Presbyterian Church

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Sanford Presbyterian Church has been chosen to present the Moral Christian Endeavor Program and demonstrate it at the S. O. C. Convention this year. Miss Annie Range deserves great credit for her success with this group of young people. She will not only present an chart and methods but since the Convention is in reach of Sanford she will take 20 children to the Convention Sunday afternoon and put on her meeting with them before the 500 delegates there.

27 members of the Senior C. E. were at the opening meeting last night. A number of them are to stay through the Convention and others are to make the trip from Sanford each day.

The pastor will preach at 11 A. M. and 7 P. M. Sunday and Sunday School meet at 9:45 A. M.

The Sunday School will have a picnic at Lake Hartney Thursday afternoon and it is expected that a large crowd will go. All the members of the congregation are invited to that picnic.

Move on Motor Trip

Miss and Mrs. Chris O. Cudrington will leave Saturday noon for Pensacola to attend the annual meeting of the Florida Press Association. They will start the trip by auto, and take four to six days to make the trip, spending a day in Leesburg, Lake City and Tallahassee en route. On their return, they will take seven or eight days, being absent about two weeks in all.

At Sanford they will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Holly, who will make the trip with them.—Deland News.

Insurance—Taylor

I. A. Durrance of this city and Miss Martha Taylor of Manatee were married in Tampa on Monday and arrived in this city on Tuesday where they will make their future home. Mrs. Durrance is a Manatee girl and has a large circle of friends here. Mr. Durrance has been a resident of this city since returning from active duty in France during the war and is a popular artist in the M. Mullin and Hodges barber shop. The many friends of the couple wish for them a long life of happiness.

Holly—Woods

Reginald S. Holly of this city and Miss Theima Wood of Palmetto were united in marriage in that city on Monday at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. James Woods and left for Tampa immediately after the ceremony where they will spend a week or more and are the guests of the Hillshoro Hotel.

The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Holly of this city and spent the past thirteen years here where he is well and favorably known and after returning from war engaged in the buying and selling of fruits and vegetables in the Manatee section where the romance of the young couple began that culminated in their marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Woods of Palmetto and was born and raised in the Manatee section where Mr. Woods is engaged in growing and shipping fruits and vegetables and is prominent in the business circles of Manatee county.

After a visit to the groom's parents in this city Mr. and Mrs. Holly will take up their residence in Palmetto where they will have the best wishes of their many friends all over the state.

Robert J. Holly Sanford's Editor.

Among the over-age newspaper folks who dropped their business and succeeded in getting into a branch of war service after repeated turn-downs is Robert J. Holly, editor of the Sanford Herald, known throughout the fraternity as "Bald-Headed Bob" and a live wire champion of progressive movements in and for Seminole county and Sanford and for the state as a whole. Mr. Holly managed to get a foothold in the Y. M. C. A. as a transport officer and made four trips across the sub-ridden Atlantic before his services were no longer needed.

Born at Hamilton, Ohio, January 19, 1876, Mr. Holly began his career as a printer and reporter after leaving school, serving first on the Oxford (Ohio) News and later in Cincinnati.

Back in 1898 Mr. Holly, who has been honored with the presidency of the Florida State Press association,

Death of Mrs. M. F. Robinson

Mrs. M. F. Robinson passed away at her home on Park avenue at 12:30 Wednesday after a lingering illness of several years. Mrs. Robinson had been in failing health on account of an accident several years ago when she fell breaking her hip and at her advanced age recovery was slow and she had been making a valiant fight for life for many months but the Grim Reaper who takes old and young alike called her away on Wednesday leaving desolate the home that had known her so long.

Mrs. Robinson leaves a loving husband and one daughter Mrs. Harry Papworth who has been summoned from her home in New York to attend the funeral which will occur tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Episcopal church. Rev. Father Peck officiating, interment to be made in Lakeview cemetery.

The sympathy of the community goes out of the grief stricken husband and daughter in the loss of wife and mother.

Prohibition Wins

Washington, June 6.—The prohibition amendment and the enforcement act were both held constitutional by the Supreme court.

