Sanford Invites Involved Citizens To Sunshine Law Work Session

By Karen Talley Beraid Staff Writer

Sanford commissioners have opened their Monday afternoon sunshine law work session to the more than 100 residents who sit on the city's 17 committees, authorities and advisory boards.

Extending the invitations was suggested by one of the two city commissioners whose actions prompted the sunshine law session. He said word of Monday's meeting had led citizen board members to contact him with questions regarding their own accountability under the law.

The State Government in the Sunshine law prohibits public representatives from private discussion of matters that are or will be scheduled for board review. Elected and appointed boards are subject to the law's requirements, according to case law cited in the State Attorney General's open

Monday's sunshine law session will be conducted by City Attorney William Colbert at city hall, during a regularly scheduled 4:30 p.m. commission work session. Although work sessions are usually held in a second floor conference room, attendance at Monday's session could warrant its being moved downstairs to the larger city commission chambers, Mayor Bettye Smith

Mayor Smith called for city counsel to oners of the law requirements after Commissioners Dave Farr and Bob Thomas said they had an April 29 phone conversation about a then-upcoming commission agenda item.

Farr suggested inviting all city representatives to the session during Tuesday night's city commission meeting. He said news of the session had resulted in his receiving queries from citizen board members regarding the law and its requirments. Commissioners unanimously endorsed Farr's suggestion.

Colbert said his discussion on Monday will address the sunshine law's requirements. Colbert also said he will have booklets containing this information and make them available as reference guides for commissioners and board members.

Farr has endorsed Monday's sunshine law session, while Thomas has declined comment. Farr has said the phone call was an inadvertent violation of the law, although Thomas contends there was no violation at all.

Mayor Smith said Monday's session will serve as a refresher course for commissioners and hopefully avert subsequent incidents where adherance to the law is questioned.

Following the sunshine law session. an update of the city's road repair program will be given by City Engineering and Planning Director Bill Simmons.

Sanford has approximately $399,000 in local option gas tax accruals to rehabilitate its roadways and is working up bid specifications for the projects. Simmons said.

The road funds were received prior to last November, when a distribution formula dispute between Seminole County and its eitles prompted the state to hold the gas tax accruals in escrow until the matter is settled.

The city plans to repair and repave until its in hand money runs out and agreed upon. Simmons said.

After telephone negotiations with lawmen, the gunman gave up and was taken into custody at 2:46 p.m.

Charges are pending against Ronnte L. Carter, 35, of Orlando who was taken to Florida Hospital-Altamonie for observation under the Baker Act. Altamonte Springs Information Officer Jim Viner said.

Carter, a crane operator, was upset because he was fired from his job with the Danis/Shook Construction Co. of Orlando on a project at the city's Keller Road Regional Waste Water Treatment Plant at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Viner said, and returned to the job site at 11:45 a.m. armed with a shotgun, an ammnunition belt across his chest and wearing camouflage clothing.

The gunman entered the firm's construction traffer where there were seven employees. Three escaped and he took four others hostage. They were released a short time later unharmed.

Altamonte Springs Police responded to a disturbance call at 12:03 p.m. The gumman fired a shot into the air, but no one was injured. The Seminole County Sheriff's SWAT team was called to the scene to assist Altamonte Springs police in resolving the situation.

Negotiations were conducted with Carter over the telephone by Lt. Ed Overman of the Altamonte Police Department and Deputy Jan Kloth of the Sheriff's Department, according to Viner.

He quoted Carver as saying, "I don't want to kill anyone. I am a Vietnam veteran and I have killed enough people. I just want my job back." When Carter surrendered police recovered a shotgun and 22 shotgun shells, Viner said.

The Baker Act is a state statute which allows a law officer to involuntarily commit to a hospital for a limited time a person who the officer believes may hurt himself or others.

NATION IN BRIEF

Fatal Tour Bus Driver Had 4 Speeding Tickets in 3 Years

BRIDGEPORT, Calif. (UPI) - Police say speed was the reason a bus full of elderly passengers, and driven by a man with a reported poor safety record, hurtled off a mountain highway into an ley white-water river, killing at least 18 people and leaving one missing.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported that state Department of Motor Vehicles records show bus driver Ernet AA Klimeck has been convicted of speeding four times in the last three years.

Klimeck, 48, was also convicted last year of driving with a suspended license, the Chronicle.

The bus, returning to Southern California from a gambling outing in Reno. Nev., left skidmarks on a curve before it plunged 30 feet down an embankment into the runoff-swollen Walker River northeast of Yosemite National Park about 10:25 a.m. Friday.

"It looked like a battlefield," said Irv Pigovat, of Redding. a witness. "The bodies were entangled. There was a lot of blood and a lot of people in pain."

41 Indicted in Alleged Drug Ring

ATLANTA (UPI) - A cocaine smuggling operation that was doing a $1 billion business was uncovered by federal drug agents who announced Friday the indictments of 41 people, including three alleged "kingpins."

Officials of the federal drug force said the "Operation Quartermaster" probe operated for nine months in 12 states and involved federal, state and local authorities. The indictments were unscaled in U.S. District Court.

U.S. Attorney Stephen S. Cowen said 30 of the defendants, including three from Georgia, either were arrested or surrendered to authorities Thursday night, most of them in the Miami area.

The cocaine, confiscated during the operation, had a wholesale value of $150 million and a street value of $1 billion, said Cowen.

Postal Vice Chairman Pleas Guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Postal Service vice chairman Peter Voss has pleaded guilty to taking payoffs and cheating on his expenses, and lawmakers say they want to reorganize the largest U.S. agency.

Lake Mary Commission-Builders Row Over Impact Fees Will Have To Wait

By Paul Schaefer Herald Staff Writer

Thursday night's showdown between builders and Lake Mary's city commission was postponed. City Attorney Robert Petree was able to produce a draft of a proposed impact fee-building moratorium ordinance. but a final draft to be considered by the commission is not complete.

The special called meeting set for Lake Mary City Hall will be rescheduled. The new date will be set during the June 5 city commission regular meeting.

At issue are impact fees the city wants to collect from developers in the city. The commission passed an impact fee resolution recently, but the Home Builders of Mid-Florida protested the legislation, and demanded the repeal of the resolution.

Petree, who advised the commission the resolution was on shaky legal ground when it was adopted, told the commission May 15 that the resolution was not defendable incourt. He suggested an oridinance be developed.

Commissioners were irked by a letter from HBA President Ken Levitt, which demanded the repeal of the resolution, and decided to develop an ordinance creating a building moratorium in the city until impact fees could be adopted by ordinance, backed by studies on the actual costs of new develop-

Exempt from the moratorium will be those developers who voluntarily pay interim impact fees. When the ordinance is adopted, any overpayment will be refunded. and any underpayment will be collected. The voluntary contribution will be held in an escrow account.

"We needed to get Lake Mary's attention." Cheryl Lynch. HBA's Governmental Affairs director said of Levitt's letter. "They (the city commissioners) were going down a very dangerous path. It is illegal to adopt impact fees through a resolution." she said.

In a May 22 memo to commissioners. Petree said that while he was not aware of any other municipality that had an impact fee-building moratorium ordinance, he wrote, "the reason and logic certainly exists to support its validity." His memo says he has had lengthy conversations with an HBA attorney, and pointed out that the ordinance to be considered should be regarded as a com-"I asked him to consider the effect of delay on construction and development which could be occasioned by protracted litiga-regardless of the logic I have expressed." Petree warned.

The building moritorium will last six months if the ordinance is adopted. We feel a moratorium would not only hurt builders, but the Lake Mary economy." Ms. Lynch said.

She said the moratorium/voluntary impact fee ordinance drafted by Petree will be considered by the HBA.

'We haven't made a decision as to whether that compromise is acceptable, but it is an idea many of our builders will consider. She said as of Friday. HBA attorney John Howell. Orlando. had not seen Petree's memo or ordinance draft.

Lake Mary City Manager Kathy Rice said the material is "public record" and available

"We don't want to see growth or building stop." Ms Lynch continued. "Our builders are concerned about what happens in the community. We don't want to see inadequate services. But we want to make sure impact fees are fair, equitable, and based on good solid data.

Lake Mary continues to research fee information. A growth fee committee is a continuing study, and a consultant will be hired to aid in the fee research.

"Make it fair, that's all we're asking," Ms. Lynch said.

Secret U.N. File Shows Waldheim Considered For War Crimes Trial

NEW YORK (UPI) - A secret file shows an independent U.N. agency decided there was enough evidence 38 years ago to put Kurt Waldheim on trial for Nazi war crimes, the World Jewish Congress revealed.

Waldheim's name also appeared on a 1948 U.S. Army wanted list of suspected war criminals based on the U.N. recommendation, the Congress said.

The secret file said the U.N. War Crimes Commission considered there to be "sufficient evidence to justify" prosecuting Waldheim, former U.N. secretary-general, as a war criminal at the end of World War II. The charges listed against him were "murder" and "putting hostages to death," the file said. The U.N. commission assigned Waldheim its highest classification. terming him one of "those war criminals the committee believed should be delivered up for trial."

KOUROU, French Guiana (UPI) — A European Arlane rocket and its $55 million satellite payload were blown up by mission control 50 miles above the Earth because the rocket's third stage failed to fire, sending another shock wave through the commercial rocket industry.

