

Laurie's Story: Child Died While Doctors Sought Hospital Bed

RUSKIN (AP) — Loreta Sanchez went door to door in this small migrant community asking neighbors to give what they could to help bury her 4-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Sanchez collected $91 for little Laurie's funeral today.

The child escaped suffocation in an abandoned refrigerator but died five hours later while hospital personnel in three counties tried to find a bed for her.

The delay was the result of an apparent communication mixup over hospital policy.

An autopsy report released Wednesday attributed Laurie's death to brain damage from loss of oxygen because of the refrigerator.

Mrs. Sanchez, 23, left her four young children with a brother Saturday while she went shopping. When she returned to the labor camp in rural Parrish, she couldn't find Laurie. She went home to house searching.

There was an old refrigerator outside. The door was still on it. "I ran to it and opened it and there she was," the mother said.

Laurie was blue and had all but stopped breathing, her family said. A brother administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation while an ambulance was called. The call was logged at 10:52 p.m.

Laurie was put on a heart monitor and sped to Manatee Memorial Hospital where Dr. Wilson Rumberger was on emergency duty. He worked on the child for 90 minutes and said her condition was guarded because of prolonged oxygen deprivation.

Rumberger contacted Dr. Alfonso Vargas at Tampa General Hospital, a regional facility with a pediatric intensive care unit. Vargas agreed that a transfer was advisable, but he said he told Rumberger that administration approval was necessary for an inter-county transfer.

Rumberger claimed no mention was made of such clearance.

"It was a situation where any time delay could be critical," Rumberger said. "And there is also a possibility nothing could have been done. But I did what I thought was best."

Julian Rice, Hillsborough County director of hospitals, said that the required medical and administrative clearance is standard policy. A medical determination for such a move must first be made. Then, he said, an administrator must determine whether there is bed space.

An admitting employe called back to get personal data on Laurie, Rumberger said, and the ambulance was dispatched to Tampa.

Six minutes later, an employe at Tampa General called to say there were no beds available in intensive care — either child or adult.

When Vargas learned that the ambulance was en route, he contacted All Children's Hospital in St. Petersburg and made arrangements there.

Laurie was taken to the third hospital in a third county some 40 miles from home. The child convulsed in cardiac arrest before she could be wheeled to an empty bed in intensive care.

She was pronounced dead at 4:03 a.m. Sunday.

LESTER MADDOX AND BOBBY LEE FEARS, GOVERNOR AND THE DISHWASHER

Whistlin' Dixie in Sanford — Lester Wows!

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Lester Maddox opened his act "The Governor and the Dishwasher" for the first time in Florida Thursday night at "Mr. P's" in Sanford, and won nearly continuous applause and two standing ovations from a near-capacity crowd.

But the most popular part of the act was the dishwasher Bobby Lee Fears, the ex-convict sidekick of the former Georgia governor, who sang, danced around the supper club, played the guitar and received shouts of appreciation from the crowd.

Toward the end of the Moore River rendition, Fears began calling for "Papa Governor" to return and told of how only Maddox would help when he was in prison and Maddox was lieutenant governor of Georgia. Fears said he had written Jimmy Carter, then governor of the state, and received no response.

Among the songs the duo sang and played together — with Maddox on the harmonica and Fears on the guitar — were the "real" national anthem, "Dixie," "Yankee Doodle" and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," as well as several spirituals.

The two had their audience keeping time with the music by clapping their hands and singing along.

As the audience participated — with some people dancing around their tables — Fears shouted, "Amen, Amen. We've had church tonight. Hallelujah!"

Among those prominent Seminole Countians seen enjoying the show and participating were: County Commissioner and Mrs. Bill Kirchhoff, Sanford City Commissioner A. A. McClanahan, School Board Member and Mrs. Bud Fetter; Former Casselberry Councilman and Mrs. John Zacco; Dr. and Mrs. Frank Chents.

Maddox: Older, in Debt, As Outspoken As Ever

Former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox, one of those hard-rock Southerners who fought against integration in the '60s akin to Alabama Gov. George Wallace, appeared a defeated and pathetic man during a personal interview after his last show Thursday night at Mr. P's in Sanford.

"I'm trying to be happy and make others happy," he said, adding that he has sold his Pickrick restaurant where he became nationally known more than a decade ago for his refusal to serve blacks. Ironically his partner in his comedy act is a black former dishwasher and ex-convict.

"I'm 61 years old and probably will never be able to pay off my old campaign debts," the ex-governor said. "But, I don't regret my time in politics. It is a citizen's duty to serve. I could have joined the crowd, but I didn't and I opened up government for a while. It is closed again since I left," Maddox said.

Maddox said he learned in politics that politicians choose up sides and when they "are not working for themselves or their friends, they are at work cutting their opponents." He said he left public office after eight years — four as governor and four as lieutenant governor-in-debt more than he earned.

The former Democrat who now considers himself an independent, said he is $350,000 in debt from past campaigns and has four judgments against him in the courts. "I hate to see my wife, Virginia, punished like this in her late years."

He said friends and relatives have "frowned" upon his getting into show business with an act. "But, during the last few days my wife has encouraged me," he said. "We have never had much time to spend together."

Maddox said he and his black former dishwasher and ex-convict Bobby Lee Fears performed their comedy routine the first time three weeks ago in a small club in Georgia. Someone from California, who saw the act, called a friend in Florida and that is how he came to Sanford.

From here the act will be touring across the country," he said.

"We are not good professionally because we are not professionals," he said, noting his partner has "lots" of talent and ability, however. "If this man — pointing to Fears — changes his life, that's enough. I'm trying to teach him and the work is worth it to me. There is no other team like us in the country."

Most bitter at Jimmy Carter, whom he defeated for election to the governor's mansion first and who succeeded him four years later in the mansion, Maddox said, "Carter got elected by telling people he was my friend. When he was elected he stomped me.

"I hope he (Carter) does a great job ... his dealings in Korea are impossible ... his position in Rhodesia and South Africa is meddling in others affairs. He is fighting our friends and encouraging our enemies.

"I can't go along with his expansion of welfare programs. He has a real fight on his hands with energy."

"He is a worker of and belongs to the political establishment and unable to be his own man. But, then that is no different than his predecessors in office," Maddox said of the president.

Maddox said he has difficulty understanding the Carter position on water projects. "If it weren't for Buford Dam, Atlanta would be without adequate water today, would be dried up and not prospering," he said.

Maddox and Fears are writing their own act as they go along. "There is no one to write it for us," he said, "no money and no one interested enough."

18 New Employees Top Polk's Budget Request

By ED PRICKEETT
Herald Staff Writer

A tentative budget prepared by Seminole Sheriff John Polk requests 18 additional employees next year as part of a $3.5-million departmental budget representing about a 20 per cent increase over fiscal 1976-77's $2.9-million budget.

The sheriff said he wants 12 additional road deputies, four more detectives, an identification technician and a clerk typist.

Included in Polk's $3.5-million budget request for next year is a five per cent across-the-board pay raise for the department's 186 employees. Polk must, by law, submit his budget request to the county commission by July 1. But the sheriff said he will deliver the proposal to commissioners by June 15.

Three of the 12 road deputies the sheriff is requesting will be motorcycle patrolmen, a first for the sheriff's department. Polk said he needs the motorcycle patrol because of increasing traffic snarls in Seminole County. When traffic is heavy a motorcycle rider can cut the response time when rushing to the scene of an accident, the sheriff said.