The court dismissed the injunction proceedings brought by New Jersey, Rhode Island and Wisconsin. The court's opinion on the main issue involved, was unanimous, and was rendered by Justice Vandevanter, Chief Justice White, rendered a supplemental opinion, concurring in Justice Vandevanter opinion, but going more fully into the issue involved. Also in Justice McKenna and Clark, however dissented in part. Justice McKenna said that Rhode Island and New Jersey cases should have been decided on their merits. He added that he did not agree with the court in revising the Wisconsin case.

Presbyterian General Assembly

The recent General Assembly of the Presbyterian church which met in the city of Chicago one of the most important in its history.

The matter of communion importance was the proposed union between the various branches of the Presbyterian and Reformed church in the U. S. This has been one burning question at each Assembly for many years. But this year for the first time in the history of this church the Committee of the Southern States brought in a unanimous report. It was adopted by a large majority in both the Southern and Northern Assemblies early in the Sessions. It will provide for the creation of a United Assembly of the Presbyterian and Reformed churches which will meet biennially. This is the greatest forward step Presbyterians have taken in a long time.

The second matter in importance was the Interchurch World Movement. After a very heated debate the assembly was divided and representatives appointed for the next year.

The Committee of Systematic Benevolence and Stewardship brought in a very encouraging report. They reported an additional offer by Mr. C. L. Graham of a gift of $250,000. for the equipment fund of the various Committees of the church provided the church raised $1,000,000 before Dec. 31 for this purpose. This matter was put in the hands of the New Systematic Benevolence Com. as were all other special appeals and needs. Its work was much enlarged for next year. The Committee, which is the broadest and most powerful Com. of the Church, having under its direction all the work of the Church will be composed of 5 business men and 11 preachers. Dr. Brownlee was elected by the General Assembly a member of this Committee.

Weather And Crop Conditions In Florida For The Week Ending June 8, 1920

Temperature. Temperature averaged from 1 degree above to 3 degrees below normal. The last days of the week were unusually cool for the season.

Precipitation. Showers occurred over all divisions, and heavy to excessive over considerable portions of the northern division, amounts exceeding 5 inches having occurred over the northeast coast section. The rainfall was light in the south, and along most of the central and south-east coast and in some localities of the south moderate rains would be beneficial. The following weekly total inches and tenths, were recorded: Jacksonville, 5.5; Crescent City, 5.7; Live Oak, 2.7; Lake City, 2.4; Old Town, 5.1; Mentivello, 3.0; Quincy, 1.8; Eustis, 2.4; Tampa, 2.3; Pensacola, 2.2; Marianna, 2.3; Okeechobee, 1.9.

Condition of Crops. There were a few days when progress was made by farmers, but showers to moderate and heavy local rains occurred over much of the northern division, retarding work much of the time, especially on low lands. As a consequence there is much grass, especially in cotton and corn, and crops on low lands are very backward. The cotton plant is small, much is infested with weevil, and grass abounds, although a few reports indicate that plants did well during the week. Corn is mostly good except on low lands where wet soil together with cool weather proved unfavorable. Labor is generally scarce. Cane, as a rule, is fair to good also, peanuts, tobacco, and me.

FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE

IDEALS THAT BECAME ACCOMPLISHMENTS
Record of Florida Citrus Exchange

Ten years ago in the formative stage, the Florida Citrus Exchange was but the organized expression of the high ideals of the founders.

Grown strong through success, today the Florida Citrus Exchange is a notable example of ideals that have become accomplishments.

The ideals of the men who conceived and established the Florida Citrus Exchange have placed the citrus industry of Florida upon the sound foundation that assures permanent prosperity.

In work, for the benefit of members and for the good of the industry, the Florida Citrus Exchange has to its credit many noteworthy achievements, chief among which may be mentioned:

- Adoption of standard grading and packing methods.
- Demonstration of the value of improved growers to producing marketable fruit.
- Extension of markets for Florida fruits through increased consumer demand and wider distribution.
- Securing for members higher average prices than returned by speculative marketing agencies for fruit of like quality.
- Inauguration of a system of auditing to insure the accuracy of accounts.
- Combining the purchasing power of members on fertilizer, spray materials and other supplies, packing house equipment and other effects, saving equaling the costs of doing fruit cooperatively.
- Citrus Exchange generally secured prices fully in line with market conditions.
- The huge increase in consumer demand for Florida fruits, especially for grapefruit which made itself apparent during the winter and spring showed conclusively the efficiency of the educational work of the co-operating growers of the Florida Citrus Exchange in advertising and demonstrating the food and health values.
- The affiliation with the Florida Citrus Exchange of growers who have not heretofore held membership is suggested and urged on the ground that no other marketing agency has shown like accomplishment in the effort to build up the citrus industry of Florida by giving grove owners fair returns on their investments and for their labor.