The failure Friday night, minutes after blastoff, dealt a blow to the West's last major satellite launcher and came after three dramatic American failures this year, including the loss of the space shuttle Challenger Jan. 28 that killed seven people.

The Ariane rocket is the shuttle's major competition in the West, and a European space agency spokesman sald the program's next launch may be grounded during an investigation to find out what went wrong.

That would leave the Soviet Union as the only nation with rockets carrying heavy payloads to orbit.

Concert For Chernobyl Victims

MOSCOW (UPI) - More than 25,000 people, ranging from well-dressed middle aged bureaucrats to tecnagers in tattered jeans, packed a Moscow stadium for a Soviet style rock-n-roll fund raiser for the victims of the Chernobyl nuclear accident

Organizers said they hoped Friday's concert would raise nearly $1.4 million dollars.

"Today's concert is unusual; money is money but we are here to give you our hearts." said Alla Pugachova, the flashy veteran singer who emceed the benefit. "This is for (government) account No. 904, remember that number 904. All the people from Chernobyl will benefit from this

The Communist Party Central Committee gave approval for the concert, which was Pugochova's brain-child, Troitsky said.

Homestead Exemption Reform Gets Preliminary Approval

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - The House gave preliminary approval Friday to a bill revising the homestead tax exemption, despite charges it would mean higher taxes for

The homestead exemption currently allows homeowners to dismiss the first $25,000 of their home's worth when figuring property taxes. Critics charge that leaves many people off the tax rolls entirely, particularly in smaller. rural counties. That, they say, forces owners of large homes to carry more than their share of the tax burden and leaves the county hurting for money.

The bill (HJR 1305) would place a revised exemption on the November ballot for voter acceptance. If voters approved, the exemption would apply to the first $5,000 of a home's worth, then to one-half the remaining value up to a total exemption of $25,000. Owners of homes worth $45,000 or more would see no change in their tax bill, but homes worth from $5,000 to $45,000 would require higher

Legislators Quibble Over Taxes

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - House and Senate budget negotiators planned to begin work again this morning after a Friday evening session ended in a deadlock over which taxes the Legisature should increase and by how much.

The grappling in House Speaker James Harold Thomson's office followed a signifigant concession by the Senate, which agreed earlier in the day to increase Florida's eigarette tax by 5 cents to raise more than $65

Senate conferees were told to do their best to reserve one cent of the increase — or $14.5 million — for the poor, who have been given short shrift in budget plans that target education and criminal justice.

The budget draft the House was working from would set state spending at $16.3 billion next year. The Senate draft was $100 million less.

The differences add up to big money but taxpayers could be forgiven for not noticing. For example, the House would require local governments to raise their property taxes by .2 mill to improve public schools - an increase of $27 million statewide that translates into $5 per year for the owner of a $50,000 home.

Homes Get SHIP Shape Up

TAMPA (UPI) - Elderly residents in 16 houses in Tampa received a gift of love Saturday - their homes were repaired and painted by about 250 volunteers from MacDill Air Force Base

The residents were threatened with eviction from their homes if they were brought up to city standards.

The homes were selected from Tampa's Senior Home Improvement Program (SHIP) at the request Master Sergeant Gerald Hansen and Col. Robert Bell, leaders of the volunteer effort.

Hansen, who is commandant of the Noncommissioned Officers Professional Military Center at MacDill, and Bell. who is commander of the 56th Civil Engineering Squardon, are members of the Employers Volunteer Council, which helps identify needs and helps employers improve their volunteer programs.

"Hillsborough County has about 150 houses that have been cited by city of Tampa officials as having to be fixed up or moved out of," Hansen said.

Most of those homes are owned by elderly people who aren't able to fix them up themselves and can't afford to pay for it either." Hansen said. "SHIP gave us the first 16 houses on the top of their list.

Coalition Plan For Teachers

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Bringing quality teachers into Florida schools requires better pay and an opportunity for advancement, a coalition of businessmen, teachers and administrators said.

The Teacher Compensation Working Group unveiled a plan Friday calling for $90 million next year and $330 million a year in five years to fund the program.

The plan calls for teachers to start out at an "intern" level and progress to a "teacher." "professional teacher" and "senior professional teacher." It calls for incentive pay, tests and performance evaluations by peers and administrators.

The plan also calls for pay to reflect other local occupations requiring similar ability and preparation and suggests allowing teachers to work all year in enrichment and remedial programs.

Floridian Sentenced For Fraud

TAMPA (UPI) - Thomas A. Belt. 43. of Indian Rocks Beach, has been sentenced to four years in federal prison for wire fraud in connection with a bribe scheme carried out while he was working on a Saudia Arabian petrochemical plant project.

Mrs. Merthie said the sign out sheet was started after hearing of so many children being abducted.

Her love for children is the reason she directs Merthie's Day Care Center, which houses more than 90 children. The center is located on Persimmon Avenue between 16th and 18th streets in the Goldsboro section of Sanford. The center has not always had so many children nor has her six-classroom building always had room for children as young as six weeks.

The playground behind the building has swings, ponies. sliding boards, seesaws and other fun activities for the children. Many years ago, she had no playground.

She said she's thankful for the growth, but even when she did not have much, she and those around her were still thankful.

Mrs. Merthie charged 35 cents a week for the children. After a period of three years, she started having programs which demonstrated to the parents what abilities the children had. Also the programs helped to finance the cost of materials needed to teach the children.

Soon the kitchen grew too small for all of her pupils. She and her husband purchased an old garage next to their home. The wooden frame garage is now attached to her present building. It stands as a legacy for those who have entered its doors.

Rogers's building has stirred controversy since the moment its design was unveiled.

Its upended rectangle shape is complicated outside by six satellite towers. Inside, where an ordinary building has a central core holding elevators and services, it has a vast void.

'As architecture, the new Lloyd's is really rather crude. wrote architectural critic Gavin Stamp, "The spaces are simplistic, the detail repetitive and boring." Other critics have been more savage, though Colin Amery said the interior is "remarkable and in its way beautiful."

"Mind you, they said the same rude things about this building." said a Lloyd's doorman in the 1958 headquarters.

Lloyd's begins moving in this spring. The public gallery will be open after a grand opening planned for autumn.

Visitors will learn about new building's gee-whiz technology, but they won't sample the upper-floor views — and they won't see the surprises.

One of these is a wood-paneled library with an elaborate plaster apse, preserved from the 1928 building and now rebuilt in a basement. The biggest surprise is on the 12th and 13th floors.

"It's about 200 years old, this room," the Lloyd's official said inside a cool confection of ornate sculpted plaster.

This is a country house room designed by the great classic architect Robert Adam. It has no windows, thus ignoring one of London's finest views. It's encased within a mock stone temple stranded inside Rogers's steel and glass.

Here, rather than in the high-tech wizardry below, is where the committee which runs Lloyd's will meet.

New York Public Library Celebrates 75th Birthday

By Joan Hanauer UPI Penture Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - On May 22 the marble lions that lie athwart the New York Public Library on Fifth Avenue wore top hats and bow ties to cele-brate the library's 75th birthday. The library, opened by President William Howard Tast on May 23, 1911, on the site of the old Croton Reservoir, today is a mind-boggling collection of 29 million research items repreenting 50 centuries of human thought and experience in 3,000 collection for almost everyone. anguages and dialects in 88 miles of book stacks and marble alleries.

The Edna Barnes Salomon Room, a stately gallery that has been restored at a cost of $3.6 million, will have on permanent view the library's American and European paintings and sculpture collection that includes more than 50 works by John Singleton Copley, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Samuel F.B. Morse, Gilbert Stuart, Jean Antoine Houdon and others.

Rare and unique library materials, such as the Gutenberg Bible, Mercator maps and Audubon prints, will be displayed on a rotating basis. The room opened May 23 with the presentation of 50 lavishly decorated Indian scrolls and manuscripts from the library's Spencer Collection.

Teacher Contract Talks To Begin

Contract talks between the School Board of Seminole County and the Seminole Education Association (SEA) for the 1986-87 school year are scheduled to begin at 4:30 p.m. Monday at Lake Mary High School.

According to Marshall Ogletree, SEA Executive Director, initial salary proposals and a Summer In-Service Institute proposals will be presented by his group, representing the teachers. Other Items to be discussed during this summer's negotiations, according to Ogletree, are fringe benefits and other compensation issues. Ogletree said the SEA has "had problems" with the summer in service program for three years. He said the two week programs are set up for an eight hour per day schedule, but only six hours and fifteen minutes are required.

There also are uncompleted plans for a restaurant facility. Biederman leans toward a light, airy steel and glass construction $12 million worth of books for that could feed a thousand people on a good day, 500 to 750

Vartan Gregorian, president of the New York Public Library for the past five years, was looking ahead, not backward, as he discussed the library.

"Our operating budget for the coming year will be $105 million," he said, "compared to $50 million in 1981. In 1981 we had an endowment of $84 million. That is now $145 million. We have increased library hours by 50 percent in the branches, have 111 construction projects under way and in the last year bought behind in the video age. "The library is now loaning videos," Gregorian said, "in young adult areas, mostly classics."

Gregorian pointed out that more books are being published than ever before - 800,000 titles around the world each year, as well as 12,000 journals in the United States alone.

"The main thing is not whether or not people are reading." he said. "It's what they are reading - that's the issue."

