimated 2 million Africans have already been relocated to these homelands, although most have never seen or lived in the areas that the South African government says is their native land.

Africans are assigned to homelands by ethnic affiliation. In recent years, the South African governments has pressed for independent status for these areas; three have accepted independence, although no other nation except South Africa recognizes their sovereignty.

One of these orphan-states in Kangwane, to which South Africa has assigned 750,000 Swazi-speaking blacks: 350,000 blacks already live there. Only 7,767 jobs are available in Kangwane's 800 square miles, and the average household income is $92 a South Africa has now proposed to "give" Kangwane's people and territory to the neighboring nation of Swaziland along with a portion of another homeland, KwaZulu.

Overnight, these unwilling residents of artificially created states would become citizens of Swaziland and subjects of King Sobhuza II, a 92-year-old monarch who rules

Swaziland would gain the satisfaction of land claims dating from African colonial history. This prospect is opposed by the Organization of African Unity, which reluctantly accepts colonially drawn borders to prevent what it calls "a never-ending series of border conflicts."

Mobster's Death Linked To Donovan?

WASHINGTON — In his voluminous report clearing Labor Secretary Ray Donovan of mobster ties because of insufficient evidence. Special Prosecutor Leon Silverman briefly mentioned a former Teamsters Union official named Fred Furino.

The unfortunate Furino met a violent end, and his body was found in the trunk of his car on June 11. He had testified twice before the special prosecutor's grand jury.

What makes this passing incident from the gangster chronicles interesting is that Furino had flunked a lie-detector test in which he denied ever knowing Donovan.

If Furino had been an upright citizen, his possible acquaintance with Donovan would have been of no public concern. But he was a mob figure, which makes his false denial relevant to the Donovan investigation. For some reason, the special prosecutor did not pursue the Furino matter and turned it over, instead, to the FBI.

Furino's slaying has been designated by the FBI as a special investigation because, as a law enforcement source told my associate Tony Capaccio, "it could have larger ramifications and thus demands special attention."

The G-men have a fat file on Furino. In January 1981, informants told the FBI he was a "bagman" for the late Mafia mobster Salvatore Briguglio and had taken payoffs to ensure labor peace for Donovan's old firm, Schiavone Construction Co.

A 1980 internal FBI document, labeled "Provenzano Crime Group" after underworld figure Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, makes clear that Furino had a longstanding relationship with Briguglio and other Mafiosi. The document indicates that Furino was no

He was questioned in connection with the disappearance of former Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa. The document lists him along with Provenzano, Briguglio and Ralph Picardo as part of a group "which has affected the trucking industry throughout the northeastern United States."

Picardo was the man who charged that mob payoffs were picked up from Donovan. The FBI document lays out the chain of command: "Picardo served under the supervision of Fred Furino, who answered to Salvatore Briguglio."

The internal FBI report also details Furino's shakedown of the Canny Trucking Co. of Binghamton, N.Y., for Provenzano. Furino demanded $13,000 to assure labor peace - the money to be generated by inflated billions from a company Furino con-

Some investigators suspect Furino's gangland-style execution may have been connected to a subpoena that was served upon John Joseph DiGilio, a reported superior, the day before Furino disappeared.

DiGilio was barely mentioned in the special prosecutor's report. But a 1979 Treasury Department report identifies him as "an extremely active member of the Genovese crime family in northern New Jersey." It states that "DiGilio is a prime suspect in taking and-or issuing contracts in at least three homicides," and adds: "Of all the active members of the Genovese family, he is probably the only member who answers directly to Family bosses in New York."

Why was Fred Furino murdered? Was the timing of his disappearance and the issuance of a subpoena to an alleged Mafia hit man just a coincidence? The special prosecutor evidently didn't believe it to be relevant to his mission. But the FBI is determined to find

In reading the newspapers and listening to the news on both the radio and television, all you can hear is how our law enforcement agencies. sheriff's department and police departments are all asking for an increase in their budgets, increase in their manpower, more and better equipment and bigger jails and confinement areas.

Never once do you hear of anyone asking for support to a program to instruct and teach people how to avoid about to start spoiling and if it is not our youth to teach them right from properly taken care of, it will spoil and become a rotten egg like a habital criminal.

We have many programs that are supported and funded by the federal, state, and local governments, but not one is singled out to combat crime. We have many summer programs during school vacations for children from kindergarten and up through the grades; but I have not heard of one that teaches disipline, respect or right from crime. A criminal is like an egg that is wrong. If we could have a program for wrong, it would stay with them for a long time and our crime rate would decline and so would our taxes because our law enforcement agencies would not have to have an increased budget and the jails and confinement facilities would be adaquate.

It is a shame on our country that claims to be the best educated and wealthiest country in the world with the crime rate continually increasing and not have a program to combat crime. Stephen G. Balint Sr.

At Local Meetings

Officials Have Busy Week

(Today, The Evening Herald begins a new weekly compilation of the week's activities of local governments. Here is a capsule review of that action).

The Longwood City Commission this

-Unanimously approved site plans for developer Richard Tickel's Florida Homecrafter's Office Complex on State Road 434 and Bay Avenue with the stipulation the developer pay for 640 lineal feet of paving around the front and rear entrances of the 66,000-squarefoot project.

-Granted Florida Residential communities a six-month extension to begin construction at the Tiberon Hills Development, north of Longwood Hills Road and East of Lake Emma.

-Accepted an invitation from Hospital Corporation of America to take an inspection tour of a psychiatric hospital facility in Chattanooga, Tenn. A contingent of city officials, commission members and residents were flown to the hospital, similar to the one Hospital Corporation of America desires to construct in Longwood. A public hearing on the psychiatric hospital issue was set for Aug. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Longwood City Hall, 175 W. Warren Ave.

The Altamonte Springs City Commission this week:

-Approved an expenditure of $20,000 to the firm of Howard Needles, Tammen & Bergendoff for an independent structural analysis of the city's Public Safety Building. Problems have risen original construction specifications and what was actually built. The structural analysis will tell the city whether or not additional floors can be safely added to the present twostory building.

-Adopted its $18,617,859 proposed budget for fiscal 1982-83 pending two public hearings scheduled for Aug. 31 and Sept. 7.

-Adopted a tax rate of $2.85 per $1,000 assessed valuation for 1982-83 budget purposes.

