

U. S. Exporters Fear Results Of Customs Union Pact In Europe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Some of the exporters of Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands are taking a "wait and see" attitude toward the results of the customs union pact in Europe.

The pact, which will take effect on Jan. 1, 1948, would create a free trade area in Europe, and would eliminate the tariff barriers which have existed between the countries which are members of the pact.

There is such a union now in Europe among Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, in diplomatic circles it is known as the "Benelux" pact.

The nations balance each other happily—Belgium and the Netherlands are two of the most highly industrialized nations in the world. The Netherlands turns out a good deal of food. They are in a position to take care of themselves.

There is a common union of two of these nations to share in the tariff on the goods they buy from each other. The result is that consumers in those nations pay a little less for each other's goods, and the hope is that trade between the countries will pick up because of the lower prices.

There is such a union now in Europe among Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, in diplomatic circles it is known as the "Benelux" pact.

PEOPLE WHO STRIVE TO BE IN HARMONY WITH GOD'S LAW WOULD MAKE A WONDERFUL NEIGHBORHOOD. Rom. 12:16. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; law therefore is the fulfillment of the law.

All kinds of schemes are being advanced for demolishing hurricanes, but we suspect the old-fashioned remedy of tying up the windows and battening down the hatches will still persist.

While women's dresses are going down, men's pants are said to be coming up, about four inches above the shoe tops being the latest fashion edict. Maybe we are going back to the knickerbocker of the late real estate boom.

Arnold Kivi, pleading guilty to a charge of attempting to steal atom bomb secrets, said he didn't know why he tried to steal them. It might have been the thought of the hope that the Russians would pay a nice sum for such information.

Senator Claude Pepper told a Tampa labor meeting that his opposition to the Taft-Hartley bill was steamrollered by the republican crowd, representing the moneyed interests and big business. Six congressmen from Florida and the other U. S. senators will be surprised to learn whom they represent. Fort Myers News Press. It takes all kinds of people to make a Republican.

With thousands of children returning to school throughout Seminole County, a timely warning is issued to motorists to increase their vigilance while driving past school buildings or approaching children on the highways. State law prohibits passing school buses while loading or unloading school children, and speeds near school buildings are drastically restricted. The best plan, however, is not to pass a school building if it can be avoided even if you have to drive around the block. Don't kill a child!

Some of Sanford's business men petitioned the Sheriff's office asking for removal of the ban on punchboards contending that it hurts their business. What can hurt business more, we wonder than the growing disregard for law and order, more or less in evidence throughout the whole world? If business men, who are supposed to be leaders of a community, do not support law enforcement, how can they expect more humble men to obey the law? It is hard to explain to the man in the street that there are some laws meant to be enforced and others to be winked at. Punchboards may be a minor law enforcement for the merchant, and stealing a banana from a fruit stand is a minor infraction for the beggar, but the latter is apt to go to jail for it.

The tremendous growth in Florida's population is indicated by recent figures in the Automotive News which show that Florida had the highest percentage of automotive registrations of any state in the union between 1941 and 1947. The number of automobiles registered in Florida six years ago was 458,687 as compared with 350,000 now, an increase of 19.7 percent. California, where everyone owns a car, boasts an increase of only 13 percent; and Michigan, where cars are made, had less than a 1 percent gain. Inasmuch as cars are protected to individual states by the manufacturers on a population basis, Florida's increase in registrations can be accounted for only by new residents moving into the state, bringing their cars with

Practical Patriotism

Young Americans are being encouraged to take an interest in the story of their local communities and of their native states. The Junior Historian Movement, working through the school systems of several states, usually in conjunction with state historical societies, is leading young people in pilgrimages to significant points in their areas, to study stories of local past events, to mark historic sites and to collect documents.

One of the first states to inaugurate such a project was Indiana where a Junior Historical group was started in Grant County in 1938. This has grown until school pupils in most counties of the state are participating.