"The only proposed new program to meet the increased work load of the 1977-78 budget year is 12 additional deputies for the patrol division in order to increase patrol zones from nine to 12," Polk said.

The sheriff said an increased number of calls to this department justifies the additional lawmen.

The case load, the sheriff said, prompted the request for four additional deputies. "The national average per caseload per man is 35 to 45 — and our caseload per man averages 75 to 100," Polk said.

The sheriff's proposed operating budget — minus the request for additional personnel — totals $3.3 million, which is about a 10 per cent increase over last year's budget. Polk's salary is set by law. His increase will be from $28,556 to $29,710.

There are 12 deputies working for the sheriff. Salaries range from starting pay of $804 per month to a top salary of $1,031.

Last year, sheriff's department personnel received a five per cent pay increase. Polk said he arrives at that figure after meeting with his top department chiefs.

After the sheriff's budget is submitted, the county commission has until Aug. 1 to approve or disapprove Polk's request.

If the commission rejects Polk's proposed budget, the sheriff has 30 days in which to file an appeal to the governor's office in Tallahassee.

If an appeal is filed, the Florida Cabinet — of which Gov. Askew is the chief — rules on the exact dollar amount to allot the sheriff.

What's Business All About? It's Their Business To Explain

"What is the free enterprise system?"

"Welfare and food stamps, anything free."

"When you are all alone in a business."

"Money made easy."

It is an education program that makes learning about economics and business fun for 13 and 14 year olds, and brings top level business consultants into the classroom one hour a week for a nine-week term.

A new division of the National Junior Achievement organization Project Business has been tried successfully in Orange County schools for three years. The program has been such a hit at Lake Brantley with students, teachers and consultants, they hope to expand it there and other Seminole schools are expressing interest.

Some of the topics covered are "The Nature of Economics, Money and Banking, the U.S. Market System, Financial Statements, Consumerism, The American Economy, and Choosing A Career." The consultants and resource persons with expertise in various fields share with the students their experiences in the "real world." The classes go on field trips see films, participate in economic games and role playing to sharpen their interest in what might normally be a dull subject.

Lee Jacobs, executive director for Winte Park Telephone Co., a sponsoring firm, is one of the consultants working in the program at Lake Brantley this year. He calls his Project Business experience "very rewarding" in a good program and we've all learned something," he said.

"As for Americanism versus Communism being a required subject, we would be better off if we did more to sell Americanism than what is wrong with Communism through programs like Project Business."

In addition to the many hours Jacobs has put into teaching and coordinating the course in the classroom he has spent much time in preparation. Consultants and teachers attend a training session together as an introduction to Project Business.

This nine weeks Jacobs has been working with Keith Mewes, Lake Brantley Social Studies teacher. This is the second time the program has been presented in one of Mewes' classes. He said he and the other two participating teachers have enjoyed it and have gotten quite a bit out of the program. "I've gotten some good information to use in class and what they learn from the businessmen backs up what I have to say," Mewes said. "We are going to try and expand here and would like to see offered" throughout Seminole County.

Jacobs argues his teaching by bringing in those with expertise in certain fields, such as Lee Maynard, president of Barnett Bank of Seminole, Maynard explained how a bank operates and how a check is processed from beginning to end.

Ninth grader Cindy Harden and Kay Hewitt were enthusiastic about the program and think it should be expanded. "I learned a lot about business and how it functions," said Cindy. "I liked it, it was really informative," added Kay.

Project Business Manager Dale Jackson said, "The doors are wide open. Teachers want the program, but it will depend on the support of the business community. This is an excellent way for business in the local community to become more visible and promote free enterprise."

Junior Achievement is now in the process of identifying which business leaders, firms and professional organizations are anxious and ready to take their role in educating youth about our economic system.

Environmentalists, White House Lobbying For Emission Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists and the Carter administration are looking to the Senate to restore the tough automobile emission controls shot down in the House.

The House on Thursday passed a major revision of federal clean air laws, including an industry-backed amendment to delay tighter standards.

The House then sent the amended bill to the Senate, where similar legislation with tighter standards resembling those proposed by President Carter will be voted on next month.

Child Porn: Curtain Rising In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A House committee is bringing its investigation into child pornography to Los Angeles, seeking ways to control a growing trade in photographs, movies, slides and books depicting children engaged in sexual acts.

Los Angeles has become a kind of capital city of the so-called "kiddie porn" business. Investigator Lloyd Martin of the Los Angeles Police Department estimates that 20,000 boys and girls are sexually exploited by adults in Los Angeles every year.

Martin said much of child pornography is made in southern California. "You can tell by the suntan marks on a child's body that (he or she) is from a sunny climate," he said.

The scheduled leadoff witness today before the House Select Committee on Education and Labor is Robert Lloyd, a Los Angeles-based television newsman who has written a book on child pornography.

Lloyd says the children who most frequently wind up in the pages of such magazines as "Nudeist Moppets" and "Lily Girls Together" come from "a vast army of a million kids who run away each year."

What Lloyd, the police and others are seeking is a federal law prohibiting the filming of children under 16 engaged in sexual acts and the transportation of such films across state lines.

Gift Report Law Overturned

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A section of the state's code of ethics prohibiting public officials from accepting gifts or favors has been declared unconstitutional by the Florida Supreme Court.

"If another law is not enacted by the legislature, there will be no requirement for public officials to report their gifts and favors," Deputy Atty. Gen. James Whisenand said.

The court's unanimous decision Thursday held that the law was "fatally ambiguous" and said the state Ethics Commission was wrong in applying it in a 1974 case involving Stuart City Commissioner William Dale Anderson.

Zeigler Seeks Free Attorney

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — William Thomas Zeigler Jr. of Winter Garden, convicted of killing four people, has asked a federal judge to intervene in his effort to get the state to give him a free attorney.

"I am broke," he said in a petition to U.S. district court seeking an order for the state to furnish legal counsel for his appeal.

Zeigler, 30, was convicted last year of killing his wife, Eunice, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Edwards of Moultrie, Ga., and handyman Charles Mays Jr.

Ski Mask Trial Winding Up

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — Attorneys were ready with closing arguments today in the trial of ski-mask gang member Daniel M. Thomas, charged with murder, kidnaping and rape.

"The jury was expected to get the case before the end of the day.

Thomas is charged with the pistol slaying of Henry M. Kersey Jr., 21, in rural Deland. He is also on trial for six related charges, including raping and kidnaping the victim's wife, Leslie.

The defense attorney presented only three witnesses Thursday, two of them Thomas' relatives.

Carters To Ride Attack Sub

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — The President and Mrs. Carter can pilot the nuclear-powered attack submarine USS Los Angeles if they want to give it a try today during their cruise, Adm. Joe Williams says.

"It is easier to drive than a car," said Williams, commander of the U.S. Atlantic submarine force.

Young Doesn't Leave 'Em Laughing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Flery U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young is back in Washington after a trip through Europe and Africa that left the State Department stunned, the Swedes rick, the British chastised and the president of the New York borough of Queens incredulous.

But President Carter was still on Young's side. In a nationally televised news conference Thursday, Carter said he knew of "no instance that Andy Young has violated" administration policy.

The black ambassador stepped into new controversy while talking with reporters Wednesday en route to London from his official travels in Africa.