-Approved a $448 expenditure to replace the air conditioning unit at the Westmonte Civic Center.

-Approved hold harmless agreements between the city and residents at 774 Little Wekiva Circle and 130 Spring Hills Drive to construct -Approved a $7,301 expenditure for equipment repair and replacement parts for the city's lift stations.

-Gave final approval to a hike from $5,75 to $6.25 per month in garbage pickups rates and approved cutting off water and sewer service for residents more than 35 days late in paying utility bills. The approval also sets a $25 reconnection fee to restore watersewer and garbage service.

-Approved a sewage metering service agreement with Orange County for the Tealwood Cove, Lakewood Forest and Shady Grove subdivisions.

-Denied a request for a developer to land a single engine aircraft along a temporary airstrip next to Interstate 4. The Seminole County Board of Commissioners this week: -Decided not to implement a countywide mosquito control program. Commissioners questioned the cost and effectiveness of a program but agreed to consider it for funding next year.

-Took the first step toward solving the county's office space shortage. Under the tentative plan, the commission and support offices will move to the old Seminole Memorial Hospital and the judicial system will take over their offices. Plans also call for construction of a five-story office building adjacent to the courthouse.

-Backed a mediation plan, designed to help reduce the time in court in divorce cases. The plan would have a mediator assist couples in making settlements in divorce and custody battles.

-Approved a resolution asking the Florida Bureau of Employment to continue operation of its Sanford office. The office is among those scheduled to close throughout the state as a costsaving measure. If it closes Seminole County residents will have to travel to Orange or Lake counties for state employment assistance. The unemployment benefits office will remain open at the same location.

The Sanford City Commission this

-Decided it may seek a state grant for a mosquito spraying program on its own after receiving negative feedback from the couty's other six cities about participating in a county-wide mosquito spraying program.

-Set a public hearing for Aug. 9 to consider the Sanford Airport Authority's proposed budget for fiscal year 1982-83 which totals $2.76 million.

-Heard charges from Sanford Housing Authority commissioner E. Wane Cummings that HSA commissioners were neglecting their duties due to a high rate of absenteeism at HSA meetings. No action was taken on the charges.

Detente, Grain Embargoes Have Tight Knit Ties

By L.H. GANN

M.S. BERNSTAM Public Research. Syndicated, 1982

A specter haunts communism - the specter of a militant proletariat. The Polish workers have tried to stand up in defense of their rights against the new class of party functionaries, agitprops and their Soviet backers. Soviet workers have given expression to their discontent by food riots, absenteeism, and go-slow tactics. Soviet rulers secretly fear that the example of the Solidarity movement might spread.

Even the most convinced advocates of communism no longer argue that the Soviet Union will catch up and outstrip the West in the near future. To the contrary, all agree that the Soviet Union suffers from serious economic difficulties. Agriculture especially is in a state of disarray. Food shortages are ever present, a fact admitted repeatedly in 1981 by President Brezhnev himself.

How should the West respond to Moscow's predicament? The answers to this question cut across conventional divisions between American liberals and conservatives. Both conservatively-minded farmers in the Middle West and conservativelyminded bankers on the Eastern seaboard call for "business as usual." Bankers especially have shown an amazing willingness to advance vast loans to communist governments.

Many - though by no means all academic liberals in this country look for a similar policy of business as usual or detente with the Soviet Union though for different reasons. Admittedly, they argue, the Soviet Union has many unpleasant features. But the greatest danger to peace derives from American Cold Warridrs; from Americans whose paranoid fears of the Soviet Union serve only to intensify the arms race, thereby imperilling the very existence of humanity.

Far from threatening the Soviet Union with economic sanctions, it is argued that the U.S. should "soften" the Soviet regime by trade, aid, and cultural exchanges. By tightening our economic links with the Soviet Union, we can strengthen the position of Soviet doves against Soviet hawks, steer Moscow into a more liberal policy, and thereby help the cause of mankind as a

Unfortunately, however, Soviet policy makers regard the world in a different light. Capitalism and socialism - as they see it - are locked in a fateful struggle in which global victory is destined to go to socialism Detente, they never tire of repeating, can only apply to relations between different states, not to relations between social systems. The Soviets view the international class struggle as an international enterprise that must be waged on many different planes political, military, intellectual, commercial. Even "peaceful coexistence" is only a means to intensify the international class conflict. Fortunately, according to Moscow, the global correlation of forces is changing in favor of the Soviet Union which, "objectively" speaking, forms the center of the world's revolutionary forces - as against the United States, the leading

Grain sales, like any other kind of exchange with the West, must conform to considerations of policy wider than those of a commercial kind. For the Soviets, grain purchases from the West serve a variety of functions. They enable it to build up a strategic reserve, a reserve that will protect the Soviet Union against price fluctuations in times of peace and against shortages in

The purchase of grain from abroad also enables the Soviet Union to stabilize its own system. If the West were unwilling to sell wheat and other kinds of food to the Soviet Union, Moscow would be forced to reallocate its priorities. More money would have to be invested in agriculture. This would mean that fewer funds would be available for the military and the arms industry. The Soviet Union moreover would have to make structural changes benefitting private rather than state initiative in agriculture. Even communist officials now publicly admit that the private farms contribute proportionately more to the Soviet food supply than public-sector farming. (For instance, privately-owned livestock, while consuming less than one fifth of the feed produced in the Soviet Union, provide between 33 percent and 40 percent of the country's meat, milk and

Proof that a reallocation of Soviet priorities would result from a grain embargo has been clered by the Soviets themselves. In 91 - a time when the Sovie' Unior was suffering from the effects of the American grain embargo imposed after the invasion of Afghanistan, the Communist Party of the Soviet Union agreed to a remarkable change in agricultural policy. Private enterprise, the CPSU decreed, was to be encouraged in the production of livestock. Individual farmers were declared eligible to purchase livestock from state farms.

The USSR State Bank was instructed to provide credits to agricultural entrepreneurs. No Western scholar, government official, or journalist, however, took any notice of this development. This is all the more surprising because the source material was available to the West in English.

NEWS ITEM: UNEMPLOYMENT LINES ARE THE LONGEST IN FORTY YEARS.