Texas also pioneered in educating its young citizens in awareness of the Lone Star State's thrilling and extensive lore. Last year, in co-operation with the Texas State Historical Society, 85 chapters had been set up in the state's schools. New York, Pennsylvania and Minnesota are also leading in the movement.

Such a program will foster sound American patriotism. Beginning with the child's home community, the search will lead him to a realization of his own cultural inheritance and develop not a narrow nationalism but a practical love of homeland. Some schools have been indifferent too long to this kind of education.

Benelux

Benelux is the name given to the customs union of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, to go into effect in 1949. This is a hopeful beginning of greater economic solidarity in Europe.

Luxembourg used to be in the German customs union, though independent otherwise. Belgium and the Netherlands have never been on particularly good terms, though they are neighbors and their peoples are related.

The coolness goes back to 1579 when the present Dutch state gained its independence of Spain, while the Belgian provinces preferred to stay where they were. Napoleon conquered both Belgium and Holland. After his fall the two were merged for a time under Dutch control. The Belgians did not like it, and broke away in 1830. In World War I it did not make for good feeling to have the Dutch stay neutral while the Belgians were overrun by Germany.

Since then the common misfortune of Nazi rule has soothed old irritations. Benelux is the first case of voluntary co-operation between these nations in centuries.

War Orphans

One of the more touching aspects of war's aftermath is the plight of the European children whose parents were casualties. Many of these youngsters have been brought to this country and adopted by childless people of their own racial and national background.

A group of Polish orphans are being cared for in groups by the Polish National Alliance, which convenes in Cleveland this week. Mrs. Frances Dymek, a vice-president of this organization, in describing the roundabout journey of 17 wards of the Alliance, said that they had travelled from Poland through Siberia, Persia, India and Mexico, finally reaching the United States. They have been placed in academies in various parts of the country.

What these children have missed in the loss of their parents has been partly made up to them in breadth of experience and in the opportunity to grow to maturity in a country where welfare of children is considered important.

My New York

NEW YORK—I saw a New York kid this evening. It was around six o'clock and things were beginning to unwind, to loosen up and relax a little the way they do when the long day is over. I wound up around Columbus Circle, where in a couple of hours the soapbox speechmakers would soon be explaining the mysteries of life, death and the pursuit of the Godly-life to those of us assorted loafers who had time to listen.

However, they had not arrived yet and the crowds were hurrying past in bus stops and subway stations and the dinner table. All except a little crowd around the Maine memorial at the southwest corner of Central Park, which is where, as I say, I saw a New York kid. There is a little bird bath, size of a wading pool, at the foot of the statue. It is about three feet deep and it is not really for wading, of course. I do not really know what it is for, a bathtub for baby elephants, maybe. However, this evening the crowd was around the pool because there were four kids splashing around in it in aggie bathing trunks. I thought at first they were ducking for apples, but it turned out to be money.

The men and women clustered around the pool were grinning and yelling and tossing nickels and quarters into the dirty water, and the four kids would duck for the coins, elaborately ascending water on each other as they scrambled. Varily, the show business magazine, would have, I am sure, described them as socko, with great presentation, a real production. In Hollywood, where everything is the poor man's something, the wage would have called it the poor man's Acapulco, or Bermuda, or wherever it is they deep-sea dive for coin of the realm.

Three of the kids were just what you would expect kids diving for coins to be—dirty and tough and grinning and slatted of torso. They ducked over and over and stared up angrily at each other and they slapped water friendly-like.

The minutes wore on and the crowd got bigger and once in a while someone would yell "Hay—copal!" and they would look up defiantly, and then mutter, "Aas, ya nula." It was more fun than Cony Island for them.

THE FOURTH KID WAS DIFFERENT. He was the same size and his hair was cut short in front the same way and his trunks were just as loose-fitting and droopy. But there was no laughter in him. He was, maybe, nine or ten. He was shaking with the cold, for the wind had come up suddenly this August evening and he had been ducking for coins too long. His fingers were white and shriveled at the tips and his mouth was getting blue. He ducked silently—and when he got his coin, he hopped out of the pool and over to the iron fence, where he reached over and gave it to a thin, silent, little blond girl in a light blue dress, who took it and dropped it into a wrinkled paper bag.