Early Release Of All-Staters Was III-Fated

The all-state baseball teams for Florida's four classes were released earlier this week. If you missed them, don't feel naked, so did I. It was done under a cloak of secrecy which would have done J. Edgar Hoover proud.

Originally slated for a Saturday. May 31 disclosure, according to an Orlando Sentinel staffer, the team was mistakenly included in the Sentinel's scoreboard page this past Mon-

Under the heading of Baseball, the first and second teams were listed for Classes 4A, 3A, 2A and 1A. It followed the Division III college baseball results and the Junior College World Series. Only a meticulous reader of Section D. Page 6 of the May 26 edition would have noticed. No doubt some readers had to be alerted to the happening, and then reread to find the teams.

That's the way it happened to me. I was going about my duties Friday when Ron "Lefty" Renaud happened on the seene and asked me, "Wasn't that great about all the Seminole County kids making the all-state baseball team?

The first reaction was shock. The second was dismay. The third was embarrassment. The fourth was anger

Communication among newspapers is never a strong point. Nevertheless, I was surprised that I hadn't been given a clue that the all-state teams were being released and when. I immediately called Steve Doyle, sports editor of the Sentinel, who also serves as the head of the Florida Sports Writers Association It is his job to oversee the release of all-state. teams for Florida.

"It was unauthorized," he said Friday afternoon, "All I can do is apologize for any inconvenience. I was surprised as anyone when it ran Monday."

This was the second all-state team which ran before its time. The girls' all-state was released ın similar manner. Lake Brantley's Tracy Brandenburg. one of the best shortstops in the state, was named as a secondteam pitcher. It was later corrected to second team shortstop.

Doyle said the boys' teams were put together by "some guy named Pedro in Hollywood." He said Pedro's selection of the team was authorized by Fred Cooper, an Evening Herald copy editor, who is the secretary of the Florida Sports Writers Association. Doyle said in the tuture, the release of the teams will be better handled.

The boys team was well researched and offered a nice flavor of the state's different sections with an accent of teams which played in the state tournament. Which, of course, is only just since the best players. and the best teams get to the state tournament.

The handling of its release. however, was ill-lated. Apparently, it was released through the Associated Press only. The Herald is not a subscriber of the AP, but of United Press International.

Regardless, the team was never made available to the Evening Herald, which was too had - especially this year when Seminole County was so well represented.

In the Class 4A. Lake Mary's Mike Schmit (pitcher) and Shane Letterio (shortstop) were firstteam selections. Lake Brantley's Mike Beams (outfield) was also a first-team selection. Lake Mary's Mike Pinckes (third base) was a second-team pick as was Lake Brantley's Mark Coffey (first base). All are seniors except junior Letterio.

In the Class 3A. Oviedo's Mark Merchant (outfield) was a firstteam selection and teammate Frank Torres (outfield) was a second-team pick. Merchant is a puntor and Torres is a senior.

It's just a shame that the day-to-day progression was followed, yet, when it came time to recognize these young menwith their season's ultimate award, the Herald was unable to do so. For that, Lapologize.

Well, as they say, that's

Lyman Defense Excels In Tie

By Mark Blythe Special to the Herald

LAKE MARY - The Lyman Greyhounds and the Haines City Hornets battled to a scoreless tie in one half of aggressive defensive tootball Friday night at the Lake Mary High School Spring Football Jamborce. No tiebreaker was played to determine a winner.

The defense played exceptionally well tonight," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "We made some mistakes on offense while we were driving and that prevented us to score any points.

An interception and a fumble stalled two of those Lyman drives.

John Burton and Darren Boyesen. who are in a heated battle for the No. l position at quarterback, both turned in shaky performances. Both, however, said they are physically ready to play, but a few mental errors marred their performances.

One Greyhound who was on track was tailback Robert Thomas, who picked up 50 yards in the half to lead all runners. Thomas, who gained 960 vards last year, managed to pick his way through the middle in the first quarter, once breaking three tackles to pick up 20 of those yards. Lyman looked as though it had found a weakness in the Haines City defense as on its next drive as Boyeson handed off to Thomas who took off on a 20-yard jaunt to the Haines City 40. On the next play, though. Boyesen lost the snap but was able to cover it in time for just a one yard loss. Boyesen was then eaught in the backfield for a three yard loss. An incomplete pass left Lyman in a punting situation, stalling their drive. Haines City then put a long drive together starting with just 3:45 to play. Quarterback Mike Whittingham picked up nine but an illegal motion call put the Hornets back on their own 26. Cox then broke two tackles and put a spin move on to pick up 20 to put the Hornets within striking distance near midfield.

Whittingham then applied some more pressure as he picked up 19 more yards on the next play to the Lyman 35. Cox then banged straight ahead for one. Two incomplete passes then took the steam out of the Hornets and forced them to pass once again and Radelill picked it off and give Lyman one last shot.

With 33 seconds the Hounds marched to the Haines City 35 with the help of a penalty and two pass completions by Burton.

Freshman Greg Fulsang attempted a 52-yard field but it fell considerably

Nouskhajian was the defensive star, adding four solo tackles along with his two sacks. "I got beat a couple of times tonight on the outside," he said. "But I knew when they set up in their 'Power-I' that they were coming at me and most of the time I had a couple of blockers that I couldn't get through to make the play."

Burton and Boyeson, who played baseball together, said they enjoy a friendly rivairy for the No. quarterbacking position.

Lake Mary Smothers Pats, 20-0 By Scott Sander Herald Sports Writer LAKE MARY - If a spring football game is any indication of what can be expected in the fall, the Lake Mary Rams will be a very good football team when the 1986 campaign rolls around in Scotember.

Coach Harry Nelson's Rams dominated the Lake Brantley Patriots in every phase Friday night while posting a 20-0 victory in one half of prep lootball at the Lake Mary High School Spring Football Jamborce before 2.000 fans. In the first half Haines City and Lyman played to a scoreless

"We were very crisp tonight," Nelson said after the game. "This is a nice feeling for the moment, but it really doesn't mean that much."

Ducces were running wild for the Rams as they engineered two 76-yard scoring drives. Lake Mary intercepted two passes, and detensive end Scott Keller registered a pair of sacks.

Lake Mary chalked up 166 yards rushing with a very balanced attack. Sophomore John Curry led all rushers with 64 yards including a 9-yard touchdown run. Anthony Hartsfield ran for 41 yards, including a 19 yard TD jaunt, Dennis Barnes added 37 yards with a 3-yard TD plunge. QB Shane Letterio engineered the almost flawless

The Pats, on the other hand, were simply outmanned at the line of scrimmage and could manage but 36 total yards. Brantley tallback Johnny Griffin rushed for 56 yards on 11 carries but quarterback Jason Lanham was sacked twice for 20 yards, cutting the total yardage to 36.

The Rams didn't waste ant time in the contest as they took the kickoff and swiftly marched 76 yards in 14 plays. They also chewed up 6:30 from the clock. After Curry gained 17 yards on three carries and Hartsfield added 11 yards on three tries, quarterback Letterio threw his only pass of the game - a 13-yard strike to fullback Tom Kothera giving the Rams a first down at the Brantley 31 yard line.

Letterio then scrambled eight yards to the 23. Curry then picked up six and Hartsfield three. Curry moved the ball to the 9 on a 3-yard run and tollowed with a 9-yard run behing a super block by offensive tackle Todd Wright. Mike Renaud added the PAT to give the Rams a 7.0 buildge with 5:30 to play in the first quarter.

The Patriots' rebounded with their only legitimate drive of the jamboree. Jeff Bynum returned the kickoff 23 yards to the Brantley 35. After an offsides against the Rams. Giants' Fielding Fiasco Hands Mets 8-7 Victory

United Press International

Rob Thompson was ready to be a hero, but wound up part of a two-headed goat. San Francisco's rookie second baseman, whose 10th-inning home run Friday night had given the Giants a one-run lead, became part of an embarrassing fielding flasco in the bottom of the inning that enabled the host Mets to pull out an

8.7 victory. Rafael Santana's two-out pop up in the bottom of the 10th fell between colliding second baseman Thompson and shortstop Jose Uribe, allowing Kevin Mitchell to score from second base with the

Keith Hernandez led off with a single off Greg Minton and, one out later, Mark Davis, 1-3, relieved and yielded a single to Mitchell, who was hitting for Darryl Strawberry. Juan Berenguer replaced Davis and unleashed a wild pitch, putting runners on second and third. He then walked Howard Johnson to load the bases. Ray Knight's sacrifice fly to left scored Hernandez with the tying run. Santana then hit a routine pop up on the second base side of the infield and the ball dropped in as Thompson and Uribe collided on what clearly was Thompson's play. Uribe was given an error. "I don't want to talk about it. I'm not going to talk about it," said Thompson, whose second homer of the year leading off the top of the 10th gave San Francisco a short-lived 7-6 advantage. "The only thing I'll say is I was yelling 'I have

San Francisco's Jeff Leonard tried to ease the pain of the blunder. "The dropped pop-up is part of baseball. Leave the guys alone," Leonard said loudly to a group of reporters. "They're not gonna talk about it. The Mets almost messed up in the outfield the inning before when Lenny Dykstra and Mookie Wilson bumped." Mitchell was elated at his role in the winning rally. "That was exciting," said Mitchell, who unexpectedly was called up to hit for Strawberry. It was the first time Strawberry had ever been pinch-hit for in his four major league seasons. Strawberry had returned to action Friday night after spraining his left thumb. He apparently

"I got the hit when we needed it, hitting for the Straw Man." Mitchell said. "And then scored the winning run on a break. We'll take it.' Jesse Orosco improved to 2-2, despite yielding

Rushing's HR Helps San Jacinto Throttle Brevard For JUCO Title

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (UPI) — Designated hitter Mike Rushing blasted a three-run homer in the eighth inning Friday to give San Jacinto its second straight National Junior College World Series title with an 11-4 victory over Brevard.

