Walesa Is Criticized For 'Selling Out' Solidarity

GDANSK, Poland (UPI)- Solidarity's leadership ratified a deal with the Communist government canceling a general strike, but militants charged union leader Lech Walesa "sold out" and Pentagon analyst said Mowcow was closer to intervention despite the

The official cancellation of Tuesday's strike came in one of the most fractious meetings of the union's 41member national commission. The deal forged by Walesa was approved in a vote of 22-4, with six abstentions and nine not attending the session - possibly in a boycott.

Still ahead was a vote today to lift the national strike alert, which the 10-million-member union has been on since the end of Friday's warning strike to demand the ouster of officials responsible for a police beating of union members in Bydgoszcz on March 19.

The militants charged the government did not guarantee as part of the Monday compromise to dismiss officials who militants believe were behind the police attack; that the compromise did not push hard enough either for the recognition of a rural Solidarity union or for the release of political prisoners.

Jan Rulewski, the Bydygoszc Solidarity leader who was hospitalized after the police beating, called the agreement "a disgrace" and charged that Walesa "sold out" giving away too much in "manipulations."

Citibank Bombed In Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI)- A powerful bomb planted by presumed leftist insurgents demolished a U. S.-owned Citibank office in San Salvador and rebel and government forces battled in the countryside.

The bomb blasted out windows 200 feet away and demolished the Citibank offices on the first floor of an 11-story tower in the plush Miramonte district of northern San Salvador, witnesses said.

Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." — George Santayana. The virtual collapse of Soviet-American "détente" has produced two distinct reactions in Western Europe. The first was a commitment, however reluctant, to strengthen NATO's patently inadequate defenses. The second, and more recent, has been a resurgence in pacifist sentiment and concomitant pressure on Western European governments to adopt policies that are tantamount to appeasement of the Soviet Union. Signs of the later mood are everywhere apparent in Europe's industrial democracies. Some months ago, 50,000 demonstrators marched through the streets of London protesting the Thatcher government's approval of the U.S. plan to deploy nuclear-armed cruise missiles in Britain. It was the largest ban-the-bomb rally in that country since the early 1950s.

Britain's opposition Labor Party emerged from its recent conference pledged to a policy of unilateral nuclear disarmament if and when it regains control of the government.

Left-wing pressure on the Dutch government is so strong that Holland has rescinded its tentative 1979 decision to accept American cruise and Pershing II missiles on its soil. Belgium too is

In West Germany, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is kept busy fending off left-leaning members of his own party who would like Bonn to curtail defense spending and distance itself from the Reagan administration's tough stand against Soviet expansionism. And even Mr. Schmidt is anxious to avoid doing anything that might jeopardize German trade with the Soviet bloc, which now accounts for fully 25 percent of the Federal Republic's exports.

It cannot yet be said that Europe is paralyzed by timidity. Nonetheless, the groundswell for appeasement is eerily reminiscent of the shamelessly craven conduct of the Western democracies when faced with Adolf Hitler's er and bullying during the 1930s.

Europeans who have managed to forget should instead remember. France cowered behind the Maginot Line. Britain cut defense spending to the bone. Neville Chamberlain went to Munich to sacrifice Czechoslovakia. Belgium and Holland sought an illusory sanctuary in neutrality.

In the end, the appearement of the 1930s yielded the most catastrophic war in history. A comparable disaster, or abject Finlandization, would be the inevitable result of a similar failure of nerve during the 1980s.

Heretofore, U.S. officials have been loathe to acknowledge publicly that Western Europe might be ripe for a rerun of 1930s style appeasement. Better, they reasoned, to put the best possible face on strains within NATO and thus pretend that all

But pretensions are no substitute for leadership. And the fact that NATO's leaders might somehow fool themselves is certainly no basis for believing that the Russians might be fooled as well.

Richard Allen, President Reagan's national security affairs adviser, has now said what needed to be said about the dangers of Europe's undercurrent of support for the politics of appeasement. In a widely reported Washington speech recently, Mr. Allen labeled the better-redthan-dead mentality as "contemptible," and inimical to Europe's hopes for peace and security.

His remarks couldn't have been more correct or more timely.