There was no laughter in her, either. She just took the coins from him and dropped them into the bag and then stood by the fence, looking down at the sidewalk—once in a while facing the crowd as if she was going to scream at them. "Vell, it isn't begging, is it? You can't call it begging, can you?"

The fourth kid didn't get too many of the coins. The three others shouted and waved at the crowd and beckoned for them to throw their riches, but he just stood knee-deep in the dirty water of the pool, shivering and biting his lips, and rowled.

Once in a while the three others would trash past him in the hunt for a coin and he would be upset and duffed under the water. If it were me, at nine or ten, I would have come up bawling. But he just got up and embarked through his nose once or twice and stared at them. Then he just stood there.

"COMES A FAUSE in the day's occupation, that is known as the children's hour." That was the line that went through my head. You know—kids in a swing, or piggy-back with their old man in the yard, or duck on a rock or pond in the corner. They would be doing that, all over the country if it had been now, I thought. All except the

HOW RED IS HOLLYWOOD?

In the Philharmonic Auditorium and if an upon whose wills? The nearest thing to an answer to the first question was Senator Tenney's assertion that he had in his pocket "the names and party numbers" of Communist members of the Actors Guild and the Hollywood Writers Mobilization Club at various front-organizations; but, since he did not see fit to read the names, there was no way to judge how numerous these Communists are and whether they could be said to constitute a "crowd." Mr. Emmet Lavery, one of those who undertook to argue that Communism is no threat at all, admitted that there are some Communists among the Hollywood screen writers, as well as "a lot of Republicans and Democrats," but "name," of course, is an utterly indeterminate number. As to the second question there was even greater confusion. Mrs. Lela Rogan said the Communists had been able to work a good deal of sly and subtle propaganda into "nonpolitical pictures"—a character here, a line there, all clearly calculated to destroy popular confidence in American institutions, but she gave no specific examples for applying this propaganda to the will by declaration of the harm that will follow noncompliance. Thus on an etymological basis, it seems to us, the question might have been appropriately divided as follows: (1) Are there many Communists in Hollywood? (2) Are they numerous enough or powerful enough to exert any pressure upon the wills of others, it is an extremely important question.

TREASURY REPORT

Table with columns for Receipts, Expenditures, Balance, etc. for Sept. 4, 1947 compared with Sept. 5, 1946.

Big engines... long trains mean lower cost to you!

But union leaders want "half-trains"—double crews!

Big locomotives are built to do a big job in the big country which is America—a big job in peacetime as in wartime. They are built to pull long trains. Long freight trains can handle more goods at less cost—to you—than short trains. Long trains mean fewer trains—fewer chances for accidents—fewer interruptions to traffic. But a few railroad union leaders oppose long trains—among their current 44 demands for changes in rules is one limiting the length of freight trains to 67 average cars. Why do they demand this? For "safety," they say. But is it? Government figures show definitely that long trains mean greater safety to railroad employees and public alike. Then, if safety is not the real reason—what is the reason behind this demand? It is to make more jobs which are not needed—to get more pay! This "made work" would be sheer waste. Think of big, modern locomotives using only half their power. For this waste, you—the public—would have to pay. Higher costs mean a lower standard of living for everybody. Nobody wants that!

Here's the record...

Table showing record statistics: Average length of freight trains has gone up.. 39%; Average speed of freight trains has gone up.. 39%; The rate of injuries to railroad employees has gone down.. 66%; Average wages paid railroad workers have gone up.. 84%; Price of railroad materials and supplies has gone up.. 58%; Railroad taxes have gone up.. 76%; But the average charge by railroads for hauling a ton of freight one mile has gone down.. 23%.