Toby Nivens went the distance for San Jacinto, striking out 11, walking four and allowing only three earned runs. The Houston school bombed six Brevard pitchers for seven

The Brevard bullpen also gave up 12 walks, hit the batter once and had three wild pitches.

San Jacinto opened the scoring with four runs in the second inning, three of them on a bases-loaded triple by center flelder Ken Griffin.

Brevard, of Melbourne, Fla., narrowed the deficit to 4-2 in the sixth on run-scoring hits by Mike Robinson and Billy

San Jacinto put the game away with five runs in the seventh, starting with a run-scoring single by Joe Don Bourque. A second run scored when the Brevard center fielder missed a ball before Rushing unleashed his three-run homer into the parking lot.

Mike Robinson had a two-run homer for Brevard in the eighth. But San Jacinto added insult to injury in the bottom of the inning, scoring two runs on three walks, one hit and three stolen bases.

Holmes: Overturn Or Face Suit

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) - Former heavyweight champion Larry Holmes Friday asked the International Boxing Federation to overturn his April 19 loss to Michael Spinks and threatened to sue the organization if it refused to do so.

"What they have to do is tell Michael they made a mistake, and then apologize to me for making a mistake and give me my title back." Holmes said. "I know they're not going to do it. But that will lead to Bugation and that's what it's all about."

Holmes said he would sue for "hundreds of millions of dollars, if I have to," to make up for lost income that comes with the title.

Spinks, who originally won the IBF title with a decision over the previously undefeated Holmes on Sept. 21, 1985, retained it with last month's controversial decision in Las Vegas, Nev.

Holmes said he received a letter two weeks ago from an IBF attorney who said the IBF would sue Holmes if he didn't apologize for remarks he made after the decision.

"I'm not thinking about apologizing to anyone, anymore," Holmes said.

Cherry Bowl Will Pay Teams

United Press International

The Cherry Bowl, threatened with loss of its NCAA certification, will pay Syracuse University and the University of Maryland $400,000 each for their Dec. 21 football game, bowl officials said Friday.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association postseason football committee gave tournament organizers until June 30 to pay the two teams after organizers of the Pontiac. Mich., game falled to pay the schools by an April 1

David M. Amon. board chairman of Cherry Bowl Inc. of Lansing. Mich., said the tournament will pay the schools.

"We are in the process of meeting our financial obligations to Maryland and Syracuse as directed by the NCAA." he said in a statement released Friday. "We have assured both schools that the payoff will be made."

If the Cherry Bowl does not make the payments, it would be out of business and could face lawsuits by the two

Record Purse For Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) - Drivers in the 28th running of the Pepsi Firecracker 400 next month at Daytona International Speedway will be vying for a share of a record purse of more than $500,000, it was announced Friday.

The July 4 race, which opens up the second half of the NASCAR season, will become the richest 400-mile race in NASCAR history. The $501,195 purse is more than $70,000 richer than last year, when Greg Sacks won the Firecracker after leader Bill Elliott stopped for gas with less than 10 laps remaining.

Sacks won $43,350 last year. "The Pepsi Firecracker 400 is the largest sports celebration of America's birthday and it's only fitting that these fine athletes race for a record purse on the Fourth of July." said Daytona General Manager John Riddle. Practice for the Firecracker begins July 1, with pole qualifying July 2 and final qualifying July 3. The race begins at 10 a.m. July 4.

Grand Prix Cuts Route In Half

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Grand Prix will be half as long in 1987.

Promoter Ralph Sanchez said Wednesday he has decided to do away with this year's two weekend format that brought extra dollars to area businesses but brought overwork and exhaustion to workers.

"I decided it was really not worth it to do it again," Sanchez said.

This year's International Motor Sports Association race, the fourth such event, featured qualifying for the top 10 starting positions the first weekend, with final qualifying the next Saturday and the three-hour race run Sunday.

Bob Wollek and Paolo Barilla in a Porsche 962 won this year's event, with Danny Sullivan and A.J. Foyt finishing

Miami Okays Arena Money

MIAMI (UPI) - Miami's progress toward building an arena that it hopes will house a National Basketball Association expansion franchise team someday hardly resembled a Los Angeles Laker fast break.

Instead, the process looked more like the four-corners offense used by North Carolina in the days before the 45-second shot clock - slow, deliberate, and often times frustrating for spectators. But like Tar Heels' coach Dean Smith's four-corners offense, Miami's slow road was also a successful one.

The City Commission voted 3-1 Thursday to approve a plan to build a $50 million. 16,000-seat arena in the Overtown section of downtown.

Dolphins Sign Tight End

MIAMI (UPI) - The Miami Dolphins signed free agent tight end Rich Bodmer to a contract Friday. Terms of the deal were not announced.

Bodmer, a 6-foot-4, 238-pounder, played two years at Rutgers before transferring to Delaware. He spent the past season playing semi-pro ball in New Jersey.

The Westfield, N.J., native has no NFL experience and was not chosen in the 1985 draft.

Bowlers Crank Up For Monday

Special to the Herald Bowl America Sanford has very few scores to report this having their banquets and pay-offs.

BAS would like to report all the 280s and 290s and 300s but since they were the 3-6-9 no-tap games that were bowled at the banquets, the scores would look a "little" inflated. It sure is fun to see those high scores up on the tele-score, though.

Rockets Must Solve Riddle Of Rotating 'D'

HOUSTON (UPI) - Defense makes few NBA highlight films. What it does make are NBA champions, as the Boston Celtics realize.

In Game 1 of the NBA final, Boston made 15 steals from the Rockets. In Game 2, the Celtics limited Houston to 41 percent shooting from the

"Our rotation defense was fabulous," Dennis Johnson said of Boston's work in Game 2, which provided a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series that resumes tomorrow.

With Larry Bird acting as the prime rover on defense, the Celties frequently double-teamed the Twin Towers of Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph

"We have to double up on Akeem and make him give up the ball," Celtics coach K.C. Jones said.

"Defense is where our game starts," said reserve center Bill Walton. "You watch guys like Danny Ainge, Dennis Johnson and Larry, who are darting in and out on every play, trying to get their hands on the ball."

Houston's attempts to double-team Boston's big men have proved fruitless because the Celtics' ball movement involves all five players in the Bird said the 1985-86 Celties are the best passing team of his seven years in the NBA.

"This is definitely the best team I've played on because it seems like everybody is unselfish this year," he said. "This year we're able to move the ball around the perimeter and we have guys who can hit the outside shot."

Boston's offense no longer is limited to the big men inside. Guards Danny Ainge, Dennis Johnson and Jerry Sichting have proven to Houston that they can score on long jumpers.

Houston coach Bill Fitch thinks one victory could turn around the series for his young team. Hoston won Games 1 and 2 by margins of 12 and "If you give us just one win, anything can happen," Fitch said. "With a young team like this, one that's learning and improving every game, one win would be a great thing, but we are playing a great team.

"It's embarrassing to get to the finals and play like this." Fitch said, "But we haven't played a team as good a Boston in getting here." The veteran Celties, playing in their third

Only two teams have railied from 0-2 to win the championship series, the last being the 1977 Portland team led by Walton.

"I feel good about playing at home," said Sampson, who hit just 8-of-27 field-goal attempts in the games at Boston Garden. "We'll be sleeping in our own beds, eating our own food and be playing in our own gym."

Mustangs: 20-0 Crown Sunglasses Confronts Sobik's

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
A couple of teams with a combined record of 37-2 will collide in the Seminole Pony Baseball Mustang Division playoffs.

Powerful Crown Sunglasses, the Mustang Major League champion with a spotless 20-0 record, takes on Minor League champ Sobik's, 17-2, in the best of three playoffs starting Tuesday at 5:15 at the Seminole Pony Baseball complex. The second game will be Thursday with a third game, if necessary, Saturday.

Crown Sunglasses closed out its unbeaten regular season Thursday night with a 9-6 victory over Albertson's. Manager Ron Merrell said the unbeaten season was a bit of a surprise.

"We expected to be good but not to have a perfect season," Merrell said. "Of our 14 players, eight of them are nine year olds and will be returning next year. We could very well be even stronger next year."

Leading the Crown Sunglasses pitching staff is righthander Dana Coates with Randy Meadows and Michael White also strong on the mound. In the hitting department, Meadows, White, Stacey Merrell, Coates, Brian Lowe and Shawn O'Quin are all strong hitters while manager Merrell said the entire lineup hits the ball fairly well.

Defensively, outfielders Tim Harrell, Stewart Robinson and Scott Youngson have played well and often spectacularly. Also contributing to the Crown Sunglasses success story are Brad Butterfield, Adam Glavez, Bo Jackson, Michael Johnson and Ronnie Hurst.

"What kept us going is the kids have fun expected to be played the third week of June.

playing ball together." manager Merrell said. "And they don't let the pressure get to them."

