The hunt for baby Pamela

21-month old daughter is one of several children center tracks each year

By Maria Orem
HERALD STAFF WRITER

LONGWOOD - The father of a missing child joined law enforcement agents today as they canvassed neighborhoods seeking tips on the whereabouts of his 21-month-old daughter.

Victor Martinez last saw his daughter, Pamela Victoria Martinez, on Sept. 1 last year with her mother, Dina Martinez. The case has been classified as a parental abduction. The father, who lives in Sanford, is the custodial parent.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement, in cooperation with the Longwood Police Department, the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, and the Missing Children's Center in Winter Springs, launched the effort in hopes of developing new leads.

"We believe her mother could still be in the area," said Carol Cleary, a special agent with the FDLE. "We'll go door to door and hand out posters trying to generate leads."

Cleary said investigators have been following up on some tips, which indicate that the mother, who is a native of Chile, may be working as a child care provider or a housekeeper in Longwood.

Judge's order reversed in nude club challenge

Sassy Merlots stays open, but remains on county's hit list

By Russ White
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - The Fifth District Court of Appeals has rescinded Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey's order for Seminole County to treat Sassy Merlots nude dancing club in Fern Park as if it were a licensed adult entertainment establishment.

Deputy County Attorney Lonnie Groot says that the effect of the District Court's Sept. 4 ruling allows the county to continue to treat Sassy Merlots as an illegal and unlicensed establishment. It does not close the club, but allows the county to deny issuing development permits requested by the club.

"Not much has changed," said attorney Hugh Trees, who represents River Capital Inc. (Sassy Merlots). "Ever since the club opened - 18 months ago - the county has said it was operating illegally. So what's the difference now. We're still open."

On three occasions, the county denied requests by the club to erect temporary trailer signs. This prompted owner Doug Bangle to take the county to court. Dickey ordered the county to treat Sassy Merlots as if it were any other licensed club. The county appealed and was granted a motion to reinstate an automatic stay.

"They (Sassy Merlots) said we were not entitled to the stay but the Appeals Court said we were," Groot said.

"Governments are entitled to stays of this nature. We have maintained all along this club opened and is operating illegally - and that we do not have to treat it as we do the clubs that are legally operating."

Commissioner Win Adams said that the ruling was significant in that it was "one more step along the way to regulating adult entertainment in the county. These people defied us by opening illegally. They do not deserve to be treated as those clubs who are operating legally and observing the county's ordinances."

Sassy Merlots opened in February 1997 just as county officials were in the process of revising an out-dated and ineffectual adult entertainment ordinance. The county attorneys adopted a restraining order to stop any clubs trying to open during the drafting of the ordinance. A club named VIP Gold opened and was closed down by Judge Leonard Wood. Dickey allowed Sassy Merlots to stay open.

"Here we had the same issue and two judges who ruled differently," said County Commission Chairman Randy Morris. "We believe Judge Wood ruled correctly and that Judge Dickey's ruling was a bad one." More than a year later, VIP Gold is gone and forgotten while Sassy Merlots thrives in the county that rarely sleeps.

While all this is happening, a group known as the Seminole County Citizens for Decency has prompted a voter referendum on public decency. If the

Deputies join 3-county pursuit of man suspected in kidnapping

Victim dropped off at gas station as suspect heads north toward Flagler, followed by land and air

By Maria Orem
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SEMINOLE COUNTY - A man wanted for kidnapping was arrested Wednesday following a pursuit by law enforcement agents in three counties, including Seminole.

Robert J. Butzlaff, 37, who was wanted on kidnapping and aggravated assault charges in Orange County, was pursued in Seminole County and apprehended in Flagler County, ac-ording to Deanna Brown, spokeswoman for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office.

Sgt. Mike Weppert of the sheriff's office responded to a complaint Tuesday at about 11:30 p.m. of drug activity at 108 Magnolia Street in the Mobile Manor trailer park, located off State Road 434. Weppert then followed a blue Chrysler, which Butzlaff was driving, with Donna Mazzotta as the passenger.

Brown said Mazzotta was dropped off at an Amoco station and Butzlaff continues driving eastbound on Interstate 4. The county's Alert 1 helicopter followed the vehicle as it entered Volusia and then Flagler County.

Flagler police arrested Butzlaff after he swerved into a median and lost control of the car. Police had placed stop sticks in his path, which flattened the suspect's tires.

Seminole County will also charge Butzlaff with fleeing and reckless driving, Brown said.

Home of 'Have It Your Way' makes way for the GreeneWay

By Shari Brodie
HERALD FEATURE EDITOR

SANFORD - "The Home of the Whopper" is making way for the expressway and it may be early next year before a new restaurant opens in the historic district.

The Sanford Burger King, located on U.S. Highway 17-92, north of Airport Boulevard, closes tonight for the last time. The restaurant is one of several businesses on property acquired for right-of-way, to accommodate toll exits planned for the Central Florida GreeneWay. The old Discount Auto Parts location and Center Mall were razed last week. The restaurant building will be stripped of usable equipment starting Friday and then will be demolished.

Like many of the other displaced businesses, the Burger King will relocate, and the new site is at the corner of 17-92 and Third Street, in the historic district.

Opened on March 1, 1976, the Burger King was the first in Central Florida to be built with a drive-through, according to Assistant Manager Jim Brodie. Other locations were retrofitted when fast-food restaurants started offering the service.

The Sanford restaurant was the ninth built by fast food mogul Manny Garcia, who owned more than 40 stores when he sold them back to Please See Burger, Page 3A

IN BRIEF

Paulucci donation to help families

SANFORD - Jeni and Lois Paulucci have arranged for two semi-trailer loads of Michelina's and Michelina's Yu Sing frozen entrees to be distributed free of charge to food banks and agencies, to restock their food supplies for those in need.

Agencies and organizations serving needy families in Seminole County are being invited to share in up to 120,000 free dinners to be made available by the Paulucci family through its Luigino's Inc., foods company. The Rich Plan has donated its facilities to accommodate the distribution.

This will be the fifth and sixth truckload of free food that the company has supplied to Central Florida this year.

"Since welfare reforms, with which we agree, have been instituted, many people are having a harder time making ends meet during transition to new employment," Jeni F. Paulucci said. "In various parts of the country where we do business, we contribute food to help families that have been affected by the welfare reforms." Luigino's Inc. corporate headquarters is in Sanford.

Criswell says, 'I'd rather be fighting fires'

The last three years have been demanding ones to Lt. Dick Criswell, of the Seminole County Emergency Services and president of the Seminole County Professional Firefighters Local 3254.

Criswell has battled for better pay for the 184 fire fighters in the union, arguing that they deserve far better than being 82nd out of 134 departments in the state.

