

Aerospace Industry Worried

NEW YORK (AP) — At the very height of its success, having sent three men around the moon, the aerospace industry today feels less than triumphant. Walking on air for the moment, perhaps, but concerned about the past year. The worries arise from some down-to-earth appraisals of the industry's immediate future, which some aerospace officials feel is dim, not just from the corporate point of view, but for the men and towns dependent on the program.

which because of budget cuts and the priority of social exploration is far less than it had been in the past. The figure is a moderately strong pace. As a result, these officials say, today's aerospace space triumphs are really yesterday's accomplishments, for in terms of men, money and activity, the aerospace industry reached its peak in 1967. About 13 per cent of the nation's workers in 1967 were employed by a federal, state or local government.

Federal Reserve Gives OK

By BILL SCOTT

First Florida Bancorporation, a holding company of 11 state banks — including Florida State Bank of Sanford and United State Bank of Seminole — with headquarters at Haines City, today was given permission to acquire control of two Tampa banks, doubling the total assets of the holding firm to more than one-quarter billion dollars.

T. E. (Gene) Tucker, president of the holding company, said today his firm had won permission from the Board of Governors, Federal Reserve System in Washington, to acquire Marine Bank and Trust Company, a national Commercial Bank, both of Tampa, and the acquisition is expected to be completed within 60 days — or when stockholders of the two banks have received a prospectus from the First Florida Bancorporation and approved the proposal.

The addition of the two Tampa banks gives the First Florida Bancorporation a total 13 banks and adds $47 million deposits from Marine Bank and Trust and $3 million from Commercial Bank.

Tucker said the holding company would now have the first urban banks and would be seeking more larger city bank acquisitions.

C. Howard McNulty, president of Florida State Bank and a director of the holding company, said that "prospects look good for additional urban banks to join."

Tucker also informed that First Florida Bancorporation headquarters would be moved from Haines City to Tampa, as soon as the exchange offer of stock is accepted.

Tucker said the exchange ratios offered to Marine Bank stockholders and to Commercial Bank stockholders will receive 3 1/2 shares of First Florida stock for every share of Commercial Bank stock, and 3 1/2 shares of First Florida stock for every share of Marine Bank stock, as well as a possible offer of stock in the nation's capital.

Tucker said the additional funds would give First Florida stronger management base and help in loans to customers. "In addition to giving us an urban base, we will also be able to recruit better personnel," Tucker added.

McNulty said First Florida would be able to offer more "specialized" services to customers' money and program to meet greater demands for making loans to large corporations, travel bureau, international department, computer centers' money order program and a tie-up with Bancamerica credit card system soon to be announced.

Other banks in the First Florida Bancorporation system include: National Bank of Melbourne and Trust Company, Melbourne; Florida State Bank, Sanford; State Bank of Haines City; Bank of Zephyrhills, DeSoto National Bank, Arcadia; First State Bank, Fort Meade; Bank of Lake Alfred, Oklawaha County Bank, Oklawaha; Bank of Mulberry; United State Bank of Seminole, Sanford; and National Bank of West Melbourne, Melbourne.

Cold Lashes North

3 Persons Drown In Floods

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter heaped more weather woes on the Pacific Northwest today as still another storm system lashed the region with wind-whipped snow and cold.

Rain washed the Eastern seaboard and fog shrouded the Middle Atlantic states, but the weather elsewhere remained for the most part for more placid midwinter conditions. Flood-producing rains which had drenched Indiana and Arkansas ended on the night.

Snow and blowing snow swept the Northwest from Puget Sound to the northern Rockies. Some coastal cities normally bare of snow were heavily laden with weeks-long accumulations, preserved by a prolonged spell of below-normal temperatures.

Seattle, where the snow depth has piled up to 18 inches, shivered into its 10th consecutive day of subfreezing cold. Thursday's high of 28 degrees broke a 1960 record of nine days in a row of freezing temperatures.

Eastward across the state, damage mounted from the cold. A high of 28 degrees broke a 1960 record of nine days in a row of freezing temperatures.

Eight workmen escaped serious injury Thursday when the roof of a cold-storage warehouse in the north-central Washington community of Peshawin caved in while they were shoveling off snow. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

Cold, dry air seeping into the nation's midsection seemingly ended for the moment the threat of additional rains in flood-level streams and rivers in Arkansas and Indiana.

