Lake Mary Man Awarded $1,000 In Beating Case

By BOB LLOYD
 Herald Staff Writer

A circuit court jury today awarded a Lake Mary man $1,000 compensatory damages — and no punitive damages — in his lawsuit against the City of Sanford and three police officers, in connection with an incident on March 23, 1975 outside a motel lounge.

The police officers indicated they may make a decision soon on the possibility of filing a counter-suit for defamation of character.

Lester M. Cox, 33, of Lake Mary, testified Wednesday that Lt. Richard Nooney, Sgt. William Foster and Patrolman Gordon C. Reid struck him on the head and that Foster choked him with nun chakus until he "blacked out" during the incident at the now-closed Cavalier lounge on U.S. 17-92.

The officers testified that they didn't beat or strike Cox and that he wasn't hit at all by Foster with the nun chakus.

Cox, a truck driver, said he worked at the motel-lounge as a part-time handyman in return for compensation on his room rent. He said the alleged assault took place after he ejected Clarence Runney, of Sanford, from the lounge a second time that night because Runney was "causing a disturbance" and had been asked to leave the property and didn't.

Cox sought in excess of $5,000 damages from the policemen and the City of Sanford claiming he suffered cuts and bruises about his wrists, neck and face and that his clothing was torn. He testified that he was treated by a physician "two or three days after" the incident for bruised neck nerves that caused a "numbness in my shoulder."

Cox testified he doesn't know what he was hit on the head with, but Larry Ellswick, who was a patron at the bar, testified that Foster "pulled out a pair of sticks" and hit Cox on the top of his head several times and then used the sticks to choke Cox "until his face turned red."

Ellswick testified that he told Foster the sticks "were unnecessary" and was threatened with arrest for interfering with an officer.

"I thought I'd never see it... a man being taken advantage of and then being charged for it," Ellswick said.

Cox was arrested on misdemeanor assault and battery charges and acquitted in a July 25, 1975 non-jury trial in county court.

Luckie Williams, who was the Cavalier lounge supervisor and bartender the night of the incident, testified that Foster beat Cox on the back and head with the sticks and "it sounded like a broomstick hitting a brick wall." Williams said Foster struck Cox "more than six times" and that he "was afraid they were going to kill him (Cox)."

Williams said when Cox was choked with

Public Hearing Issue Stymies School Board

By KRIS NASH
 Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board voted Wednesday to postpone approval of a public hearing site in the current teacher-administration contract dispute until school board attorney Douglas Stenstrom can determine whether the public should be allowed to participate in the hearing.

Stenstrom said he felt there was "a serious legal question" as to whether the public hearing, which is required by Florida law, should be opened to comments from interested citizens who are not involved in the contract debate.

School Board Chairman Dave Sims, Supt. William P. (Bud) Lyster and William Moore, head of the Seminole Education Association (SEA), met Monday and set Jan. 12 as the date for the hearing.

"The law calls it a public hearing," said Stenstrom, "and that, by its very nature, would seem to imply participation by the public. But what we have here is a dispute between two parties, one with the exclusive right to bargain with the other, which is a public employer."

"I think all of you can see the paradox in it."

The problem on approving the hearing date arose when SEA officials requested that the session be moved to Lyman High School, where they felt greater public attendance would be possible than at the 150-seat county commission hearing room in the courthouse.

Several panel members said that if the public cannot take part in the proceedings, they see no reason to switch the hearing site. So it was agreed to delay a decision on the SEA's request until next week when Stenstrom hopes to have the legal question resolved.

The public hearing is the final step in a process aimed at settling disagreements which derailed contract negotiations between the school board and the SEA last August. Seminole teachers have been working without a contract for more than 90 days.

State law requires the school board to "conduct a public hearing at which the public shall be required to explain their positions with respect to the report of a state mediator who attempted to arbitrate the impasse."

"Thereafter," the law states, "the (school board) shall take such action as it deems to be in the public interest, including the public interest, including the interest of the public employees involved."

Stenstrom said he has been checking into similar situations which have occurred in the past in other Florida counties, including Ocala, for aid in ascertaining the correct legal course.

"Apparently this is something that has been a source of concern in other areas where collective bargaining was involved," Stenstrom said.

"I've got mixed emotions on it, myself," said Sims. "I feel that it will have probably the most interest of anything we've had since the zoning (hearings) in 1973 which led to the redistricting of thousands of county school children).

"But," he added, "I frankly don't want to see it get to be a cheering match on one side or the other for the things we will discuss."

Panelist Robert G. (Bud) Feather said that since the affair is "our hearing, I think we ought to be able to decide whether the public is allowed to participate. And I think we should give them the opportunity to speak."

"I would agree with that," said Stenstrom, "if it is legal. If it is not legal and the SEA takes you to court, then the whole proceedings will have to be scheduled again. We have to maintain strict compliance with the law."

Election Certified

Sanford City Commissioners have certified this week's city election, declaring Mayor Lee P. Moore and City Commissioner Julian Stenstrom elected to new four-year terms, and setting the runoff election for City Commission Seat Two for Dec. 21.

Incumbent City Commissioner Gordon T. Meyer will face E. O. (Eddie) Keith in the runoff for Seat Two. Meyer is completing his seventh year in office.

Official results gave Moore 1,460 votes to 415 for Harry Skop, South Seminole publisher, while incumbent Stenstrom received 1,078 to 716 for James Melvin in the Seat Two race.

In the four-man Seat Two contest, Meyer received 720 votes to 497 for Keith while Larry D. Blair received 452 and A. G. DeLaubandiere received 278.

Nineteen absentee ballots were cast in the election. Absentee ballots for the Dec. 21 runoff are expected to be available at Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce's office in the courthouse late Friday afternoon.

Turnout in the election was 1,965, or 23.3 per cent, of the 8,270 registered voters.

Eatery Picks Airport As 14th Site In State

By MARYLIN TIPTON
 Herald Correspondent

Kim Townsend, vice president of Jerry's Caterers, Miami, today affirmed his company's intention of establishing a restaurant facility at the Sanford-Central Florida airport.

Townsend told the Sanford Airport Authority that his firm, "has 13 locations, all in Florida, and specializes in airport food franchises, gift shops and catering."

J. S. (Red) Cleveland, director of aviation at the airport, said, "We have submitted a proposed contract to Jerry's and established a fee of $700 a month plus 5 per cent of the gross on food and 7 per cent of the gross on the lounge and liquor."

The Authority moved to authorize plans and specifications toward drawing up a final contract with Jerry's and authorized preliminary studies on the air-conditioning situation in building 46, the building which will be occupied by the restaurant.

Townsend would not speculate on when the restaurant might open.

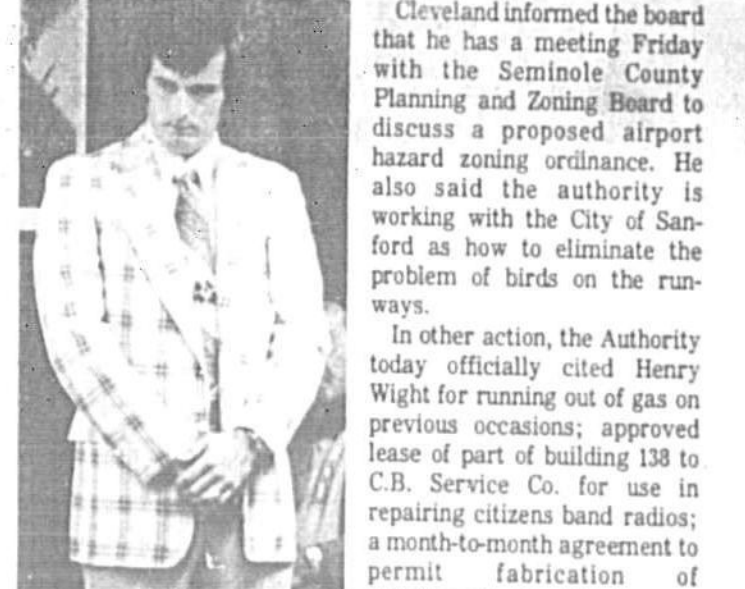

The Authority today also discussed the possibility of bringing charter flights into the Sanford Airport, noting there had been none in over a year.

Several charter operators last month began advertising trips to central Florida.

An Instrument Lighting System (ILS) might be requisite to getting many charter flights Cleveland said, adding, "we hope to have the ILS system installed this coming year. We have informed the Federal Aviation Authority (FAA) that we wish to do this work and are awaiting their approval. At that time we will begin the plans and specifications for the project."