The union has settled but doesn't feel totally pleased with a pay hike that means at least $2,000 more a year for each member and raises starting salaries from $21,607 to $26,000. The hikes would also raise the starting pay of lieutenants from $27,606 to $32,430.

"It's a start," Criswell said, "but I won't feel comfortable until the Board of Commissioners approves what we've given our approval. What we have is a two-year contract with the pay increase for one year. Hopefully, we can start negotiating for the second year pay scale this November."

Criswell, a 24-year-veteran with the department, is a tough competitor who has refused to back down throughout the contract squabbles. As the union is on the verge of its first contract since it was formed nine years ago, he is cautiously optimistic.

"I'd rather be fighting fires," he said.

their winter grounds in Mexico and Central America. The birds hum their way 500 miles across the Gulf. Ten times as many people watch from floats, boats and in their housecoats.

Sounds like fun

Yep, it's time to return to Intercourse, Pa., and the annual Seven Sweets and Seven Sours Festival. The good folks in town put up their fruits and vegetables for the long winter. More than 10,000 will participate in the Intercourse festival.

We'll try the cookies

Wally Amos, the cookie man, came to Matland last week to speak at the University of Phoenix. Guess who's next in the education movement? Captain Sewer. The captain will visit Dover Shores Elementary and Princeton Elementary. He'll be armed with a plunger and toilet seat lid. He'll talk about clean water and how wastewater is treated. The cookie man gets the nod. Over and out, Captain Sewer.

Roddy McDowall, 70-years-old today, is from London or near The Planet of Apes. Actress Anne Bancroft is 67 and is a Tony and Oscar winner. She was Mrs. Robinson in The Graduate. She is married to Mel Brooks. Actor John Ritter is 50. He's the son of Cow-

Phil Jackson, the pride of Deer Lodge, Mont., is celebrating his 53rd birthday today as far away from the Chicago Bulls as he can get. Coach Phil had his fill of the Bulls management. Be nice if he coached in Orlando but he's probably too smart for that.

Show time

Those addicted to the Boob Tube probably know that "The Fugitive" began in 1963. "Mission Impossible" in 1966 and "M*A*S*H" in 1972. One featured a man with one arm, another men in disguises and the third a man in a dress. All three shows began on the 17th of September.

History time

There once was a man named Read, known more for what he wrote than what he read. Who was George Read and what did he write? Clue: He was an attorney from Maryland. That ought to give it away.

The way we were: The forgotten Milane Theatre

There is not much information available on the original building at Second Street and Magnolia Avenue that was known at different times as the Star Theater and the Sanford Opera House. But that building was later replaced by the Milane Theatre and there is enough information on its early days for two columns.

We read quite a bit about the Ritz Theater, but forget that the building was first named the Milane Theatre. Bud Moughton stated in 1989 that it was renamed the Ritz, circa 1940, when the sign went from incandescent bulbs to neon; it was too expensive to spell out "Milane."

There was quite a bit of publicity in the Sanford Herald on the opening of the Milane Theatre on Aug. 2, 1923 and for at least a month afterwards as copies of these articles are in the museum files.

Credit for the new theater was due to the vision of Frank L. Miller and Edward Lane (for whom the theater was named) who organized the company that eventually put the big proposition over. The officers of the Milane Corporation were Frank L. Miller, president; Edward F. Lane, vice president; C.L. Britt, secretary/treasurer. Directors were Edward Higgins, A.W. Lee Jr., and Fred Walsman.

George Brockholm was the first manager and F.E. Farmer was the chief operator, both of whom had had extensive experience. Another early manager was Joseph L. Marentelle.

GRACE M. STINE-CIPHER

The fireproof building cost $80,000 to build and equip. It was of hollow tile and brick, faced with stucco. The first floor contained restrooms and a store room while offices were on the second floor.

The building's capacity was 823 and could accommodate any show that came to the state. The management had already entered into a five-year contract with Schubert and Erlanger for road shows and vaudeville.

The theater was touted as being one of the most comfortable that had ever been erected in the south. There were leather upholstered seats with ball bearing noiseless attachments. The house was ventilated by the typhoon system of ventilators; old air was taken out and new cool air was pumped in every 30 seconds. It was stated that on opening night the theater was so cool that people had to put on wraps.

Based on the tag number provided by the witness, police found the woman and were questioning her about the accident when they saw a bag containing a white powdery substance which tested positive as cocaine. Police said they determined, also, that she was intoxicated at the time of the accident.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS, DeSoto/Magnolia Avenue, Sept. 15, 9:53 p.m. A 21-year-old man was arrested for the sale and delivery of a controlled substance after Seminole County Sheriff's deputies purchased $40 worth of crack cocaine from him.

Deputies asked if they could search the car and they found a green leafy substance in the car and arrested the man. Two juveniles in the vehicle were sent home with their parents. Deputies said that after the car was towed, a cover came off the steering wheel and two baggies and some marijuana cigarettes fell out.

SANFORD, Bipes/Midway, Sept. 13, 6:13 p.m. A 22-year-old man was arrested for possession of crack cocaine and possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana by Seminole County deputies after they saw him hide something in the front of his pants. The barkeeper called the authorities after he saw the license. Deputies said there had been several complaints of teens with altered licenses at the bar in the past few weeks, but the underage drinkers had all left before they arrived.

Burger King Corporation several years ago.

As was the tradition at the time, Garcia had the restaurant decorated to reflect the character of the city. Sanford's motif included railroad signs, as the city was known for its connection with the industry.

The 15th store built by Garcia was in Longwood and it was decorated with three-dimensional wooden wall hangings of the historic buildings in the Longwood Historic District.

Area Manager Robert Yiannas could not be reached for comment, but Brodie said plans for the new Burger King could include a tin roof.

Because of its location in the nationally-recognized historic district, the new restaurant will have to conform, in part, to the codes of the Historic Preservation Board. Associate Planner Andrew Van Gaale said certain guidelines must be met, but the restaurant could incorporate items such as increased landscaping and lower sign heights to make the building more aesthetically pleasing.

The city's planning and zoning board will have to review the site plans, as will the HPB. The process takes about a month, Van Gaale said, and likely will not get started until sometime in October.

In the meantime, most of the restaurant's 20 hourly employees, three managers and one shift coordinator will be dispersed to other locations, said Brodie.

District Commissioner Brady Lessard lives in one of the two old houses moved from the new Burger King site. He has restored both and they are located on Magnolia Avenue.

Lessard said he looks forward to the opening of the new Burger King. "I'm very happy a large tract of land on 17-92 is going to be developed tastefully."

volved in the case and have questioned the child's godparents, who live there.

Investigators were also encouraged by a similar case where a missing child was recently recovered and returned to the custodial parent.