Three persons drowned Thursday as flash floods hit scattered parts of Arkansas where some communities were swamped by up to 8 inches of rain in 24 hours. A woman drowned in a Little Rock suburb, and two brothers died when rushing waters swept their truck into a creek near Hot Springs.

The Weather Bureau warned that much of the Wabash River's bottom land below Lafayette, Ind., would be under water for several days as the result of rains and three days of heavy rain. Farmers were alerted for evacuation of cattle and equipment.

The combination of washed-out roads, high water and deep mud on secondary roads closed numerous Indiana schools Thursday.

Fog continued to pose hazards for motorists and slow air travel in New York and Pennsylvania, but generally milder weather ended freezing rains of the past week in all of the East except northern New England.

Sleet and snow combined with freezing rain to coat roadways with ice in parts of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Clearing skies and a fresh blast of Arctic cold settled temperatures near zero or below across the northern half of the Plains and parts of the Midwest.

North-central Montana was hit by a third week of sleet and snow. The mercury fell to 28 at Havre well before dawn.

TICKET SELLING for the Duke Ellington concert next Thursday also is a part of the service of Florida State Bank. Pretty Jane Springfield sells tickets to Scott Burns (left) and Mayor Lee Moore. Tickets also are available at all Downtown "We Care" Merchants. (Staff Photo)

Uncle Sam Bares New Arms Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said today it has developed new and secret nonnuclear components for the nation's already fearsome weapons.

The component development disclosure came in one short paragraph of the AEC's annual report to Congress prepared for release today.

In the same report, the AEC made a new public reference to a conclusion voiced in 1966 by Congress' Joint Committee on Atomic Energy that China could be capable of launching a hydrogen-missile attack on the United States before the mid-1970s and conceivably as early as 1971.

The indirect reference came when the AEC disclosed for the first time that it has set "intermediate" goals for developing nuclear ballistic missiles.

A key objective in this expansion program is the sharply increased production of Spartan and Sprint missiles for the Sentinel system, a "thin" antiballistic missile system designed in part to cope with any early threat from Red China.

The AEC's reference to the development of new nonnuclear components for possible use in various kinds of atomic weapons came in this report dealing in a section of the report statement with weapons development during the past year, including underground testing.

"Effort in the development of both weapons and systems was directed toward the exploitation of technological advances, the use of new materials and processes, and new fabrication techniques."

Pressed for amplification on the "new materials and processes," the AEC said today that they involved no nuclear materials—that is, the statement does not mean the AEC has developed some new form of nuclear explosive.

But the commission refused to describe the new components or their designed function.

Conceivably, they could be designed to improve the capabilities of America's strategic missiles — estimated by some at six to seven million — to penetrate enemy defenses. They also might include some new form of decoy device to confuse an enemy's radar defenses.

Measles Hit Jax

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — State health officials Thursday said an outbreak of measles in Jacksonville has reached epidemic proportions.

Dr. Wilson T. Sower, the state health officer, said 120 cases of measles have been reported in Jacksonville since Jan. 1. Only 11 cases have been reported in other sections of Florida during the month, he said.

Plans for a mass immunization program in Jacksonville were begun last Thursday by the Duval Medical Society's Child Health Committee.

NEW YORK (AP) — The first volume of former President Lyndon B. Johnson's memoirs will be published sometime next year, with the undisclosed proceeds — estimated by some at $1.5 million — going to the Lyndon B. Johnson Public Affairs Foundation at the University of Texas.

DeGaulle Riot Trails

RENNES, France (AP) — Opponents and supporters of Charles de Gaulle came to blows in front of City Hall here today as the president began a tour of Brittany, a hotbed of separatist activity.

De Gaulle was inside City Hall when the brawling began amid shouts of "Vive de Gaulle" and "Free Brittany." One man was injured in the fighting.

De Gaulle arrived from Paris this afternoon. He ignored calls to plunge into the crowd to shake outstretched hands.

Nixon Eyes Draft End

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to set up a special commission to develop a detailed plan of action for ending the draft.

The request announced by the White House Thursday represented one of several steps taken at the same time to reform campaign pledges.

These steps gained added impetus today with Nixon's planned statement to Congress, calling for more policemen, judges and prosecutors to curb crime in the nation's capital.

That late afternoon message was on a schedule including a trip to the Pentagon for a briefing with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and a pep talk to lower echelon defense officials.