Tested and tried in every conceivable way, the Florida Citrus Exchange has proved that it possesses ability to surmount obstacles, capacity to sustain cooperative effort on practical lines and flexibility to meet changing conditions.

This season the growers who form the Florida Citrus Exchange have marketed twice as many oranges and grapefruit as in any preceding year—representing a considerably larger percentage of the total crop than ever before was handled by the organization.

Notwithstanding unfavorable complications as to transportation and other factors affecting the citrus fruit markets, which prevailed throughout the season, the grower members of the Florida Citrus Exchange during the marketing season, you must join in the Summer. #### Why Perfumes Are Not Over-Popular in America.

Writer Sees Cause for Congratulation in the Fact That Heavy Artificial Odors Are Not Needed Here, as in Europe.

That the sense of smell is sadly neglected is an opinion expressed every once in a while by those who pride themselves on a highly cultivated olfactory faculty. Just the other day a perfumer complained about the lack of appreciation of the pleasures of smell, especially among Americans.

Well, for our own part, we are glad that Americans are "lacking" in the cultivation of this most neglected of the senses. We are especially thankful that the men of our race and country almost entirely neglect the use of perfumes.

The perfume vial is making the complaint point out the fact that, while we cultivate the sense of sound, touch, taste, to a certain degree, and the sense of sight, we leave that of smelling practically uncultivated. Well, there is this difference—that the man or woman who indulges her appreciation of odors by wearing perfumes necessarily inflicts these odors on all who come near her. Even the woman who wears bright and flashing colors does not do this, for we can look away—but there is no way of avoiding a perfume. While we breathe we have to use our smelling faculties.

Can't you recall how often your pleasure at the theater and your powers of concentration at church or the lecture have been well nigh destroyed simply because of a nearby perfume? No matter how artistic the perfume may be, if it is kept in a close audience or near to you for long at a time it is sure to become annoying, not to say really sickening.

As a matter of fact one reason why we Americans go in so little for perfumes is because we are of all nations the most free from unpleasant odors. Our cities, our houses, our theaters are sweet to the nostrils compared to the cities and public places of Europe. In Italy, where no one can visit Venice or Florence without being shocked by the smells of the city, one finds a high appreciation of perfumes.

In the Orient, where the faculty of smelling is developed to a fine art, the impression of the city odors is something that the accidental traveler never forgets. The characteristic odors of Bombay, of Calcutta, of Constantinople and Hong Kong, made up of a miscellaneous complex of mistakes of sanitation, is something that the traveler cannot describe, but the recollection of it is unpleasantly vivid all the time.

For our own part we like the American way best. The most desirable perfume that we can find in our cities, in our drawing rooms or theaters is the fragrance of fresh air, and we wish it were spread to the nostrils.

And what can compare with the smells of the country? The pine trees, the fresh-mown hay, the huckleberries, the lavender, the lilacs, the apple orchard and the grape arbor? These are the smells that the Americans appreciate and love. Baltimore Express.

Early Booksellers.
The first bookseller's establishments in England began to appear in 1472. In 1534, the first bookshop was opened in London by Andrew Hunsford of Ludbury, England, and contained an elaborate dedication to Queen Elizabeth. The first booksellers in England were migratory peddlers, who carried their small stock on their backs, and this may more properly be called pioneer book agents.

In the course of time some of the more prosperous hawkers of literature set up small stalls or booths and they became known as "stationers." This is the origin of the word stationer, now generally applied to dealers in "stationery," which has come to mean writing materials, paper, pens, ink, and similar articles. Booksellers in England were for centuries treated as rear-creminals and subjected to many restrictions, which were not wholly removed until 1758. The booksellers of both England and America now have powerful associations, the former dating from 1829.