Government Workers, Others Can Opt Out Of SS

Q. My son says that the hospital at which he works is planning to "withdraw" from Social Security. I thought that everyone except government workers had to participate.

What will happen to the system if people can withdraw so easily?

A. Under the 1950 amendments to the Social Security Act, state and local governments as well as non-profit groups are given the opportunity to "opt out," or withdraw, from the Social Security system, provided they file the required two-year notice with the government.

Almost three-quarters of the 13 million state and local civil servants continue to participate in Social Security, and 80 percent of the 5 million employees of non-profit organizations are still covered by this program.

Unfortunately, there has been a sharp increase in the number of organizations filing to opt out of the system, particularly among non-profit hospitals.

I say "unfortunately" because the increased exodus may have serious consequences for the employees of these organizations. Most experts agree that Social Security offers benefit protection that is extremely difficult or impossible for private employers to duplicate for specific groups of workers.

Growing Older

In the rush to achieve short-term relief from the payroll tax, these organizations may be shortchanging their employees in the long run.

In addition, the increase in notices of withdrawal threatens to deprive the Social Security trust funds of an estimated $500 million a year. Because of the anticipated drain on the trust funds, as well as the potential loss of Social Security protection to millions of workers, Rep. J.J. Pickle, chairman of the House Social Security Subcommittee, has introduced legislation with a provisor to eliminate the withdrawl option.

Q. Is it true that people covered by private pensions can get low-interest mortgage loans from the pension

A. Not now. The federal law that regulates private pension plans, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, does not permit a plan to provide below-market financing of home mortgages for participantworkers.

However, the U.S. Department of Labor is considering administrative action that would enable private pension plans to be used for such loans. Congress, as well, is considering several bills that would allow for mortgage loans of this type. One of the purposes of ERISA is to ensure that private pension assets are wisely invested for the benefit of workers. Policy-makers will be looking at whether offering below-market mortgage loans to beneficiaries would maximize the overall pension assets for all covered workers, as well as benefit those individuals able to secure loans. Several public-employee pension plans currently offer such loans to their participants. Send your questions to Rep. Pepper in care of this newspaper. The volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

The powerful Tamiami All-Stars out of Miami used a combination of speed, power and pitching depth en route to an 8-2 championship triumph over Seminole Friday night in the State Bronco Tournament at the Seminole Pony Baseball Complex near Winter Springs.

As champions of the state Miami will represent Florida in the Southern Region Bronco Tournament which begins Monday in Valdosta, Georgia

"We (the coaches) are very proud of our team," Miami coach Oscar Fernandez said. "The kids played their owngame, they play very well together and there are no loopholes in our lineup."

Seminole had trouble with Miami starting pitcher Alex Fernandez who struck out seven hitters in the first two - to Curry at third who hung in and put the innings (Jody Spelman reached first tag on to end the Forest Hills rally, base in the second inning after Miami's eatcher dropped the third strike)

Meanwhile, Miami picked up a run in the bottom of the second inning. Fleetfooted Ari Delgado led off the inning by drawing a walk, stole second and eventually scored on a Seminole error.

Fernandez, who had thrown nearly every pitch perfectly throughout the first two innings, served up a pitch right in Jimmy Waring's wheelhouse and Waring unloaded a homer over the right field fence to tie the score at 1-1. Fernandez settled down to retire the next three Seminole hitters without suffering any further damage in the third.

Seminole took a 2-1 lead in the top of the fourth but stranded two baserunners in scoring position in the frame. Curry and Alan Green hit consecutive singles, Curry advanced to third on an error while Green stole second

Miami then changed pitchers and Spelman surprised the new hurler, Aury Leyva, by dropping a perfect squeeze bunt to score Curry with the go-ahead

Seminole didn't hold the lead for long, though, as Tamiami chalked up four runs in the bottom of the fifth to take a 5-2 lead. Oscar Fernandez walked while Leyva and Carlos Ros both reached on bunt singles. Fernandez scored on an error and two runs scored on Mike Bracci's double to the gap in right center. Tamlami Bracci's double prompted Seminole to Alex Fernandez singled to knock in Rodriguez, SB Bracci with the fourth run of the inning.

Seminole staged a come-back attempt in the top of the sixth as they loaded the bases with only one out. Curry and Green drew consecutive walks and Miami took Leyva out and put in Heriberto Rodriguez, the third pitcher of the night faeed but walked Eddie Evens to load the bases. Stevens popped to shallow short for out number two and the rally ended when Waring grounded out to second.

In Friday's opener Ebbert, Spelman and Stevens combined for a three-hitter and a key defensive play thwarted a late Forest Hills rally in Seminole's 2-1 win over the Tampa based team

Forest Hills had runners on second and third with none out in the seventh inning and, after Stevens came in to strike out pinch hitter Robert Harris, Mike Glover missed a squeeze attempt and Helms, who was catching, threw a perfect strike

Inverness Grand Slam Shocks Majors, 6-5

OCOEE — John Beagan's grand slam home run sparked inverness to a 6-5 come-back victory here Friday night over the Altamonte Major League All-Stars to claim the Section 1 Championship and advance to the state tournament next week in Port St. Lucie.

Altamonte was leading 4-0 when Inverness loaded the bases on three "Texas League" singles and Beagan ripped a shot to right center to tie the game. Beagan's heroics were almost overlooked as controversy erupted in the bottom of the sixth inning.

With Altamonte carrying a 5-4 lead into the final frame, Inverness got runners on second and third with just one out. One run scored on a sacrifice fly and it appeared Altamonte would get out of the inning as the runner from second seemed to be heading for home after a big turn at third.

After the runner took the wide turn the Inverness third base coach, "pushed him back to the base," according to Altamonte coach Greg Heiser. "We appealed the play but the umpire refused to call interference."

That Inverness runner ended up scoring the winning run.

Altamonte had a chance to score again in the top of the sixth when Laszaic ripped a shot that looked as if it was going out of the park. Instead, the ball hit the top of the fence and stayed inside the field of play and Altamonte got nothing in the inning while stranding two baserunners.

Everybody Wants To Lay Claim To Herschel Walker

ATLANTA (UPI) - The oversized silver Caddy was driven by a heavy-set. middleaged man. Beside him, decked in mink, was his wife. On the bumper of the automobile was a sticker which read: "Herschel is our son."