Cleveland informed the board that he has a meeting Friday with the Seminole County Planning and Zoning Board to discuss a proposed airport hazard zoning ordinance. He also said the authority is working with the City of Sanford as how to eliminate the problem of birds on the runways.

In other action, the Authority today officially cited Henry Wright for running out of gas on previous occasions; approved lease of part of building 13B to C.B. Service Co. for use in repairing citizens band radios; a month-to-month agreement to permit fabrication of upholstery by Aire Interiors; an agreement to allow Sanford Air Co. to set aircraft and lease ramp space; and a one-year lease with renewal clause for Starline Enterprises, Inc.

Santa Early For DeBary Woman

By ED PRICKETT
 Herald Staff Writer

Christmas came early this year for one DeBary woman. It came after an agonizing hour of thinking she had lost money sent by her two children for deposit in a local bank.

The Santa Claus, if you'd like to call him that, turned out to be a 10-year-old Longwood youth, who valued honesty more than he valued money.

So, after finding a wallet containing $400, Kevin Jones didn't tuck it inside his own pocket.

He promptly turned it in to owners of the Longwood Flea Market.

Meanwhile, Sue Pierce of DeBary was frantic. After browsing about the flea market, she returned home — returned to DeBary to find her wallet and $400 of her children's money missing.

"I realize I didn't have a billfold; I had it out of my purse," Mrs. Pierce said.

"I thought: 'This is the worst thing that ever happened to me.'"

Especially because two of her children who are serving in the Army had sent her part of their monthly earnings for deposit. She feared the money was lost — forever.

Under normal conditions, Mrs. Pierce said, she carries only a small amount of cash, never enough to get concerned over. But on that day the wallet was swelled with dollars sent her from Germany for deposit.

She called the sheriff's department and reported the loss. Meanwhile, flea market owners had also called sheriff's deputies to report Kevin had turned in the billfold — with all the money intact.

"Honey," Mrs. Pierce said, "I tell you, I hugged his neck."

"No, it (the money) wasn't mine. It belonged to my children."

Bernstein, Wife Tell All

WASHINGTON (AP) — Husband and wife journalists Carl Bernstein and Nora Ephron made their own news Wednesday by announcing his resignation from the Washington Post, she announcing what she called the death of the feminist movement. Bernstein, whose Watergate reporting with Bob Woodward won a Pulitzer Prize for the Post, said Wednesday he would concentrate on book writing after leaving the paper Jan. 1. Ms. Ephron, senior editor of Esquire magazine, told a Brown University audience the women's movement had no leadership and had failed to help women come to grips with their role in society. "For a lot of women, the women's movement has just given them a political rationalization for their fear of success," she said.

Man Gets $1,000 In Suit Against Police

The man chukus, a karate weapon of oriental origin made of two wooden sticks connected by a length of flexible material, that Cox head "swelled to twice its normal size and turned dark red."
Witnesses testified that Rummy, who wasn't called as a witness in the trial, was at least 20-feet from Cox at the time of the melee between Cox and the officers.
Foster, first officer to arrive at the lounge after Rummy called police after being ejected from the lounge the first time, testified that the lounge door "flew open and Cox bodily carried Rummy out and dropped him in the buttocks."
Foster said the two men "squared off like they were going to fight" and had a verbal exchange which the officer ordered them to

After other officers arrived, Foster said, Rummy had moved away from Cox and then Cox turned and ran toward Rummy "as if he was going to attack him (Rummy)."
Foster said Rummy "had been drinking but I don't believe he was intoxicated." He said Cox was intoxicated at the time but persons who were at the bar denied this in their testimony.
Foster said "I never struck Cox with the mm chukus or with my hands" and that he used the sticks during the struggle to restrain Cox.
Foster said he didn't observe any swelling of Cox' head or lacerations and told the jury that Cox never lost consciousness and that Cox sat up and talked to him on the way to the police station for booking.

Nooney and Reid both testified that they didn't strike Cox. Reid denied that Cox "went down on the parking lot" in front of the patrol car or passed out as witnesses for the plaintiff had testified.
City Attorney Vernon Mize argued that excessive force wasn't used on Cox by the officers but Michael Matthews, lawyer for Cox, argued that his client was unlawfully assaulted and falsely arrested.
Foster testified that he holds a first-degree brown belt in karate and has continuously trained for three years under an instructor from the Seminole Sheriff's Department. He said he has only used mm chukus twice during the three years to restrain persons.
Cox' lawyers presented an ear-splitting courtroom demonstration by south Seminole black belt karate instructor David Styles in which Styles used mm chukus to break pine boards. He testified the sticks are "deadly weapons" that can be used to kill a person.

Police instructor James Brantley told the jury that his student, Foster, in his opinion, was qualified to use mm chukus, as a police weapon for defense as well as for restraining and "come-along" techniques in handling prisoners.
Foster demonstrated on Mize, for the jury, how he used the mm chukus on Cox' neck to subdue him.
Police Chief Ben E. Butler testified that Foster was a member of a tactical squad of officers who were authorized to train and use mm chukus. "I wouldn't want my men to have them if they weren't properly trained," Butler said.

Mother Sentenced In Son's Beating Death

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — A mother convicted of helping slaughter and assault in the death of her son, David.
"I can't believe the rottenness of this country and the Seminole circuit court judge's authority as he sentenced her to 30 years in prison."
"My judgment is before God," Debra Wellbacher, 20, said Wednesday as she and the others were sentenced to manslaughter and assault in the death of her son, David.

"I can't believe the rottenness of this country and the Seminole circuit court judge's authority as he sentenced her to 30 years in prison."
"My judgment is before God," Debra Wellbacher, 20, and ordered him thrashed with bare hands and sticks over a four-month period until the boy collapsed and died in July.

The boy's body was put on a cot in a back bedroom, and household members took turns guarding the door 24 hours a day to ward off the devil. They said they expected the boy to be resurrected.

A policeman searching the house found his body on Sept. 19.
Mrs. Wellbacher, Cunningham and Cunningham's daughter, Carolyn, 27, were each given two consecutive 10-year prison sentences for first-degree manslaughter and second-degree assault.
Thelma Cunningham, 45,

Cunningham's wife, and Lorraine Edwards, 19, a former schoolmate of Mrs. Wellbacher's, were sentenced to 15 years each for second-degree manslaughter and second-degree assault.
The judge said he would recommend that Cunningham serve his full 20 years without leniency or parole.

Pair Arrested On Drug Charges

By BOB LLOYD

Sheriff's deputies Wednesday arrested two men on felony marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges in separate incidents in south Seminole.

Deputy R. D. Strobbridge jailed Michael Lee Vanhorn, 26, of Fayetteville, N. C., in lieu of $5,000 bond, following a traffic stop of an auto on U. S. 17-92 at Wildmere St., Langwood.

Deputies reported more than 107 grams of green, leafy material in a styrofoam container were seized in the arrest.

Robert Charles Gidday, 26, of 2500 Howell Branch Road, was also held on $5,000 bond, according to county jail records.

Sheriff's Sgt. Oscar Redden Jr. reported a suspect was Deputy G. A. Bare was investigating a complaint at the Foxcroft Apartments when he was invited into Gidday's residence. The officer said he observed a large ash tray containing a smoking pipe in the middle of the living room floor with a baggie of green, leafy material alongside the ash tray. # CALNO Delegates Okay Disposal Study

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Delegates from the county commission and the seven cities of Seminole County to the Council of Local Governments unanimously approved an idea to create a joint study on solid waste disposal.

At the meeting Wednesday night in Altamonte Springs, it was agreed that the delegates would go back to their member governments for ratification and appointment to a study committee to look into the possibility of creating a regional solid waste disposal unit in the county in accordance with state law. Deadline is 1978 for a solid waste unit to be in operation.

Altamonte Springs Mayor Norman Floyd and Lake Mayor

Walter Sorsom have been serving as a committee of two in the matter.

Floyd said today that concurrence is needed from the governing bodies that they wish to pursue a joint program. He said that his idea is that the governing bodies would act together in creating a solid waste disposal using possibly an incinerator method with fertilizer and energy as by-products.

"If we can organize and get representatives together, we can do an in-depth study and come up with a viable joint program involving the cities, the county and possibly the whole region," Floyd said.

All cities were represented at the meeting and new County Commissioner Robert French represented the county commission.

Faulty Brake Caused Auto-Train Accident

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board says the derailment of an Auto-Train near Jarrett, Va., last May 5, occurred when a dragging brake caused a wheel to overheat and come apart.