The Hive Moves Into High Buzz

In a recent column, I introduced the beehive metaphor to illuminate cooperation on the Left. In that beehive, the socialist, leftist, liberal, and communist bees perform different tasks, but they never sting one

As the United States presses the issue of communist takeover in El Salvador, the hive is moving into high buzz. In fact, I'm beginning to feel as if I were living in that "bee-loud glade" of which Yeats writes in his poem "The Lake Isle of Innisfree." For example, take the foreign affairs editor of the New Republic, Ronald Steel, who has written an excellent biography of Walter Lippmann. Steel is intelligent, but where El Salvador is concerned the requirement is a total suspension of analytic powers.

"The question raised in El Salvador today." writes Steel, "is, in essence, not very different than that raised in Poland. Can a relatively weak country within the sphere of influence of a great power be allowed to go through its own social revolution?"

In that formulation, the actual content of the two revolutions passes unnoticed. Lech Walesa and his Solidarity union are trying to wrest some democratic freedoms from the communist regime in Warsaw. The communist guerrillas in El Salvador, in contrast, are trying to impose a regime more totalitarian than the one in Cuba - and freely avow this goal. You would think that this distinction would mean a great deal to a writer on a liberal journal like the New Republic. But Steel, buzzing, away in support of the communist takeover, simply ignores it.

There has also been a great deal of buzzing in the media regarding the body count last year in El Salvador. All of the following sources have charged that the government and informal "death squads" have done most of the killing. Here is the hive's scorecard: Jack Newfield, of the Village Voice, on CBS

Mary McCrory, columnist: 9,000. Christopher Dickey, Washingto Post: "more than 10.000."

Raymond Bonner, New York Times: 13,194. United Press International: 14,000, of which 11,000 were killed by death squads. Anthony Lewis: at least 6,000, mostly killed by the government.

None of these hive communication bees paid any attention to the claim of the guerrillas themselves that they have killed nearly 6,000 issued on February 23 - but, of course, that kind of information is not suited to the goals of the Hive.

The Hive is active elsewhere as well. The State Department has also published some captured documents, including a report by Shafik Handal, head of the Salvadoran Communist Party, concerning a trip taken abroad by his brother Farid Hakal, also a well-known communist. His job was to set up "popular solidarity groups with the Salvadoran revolution."

According to the report, comrade Hakal did quite well. He picked up support from the Council of Churches, the Institute for Policy Studies, the PLO, the ILWU (the longshoremen's union), and from Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif. The meeting with Dellums was set up through the Washington, D.C., branch of the Communist.

Lefever Shows He's No Civil Rights Man

WASHINGTON-If President Reagan sticks by his nomination of Ernest Lefever as Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights, the confirmation hearing seems certain to ignite the first really explosive opposition on Capitol Hill.

In two past columns, I've dusted off Lefever's expressed views on human rights and laid them on the table. His own words are the best evidence that his is unfit for this

But apparently the president remains inpersuaded. So here is another serving of Lefever's philosophy, taken from November 1970 issue of Worldview magazine. Lefever wrote a virulent attack on the late Martin Luther King Jr., suggesting he was playing into the hands of the communists and accusing him implicitly of treason. Though Lefever conceded that the slain civil rights leader "cannot be held responsible for the orgy of black terror that followed his death," he wrote that "it would be fair to assume' that King contributed to the violence he largely on a speech the black martyr made at revolutionary force of 'liberation' and its New York's Riverside Church on April 4, 1967 - one year to the day before he was

The slaughter in Vietnam had reached a new high that week, and King delivered an oned plea to end the carnage. He called for stopping all bombing, declaring a milateral truce, setting a date for U. S. troop vithdrawal and recognizing that the Viet Cong deserved a role in the government of Most of these proposals were adopted six years later by Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger, who finally withdrew U. S. forces from Vietnam. But King used some scathing anguage to make his point, calling the United States the "greatest purveyor of violence in the world.' Emotions had cooled down when Lefever wrote his article three-and-a-half years later. Still, he commented: "This remarkable speech — its blunt, lopsided, unfactual and unfair attack upon the United States; its more subtle praise for the communist and frequent use of communist cliches and slogans (in contrast to King's customary Biblical allusions) could have been drafted in Moscow, Peking, Hanoi or Havana . . . " King's speech, Lefever wrotete, "was a disservice to the American people and a service to forces of revolutionary violence." At another point, Lefever coyly paraphrased the Constitution's definition of treason, saying: "Whatever his motives, King's Riverside speech gave aid and comfort to the enemies of peaceful change in Southeast Asia as well as to their allies in Moscow and