Yesenia Costa, 7, who was abducted 11 months ago from her home in Oviedo, was found in Peru. Yesenia was reunited with her mother early this month, with the help of the Missing Childrens Center.

Parental abductions are often the most complicated cases to deal with, according to Joan Thompson, executive director and co-founder.

"Those (cases) take a while because of the legalities and custody issues," Thompson said.

Last year her office handled 487 cases of missing children in Seminole County. About 14 percent of the incidents were classified as parental abductions, she said. The majority of the cases, however, are classified as runaways.

Though most of the runaways are recovered, she said, those that do not return are often absorbed into drug and prostitution rings. The typical runaway is a 14-year-old girl.

"When a kid runs away there is usually a reason," she said.

Unfortunately, however, in Florida it is not against the law to run away so it is really up to the law enforcement agents on how far they want to pursue those cases. Once reported missing, the information on the child is posted on the National Crime Information Computer, and that is all that is required, she said.

Thompson said she admires any law officers that goes above and beyond the call of duty, such as in the Martinez and the Costa cases.

She recalled a few years ago when Casselberry Police Chief Durbin Gatch left from his vacation to retrieve a young girl, who had become involved in a prostitution ring in Texas.

"He physically took her on the plane and brought her back home," she said. "I was really impressed by that."

Those with any information or tips regarding the Martinez case, should call the Missing Childrens Hotline at 327-4403, or the Longwood Police Department at 260-3400. Information is also available on the FDLE web site at www.fdle.state.fl.us.

Theater

Augusta, Ga. were the architects and Elton Moughton of Sanford was the supervising architect. R.J. Gillispie of Jacksonville was the contractor.

The policy of the management was to give the people what they wanted in an establishment at affordable prices. The regular prices were 35 cents and 10 cents, with special productions to be priced to only cover cost.

It was promised that order would be preserved and nothing rowdy would be permitted by anyone.

High class road shows were to be presented during the winter season so everyone could see everything that came into the state without leaving Sanford.

Even though the building's capacity was 823, the report of the Aug. 2, 1923 opening night estimated a crowd of about 1,000. There had been a long string of people on either side of the entrance to buy tickets. There was to be a showing of the same program the next night for those who had to be turned away.

On opening night, the beautiful asbestos curtain was first raised followed by the velvet curtains. The screen, flanked by woodland scenery, brought forth applause as the crowd began to realize that a magnificent theater had opened in Sanford.

The Reizenstein-Wagner Orchestra furnished music for the opening numbers and the regular Milane Orchestra played the descriptive pieces during the showing of the feature film.

The program consisted of the Pathe News, a comedy entitled "Lazy Bones" and the big 11-reel feature "Enemies of Women," which was making its first showing in the south. It had previously been shown only in large cities.

The film was described as "love, revelry, drama, luxury beauty-a gorgeous picture play from the stirring Blasco Ibanez novel". The movie starred Lionel Barrymore and Alma Rubens.

The Milane's ticket booth was described as a thing of beauty in the Aug. 2 Herald. It was built by the Sanford Novelty Works owned by V.C. Collier and was designed by H.S. Selleck of this firm. Selleck did the entire wood work, most of it by hand. It was made of gum finished in mahogany with polished glass windows and a brass grill work in front of the ticket window. The staining, varnishing and painting was the work of H.E. Wise of the same firm.

The movie changed each night at least for the first week. "Backbone" was the feature on Saturday, Aug. 4, and the story was described in detail in that day's newspaper, although the actors name were not given. Also on the program were Fox news and a Mutt and Jeff comedy.

Monday, Aug. 6, featured "Sherlock Holmes" which starred John Barrymore. A great society drama "Rich Men's Wives" was to play on Aug. 7 and "Friendly Husband" on Aug. 8. The latter was a comedy starring Lupino Lane.

The movie on Aug. 9 would be "Shirley of the Circus" while "A Tallor Made Man", starring Charles Ray, was scheduled for Aug. 10.

Ruling

voters approve the ordinance, totally nude dancing will no longer be allowed in the county. The issue will be discussed at a 7 p.m. public hearing on Tuesday, Sept., 22. Three nightclubs (Circus-Circus, Rachel's and Club Juana) sued County Elections Supervisor Sandy Goard, saying a great number of signatures on a petition were invalid. The Board of Commissioners can make the suit moot by enacting the ordinance and getting it on the voter referendum on Nov. 3.

"Obviously, there is going to be more maneuvering in the next month and a half," Adams said. "I'm pleased by the latest development. It's a good step."

Sheriff Don Eslinger has said that the county is a "magnet" for undesirable activity because of total nude dancing at clubs located in the Fern Park and Casselberry area. His deputies and CCIB units have made a number of raids the past year. One of the older clubs - House of Babes - went out of business.

Allamanda one of state's best climbers

GARDENING AL FERRER

One of the best climbers for central Florida is the yellow Allamanda. A native to Brazil and relative to oleander and Confederate jasmine, this vine produces very showy yellow flowers nearly year round. It is a very popular flowering vine for home gardens but must be protected from frost. There are three main species cultivated: the common yellow Allamanda with the bright yellow flowers, the bush Allamanda with yellow flowers streaked with orange and the purple Allamanda with its large magenta violet flowers.

The plant: The yellow Allamanda is a woody evergreen vine with a milky sap, often pruned to grow as a shrub. It can grow up to 15 feet tall. The leaves are leathery and glossy, lance-shaped or elliptical, opposite or sometimes in whorls of 3 or 4, measuring up to 6 inches long. The flowers, clustered near the ends of the branches, are yellow, very showy, waxy trumpet shaped, with 5 flaring petal lobes, measuring 2 to 4 inches across. The main flowering season is summer and fall, but produces flowers throughout the year. The fruit is a prickly capsule measuring about 2" wide. When mature, it splits open releasing winged seeds. The fruit is rarely seen in Florida.

Culture: Allamanda requires full sun to light shade. It must be planted in a protected area because of its tenderness to frost. It freezes about 30 degrees F. It tolerates many soil types with good drainage, can grow well in acid to alkaline pH but grows best with pH values between 5.5 to 6.0. It has a relatively high drought tolerance, once established. Prune severely before growth starts in spring, and keep shoots trimmed during the year because it grows very quickly and can cover the fence, trellis or tree where it is growing very rapidly. Prune to develop a low upright spreading shrub that will produce more blooms. It requires very little care. Fertilize lightly in the spring and in fall with a general complete fertilizer. It may show iron or manganese chlorosis in alkaline soils.

Uses: This plant can be used in containers or planters, grows very well in a hanging basket, and is also used as a ground cover. It can be used as a vine to cover fences or trellises, as a hedge or as a free standing clipped specimen. It can become a handsome house plant. Indoor use: As an indoor plant, Allamanda does best in at least 4 hours of direct sunlight a day (light temperatures of 60-65 Degrees F and day temperatures of 70 degrees F or higher). Keep the soil moist and fertilize every two weeks from April through September. Apply less water and no fertilizer the rest of the year.