Never mind that the couple was white and Herschel Walker, junior tailback for the University of Georgia, is black

When you run with a football like Walker does, everyone wants to claim you.

Walker, a 222-pound speedster who rushed for more than 3,500 yards and scored 35 touchdowns in his first two years at Georgia, is the odds-on favorite to win this year's Heisman Trophy, college football's most prestigious award.

But Walker isn't getting excited about that, yet. He's been that close before and been disappointed.

He placed third in the 1980 Heisman balloting - behind seniors George Rogers of South Carolina and Hugh Green of Pitt, mainly because he was only a freshman. And he saw his favorite's role relegated to a secondplace finish in 1981 when Southern Calsenior Marcus Allen rushed for an NCAArecord 2,342 yards

It could happen again.

Walker, who gained more yards (1,616) than any other freshman in college football history, then more than other sophomore (1,891), could have another sensational season this fall only to have some other player steal his thunder as Allen did last year

"If that happens, then I don't need the Heisman," Walker says with a shrug. "But, if they give it to me, that's fine too. My personal accomplishments don't mean as much as how the team does. I always figure that if I do the best I can, the records and the honors will take care of themselves."

Walkers coach, Vince Dooley, feels that Walker deserves the Heisman if he has another season like the previous two.

"To me, Herschel Walker is the best there has ever been," says Dooley. "I've never seen another like him, no one who combines that much strength and that much speed.

"There have been bigger football players and there have been faster football players. But I've never seen one 283 yards against Vanderbilt. that big that fast."

as a sprinter and hopes to make the 1984 likes to be injured but I accept that as Olympics.

Many felt Walker should have won the Heisman as a freshman, especially after he outperformed Rogers when the two went head-to-head in the '80 Georgia-South Carolina game. Walker disagreed.

"I really don't think I'm that caliber of athlete, yet," the then 18-year-old Walker said modestly. "I'm still in a learning process."

"Herschel is a better runner than be was as a freshman," says Dooley. "The speed and the strength are about the same. But the experience he has gained has made a difference.

improve on what he did last year. But sophomore, is only 528 yards shy of the then he was running behind a relatively young offensive line that will be older and should be more productive this year

"Too, despite his impressive showing, Herschel may have hurt himself a year ago by trying to experiment a little, trying to develop more versatility," said Dooley. "Perhaps he was trying to yards to break Dorsett's NCAA record. develop a style consciously rather than depending upon his greatest asset, that combination of strength and speed, and letting style develop unconsciously."

Walker insists he has no advance feel for how he will perform in a game. "I never know until I step on the field," besaid. "Sometimes I'm ready to play and sometimes I just want to get back to my room. When that happens, I just go out there and try to get the game over with."

Dooley insists he was sincere when he said prior to Walker's freshman season that he didn't know how much help the Wrightsville, Ga., native would be at

"He exceeded even my finest expectations," said Dooley, "I really didn't anticipate him helping us that much that soon. But after his first couple of runs in our (1980) opener up at Tennessee, there was no question in my mind.

"The first two times he carried he gained only two and eight yards. He didn't know where he was running 1 didn't know and neither did Tennessee. But he was running. He was going someplace in a hurry.

"There was no question he was our tailback from then on."

Walker, of course, was an instant sensation - so much so that he reportedly was offered a $2 million contract to play pro football in Canada while only a

"The only thing that bothers me is that some people may have come to expect too much of Herschel," said Dooley... 'He's done so much, so soon, that it seems that some expect him to run for a touchdown every time he carries the

The only thing that slowed Walker that freshman season was an ankle injury that kept him out of more than three quarters of the Texas Christian game and most of the Ole Miss game the following week. The next week, finally healthy again, he rushed for a careerhigh

"I never concern myself with what Despite his size, Walker excels in track might have been," said Walker "No one part of the game.

> Any doubt that Walker can play injured was dispelled in the 1981 Sugar Bowl Coming off the field after his second carr of the game with a dislocated left shoulder. Walker returned to run for 150 vards and two touchdowns while leading Georgia to a 17-10 victory over Notre Dame that gave the Bulldogs the national championship.

> "I don't know anyone else but Herschel who could have done that," said Dooley. "To his credit, he played with pain. He didn't carry the ball with his left hand the rest of the game."

Walker, first college football player in we've gotten the past two years." modern times to have already been a

"I know it is asking a lot for him to two-time AllAmerica while only a Southeastern Conference career rushing record (4,035 yards) established by LSU's Charles Alexander during the 1975-76-77-78 seasons.

Currently some 900 yards ahead of Tony Dorsett's pace during the Pitt star's first two seasons, he needs 2,576 more

If, as expected, Walker makes All-America again this year, he'll become the first running back since Doak Walker (1947-48-49) to become a three-time All-America. And if picked again in '83, he'd become the first four-time winner since the turn of the century when Yale lineman Gordon Brown was so honored.

Dooley says Georgia will be depending on Walker even more this season than the past two because the Bulldogs no longer have All-SEC quarterback Buck Belue

"Going with an untried quarterback *junior John Lastinger) obviously will place more pressure on Herschel," said Dooley. But if anyone is able to overcome that, he is. I haven't talked to him about it directly, but he's usually aware of all situations."

Walker has a golden opportunity to start his bid fo the 1982 Heisman Trophy in grand fashion. Georgia's first gamewill be on prime time national television on Labor Day night (Sept. 6) against defending national champion Clemson.

However, Walker has not fared well against Clemson in the past. He has yet to score against the Tigers in two outings and in last year's Clemson game he fumbled three times with the Tigers recovering twice.

"Some people contend that Herschel isn't as sharp as he should be early in the season because he skips spring practice tto run track where he is an Olympicspeed sprinter)," said Dooley, "He doesn't appear to be in the groove early.

"I like to have our team play a good opponent early. I think it helps down the road. But opening against Clemson is carrying it to the extreme.

"Still, Walker is well aware that he hasn't done as well against Clemson as he might have and I'm sure he'll want to make a good showing. Any athlete feels that way and he's no exception "

Dooley says he doesn't like Walker carrying the ball 35-40 times a game as he did last year. "That's too much to ask of any player, even one as durable as Herschel But we don't have anyone else who can do the things he can do.'

Walker, "Anytime I've felt I had to have a rest, all I've had to do is raise my hand and they've gotten someone else in there right away.