In typical Lefever style, he never came right out and accused Martin Luther King of being either a communist or a traitor; but the innuendo bubbled close to the surface. In past conversations, Lefever insisted to my reporters that he is a staunch advocate of human rights. He has boasted that he was a civil rights marcher before Dr. King. Lefever also complained that it is unreasonable to hold someone to statements he made in the statements I have quoted above. His secretary told my associate, Lucette Lagnado, that he would return her repeated calls "after his confirmation."

Lefever coupled his assault on King with a correspondingly enthusiastic expression of support for the white minority government of South Africa. At the University of Stellenbosch in the Cape province, Lefever delivered a paper in which he said South Aftica should be "a close ally of the United States and . . . a de facto member of NATO."

Certainly Ernest Lefever isn't the right man to speak for the United States on the subject of human rights.

Footnote: For the president's own good, he should withdraw Lefever's nomination Private polls show that he has failed to win the support of the black community. Of the 24 percent of Americans who don't like Reagan, the unpublished polls show half are black. He will only alienate them worse by putting a Martin Luther King critic in charge of human

What's Behind The Renovation Boom?

Three new R's - restration, rehabilitation and remodeling are changing the claracter of American neighborhoods. From New York to San Francisco, from Evanston, Ill., to Savannah, Ga., and ir virtually every community in between, older homes have been rediscovered.

The U.S. League of Savings Associations reports that homes 25 years or older accounted for nearly 31 percent of all big-city home purchases in 1979. That's up from 27 percent in 1977. Meanwhile, homes 25 years or older made up nearly 26 percent of 1979 hone sales in medium-size towns and 23 percent of home sale: in small towns. Why this groundswell of interest in older structures? It's a combination of economics, esthetics and heart. Setting this trend are the young adults born during the post-World War II "biby boom." Theirs is traditionally the age group most involved in household formation. Yet, many have found new homes to be prohibitively expensive. The costs of new construction, which requires intensive use of new materias and heavy machinery, have risen more quickly than later costs.

Labor-intensive rehabilitation — which generally means taking a worthyhile older building and finding an economical and contemporary use for it - often becomes a smart alternative to buying a new house.

Moreover, ofter buildings were frequently better built with materials and craftsmanship that cannot be duplicated in today's marke. Often, buildings from the late 19th and early 20th centuries have thicker walls, higher ceilings and better

They also have a special warmth, nostalgia and romance, though most are easily adapted to today's casual lifestyle. A renovated house in the city also means less time and money spent commuting as well as accessible shops, theaters and other forms of entertainment. The improvement of once-marginal neighborhoods has caused property values to soar - and lower-income residents

In one section of Brooklyn, N.Y., the price of a habitable house has risen from $7,000 in 1967 to $30,000 in 1969 to as much as $225,000 today depending upon the amount of restoration and the condition and location of the block.

In the early 1970s, houses in the Height and Montrose areas of Houston sold for as little as $5,000. Now they sell for up to $120,000 if fully rehabilitated.

The best homes in the North Side and Allegheny West secions of Pittsburgh cost $18,000 in 1970. Ten years later, mere shells sell for $15,000 and restored houses go for more than But renovation is seldom easy. It requires knowledge, good advice, a miraculous contractor and intestinal fortitude. Says one New Yorker: "We bought our 1829 abused house in April 1977 and moved in December 1979. Why the hiatus? "Because New York City's Board of Estimates took six months to OK us, because the local utilities couldn't grant us gas for heating, because there was no sewer connection, because it took a year to find a contractor fearless enough to contend with the city's complex statutes..."

This Victorian Italianate villa in Savannah, Ga., is one of the thousands of 19th and early 20th century homes that have been rediscovered and renovated by a new generation of home buyers. The groundswell of interest in older structures is a combination of economics, aesthetics and heart.