Propagation: Allamanda is best propagated by stem cuttings in the spring. Toxicity: The plant is considered to be poisonous, but not known to be fatal. All parts of the plant, especially the fruit and seeds, and the sap of the stems and leaves, cause mild to severe stomach upset and vomiting. Bark is also said to be poisonous. It may cause dermatitis to sensitive persons. It is considered to have emetic and purgative properties. Toxin is self limiting and treatment is usually not necessary.

Pest and diseases: Allamanda can be affected by plant parasitic nematodes. Mites and scales can produce some damage and should be controlled as soon as they are detected using insecticidal oil and soap sprays. Caterpillars can occasionally defoliate the plants severely.

Man gets family static when he takes phone feud to work

DEAR ABBY: I read your column daily, but never thought I'd write to you. Now I need an objective opinion because my family is on the verge of a meltdown. Almost three years ago, I allowed my sister-in-law the wife of my half brother, to take over my cellular phone account. She ran up charges of nearly $750, then refused to pay the bill, so I had to pay it. I have been trying to get her to pay me back since that time, and although she has told several members of the family that she'll pay me, she has not. After all this time, I have come to believe that she will never pay me unless she is forced to. So I have filed a suit against her in small claims court. Now my family is angry with me. They say I should have just let the money go. I say that's wrong, and she should not get away with it just because she's family. Please advise me, Abby. Was I wrong to pursue this matter in court? TORN IN TEXAS you may have to take some flak from yours for a while for standing up for yourself.

DEAR ABBY: When I saw the letter from "Hurt Bride," I felt compelled to share what happened at my wedding six years ago. My husband and I both wanted a big wedding that included all of our friends. Shortly after we asked everyone to share our special day, one of my friends informed me that the due date for her first child was about the same time as our wedding. I didn't even think twice. I wanted her in the wedding no matter what. As it turned out, not only was she nine months pregnant when she was standing up there with me, but my sister-in-law - the maid of honor - fell down the stairs the week before the wedding and broke her foot. And the mother of one of my bridesmaids was three months pregnant and green with morning sickness. However, regardless of their condition, everyone was there at the altar to share our special day. "Hurt in Texas" should be ashamed of herself. DEBBIE C. IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR DEBBIE: It sounds as though your wedding was filled not only with love, but also a comedy of errors.

Patriots zoom to the head of list of candidates to represent 6A in football playoffs

SANFORD - Three weeks ago, if you asked around the county who had the best chance of joining Deland as a Class 6A-District 3 representative in the state playoffs, you would have gotten lots of different answers.

Lake Howell. Oviedo. Maybe Lyman as a surprise.

Not too many people were talking about Lake Brantley.

New quarterback. Tricky offense. New running backs.

No big names, that's for sure.

Then, the Patriots changed everybody's mind, exposing Deland as beatable and not necessarily a lock for the playoffs in a 21-14 win last week.

Deland entered the game ranked eighth in the state, but the Patriots grew up quickly to pull off their biggest win in years.

Sure, the game was ugly and marred by turnovers.

But the Patriots also pulled out their second big victory in a row, the first being over arch-rival Apopka in the season opener.

Now, Lake Brantley is all the rage in Seminole County as coaches and athletic directors are pointing to the Patriots, one of the most massive teams ever to take the field in this area, as a legitimate threat.

Part of the reason is quarterback Regan Russell.

Russell is new to the Patriot triple-option offense. He sat on the bench last year watching Brian Criswell run the system, but Russell got a chance to run the offense after an injury to Criswell near the end of the season.

With the Patriots' season on the line, Russell came in and performed admirably, but, more importantly, he got valuable playing time.

Lake Brantley's offense began to thrive behind Criswell and running back Ryan Pagan, but both graduated and it was up to Russell and running backs Arnold Celeste and Lanier Bush to take over.

They've done the job. The option is working as well as ever and Bush adds the threat of being able to pass the ball.

Don't forget the defense. Clint Hanson, Steve Baggs and John Miller are leaders on a strong unit that kept Deland at bay all night long.

The Patriots have started slowly the last few years. It takes awhile to get an option offense going with a new quarterback and a new set of horses in the backfield.

But this year, Lake Brantley got off to the strong start it didn't get last year.

The offense is clicking and the defense is awesome.

A trip to Winter Springs this Friday should lead to a 3-0 record and, after that, the Patriots should be riding atop the Seminole Athletic Conference and the district.

It's a little early to get too confident in Altamonte Springs, but the Patriots are sitting in the catbird's seat.

Last Second Shot: Every school in the county needs to have a menu at its football games to rival Lake Howell's. Nothing like a Chick-Fil-A and a pizza on a Friday night.

Outstanding week

Seminole High girls' volleyball squad makes it three wins in three nights with rout of Mainland

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - Seminole High School's girls' varsity volleyball team finished off a stellar week with a 15-5 and 15-1, Class 5A-District 5 win over Daytona Beach-Mainland at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Wednesday night.

The entire Fighting Seminoles team contributed to the impressive win over the Buccaneers (1-0).

Amanda Cook played very aggressively at the net and finished with six kills, an assist, and a dig. Courtney Newman's hard serves gave her eight aces along with four kills and four digs.

while Kim Nelson added 12 assists and four aces of her own.

The margin of victory also provided Seminole coach Beth Corso with an opportunity to see how alternate setter Kim Corso would perform under district pressure conditions. She was not disappointed as the young Corso totaled three kills, two assists, two digs, and three aces.

Coach Corso saw her team perform outstandingly in their third win in three nights this week.

The Fighting Seminoles (now 5-5 overall and 3-0 in district play) excelled at their 5-1 offensive system against their opponents during the week, and improved their service receiving a great deal.

"We're working to bump each game up a notch," said Coach Corso. "I'm really happy with everything we did this week."

The night ended up being a superb one all the way around for the Seminole volleyball program as the junior varsity squad won its first game of the season earlier in the evening, 15-9 and 15-9.

Next week, the Fighting Seminoles stay at home for games Tuesday against Lake Howell (7 p.m.), Wednesday against Deltona in a big 5A-District 5 match-up (6 p.m.), and Thursday against Winter Springs (7 p.m.).

Lake Mary gets some measure of revenge over Oviedo in SAC boys' volleyball

By Jeff Berlinicke
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

LAKE MARY - For Lake Mary, it wasn't just a win. It was revenge.

The Rams have owned the VolleyFest trophy for years. They host the event which marks the unofficial state championship for boys' volleyball, but last year, Oviedo broke up the party and took the title for the first time.