"The Russians, he said, are 'the worst racists in the world.'"

"He got Sweden and the New York borough of Queens with the same breath. The Swedes, he said, are 'terrible racists' and 'When the crumch comes, the black in Sweden is treated just like the black in Queens.'"

"He declared Britain's 'old colonial mentality' is still 'very strong.'"

"And, finally, he jolted the State Department on Thursday by saying in London and later in Washington that he really wasn't all that concerned about Cuban advisers in Ethiopia, even though the State Department was calling it a matter of 'grave concern.'"

When first asked about reports that 50 Cuban advisers were in Ethiopia, Young made an effort to espouse the State Department position, but it didn't end there.

"The State Department has expressed grave concern about that and I guess that's what I should do, too," the ambassador replied.

Then he admitted he wasn't really all that gravely concerned. "No... because they're killing people right and left (in Ethiopia). I guess I think maybe the Cubans might be a little more rational than Ethiopians at this point."

"We ought not just be afraid of Cubans," Young said. The statement recalled his earlier controversial contention that the Cubans had brought stability to Angola at a time when several native factions vied for control after that country's independence from Portugal.

Arriving at Andrews Air Force Base, Young coolly rebutted suggestions that his sometimes-contradictory remarks were bringing him criticism.

"I haven't had any criticism, all I've had is praise," he said. "I'm not going to worry about what a few people say to sell newspapers."

The newspapers they were selling in Sweden on Thursday prominently displayed Young's "terrible racism" remark. One prominent Swedish editor retorted that "I think we are neither better nor worse than other nations."

The remark linking Sweden and Queens was also being noticed in New York.

"Incredible," retorted Donald R. Manes, president of Queens. "The residents of Queens... have established an outstanding record of working and living together in harmony."

Boy Drowns in Longwood While Swimming Near School

Longwood police reported an eight-year-old boy drowned Thursday afternoon while swimming alone in a small lake near Longwood Elementary School.

Sgt. Robert Partain said this morning that the name of the victim was being withheld pending positive identification.

Police said another youngster passing by saw the boy struggling in the water about 50 feet from shore at 3:30 p.m., tried to throw him a paddle, and ran a quarter-mile home and told his mother who notified police.

Partain said diver Roger Shea recovered the body about an hour later in six feet of water near the spot where the boy was last seen.

Sheriff's detective Lowell Jones said today that three more juveniles, ages 16 and 17, have been arrested in connection with an armed robbery Wednesday at a residence at 20 Brantley Hills Court, Forest City.

Earlier a 14-year-old boy was arrested in connection with the case and deputies said $1,300 in property was recovered, including a 22-caliber pistol.

Jones said the pistol was allegedly test fired before it was taken from the residence Sunday along with camera, jewelry, coins, a radio and tape recorder which were later recovered by investigators.

The juvenile suspects turned over to state Division of Youth Services officials today at the Sanford Regional Juvenile Detention Center were boys aged 16 and 17 and a 16-year-old girl, deputies said.

Sheriff's deputies today were investigating a Thursday night incident in which a gunshot was fired through a window at the Five Points Club, U.S. 17-92 south of Sanford.

Deputy P.M. Stewart said approximately seven persons were in the bar about 10 p.m. when the shot was fired from outside. No injuries were reported.

CAR HITS POLE
No injuries were reported Thursday night when a car collided with a utility pole blown down by high winds at Brison Ave. and 20th St. Midway, sheriff's deputies said.

Deputy H.M. Hartley identified the driver of the car as Kevin Parker, 20, of Church St. Midway, and said the auto was damaged on the right front side in the collision.

Sanford Chiefs Seeking Limits On Plan Powers

By MARK WEINBERG
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford City Commissioners pressed three Seminole County commissioners to include in the county's proposed comprehensive plan development framework a statement city leaders are protesting the county from exercising illegal planning authority within Seminole's cities despite the county commissioners' assurances that such a statement is unnecessary.

The county commission will conduct public hearings on the development framework, which is a statement of policies to guide county planners in developing details of the plan, on June 7 and June 21. Following the second hearing, the commissioners will vote on the framework.

"Why not incorporate a statement into the framework that the plan gives the county no power within the municipalities?" asked City Commissioner A. A. McClanahan. "That way you will eliminate the fears of officials of Seminole's seven cities."

"We're not allowed to exercise those powers," answered County Commissioner Bob French. "I don't see where we're not saying it."

French and County Commissioner Chairman Dick Williams said the framework did not intend to usurp city planning functions and was written to comply with the Seminole County Comprehensive Planning Act of 1974 and the Local Government Comprehensive Planning Act of 1975, which limit the county's planning responsibilities to the unincorporated areas.

The commissioners also said a draft of the ordinance which the county commission will adopt to approve the plan states the plan will be in accord with the state laws.

A specific statement "would ally all the fears of all the cities."

The council also learned that a large segment of hobby-oriented entertainment and display will be part of the Golden Age Olympics celebration. The Golden Age Olympics committee announced they have applied for incorporation as a nonprofit organization.

Seven Children Injured In School Bus-Truck Crash

BRANDON (AP) — A collision between a school bus and pickup truck injured seven children, but only two were hospitalized. They were reported in satisfactory condition today.

The two hospitalized children were Joey Warren, 9, of Riverview, and Lloyd Pippin, 11, of Dover.

Michael Miller, 16, of Riverview, the driver of the pickup truck, also was injured in the crash. He was reported in satisfactory condition at a Tampa hospital.

Florida Highway Patrol troopers said that Miller tried to stop when he saw the yellow lights blinking on the bus as it prepared to stop in the opposite lane to let children out.

But Miller lost control of his truck, went off the road and hit the bus broadside, troopers said.

Graduate Ranks First, Last

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — Elizabeth Lynn Marbury graduated Thursday night at the top of her class. Also at the bottom.

She was the only 1977 graduate of Arlington Christian Academy, a small private high school.

Although Miss Marbury was the only senior, the school held a ceremony, with Dr. Ralph Williams, pastor of the Pompano Beach Church of God, as commencement speaker.

Gift Report Law Overturned

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A section of the state's code of ethics prohibiting public officials from accepting gifts or favors has been declared unconstitutional by the Florida Supreme Court.

"If another law is not enacted by the legislature, there will be no requirement for public officials to report their gifts and favors," Deputy Atty. Gen. James Whisenand said.

The court's unanimous decision Thursday held that the law was "fatally ambiguous" and said the state Ethics Commission was wrong in applying it in a 1974 case involving Stuart City Commissioner William Dale Anderson.

Zeigler, 30, was convicted last year of killing his wife, Eunice, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Edwards of Moultrie, Ga., and handyman Charles Mays Jr.

The defense attorney presented only three witnesses Thursday, two of them Thomas' relatives.

Carters To Ride Attack Sub

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — The President and Mrs. Carter can pilot the nuclear-powered attack submarine USS Los Angeles if they want to give it a try today during their cruise, Adm. Joe Williams says.

"It is easier to drive than a car," said Williams, commander of the U.S. Atlantic submarine force.

Lake Mary Trailer: Landfill Conflict?

The Lake Mary Board of Adjustment Thursday night approved a conditional use allowing a trailer and shallow water well to be placed on the Southward orange groves across the street from the City of Sanford's proposed landfill site at SR-46A and Oregon Ave.

The State Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) rules prohibit landfills from being located within 1,000 feet of shallow wells.