Americans Rediscover Value Of Older Homes The National Trust for Historic Preservation advises the potential buyer to have an older home thoroughly examined by a professional inspector, architect or engineer before buying. The house should be seen in daylight, inside and out. Among the key areas to check are the roof, the utilities, the basement ! and the attic. Most older houses will require increased insulation, particularly in attics and around windows.

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Wednesday, April 1, 1981-5A

House Beautiful magazine recently surveyed restorations in a number of U.S. cities. Each house was different. Each owner had a unique reason for doing what he or she did. For Corinne Burke, her 19776 stone house in Paltz, N.Y., was a labor of love. "I thought this house was wonderful long before I lived here," she says. "I used to drive by and admire it, but it was really in need of repair."

A history-minded bank president named Richard Creviston knew that the run-down homes along Starr Street in New London, Conn., were built for sea captains and merchants in the 1830s - heyday of the city's whaling industry and of Greek Revival architecture.

And that was precisely the style that was found under the shabby asbestos siding once his bank bought a block of 19 homes and began restoring them.

In Sayannah, Ga., Miriam Center found a Victorian Italinate Of villa built in 1861. The house had beautiful details, lots of space and was located in the center of town, allowing her to set up her growing real-estate business on the gound floor.

PEOPLE IN BRIEF

Bacall Takes Curtain Calls In Bathrobe And Towel

RyUnited Press International Lauren Bacail took her curtain calls at the Broadway opening of her new musical, "Woman of the Year," wearing a light blue terry cloth bathrobe and drying her hair with a towel. Just before the final curtain fell, leading man Harry Guardino had dumped a pitcher of water over her head - all part of the show. She'll be doing the terry cloth bit every night as long as the show runs. For the opening night party Sunday, Betty, her real name, turned up at the Milford Plaza Hotel ballroom in a slinky black sequin-sprinkled Halston evening govn. Only the hair was still a bit damp.

Ratings Net Creative Control

Who calls the shots on television series is a matter of numbers -- the higher the Nielsen ratings numbers. the more the actors get into the act. That's why Alan Alda of "M-A-S-H," Larry Hagman of "Dallas," Michael Landon of "Little House on the Prairie," Ed Asper of "Lou Grant" and Jack Klugman of "Quincy" are able to flex their creative muscle, according to Jeff Silverman in Panorama magazine. But actors who make too many demands can wind up on an unwritten blacklist, Silverman says, citing Robert Blake, Abe Vigoda, James Farentino and Tony Fransiosa as actors whose careers suffered after word got around that they were "difficult."

Michael Landon of "Little House on the Prairie can flex his creative muscle as long as ratings remain high.

MICHAEL LANDON But After The Show...

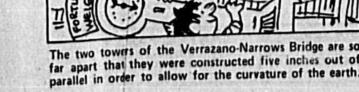

What do you do when your real wife meets your make-believe wife? In the case of actor Tom Bosley. the dilemma was not as bad as it may seem. Tom and actress Patricia Carr were married last year and are professionally teamed for the first time on the "Happy Days" series with Patricia playing, of ail things, the other woman in Mr. Cunningham's life. The script cal's for a confrontation between Marion "Mrs. Cunningham" Ross and Bosley's real-life wife. During a recent rehearsal, the real Mrs. Bosley was heard to ask, "How come Marion's getting you?" And Tom answered, "But you get me after the show."

Burton May Lose Camelot

Hospitalized for a week with a painful pinched nerve, actor Richard Burton will undergo examination by a Florida reurosurgeon. Dr. William Dodge planned to examine Burton's upper spine for suspected degenerative changes to determine if the 55-year-old actor would require surgery. Burton, who entered St. John's Hispital in Santa Monica, Calif., March 23, was forced to leave his starring role in the Hollywood Pantages Theater revival of "Camelot." Producers will decide soon whether to close the show permanently

Quote Of The Day

Bill Rafferty of NBC's "Real People," explaining to John Davidson at a taping that his on-the-road life was less glamorous than non-show business civilians believe, said: "People think my life is fast cars and fast women. Actually, it's just fast food."