Last night, Lake Mary hosted the Lions in their first meeting since last year's VolleyFest.

This time it turned out differently as the undefeated Rams won, 16-14 and 15-10, to regain the bragging rights in the county.

The Rams tried to downplay the revenge angle, but senior Brett Pocock wasn't buying it.

"It was definitely all about revenge," Pocock said. "We got beaten in the (pre-season) jamboree and this was all about revenge."

Lake Mary coach Jeanne Fischer denied the revenge factor.

"I hate to say it was about revenge," Fischer said. "It was about playing with intensity."

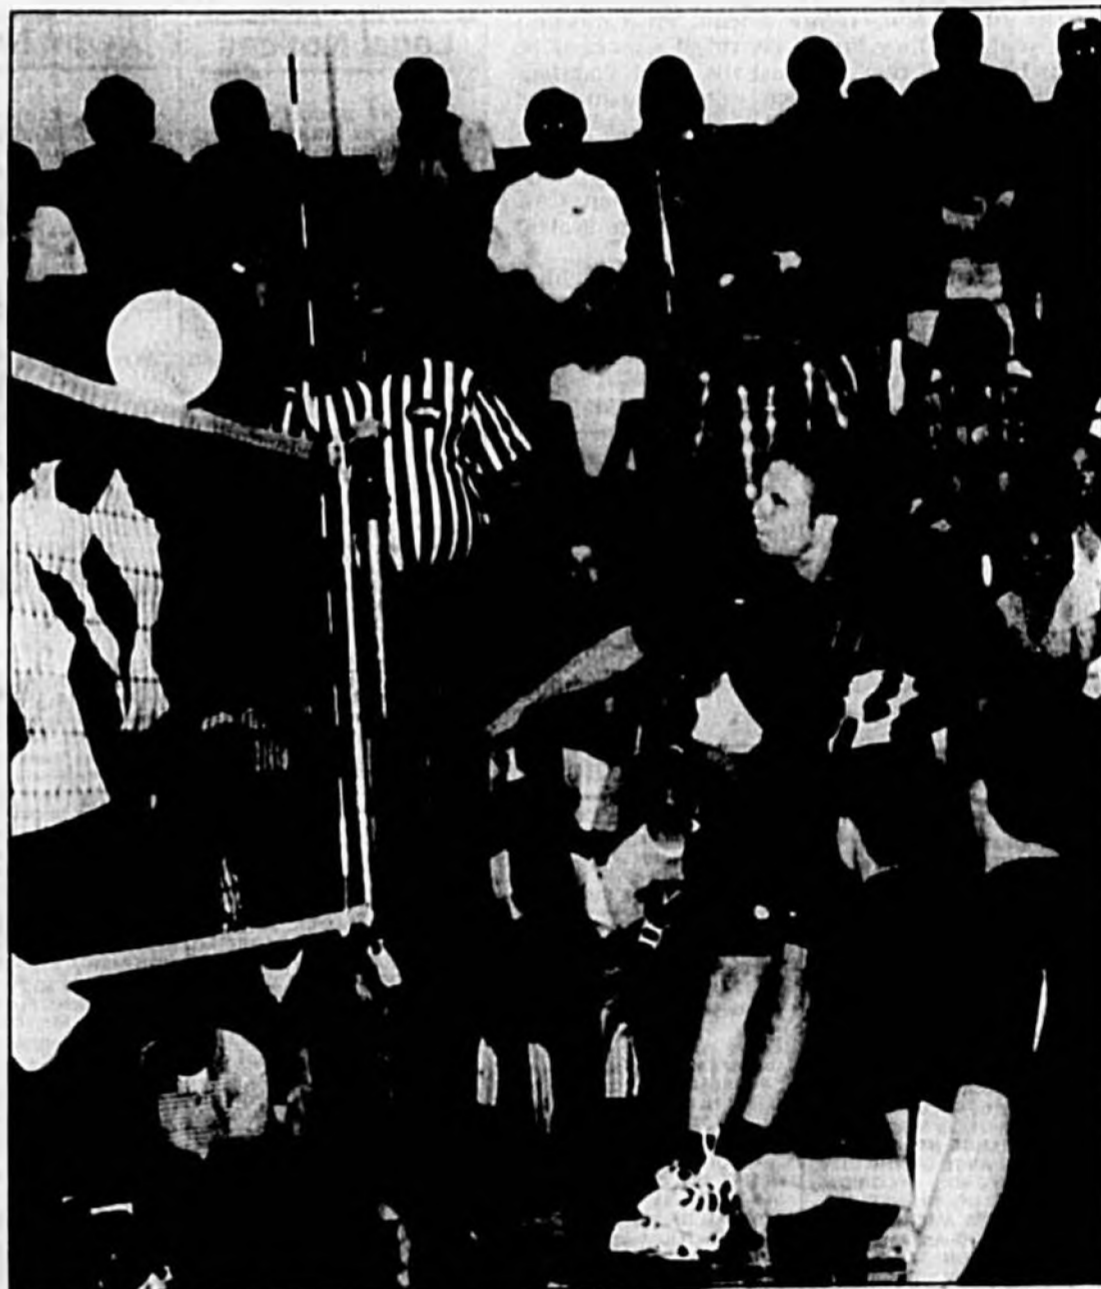

The Rams played with intense last night, but so did Oviedo. Both teams battled it out, especially Pocock and Lions star Turner Elliott as the two traded slams.

Lake Mary charged out to a 2-0 lead in the first game as Pocock blocked three straight shots, but some sloppy play let Oviedo back into the game.

Lake Mary led by as much as 7-3 as Barrett Klinger had a pair of winners, but the Lions continued to trade points and side outs to get back into the game.

The Rams led 10-7, but Oviedo ran off five straight

Special to the Herald

SANFORD - Whenever the Daytona Buccaneers Pop Warner League Football Program comes to town, you know you are in for probably the most physical and hard-hitting game you will play all season.

Such was the case last Saturday at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium as the Sanford Youth Football Association teams dropped four of five games to the mighty Buccaneers.

The Junior Pee Wees played hard for three quarters but were put away in the fourth period, as they dropped their first game of the season, 41-7.

Despite moving the ball deep into Buca territory the Mitey Mites were unable to score and fell 13-0.

The Pee Wees were the next team to face the Daytona Beach 11 and the game looked to be headed to overtime as the score was tied in the late going of the fourth quarter.

But the Buccaneers intercepted a pass with just seconds remaining on the clock and ran it all the way back for the game-winning touchdown, handing the 'Noles a 13-7 setback.

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the New York Yankees. His stats for the 1998 season is in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and career totals (including 1998 games) in the third column. Wednesday was not a real happy 39th birthday for Raines, other than the game was played in St. Petersburg against the Devil Rays, as Sanford's favorite son did not play and the Yankees lost 7-0.