Men Are Faced With Shorter Pants Leg

NEW YORK—White women mobilize for the battle against long skirts, men are faced with the problem of high-water pants this fall.
Predicting that men's trousers will be two inches shorter this fall, and that shoulder pads will be missing from new suit jackets, Tony Williams, leading New York tailor, warned gloomily that the way things are going, men will be luckless if they have any pants at all, adding:
"The shorter trouser with cuff will barely touch the top of the shoe."
A shop catering to college men reported that trousers shortened to the top of the socks is the new rage on eastern university campuses.
Commenting on the no-shoulder-pads vogue, however, Leonora Corbett, well-known British actress, said:
"I don't think it's wise to take the stuffing out of gentlemen."
Many narcissus bigonia have a narcotic effect when their fragrance is inhaled and the name itself is the Greek word for a sleep-producing drug.
A yearbook as accurate as a railroad wash would be made of nickel steel alloy, accompanied by Bureau of Standards certificate and recommendations for use under constant temperature; it would cost $300 to $350.

Thelma Carter Weds Daniel F. Deneff

The marriage of Miss Thelma Carter to Daniel F. Deneff was solemnized on Saturday night at 7:00 o'clock by the Rev. J. E. McKinley at the First Methodist Church in a lovely candlelight ceremony. The church was decorated with white gladioluses and greenery with branched candelabra holding white taper.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. J. L. McEwan organist, rendered a program of nuptial music. Mrs. C. E. Ginn served as soloist and she sang "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond and "Herman Lohr's 'It Is Not Because Your Heart Is Mine'".

The bride, given in marriage by C. R. Dawson, wore a gown of white tulle finished with a fitted bodice, long sleeves, marquisette yoke and long sleeves forming points over the hands. Her fingertip bridal veil of sheer illusion fell from a cap of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pastel fall flowers.

Mrs. A. H. Collins served the bride as matron of honor and was her only attendant. She wore a dress of pink marquisette with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. She also carried pastel flowers and wore them in her hair. Al Holson served as best man for the groom.

Mrs. John E. Deneff, mother of the groom, was given in powder blue crepe and wore a corsage of white roses and primroses. Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the groom. White gladioluses were used in decorating throughout the rooms of the Deneff home. Later that evening the couple left for a short wedding trip. Mrs. Deneff wore for traveling a white galsardine suit with light blue hat and white accessories.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Herman Carter of Atlanta received her schooling in that city after which she entered nurse's training and received her diploma as a graduate nurse. She has recently been associated with the Fernald-Laughlin Memorial Hospital. Mr. Deneff, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Deneff of Sanford, is a graduate of Seminole High School and during the war served for five years with the United States Marine Corps.

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9, (AP)—In these days of limited picture-making, a Hollywood reporter has to get around. So hop aboard my jet job and we're off.
Where Bob Hope and Jane Russell are making the lot's only picture, "The Paleface." We track down Bob and find him peddling his bike down the studio street. We trot alongside as he tells a joke he wouldn't be able to recite on the air. What we reach the stage, he treats his producer, Bob Fellows, with the cryptic remark, "Get out of the Sacred Cow, Margaret, I'm off to Hollywood." Fellow laughs sheepishly.
Inside, Bob tells the story. It seems he has been fighting to keep any "outside" news (for instance, about Crosby and his horses) out of the frontier picture. So in retaliation, Bob suggested having a dance hall pianist turn out to be President Truman. "Harry would do it for me," said Bob, and the producer didn't find out till later he was kidding.
But Jane Russell isn't working, so we head out to Culver City, where Esther Williams is splashing around in a pool for "On An Island With You." She pops out of the water and looks as fresh as though she stepped out of the makeup building. She explains that her hair is lathered to stay dry, her makeup is water-resistant and her metal suit is waterproof. "I'm getting more like a fish every day," says well-gilled Esther.
Then we're off to Beverly Hills, where "Prelude to Night" is shooting in the high school pool and gym. We are told the awesome news: "Zachary Scott is doing his own swimming." And he