T've never felt overworked," said

Walker may have created a problem. for the next two Georgia football teams after his eligibility runs out at the end of the '83 season.

"We've had some difficulty recruiting running backs since getting Herschel," said Dooley. "They know that as long ashe is here he'll be doing most of the running for us. But having Herschel has helped our recruiting in other areas. We've been very pleased with the people

"I told my coach I bruised my heel, and she said 'I don't care how much your heel hurts, just bring home the gold'," Fischler, 14, said.

"My coach told me to bring home the gold," said Armstrong,

Fischler, who took four medals at the 1981 festival, received an 18.85 score for her total from preliminary and final com-

Armstrong received first place with a 18.9. Barrie Muzbeck, Novi, Mich., a member of the 1982 National team, took the gold on the vault and Lucy Wener, 15, Memphis, Tenn., was first in the uneven parallel bars. Jon Casey of the University of North Dakota played his usual wild game in goal Friday, blanking the West for 21/2 periods and leading the North to a 7-3 victory and the gold medal in ice hockey competition.

Casey battled several West players in goalmouth skirmishes, and waved his stick menacingly at anyone who came into

"I usually play an aggressive game, more aggressive than some other goalies would," Casey said. "That's my style. I don't think I played any different tonight than I usually would."

Casey had lost the first game he played, 6-4, to the West, and the North's other goalie, Dave Laurion, who posted a 1-0-1 record, was named the team's most valuable player.

"I didn't play too well in my first game, so I thought I had a little bit to prove tonight," Casey said. North coach Herb Boxer said. "I think what the major difference was, was that we shot the puck very quickly in the first period. And I think the turning point was when Bobby Brooke scored his goal in the second period. He got injured on the play and that fired us up." In the bronze-medal game earlier, the South, fatigued from playing the night before and short-handed with injuries, used two goals each from Ted Speers and Dave Preuss in a spirited performance to take a 7-3 victory over the East.

The South had two players out with injuries - Kelly Miller with a separated shoulder and Dan Fishback with an aggravated hamstring pull - and Bill Schafhauser, the outstanding defenseman from St. Paul, Minn., played with a shoulder

Atlanta's Bats Silenced As L.A. Sweeps Twin Bill

ATLANTA (UPI) - Tom Lasorda said the Los Angeles Dodgers "did what we had to do" when they swept a doubleheader Friday night from the division-leading Atlanta Braves.

By rallying from two five-run deficits to nip the Braves 10-9 in the first game and then overpowering them 8-2 in the second, the Dodgers moved into a virtual second-place tie with San Diego in the National League West - but still B12 games behind the Braves.

"We couldn't afford to fall any farther behind," said the Dodgers manager. "Winning two tonight is very encouraging, especially the way we won the first game. We never quit."

Lasorda said the Dodgers, who play in Atlanta again this afternoon and Sunday, "can't come in here and split. We'd still be in contention, but we've got to gain ground. I don't worry about our team. They've been in a lot of tough situations and they know what they have to do.

"They knew we had to come in here and get some wins. It was as simple as that, we had to win."

Lasorda said he was pleased by the way the Dodgers hit Friday night. "That's something we haven't been doing," he said. "We hit the way we are capable. It's encouraging to see them swinging the bats like that."

Carlton Fisk is one of the major reasons why Tony LaRussa's job is in jeopardy as manager of the Chicago White Sox, but the veteran catcher hopes it is not too late. to make amends.

Fisk ended a 12-for-68 batting slump by driving in five runs Friday night to help the White Sox snap a fourgame losing streak with a 9-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Fisk had a pair of singles and a three-run homer in sparking a triumph that quite possibly could take some of the pressure off LaRussa.

"I was so worried about my own problems and the rest of the team that I wondered what was going to happen to us tonight," said Fisk. "I was really shocked and I'm sure my teammates were when LaRussa ordered that no player report to the clubhouse before 6 o'clock under threat of a severe fine."

Models Save Energy

Choosing major electrical appliances that are energy efficient and less costly to operate will be easier for consumers with a new product-identification program initiated recently by Florida Power & Light

Participating retail appliance dealers soon will display a bright yellow "Select and Save" emblem on room air conditioners, refrigerators and freezers that meet FPL's energy efficiency standards. Additionally, the utility has developed guide books on these appliances that rank models according to size and efficiency rating.

"The 'Select and Save' program is a lot like mileage and performance ratings for automobiles, except it compares operating costs and efficiency for those appliances that are the major energy consumers in the typical home," said Tom Petillo, FPL's Director of Marketing and Energy Conservation. "Like our other Watt-Wise programs, this new identification system will help customers save money."

It produced in its Sanford and Columbus, Ohio, plants more than 3,500 apartment units, 700 motel units plus 200 condominiums and single family homes.

Based on a record $238 million volume of business in 1981, up 38 percent over 1980, Cardinal rocketed from the country's 36th largest to its new rating.

Each year the well-known trade journal surveys every housing construction firm in America and rates those firms with an annual dollar volume of $15 million or more. Since the Columbus based company opened its Florida regional plant in Sanford in 1976, Cardinal has soared in the ratings from 64th to 14th.

An additional major source of income is the management of about 375 of the 500 apartment complexes it has developed and 33 Knights Inn motel properties in the Midwest and Flroida. Other sources of income include profits from the sale of motels, apartments, condominiums and homes as well as from furniture leasing, transportation and site construction.

Cardinal's apartment market to date has been primarily individual and group investors seeking tax shelters. The market for the company's condominiums and homes has been those in the under 35 and over 55 age categories. Cardinal is presently expanding its shelter product line to include office and institutional buildings and Cardinal Villages, campus-style living communities which will include meals and various services in addition to one-bedroom apartments.

Notan explained that a major objective of the company is to operate as independently of outside sources as possible. To reach that goal, he said, Cardinal has in-house divisions equipped to handle feasibility studies, land acquisition, site planning, engineering and design, transportation, onsite construction, sales syndication, condominium and home financing, furniture leasing, apartment and motel management, public relations and

Repairs Cost More Than Car

The escalating costs of car repair will come as a shocker.

Buying all the replacement parts for a totally demolished subcompact car would cost about 3.8 times more than the original sticker price, according to a study by the Alliance of American Insurers. That's slightly higher than the 3.5 ratio of parts for a comparable domestic car last year.