During the campaign, Nixon repeatedly pledged an all-out effort to combat crime, particularly in Washington which he said should be a national model.

Nixon ordered Atty. Gen. John Mitchell earlier this week to map an urgent program against crime in the capital where homicides and rapes reached record totals last year, robberies in December were double the same month a year before and bank holdups have more than tripled.

On the draft question, the White House said Laird "was advised of the President's conviction that an all-volunteer armed force be established after the expenditures for Vietnam are substantially reduced."

During the campaign, Nixon estimated creation of a volunteer army would cost $5 billion to $7 billion in pay raises. But he said part of that extra spending would be offset by reduced training costs.

Along with the request for an end-the-draft commission, the White House said, Nixon has called for studies or recommendations involving electoral reform, a possible hike in maximum interest paid by banks on savings deposits, all aspects of the program to develop a super-aided citizen, improvement of the postal service, the wisdom of thoroughly revising the Johnson administration's proposed budget for the coming fiscal year and a variety of others.

Postmaster General Winston M. Blount told White House reporters Thursday that he and his aides were trying to find ways to cut Post Office Department costs with the hope of avoiding a one-cent increase in the present six-cent first class mail rate. The increase was recommended earlier this month by Johnson.

Blount also announced five Nixon nominations for top Post Office positions, including that of Elmer T. Klassen, former president of the American Can Co., to be deputy postmaster general.

LBj, Lady Bird 'Covered'

CHICAGO (AP) — Former President Johnson has been assigned 26 Secret Service men.

Heid returned the 26 Secret Service men assigned to Johnson a "normal detail" for the protection of an ex-President.

No protection is provided for the two Johnson daughters, Luci Nugent and Linda Robb. Mrs. Heid reported. Children of former presidents are not protected beyond age 16.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie have 13 agents and five cars assigned to them; the TRBAG said. The Eisenhower detail is smaller because he is hospitalized and not traveling much.

Creeping Inflation And Zooming Official Pay

There's a well-known adage—"TGI" — it is used with good reason, except on "Thank Goodness It's Friday" — and refers to the arrival of payday for most wage-earners.

Sometimes or other it is having a sort of hollow ring for more and more people on pay-rolls as two waves on the fiscal ocean gain momentum and threaten to engulf all of us.

The first is, of course, inflation. The other is increased taxation. We applaud all of the efforts being made to control the former. We view with alarm the latter.

In such antagonism the slow but steady impact on the pocketbook is, also, a symptom of danger which is too easy to minimize just because it takes the slow road.

Take inflation, for instance. How many realize that the cost of living reached a 17-year high in 1966, that we are now on a percentage increase equal to the first year of the Korean War or "Police Action." Inflation, nevertheless, is usually the result of what are normal and accepted economic factors such as great productivity, a swelling in the flow of goods, a break-through in some technical field which has a produced useful objects.

This used to be called the law of supply and demand. But our comments on these matters on our pay envelopes' true value today are directed to some questioning of taxes and taxation.

As 1969 gets underway there appears to be an overall move to increase the salaries of public servants from the exalted office of President of the United States to the local politicians who sought and received public office.

Almost every day our news tickers and our reporters put on the record some such increase as the $100,000 for the President of the United States and lesser sums for others who must be strictly classified as "non-productive" in terms of goods.

If, then, our governmental employees do not produce products which are salable, which certainly will get qualifications by many, the answer must be in taxes.

These are the sums which are a steady drain on the pocketbooks of everyone. And this is the wave of taxation which could, if allowed to reach its height and break with a force that even the most unshin surfer would fear, be disastrous.

We believe that governmental officials, especially those who have been elected at a known rate of dollar recompense, must have their rates reviewed and brought into balance with current values.

But we know, as do operators of any private enterprise, that increases of the proportions now being proposed or enacted for our national or state legislatures, our judiciary, our commissioners and the like would be impossible if governed by usual economic principles.

What is being commented upon in this editorial and imperative if the vast number which make up the "forgotten men" — the great middle-class, are to receive the kind of consideration which would make pay envelopes provide more true purchasing power.

There is, of course, a way in which the ballooning of governmental salaries can be controlled or, at least, compensated. This is the hard-headed introduction of economies which would do away with overlapping or out-dated services and provide new, new administrations at every governmental level. Now about trying it out in Sanford and Seminole County where we can see it being done and enjoy its fruits?