Cook Of The Week: Gail Berger

Desserts, Bubble Loaf Her Favorites

Herald Correspondent Gail Berger says she "loves to cook but hates to clean up." Gail and Bruce Berger live at 205 Larkwood Drive in Sanford with their 4-year-old daughter, Haley. The Bergers are involved in the community. They are "Skippers" of the Mariners Presbyterian group at the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford. Gail is third vice president of the Junior Women's Club, and is on the board of directors of the Presbyterian Pre-School Center. Gail also belongs to a local bridge club and is a circle member at her church.

Gail Berger loves to cook for company. She always tries new dishes and is an avid reader of "Bon Appetit." Her favorite things to cook are desserts and Beef-n-Cheese Bubble Loaf. When cooking for guests, Gail likes to limit her guests to three or four couples. "I always serve an appetizer, then wait about an hour and serve the main meal," says Gail. "After everyone has relaxed and visited, I serve dessert. I always wait until later in the evening to serve dessert because my guests enjoy it more. They aren't stuffed."

Gail also decorates cakes for her family and friends. Neighbor children are always keeping her busy with birthday cakes of all kinds. She has selected the following recipes from her vast collection of delicious dishes and are sure to please your family and any guest.

cookbook, you'll find a few yeast bread recipes that require no kneading or shaping into loaves. These were the timesavers or busy homemakers in those days and they are the forerunners of today's batter bread recipes, which are ideal for today's busy cooks. The Bran English Muffin Bread pictured here is a classic favorite which was adapted to contemporary kitchens. Nothing beats the fresh, wheaty aroma and crunch texture of a homemade English muffin! This delicious bread is both easy to prepare and less expensive to serve than the best packaged English muffins.

These loaves will look a little pale to seasoned bakers, they lack color only because they were prepared in a microwave oven, which does not produce a brown crust on any bread. But these freshly baked loaves are unmatchable in homemade Beating takes the place of kneading in this recipe. The dough is transferred from mixing bowl to bread pan and rises only once. It is baked in a microwave oven for only 61/2 minutes or can be baked in a conventional oven for 25 minutes.

The recipe for bran English Muffin Bread makes two loaves that slice into 16 servings each. The ingredients cost little more than one dollar in most cities, which is considerably less than half the cost of packages of the best English muffins at the supermarket.

This Bran English Muffin Bread is a versatile one too. Herbs of spices may be added to complement whatever food you are serving with it. The Cheese and Bacon variation, for example makes great sandwiches. The Herb variation can help stretch a shrinking roast when served under thin slices of meat. The Cinnamon and Raisin variation makes breakfast worth getting up for. Slice a little of the basic Bran English Muffin and serve with a little honey or marmalade in the afternoon.

ENGLISH MUFFIN BREADS (Makes 2 Loaves)

- 444 cups unsifted flour 1 cup wheat bran cereal
- 2 packages active dry yeast 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt teaspoon baking soda
- 37.2 cups milk 1914 cup water
- In a large bowl combine 21/2 cups flour, cereal, undissolved dry yeast, sugar, salt and baking soda.
- Combine milk and water in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120 degrees F. to 130 degrees F.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat well. Stir in remaining flour to make a stiff batter. Spoon into two 81/2 x 41/2 x 21/2 or 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf dishes which have been greased and coated with cornmeal. Sprinkle tops of loaves with additional cornmeal. Cover, let rise in a warm place, free from draft, for 45 minutes.

Microwave each loaf on high power for 6 minutes, 30 seconds. Surface of loaf will be flat and pale in color. Allow to and toast, spread with margarine if desired. 2 1-quart or 2 11/2 quart round casseroles or 2 11/4 quart ring molds can be used instead of loaf pan. TO BAKE IN CONVENTIONAL OVEN Stir 1 cup additional unsifted white flour into batter to make a very soft dough. Spoon into two 81/2 x 41/2 x 21/2 inch loaf pans

Preserves Give Cookies Extra Appeal

The homebaked smell of cookies is always a welcome aroma for your after school or work brigade. So why not greet them with two popular treats made with a delightful variation? Old-fashioned oatmeal cookies, a famous drop cookie variety, become Oatmeal Gems when you dot their centers with red raspberry preserves.