No one was injured when 23 automobile-carrying cars of the northbound train derailed on the mainline of the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, but total damage was estimated at more than $1.7 million.

The board said Wednesday that the broken wheel dropped off the rail and rolled on coasters for more than a mile before the cars tipped over.
It said the wheel fractured because it was overheated by a dragging brake. The brake did not completely release, the board said, because the 54-car train was too long and because passenger-train type brakes were being used.
Auto-Train, which transports passengers and their automobiles to and from Washington and Louisville to Sanford, since has inspected its auto-carrying cars for wheel problems.
It now uses an inspection procedure that exceeds both industry and federal requirements. It also has made plans to convert its entire fleet to freight-train type brakes.

Dissident Demos Dumped

Super Santa SALE

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Senate President Law Brantley has shuffled memberships in seven committees following a storm of protests over his initial appointments.
However, in all the swaps, Brantley kept the so-called "Doghouse Democrats" frozen out of favorable assignments.
One dissident, Sen. Robert Graham charged he was left out because he refused to give "a pledge of unthinking acceptance" to Brantley's goals.
Brantley said the changes were made to correct "some voids which were human error on my part in not having certain delegations represented on certain committees."
Following the initial appointments made by both Brantley and House Speaker Don Tucker, some had charged they represented a return to mainly rural domination of the legislature.
The eight-member Dade delegation was particularly upset and Brantley designated his running mate, Senate President Pro Tempore Sherman Wynn, D-Miami, to try to soothe ruffled feathers in the Dade delegation.
Wynn came back with proposed changes involving six of the eight Dade senators.
Brantley announced Wednesday he had agreed to changes involving four of the six.
The two he left out were dissidents Graham and George Firestone.
Brantley said Graham had not asked for any changes in his committee assignments.
Graham said that was true, but only because he was "unwilling to sacrifice my independence and my ability to speak for my constituents" by giving a pledge of loyalty to Brantley.
The major change announced by Brantley involved the Transportation Committee. He agreed to Wynn's proposal to take Wynn and the committee and put Sens. Ralph Poston and Vernon Holloway, both D-Miami, back on.
Poston, chairman of the committee for eight years, had wept when Brantley announced he was dumping him and Holloway from the panel.
Sen. John Vest, D-Cocoa, and Pat Thomas, D-Quincy, were added to the Appropriations Committee because Brantley said their areas had initially been overlooked in appointments to the powerful committee.
Sens. Tom Tobasson, R-Pensacola, and Tom Gallen, D-Bradenton, were added to the Government Operations Committee while Sen. Don Childers was added to Agriculture.

Tuna Fishermen Caught In Net

Not the least of the problems of tuna fishermen is that the porpoise is an engaging and lovable animal which occupies the same pedestal in American hearts as the horse and dog.

Thus throughout all of the ongoing hearings in Washington and San Diego, Calif., on how to reduce the porpoise mortality rate while tuna fishing, there was no suggestion that fatally trapped porpoise be processed for food.

We are sure that Americans would have it no other way, so the answer to the porpoise mortality problem should concentrate on pragmatic things, or, as they say in politics, on the art of the possible. Unfortunately, it is difficult to determine exactly what is possible or pragmatic.

The single most important question that must be answered before intelligent discussion can begin is whether the porpoise is, indeed, an endangered species—and if so how many of the mammals can be killed each year without calamitous results?

The Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 simply requires that the porpoise mortality rate be kept to "incidental levels." Administratively this has been translated to mean that fewer than 30,000 of the animals can be killed next year. But nobody appears to be entirely sure. During the federal hearings in San Diego, some reputable scientists estimated that the figure could be five times that high.

Another unanswered question is what effect the ever-tightening porpoise regulations will have on the conservation of tuna, also a species that must be managed and conserved. Will porpoise limitations force tuna fishermen to take smaller and younger fish to the detriment of good conservation practices? Nobody knows.

On the constructive side, the hearings did exhibit a sensitivity to the problem and a determination to solve it. Conservationists admitted that they were as concerned about people in the tuna industry as they are about porpoises. Tuna fishermen, with few exceptions, have used their experience to save marine mammals. And for the first time we have a feeling that some genuine scientific research into the habits and psychology of entrapped porpoises is underway.

Our inescapable feeling is that there will not be a quick, simple or fessive answer to the porpoise problem. Conservation will come in a series of step by step advances as some of the questions are answered.

For that reason alone, sweeping administrative judgments would be harmful because they would be based more on political and social judgments than on existing knowledge. On that basis, the outnumbered tuna fisherman could become an endangered species himself.

Mexican Strife

While the transition from President Ford to President-elect Carter is going smoothly in this country, the transition from President Luis Echeverria Alvarez to President Jose Lopez Portillo was a time of turmoil in Mexico.

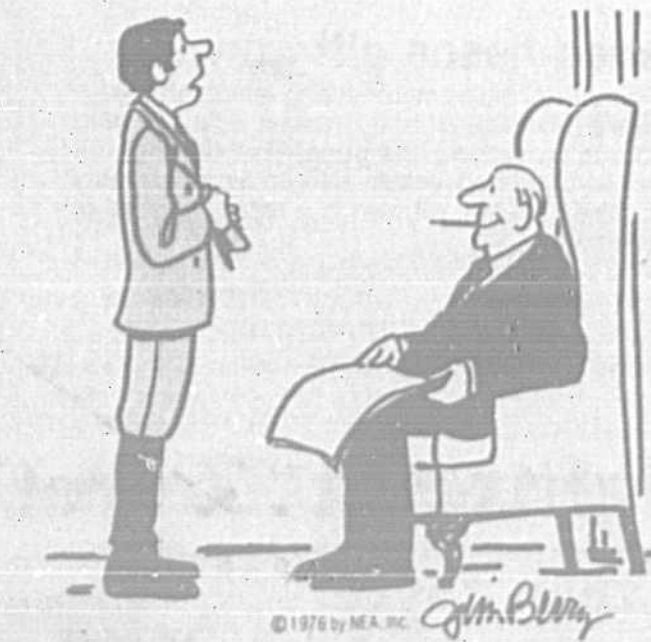

There have been peso devaluations, land seizures, protest strikes by businessmen and donors of a military coup, where Lopez Portillo will be inaugurated.

The transfer of power occurred Dec. 1 in Mexico City, where Lopez Portillo is quickly restored and confidence rebuilt under Mexico's new leadership.

We have a selfish interest, knowing that everything that happens to the Mexican economy affects travel and trade across the border. But we also have genuine concern for the stability of the nation that is historically the most stable of all Latin-American countries.

It is possible that President Echeverria has intentionally acted as a lightning rod for the new administration, taking actions he thought were necessary even though he knew they were controversial, and relieving Lopez of the need to involve himself in the furor.

In any case, Lopez should move promptly to tranquilize the republic. We wish him success.

"Sir, will you be wanting the Rolls of the moped this morning?"

The Clock

By ED PRICKETT

Horace Orr, by his own admission, is a man of the streets. A man who grew up in tough neighborhoods and learned the lessons taught by one of the toughest teachers of them all—Ole Mother and Father Street.

Orr also attended universities and picked up a couple of degrees along the way. But it's not too important today that Orr grew up in tough neighborhoods, or that he outgrew them and survived in the hallowed halls of a couple of U. S. universities.

What is important, however, is the fact that Orr heads up the Seminole Educational Economic Development Corporation (SEEDCO), and as such has been under fire both from some of the newsmedia and from the General Accounting Office (GAO).

Orr has stood firm, and so far has won his way. The toughest part, however, will come when (GAO) audit results are released—some time around the first of next year, if not sooner.

On Friday, Orr has his big day, or we should say his big night. At about 8 o'clock, some 350 citizens, and others, will gather at the Sanford Civic Center for SEEDCO's annual banquet.

Tickets for the event are on sale at SEEDCO offices at the Sanford Airport. For $15, you can attend and become what Orr calls "a friend of SEEDCO." And after the lambasting SEEDCO received last year and this, the federally funded agency can always use some additional friends.

Scheduled guest speaker for the banquet is U.S. Rep. Parren Mitchell, a Democrat from Baltimore, Md. In addition, local dignitaries will be on hand to sample the fine food and listen to Orr tell about SEEDCO—its hopes and its dreams.