Sanford's application to DER to operate a landfill on 23 acres was turned down by DER until the land, now zoned residential, is rezoned to agricultural, which would permit a landfill.

But the 23 acres is less than 250 feet from the well, which may force Sanford officials to change the proposed location of the landfill to another parcel of the 85.46 acres the city agreed to purchase in January from an out-of-state group of investors to provide a location for the landfill.

The trailer will provide housing for a security guard to protect the Southward orange groves from vandalism, which has been a continuing problem in the area for the past several years, according to members of the Southward family.

Ernest M. Southward is a member of the 46A Environmental Protection Association, a group of residents protesting Sanford's landfill plans.

The trailer, said Southward, would be located at least 100 feet south of SR-46A, as required by Lake Mary regulations. — MARK WEINBERG.

Who Prosecutes? No One Knows

Casselberry's Non-Voting Councilman

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Did or didn't Casselberry Councilman Carl Robertson Jr. violate state law by abstaining from voting on an issue before the city council Wednesday night?

Three state agencies Thursday indicated a law exists on the books — Chapter 286.012 — requiring officials to vote on every issue unless a conflict of interest is involved.

But, none of the three agencies — the governor's office, the state ethics committee nor Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin's office — said they know who prosecutes when that law is violated.

And State Atty. Douglas Cheshire's office declined comment on whether the office will be taking action on the matter.

Robertson has not been available for comment.

In the meantime, Councilman John Leighty today said a special meeting called by Council Chairman Nathan Van Meter for 3 p.m. today was not properly called in accordance with the city charter and may have been scheduled to give Robertson an opportunity to correct his abstention.

Van Meter said Thursday Robertson may wish to correct his action at the special meeting today adding it was his impression that the freshman councilman did not know the law requires a vote on each issue. Robertson said at the Wednesday night meeting he did not have enough information on the planned refinancing of the city's $9 million utility bond issue to understand the issue and vote.

Van Meter said today the special meeting will last probably only five minutes and was called to set a special hearing on federal revenue-sharing funds.

He said Robertson probably cannot correct his vote today even if he wants to. "The only formal action that can be taken at the meeting is on the subject matter included on the notice of the meeting," he said. The Robertson abstention is not on the notice.

Leighty said, however, the city charter requires 34-hour written notice and that Van Meter had not complied with that requirement and further that the charter says the mayor or two members of the council can call a special meeting. Leighty said he cannot attend the afternoon meeting and must work for a living during the daytime.

Councilman Frank Schutte said he also will not be attending the meeting and that no written notice was received.

"There is no real reason we should go from the routine to the extreme," Schutte said, adding the city has known since April that a public hearing had to be set and that the council has been meeting practically every Monday and Wednesday night for weeks.

Van Meter said Finance Director Milton Kast Thursday told him and Mayor Gerald Christensen that the public hearing must be set and that the city is facing a deadline on the hearing.

"It is not even necessary that Leighty be there," he said, noting only a quorum is necessary.

"The public hearing must be held so that citizen input can be received and this input plugged into the proposed budget to the mayor must present to the council in July. Kast was going to bring up the matter Wednesday night and apparently it slipped his mind. He probably couldn't have brought it up Wednesday night anyway because it was not on the agenda," Van Meter said.

He said all that is necessary to be present is a quorum and that setting the hearing is a formality.

Leighty said a meeting could be held Tuesday to set the public hearing and that Kast was not available at the utility office this morning to answer questions concerning the required hearing.

Who Says Jobs Bill Will Be A Stimulus?

It is more than a little irksome to see wire services and other correspondents casually referring to President Carter's $4 billion jobs bill, without quotation marks or any other qualifier, as an economic stimulus program. The program will stimulate nothing other than a feast of political patronage. Small wonder Congress spiced it up with such enthusiasm.

Let us consider first its claim as a stimulus. If an economy is to move toward a more healthy footing, indeed if it is to respond accurately to democratic impulses, it will have to reconcile efficiently the twin requirements of supply and demand. The Carter program will coercively take $4 billion from American taxpayers to "create" at least 300,000 jobs consumers never demanded.

The jobs will be directed toward building more hospitals, jails, schools and roads — just like in the New Deal. Nobody asked if the country needs more such institutions, but we suppose this is an example of the government's enlightened planning. Jimmy Carter has already complained that too many idle hospital rooms are pushing up medical costs; we've not heard his explanation for constructing more hospitals. Does he even have one?

Similar questions intrude as to the need for more schools, a surplus of which exists in American suburbia. If there were fewer laws governing peoples' private behavior, there would be no need for more jail cells. And more roads? The purpose of roads is driving. Yet the Carter administration has termed the discouragement of driving the "moral equivalent of war." And what will the environmentalists think of more roads?

Surely a formula for stimulating the economy would hold as its first priority the reconversion of supply with demand? The Carter program, however, stays blissfully away from any recognition of the importance of demand. And journalists steadfastly repeat the administration's description of the bill as an "economic stimulus" package. Do they need a refresher course in semantics? A lesson in discernment?

Never mind such obvious questions about it, the bill sailing through Congress by a lopsided vote of 325 to 77. Why such enthusiasm, this after 100 days of Capitol Hill denouncing its "independence" from the White House? If you really think you should ask, consider this: The New York Daily News reports that City Hall has "recommended" 200 politically connected youngsters for summer jobs in the city's parks department; the jobs pay $27 a day.

Nonplussed by the Daily News' revelation, Deputy Mayor Stanley Friedman explained that "if we publicly announce the jobs literally thousands of people would have been fighting to get just the few hundred that we have." Besides, why give out patronage to young people without political connections? You get the picture.

Timing Was Good

Speaking of semantics, it is worth noting that Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has decided it was time to retreat officially from the Carter administration's moralistic "human rights" stance. He sought to temper the White House's requirements for dealing with other nations with a new "realism."

Vance timing was very, very good; his new pronouncement prudent. For recently the Carter administration took bold steps to "normalize" relations with Vietnam, which vanquished us in the last war. The new Vietnamese rulers, since the collapse of Saigon two years ago, have instituted a reign of terror, brutally setting up concentration camps for the "re-education" of dissenters and murdering wholesale the recalcitrants.

Around

The Clock

It costs $138.38 a month to feed the male Bengal tiger at the Central Florida Zoo.

To keep the two female Bengals in meat for a month costs $127.58 each.

If housewives are getting headaches over the taste of the grocery stores clerks ring up each week, that's nothing to the pain zoo officials feel when the monthly food bills start coming in.

Old Leo the lion gobbles up $116.78 worth of nourishment each month; his mate Daisy has an appetite which is only about $10 less costly.

Sobik, the elephant, goes through $131.98 worth of hay, grain and fruit a month — and perhaps more if he is smart enough to steal part of Geraldine the hippo's identical allotment of $131.98 worth of groceries.

The large hoof stock, the bears, the big cats and apes all have hearty appetites. The small animals obviously consume less, but the odd $38 here to feed an otter and $17 there to feed the skunk all add up to a staggering total.

With the zoo still trying to reduce its $102,000 note obligation by $6,000 to $7,000 a month, finding the extra dollars to keep the animals well fed is an ongoing battle.

To supplement the cost of feeding and caring for the animals at the zoo, the Central Florida Zoological Society has established an Animal Adoption Plan. Anyone wishing to "adopt" an animal by paying all or part of its monthly feed bill should call the zoo at 325-4450 or write to the society at P.O. Drawer 2078 Sanford.