Geneva Holcombe Is Wed To C. Brantley

By ADELAIDE KERR

In a quiet ceremony Geneva Holcombe of Maccotte, Fla., became the bride of Charles W. Brantley in a double ring ceremony performed by Judge R. W. Ware on Thursday night at his home. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Holcombe of Maccotte and Mr. Brantley is the son of Mrs. Josie Brantley of Sanford.
The bride wore a gown of soft blue wool jersey with white accessories and a corsage of white roses and tuberoses. Mrs. Brantley, mother of the groom, chose to wear a light blue two piece suit with chrysanthemum boutonniere. The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. W. C. Holcombe, was gowned in a dress of blue crepe and her accessories were also white. Her flowers were sweetheart roses.

The couple is now making their home in the Welks Apartments in Sanford. Mr. Brantley served for three and a half years with the Army Air Forces during the war and is now associated with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

TEEN TALK

AP Newsfeatures
Dear Judy,
U. S. kids are always being taken to school and panned for being backward. But Uncle Sam's moppets aren't the only ones who act squirrelly. South American kids have their peculiarities, too, says Carlos Ramirez, Latin American singing star who was recently on tour here. Only Carlos doesn't think it's silly being a teen-ager—a just a phase of growing up like getting the mumps or the measles or whooping cough. He says:
"The kids up here are terrific! They mob that Sinatra and I feel so sorry for Frankie, but I know, too, that in South America they take me apart, limb from limb."
Carlos laughed merrily thinking about his narrow escapes, but one thing he can't understand is: "Why does everyone blame the teenagers in the general? When I was in my teens back in Bogota, Colombia, we raised the dickens too. We never got into trouble, but we didn't live like little old men and ladies, either."
Down in South America, believe it or not, the holy-soxers are considered in South America. Robert Stockings, to you, quite formal, don't you think?
Carlos admits that there are lots of teen-agers who go overboard in their enthusiasm, so he suggests that those who hunt autographs be considerate in South America. He says he doesn't want to join in mobs to badge him into giving his autograph.
South American kids go in more for rumbas and sambas than the hepcats up here do, Carlos says. "Country" they are not for "Jacques, Jacques" which is fast becoming a big American hit.
Speaking of teen-age accomplishments, here's a feat that few grown-ups can boast. Fourteen-year-old Virginia Walton Brooks of Memphis, Tenn., wound up an African safari after shooting 13 animals including an elephant, lion, hyena, cheelah, jackal, baboon, gazelle and water buck. Virginia said: "It was fun. I didn't find anything to be afraid of."
I guess lots of kids are getting animal-conscious, because one at some pet pals and says she wishes she could find a pet pal club. . . 17-year-old Patricia Riekle of Newton, N. J., was selected as typical U. S. teenager by a sweater company who conducted a contest. . . Sinatra's newest song "The Stars Will Remember" and "Christmas Dreaming" can be played over and over—even if you don't go mad for Frankie.
Vivian
Ha comes dripping out of the pool (not being a piscatorial as Esther) and admits this is good work for a hot September afternoon. He recalls that during the hot hot spell he was in ski clothes for "Casey Timberlane."
And now if you don't mind, I'm going to cease these wanderings for a while and take a honeymoon.

These Women

By ADELAIDE KERR

AP Newsfeatures
Writer England, which once "looked down" on United States schools, has copied some American ideas to educate her children for post-war citizenship.
That news comes from Leah Manning, British Labor member of Parliament now in the United States, who says that, as a result of changes based on American educational experiments, English children now have free education in secondary schools, which they did not have before, and that they remain in school longer.
"Until the passage of the Butler Act, 90 percent of Britain's children stayed in elementary school until they were 14, when they left and went to work," said Mrs. Manning, a former educator, who worked for the act's passage and who said that the American, John Dewey, had influenced her thinking more than any other educational philosopher.
"About ten percent left the elementary schools at the age of 11 and went into secondary schools. Though the secondary schools were part of the state school system, children either had to have a scholarship or pay tuition. Now under the Butler Act, they must remain in school until they are 15 and they do not have to pay tuition. At 11 they enter the secondary schools (junior high school level). So virtually 100 percent get at least four years of secondary education free."
Mrs. Manning, a vigorous woman with sherry colored eyes and hair, said that the new system was attacked by some English, who felt that the plan of giving all the children the same junior and senior high school education held back the gifted.