At ke.
Four-year-old Jean was visiting his auntie. Now, he had not intended staying so long and had not brought an entire change of clothing. So he was much distressed about not being clean.

The afternoon before his uncle was to take him home, auntie took him to the first vaudeville show he had ever visited. And the comments he made were loud and amusing to the members of the audience around him. But nothing exactly startling was said until a young woman in black tights came on the stage to do some acrobatic stunts. Then his dear little voice called out so that most of the people there heard him. "Oh, auntie, she has on a dirty union suit too."

Another Cruise of the Carnegie.
The magnetic survey yacht, Carnegie, after lying out of commission at Washington for a year, was fitting out at the end of September for a new cruise (her sixth), to cover a period of two or three years. Her route this time will be mainly in the South Atlantic, Indian and Pacific oceans, the ports of call for the year being Dakar, Rio de Janeiro and St. Helena. J. I. men who offered their lives to devote the rest of their years to paying the profiteers who robbed the nation in the day of its peril?

The former German emperor, according to a correspondent, wanted to be the world peacemaker and therefore he refused to stop the war when he had a chance to do it. There is something humorous concealed in that, but we leave you to figure it out in your own way.

That scheme launched by the Associated Dress Industries of America to change the style of women's dresses every month is a step toward common sense, as then only a few people will know what the fashions are and the others won't care.

Farmers are skilled, not in one thing, but in many things. Those who are eloquent about skilled labor and what it has produced, should not overlook the work of the skilled farmers who have produced and are still producing what labor is eating.

It is said the French government may charge an admission fee to tourists who want to visit the battle grounds. This will arouse envy in the thirty times that they have no slighter scars of devastation to capitalise on.

In the excitement over the real situation, the old discussions about the discovery of the north pole have been almost abandoned. There may be some fine climatic training for future expeditions.

It is to be hoped the advocates of the Puritan laws will not rock those other penal regulations providing that coal miners be thrust through the cages of those protesting against them.

What is needed in this country is to get the mind of the average man thinking of common sense principles of government, business and morality a little more and about whisky a little less.

With an American woman sitting in the house of commons, the peaceful penetration of England may be considered begun.

Rabbit Seemed to Enjoy Powerful Electric Shock.

Experiment Recently Made Shows Great Possibilities in This Form of Treatment for Toning Up the Nervous System.

It is almost sure death to step upon the third rail of an electric road, for he who does it will get a shock of at least 500 volts. But you can jump on a third rail and stand on it with both feet and feel nothing. You must, however, jump off with both feet or you will get the shock. The reason is that when both feet are on the rail there is no circuit.

Watching two boys amusing themselves by jumping on and off a third rail on Long Island recently, H. Gernsback, editor of the Electrical Experimenter, wondered what would happen if he were to stand on the pole of a very powerful Tesla coil. He went to where there is one of the electrical testing laboratories, where there is one of the most powerful high frequency machines in the country, giving 500,000 volts and using 20 kilowatts. This machine throws streams of electric fire six to seven feet long, the noise of which can be heard several blocks away. Mr. Gernsback wanted to stand on the metal plate of the "high" terminal of the transformer, but the tannagers would not let him, for fear of an accident. He had with him, however, a live rabbit, and they let him put the bunny on that perilous spot.

"At first," writes Mr. Gernsback in the Electrical Experimenter, "he was much frightened and jumped off the plate at about five kilowatts. Long sparks leapt out from his nose and along his eyes and at the ends of the ears. So the writer wetted the platform with water, because he thought that sparks might be jumping into the rabbit's belly and legs which insulated the fur part of his body, giving rise to stinging sparks. An improvement was seen immediately. The rabbit now held perfectly still for about 20 seconds, taking the full charge of 20 kilowatts at 500,000 volts. Long spark streamers, four or five feet long, shot from his rabbit's nose, ears and back, and, curious to note, immediately above the eyes, and after that the rabbit took the full charge, never moving once for 20 seconds at a time. After a while the rabbit seemed to enjoy the performance, and right after his seizure he was as lively as ever, eating a big carrot at once."