The Alliance, a national insurance trade organization, hired a professional auto damage appraiser to determine the cost of buying replacement parts and materials for a popular 1982 foreign cost of an insurance policy on a latehatchback model with a manufacturer's suggested retail price of $7,128. The architectural firms of Raymond J. Blesner, Inc., architects of Duluth, Minn., and Gerald R. Gross and Associates of Sanford recently formed a collaborative to provide services in architecture, planning and construction management.

Architects Join Forces

Both firms are recognized by the construction industry as organizations that have developed new building concepts. They are working together to broaden their base of operation, carry a larger number of projects and to maintain complete control of projects. The past year, the collaborative has grown into a diversified practice including feasibility studies, community planning, interior design and graphics.

The firms have been selected by Paulucci Enterprises for two Sanford projects. The historic Ideal Building, which once contained a Nash automobile dealership, now will be converted into offices and commercial space. The other project, a large office-warehouse complex, will be constructed at the intersection of Lake Mary Road and 25th Street. Both projects are expected to begin construction in August.

Barnett Bank Buys Century In Apopka

On Aug. 2, the Century Bank of Orange County in Apopka will officially become part of Barnett Bank of Central Florida. Barnett is obtaining the two-office bank from Sun Banks of Florida in a divestitive move by Sun. The bank has assets of about $72 million. Its second office is in Zellwood.

The cost of the acquisition to Barnett is approximately $7.5 million. This brings the total assets of Barnett Bank of Central Florida to more than $600 million and its branch total to twenty-one.

"The acquisition of the two Century Bank offices further extends our services into the northwestern section of Orange County," explained Charles K. Cross, president of Barnett. "With 21 offices now serving Orange, Seminole, and Brevard counties, Barnett is in a very strong position to serve the residents and businesses of Central Florida," he added.

James Robinson, Century Bank president, commented, "The affiliation of our bank with Barnett will be beneficial to our existing customers as well as our employees. Barnett's expansion activities, its financial resources and service offering will all help us do a better job in meeting the needs of the people in our communities. The acquisition, which is subject to completion of a definitive agreement and regulatory approval, would be Barnett's first entry into Columbia County. The State Exchange Bank had assets of $64.5 million and deposits of $57.8 million as of Dec.

The amount of the cash purchase price will be determined by the final agreement for the privately held stock in the State Exchange Bank. The bank will be a separate banking affillate in the Barnett system and no changes in personnel are anticipated. Barnett has a policy of retaining existing staff and programs whenever practical and of keeping transitional disruption to a minimum.

The Barnett board has announced also that it has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 27 cents per share payable on Oct. 1 to shareholders of record at the close of business Sept.

Local Employers Respond To SCC's Co-op Program

By DEE GATRELL Herald Correspondent

You're thinking of going to college, but you're not sure of a

You've always had some interest in management, or maybe the law. Then again, maybe your interest lies in the educational system.

With all these mixed emotions, where do you begin? You might consider making an appointment with Dr. Joan Sheppard, coordinator of Cooperative and Career Education at Seminole Community College

"Co-op is not just for the youngsters. It is also for people who are already working and are trying to change or improve their condition or position with their company," Dr. Sheppard says.

She adds that most people who enroll in college don't know about. the co-op program.

In the co-op program, not only do you get a chance to try a job in what you hope to be your career choice, Mrs. Sheppard explains, but you also receive college credit while working. You may take a co-op credit up to three times, choosing either to stay at the same place of employment or you can try a different field, she says.

Darlene Attaway has worked at Stromberg-Carlson Corp. for nine years. She says her employer encourages employees to get degrees. Darlene is a project cost coordinator in the Finance Department and is planning on receiving a degree in Market and Management.

"Part of the requirement for my degree is to do a co-op. By doing this I am learning things about my job that might touch on it, but not be a part of it. I find this very helpful," Shirley Zufelt is an administrative control analyst, also with Stromberg-Carlson. She worked for General Dynamics ta division of Stromberg-Carlson) for 15 years and has been three years at her present lob. Shirley is taking her co-op ir Business Management.

"I feel the co-op program is a good idea. It gives a person a chance to sit back and take a look at the company where he is employed, to see what jobs you can expand or be promoted to," Shirley says.

Carol Hevey is a co-op student who had the opportunity to find out that she not only wants to achieve a degree in psychology, but also in Exceptional Education.

"I think the co-op program is incredible. When you're in the classroom you learn a lot from books and lectures, but on the job, that's when you really learn," Carol says. Carol did two co-ops at Lake Brantley High School and one at the United Methodist Children's Home at Enterprise.

Her first co-op was in a psychology class where she participated and helped with discussions and lesson

Her second co-op was also at Lake Brantley, but this time she worked with Joyce Tullis in the Emotionally Handicapped Resource class, where she worked on a one to one basis with the children

Last summer Carol did her third co-op at the children's home where she did a lot of observing and was allowed to sit in on some sessions.

"It's a good way to know if you're headed in the right direction. If it's not, you still have time to get out and change your course," Carol says. Carol is now attending the University of Central Florida after receiving her degree from SCC. She is married, the mother of two daughters and works for the

Sam Phong Spirited Cat Reigns As King Of The Castle

By LEIGH TUCKER Special To The Herald

There never was any doubt about Sam's paternity, down to the rather strange marking on his right hind leg. So he was named Sam Phong, which meant "chip off the old block." His father was a fighter who had won his lady love by chasing off wooers from all over the county. Sam grew to be a fighter, too. Winnie didn't want Sam. She and David Scott had just moved to Sanford, still grieving over a black Persian they had lost, and she had no time for this scrawny atom of Siamese, which looked more like a rubber band than a cuddly kitten. But her neighbor was moving and had a litter of six to lodge somewhere. "Please keep him till I get moved and can find a home for him," she pleaded. Wily woman. That was 21 years ago.

The Scotts had already acquired two large Alsatians, but that didn't bother Sam. One swift skirmish and the dogs kept a respectful distance. They would not even venture near his supper dish until he stalked away from it with a disdainful glance, which said, "have the crumbs you burns."