Crown Sunglasses will be the favorite in the Mustang (9-10 year olds) playoffs but Sobik's manager Steve Goodman said his is capable of pulling off the upset.

'We should be able to hit their pitching and we'll give them a shot if our pitchers don't walk too many," Goodman said, "They (Crown Sunglasses) are just like us, very aggressive on the bases. They have a little better arms but most of our kids are nine year olds."

Sobik's actually could have been undefeated this season but lost one game by forfeit and another when Goodman let the players play any position they wanted to. Pitching leaders for Sobik's are righthanders

Shannon Sharp and Chris Kleibl and Rene Perez will also see action on the mound in the playoffs. Leading hitters are Kleibl. Sharp. Perez and Brook Seevers.

Seevers is also a solid shortstop while Chris Snyder is at second and James Guemple at first. The outfielders include Ryan Fuller in left. Robert Powell in center and Ben Driggers in right with the backups being Alan Rosenfeld and Dennis Stone.

After the Mustang playoffs are over at the Seminole Pony complex, the top two teams from Seminole will have a tournament with the top two from the West Seminole Pony Baseball League in Forest City. That tournament is

Pintos: Dan's Restaurant Meets Mario's Marauders

In the Pinto American League, Frank's Frozen Yogurt finished the season with a 17-2-1 record. Frank's only losses were to Dan's Restaurant and Burger's Boys and the tie was against American League runnerup Mario's Marauders.

Frank's Frozen Yogurt manager Mike Black said his ace pitcher has been Tony Morgan who has a 4-0 record with one tie against Mario's. Aaron Black led the offense and also displayed plenty of power with seven home runs. Other leading hitters include Morgan, Eddie Tooke and Shaun St. Dennis while defensive leaders include first baseman-relief pitcher Tooke and second baseman Alan Gehr.

Jackrabbit Red Sox Are Fooling Everybody

NEW YORK (UPI) - Life is full of little surprises.

Like the Boston Red Sox, for example. Less than 30 days ago, they were a team adrift. They were in the middle of the ocean so to speak. floating along without a paddle in fourth place in the AL East. The season wasn't even a month old and they already were four games back.

Not too much of a surprise there. As far as most baseball people were concerned, particularly those outside of New England, the undistinguished April showing by the Red Sox was pretty much a foregone conclusion.

No one had expected a whole lot of the Red Sox. The Blue Jays. Yankees and Tigers were considered far stronger contenders in the division before the season started.

But look at those jackrabbit Red Sox. will you. They're fooling everybody. Last year, they finished fifth, 18-1/2 games behind the first place Blue Jays. So far this year, no other club except the Mets has played better ball and by pooling some fine pitching with some timely if not spectacular hitting, the first-place Red Sox have won nine of their last 10 and opened up a twogame lead over the Yankees.

Now maybe that doesn't qualify as much of a shocker as what the Rangers have done over in the AL West, but it does constitute one of life's little surprises anyway.

Red Sox manager John McNamara explains their success up to now this way:

"Before the season began, I said our division is so evenly balanced that the intangibles will play a dominant part in deciding which team wins and I say the same thing now," McNamara says.

Wait a minute. What "intangibles" is he talking about? We need some kind of definition here.

"I'm talking about injuries to key personnel," McNamara comes back. "How can you forsee them? How can you possibly guard against them? You can't. All you do is try to patch holes the best you can and pray for the McNamara has to be praying extra hard now he doesn't lose the American League's No. 1 candidate for the Cy Young Award, Roger Clemens.

When he was playing high school football. Clemens injured the knuckle of his right index finger when he got it caught in a face mask.

Pitching against the Rangers Sunday. Clemens, who took a no-hitter into the eighth inning before winding up with a two-hitter, twisted that knuckle and it puffed up so much on him that the Red Sox sent him back to Boston from Cleveland Monday to see a doctor about it.

Clemens isn't expected to miss his next pitching turn Friday against the Twins. McNamara hopes his 23-yearold right-hander is OK. He wants to see him add to that 8.0 record of his.

But that swollen knuckle is one of the intangibles McNamara meant.

"No manager ever gets through an entire season without injuries." McNamara says. "I had it with this club last year when Tony Armas missed 59 games with a strained leg muscle.' I had it with the Angels when we lost (Doug) DeCinces with a back problem. We lost (Tim) Foli and (Brian) Downing the same year. Like I say, all you do is try to patch the holes."

McNamara never had anywhere near the kind of year that Jimmy Frey suffered through with the Cubs last season, but he hasn't gotten away scot free either this season.

Shortstop Glenn Hoffman sprained his ankle in spring training and then came up with blurred vision. He's on the 15-day disabled list. So is Wes Gardner, the big right-hander, who came over from the Mets in the Bob Ojeda deal and is being counted on for help in the bullpen later on.

The loss of Al Nipper forced a change in McNamara's starting rotation. Nipper was taking his regular turn with Clemens. Oil Can Boyd and Bruce Hurst until a collision at home plate with Larry Parrish May 18 put him on the 21-day disabled list. The Red Sox are the fifth major league club McNamara has managed. He has handled the A's, Padres, Reds and Angels before this and says the DH makes it easier managing in the American League than in the National.

Johnny Mac, as most everyone calls him, is one of those men in baseball who never is out of a job very long. That's because players never have any problem playing for him.

He knows how it feels being fired and the dismissal he took hardest was the one with the Reds in 1982 after he won more games than any other National League manager from 1979 through 1981. Dick Wagner, now running the Astros, was the head man with the Reds then and he wanted McNamara to play Tom Lawless at second base and move Ron Oester to third.

McNamara couldn't see doing that and got a bit hard-headed about it. "Is this your ball club?" Wagner wanted to know. "No. it's not my ball club, but it's my lineup." McNamara snapped back snd on July 21 of that season it was goodbye John McNamara and hello Russ Nixon. For the record. Lawless is with the Cardinals now and as Tom Herr's backup man, he isn't getting to see a whole lot of action even though Herr isn't having any kind of a year. Lawless has come to bat only three

For the record also, McNamara and Wagner still respect one another and are much friendlier with one another than you'd ever imagine they'd be.

At NCAA Track Meet INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) -

Foreign athletes have stolen the show at the NCAA track and field championships for nearly a

But some leading college coaches believe that this year's 65th NCAA outdoor meet at Indianapolis June 4-7 will show a change in that trend, with Americans regaining a major share of the homors. "The (NCAA) rules against up with us. said Southern Methodist men's coach Ted McLaughlin whose team is favored to take this year's NCAA title. "Those (foreigners) would be the more solid performers in the past. Now that we've got the rule in we're not going to see the 28- and 29-year-olds.

The rule - adopted in 1980 and revised in 1985 — states that once an athlete who has not enrolled at an NCAA school reaches his 20th birthday, he or she cannot engage in competition without losing a year's eligibility. For example, a non-NCAA 20-year-old runner cannot run any road races without losing a year of eligibility when he does enter college. Athletes have five years to use four years of eligibility. Southern Cal women's coach Fred LaPlante said foreign athletes will still leave their mark on the NCAA meet, but not as they have in the past. Last year, 29 foreigners placed among the top six in 19 different men's events, excluding the relays. In 17 women's events. 23 foreigners scored 26 times.

"They'll still be an influence from the foreign athletes, but not as significant as it has been.' LaPlante said.

Coaches also believe the decrease in foreign domination at the NCAAs can be attributed to a more talented, experienced group of young American athletes. "High schools and club proand more quality athletes coming out now than ever before." And those quality athletes are being compared to world class performers.

"We've got a great group of young kids that are of a Carl Lewis-caliber," said Texas men's coach Stan Huntsman, "and over-age foreigners is catching they'll be a big factor at the NCAA meet. As a matter of fact. the NCAAs will probably be determined by them - a big change from previous years." Heading the men's list of promising American athletes and leading contenders for NCAA titles are SMU freshman sprinter Roy Martin. Mississippi State sophomore sprinter Lorenzo Daniel and Texas A&M freshman shot-putter Randy Barnes. All three have registered world bests at one time this scason. Martin ran a wind-aided 9.97 in the 100 meters and a windaided 19.86 in the 200 meters at the Southwest Conference meet two weeks ago. Daniel clocked a 10.12 in the 100 and a 20.11 in the 200 meters at the Southeastern Conference meet. Barnes holds the world's best shot put throw this year with a toss of 71-feet-9 1/2. On the women's side, coaches say Americans should continue to dominate the sprints with runners like Tennessee sophomore hurdler LaVonna Martin. Southern Cal freshman sprinter-hurdler Leslie Maxle and UCLA sprinter Gail Devers who are already at the world class level. The new headways, however, are expected to be made in the field events where athletes like Southern California jumper Wendy Brown and Rice junior shot-putter Regina Cavanaugh are heavy favorites for NCAA crowns. Brown is the leading triple jumper in the United States this year and among the top three in the world with a leap of 43-feet-4 4. Cavanaugh has will both run compete in their heaved the shot put 57-feet-11 34 first NCAA meet. Both are - the best among all women freshmen.

athletes ruling the NCAA meets is coming to an end." However, some foreign athletes like Washington State senior sprinter Gabriel Tiacoh. of the Ivory Coast, and Alabama javelin thrower Iris Gronfeldt, of Iceland, are expected to leave their mark at this year's national meet. Tiacoh has run a 44.32 — the best in the world this year. Gronfeldt is a two-time defending NCAA champion and currently has the second-best throw in the world (190-feet-1/4 inches). Gronfeldt's toughest competition should come from another foreigner. Florida State's Solvi Nybu, of Finland. Nybu has the

'Glass Menagerie'

Collection Of Age-Frosted Bottles Contains Wealth Of History About Owners' Lifestyle

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

George Scott, with the heart of a bloodhound, has the history of Sanford in the age-frosted glass bottles he has tracked down and dug up from old home and business sites as well as those he has pulled out of the St. Johns

The names of Seminole County dairies - Green Valley, Spenser's, Seminole Creamery, Merritt Dairy, have faded from most memories, but live on etched in the glass among the thousands of bottles 63-year-old Scott has unearthed.