Do the animals appreciate the food and care they get at the zoo? Al Rozon, zoo director, answers that question with this story about a Foxy Lady.

Of the pair of foxes living at the zoo, the female is the tamer and, it would seem, the more adventurous. Twice she has escaped from her cage, slipping out the door when the curator's back was turned for an instant.

The first time the wide open spaces of the world outside her cage frightened her, and it was not many minutes before she responded to the curator's calls, and came trotting home.

But by the second escape, she had built up her courage and led the zoo personnel a merry dance through the swamp and down to Lake Monroe. "Figuratively and literally, she outfoxed us," said Rozon.

During the five or six days of her escape, she was spotted three times, hunting and fishing along the lakefront. But the zoo officials also noticed that the male fox back in the den seemed to be having no trouble finishing a double helping of food. Then they noticed the tunnel — from the outside, into the cage. Foxy Lady was apparently not having much luck hunting, and was sneaking home after dust for supper.

So the next night her curator unrolled his sleeping bag near the cage and settled down for the vigil. It was barely dark before a small red figure crept out of the woods, trotted across the cage and slid under the fence.

While she gobbled her supper, the curator quickly blocked off her escape route.

"Like at the zoo can't be too bad for her to keep coming back," commented Rozon. "This is home to her."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviets Demand Extradition Of Man Who Hijacked Airliner

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Soviet Union has demanded extradition of a 37-year-old engineer who hijacked a Russian airliner to Stockholm, but Swedish officials say they do not have to give him up.

Soviet diplomats were on the scene Thursday only minutes after the twin-engine Anatov-24 aircraft with 18 passengers and a crew of five set down at Arlanda International Airport. Police said the hijacker had pretended to carry explosives but a search revealed none.

The hijacker left the plane with police and authorities said he asked to become a "refugee." Swedish officials complied with the hijacker's request not to be identified but they said he was from Byelorussia near Poland in the western part of the Soviet Union.

"According to the preliminary interrogation we understand he wants political asylum here even if he has not formally made a request in so many words," a police spokesman said.

Begin Backs 'Off From Dayan Choice

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Menachem Begin, faced with a growing political revolt over his choice of Moshe Dayan as foreign minister, has decided to reconsider the appointment threatening to split his Likud coalition, a spokesman said today.

The Likud spokesman said the party's executive committee would meet Sunday to "reconsider" the appointment.

"No student shall be compelled to attend public schools other than the one nearest his residence," and Section 2 ("The Congress shall have the power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article; and to insure equal educational opportunities for all students wherever located").

In addition, benefit plans are believed by many employers to result in greater employee loyalty, and in general to promote happier, more secure and perhaps more productive workers.

Over the years the portfolio of employee benefits has developed from pensions and profit-sharing to health and disability insurance, dental insurance, and most recently legal insurance.

Except for some life insurance costs, these expenses are totally tax deductible to the employer.

It is partly for this reason that the standard among large companies today is to pay in full for such benefits. And the result, in effect, is to provide the worker with tax-sheltered income.

Neither automobile nor homeowners insurance is now eligible for similar tax treatment, but in Mactas' view some companies might be inclined to offer the plans anyway.

"If employers can step in on a group basis I think it would be a tremendous service to workers," he said, adding that he feels Congress might then be inclined to permit employers to deduct the expenses, as they do for other benefits.

55 Adults Still Held

Moluccans Release 105 Children, Teacher

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Four days of food and fear ended for 105 Dutch children and their parents early today when armed Asian extremists released all of the students — half of them ill with a stomach virus — and one teacher from a village schoolhouse.

At least 55 hostages remained the captives of a separate band of South Moluccan terrorists on a train 15 miles north of the school.

Police said three teachers and the principal remained captive in the school at Bovenamide, a farming village in northern Holland. Authorities had said six adults were being held but the freed teacher said only himself and four others were in the crowded school.

More than 50 of the children, aged 6 to 12, were suffering from a virus infection which swept through the students crowded together in the one-story elementary school, officials said.

The illing children were taken by ambulances to a hospital in nearby Assen, where 26 were admitted. Their conditions were not known.

The illness was understood to have caused vomiting and diarrhea at the schoolhouse. Red Cross officials told parents to give their children a hot bath and send them to bed. The children were told not to eat or drink too much at first.

Dutch Justice Ministry spokesman, Wim van Leeuwen, said the six Moluccan terrorists at the school apparently decided to let the children go as one after another fell ill. Justice Minister Andreas van Agt said in a radio broadcast, "Things threatened to go wrong for a moment, but now they (the children) are all out of the school building."

He apparently referred to a terrorist complaint at one point that the operation was not moving fast enough. The government had refused to begin serious negotiations unless the children were freed.

In response to questions, van Agt denied that food sent to the hostages and gunmen had been tampered with. Authorities have been making regular deliveries of food, water and medicines to the school.

The release began just after 4 a.m. and took 2 1/2 hours. Parents were held by police behind crash barriers a distance from the school.

State police said seven other Moluccan extremists continued to hold their hostages aboard a passenger train they hijacked Monday. Police and troops rick the train, sitting in lush farmland north of Assen.

The gunmen took the train and school hostages in a bid to force the Dutch government to free 21 Moluccan extremists jailed for terrorist activity in this country. The terrorists also demanded a jumbo jet to fly themselves and their comrades out of the country.

The terrorism stems from the militants' desire for independence for their pacific island homeland. The south Moluccans, formerly the Spice Islands, were ruled by the Dutch for centuries but became part of Indonesia in 1949 when that former Dutch colony was granted independence.

Fighting In Angola Reported

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Shootings and explosions erupted in the Angolan capital of Luanda early today and truckloads of troops in full battle gear were seen moving through the streets, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported.

The Yugoslav news agency said the city was virtually deserted except for soldiers and armed civilians. About 10 a.m. local time truckloads of soldiers in full combat readiness were seen heading toward the presidential palace of Marxist President Agostinho Neto.

Tanjung said there has been no sign of police but a large number of civilians armed with automatic and light weapons could be seen.

Earlier this week, Tanjug reported from Luanda the purge of two top leaders, who were expelled for factionalism and dogmatism from the movement headed by Neto.

An action committee of the ruling Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola broadcast an announcement over Radio Luanda that said in the interest of workers, peasants, and the Angolan people an action was carried out in which veteran fighters falsely accused of treason were released from prison.

The radio made no further reference to the action.

Nine Grid Returnees Leave Lyman With Room To Build

By ANDY GIRARDI
Herald Correspondent

"We will have only nine starting players returning from last year's squad, it will be tough to win," Copeland said. "A very young team will take the field tonight in the six-quarter, six-team jamboree, which will be hosted by Lake Howell High School and begin at 7:30 p.m.

Twenty-one seniors will be on the squad this fall with over 30 juniors and a few sophomores, Copeland said. That will give Copeland a very young team, and also give him between 30 and 40 experienced players when it becomes football time.

"I guess it can be called a building year for this team but there is a funny thing about building years some times they end up being the best season."