Sam created such chaos amongst the neighboring feline community (he always won) that the Scotts had him desexed and kept him housebound as much as they could where he took out his frustrations on the furniture and the curtains until they persuaded dogs he reduced to deferential obedience in a jiffy.

him to use a scratching post instead, temporarily covered with catnip.

"He's been through six or seven of those posts," sighed Winnie. But she refused to have him declawed. That would have been too devastating for such a spirited cat. Sam is a well-traveled cat. His owners both had naval careers. David retired in 1960, before they acquired him, and the Scotts thought they were settled in Sanford, with Winnie working at the Naval Research Laboratory in Orlando.

But she was transferred to the Panama Canal Zone, so they rented their home and moved there. where David found a job with the air force. Back they came in 1971, only to transfer once more—this time to New Orleans. In 1979 they returned to Sanford to stay, both of them retired.

Sam was flown to Panama while his owners took the more prosaic way by ship. At the base he was ! allowed to roam free until a child persisted in pulling his tall, which he carried straight up at all times, a tempting target.

After that he was under "house arrest" for two weeks, under orders of the shore patrol. A hunting dog was added to the Scott household. When he first saw Sam and gave chase, Sam darted up a tree, then jumped on the dog's back. Three other hunting

When the Scotts moved to New Orleans, Sam rode in the back of the car like a properly chauffeured cat, regally regarding the countryside from the rear window ledge, whilst dogs crowded the seat below.

Sam had an opinion on almost everything, and he said it in a vocal range which would have put Caruso to shame. Especially when one of his owners was talking on the phone. Jealousy, perhaps. Too much attention not given to him?

Then disaster struck-Sam lost his voice. It nearly drove him berserk; no matter how he tried. he could only croak weakly. Never before had he been ill. Winnie took him to the vet, a miserable

"It's laryngitis," diagnosed the vet. "Too many late nights on backyard fences. How old is he?" "Fourteen," answered Winnie,

"Fourteen months?" asked the vet. He couldn't believe fourteen years.

Sam's 21 now, a bit stiff in the joints, but happy, The Scotts children are grown, the grandchildren visit now and then, there are other dogs in the household, big and little, young and old.

But Sam is king of the castle.

He has only to stalk through the living room for everyone to know it.

Crooms High School Class Meets For 20th Reunion

The Class of 1962 was called to order on July 22 for their first session of the 20th class reunion, with class president

Harry Harvey, presiding. The occasion was one of great joy and happiness for those classmates who gathered for Hospitality Night at the Elks Home.

The evening of social togetherness was one of getting to see and talk to those classmates (some they had not seen in 20 years) and hearing experiences of their lives and careers since they marched down the aisles of Crooms High School. The evening was filled with plenty of tall talk and disco music. Chairman of the 1962 class reunion, Mrs. Juanita Adams Golden, presented the hostesses: Mrs. Valincy Richards, Mrs. Barbara Kirby, Ms. Lindie B. Stewart, Ms. Elaine Crummity and

Mrs. Sheralyn J. Brinson. The Reunion Banquet Ball was held at Jerry's Restaurant. Toastmaster was James C, Hampton, invocation was by Robert L. Brown, and the class and visitors were welcomed by John Knight.

Coffee Honors Visitor

Viola and Woodrow (V) and Woody) Clark are back at their home near Hendersonville, N.C., after visiting a few days in Sanford. The couple lived here many years where both were very active in the community.

During Vi's administration as predident of the Woman's Club of Sanford, she spearheaded the club into winning more awards under the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs point system, than perhaps any other president in preceding years. While visiting in Sanford, Vi and Woody were guests of Lucy and William P. "Bud" Layer at their Loch Arbor home. The two families are former neighbors. One of the events honoring Vi was a lovely coffee at the Mayfair home of Jeri and Bill Kirk. What a beautiful way to beat the summer blahs at the fete when more than 40-friends.

called — all wearing crisp summer fashions — to greet a longtime friend. Assisting the hostess in pouring and serving the dainty party fare were Lucy Layer, Dorothy McReynolds and Liz Helfrich. Guests lingered way beyond the appointed hours to absorb the elegant atmosphere and warm hospitality. "Why don't we do this more often?" was the leading topic of conversation Mary Jo Cochrane, Virginia Wood, Geneva Spaulding and Mary Laurendine have returned from Chicago where they attended the annual conventional of Pilot International, a service organization for women: Sanford Pilot Club president Mary Jo said, "I had a fantastic time. I was very impressed with the business part of the convention. Everything was on time and we had an honest election. We really transacted business." Of course, there was more than business at the convention in the Windy City. "We saw Chicago," Mary Jo laughed. She mentioned a guided tour and viewing the city from the Hancock building. "We had magnificent accommodations," she stressed. Mary Jo added that 1,500 working women (employed and retired) were in attendance. "Pilot Club has something to be very, very proud of," she said.

Bettye Smith is in top form these days. Not only is she the attractive president of Pankhurst Inc., but she is also turning toward a political seat. If self-confidence counts, then you can count on Bettye.

Marian Ann Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Ray, 111 Briarwood Drive, has received a B.S. degree from Evangel College in Springfield, Mo.

Marian, a 1978 graduate of Seminole High School, majored in mental health. She was on the honor roll and was active in SCOPE, the Evangel student Christian service organization, Happy wedding anniversary to John and Suzanne Dickey, Aug. 2; Edward and Patricia Coker, Aug. 6; and Robert and Betty Sonnenberg, Aug. 8.

How does one go about preparing and serving a dinner for a person who is accustomed to the finest cuisine as a matter of everyday course in his work?

It was my husband's (Carl's) birthday, and I really wanted to "put on the Ritz (or dog)."

Even in casual Florida, it is traditional for our family to ditch the paper plates several times annually for a formal-type dinner that takes several days to prepare, and that much time to shake the cobwebs and dust off the appointments. I mentioned to daughter Mary that I had planned Beef

Wellington. "That sounds perfectly divine," she devilishly drooled. "Will we be receiving a formal invitation?" she

I nearly passed out when Mary, her husband, Larry Blair, and granddaughter Laurie, drove up. All I could see was that they appeared to be dressed in strictly formal attire.

But when their feet touched terra firma, they were only half formal. Mary wore a sedate, black sequined strapless top with dangling earrings, a sparkling tiara, black elbow gloves, faded blue jeans and no shoes.