No One Seems To Like Long-Skirted Dresses

AP Newsfeatures

PORTLAND, Ore.—A psychologist hazarded a guess today on why American women are discarding clothes they like and donning ones they say they loathe.
"This does not mean we shall slight the necessary education in arithmetic," she concluded, "but in the past we gave too much time to such problems as how much time it takes a fly to climb a wall and too little to the art of living."
Mrs. Manning, who was educated in state schools and Honerton College, Cambridge, is the wife of William Henry Manning, assistant at the Observatory in Cambridge. She taught in Cambridge from her college graduation until 1929, when she became president of the National Union of Teachers, was placed on the panel of candidates it supported for Commons and won a seat that year. She lost it in 1931, spent the next 14 years in various executive offices of the NUT and in 1945 returned to Parliament—this time as a member from the Epping Division of Essex, part of Winston Churchill's old constituency. She is 58 and speaking four.
"One of England's plans to meet the economic crisis is to develop its agriculture," she said.

"The source of clothes is controlled. A woman must buy the style that's being shown, or not buy. And people want to do what's expected of them; a woman doesn't want to seem economically unable to follow the fashion."
"A buyers' strike could force short skirts back easily. But no one with influence has started such a strike. I think it would be very easy to stage a revolt if the fashion leaders—women with influence—would join."
"There is the process we call identification," whereby a person identifies himself with the manerisms and customs of a person he admires. That's operating here. No matter how many women liked long skirts, they probably couldn't be changed unless someone of prestige in the fashion world refused to wear them."

Juke Operators Held For Beating Waitress

OCALA, Sept. 9. (AP)—F. J. Upham and his wife, Betty, operators of a juke about a mile south of Belleview, and two waitresses were turned over to Levy county authorities yesterday charged with brutally beating Louise Bennett, 28, who had been employed by the Uphams for about two months as a waitress.

The operators of "Jack and Betty" and the two waitresses, Hilda Kirby, 23, of Louisville, Ky., and Donnie Miccher, 22, of Springfield, Ohio, are accused of beating Mrs. Bennett, cutting off her hair with a pocket knife and leaving her naked in some woods about two miles west of Williston between midnight and 2:00 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mrs. Bennett, who has been living in a tourist cabin near the S curve in Ocala, told Sheriff Porter that the Uphams and the two waitresses were supposed to take her to her quarters after closing Saturday night. Instead they drove to the wooded spot beyond Williston and almost a mile off the highway.

Mrs. Bennett made her way to the highway after the quartet left her and was seen by a state highway patrolman as she walked along the highway completely nude and smeared with blood. The patrolman loaned her a raincoat and brought her to the hospital here where she received first aid treatment. Meanwhile, he had re-ferred a description of the Uphams.

Sheriff, one of his deputies and the state highway patrol immediately headed for Belleview and halted the Upham car a short distance north of that community. In the car was found Mrs. Bennett's clothing and a blood-stained quilt. The four were placed in the county jail and were delivered to Deputy Sheriff Perry Wiggins yesterday morning and moved to Williston for arraignment.

In building Holder Dam, enough concrete was used to start a broad highway across the United States.

Doomed Negro Says Crime Doesn't Pay

CHICAGO, Sept. 9. (AP)—Ernest Gaither, Jr., 23 year old negro, who says he never worked, always had lots of money and was "tough" and a "big shot," has written a message to "boys," warning them against a career of crime.

Gaither, who is scheduled to die in the electric chair Friday morning, handed a crudely-penned note to Warden Frank Bain yesterday after the Illinois supreme court declined to interfere in the execution. He was convicted of convicted of slaying a liquor store owner in a $300 holdup last Feb. 9.