Tied in with SEEDCO are a lot of people who wouldn't have jobs if the local poverty-fighting agency didn't exist. People, who by their own admission, could be back on the streets. Orr speaks about growing up on it if weren't for the federal dollars pumped yearly into this county to aid those who, because of lack of education or other reasons, are unable to find good-paying jobs. Programs like SEEDCO have detractors. And that's okay, the way it should be. Because it's a free country, and citizens should like, or dislike, whatever they please. And it's fine when those dislikes are expressed verbally. That again, is what freedom is all about.

But Orr, the banquet, SEEDCO and others really are up to something more important than themselves. They are up to bringing the socially disadvantaged into the mainstream of the American Dream.

If the grand venture fails, then the people will know about it.

And if it passes, those same people will be the first to learn about it. Because the difference lies in staying on the "street" or coming into the mainstream.

And any street person will tell you it's just as easy to fall back as it is to forge ahead. Probably easier.

Historic Debates A Lesson

Anyone who watched a presentation of "The Rivals" over the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) the other evening had to be convinced that Americans were shortchanged—nay, insulted—by the so-called debates between Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter.

"The Rivals," a television adaptation of an old Norman Corwin radio script, re-enacted the famous series of encounters between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas in 1858 as both men stumped Illinois for election as U.S. senator.

These were real debates between two men of strong convictions who questioned, challenged and attacked each other before vocal and partisan audiences.

By contrast, what were passed off as debates in 1976 were sterile, carefully structured "media events." The two candidates might as well have been in different studios for all the interaction between them, or between them and a silent, unseen audience. The essential artificiality of the whole arrangement was vividly exposed by the failure of a two-bit electronic component forced Ford and Carter to sit in plumb silence for 27 minutes during the first of their three appearances.

In fairness to the latter-day debaters, however, it has to be acknowledged that they suffered from an even more severe handicap than was their fair. This was the lack of any really stirring issues to debate.

There was only one issue in 1858, the most profound issue ever to face the American people—that of slavery and its future in the United States.

Lincoln and Douglas needed no panel of reporters to pose long and involved questions. Their positions were clear and unequivocal: Lincoln flatly opposed the extension of slavery into new territories or states; Douglas argued that it should be decided on the basis of "popular sovereignty," with each state deciding the question for itself.

In the outcome, Douglas won the election. Lincoln may have been the moral victor, but history so judges him, but at the time Douglas' solution seemed to offer the best hope of averting dismemberment of the Union.

Thus we may be thankful that the 1976 debates were as dull as they were, and hope that Americans will never again be as divided as they were in 1858.

But if we are going to have debates in the future, and most people agree that they are a worthwhile thing, there must be some fundamental changes in the way they are staged. If nothing else, the presidential candidates in 1980 must be permitted to question each other and to respond to each other.

In the meantime, it is to be hoped that "The Rivals" will be repeated, or will be broadcast by PBS outlets that did not air it the first time. It is an inspiring lesson in what democracy is all about.

Regulation Q Debate

NEW YORK (AP) — You might not even want to make a first-rate foreman were almost 180 degrees off. We're not certain yet what the ideal is; but we know the old theories are wrong. We're now working on tests to discover what we do want.

The requirement which led to the hiring of greater numbers of women and blacks made it necessary, in turn, for us to take a new look at our supervisors. For the new hiring policies put strains on men used to dealing in the old ways.

We learned here, too, that our old concepts on what went into making a first-rate foreman were almost 180 degrees off. We're not certain yet what the ideal is; but we know the old theories are wrong. We're now working on tests to discover what we do want.

That's only the beginning. Our look into lower management led us to look straight up the line to the top. And here again we found some things that could radically change the way we and other companies do about business.

There's been a great deal of talk about productivity, the need for advanced machines and constant research into new processes. Technology has been sold as the key to meeting competition and to making those productivity gains which are the secret of a constantly advancing standard of living.

We discovered, as we already knew, that these technological advances are important. But we found that major increases in productivity, more often than not, are the result of managerial decisions made by the top men of the company in the selection and use of products in production, rather than from the introduction of new, more efficient machinery.

In these studies by one company and another we have discovered, in fact, that the great productivity gains in the future in many fields likely lie in finding a new breed of managers—whose characteristics are as yet not clearly known—who will make revolutionary changes in the manufacturing and distribution process.

Dictator May Bankroll Security Firm

WASHINGTON — A top Justice Dept. attorney is trying to enlist the aid of Congress in a scheme to organize an international investigating firm with $500,000 of Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza's money.

The lawyer, William Callahan of Justice's corporate crime unit in New York, has already received help from Rep. John Murthy, D-N.Y., an old friend of Somoza's.

The Nicaraguan, so far, hasn't made any commitment.

Callahan, working partly on government time, is establishing "Intervest" as a security firm for victims of white collar crime such as banks, public relations firms, foreign governments and multinational corporations.

After receiving encouragement from such influential companies as Citibank in New York City and Tuder and Finn public relations, Callahan decided to approach Murthy for assistance.

The congressman, a former high school classmate of Somoza's and a U.S. delegate to his Nicaraguan inauguration, wrote the dictator a "Dear Techo" note on October 25. In the letter, Murthy said he had met with the Intervest group and "I... hold them in highest regard."

With the letter, on which Murthy had scrupulously written "unofficial" and had paid the postage himself, the congressman sent a handsome prospectus given him by Callahan. Murthy told us that Callahan wanted financial backing from Somoza.

Callahan, however, had no bones about what he wanted from Somoza in a private letter to an old friend, House Doorkeeper James Molloy. Writing under a "personal and non-official" strictly confidential" adjuration, Callahan told Molloy of Murthy's assistance.

"After sending all our material on the proposed company to the General (Somoza)," Callahan confided in the letter, "I received a phone call today from his business adviser who is in Miami."

"He said the General received the material and requested this guy to follow up and explore all the details, etc. We are looking for a commitment of $500,000 for 3-5 years... At this juncture it looks good..."

Admiration, Callahan asked the doorkeeper whether there is "anyone in Congress or Senate that you can assist us with merely some type of recommendation, etc..." Perhaps the Foreign Affairs Committee. A further recommendation would be "anyone in Congress or Senate that you can assist us with merely some type of recommendation, etc..."

"I feel we're very close with this Somoza interest and he is a nut about security type operations," Callahan continued. "If he goes for it we'll probably sell him half the authorized stock of the company."

Callahan called Molloy a few days later, but the doorkeeper politely, but dutifully told him, "Billy, I can't take any outside interests, particularly if it's a foreign country. So forget it!"

Callahan, a former lawyer in Richard Nixon's office and an award-winning congressional counsel on narcotics for the Justice Dept., told us he planned to quit Justice before working full-time on the Intervest project.

Murphy said he thought Callahan wanted Somoza as a client. He met Callahan through a mutual friend, the congressman told us, and only did law firm and an award-winning congressional counsel on narcotics for the Justice Dept., told us he planned to quit Justice before working full-time on the Intervest project.

Although SEACOR was certified as "uniquely qualified" for the contract, the auditors found Somoza as a client. He met Callahan through a mutual friend, the congressman told us, and only did law firm and an award-winning congressional counsel on narcotics for the Justice Dept., told us he planned to quit Justice before working full-time on the Intervest project.

The rules require that all sole source contracts over $100,000 be reviewed by a special board. To avoid the review, the Navy let two contracts to SEACOR, both of which were valued at $100,000.

Finally, the auditors found, 10 of the tasks assigned to SEACOR duplicated work already completed by another contractor.

Footnote: The secret audit report has been referred to the chief of naval material, who will decide whether to take disciplinary action against officials who have been too cozy with contractors.

SEACOR and West denied any wrongdoing. The Navy audit, dated September 23, makes no mention of the West case, but it does show how the brass has bent the rules to give SEACOR unfair advantage over its competitors.

The firm was fed information, for example, prior to the award of a noncompetitive "sole source" contract. As added insurance that SEACOR would get the job, the Navy then violated its own regulations requiring that notice of the sole source contract be given to 14 other engineering companies.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Waldheim: Middle East Peace Chances Look Good

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says he believes the chances for peace in the Middle East have never been better.

Waldheim told a news conference Wednesday after the General Assembly re-elected him by acclamation that he is "cautiously optimistic" that the Geneva (Arab-Israeli) conference... will convene within the first six months of the next year.

The 146-nation assembly was expected to adopt a resolution today calling for a new Geneva conference by the end of March. Arab diplomats predicted that the resolution would get well over 100 affirmative votes and perhaps as many as 120.

Premier Begins Task

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Salim al-Hoss, Lebanon's newly designated premier, began trying to put together a government today and said it "will not take much time."