Mr. Gernsback points out that there is a practical value in this experiment, for a charge of electricity such as the one described gives a dry bath which removes every particle of dead skin, dust and dirt and huris them far from the body. Such electric baths also soften hardened arteries, tone up the nervous system and "make the old feel younger and the young younger and more aggressive."

Spitzbergen Explorer.

Charles Rabot, French physicist, with a reputation for arctic research, has been elected honorary member of the Christiana Geographical society. In 1892 Mr. Rabot participated in the French expedition of La Manche to van Maysen and Spitzbergen. He was the first to travel extensively over west Spitzbergen and to form correct conclusions as to its glaciological relations, viz: that west Spitzbergen is not covered by a connected inland mass of ice as is the case with Nordostland and Greenland. Among his many works the most important is, "Des Variations de Longueur des Glaciers" (Paris, 1897 and 1900). He was the first to make a survey map of the black ice between Saltenfjord and Raneffjord, for the time pointing out that at Glandalen the black ice is cut into two parts known as Vestraen and Ostheraen.

Have Cried Their Eyes Out.

"The City of the Blind," the Armenians and Syrians call Aleppo in Syria, for nowhere else in the Orient today is the percentage of blindness so high. Every sixth person on the street is affected with eye disease. These Armenians and Syrians, the oculists say, in the years of terror and suffering just passed under Turkish oppression, have literally "cried their eyes out."

Trachoma is found in all degrees of severity among infants a few months old, and advanced cases among children from three to six. Such a condition exists nowhere else, except in such lands as Egypt and India, and nowhere there is it so severe as in Aleppo at present.

"Young Eschille is our most public spirited citizen," said the landlord of the tavern at Brewsterdylump. "No matter what time of night the fire bell rings, he leaps from his bed, puts on one of his front door and goes tearing down the street like the Charge of the Light Brigade, struggling into such of his clothes as he don't drop and the stop for. At the scene of devastation he gets in the way of the firemen whoops and yells like a madman, and otherwise does his duty as he sees it. And if it happens to be a false alarm he goes home and picks up his clothes a piece at a time along the way and cursing and growling as if the failure of anything to burn was a personal insult to himself."—Kansas City Star

Farewell Old Sanford House

Farewell old Sanford House, farewell Veteran of early happier times, Compensated and a thousand to distribute, To you, my mother, by these old walls, Heaven's hand then brought these survivors, And now they comforted these old and gray, Thus to the quietude of old age, When nothing will survive all day, Why then this evening at the old, Ah! once they were a pride, a boast, Then hush! hush! they were a part, Fed and sheltered to its unnumbered host, Sweet to us, old souls of joy, hope and cheer, Tell of the good old days, the old, For they are fast going, a few short hours, There will be silence, then will be death.

Hark! Listen! From the midst of the debris, Comes a phantom voice, like one in pain, "I am ready to go, I have done my best, For I have not lived in vain, But, no one desires me here, O no! They say I am old, very old and gray, They fought me hard and pierced my heart, And they've taken all my robes away; They have torn me apart, little by little, And handed me out, piece by piece; They heeded not my cries and groans, Their devastating work they would not cease; They parted my treasures out here and there, In homes of city and country they go, Ah! they have broadened me out in a wonderful way; I never dreamed it could be so.

"Yes, I am old, little children who played By my side 'neath the oaks on the lawn, Have grown up, married, and their children too, Have played, and grown up and gone, Year after year, sterns rains, like tears, Have married, and stained my outer walls; While tears of sorrow, in life's devious ways, Have mingled with joy in my rooms and halls, The North and South 'neath my roof have met, With cold formal bows, or warm handclasp, trace; Wealth, youth, and beauty have played their part, With the old story of love that is ever new; The rollicking jingle in the setting framed, The boisterous laugh, the perfume, and the flowers, Smiles, and songs, and voice soft and low, Music, and dance, all the wee small hours.

The anguish of heart, the spirit of pride, The hate, the revenge, the conscious din, Of bitter remorse, the forgiveness sweet; A great, great story by my walls shut in, I have frown old in these long, long years; Many yes many have lived and died; Wars have been fought, victories won, Great changes have come in this world so wide, Since they have put me here with my face to the North, Down here close by the great marshy lake, In the wild, wild jungle of scrubby oaks, Water lilies, with the moccasin snake, From a jungle across this city has grown; The march of the levee to a drive-bed high; A bulkhead of stone holds the water back, And the sand on the freshed is white and dry.