"The first two units on the team are gonna play a lot of football, that will give us 44 players who have a great deal of experience and a lot of those kids will be on the team the

LYMAN GOES TO THE AIR FOR SPRING DRILLS
Copeland feels that this year team is much more depth. "We're a better team, we are not as big, but we are giving us and our very anxious to see what will happen Friday night," Copeland added. As far as the schedule goes Copeland says it is not difficult. There are many tough teams on this schedule but we don't have them week after week like we did last year," he later added.

The schedule which seems a little easier begins on Sept. 9 with Boone High School. It continues in order as follows, Lake Brantley, Spruce Creek, Gainesville, Mainland, Lake Howell, Bishop Moore, DeLand, Apopka and the schedule will conclude with Seminole High School on Nov. 11.

Others seniors who will start include Steve Mulligan, Melvin Melton, and Steve Meyers. Melton and Mulligan are both listed at linebacker slots and Meyers is down as a defensive back.

Others who will probably be in starting roles this fall include: Drew Mooth, Sophomore Randy Vaughn, Ron Brown, Keith Whitehouse, Jeff Hill, Scott Stone and Steve Kurt another freshman who will be a sophomore in the fall.

Others include Jay Lynch, Mike McClanahan, Darren Stevens, Mitch Pleasley, Steve Steven and Tony Brooks listed as a possible starting tail back.

Twenty-three seniors have been lost to graduation this year but Copeland feels he has much more depth and a better team despite that loss, it will be interesting to see if this young school will be able to mature quickly and what will happen this year.

"These guys don't have a lot of experience, but they are talented and have a great deal of enthusiasm and really need to be coached."

"If we are ready and we may be, we could win them all."

Jamboree Tonight At Lake Howell

Six quarters of football will be staged tonight at Lake Howell High School's stadium as five Seminole County high school football teams give a sneak preview of what fans can look for next fall.

The jamboree concludes 20 days of spring training.

At the same field Saturday, Trinity Prep hosts a jamboree starting at 2 p.m.

Things will get started when Lake Brantley meets Oviedo in a first-quarter matchup.

In the second quarter Seminole will take on Oviedo and Brantley will face Seminole in the third.

Other matchups include Apopka vs. Lyman in the fourth quarter, Lake Howell against Lyman the fifth, and Howell vs. Apopka in the final stanza.

Action is expected to run roughly a half-hour each quarter.

Tickets will be sold at the gate for $2.25 each.

Tonight will be the time for coaches to analyze their spring practices and decide if they will try to change lineups before the season starts early in September.

For close to a month each school has been working out five days a week getting ready for this earlier start, and will give a great deal of insight in to what may happen this fall.

Brantley coach, Jim Raley, is relying on new found experience from his young players to get the team back on the winning track.

Jerry Posey will try his best to keep his team solid and healthy all season long. Everyone likes to beat a winner and that is one thing Seminole will have to cope with.

Oviedo head coach Joe Montgomery will be using basically the same team as last season. Experience may improve their record.

Curtis Keen will have great difficulty with his new AAAA schedule but he expects to have a better season at Lake Howell.

Dick Copeland will rely on new found enthusiasm to lead Lyman to bigger and better things.

Seniors Nab SHS Awards

By SHARON REMPE
Herald Correspondent

Five Seminole High School seniors walked away with the top honors in Thursday night's 20th annual All-Sports Award ceremony.

Swimmer and soccer player Dan McIntosh was presented the Terry Cordell Memorial trophy for the second year in a row for the athlete participating in two major sports and maintaining the highest grade point average.

Receiving the Wilbur Lucas trophy for all-sports was David McCook, and Scott Reagan and Teresa Peirce shared most improved honors.

MVP on volleyball was Mary McCover.

Ruben Cotton was MVP and David Wiggins, best defensive player on varsity basketball.

Kenny Graham was the most improved player in volleyball.

Greg Pringle was the football outstanding defensive linebacker, Ricky Brisson outstanding defensive back, and Ricky Mann outstanding offensive lineman.

Outstanding JV player was Mike Sutton.

Tim Grayson received the Senior Student Trainer's Service Award.

Conyers Homer Keys Hamp's

Hamp's Angels made the most of six base hits Thursday night in the Sanford Women's League, posting a 9-0 slow-pitch softball win over Auto-Train.

Eight errors didn't help Auto-Train, but the biggest blow of the game was a home run by Terry Conyers, a two-run blast in the second which was all the runs the Angels needed.

Softballer Cash Fined

DETROIT (AP) - Ex-Detroit Tigers' first baseman Norm Cash, who signed with a Detroit professional slow pitch softball team this month, is starting out the season $500 in the hole.

Mike Ilich, owner of the team, held a press day Thursday to show off his new player. Cash didn't show.

"I didn't feel good," Cash later explained.

Neither did Ilich, after spending two hours trying to find out where his player was, Ilich slapped Cash with a $500 fine and said it was time to find out if the former Tigers' slugger was serious about wanting to play softball.

Porzig Sparks Kiwanis Win

George Porzig had two hits to lead Kiwanis to a 1-4 victory over V.F.W. in the Sanford Junior League, Thursday.

Derrick Anderson and Peter Kooy each had one hit for V.F.W.

On the winning side, Jeff Quinn, Solomon Hardy, and Billy Adams each had one hit for Kiwanis.

Porzig recorded the victory while allowing only two earned runs, two hits and striking out 10.

Downer, Leonard Pee Wees Shine

Timmy Downer and Richard Leonard had two hits each Thursday to pace their respective teams to victory in Sanford's Pee Wee League.

Downer led the Cardinals to a 10-1 victory over the Yankees while Leonard sparked the Twins past the Panthers, 11-0.

The night's third game between the Tigers and Rebels was halted in the first inning because of lightning.

76ers: All They Do Is Win, Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - They're passing the ball, they're getting up the open man - the Philadelphia 76ers are doing their best to run their reputation.

"People put us down all the time," said playmaker Henry Bibby. "They say we're a bunch of one-on-one players, we can't play team ball, we can't execute our plays well, we don't do the job on defense."

"We keep saying it - but we keep winning."

Bibby was the sparkplug in Philadelphia's lopsided 107-89 triumph over the Portland Trail Blazers Thursday night, a victory which gave the 76ers a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series.

The series resumes Sunday at Portland.

Bibby scored 15 points and handed out six assists in the first half, when the 76ers took an 18-point lead with a racehorse effort and shocking defense. Portland never was really in the game after being outscored 30-17 in the second period.

"I've got a monster on Portland in the second half," Bibby said.

The game was marred by a fourth-quarter melee which 500 Pick? Who Else, But A.J.?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A.J. Foyt, in his 10th try for a record fourth victory, and Al Unser, who walked away from a brush with death last weekend, are co-favorites in Sunday's 61st running of the Indianapolis 500.

In the annual Associated Press poll of drivers, mechanics, officials and newsmen following a car show Thursday, Foyt and the younger Unser brother were paired off at 4-1 odds.

The poll also gave a rookie, Danny Ongles, the best odds for any first-year driver in many years at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Fifteen drivers in the 33-car lineup were given a reflection of 10-1 or better, a reflection on the number of new cars in the race.

Most interesting members think Al Unser is the best bet to win the race.

"A lot of people think that we're a bunch of renegades," said Unser. "They think that we're a bunch of renegades, but we're not. We're just a bunch of good, well-drilled team men who want to run this sport as it is."

Check That Equipment!

You've been fishing hard with much activity when suddenly your rod tips downward, the drag system squeals and you let out a yell, "I've got a monster on!"