In selecting the 48-year-old Moslem banker to head the government, Christian President Elias Sarkis said he should pick men of proven administrative ability instead of politicians to launch the monumental task of reconstruction after 19 months of civil war.

NATO Ministers Meeting

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Alliance begin their last meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today. On Wednesday, defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization postponed a decision on a $2.5-billion American plan to buy a fleet of 27 Boeing 707 jets and convert them into radar command planes to modernize NATO's early-warning detection system.

Canada, France Near Pact

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada and France are reported near an interim agreement covering fishing vessels from the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon in an about-to-be proclaimed Canadian 200-mile fishing zone.

The French islands are nine miles off Newfoundland's coast. Officials in Ottawa said Wednesday negotiators have sent proposals to their governments that would amount to a business-as-usual settlement until a permanent solution is worked out.

Bank Plans Loan To Chile

HALIFAX (AP) — Despite some shareholder opposition, the Bank of Nova Scotia said Wednesday it will stand by its decision to participate in a $125 million loan to the Chilean dictatorship.

Shareholders representing several churches charged at a shareholders meeting that the ruling military junta in Chile has been engaging in torture, imprisonment and murder.

But a spokesman for the bank said the bank doesn't feel it should judge political regimes.

Canada's Inflation Drops

OTTAWA (AP) — The inflation rate during November was the lowest in nearly four years because of a continuing decline in food prices, the Canadian government said today.

The consumer price index rose by 5.6 per cent in the 12 months to November. A government spokesman said reduced pork prices and lower fresh fruit prices were the main reasons for the stable food costs.

Gilmore: I Must Be Freed

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Convicted killer Gary Gilmore says the state of Utah blew its chances by not heeding his demands for a speedy execution and now must set him free.

Attorney Ronald B. Stanger petitioned the 4th District Court in Provo on Wednesday for Gilmore's release on grounds that state law required that the firing-squad execution be carried out within 90 days after his Oct. 7 sentencing for killing a motel clerk.

Stanger said a series of delays ordered by the courts and the governor constituted "cruel and unusual punishment."

"If given the alternative between life in prison or execution, he wants execution," Stanger, said in a telephone interview. "But given the alternative between execution and walking out a free man, my impression is that he would want to walk out a free man."

But it appeared unlikely that Gilmore would go free, even if the court accepted Stanger's argument.

Utah County Atty. Noell Wootton has asked the same court to set a trial date for Gilmore on a second murder charge in the death of a gas station attendant shot to death during a robbery. Wootton said the judge would probably act on Friday.

The most recent delay in Gilmore's case came last Friday, when his mother persuaded the U.S. Supreme Court to stay the execution that was scheduled for sunrise on Dec. 5. The high court is considering whether to hear an appeal of the sentence.

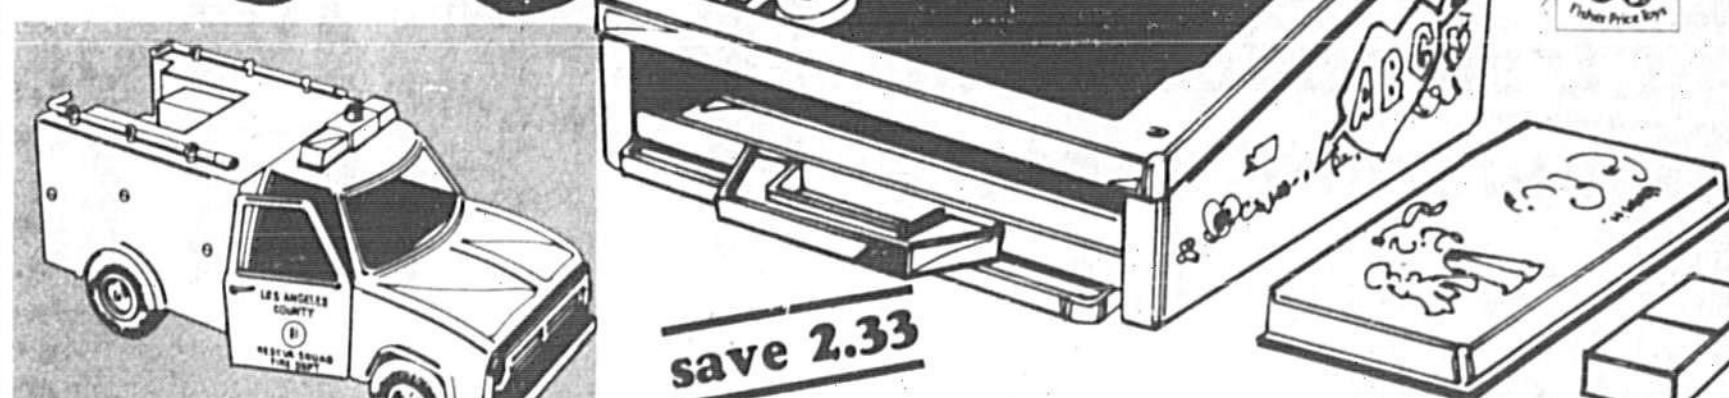

Stanger insisted his action did not mean Gilmore has changed his mind about dying.

"Mr. Gilmore has remained consistent. That is, he wants the law carried out. He accepted the verdict, he accepted the sentence. He wants the law followed," Stanger said. "He wanted his sentence certain, not indefinite. Now, the government has not carried out the procedure as outlined by legislation. He wants the court to make a decision on what his status is."

Gilmore was convicted of killing Provo motel clerk Bennie Bushell during a July robbery. He is charged but not tried in the death of service station attendant Max David Jensen the previous night.

Schools Closed Since Nov. 2 'They Don't Care, But I Do, Says Mom

GROVEPORT, Ohio (AP) — Supt. Philip Williams still has 12 empty school buses on his hands, and his 6,900 pupils have another month of vacation after voters for the second time defeated an attempt to raise property taxes.

"The problem is we haven't solved anything," Williams said after the election results were announced Tuesday. "We can finish this (academic) year, but I doubt we'll have the money to reopen next September. We will have used up all the money by then."

Carol Cole, a truck driver's wife who worked for a pro-tax "We Still Care" group, said, "These people just let their school district go down the drain."

Mrs. Cole, who has two sons in Groveport schools, said, "They don't care, but I do."

But Barbara Groves, who worked against the tax proposition even though her husband is on the school board, said she was dated, "Now maybe our dreams can come true," she said.

She said school spending was not adequately explained to the working-class families and farmers who make up most of the population of this Columbus suburb. Her "dream" is for a task force that would inspect finances to see if more taxes are really needed.

In Tuesday's election, voters defeated a five-year levy that would have allowed schools to reopen today by adding $13.80 to the current $4.40 in taxes for every $1,000 of a property owner's assessed valuation. Of the current tax, $30.10 goes to schools.

The schools closed after a proposed $11.50 increase was turned down by a narrow margin on Nov. 2. They cannot open until Jan. 3, when 1977 funds become available.

"The levy will likely go on the ballot again in the spring and they could go for it then," Williams said. "But if we don't get additional money, we can't open in September and will have to merge with another district."

The Groveport-Madison School District is one of seven closed in Ohio for lack of funds, putting a total of 100,000 students out of classes.

Three school districts in Oregon closed when tax levies failed. Two reopened with alternate financing, but they may close again if new tax measures fail on Jan. 11.

A LOOK AT OUR...

DETROIT — The quality of education given to the children of Detroit has been declining steadily because of deep spending cuts, according to a report by the Detroit school board.

The 230,000 pupils use outdated, dog-eared textbooks. Teachers sweep the floors of the classrooms.

The board sponsors high school football.

Reading and math achievement scores, well below the national average for years, are declining again, especially at the high school level.

Detroit isn't the only area facing problems in paying for the education of its children.

Some schools in Oregon and Ohio are shut because of voter refusal to approve an increase in property taxes, the source of most local government funding for education. And, at a recent three-day gathering in Chicago, the superintendents of the country's 27 largest school districts stressed that they needed money and were looking to the incoming Carter administration to provide it.

"We're at a crucial period when education is being labeled as ineffective and, at the same time, monies are being cut," Vincent Reed, superintendent of Washington's public schools, said at the gathering.

Money problems are much in evidence in the schools of Detroit, where voters on Nov. 2 turned down a property tax increase for the second time in three years, having moved for that in 1974.