Larry had donned a black ruffled shirt with a white butterfly tie, a white tuxedo jacket, short, short frayed shorts and tennis shoes sans socks.

Laurie had on a long pink gown with a halo of flowers in her long blonde hair. She was clutching onto a play dress for

'rough housing" as she put it. All this made Carl's day including the three days his wife spent preparing the luscious Beef Wellington.

Woodchucks, Boys And Monotony

There is a woodchuck on the loose (at least 1 hope he is still on the loose) outside an apartment complex near where I live Many of the people who reside there have small gardens which they have planted with tomatoes, corn, squash, strawberries, beans, leeks, rhubarb and other vegetables. While these people do not depend on their gardens for their subsistence, they do work hard in them - often after work. Besides which there is nothing like fresh, just-picked vegetables from your own garden. The woodchuck of course does not know all this. This predator is simply following his instincts when he invades the gardens to sample (and more!) the tasty young leaves and

The residents are understandably upset. They have taken to throwing large rocks at this humble creature. One angry gardener last week aimed his shotgun at the furry, four-footed

I think I know how these people feel. Yet my strongest sympathies lie with the woodchuck.

My favorite story about Daniel Webster concerns a woodchuck. It appeared in Youth's Companion in September 1860. Called "Daniel Webster's First Case," it tells the story of young Daniel (some 10 or 12 years old) and his older brother Ezekiel who set a trap and captured a woodchuck that had been eating vegetables in the Webster garden.

Ezekiel proposed to kill the animal but Daniel looked with compassion upon the meek, dumb captive and offered to let him go free. The boys could not agree and so they appealed to their father to decide the case.

"Well, my boys," said the older gentleman, "I will be the judge. You shall be the counsel and plead the case for and against the prisoner's life and liberty."

After Ezekiel had made his reasoned argument, it was Daniel's turn. Here is how the story is told in Youth's Companion:

As Daniel's eyes looked upon the soft, timid expression of the animal and as he saw it tremble with fear in its narrow prisonhouse, his heart swelled with pity. God, he said, had made the woodchuck. He had made him to enjoy the bright sunshine, the pure air, the free fields and woods. He was not a destructive animal. He simply ate a few common vegetables of which they had plenty and could well spare a part.

He destroyed nothing, except the little food he needed to sustain his humble life. And that little food was as necessary to Saints And his existence as was to them the food upon their mother's

God had furnished their own food. He gave them all they possessed and would they not spare a little for the dumb

During this appeal, tears had started to the old man's eyes and were fast running down his sunburnt cheeks. His pity and sympathy were awakened by the eloquent words of compassion and strong appeal for mercy. He sprang from his chair. - while Daniel was in the midst of his argument - and turning to his older son while dashing the tears from his eyes. exclaimed, "Zeke, Zeke, you let that woodchuck go

Freddie, the nine-year-old boy next door, was idly tossing a baseball up in the air and catching it the other afternoon when I came home from work.

"Hi, Freddie," I said, "Have you had a nice day""

"Nah," he said. "There's nothing to do." Freddie was bored. Yet I was not too sorry for him. I was remembering some words of the British philosopher Bertrand

The capacity to endure a more or less monotonous life is one which should be acquired in childhood, said Russell. He blamed modern parents for providing their children with too many passive amusements. They don't realize the "importance to a child of having one day like another - except, of course, for somewhat rare occasions."

"I do not mean," said Russell, "that monotony has any merits of its own. I mean only that certain good things are not possible except where there is a certain degree of monotony

He went on to explain his position by saying, "Constructive purposes do not easily form themselves in a boy's mind if he is living a life of distractions and dissipations, for in that case his thoughts will always be directed toward the next pleasure rather than toward the distant achievement."

'BELIEVER' CONCERT

"Impact" an ensemble of young adults from First Baptist Church of Oviedo will present the inspiring Christian musical by Dallas Holm, "Believer", at 7 p.m. August 8 at the church. Jack Savedge is director and solo work will be by David Carter, Shirley Denard, Robin Carter, Tina Dunn, and Steve Bailey. The concert is free to the public. The church is located at 45 W. Broadway.

Having God On Our Side

Text: "What shall we say then to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?" (Romans 8:31)

In a world like ours, to have God on our side is extremely important. After all, who can really be against us if God is for us?

Not long ago two little girls had the chance to see Queen Elizabeth's picture on television. One said to the other, "She really doesn't do anything. All she does is reign." They knew that she was a monarch in name only. She is a symbol to the British people and in reality holds no power. As a matter of fact, she is even denied the privilege of taking sides in political questions. She must remain neutral. It is not that way with God.

God isn't just a symbol. He doesn't just reign. He is not neutral. He takes sides in life, It is important in the kind of world we are living in to know that the God we worship is one who is deeply involved in affairs. He is not an uninterested bystander.

In Jesus we discover what God is like. He tells us he is on our side when we sin. Now that doesn't mean that He likes for us to do things that are wrong. He is there to help us find the strength to do those things that are right and to conquer the urges to do wrong.

Frankly I find it to be the most wonderful thought in the world that when I have gone astray, when I have wandered from my Father's house, that my Lord offers me the chance to begin again.

To know that somebody believes in me is indispensable. It is like this: One afternoon a popular opera was being performed at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and a famous tenor was singing. Every seat was sold. The curtain went up and a disappointed audience heard the announcement that the famous tenor was ill and that an unknown substitute was to take his place.

Pastor's Corner By The REV, H. WIGHT KIRTLEY Community United Methodist Church, Casselberry

The performance began and the substitute made his appearance and sang his first piece. Usually, that solo was followed by a great applause from the audience. But this time there was total silence.

Something happened, however. A little boy, seated near the stage, got up and in a voice filled with love and emotion said, "Daddy, you're wonderful!"

The reaction was spontaneous. Everyone began to clap furiously...and wiping tears away. The tenor knew what it meant to have someone on his side.

And you and I, when we begin to feel that nobody cares, can be assured that God is on our side, urging us on, sustaining us in our sorrow, offering us strength to start again. "If God is for us, who can be against us?"

THOUGHTS

The longest word in the Bible is probably Mahershalalhashbaz. The Lord told Isaiah to give the prophetess' baby that name.

"And I went unto the prophetess; and she conceived, and bare a son. Then said the Lord to me, Call his name Mahershalalhashhaz."