Chocolate lovers are sure to enjoy Chocolate Raspberry Bars. After they're baked, they are spread with red raspberry or strawberry preserves and sprinkled with toasted coconut. Then cool, cut them into bars and serve.

With a tall glass of milk or hot tea, these cookies will be the favorite subject of your cookie jar raiders. OATMEAL GEMS

- Cream margarine and sugars until light and fluffy. Blend in eggs and vanilla. Add combined flour, baking soda and cinnamon; mix well. Stir in oats. Drop heaping teaspoonfuls of dough onto ungreased cookie sheet. Indent centers; fill with 1/4 teaspoon preserves. Bake at 375 deg. 8 to 10 minutes or until golden brown.

Approximately 41/2 dozen CHOCOLATE RASPBERRY BARS

Make Salads In Advance Without Risk Of Wilting

Just because an interesting tossed green salad takes time and patience to put together after work, many people just quickly dish up some iceberg lettuce and a bottled dressing. Monotony swiftly sets in, decreasing the frequency of a healthful, fresh green salad on the dinner table. Salad lovers can solve this problem by taking time one evening to prepare a big, extra-portion salad in advance. To the chorus of "but the greens will wilt" the answer is no, they won't, with proper storage.

Refrigeration and a tightly-sealed container will help torn greens to stay crisp.

Cellophane-wrapped lettuce, straight from the store, is not sealed tightly enough against the drying effects of air and may wilt before you've a chance to use it. A special lettuce storage container helps water to drain away from leaves, too. You can prepare an extra-large tossed salad of dry greens and other non-juicy ingredients one night, seal it tightly in a plastic serving or storage bowl, and dip into the greens several times. On other nights, preparation time is minimized to just adding tomatoes or any other moist ingredients you fancy. Zippy, homemade salad dressings such as a perky "Sorrento" made with yogurt, and a fruit salad dressing flavored with sesame seeds go into liquid-tight plastic salad dressing containers to preserve their fresh flavors. For special personality try one or more of these nutritious extras in your salad: sliced red onion, drained canned corn, pineapple chunks, anchoves, mandarin oranges, canned potato slices, green and red pepper, sliced unpeeled raw zucchini, sliced raw green beans, radishes, shaved carrots, shredded chicken or diced cooked beef, cucumbers, mushrooms. Moister ingredients, such as canned or fresh tomatoes and asparagus, should be added at the last minute before serving. Whether you tear greens or cut them, salads are easier to eat if greens are in smaller morsels. Use two or three varieties of dark and light greens for more nutrition and flavor. Try romaine, iceberg and leaf lettuce, escarole, spinach, arugola, chicory, endive, Boston lettuce, and water-cress. An easier way to apply dressing to a large tossed salad is to first measure the dressing into the empty bowl, then add the salad and toss.

FRESH VALLEY- FRESH

joyous dinner of the year is undoubtedly the beautiful. ceremonial feast, the Seder, shared with family and close

There's freedom in the menu, too, since there are no obligatory dishes for this holiday so that wonderful new recipes have a way of becoming family tradition rather quickly. We suspect that the modern style known as Nouvelle Cuisine will tempt many to create a Nouvelle passover Cuisine just for this occasion.

An outstanding stuffing makes Festive Seder Turkey a star of Nouvelle Cuisine. The matzoh is seasoned with onions and celery and combined with succulent fresh Florida grapefruit sections and luscious figs - a marriage of wholesome foods that makes a memorable main dish.

Orange-Beet Conserve is a welcome new variation on the customary dish - the taste of fresh orange sections played against sweet beets with a touch of ginger gives it a wideawake flavor that sparkles. Broccoli is fresh in the market at this time, and gently steamed until just tender-crisp, adds garden green flavor to the menu.

Dessert at Passover deserves special thought. After a puntiful repast something delicate but satisfying is called for.

and creamy consistency of ice cream, but contains no dairy products of any kind.

The meringue rests overnight and the filling is assembeld and frozen (without going through a second blending) so it's wonderfully convenient for the holiday. And served in delicate meringue shells, it's a worthy finish for the grandest meal. This is a menu that is faithful both to the finest kosher cooking and the Nouvelle Cuisine without sacrificing an ounce of savory goodness.