Raines also did not play Tuesday night as former Lake Brantley star Jason Varitek hit two home runs as the Boston Red Sox won 9-4.

points, capped off by two Elliott spikes to take the lead.

Down 13-12, Lake Mary fought back. A block by Corey Ruckdeschel tied it at 13 and another block by Klinger gave the Rams a 14-13 lead.

Oviedo tied it on an ace from Christian Pultz, but Pocock ended it with two winners.

In the second game, the Lions raced out to a 4-1 lead behind the play of Del Wynieger, but Lake Mary fought back and, down 7-3, ran off six straight points behind the serve of Vikram Gill. Scott Henderson had three kills during the run. Oviedo tied it at 10, but the Rams (7-0) ran out the game and took the match.

Oviedo coach Tim DeZego took the loss in stride. His Lions have struggled, falling to 3-3 last night, but he also had a load of talent from last season.

"We've lost a couple of games we should have won," DeZego said. "I'm happy with the way we played tonight. We're progressing well as a team."

Oviedo will play three matches next week. Monday at home against Lake Brantley (7 p.m.), Wednesday at Lake Howell (7 p.m.) and Friday at home against Bishop Moore (5:30 p.m.).

This week, the Bucs have to win. Only the Dallas Cowboys of 1995 started the season 0-2 and fought their way back to a Super Bowl victory.

But before we can talk about a Super Bowl, they have to get past Chicago.

NOTES: Jacques Green suffered an injury to his thumb late in Monday's practice and will have to sit out the home opener this week. He is expected to return in two weeks for the Detroit game.

Part of the Bucs' problem is their lack of a running game. In fact, the offense has only racked up 118 yard in two games and has been stopped on many short yardage situations.

His, the only kicker in Jaguar history, has been horrible this season. He was a Pro-Bowler last year, but is just 4-of-13 in field goals since the start of pre-season and missed two attempts of 37 and 21 yards in the win over Kansas City. Coughlin was so concerned he brought in former Pro-Bowlers Chris Jacke and Cory Blanchard to try out this week even though he is committed to Hollis.

Give the Jaguars credit: they are winning ugly, but even though a 7-0 start is extremely possible, don't ignore the warning signs.

Notes: The Jaguars had their first non-sellout last Sunday when 3,500 tickets went unsold despite Brunell's plea for some major fan support...Chris Hudson continues to stand out at safety despite a cast on his right hand...

It's now-or-never for Buccaneers' hopes of playoffs

TAMPA - This is a do or die situation.

When the Bucs play their home opener against a stronger than expected Chicago Bears in the brand new Raymond James Stadium this Sunday, they must win.

Even though their record matches the visiting team's, Chicago has played two very close games and has played tough. The Buccaneers haven't.

There were signs of life last week, though, in Tampa Bay's loss to the NFC champion Packers.

Finally, Warren Sapp stepped up and started earning his paycheck and Florida alumni Jacques Green ran back his first NFL kick-off for a touchdown, which he was basically hired to do.

None of this matters if the machine isn't well run. And it isn't.

Trent Dilfer is playing like a high school quarterback who doesn't know the playbook yet. The concerns that arose during the pre-season have carried over to the regular season.

And when he isn't scrambling all over the field or landing on it, he's being carried off of it due to injuries. Dilfer has missed time in both of the last two games due to injuries.

And forget about Steve Walsh. He hasn't done much of anything in both of his appearances.

Come to think of it, he wasn't too impressive in the pre-season either. It's still a big question mark over how he got the back-up job over Scott Milanovich who did play well in the pre-season.

Part of the Bucs' problem is their lack of a running game.

In fact, the offense has only racked up 118 yard in two games and has been stopped on many short yardage situations.

Jaguars are undefeated but still have not been playing up to the potential of a Super Bowl team

JACKSONVILLE - The Jacksonville Jaguars are now 2-0, but they aren't playing like a 2-0 team with designs on the Super Bowl.

A look around the lineup shows a team that is winning despite not playing up to its capabilities.

That's not such a bad thing; a good team wins when it plays poorly.

And let's not forget that the Jaguars beat Kansas City Sunday in a game pitting the two favorites to square off for the AFC championship, despite coach Tom Coughlin's protestations against that kind of prediction.

But there are warning signs all over Alltel Stadium.

Quarterback Mark Brunell hasn't looked sharp at all in the first two games despite a strong pre-season.

James Stewart has been great at running back, but first-round pick Fred Taylor has been a disappointment.

The offensive line looked good last weekend, shutting down Kansas City's vaunting defense, but tackle Rich Tylaki is still injured and the Jaguar line has little depth.

On defense, the same injury plague that coat the Jaguars a run at the Super Bowl last season has hit again. Tony Brackens, who is ready for a breakout season, is still suffering from a high ankle sprain and now surprising second-year tackle Seth Payne is out with a shoulder injury.

In addition, Jeff Lageman, the heart and soul of the Jacksonville defense is out for the season with a torn bicep and Don Davey is also out until next year.

Now the Jaguars have to count on cast-off Eric Curry and free-agent Fernando Smith to play a major role for the rest of the season.

The kicking game may be the most perplexing of Coughlin's problems. Mike Hol-

See your doctor promptly

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been writing to you for four years but have yet to see your published response. I'm losing muscle mass in my arms and legs. When I first wrote to you, I could walk — but with difficulty. In the past few months, I've become so weak that I cannot operate my ride-on lawnmower, and I need canes just to get around. What solution do you suggest? Should I see a doctor?

DEAR READER: With such an obvious symptom as progressive weakness, you should have sought medical attention four years ago. Really, I'm surprised that you have waited this long. After appropriate examinations and testing, your family doctor — presumably with the help of a neurologist — should have been able to diagnose your ailment and prescribe treatment.

Progressive weakness is serious and could reflect multiple strokes or a degenerative disease of the brain and nerves such as multiple sclerosis. Such conditions require medical attention. Don't delay. See your doctor.

My role as a medical columnist is not to provide primary care, although this is what I do in my office every day. Rather, I prefer to work with my readers' doctors to help patients receive better medical care. My position is: Information is good, more people need it. I don't want to compete with your physician, who should be the first person you contact for health problems.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a large growth on the right side of my neck that makes swallowing difficult. Also, my ear is tender. Friends tell me it's only a goiter. Should I worry?

DEAR READER: Yes, you need an accurate diagnosis. See a doctor. Neck swelling can have many potentially serious causes, including enlargement of the lymph glands. Goiter (a painless, benign swelling of the thyroid gland) used to be a common condition because people, especially those in inland areas, often did not obtain enough iodine in their diets. Today, goiter is rare, in part due to the fact that table salt is iodized and that, with refrigeration, fish is more commonly consumed than it was previously.