In his note, Gaither related he was a holdup man at 16 and "boss of a gang of tough guys. Two or three grand on me all times." Of the eight in the gang, seven are in prison and one died in the electric chair.

He wrote he had been sentenced to reform school, escaped; was sentenced to prison and served more than five years. Six months after he was paroled in June, 1946, he was head of another gang of robbers.

"Any fool can put a gun in his hand and do wrong," Gaither said in his message. "Easy money is no good. It come easy, it go easy. It takes a man with guts to get a job and work for what he want. The law will get you if you don't after five out of your head that you can make crime pay. I am just sorry that I couldn't see it this way until it was too late although my wife will be taken from me but I am going to rest with God in heaven. That will be my next home, and I am so happy that I am ready to go."

24 Jews Hurt

The steel-helmeted troops undertook the forcible disembarkation of the Jews aboard the Rummensmedts. The troops turned fire hoses on the ship's deck, forcing the Jews to leave peacefully. When some 300 British troops moved into position for the operation, armed with clubs and wearing tear gas goggles, many of the Jews began to leave peacefully. But others resisted bitterly.

The Jews who pressed against the barred windows of the police vans bringing them on the last leg of this journey looked bruised and disheveled. Cries of "We're not going back!" and "We're not going back!" were heard. The Jews will live in Nissen huts and tents pending screening and disposition.

Many of the young Jewish men continued their resistance all the way down the gangplank and were dragged into the trains or vans.

"This is not the way we want to go to Palestine," one Jew shouted from the crowd of refugees milling in the train pen.

Two train loads of refugees from the Empire Rival arrived at Luebeck-Kuecknitz and moved into the second of two camps set up for them.

Inside the Poppendorf camp, where the passengers were taken, refugees were heard singing in chorus and shouting slogans.

In Hamburg's city square, meanwhile, about 1,300 Jewish displaced persons demonstrated against the landing. They were dispersed after a clash with 100 German police led by a British colonel.

A British medical officer said most of the wounds were suffered by the Jews in the Rummensmedts Park operation were minor.

Two correspondents representing the combined Anglo-American press reported from below decks that one group of Jews and soldiers were engaged in a melee and that virtually all the Jews in this group had to be dragged out. They said the Jews were clubbed.

The soldiers were met by a hail of tin cans and bottles when they went below. The correspondents reported, and small fights broke out at a number of points. British soldiers were ordered to seize the ringleader in each case.

On the other side of the dock shed, walling and shouting epithets were heard as the waiting train slowly was filled. I saw one of the Jews struck twice on the head or shoulders with a club while he was being carried toward the train by British soldiers.

Cabinet Grants Extra Funds For Sewage Disposal

TALLAHASSEE, Sept. 9. (AP)—An emergency allocation of $129,150 for completion of a new University of Florida sewage disposal plant was made by the cabinet today as Governor Caldwell warned that the $1,000,000 building contingency fund is dwindling too fast.

The Governor, in a mood to look cautiously into construction expenditures, also objected to immediate action on a Board of Control request, to release $800,000 for a new University of Florida library unit and consideration was temporarily deferred.

A $228,188 contract for completion of 152 new married veterans housing units at the Gainesville institution was approved. The federal government will bear the cost.

After receiving a report that the two-year, million-dollar fund set up by the Legislature to take care of unexpected costs in the big building program had been nearly cut in half in less than three months, the cabinet agreed with the Governor in declining to tap it for $26,700 to equip new vegetable and dairy processing laboratories at Gainesville.

About $21,000 taken in by the University from rental of temporary faculty housing facilities during the past year was turned into the sewage disposal plant deficiency to help ease the strain on the million dollar equalizing fund.

Improvement Commission Director C. H. Overman said the additional allocation would run the cost of the sewage plant to $427,000, instead of the $298,000 estimated by the engineering firm of Smith, Reynolds and Hills before the contract was awarded to Paul Smith construction company on a cost plus fixed fee basis.