ORANGE-BEET CONSERVE

312 pounds large beets 134 cups sugar

34 cup Florida orange juice 1 Florida orange seeded, chopped (do not remove skin) 14 cup honey

1 teaspoon ground ginger 4 teaspoon salt

1 can (4 ounces) toasted, slivered almonds (1 cup) Wash beets. Remove all but 2 inches of stems and the tap roots. Place in a saucepot with 1 inch boiling water. Cover. Steam until skins can be slipped off, about 25 minutes. Immediately plunge beets into ice cold water. Remove skins; coarsely chop beets. In large saucepan mix sugar, orange juice, chopped orange, honey, ginger, salt, and chopped beets. Slowly bring to a boil, stirring occasionally, until sugar dissolves. Cook rapidly until thick, about 15 minutes. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Add almonds during the last 5 minutes of cooking. Turn into serving dish; cool. Chill.

PAREVE ORANGE-CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM 5 eggs, separated, divided 4 squares (4 ounces) unsweetened chocolate 14 cups granulated sugar, divided

1 cup pareve margarine, at room temperature 1 cup Florida orange juice

12 cup finely chopped walnuts

Candied orange peel (optional)

Separate eggs placing 2 whites in one small bowl and 3 whites in another small bowl; set aside. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling, water. In small bowl beat egg yolks with ¼ cup granulated sugar until light and lemony colored; add to chocolate and beat at medium speed of electric mixer over hot, not boiling, water 4 minutes. Remove top of double boiler from heat; set aside. In container of electric blender, blend margarine until smooth. Very gradually add orange juice; process at low speed 15 seconds; add chocolate mixture and process until well-blended. Pour into a large bowl. Stir in nuts. Beat 2 egg whites until foamy; gradually add 1/4 cup sugar; beat until stiff peaks form. Fold into chocolate mixture. Turn into a 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Cover. Freeze overnight. Meanwhile, beat remaining 3 egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add remaining 34 cup sugar and beat until stiff. Using a pastry tube or 2 spoons, shape meringue into 8 nests or shells on wax paper-lined baking sheets. Bake in a 250 degree F oven 1 hour. Turn oven off and leave meringue shells overnight to dry. Do not open oven door. To serve, scoop orange-chocolate freeze into meringue shells. YIELD: 8

Elderly Gourmet Cooks For Self

Special To The Herald

How well do the elderly eat? Are their nutritional needs being satisfied? One answer to these questions comes from an 86-year-old widower who lives alone and likes it. He cooks for himself but has somebody do his shopping because he has difficulty He uses fresh foods whenever possible. He often eats low-fat meats, including a lot of chicken.

Our elderly gourmet avoids canned and frozen foods to which large amounts of salt and sugar have been added. He also uses a minimum of salt and sugar in his cooking.

Good food, he says, is a wonderful companion. Here is a week's worth of his favorite meals: DAY 1: Baked chicken, baked potato, green beans cooked in garlic water, grapefruit and semi-sweet cookies. He buys a half chicken and cooks both quarters at the same time, eating the second quarter cold the next day.

DAY 2: Cold chicken, creamed potatoes, sliced and boiled zucchini, french bread, semi-sweet cookies and a pear. DAY 3: Tuna-noodle casserole (a commercial frozen entree), celery and carrot sticks, French bread, grapefruit and chocolate cookies.

DAY 4: Hamburger patties, boiled potatoes, sliced green peppers mixed with corn, a red apple and cinnamon cookies. DAY 5: Creamy scrambled eggs, crisp bacon, buttered whole-wheat toast, broiled tomato halves, half avocado with oil and vinegar, sliced oranges and banana. DAY 6: Fillet of sole poached in cream, boiled potato, buttered broccoli and sugar cookies. DAY 7: Thinly sliced top round steak, mashed potatoes, fresh peas, french rolls, hearts of celery and ice cream. On his doctor's recommendation, he drinks 1 ounce to 3 ounces of whisky before dinner. He avoids between-meal snacks except for 8 ounces of milk in the afternoon.

Fire is a constant threat to the older person living alone. So, he had trained himself to shut off the stove if the phone rings or if he is otherwise distracted while cooking. And he has a plaque reading "beware of fire" posted in front of his stove.