Tucker's Career

Ocell A. Tucker II deserves the thanks of all those interested in the progress of agriculture, our county's basic industry, as he deftly has his robes as Seminole County Agricultural Agent and dons those of a practicing agriculturist with Baker Waterworks Farm.

For his record is unusual not only in terms which normally are associated with that word but the indefinable something which has made his 18 years since the summer of '48 when he assumed the responsibilities of the office, outstanding.

There have been years of change in agriculture. They have recorded an increase in the variety and improvements in growing techniques. But the single, simple, basic requirement of tending the young to the pursuit of agriculture and the guiding of those no inspired confidence as the most important measure of success.

In his office as agricultural agent, Mr. Tucker won some words of praise from our usually hard-headed Board of County Commissioners. In a letter of commendation, Chairman John Alexander dubbed his accomplishments as "ambitious and dedicated."

Awards multiplied throughout his tenure. But these were but the formal acknowledgment of the spirit of assistance which was his by nature and performance.

We are moved to make this further comment as a quite unprofessional agriculturist, but as one who has watched careers start and continue in many fields and then come into full bloom as further opportunities occur.

Mr. Tucker has accepted the kudos from friends and fellow-workers with proper modesty and with every intention of keeping up a good record.

Let us add our congratulations and best wishes for the Tucker future using his own words "I'm just changing hats. I'm going to miss the agriculture department. . . I'm looking forward to the challenge of the new job" in agriculture!

DeGaulle's Political Dotage

By BRUCE RHOSAT
NE Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Foreign observers in touch with French officials are reporting privately that President Charles de Gaulle seems ever more removed from political reality as his dreams of a strong France led by outdated nationalistic cumulate steadily.

For a President Nixon patently eager to generate better relations with Western Europe, this may be good, long run news, though it has its grim aspect in the immediate future.

Plainly, the French want to get back to the main course of European political and economic life. Indeed, the first fruit of such a return could be the long-delayed admission of Great Britain to the European Common Market — an entry blocked, of course, by De Gaulle.

Nothing has so dismayed the French people, even Gaullists, as his recent embargo on arms and parts shipments to Israel. Whatever he made without even consulting either his prime minister or his foreign minister.

The urge to let Britain into the Common Market stems not from a sudden flash of economic altruism in France, but from a growing fear — fueled by the crisis of the franc in late 1966 — that West Germany surely will dominate the economic community unless offset by British presence.

Whatever the apex, a dropping of the barriers to British would restore France to good estate with those leaders here and in Europe who long have been promising for the Europeans only in steady moves toward unity. Ironically, France was the great instigator of that movement in the early post-war years.

Nearly 11 years ago, De Gaulle interrupted that trend. Taking power in a country raged by turmoil, he was widely welcomed for the rock-like stability he brought. But Russia's August invasion of Czechoslovakia doomed his fiction that he was serving mankind as a solitary Third Force, taming Soviet intrusiveness. De Gaulle as the East-West bridge singly collapsed. Realizing from that blow, he was struck next with the monetary crisis which put the franc in jeopardy and forced him to seek rescue from all peoples, his ancient German enemies and his German allies "friends" in the United States.

Crippling cutbacks in the French nuclear and military programs followed. And the herald, awakening took hold. French military leaders pressed to get France fully back into the NATO network.

The grim news, of course, is that the French, their trust in De Gaulle largely gone, see no real substitute on the horizon. Before the good things can happen, they have to find one. Meantime, their strange master goes on, perversely breaking the eggs his countrymen walk upon in a precariously balanced Europe.

Crane's Worry Clinic: Control Your Surroundings

CASE #486: Thelma E., aged 36, is female.

"Dr. Crane," she moaned, "I look like that wedding veil you often mention in your column.

"And when we were first married, I weighed only 114. My husband treats me like his mother and no longer shows any romantic interest in me.

"Is there any simple way to diet?"

Dieting is really harder than it is made out to be. For you can cut them all at once with jeopardizing your health.

But you must consume some food daily to keep from growing weak and hampering your faithful heart.

So we psychologists have devised a diet which is 60 per cent fat than to cut a bad habit all at once.

But a basic rule for controlling the emotions is to control your surroundings.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York is a great place to visit unless you have to visit it five times a week via the Long Island Railroad.