"I think we'll have to say no to them," Governor Caldwell said. "We're not in a position to say no." Overman replied, "We're by-passing our sewage down here, it's a serious proposition. It's going to cost us a lot of money."

George B. Hills of the engineering firm which planned the project said most of the increased cost resulted from rising material and labor charges.

V.F.W. Convention Slaps Communism

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9. (AP)—The 48th annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today asked direct government action "to enjoin the existence of the Communist Party of the United States."

It adopted a resolution directing the VFW Commander-in-Chief to request the President of the United States to instruct the Attorney General "to institute legal action to enjoin the existence of the Communist Party of the United States and to enjoin the operation and publication of its instrumentality, a newspaper commonly known as and designated as the Daily Worker."

F.P.&L. Co. Arranges Large Stock Sale

NEW YORK, Sept. 9. (AP)—Florida Power & Light Co. has arranged to sell $10,000,000 of 4 1/2 per cent preferred stock through a banking group headed jointly by the First Boston Corp. and Smith, Barney & Co.

The underwriters proposed to offer the 100,000 shares publicly today, subject to approval of the Securities and Exchange Commission. The stock will be sold at par with a commission of $3.00 a share for the underwriting group.

Promises still be used to repay $4,750,000 short-term loans received from its parent, American Power & Light Co. and to finance additional parts of its property expansion program.

He said the subcommittee will question Justice Department officials Thursday concerning prosecution of cases in which the general accounting office has reported actual fraud.

Bender said a sampling of 1/2 percent of settlements indicated overpayment of more than $6,000,000, with the total likely to reach half a billion dollars.

The committee he said, "is concerned not only with exposing an evil to be remedied immediately, but also with the improvement of administrative procedures generally, in the person of an individual, chief machinist's mate Robert Zeller of Flushing, Long Island, New York, will board the Missouri through a hawse pipe tomorrow night with a message from Neptuneus Rex, mythological God of the Sea. It was further stated that the amount due to Judge Ware under his present salary amounts to $13,200, leaving the amount due to the County, $1,765 less any adjustments for excess fees during the year.

4. The goals of production must be higher than pre-war. The necessity for higher levels of output than before the war is the result of the fact that requirements for reconstruction are large; that exports must exceed pre-war levels to purchase the same volume of imports because of the loss of foreign investments and shipping fleets; that populations have increased, except in France, so that there are more mouths to be fed, more bodies to be clothed, more heads to be covered with roofs."

As for when the job will be complete, the report says: Europe generally will not have been completely rebuilt until the country of Europe no longer require special aid in the form of relief or loans to maintain a level of imports required for their sustenance."

Help Will Be Needed This Year To Prevent Untold Suffering Next Winter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall said today that Europe must have some kind of temporary aid this year and only Congress can authorize it.

The Secretary did say the State Department would have at hand by late October adequate facts on which to chart a course of action.
His statement came on the heels of an urgent plea from London that the United States assume a large share of Britain's occupation costs in Germany. There were reports this country is making preparations to do so.
Marshall, when saying the State Department will have needed data at hand by late October, commented that the majority of congressional committees visiting Europe will have returned by that time.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Shippers protesting the railroad plan for a 27 percent freight rate increase today pressed the Interstate Commerce Commission to say when it expects to rule on the proposal.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The railroad's operating margin has been so narrowed by recent wage boosts and higher costs of materials and supplies that "disaster would speedily overtake them with any substantial drop-off in traffic," William T. Fahey, president of the Association of American Railroads, said today.
Never in their history, Fahey told the Traffic Club of New York, have the railroads been in greater need of prompt action by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is hearing their request for a 27 percent increase in freight rates.
Only the unprecedented peacetime traffic volume has kept the roads going financially, he said. Declaring that the estimated $48,000,000 annual cost of the recent wage award to non-operating employees was $125,000,000 (Continued on Page Six)