Goiter is often treated with iodine supplements. However, when it causes difficulty in swallowing or breathing, it may have to be surgically removed. Therefore, you need an examination by a physician.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is acute neuronal ceroid lipofuscinosis? It struck my healthy stepson at 4, and seven years later, he is losing sight, speech and movement.

DEAR READER: Neuronal ceroid lipofuscinosis is an unusual hereditary disease marked by the accumulation, in nerve tissue, of fat pigments called ceroid and lipofuscin. This untreatable disorder causes deterioration of nerves, blindness and seizures.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Same species, different plumage

By Phillip Alder

The diversity of life on this planet is incredible, if, sadly, not nearly as great as it was, say, 100 years ago. It is amazing how variations have arisen in animals from the same species. Just look how frogs evolved in so many ways depending upon environment and local predators.

What does that have to do with this deal? Well, if you read yesterday's column, you have a big hint as to the correct line of play — it's a variation on that theme. You are in four hearts. West leads the diamond queen to your ace. You cash the heart ace, dropping West's king. What now?

True, West might have made a take-out double, but the vulnerability was unfavorable and his count marginal.

given the uncertain value of the heart king.

South unblocked the diamond king, played a trump to dummy's queen, ruffed the diamond 10 in hand, took his three club tricks, and exited with a trump. But East caught through the spade jack, and three tricks to the defense in that suit left the contract one down.

"You wasted my 10," commented North.

"How?"

"You were right to cash the diamond king, the heart queen and your club tricks, but then you should have led my diamond 10 and discarded a spade instead of ruffing. West is marked with the jack from his opening lead, and what does he do next? If he returns a minor-suit card, you ruff in the dummy and discard your second low spade. However, if he opens up spades, your king must score. You lose only one spade, one heart and one diamond."

HOROSCOPE

Friday, Sept. 18, 1998

The year ahead promises to be a rewarding one for you, because of your ability to communicate ideas and innovations. This won't happen unaided, however — others will play a role in your success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although your intentions may be noble, you're apt to goad associates into competing against you today. You may think it's all in good fun; they may not. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that'll govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your head might be in the clouds today, and your thought processes may lack practicality. However, things should work out for you at themselves in no time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Chances are you'll perform an adequate job today, even though your mind may wander a bit. However, if you pay better attention to the tasks at hand, your performance could be outstanding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Going out with pals and having some fun today would do you a world of good. However, take care not to carry things too far and do something foolish or expensive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you keep your mind off yourself today, you'll be able to spot advantageous opportunities. Being self-centered limits your chances, rather than enhancing them.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) You'll perform better today if you have to match your strides against a busy schedule. This is one of those days when it's to your advantage to be assertive.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Conditions affecting your status and material well-being are favorable today, provided you don't demand favors. Use to your advantage that which is offered without solicitation.

Winter Springs: Our town our home

By Debra Wood

Unlike many Seminole County cities with roots in the 1800s, few remnants remain from Winter Springs' early days. So town leaders think it's time to create a traditional ambience.

Spanish land grants, New York merchant Moses Levy had obtained hundreds of thousands of acres in what became Winter Springs. He prospered, trading with the Spanish and lumbering the land.

Later residents built wharves along Lake Jessup, unloading freight headed for Orlando and Matland. W.W. White owned a wharf near Clifton Springs that stocked flour, grits, medicines, cloth and other items settlers

The Hickory Grove neighborhood surrounds a portion of existing hickory trees. The existing City Hall would be converted to a mixed-use building or office building if needed.

A village, named North Orlando, sprang up to the south of the lake. Settlers grew vegetables in the fertile land. The Winter Springs Police Officer Robin Bernosky displays her 1998 Hugh Thomas Award for Victims Rights. Bernosky is the department's first recipient.

Robin Bernosky loves her work. Being an investigator for the Winter Springs Juvenile Crime Unit is very rewarding to her. Bernosky's Law Enforcement career began in 1992. After a brief stint with another department she returned to Winter Springs. Bernosky also switched from the Community Relations Department to the Juvenile Crime Unit.

The many juvenile related crimes she investigates deal with a wide range of topics where the juvenile is either a victim or a suspect. These crimes include: child abuse, sexual abuse, runaways and missing children, just to name a few.

Bernosky's husband, James, is also in law enforcement. He is a deputy with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. They have one son. Bernosky's husband also has many relatives in law enforcement in Central Florida.

Although she is the only one in her family, will her son follow in the family business of law enforcement? She says jokingly, "My son wants to fly jets."

The Bernoskys have a philosophy for handling married life while both work in law enforcement. Bernosky said, "We leave our work at work. We don't dwell on it."

Bernosky first got involved in law enforcement to help people. "I like dealing with people. I am a good people person. I can deal with all ages."

Another reason Bernosky loves her work is the fine people with whom she works. "At

Young man takes charge of his life

By Debra Wood
HERALD
CORRESPONDENT

A Winter Springs teen found an unmet need in Seminole County's booming construction industry, started his own business and gave his life direction.

Like many youngsters, Brian Stamer found adolescence challenging. The Oviedo High School graduate lacked a career plan and felt unsettled.

"I wanted to go out and do something for myself. I had tried numerous jobs and nothing worked out for me," Stamer said. "I was working so hard, putting all my effort into trying to be employed for somebody else. So I said, 'Instead of working so hard for them, why don't I do something for myself?'"

That's when his brother Matthew, a new-home salesman, mentioned that model homes need periodic cleaning and new homes require a scrub down before buyers can close. The companies to let Stamer met with builders, found out what was required and convinced bigger contracts. Before long, Stamer had a full-time occupation and a business to run. He formed Clean Crete Maintenance three years ago.

"I had no idea it would become a business," Stamer said. "It's a full-time job now, 50 to 60 hours a week."

Clean Crete chemically cleans the exteriors of model homes and the driveways, garage floors and lanai's of homes ready for closing.

"In new homes, they get mortar and plaster all over the floor. All kinds of different materials imbed themselves into the concrete. It looks atrocious. On the model maintenance, it's the exterior of the house," he explained. "With all the construction and dust, they look terrible in no time."

Stamer, 21, spiffs up three to five houses per day, depending on their size and location in the tri-county area. Ryland, D.R. Horton, Engle Homes and other build-this agency we are family."

Is she treated differently in the department because she is a woman? Bernosky says no. Of the nine female officers in the department, "none are treated differently from the men," Bernosky said.

Whether male or female, the one thing a law enforcement officer has to contend with is human emotion. "People think we have to be emotionless, but you can't help thinking, this could be my child," Bernosky said.