As railroads go, the Long Island is something special. Only a minor portion of its revenue comes from freight, and that on its 345 miles of track it has a quarter of a million commuters.

You have to look behind such figures, however, to get the big picture.

Long Island passengers, dubbed Dashing Dons by the railroad's publicity office are not yet in service. Most are cut out on old trains, and unless they have slowed down considerably since the road pulled out of bankruptcy two years ago through its sale by the Pennsylvania Railroad to the state of New York for $65 million.

In bankruptcy and under the supervision of a hot railroad named Thomas H. Goodfriend, the Long Island spruced up the morale of passengers and crews. Trains seemed to run

Nixon Weighs Capital Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's top advisers have decided a package of proposals to curb the crime wave in the nation's capital, where many residents fear to walk the streets after dark.

The package also will recommend the appointment of more judges and other court personnel, and sides to the President.

And, it may include a potential controversial plan to allow judges to hold in "preventive detention" persons who threaten to commit crimes if released on bail.

Nixon ordered Atty. Gen. John Mitchell this week to study the problem of capital crime in the nation's capital. He acted against a backdrop of statistics such as this:

Major crimes in Washington during the past year rose nearly 20 per cent—260 homicides, 271 rape cases and more than 4,400 robberies, all record highs.

The most startling increase has been in robberies. Last month alone police recorded 629.

3 Businesses Burglarized

Burglars made a large haul from Orange Park Country Club on SR 425 near Altamonte Springs when the pro shop and club house was entered and a quantity of merchandise taken.

Seminole Investigator J. Q. Galloway reported the vandals took eight cases of mixed brands of whiskey and approximately $400 cash from club house. From the pro-shop the thieves made off with several golf sets, coats, sweaters and shoes.

A vending machine was also opened and an undetermined amount of cash taken. Instructors struck at Musselwhite's Egg Farm in Forest City for the second time in a month, when a roll-up type door was opened and tools valued at $100 taken. Two vending machines were opened and total $10 taken. Seminole Deputy Bert Smith investigated.

An entry at Wilson's Standard Service Station on SR 46 west near Paola caused the loss of an undetermined amount of various canned foods, candy and eight cartons of cigarettes.

robustness, more than double the number in December, 1967 and more than five times the number in December 1965.

Banks have been hit especially hard. There were 162 robberies of city financial institutions in 1968, compared with 29 in 1967. Already this year there have been 16 bank holdups.

"The situation today seems to be almost out of control," city bankers said Thursday in a full-page newspaper advertisement headed "an open letter to President Nixon."

"Washington, in the eyes of our citizens, is a model of stability, rather than an example of criminal anarchy."

Special details of FBI agents have been cruising Washington's streets in an effort to curb the bank robberies. Two FBI men assigned to the patrols were shot and killed this month when they tried to arrest a robbery suspect.

Many city merchants are arming themselves, and shoot-outs between bands and store owners have become commonplace. "I'll be 90 per cent of the stores around here have guns in them," said one Washington businessman. Said another: "If a few of these crooks get plugged, you'll discourage them." In one month, two bands were killed and six others were wounded by their intended victims.

Besides banks and stores, hundreds of individual residents have become crime victims.

A White House secretary was robbed one night last week as she walked on the sidewalk just outside the White House grounds.

An 81-year-old "mother of the year" was pushed down a flight of stairs after youths snatched her purse.

The vice principal of Cardozo High School, Herman L. Clifford, was shot to death by one of three youths who had robbed the school bank of $300.

The robbery near the White House brought the crime problem "very close to home," Nixon said in disclosing he had ordered aides to draft the crash program.

Crime, he added, "is a major problem in the District of Columbia, as I found out when I suggested to the Secret Service I'd like to take a walk...

The District's Negro mayor, Walter Washington, said he felt as much as being made of steel crime, but, "we welcome all the help we can get."

The mayor and other city spokesmen had reacted sharply last year when Nixon made crime in the capital a campaign issue. During one speech, Nixon termed the violence "a genuine sickness; tragedy to those who have lived and worked in this most beautiful of world capitals."

Nixon's campaign references to "an atmosphere of apathy and fear" had a somewhat familiar ring.