And now I desire a staunch structure to stand, Over the dust that my years have made, With beautiful windows, wide doorways and halls, A rendezvous, with a real arcade, I desire it, and right up to date; With large airy rooms, and everything new; For I desire to see your city grown here, For its merry-gay things, would never do, I desire in the park, that was once my pride, Broad wave paths that wind and turn; Fountains too, where the birds may have; And beautiful flowers, trees, and fern, And down thru the center from side to side, I would make a great white-way; And arch it over with beautiful lights, That would make night bright as day.

But, I am not here to voice my desires, I am only waiting to cease to be; When back in the past my spirit has flown, And you will cease to think of me, as me, I ask not remembrance in a special way, I desire not Glory, Honor or Fame; I know as long as your city shall stand, You will remember my once common name, The leaves of my story book now, are sealed, I will carry it down in the dust, when I'm dead, The one word, Finis, all may plainly see, I will carry it down in the dust, when I'm dead, The one word Finis, all may plainly see, But the pages of my book, shall never be read, Farewell to thee all, I am satisfied; My old reeking frame, lay gently down, To my conqueror I yield, the Earth (my throne) The Sky with its jewels (my wonderful crown)." Mrs. A. L. Mickey.

HERE'S PROOF

A Sanford Citizen Tells of His Experience

You have a right to doubt statements of people living far away but can you doubt Sanford endorsement? Read it: W. A. Stafford, Prop. plumbing establishment, 108 Holly Ave., says: "Kidney complaint had annoyed me for some little while. I had backache so bad I couldn't stoop to pick up anything when working. I was pretty well handicapped. I was also afflicted with a kind of dizzy feeling and there were times when I could see dark specks in front of me. I felt generally run down. I doctored, but didn't get much benefit, so I went for a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Aldridge's Drug Store. I wasn't long in finding out the merit of this remedy, for it soon cured me and I have remained free from kidney trouble for some years now."

Sunday School Picnic

Another enjoyable picnic of recent date was that of the Congregational Sunday School at which old folks, young folks and all the folks, big and little had an enjoyable time at Palm Springs.

The editor of this column takes pleasure in correcting a statement in last week's issue of the Herald, relative to the approaching marriage of Miss Myrtle Palmer recently superintendent of the Fernald-Laughton

Memorial Hospital. It was announced that "Miss Palmer would shortly marry a Mr. Stevens of Chicago." This was an error due to a joke, we have since learned, played by the person who gave the information and who was considered by the editor as a reliable source having been closely identified with Miss Palmer while here. As a matter of fact, a personal request was made to the editor to give Miss Palmer a "write up" and the information relative to the engagement was included among the notes furnished. With an apology to Miss Palmer we offer this explanation in justice to the Herald and its editorial staff.

Pool Party at Beeman Springs

Enjoying all the pleasures of a swimming party and woodland supper at Beeman Springs on Wednesday evening were the Misses Hatch-Johnson and Miss Leslie Gray with Messrs. Robt. Richardson, Jim Robinson, Edmund Duce and Chas. Westcott.

A. P. Connelly and The Celery Delta

Had any statement appeared on the subject of the Florida celery delta of Seminole county, it would have been the story of a man and a place that it may be known to many. That it is a delta is a fact, and that it is a delta of celery is a fact. The celery delta of Seminole county is a fact, and that it is a delta of celery is a fact. The celery delta of Seminole county is a fact, and that it is a delta of celery is a fact.

Among those who have contributed no little to the development of Sanford and locality is A. P. Connelly, one-time railroad official, who has for two years devoted his time to really improvement and farm development work. Contributing equally to the upbuilding of the city and farm section, he is regarded as Sanford's leading real estate operator.

Appreciating the transportation needs of the rich section, Mr. Connelly in 1908 began building the Sanford & Everglades railroad, his intention being to extend the line into the Lake Okechobee section. The Flagler interests threw their line into the Glades ahead of him, however, and he was forced to content himself with making his railroad serve the celery delta section alone. This it did not accomplish, as a result of which it was bought by the Atlantic Coast Line system in 1913.