The drug store bottles he has salvaged also read like an old-time directory to Sanford. with examples from Roumillat-Anderson, Bower Drug, Co., Phillip's Drug Store and Sanford Drug. Co.

Scott also has old soda bottles that predate Coca Cola's entry in the Sanford market. His "L.F. Holffer" soda bottle, circa 1870, is one that an early Sanfordite sipped ginger ale from.

Another of his soda bottles, one labled "Calhoon" and bearing a harp logo molded into the glass, is perhaps more familiar to locals who have long memories. Scott said.

His bottle collection, of course, isn't limited to Sanford finds. Among the more fascinating of his other discoveries are: a frosty green "cathedral" pickle bottle with a molded design, which makes the 175-year-old bottle appear to be a mini-cathedral with arched windows. That bottle, which is valued at $200, was found in Lake Monroe near Enterprise. Scott said.

Also valued at $200 is a glass-stoppered colbalt blue jug which Scott said is dated 1835, making it one of the earliest examples of colbait glass. It's a treasure he found in an old building. "I don't care to say where," he said.

Scott also has an original "booze" bottle. Although all spirits today may be labeled booze, that wasn't the case when this little cabin-shaped bottle was made in 1860. There was only one booze at that time and it was bottled in glass cabins, with the bottle neck making a chimney, Scott said.

Originally the glass was clear, but exposure of the manganese in the glass to sunlight has turned the glass purple. The depth of the glass is variable, with one corner of the jug being paper thin, while another corner is about half-an-inch thick, he

Most bottle scavengers are secretive about the locations of their finds. Scott said. But waterways, along the shores as well as in the water, are a rich source for these discards of a bygone era.

"All the goods and all the bottles were shipped down the St. Johns River. There weren't any roads. There were no railroads." Scott said. "So consequently, what you find is a result of that and the nasty habit of throwing everything into the water.'

Traveling the river routes

Among George Scott's collection is this frosty green 175-year-old "cathedral" pickle jar valued at $200. Scott found the bottle near Enterprise.

also leads to old homesites, which Scott said can be singled out with a bit of research. "All of the towns were along the river and we find these old townsites and homesites along the river and invariably we find the bottles also."

A homesite can be pinpointed by flowers that were part of a cultivated garden. which although forgotten. live on after the home crumbled. "They come up and bloom and give you a clue, so you go to the city held or the courthouse and find out where these things were. who owned it.

"A lot of times realtors will let you go in on a piece of property, provided you cover up all the holes you dig. That's a must."

Before digging for bottles. Scott sald, you have to determine who owns the site and to get permission to dig.

"I've had a couple of nasty experiences along that line where I went with some other people. You get run off of a piece of property once or twice that's all you need to keep you from going bottle hunting forever." he said.

Scott uses a metal detector to aid in his search for trash piles. When he finds a cache of buried garbage, Scott said. his discovery reveals a lot about the family that lived there.

"You find the liquor bottles that grandpa and dad had. You find the woman's tonic. The woman's Iron for her health. You find the cough syrup for the kids and the was a variety of children in the family because of the different age groups of items that you find. You can tell the history.'

Scott called bottle hunters the amateur archaeologists of the country.

It's a pastime he fell into about 30 years ago when he was gathering American Indian artifacts in Seminole

"I kept finding bottles while I was out digging for artifacts. I'd bring them home and I had a fellow come See BOTTLES, page 2C

Cartoons And Monkeys Reflect Columnist's Sense Of Humor

Dear Abby Marks 30 Years Writing Advice

By Isobel Silden Universal Press Syndicate

George Scott shows Seminole County soda

and drug bottles, front, and milk bottles,

She receives 3,000 letters a day and those with a stamped return envelope are all answered within a 3-week period, thanks to her dedicated staff of six.

She is Dear Abby, who on Jan. 9 celebrated 30 years of writing her pithy, sometimes funny. always provocative six columns a week. She is forthright, honest, humorous, and has a bawdy sense of humor. The walls of her powder room are covered with hilarious blow-ups of cartoons she finds particularly amusing.

She easily admits to being 67 years old and without cosmette surgery, looks about 50. She is tiny, just over five feet tall, and wears a four or six size dress. She is open and friendly, just like her columns. You want her for a friend because she's so interested and interesting.

At the same time, friendly as a puppy though she is, there are areas into which one doesn't venture. It is seldom that she invites journalists and photogragers into her home. Pity: It's a showplace in the Hills of Beverly. The one-story rambling house is at the top of a winding drive, bordered by sterling roses. She knows what they are, although she doesn't garden. It's just a part of her innate curiosity and knowledge. The cathedralcellinged rooms glow: burnished floors, sparkling chandellers, exquisite furniture, priceless artworks and everywhere, monkeys.

Yes, monkeys. They're Abby's favorite thing. They're stuffed, wears a motoreyele helmet, red. with Dear Abby on It. No. she doesn't ride a bike. But you just know if she wanted to, she could.

No butler or maid opens the front door to a visitor. It's Abby herself, resplendent in a pale pink warm-up suit, with pink satin appliques, her white tennies spotless.

"I put them on clean just for you." she laughs. "My sister. Helen, in Omaha, sent me this outfit.'

Yes, there were four Friedman girls growing up in Sloux City, lowa, to Russian immigrants parents. Father Abe owned a string of movie theaters. Abby ean't remember if there were two or three. There is Dorothy, living in Palm Springs, Calif., now, five years older than her twin sisters Abby and Ann Landers, Real names: Abby Is Pauline Esther: Ann is Esther Pauline. Helen, the "personal shopper," is the cldest, and admittedly when the four get together, it's a laugh a minute.

Dorothy's the stand-up comic among us," Abby offers. One long wall in the house is a "picture wall," devoted to family photos. It starts with their parents' wedding, progresses through family gatherings including Abby's two children --Jeannie and Edward, both in their 40s. Jeannie now works with her mother. They saw me married, but they never lived to see their kids become moved from Sloux City to Mincelebrities." Her laughing blue neapolls the day before her 21st eyes are saddened for the moment, "It's the only sorrow of

But how did it all begin? Did the little girls in Sioux City give advice to their friends?

"Only when I was asked. It came naturally to me. But I still don't think of myself as giving advice. I give people my best thinking. I think it's dangerous to make decisions for people.

"As a child, I planned to marry a lovely businessman who would take care of me for the rest of my life. That's the way I was raised. That's what girls did, and fortunately I dld. I do what I enjoy doing, but I don't support myself."

Still, she thinks it must have been predestined, because when she and her young husband birthday, she wrote lengthy letters to her parents every day of her life, detailing everything. When they died, she found the letters neatly tied, chronologi-

So, at the ripe old age of 37. the young matron walked herself into the San Francisco Chronicle offices -- the family had moved west for her husband's business interests. (He was a pioneer in the Presto pressure cooker business, and is now in venture capital.) She told editor Stan Arnold that she could write a better advice column than the one they were running. Probably to get rid of her. Arnold gave her some letters to answer. It was a test. She walked two blocks to her husband's office, and wrote what she now says were

"tongue-in-cheek one-liners." And by the time she got home. there was a message to come in to the Chronicle offices. They told her she was a professional writer - she who'd never written a line in her life, except letters to Mama and Dad. "They told me, 'We like your style.

Man's 'Foolish Fling' Throws His Good Friends For A Loop

DEAR ABBY: Please help my husband and me handle a sensitive problem involving a couple who are our very dear friends. "Tom" and "Mary" have been married about 10 years and have two beatiful children. We noticed in the last four or five months that Tom has been moody and depressed. He and Mary were always so loving to each other; now he hardly looks at her. Others have noticed

We just found out that Tom has been having an affair with a young woman - I'll eall her Doris. She's a minister's wife with small children. Her friends say she has emotional problems and she has had several affairs before this.

I feel we should tell Mary about this affair. Doris has told a few people in town and rumors - married soon and my friends are are spreading. I'd like to spare throwing a bachelor party for Mary the humiliation of hearing it from strangers.

My husband says someone should talk to Tom about Doris' instability, her previous affairs and the gossip around town: then he might come to his senses and realize he's risking his family and career for a foolish fling.

I don't think Mary is aware of Tom's affair, but I know she's been concerned about his depression. I hate to see Tom and Mary split up, but I can't stand to see Mary made a fool of by Tom and his tramp.

What should we, as good friends, do? VERY WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: First, I will tell you what not to do. Don't tell Mary about Tom. and don't tell Tom about Doris. But do urge Tom to see a doctor about his depression. Eventually, this will all come out in the doctor's office, which is the appropriate place for it.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting me. I am told that this party will feature a girl who does a striptease dance. In my book, nudity is somethin between me and my libido (and soon, between me and my wife) and I would feel very self-conscious gawking at somebody's daughter dancing for my pleasure.