Three years earlier, President Johnson had cited the city's crime rate and said "the wave of crime must be checked, and our citizens must be protected, and our streets must be made

Mrs. Clifford McKibbin Jr. Is Hostess At Coffee For 100 Guests

By GAY BRUMLEY

The home of Mrs. Clifford (Gaye) McKibbin Jr. couldn't have looked more gorgeous than it did Thursday morning as she and her mother, Mrs. Sumner Hall (visiting from Michigan), entertained 100 or so guests for coffee.

Mrs. McKibbin and Mrs. Hall served between the hours of 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., and daughter-in-law Mrs. Alex McKibbin assisted with serving. Peering into the room were Mrs. Walter Bush, Mrs. Lee Moore, Mrs. James Crappa, Mrs. Harry Woodruff, and Mrs. Arthur McCallum.

Jane and Cliff have just had their Melloni Avenue home redecorated with the help of Berta Hall, interior designer, and it is truly a showplace. The cools and ahhs were almost deafening, and everyone had a wonderful time.

Congratulations to A/2C and Mrs. Ronald L. Reeder of Altamonte.

The living room and dining room, which are done primarily in oyster white and soft blue, were set off beautifully by rose and light pink camelina. Tastefully arranged and placed in just the right places. The refreshment table was covered with a white tulle-broidered organza table cloth, a gift from Mrs. McKibbin's mother, and more of the magnificent camelina.

It's A Long Way From Cairo

By VIOLET BECKBORN

Graduated from Brigham Young University in 1966 with a BA degree in history, Don served two and a half years in a Japanese mission for the Mormon Church.

He was married in 1966 to Janet Irons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Irons of Tooele, Utah.

Janet and their daughter, Bridgette, who is 19 months old, have been visiting relatives in Utah, Chicago, Cincinnati, and Florida for the last month and a half. They will return to Cairo, Egypt, on Jan. 30.

Janet stated that she found living in Cairo fascinating, although life there is very different.

The largest city in the continent of Africa, the ancient city of Cairo, is both 20th century and 3000 B. C. Almost 90 per cent of the people are Moslem, with the ancient call to prayer still made about five times a day—but no microphones are used.

Dress is both modern and ancient, with many wearing the long robes or "galabias." Most of the cars are taxis, since only very wealthy have cars or even houses (villas). Most people live in apartments.

Some modern conveniences are available: one of the funniest sights Janet had seen was refrigerators being moved about on small, wooden, donkey-drawn carts. Food is purchased in the markets with beans and rice the staples and onions, garlic and oil used plentifully.

A covered steel wool ball or pad makes a wonderful pin cushion. It keeps the needles and pins very sharp.

Would your husband walk out if you came home with a head hunter statuette?

If you did, you could get it at Garrett's new and unique gift shop. You could get your headhunter along with many other gifts that are truly different and unusual. They have come to us from all over the world including Europe, Asia, the Far East, and the South Sea Islands.

For instance, you might like the coconut wind chimes made by the children of the Philippines, or a shepherd cup, hand carved by the mountain people of Yugoslavia. We have them for you imported direct from these countries and hand made by their native craftsmen.

They aren't expensive either. You can buy them from $1 to $10. Stop in and look around. You'll like what you see.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 34, have married six years and have five children, all in the same. (No, we aren't Catholic, and we didn't have any of these kids on purpose, but I will, you know how it is.) My problem is my husband, George, thinks all he has to do is bring home the paycheck. Everything else is my job.

He never once got up during the night to change a baby or give him a bottle. I had to learn how to drive a car because George had a few beers too many, smashed up the car and had his drivers' license taken away. I had to drive myself to the hospital to have the baby.

DEAR ABBY: I really don't like my husband. I don't know how to ever make it. I really don't like the car. I'm in my eighth month right now. This morning while I was on my hands and knees scrubbing the kitchen floor, George was lying on his back on the sofa watching TV, and he had the nerve to complain because he saw cobwebs on the ceiling. Maybe if I had time to lay full simple words. Any serious suggestion would be greatly appreciated.

NEARLY NAKED
I don't put me on, the only way to keep your wife from putting your clothes on and to keep them under lock and key.

DEAR TIRIE: I don't know any more terms to get into cooperation out of a husband, but for openers you can close the "baby factory." If you've never heard of "PLANNED PARENTHOOD," get acquainted.

DEAR ABBY: I need in your column that you had never heard of body pills. ENTHOOD, get acquainted.