Determining that home-building was a needed factor for Sanford's growth, Mr. Connelly in 1908 with others organized the Sanford Building & Loan association, of which he has acted as secretary and treasurer since, and this co-operative association has been responsible for the building of at least 25 per cent. of Sanford's prettiest homes. At the same time Mr. Connelly has conducted a successful real estate, fire insurance and bonding business.

In 1913 Mr. Connelly assisted in organizing the Seminole County bank of which he has been a director since the date of the organization, and which in seven years has eclipsed the record of any small city bank in the country. During that period its deposits have been increased from $100,000 to $1,100,000. No institution has contributed more to the advancement of the locality.

During the past year alone Mr. Connelly has consummated land sales which establish his value to and interest in the community. Among these is a tract valued at $200,000, which was sold to the Tropical Vegetable Company, branch of the American Fruit Company, Incorporated, the largest institution of the kind operated in the world at present. That these lands are to be cultivated to the highest degree is evident from the character of the nationally known financiers, farmers and fruit growers behind the movement.

Recently he sold to John Meisch, one of the leading citizens of Sanford who has in recent years made a fortune from celery production, several hundred town lots and large vegetable growing acreage for farming of the tract originally owned by the English colony which took the first steps that made Sanford the reality of the present day. Mr. Meisch, a public-spirited citizen, intends to develop his new possessions to Sanford's best advantage. This is the second time in which Mr. Connelly has sold this property.

Born in Burke county, North Carolina, Mr. Connelly attended schools and colleges in the Tar Heel state and eventually began life as a railroad telegraph operator. Twenty-two years ago he came to Florida as a trade interpreter for the old F. C. & P. railroad at Wabola—and has been a Floridian since, holding various official positions with both the Seaboard Air Line and Atlantic Coast Line until 1908, when he took up the work above referred to. He hopes in the future to engage in development work on an even larger scale.

"How would you briefly summarize the advantages of Sanford and the celery delta?" Mr. Connelly was asked.

"In the first place," he replied, "the celery delta of Seminole county is a fact, and that it is a delta of celery is a fact. The celery delta of Seminole county is a fact, and that it is a delta of celery is a fact. The celery delta of Seminole county is a fact, and that it is a delta of celery is a fact."

John Lawton Moon Jr. John Lawton Moon Jr., son of the late Rev. J. Lawton Moon and Carrie C. Moon, passed away yesterday afternoon at 4:30 at their residence 529 East Orange street.

Funeral services will be held at the Methodist church, Fort Meade, Fla. Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The services will be conducted by Rev. J. F. Bell and Rev. J. Edgar Wilson, of this city. A large number of friends will go down from here to attend the funeral. Interment will be in evergreen cemetery at that place. Lakeland Telegram.

Deceased was the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Chappell of this city and had visited here several times.

Rev. George Hyman Fighting Chaplain. Speaking of regular fellows, there's a Baptist minister up in Sanford who qualifies as such in every phase of life-work.

George Hyman is his name and he's pastor of the Celery City's Baptist Tabernacle, an institution in which over-flow services are practically always the rule.

When the world-war broke Rev. Hyman, in spite of the fact that he has a wife and two children, induced his church to give him a leave of absence for the period of war, enlisted as a chaplain, served in the 322nd Infantry, Eighty-second division, participated in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, also in actions in the Lagnoy and Toul sectors. In the Meuse-Argonne he was cited for bravery by Gen. George B. Duncan.

And while he was serving in the army he broke records in service attendance, the entire regiment including the commander, attending his services repeatedly.

"How do you account for your success as a chaplain?" he was asked. "Well, I suppose it was due to the fact that when I have anything to say I say it as quickly as possible and get through with it," was the reply.

And to this the writer would add this opinion.

"Because his fellow-soldiers, in addition to appreciating his courage realized that George Hyman was clean through and through."

Rev. Hyman, who is well known in Tampa, because of a campaign he conducted for the First Baptist church, was born at Sandersville, Georgia, August 7, 1882 and has been in the ministry for many years.—Frank Huffaker in Tampa Times.