First, I don't want it. Second, it would be embarrassing for me. I know a lot of guys like this sort of thing, but I am not one of them.

I don't know what to do. Meanwhile I am ...

NERVOUS IN THE NORTHEAST

DEAR NERVOUS: Tell your friends what you have told me. It's as simple as that. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Why is loud better? My husband and I are often invited places where music is played either by a live band or a disc jockey. Invariably the music is so loud that converstaion is impossible unless we shout at each other! We find ourselves having to repeat everything we say in order to com-

Whatever happened to soft background music, or occasionally no music at all?

B.Z. IN TARZANA, CALIF. DEAR E.Z.: I don't know what happened to soft background music, but I wish it would be brought back. We are raising a generation of young people who are destined to suffer a serious hearing loss — the fallout from turning up the volume at decibels that actually damage the eardrum.

A career was born. So was a lifestyle. First she needed a name. Abigail came from the Old Testament Book of Samuel. Abby quotes the verse verbatim. Her religious background is impressive: Hebrew school as a youngster, four years studying the life of Christ and Morningside College. Abigail stood for the virtues she wanted. A presidential buff, she selected our eighth president's name because it sings, as she says. And shortening the first name to Abby made it sound more affectionate, she felt. She was right.

Today, as noted, the mail is unceasing. Sometimes when particularly sensitive subjects are being dealt with, there are 20,000 letters a week. Retired postal employees work the mailroom in Abby's offices, opening and sorting according to categories.

Those seeking legal or medical advice are separated from those dealing with relationships. The letter-answerers are all personally trained by Abby and now her daughter. Jeannie, who, divorced from an attorney and world-traveled, has worked with "Mama," as she calls her, for six years. If ever one of the answers is in doubt about how Abby would reply, they are instructed to discuss it with her. And they don't always agree. Abby's the boss; her answer goes into the mail

All letters accompanied by self-addressed, stamped envelopes are answered. Too many come with neither envelopes, names, addresses nor phone numbers. Those that require urgent replies make it into the column. Often, abby picks up a phone and calls the writer. She is still in touch with a woman in Boise, Idaho, whose life she helped rebuild via calls and letters.

Oh, yes. Abby writes letters as well as receives them! This day she has a long handwritten letter from sister Ann. "She writes on vellow paper; I write on pink." Abby observes. She has also received a letter from pal Erma Bombeck in the same mail. And during the course of this Interview, sister Ann called from her Chicago office because sister Dorothy didn't answer her phone in Palm Springs.

"Ann asked, 'Are you keeping anything from me?"

Back to her daily routine: She's up at 6 a.m., breakfasts andreads both Los Angeles daily newspapers, plus The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal. She makes phone calls. workes on the column and breaks at noon for lunch on a tray. Then the real Abby breaks

She puts on a headset radio and turns on rock music. "Then I rock around the house for 30 minutes. Wonderful exercise." She isn't kidding. She really does it. Daughter Jeannie confirms it. She doesn't play tennis, she doesn't walk around the neighborhood. Sometimes she swims in their big pool, but mostly she keeps that slim figure dancing. Maybe the housekeeper thought her employer a bit daft at the start. "But she's used to it now. Abby says com-

She rarely lunches out — only on very special occasions. Evenings are spent at home with her husband, to whom she turns when SHE has a problem. They have an active social life, duly chronicled in the Los Angeles Times. She is a celebrity who seemingly is unaware of her status. Of course, she's recognized when she goes into a store or restaurant. And naturally she's mobbed on the rare occasions when she makes speaking appearances.

Someone always comes up with a letter I've written them perhaps seven years before," she says, pleased with the senti-

Abby tries to keep personal meetings to a minimum. Not because she if unfriendly -- far from it. Fans want to hug her, to treat her like an aunt they haven't seen in a long time. And she is always gracious.

"But they often want personal meetings, consultations with me, and I'm not qualified to counsel them," she admits candidly. Her advice is at the end of a phone; she can and does call on experts in all fields. At the beginning, before she had such fartlung contacts, she could still network; she had done volunteer work for the heart and pollo foundations, knew people in mental health and could call on

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It is a sound principle of rubber bridge that you should not make a close double of a part-score contract, since the opponents may end up making an easy game-bonus if either your judgment or your defense is faulty. The same rules do not apply to tournament play. If you are not allowed to play a partscore that you could make, you may then find it necessary to make a somewhat risky double to get back to par or better on the deal. That is what happened on today's deal. When South continued with three hearts. East decided to double. He had just too many A-K combinations to let North-South run over him

Accurate defense, aided by a well-chosen suit-preference signal, justified his boldness.

West led the spade queen and then the jack, which East overtook with the king. East eashed his spade ace and then played the diamond king. West encouraged with the seven but when the ace of diamonds was cashed. East played the Jack. This unusually high card was a clear command to partner to play back the 13th spade if he had it. East quickly did just that, promoting West's heart queen to a trick. Down two - 300 - was more than enough to compensate for the 110 that East-West would have scored in three

Chiles' Bill Aims To Cut Infant Mortality

By Sarah Pischer Herald Staff Writer

Declining infant mortality rates have government and health care officials more optimistic than in past years. However, those same officials admit that new dollars flowing into prenatal programs are the best bet or cutting those statistics even urther.

U.S. Senator Lawton Chiles of Florida, who recently introduced legislation calling for a $100 million funding package, believes government can do more to help low Income women receive care during pregnancy. Infant mortality is the number of bables who are born alive but die pefore their first birthdays. It is measured by the number of deaths per 1,000 live births. Chiles has called for the federal government to approve the $100 million Medicaid program package to target preventive health care service to women in the high risk population and their infants. IMPACT 86, under review by the U.S. Senate finance committee, would provide for a new Medicaid program with federal matching funds for preventative prenatal, delivery and postpartum services.

The proposal, if passed, would permit states, at their option, to extend Medicaid coverage for preventative prenatal, delivery and postpartum medical services to low-income women during pregnancy and for 60 days after delivery, and to their infants up to one year of age, he said.

The goal, he said, is to provide "esential preventive health care" to all pregnant women with family incomes up to the full federal poverty level, about $8,800 per year for a family of three. Chiles said.

Pregnant women with family incomes below 65 percent of the federal poverty level would be eligible for the new maternity benefit coverage in the first year of operation, he said. The bill provides for an eligibility celling of 80 percent of the poverty level in fiscal year 1988, and 100 percent of the poverty level in fiscal year 1989, Chiles said.

"I want to strengthen the Medicaid program so all low-income, pregnant women can have decent prenatal care. And their children, through the first year of their life, can have decent health care. Even if they aren't covered by health insurance. And even if they have incomes lower than necessary to pay for it." he said. "One of the most important elements of this bill is that states would have the option of providing this new benefit without increasing their AFDC need or payment levels." Chiles said. "For the first time, we would be giving states the flexibility to target their resources to provide preventive health care to a specific. high risk population group.

As drafted, the bill would require a state to maintain its AFDC payment levels in place as of the date of enactment of this new legislation if it chooses to exercise the new Medicaid option, he said.

In Seminole County, Health and Human Services Director Dr. Jorge Deju said he feels the decline in the local infant mortality rate is due in part to an increase in funding for preventative health care programs.

A baby born in Seminole County has a better chance of survival today than eight years ago, Deju said.

Since 1978, the county has cut its infant mortality rate (IMR) nearly in half - a "dramatic improvement," he said.

Deju also credited the decline in the county's IMR, which is lower than both the state and national rates, to a better working relationship between the county public health unit, which cares for low income pregnant women, and local obstetricians.

Concern for improving infant mortality statistics has translated into a continuing push for dollars to make these services available to all women.

Although the country's infant survival rate ranked 16th in the world in 1984, down from 17th in 1983, the U.S. still ranks below many developed countries in IMR, including Japan. Australia, Spain and much of western Europe.

In 1984, the U.S. had a IMR of 10.2 per 1,000 live births. In Florida, the IMR was 10.8 in 1984, while it was 10.0 in Seminole County.

Florida has the 10th worst IMR in the nation, with 1,816 babies dying before their first birthdays. Nine out of 11 states with the highest infant morality rates are in the south.

The U.S. provisional IMR figure for the first three months of 1985 was 11.0 per 1,000 births, up from the previous year.

The main cause of infant mortality is low birthweight, under 51/2 pounds. Babies born too small are 40 times more likely to die within the first month of life than babies of the proper weight, health officials said.

Those at risk include: Teenagers. Those who have babies are twice as likely to have their babies die before their first birthdays as women in their twenties Black infants. They are about twice as likely to die before their first birthdays se white infants.

• Women who smoke, abuse drugs and alcohol, and do not eat correctly. They are more likely to have a baby of low birthweight in Florida, the state helps fund maternity care services through Medicaid and the Aid to Dependent Families (AFDC) programs, which base eligibility on family income.

Many women who cannot afford pre-natal care "fall through the cracks" because their family income exceeds AFDC and Medicaid standards, according to Sandra Axelson. Medicaid program administrator with the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

She sees a need for legislation like Chiles' Infant Mortality Prevention Act.

Under the proposal, to avoid a costly new administrative process. states also would be able to use their AFDC income and eligibility determination process to decide eligibility for the new Medicaid benefit. Chiles said.