Jacoby and Son

All top scores aren't earned in duplicate play. Sometimes they are the result of pure undisciplined luck. Some five-card major bid derails. Some don't approve of the high opening bid by Jake Winkman's pupil but it meets with our full approval. We do not reason to complicate our bidding by opening this sort of hand with a minor suit.

call by Winkman sitting East and might even result in East and West buying the contract there. However, the pupil passed. He opened the king of clubs and continued with the ace of hearts. Then he studied dummy and voided in the diamond. Declarer fumed but Winkman ruffed to hold South's hand.

We The Women:

By Betty Canary

This is the terrible time of the year and anybody not agreeing has read more Dr. Norman Vincent Peale than I have. Perhaps it is a bad time only for women, although I believe men, caught as they are between the football and basketball seasons, also experience a lull in their lives.

A younger friend of mine, experiencing her first winter of Getting Through just told me she went to the doctor mumbling feebly about maybe needing some iron or the reliable as he is, told her to go out and buy a new hat. If only she had checked with me first! Not that I would have prescribed anything because that leads only to a jail sentence. (There's a way to train for the most. There are some plan which one to train for the most. There are some plan which one to train for the most.)

"How do you communicate with a parent who thinks the new left is a girl in the chorus line?"

Carnival

"Junior must be doing a little better in college. I see he's finally learned how to spell 'tail bond' correctly."

Tizzy

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY: Mary wanted to know how to wash her rough ceiling. I bought a REAL sponge that is full of holes at the hardware store and wash with a circular motion. The ceiling is done in no time, and no "crumb" — EDNA

DEAR POLLY: Mary can't wash her very rough ceiling with a bathtub brush. Simply dip into sudsy water, shake off the excess and scrub. I have had to do this for years due to an allergy to dust. — MARION

Our Boarding House

Beauty after Forty
By Edyth Thornton MacLeod

I taught school for twenty years, then married. Now I am fifty and retired, my school closed. I am bitter about my lost youth, due to a tyrannical father. I have a fair income. I live alone in a great city. I know I'll crack up if I don't do something with my life. I have an idea. A week's rest. Do what I have suggested, then after six months write to me again, but I doubt that you will write. You will be too busy with your new life, and I will be glad.

Go To College, Trade School?

By P. J. LAIN

Miss Lain awards a Mercury convertible to Larry G. Smith, Klamath Falls, Ore., for his question:

"Do you have any suggestions for a student whose parent and family don't support him? I would like to see a column for boys like myself who are interested in trade school for aircraft mechanics in my case — but who are being pressured to try for professional or liberal arts degrees. I hope you can tell me how to either convince parents and school counselors to let me do what I want, or how can I go about getting interested in the academic field if that's the only way I can get a job — a good job — if it's what you want to do. And if you think it will offer you the opportunities to move along through life as you may live, five, 10 or 20 years from now.

Nearighted maybe? But for a moment, imagine your future happiness as a leader rather than you trying to climb your hands tied behind your back? That's about how you handicap yourself when you take too limiting an approach to your goals. Before we go on, let me make my position on vocational school clear:

The mortar-board mania in our college-garbed society is crazy. Kids with neither the wish nor wiggly wherewithal are too frequently whered into higher education when they'd be happier, and in some cases earn more money, by learning a profitable skill. I have a tremendous respect for good vocational schools, and will have more to say about them at a later time.

The frosting too, however, your letter suggests that you are one who should consider college. You write like a bright, well-rounded guy, and while I have no direct clue to your academic records, they must be good. Otherwise your counselors would be the first to tell you to forget campus life. Perhaps you just haven't targeted the right level of your interest yet. Have you thought about becoming an aircraft mechanic PLUS — an aeronautical engineer?

Relate Jobs. Aircraft mechanics and aeronautical engineers both belong to the same "job family." The concept of "job families" recognizes that kindred work activities are carried on at many levels. Another simple example of this concept may be found in clerical field: Barbara's office knowledge is confined to the alphabet, so she's a file clerk; Morton types and uses an adding machine and uses a typewriter; Susan's a whiz at shorthand and has advanced to a stenographer's job. Even though they have different training and skills and has become a private secretary. The point to this job family business is...

Send your suggestions for future column topics to P. J. Lain, Career Corner, Sanford Herald, P.O. Box 11400, St. Louis, Mo. 63105. Sorry, no mail answers can be given. Any Sanford Herald reader whose letter is the basis of a future column will receive a free Royal Mercury portab typewriter.