Mr. Hagan was a golfing salesman who bought the Rolling Hills golf course 1964. He is survived by his widow, Margaret, daughter, Mrs. Dolores Klau of Longwood; three grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be Saturday, 11 a.m., at Baldwin-McNamara Funeral Home, Altamonte Springs, with the Rev. Burke Johnson, pastor of Rolling Hills Moravian Church, officiating. Visitation will be today and Friday, 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Contributions may be made to the American Heart Association.

CHARLES HENRY WADE, 90, of 121 Bunker Lane, Sanford, died Tuesday at Seminole Memorial Hospital.

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., he had lived in Sanford for the last 14 years, moving here from Jacksonville.

He was a veteran of World War I, Cavalry Division and was a Mason of Phoenix Lodge 205 of New York.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Edith Wade of Winter Springs; three daughters, Mrs. Marie W. Phillips, Sanford; Miss Gloria Wade, Winter Springs; and Mrs. Joan W. Frazier, Orlando; two sons, Clifford B. Wade, Long Island, N.Y.; and Robert G. Orlando, a sister, Mrs. Mabel Braubach, Oregon; 16 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Grainkov Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Castro Foe Fulfills Seminole Dreams

PAYAS
Life
Is Too Short...

By JEAN PATTESON
Women's Editor

A teacher by calling, a lawyer by career training, Armando Payas finds he cannot be just one, and not the other.

So, he is embarking upon a double-career as associate professor in Florida Tech's foreign languages department, and attorney in his own South Seminole practice to try and fulfill both dreams.

Payas, who lives in Maitland with his wife, Alba, and their three sons, is a Cuban by birth but became an American citizen in 1972 when the impossibility of returning to his native land became apparent.

It was his flight from Cuba in the troubled years following Fidel Castro's rise to power that created the circumstances leading to his present situation as teacher-lawyer.

Payas had already been practicing law in Cuba for 10 years when his anti-Castro activities and the threat of imprisonment forced him to go underground.

For two years, he was a leader in the underground movement, but when his wife and father were jailed in December 1961, because of his activities, he fled to Havana and the asylum offered by the Ecuadorian embassy. His family was subsequently released and followed his path of flight from Havana to Miami.

Unable to practice law without first sitting his Florida bar exams, Payas turned instead to teaching, getting an assistant's job in the foreign languages department at the University of South Florida, Tampa. He was soon working on his Masters degree, and graduated successfully from the University of Florida, Gainesville, with his M.A. in 1967.

By this time, Payas was totally hooked on teaching. "I feel I am fulfilling a duty in my life by contributing to the education of students," he explained.

His next job was at Florida Tech, teaching Spanish. He also became director of the Summer Historic Program at the school, conducting seven-week summer study sessions in Seville and Orlando, Spain.

By 1970, he had obtained his PhD from Florida State University, Tallahassee.

Three years later, the U.S. Supreme Court gave Cuban-American lawyers the opportunity to take courses in U.S. common law at the University of Florida. For two years, with characteristic enthusiasm and determination, Payas traveled every weekend to Gainesville.

This July, he sat for his Florida bar exams, and saw his efforts rewarded. On Nov. 15 came the good news that he had passed, and four days later he was admitted to the Bar.

Seminole Gives Hillsborough The Willies

Hillsborough's Thomas Foster has fingertip control against Seminole's Dave Kraitz

Willie Williams drives past Hawks' Keith Mosley

Foster Thomas had a super night Wednesday, but it was not for him as Willie Williams came up with a fabulous night of his own to dissolve Hillsborough's upset. Hillsborough's Seminole Community College reeled off its eighth victory in 10 games, 104-82.

"Willie was fabulous," said winning coach Joe Sterling after his star freshman shot 15-of-19 from the floor and wound up with 35 points. Williams' effort was eight points shy of the school single-game scoring record set eight years ago by Vernell Elzey.

However, the rest of the Raiders were also sparkling. Ken Atkins added 23 points and Bob Zipko had 13.

"We could have won by 30 more," said Sterling. "We played our reserves the last five or six minutes."

Seminole shot 47 per cent from the floor and widened a 45-30 halftime lead to a comfortable margin early in the second half.

Thomas, described by Sterling as a superb athlete, had 38 points and 18 rebounds to pace Hillsborough's attack.

SHS Girls Lose, 46-35

The Seminole girls felt the sting of their defeat last night in a 46-35 loss to the Wildcats of Winter Park.

The Tribe was confident and came out strong but Winter Park's pressure was too much for them. "We've never played anybody on a zone defense before," said Sonya Manley, the girls' high scorer.

"Our team's press bothered them," said Winter Park coach Bill Streiberger, but he felt that neither team shot as well as it could have.

Fouls also bothered the Seminoles, costing them many points.

Marquette Escapes

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — "I don't think we are the second best team in the country," Marquette coach Al McGuire said after escaping with a 64-61 basketball victory over the University of Florida.

"They (writers) just put us there," added McGuire of the No. 2 ranking given the Warriors, 30 after Wednesday night's game.

Tenacious defense and Butch Lee's driving speed and 19 points proved the difference against unranked Florida (24).

It took two free throws by Lee with 11 seconds left to cement victory in a game which saw Marquette mount its biggest lead, 56-22, with eight minutes to play.

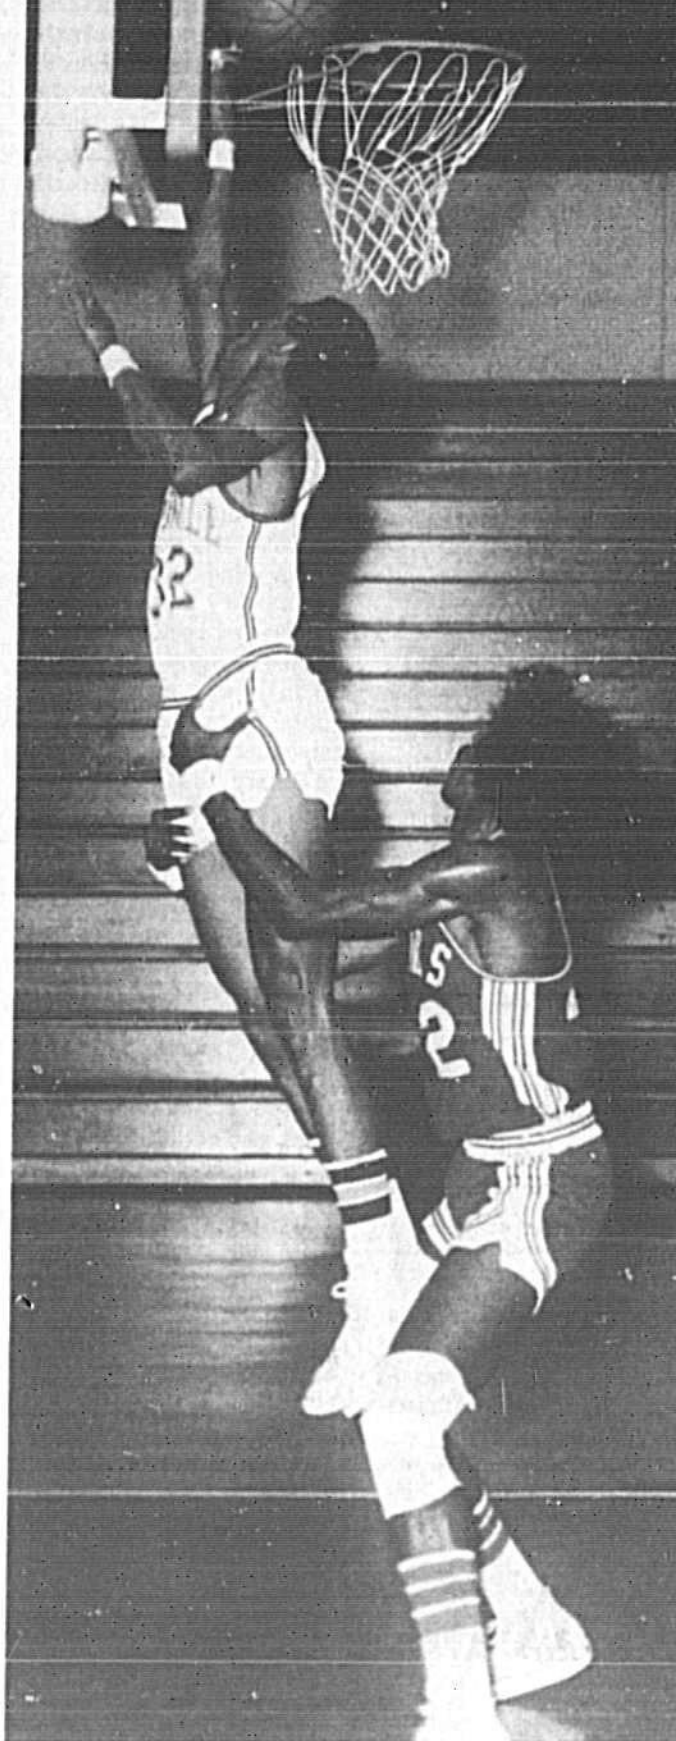

The score was tied 15 times and the lead changed 20 times. "I thought they (Florida) were going to crack four or five different times but they wouldn't," said McGuire.