Then, just as suddenly, the line goes limp. Disgustingly, you reel slack line in and discover plug and leader are gone. Your first inclination is to throw everything overboard.

But wait! A minute! When was the last time your reels serviced? Did you check your drag setting prior to going fishing? Have you wound the line through your fingers feeling for tell-tale kinks or burrs that may cause a broken line?

It's amazing to observe a man unload a $6,000 bass boat off an $800 trailer that he pulls around with an $8,000 wheel drive vehicle, pull out a $100 rod and reel and start casting with $2.98 worth of line he bought at a discount store.

Decent equipment and preventive maintenance can mean the difference between landing that once-in-a-lifetime fish or coming home grumbling about the one that got away.

Most reels are so complicated that, with a little patience and practice, basic cleaning can become almost second nature.

Procedure is most important. Lay each part in sequence as you dismantle; then, as you reassemble, the parts will be in proper order.

The first time I pulled my 5000 Ambassador apart I laid the parts out on a table confident that all the pieces would fall into place. Two days and many explosives later, I finally scraped it out into a brown paper bag and took it to a shop in hopes that even an expert could jigsaw it back together.

After careful study and practice, I have enough confidence now that I've even cleaned and repaired a reel on several occasions using a flashlight at night.

But the real answer is a good preventive maintenance program. One hint - if you have trouble with your drag, use soft tanned deer hide cut to the same dimensions. They're not last as long but the smoothness is very satisfying.

Proper equipment does not necessarily have to be expensive. Conversely, proper equipment is NOT a prepackaged rod and reel costing $7.95.

To hold the expense down, try using several combinations off one reel.

As an example, I use my 500 with 17 or 20 pound test line on a Fenwick lunker stick for bass fishing and, by just switching the reel over to my 7 foot Fenwick popping rod, it's a made to order light saltwater rig. By using two reels with the proper size line, you can use a medium weight fly-rod for bass or panfish just by changing reels.

Proper equipment does not necessarily have to be expensive. Conversely, proper equipment is NOT a prepackaged rod and reel costing $7.95.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

PRESIDENT CARTER ISN'T JUST WHISTLING "DIXIE"

His proposed energy plan is a tough one. I agree and respect him for having the intestinal fortitude to initiate it. If we don't conserve energy - it's going to cost us. If we do, we get rewarded. He has proposed a gasoline tax that will hit us all if we don't stop increasing our consumption. There is a possible tax on gas-guzzling cars and a possible tax rebate on cars that get good gas mileage. It had to happen. How the President's proposal comes out after Congress gets through with it is anybody's guess, but we all know that we have got to conserve energy. Either we do it voluntarily, or the government is going to do it for us.

We certainly haven't been doing it. So far this year, the best selling cars have been the "gas-guzzlers." More than half the cars that have been sold in the 1977 model year have been mid-sized models or bigger. Even with gasoline at twice the price it was just a few years ago, people are buying the cars that guzzle it.

Whether you support the President's energy program or not, you have to agree that a program of this type is needed.

SHOULD YOU HAVE TO BE LEGISLATED INTO BUYING A TOYOTA?

We don't think so. In the first place, a Toyota is a quality built automobile that won't cramp your style. It looks good, is a pleasure to drive and, above all, a Toyota is thrifty to buy and economical to operate.

There is already a federal regulation that all 1978 cars should get at least 18 miles per gallon. That doesn't apply to each individual car, but all the cars from any one manufacturer must average out to that figure. And the law gets tougher. By 1980, a manufacturer's cars models must average out to 20 m.p.g. and 27.5 m.p.g. by 1985. The regulations and laws are already on the books. It might interest you to know that our Toyota cars average over 31 m.p.g. according to the E.P.A. estimates. Toyota has been the small car specialist for over 40 years.

Our mileage champ is the Toyota Corolla with an E.P.A. estimate of 49 m.p.g. on the highway, 36 m.p.g. in the city. Of course, your mileage would depend on how and where you drive and the condition of the car.

The purchase of a Toyota is a good common sense. It shouldn't take a federal law to convince you to buy one. Our Toyota gets good mileage and therefore conserves energy. I recommend that after you buy your new Toyota, you take it back to your dealer for service. He'll keep your Toyota in top condition so it keeps getting that good mileage with its Toyota factory trained technicians and genuine Toyota parts - parts that are available because he has the best parts replacement system in the industry. No, sir, it shouldn't take a threatened gasoline tax or a government rebate to convince you to buy a new Toyota, because it's a good quality automobile.

Sincerely,
Jim Moran

May - December Affair Could Go Broke

DEAR ABBY: I am a 53-year-old man who is very much in love with a 22-year-old girl. I know you think I'm crazy, but this girl really loves me. She even broke up with a young, good-looking man just for me. She worked for me for a short time, but we didn't want any talk around the place, so I had her quit.
My problem is my wife. She won't give me a divorce. Our children are grown, and I offered my wife a very good settlement, which she refused. Abby, my girlfriend is the sweetest, most unspoiled girl in the world. She is just the opposite of my wife. She appreciates every little thing I've given her, like a small, inexpensive car, some clothes and taking care of her mother's hospital bill. I would gladly give up my last dime to be free to marry this girl. How can I get my wife to give in?
LONG ISLANDER
DEAR ISLANDER: Make her a better offer. She might surprise you. But don't give up your last dime! For your freedom because that "sweet unspoiled girl" might also surprise you and disappear when she discovers you're broke.
DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 28-year-old, college-educated man who takes a ping-pong ball to bed with him every night and keeps bouncing it off the wall and catching it until he gets tired enough to fall asleep? He claims it "relieves tension." We have been married for two years, and he started this foolishness about six months ago. I have even considered leaving this nut!
PING-PONG PROBLEM
DEAR PING: Your husband is inconsiderate to relieve his tension in a manner that adds to yours. Suggest that he tell his troubles to a doctor before you tell yours to a lawyer.
DEAR ABBY: My husband and our daughter were too close to suit me. They were cutting me out, so I solved it by telling my husband a few things about her, and they are no longer close.
Then he developed a closeness with our son, and I used the same methods, and our son left home.
Someone in our family who knew how I solved this problem sent me an article in which there was a similar situation. It said the wife was jealous of her own children.
Abby, because I want to be first in my husband's life, does that mean I am jealous?
I admit I'm jealous where other women are concerned because when he has had to go out of town on business, I always go with him. I trust him in town, but not OUT of town. I think that kind of jealousy is normal, but I don't think it's possible to be jealous of my own children, do you?
JEALOUS
DEAR JEALOUS: Yes. And from where I sit, I would say that you are. I would also say that the "method" you used to break up the "closeness" between your husband and your children was underhanded and nothing to be proud of.

Teddy Pendergrass, who has been making soul music hit records since 1972 on the Philadelphia International Label, will present two concerts Saturday night at the Orlando-Seminole Jai-Alai Fronton, at 7:30 and 10:30 p.m.
The response to the singer's recorded such hits as "I Ous" (1972), "If You Don't Me by Me" (1972), "The I Lost" (1973), "Bad n and raised in Memphis, the 26-year-old rgrass has been singing the age of two. Having been reared in a religious home environment, his music has strong religious roots.
During a five-year stint with the Blue Notes, Teddy's drumming earned him job offers from Sammy Davis and Buddy Greco, but he turned the offers down, waiting for success to crown his singing efforts.
Of Pendergrass' lively style, Tony Cumming of Black Music magazine said, "His sound is jagged, hoarse, apparently on the verge of breakdown, but somehow always winning his struggle to articulate his sorrow. More chillingly desperate a sound has yet to be heard."
Beginning the fronton performances will be vocalist Marlene Shaw.