When asked what is needed to keep young people out of the legal system, Bernosky said, "I think programs and things to do after school and summer vacation will help keep kids out of trouble." Bernosky said the JAC (Seminole County's Juvenile Assessment Center), helps a great deal. JAC provides a centralized place for crimes involving juveniles.

The respect Bernosky feels for her co-workers and department is mutual. Says Police Chief D.J. Kerr, "She does a good job. That is why she received her award, the 1998 Hugh Thomas Award for Victims Rights. It is the first time this department has received the award."

Bernosky, too is proud to have received this prestigious honor. The award states that the State Attorney, 18th Judicial Circuit, with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office and Safe-house of Seminole, presents the 1998 Hugh Thomas Award to Robin Bernosky.

This award is in recognition of her outstanding achievement and personal dedication to crime victims in Seminole County. The award also brings out the close relationship the city of Winter Springs Police Department has with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office.

"We have a good working relationship with Seminole County Sheriff's Office with various programs and projects," Bernosky said. "If I could help just one person, I think I've accomplished something. You can't help everyone, but I try."

Commissioner is man with a mission

By Tony Tizzio
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

More than 1 1/2 million Iraqi Kurds were exposed to chemical weapons. Currently a quarter of them have died, says Winter Springs resident and commissioner, Robert Miller, a man with a cause. Miller contends that 10,000 American Gulf War veterans are also dead, and another 100,000 are sick. They too are victims of Iraq's chemical and biological weapons, the ZOR Foundation discloses.

ZOR, founded by Miller in 1996, tries to uncover what happened to the Kurdish people 10 years after being exposed to Iraq's chemical attacks. The illnesses suffered by these people are similar to those of Americans suffering with Gulf War Syndrome.

Miller is a man of many talents, and calls ZOR a humanitarian organization. Miller is a writer, politician and former intelligence officer. Currently he is the president and chief executive officer of the ZOR Foundation.

"ZOR means strength in Persian," Miller explains. It is a non-profit, 501(c)(3) corporation. ZOR's objective is to foster peace, protect human rights, and help victims of chemical and biological weapons.

Educated outside the United States, Miller was the only American to have graduated from a university in Iraq in 1964. He then went on to a career in American military intelligence, after that a variety of career choices that included commercial arms sales and international banking. He then returned to the United States.

Miller has also written five books, and is currently a Winter Springs city commissioner. He also speaks five languages, including Arabic, French, Italian, Persian and English.

Miller says that 402,000 Kurds have died during the 1970s and 1980s. Their deaths came from a combination of Iraqi chemical and biological poisons. He initially became involved in this issue through a Kurdish friend who lost half her family due to chemical weapons.

Miller states the U.S. Veterans Administration had approved requests for disability to 28,000 Americans suffering serious illnesses from the Gulf War. Miller also reminds us that chemical weapons dates back to World War I.

Even in World War II, both the U.S. and Germany used chemical weapons. Germany used bombs that contained 70 to 80 pounds of mustard gas. In the late 1970s, Miller points out that Iraq got into the chemical club. In the Vietnam War, Agent Orange made thousands of military personnel sick.

"Still," Miller says, "no one has admitted that chemical and nerve agents were released before, during or after the Gulf War."

Miller states that the U.S. military's position has been to deny that such chemicals were released during the Gulf War. This, Miller says, complicates matters for sufferers of Gulf War Syndrome.

Stamer

ers use his services.

The enterprising entrepreneur hopes to expand Clean Crete, although he doesn't want the company to grow too big. But Stamer always looks for new opportunities.

"I engineered and designed a concrete-resurfacing material," he said. "When we clean new construction for the builders, they get stucco all over the concrete. We designed a product that coats over unsightly concrete and gives it a decorative finish."

Even when the houses are clean and ready for closing, Stamer's day is not finished. He lives with and takes care of his stepfather, Kim Jahnsen, who has multiple sclerosis.

"I live with him, because I feel obligated to give him a hand when he needs help," Stamer said. "I like to be here rather than living off 10 or 20 miles away, and when he needs help, not be able to get back."

Stamer helps his dad get dressed, makes sure he has meals and assists Jahnsen's homemaker-companion with lifting and heavy tasks. "I've known him since I was a little kid."

Stamer said. "As far as I'm concerned, he's my father. He raised me since I was a couple of months old."

From concrete cleaning to caregiving, Stamer's choices changed his life. As he has matured as a business owner and family caregiver, he has left the turbulence of adolescence in the past and looks forward to a bright, loving future.

Puppets for Safety on what was then known as Cablevision (now Time-Warner Communications), she did a series of shows that focused on issues such as firearm safety, swimming know-how and the like.

"Every show had a lesson," she noted.

Wahl has also directed theater projects at the Frank Evans Center in Lake Mary where she worked with seniors and high school students on many projects. She is hoping to use the puppets and clowning to work with the Special Education students her daughter teaches at Eastbrook

Elementary School.

"I'm always looking for new ways to use the puppets," she said.

She said she came to the Orlando area almost 20 years ago, but really fell in love with the Seminole County and Winter Springs area when one of her daughters moved to this area. So she, too, decided to come here to live.

"I just love it here," she said.

Wahl said she continues to pass the art of puppetry on to others who want to learn. Classes are forming all the time through the Knowledge Shop. Those who want to learn should call Wahl at 699-6598.

downtown for the community.

In March, they unanimously supported a town-center plan and began drafting changes in current development regulations.

"The area is located on a 230-acre parcel in and around the high school and City Hall on State Road 434," said Charles Carrington, Winter Springs community development director. "We're now working on zoning and implementation."

Sketches developed by town planners Dover, Kohl & Partners of Miami show restaurants, shops and townhouses just a step away from the curb. Pedestrians would walk on sidewalks along the tree-lined streets. Drivers would park behind the shops.

A spacious town square with fountains and a hickory-grove park will attract people to downtown. Officials envision residents and visitors enjoying entertainment in the concert pavilion.

"The Cross-Seminole Trail bisects downtown," Carrington said. "The state projects 60,000 people a month will use the Cross-Seminole Trail when it's completed."

Although the plan has strong government support, property owners remain leery. Unlike Celebration, the city Walt Disney Co. built in Osceola County, the land in Winter Springs is owned by several people. Some are concerned that restrictions will limit how they can develop their property, which could lower its value.

"We understand the city wants something done that's aesthetically pleasing, and if they don't really take precautions, development could occur that's unattractive," said landowner Michael Schrimsher. "We also want something very aesthetically pleasing to be constructed, but you have to be realistic about what's possible in the marketplace."

The current demand is for shopping centers, commercial development and multi-family housing. Whether developers decide to support the proposed downtown remains to be seen.

It may take years to turn plans for a town center into reality. But for Winter Spring officials, it's never too late to establish traditions.