"After a while, I began to think we were going to crack."

Two races also are scheduled for Sunday, beginning at 10 a.m.

A total of 45 trophies — three in each of the 15 classes — will be awarded at 2:30 p.m. Sunday by the Tangerine Bowl queen.

Talk about having the ball game wrapped up! Seminole's Robert Lewis must have wondered what Hillsborough had against him Wednesday night. He has the wrapper put on him below and at right on a layup in Seminole's eighth win of the season against two losses.

Mudra: Too Many Blacks

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Darrell Mudra says his recruitment of a large number of black athletes may have been done in part for his own sake as Florida State University football coach.

Mudra discussed his college career with two seasons as FSU coach in a copyrighted article in Florida Campus, a student-oriented magazine distributed Wednesday.

"I probably recruited too many blacks," he said. "I'm pretty sure that was a factor. I had heard some complaints."

"But let me ask you, if the top 75 players in the state, how many do you think are black? Fifty? All we did was recruit the best players."

A group of FSU alumni, led by Tallahassee attorney Jim Smith, raised funds to buy up Mudra's contract.

A&I's Ritchie Heads Little All-America

By The Associated Press
Four years ago, Texas A&I Coach Gil Steinel named freshman Richard Ritchie as his starting quarterback. The Jayvians have not lost a game since.

Ritchie took control of A&I's offense in the final game of the 1973 season when the Javs were stumbling to a 2-8 record.

Saturday, Ritchie, named to The Associated Press' 1976 College Division All-American team, and his teammates pursue an unprecedented third consecutive national championship, against the University of Central Arkansas in the NAIA Division I title game, hoping to extend the nation's longest college football winning streak to 39.

A victory Saturday would leave the Aggies eighth short of the national collegiate record of 47 straight set by Oklahoma from 1953-57.

"We have a lot of talent," said Ritchie, who also became the first player in Lone Star Conference history to make the All-Academic team three consecutive years. "And we run an offense like and understand."

Ritchie was named to the All-America first team Wednesday by A&I linebacker Larry Grunevick, tackle Larry McFarland and linebacker Johnny Barefield were second-team choices.

Two other schools, Illinois State and Western Illinois, placed two players on the AP College Division All-America team.

Dog Bites: Epidemic Number Of A Million A Year

By Herald Services

The number of attacks on people by dogs has reached what public health officials consider an epidemic in the United States. Each year dogs sink their fangs into at least one million Americans. This means that at one time or another one of every 200 Americans can expect to be the victim of a dog bite.

Only last Sunday, a 3-year-old Bartow boy was killed in Winter Haven when a large mixed-breed dog lunged at him and bit his neck.

The magnitude of the dogbite menace emerges from the examination of statistics made of the problem by various health agencies. A survey begun in 1971 by the federal Center for Disease Control shows that dogs attack more people by far than any other animals in the land.

The center sampled several parts of the country for a year and came up with these telling statistics:

—112,894 bites in the sample, 84 per cent were inflicted by dogs.

—Of the remainder, cats were responsible for only 10 per cent; rodents 4 per cent, and skunks, foxes and other wild animals, the remaining 2 per cent.

The astonishing increase in dog bites has been documented in several urban areas. Until 1965, for example, the number of people bitten by dogs in New York City each year remained constant, at about 28,500 victims. Starting in 1965, the toll of victims began to mount with frightening rapidity; by 1976, it had increased more than 30 per cent, so that now about 38,000 New Yorkers require treatment for bites each year, at a cost of about $50 per victim.

During 1972 a total of 6,522 dog bites were reported in Baltimore, which represents almost a 150 per cent increase over the number of bites there in 1953. Another study, in St. Louis, indicated that one out of every 50 children in that city between the ages of 5 and 9 years is bitten by a dog each year, and 10 per cent of these young victims suffer wounds so serious they require stitching. Between 1960 and 1970, the dog bite rate in St. Louis, and in Washington, D.C. doubled.

Briefly, the causes of the dogbite epidemic are these: —Americans have gone pet crazy. Half as many dogs and cats as people live within the nation's borders. Of the total, dogs number about 50 million.

—Many pet owners are either ignorant of the needs and behavior of their dogs, or simply do not care. The animals are often subjected to exceptional strain, or allowed to run free.

—A substantial number of dogs owned by Americans are large aggressive breeds, and not only is ownership of such breeds increasing, but many of these dogs are trained to attack.

—With an eye toward cashing in on the public appetite for large dogs, many breeders are mass-producing puppies with little regard for quality. The products of these puppy-mills often are nervous, ill-tempered and neurotic.

Figures from the American Kennel Club, which maintains the registry of the nation's purebred dogs, are very enlightening. During 1973 and 1974 and 1975 the 20 most popular breeds registered with the club included German shepherds, Doberman pinschers, Great Danes, Saint Bernards and Siberian huskies, all large to giant-size dogs.

Many of the people who own these big animals treat them like lap dogs, sometimes keeping them confined indoors or tied most of the day, or conversely, letting them range the streets unattended. Permitting a dog, particularly a large dog, to roam the streets is the cardinal sin of a pet owner. It is estimated that almost all of the dog bites occur are the work not of strays, but of family pets allowed to roam as they please.

Some other generalizations that can be made about dog bites do even more to sharpen the focus on the problem. Dogbite rates change with the time of day and of the year. The number of bites increases when more people and more dogs are on the streets, so the rate is highest in summer and during the late afternoon.

Statistics also show that most of the dogs guilty of biting people are males. This point is significant when coupled with the knowledge that many dogs bite occur within a block or so of the dog's home.

How are these facts related? The answer lies in the territoriality of the male dog, who is quite possessive of the boundaries of the area it considers its own.

When the dog's owner walks it on the same route each day—or even worse, frees it regularly to run around the neighborhood—the dog eventually considers the area its territory, marked by its urine on bushes, utility poles and fire hydrants. Each time the dog travels the route its protectiveness for its own turf is reinforced, and its chances increase that it will attack other dogs and people it considers interlopers.

High Sulfa Levels Appear In Pork

WASHINGTON (AP) — Illegal amounts of sulfa drugs are showing up in about 10 per cent of the nation's pork supply, sometimes in concentrations 50 times higher than the limit set by federal regulations, the Agriculture Department says.

But a department spokesman said Wednesday that the illegal sulfa residues have been detected only in livers and kidneys checked by department inspectors. He said it would be "extremely unusual" for drugs to be in ham, pork chops and other red meat from hog carcasses.

The Food and Drug Administration set a maximum of one-tenth of one part per million for sulfa residues in pork. Up to five parts per million were found.

Still, the spokesman insisted that the excessive amounts of sulfa detected are regarded as too small to be a hazard to humans who eat pork from tainted animals. Most of the risk of high sulfa levels in pork would be to people who are allergic to sulfa drugs.

The disclosure was prompted by a routine announcement Wednesday which advised hog producers throughout the nation to take extra precautions in administering drugs to animals.

It said "approximately 10 per cent of hogs sampled" by the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service in its chemical monitoring program contained excessive sulfa.

Officials advised farmers to withdraw hogs from drugs long enough before slaughter so the chemicals can be dissipated naturally by the living animals.

Court Decision Outrages Feminists

Door Still Open On Pregnancy Benefits Tussle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decision on disability benefits for pregnancy outraged feminists, but left the way open for legislative changes that would nullify the ruling's impact.

An employer may legally refuse to pay disability or sickleave benefits to pregnant women, the court said Tuesday in a 6 to 3 decision.

There is no sex discrimination "simply because an employer's plan is less than all-inclusive," said the majority opinion written by Justice William H. Rehnquist.

The justices overturned the findings of a lower court in saying that General Electric Corp. does not violate the rights of any of its 100,000 women employees by making them take unpaid leaves of absence to have babies.

The decision does not mean that those employers now offering pregnancy disability coverage as part of their over-all compensation package must stop doing so. The court said, however, that existing laws such as the 1964 Civil Rights Act do not compel employers to offer that coverage.