Hare Krishna Sceptical

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A Hare Krishna official says he doubts whether Genny Ayers, who was whisked away from Salt Lake City Airport under court order three weeks ago, has really been deprogrammed as her mother says.
Genevieve S. Ayers, mother of Genny, 22, said in Jackson ville, Fla. that her daughter had been deprogrammed and now wanted to help deprogram other Krishnas.
But Jagannath Suta asked Thursday why Genny had not come forth and made public statements herself.
"If Genny has turned against the Hare Krishna movement and is convinced enough to want to help others leave the sect," why isn't she willing to talk to even one reporter to confirm it?" he asked.
Mrs. Ayers said her daughter was still undergoing rehabilitation, and refused to say where she was.

Juvenile Detention Center Battles Crowding, Vandalism

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer
State officials are studying expansion of the Seminole Regional Juvenile Detention Center at Sanford, but apparently no relief is in sight for the facility that has been dangerously overcrowded for the last six months.
The Sanford facility, designed to house 13 juveniles, had 26 juvenile occupants Friday and superintendent Rick Hughtell termed the situation -- with 13 juveniles sleeping on mattresses and wrestling pads on floors -- as "inhumane."
Hughtell said the facility is "in optimistic." Hughtell noted that the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) is taking a good look at our expansion needs. The needs have been recognized but I don't know when and where the money (for expansion) will come from.
Hughtell says his staff of 18 employees is able to meet state minimum health and safety standards "but marginally."
Regional HRS officials are requesting a modular addition with more beds and support facilities for the Sanford center. Paul Sneed, Orlando area Youth Services program supervisor said the request has gone to HRS architects who will study the situation and come up with recommendations and cost estimates.
Sneed said "It's still only in the planning stage."
In Tallahassee HRS officials said a quick look at the HRS budget proposal for the upcoming fiscal year shows no funds for expansion at the Sanford detention center.
Area officials said Friday that overcrowding is a problem at many detention centers around the state. They reported average overcrowding at 50 percent.
At Orlando, where a federal court judge earlier took action aimed at limiting overcrowding at the Orange County Youth Hall, a state judge Wednesday issued orders limiting the county jail's juvenile population to the 16 youths presently confined to a single cell there. The judge ordered four other juveniles returned to the youth hall because they exceeded that limit.
When the Sanford detention auxiliary is constructed in 1973, state officials limited it to 13-bed capacity, despite protests by local government officials that more capacity would be needed.
"Now it looks like the state will have to eat crow," one official commented Friday. The county financed the $260,000 juvenile detention center on county-owned property at County Home Hill off U.S. 17-92 south of Sanford as part of a bond issue. The bond issue won't be paid off until 1991.
HRS took over the center before opening and leases it from the county for 11-year terms. The state pays for maintenance on the building, operations and staffing.
Maintenance can be expensive. Recently four juveniles in detention broke a bed from its floor moorings and tore up mattresses and bedding. Damage was estimated at $400.
In another incident juveniles battered down a steel fire door to one of the sleeping rooms.
In recent weeks juveniles have battered and broken Lexan plastic security windows at the detention center. Replacements had to be made immediately at costs up to $425.
State regulations prohibit corporal punishment of disruptive or destructive juveniles being held at detention centers. Only restraint is allowed and maximum punishment by isolation in a room is limited to no more than six hours.
Two of the juveniles who ripped out the bed and tore up mattresses and bedding were See OVERCROWDING, Page 8A

Seminole Residents Share Fond Memories

USS Roosevelt: 'She Was A Good Ship'

By MARYLYN SHEDDAN Herald Writer
"The (USS Franklin D.) Roosevelt was seaworthy, there is no doubt about it. She could take anything the sea would throw at her. I think that's one reason she has a warm place in my heart," recalls former Boatwain Mate Waverly Dowdy of Paola.
Dowdy had a big brother in the Navy before World War II who wrote home that little brother couldn't possibly have what it takes to be a sailor.
Challenged, Dowdy joined up at 17 and set out to serve alongside his brother, Charles.
After chasing each other about for 10 years during the war and afterwards, the brothers finally got to serve together -- on board the Roosevelt.
The grey flat-top, six inches short of 1,000 feet in length, was in Mayport, near Jacksonville, last weekend, and was opened to the public for the last time before her decommissioning Oct. 1. She carries only a skeleton crew, compared to 3,000 she carried when Dowdy was on board and the 4,000 on her final cruise. When she reaches Norfolk Naval Shipyard (Virginia), she will gradually be emptied and scrapped. The public -- and her old crew members -- will no longer be allowed on board.
"you may find you go to a hamburger place and get little souvenir razor blades marked 'Roosevelt' -- was the slightly bitter explanation given by one of the remaining crewmen.
"I think the thing that should be remembered about the Roosevelt is that she was a good ship to people," says Dowdy. "When we were in the Mediterranean at Christmas we would run boatloads of people in from the shore all day. We would feed them, give them cigarettes, give them presents. That big son-of-a-gun carried a lot of groceries. We could afford to be generous," says Dowdy.
Dowdy went on board the Roosevelt in late 1948. "She had just come off a blue nose (Arctic) cruise," he remembers, "and we took on supplies and went to the Mediterranean."
The Roosevelt was on a rotating schedule at the time, remembers Dowdy, and she took turns with two other carriers, the Midway and the Coral Sea on trips to the Mediterranean.
The Roosevelt was built as the Coral Sea," says Dowdy, "and you can see 'Coral Sea' engraved in her keel -- but when Franklin D. Roosevelt died she was named for him instead." The ship bearing the name "Coral Sea" was built later.
"you know, a ship that you love is kind of like -- I don't know..."
Dowdy hesitates, his voice more than a little emotional, before he continues. "She becomes a part of you. You never forget any ship once you've served aboard, especially if you loved her."
Dowdy, who also served at Sanford when it was the site of an auxiliary naval station, recalls the first time he ever saw the Roosevelt.
"I walked on board, looked down the full length -- and wondered, 'Lord, how can anything like this possibly float!'"
Andy Crocker, Sanford, also remembers the Roosevelt fondly. "When he heard she had been decommissioned, he expressed his hurt. She was the first ship I served aboard," Crocker remembers.
Crocker was a Commissaryman, "a ship's cook," he says, and he remembers one particular occasion when he was up to his elbows in flour and sugar.
"We had a television show made on board," he remembers. "I don't recall who made the thing, but it was one of the pioneer shows seen on Puerto Rican television and we invited a large group of them on board for an open house. I had to bake a lot of cakes and take them on deck for the open house and they were shown on television."
Crocker served on board the Roosevelt for three years and during that time made three cruises to the Mediterranean and one to the Arctic Circle.
"That was quite an experience," says Crocker, who has recently become interested in the "hollow earth" theory, which maintains there is an entry into the center of the earth out of the Arctic Circle.
"We sure never say anything like that," he laughs.
The two men agree that something should be done with the giant grey lady, Roosevelt, besides scrapping her and selling her pieces.
"you would think they could make a monument of her," says Dowdy. "After all, she was even named for a great man."