Congress is free to pass legislation making such exclusions illegal, the court said.

One group which had supported the GE women employees, the International Union of Electric Workers, said it planned to seek such legislation.

David Fitzmaurice, the union's president, said his organization would lobby for legislation that specifically tells companies offering disability insurance to employees that pregnancy must be one of the health risks covered.

It was through the electrical workers union that 43 women GE workers, representing themselves and all other GE female employees, first filed grievances against the company. Later, they sued.

Their challenge was enthusiastically backed by women's rights groups, which unanimously passed the court's decision. Karen DeCrow, president of the National Organization for Women, called the ruling "humiliating to every mother in the country."

She said, "The court states that men and women are treated equally under such a plan because if a woman is pregnant, he will be treated in the same manner as a man. Such a definition of sex discrimination is unique."

Susan Ross, an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union, called the court's action "disastrous" for working women. The ACLU said the case showed the need to impress on President-elect Carter "the importance of seating women on the Supreme Court." While labor and women's rights groups teamed on one side, employers lined up on the other. The Chamber of Commerce praised the court's decision for upholding the "right of employers to determine which risks they will insure their employees against."

CRASH BLOCKS I-4 APPROACH Lake Mary Blvd. traffic onto southbound I-4 was blocked Thursday night while emergency workers freed an auto wedged under a tractor-trailer across the interchange approach. Police said Thomas Andrew Yuskosky, 49, of Daytona Beach, was treated at Florida Hospital North, Altamonte Springs, for head injuries, after his eastbound sedan (above) crashed and wedged under the trailer of the truck driven by Roosevelt Sallings, 43, of Orlando. Officers said Sallings had mistakenly exited I-4 at the interchange and was crossing Lake Mary Blvd. to get back on the interstate when the accident occurred.

Altamonte Man Shot 3 Times, Autopsy Shows

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

A prominent Altamonte Springs retiree was killed by a volley of pistol shots as he pruned citrus trees in an orange grove adjacent to his home Thursday. Seminole sheriff's detectives jailed the victim's nephew without bond on a murder charge.

Sheriff's Lt. George Abby said an autopsy this morning showed Harold Walsh, 73, was shot three times—twice in the back and once in the head—apparently from close range.

Walsh, former owner of the Maison et Jardin restaurant for 17 years before it was sold in 1972, was dead on arrival at Florida Hospital North, Altamonte Springs, a short time after grove workers reported seeing him talking about 11:30 a.m. to a man and then hearing a volley of gunshots.

Charged with murder in the slaying is Walsh's nephew, Tilden Charles Walsh Jr., 40, of Atlanta, who investigators say the elder Walsh hadn't seen in 15 years.

Investigators said the shooting apparently resulted from "a long-brewing disagreement over property" but declined to elaborate.

Officers said the elder Walsh's wife, Caroline, and their daughter were shopping at the time of the shooting in the grove on their 50-acre Sleepy Hill farm, off Wymore Road at the Altamonte Springs city limits. Caretaker Thomas C. Troy, 52, found the body after hearing gunshots and earlier seeing Walsh talking to a man in the grove, deputies said.

Investigators said grove workers reported an auto left the grove area just after they heard gunshots.

Abby said a new minutes after the shooting a man who said he was at the Day's Inn at Altamonte Springs called the Orange County Sheriff's Department and reported the slaying.

Walsh was detained at the motel, where he had checked in just before midnight Wednesday, by Altamonte Springs police Sgt. James Perry and later arrested by sheriff's detective Sgt. George Hagood.

Deputies reported that a pistol was found in the motel room and a green compact sedan believed to have been driven by the slaying suspect was impounded at the motel.

According to county jail booking records, Tilden Charles Walsh Jr., is an Orlando native who was being treated by an Atlanta psychiatrist and receiving mood elevator and tranquilizer medication.

Investigators today said evidence in the slaying is being sent to the Sanford Crime Lab for testing, but declined to identify the items.

"Due to the closeness of the crime scene to the Altamonte Springs border both the Altamonte police department and the Seminole sheriff's department are investigating the case jointly," Chief Deputy Sheriff Duane Harrell said.

Strangers' Gifts May Cost Stricken Family Its Welfare

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — For three years the Douglas Darnell family has tried to cope privately as daughter Melinda has been wasting away, a malignant, inoperable, tumor spreading through her brain.

Now, as the family starts to make arrangements for the future, Mrs. Darnell said, "We had been fighting this thing by ourselves for years. We didn't look for the publicity."

"We weren't prepared for people to take that much interest," Mrs. Darnell said. "We had been fighting this thing by ourselves for years. We didn't look for the publicity."

She said the response heartened them and "restored our faith."

A benefit for Melinda is set for Sunday at a local high school. The day has been declared "Melinda Day" by Virginia Gov. Mills Godwin.

"When the proclamation from the governor arrived, Mrs. Darnell read it to her bedridden daughter."

"Read it to me again Mommy," she told me," Mrs. Darnell said Thursday. "She thought it was a joke, but I got a magnifying glass and showed her the governor's signature. She said, 'Gosh! She wanted me to frame it.'"

It was uncertain whether Melinda would be able to attend the Sunday benefit.

"It looks bad. Every day is worse," her mother said. "She's a little weaker and is not eating well. She's not able to use her hands."

Not knowing if Melinda will live to see Christmas Day, the family has been celebrating it in advance, giving her a small present to open each day.

with Dependent Children program because more than $400 in gifts count as family income. The gifts came from persons who have read news accounts of the dying 15-year-old girl, according to her mother, Mary Darnell.

Edward Amundson, deputy director of the Fairfax County, Va., social services department, said he planned to speak with the social worker who told the family of the pending cutoff in benefits. Amundson said the decision can be appealed to higher officials in the department.

After the Washington Star ran a series of stories about Melinda, her faith in God and the family's sacrifices, dozens of persons mailed or brought food, clothing "and a little money" to the family.

"We weren't prepared for people to take that much interest," Mrs. Darnell said. "We had been fighting this thing by ourselves for years. We didn't look for the publicity."

State Officials Warn Of Putting White Amur In River

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

State officials Thursday warned the weed-gobbling white amur could cause serious problems if it's allowed to get into the St. John's River.

"If the grass carp gets in the St. Johns, it's going to cause some serious damage," said Forest Ware, a research coordinator for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Ware spent about two hours in a shootout with a second state agency in county commission chambers over whether the white amur, or grass carp as its called, is harmful or necessary to rid Seminole lakes of pesky hydrilla weeds.

The state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR) favored stocking three Seminole lakes with the amur, while Ware and other game and fresh water commission officials argued it's better to wait until all the side effects can be measured.

The DNR has offered to stock Lake Orienta, Lake of the Woods and Mirror Lake.

DNR Biologist Woody Miley agreed with Ware that the amur could reproduce in the running waters of the St. Johns. Miley noted also that some Alabama rivers have been stocked with the amur.

And, he said, those rivers run into north Florida.

The issue centers on which state agency has the authority to fight hydrilla. By April, officials said, a court ruling is expected to grant authority to one or the other of the two entities.

In the case of the amur, officials said it cannot breed in stagnant water—such as a lake. But in a river—like the St. Johns—the weed carp could breed. Ware said the amur can wipe out a game fish population by eating the weeds which in turn affect the ecology on the bottom of a body of water which in turn affects the food supply that game fish feed on.

After listening to presentations, Commission Chairman Dick Williams said he favors putting the amur into all three Seminole lakes. "If people who live on the lake want them, I have no objections," the chairman said.

Williams specified, though, that the lakes must be in a closed system that would not allow the weed carp to make its way into the St. Johns.

Before the weed gobbler can be introduced, approval must come from lakeside dwellers, the county commission and the cities the lakes are located in.

Also, Regional Botanist Don Widmann explained that introducing amur to a body of water results in the eventual elimination of ducks and water fowl because "all of the duck's food is eliminated by the fish."

At Lake Orienta, there is a large number of water fowl, called coots. The coots feed on hydrilla and other lake vegetation. A weed reduction program is scheduled to get underway at the 106-acre Lake Orienta as soon as an applied-for grant is approved in Tallahassee.

DNR officials said the amur has proved highly successful in some areas of the state, particularly in nearby Orange County. He showed slides which portrayed lakes before introduction of the amur—and after.

Calling the carp "highly effective," a DNR spokesman said Lake Holden in Orange County once was 90 per cent covered by hydrilla. After the amur munched around for one year, the hydrilla population was reduced to zero, the spokesman said.