The medical costs would average about $600 for routine prenatal check-ups and counseling, versus neonatal intensive care that can cost as much as $120,000 to $200,000 for an extended period, he said.

"In this time of budget austerity. we've got to work even harder to find ways to achieve long-range savings. Putting aside money for pregnant women and newborn children is that kind of investment. Inattention to these needs in the past has been costly," Chiles said. "What we need is the small dose of prevention to avoid major spending on cures later - the kind of cures that would be necessary to help children damaged in infancy because they had no access to proper care."

The legislation would "provide the maximum incentive for states to choose to exercise the option for expanded Medicaid coverage for pregnant women and infants." he said.

Under IMPACT, if a state chooses to implement maternity coverage for low income women, the federal government would match their expenses at the same overall Medicald rate, somewhere between 50 and 80 percent of the total cost, Chiles said.

The bill would require all health insurance coverage through Medicaid to be available solely on the basis of need, rather than tied to welfare, he said.

Beyond that, the coverage wouldn't be dependent on ac-

Florida has 10th worst infant mortality rate in the nation.

cumulating large medical bilis to qualify for Medicaid. As things stand now, a low-income woman has to show huge medical bills to qualify for the Medicaid program. Chiles

"This in itself discourages the woman from seeking crucial prenatal care because she can't afford the bill in the first place." he said. "The preventive guidance so important in early pregnancy never reaches her."

Right now, Medicaid coverage is tied to state eligibility standards for AFDC. If an individual's income is low enough to qualify for AFDC. Medicaid is also provided. Chiles

In many states, however, the payment standard for AFDC is too low to bring health care insurance to many women and children who need it. And many of those are the same states with the highest levels of infant mortality, he said.

Last September, Chiles proposed legislation in the Senate which would create a National Commission to Prevent Infant Mortality.

The commission's aim during its one-year service would be to review state and federal efforts to prevent infant mortality. The legislation is before the Senate government affairs committee.

Too Late For Prince Charming?

NEW YORK (UPI) - A woman over age 40 has a better chance of getting killed by a terrorist than getting married, the results of a recent study show.

The study — conducted by Yale sociologists Neil Bennett and Patricia Craig and Harvard economist David Bloom — "set off a profound crisis of confidence among America's growing ranks of single women." Newsweck magazine reported.

According to "Marriage Patterns in the United States." white, collegeeducated women born in the mid 1950s who are single by 30 have only a 20 percent chance of marrying. The odds drop to 5 percent by age 35, the study said.

Forty-year-olds are more likely to be killed by a terrorist, with a minuscule 2.6 percent chance of tying the knot, the report said.

The magazine quoted several young women who felt pressured to marry because of the study. which was made public in February. It said the problem is made even tougher because the women affected by the study are part of the baby boom generation, which has a shortage of single men.

New York therapist Bonnie Maslin said national coverage of the study set off a social and psychological panic. Everybody was talking about it and everybody was hysterical."

MTA: A Monster We Don't Need

Voters in three counties - including Seminole County - on Tuesday will be asked to approve a road improvement plan devised by the Metropolitan Transportation Authority calling for a tax levy of up to $1 per $1,000 assessed valuation and/or up to a 4-cents-per-gailon fuel tax.

The proposal should be soundly defeated.

And if that is to come to pass, Seminole County's registered voters who oppose the proposition must not run the risk of its passing by neglecting to vote on the theory that it's doomed to failure and one's vote isn't necessary. Traditionally, propositions put to the voters other than during general elections result in a light voter turnout - and most times in those cases those who do go to the polls are voters in favor of the special proposal.

We simply cannot accept an appointed body, which the MTA is, being given the authority to collect tax monies and distribute them in what can be a grossly unfair method for Seminole County. So uncertain is the manner in which voting can occur among MTA members to distribute those funds to the three counties involved - Orange. Seminole and Osceola — it makes us shudder.

There are so many apparent conflicts in the proposal that it raises more questions than anyone has thus far been able to answer intelligently.

Example: The MTA can, under the plan, change the road improvement list contained on the ballot, as well as the financing method. And, although as proposed it would require six of nine members voting to do so, the authority is asking the legislature to amend the law to require also the approval of a majority of the representatives of the county affected by any such change. Why, we ask, are the voters being asked at this point to approve something the legislature is being asked to change, when that change may or may not come about? That's not casting an intelligent vote.

Example: in direct conflict with that piece of confusion is the part of the present proposal that says monies raised in one county can't be spent in another county ... except the law requires only 80 percent of tax money raised in a county be spent there.

Example: If voters in Orange County defeat the proposal, the entire plan is dead, whether or not Seminole and Osceola individually or together approve it. But, if it's approved in Orange County alone, that's the only county the plan would take effect in. If the plan is approved in Orange and Seminole counties only, it takes effect in both counties. But if it passes in Orange and Osceola counties, it would only take effect in Orange. Give us a break here! And, again, a bill is pending in the legislature to allow the plan to take effect in Orange and Osceola if voters in those counties approve. Who would dare try to make sense out of such a ridiculous proposal. This is the cart before the horse again, asking voters to cast their ballot on "maybes" and "ifs" and "wherefores."

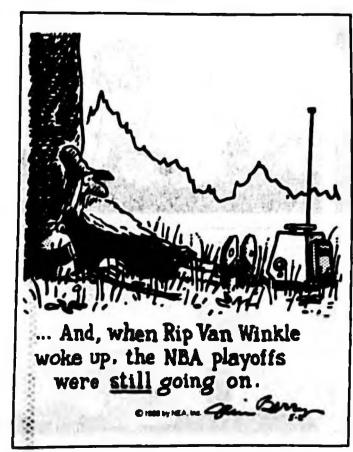

Another problem area we see is that bus service would be subsidized by local and federal government as it is now, but instead of that money going to the Tri County Transit. the regional bus authority, it would go to the MTA. The Tri County Transit would be abolished in August, and the MTA, some monster, as far as we're concerned, would be around for 30 years.

Until logical answers to the questions conerning Seminole County roads, protection for Seminole and Osceola from the behemoth Orange in funding restrictions and accountability of authority members, the Evening Herald feels action taken in haste is waste and this area cannot afford more waste.

Seminole County voters should go to the polls Tuesday and defeat this monstrous proposal.

Pension Reform ... But Not Till 2006

that, for the first time in more than a century, Congress is about to enact legislation that would require a substantial overhaul of the pension system for military veterans.

The bad news is that the changes won't even begin to take effect until the year 2006 - and won't be fully implemented until the middle of the next century.

Under the current system, those who leave the armed forces without any disability before completing 20 years of service receive no penalon, but those who retire after 20 years are eligible for a pension equal to 50 percent of their

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The good news is pensions equivalent to 75 percent of base pay for those who serve the maximum allowed time of 30 years in the military.

Even more important are the other exemp-tions: In order to neutralize opposition from politically powerful veterans' organizations, the legislation was crafted to exclude, through a "grandfather clause," everybody currently eligible for any form of retirement benefits.

Thus, the old pension plan will remain in effect for all 2.1 million men and women now serving in the armed forces, the 1.1 million retirees now receiving benefits and the 300,000 disabled veterans and survivors of deceased veterans who receive benefits under associated

The first people to be covered by the new law will be those who enlist in the military services on the day after the statute is enacted - but they won't be eligible for benefits for 20 years so the first dollar won't be saved until 2006.

The changes may not be overwhelming, but they're far superior to any other reforms instituted since the military retirement system

WARSAW. Poland (NEA) - II may very well be the least-watched program on Poland's state-run television.

It is an instructional series on the Russian language and technically, it is very well done. From the few installments I caught on the hotel room set, I suspect in time I might be able to pick up some Russian even without the advantage of Polish as a starter.

But it is doubtful that its excellence is appreciated by very many Poles. There are several problems with the presentation.

For one thing, the lessons are structured like a play. The story line has to do with two friends, a Pole and a Russian, who visit Moscow together. That is not likely to grab Poles, whose feelings toward Russians have never been notably friendly and who would prefer to travel almost any place but Russia.

Further, the very fact that an effort is being made to teach Russian by television is an admission of academic failure.

Russian is compulsory in Polish schools. Every Polish student must take a minimum of three years. This has been going on for 40 years. By now, most Poles should have some competence in Russian.

They don't. Elizabeth F. is one good example of why not.

In the Polish equivalent of her third year of high school, she is an A-student and already preparing for university admission examinations.

Her ambition is to be an interpreter, preferably in an industry where she will assist visiting foreign technical personnel. She will need to be competent in several languages.

She already speaks virtually flawless English, a language she has been studying for four years. Next will be either German or Spanish, which she will begin when she enters the university.

Russian has no place in her career

She studied it for the requisite three years and if pressed, she says, can express herself. But her interest was never in acquiring a command of the language, only in getting credit on her school record for the three years so that she could leave Russian behind.

Polish antipathy toward anything Russian is part of the reason, she admits. But the instruction itself was a turn off. It was heavy on the ideology. Lessons dealt with war and revolution, or revolution and hand, have dealt with recognizable everyday life, even when the language of necessity has been child-

unless you live in a cave, you have precious little choice in the matter - energy experts are deeply concerned about the alleged dangers of nuclear power. That is probably why our "news" purveyors buried so deeply the public announcement of the recent study that indicates precisely the reverse. In the mild words of the study's authors, there is "a gap between what the experts think about nuclear power and what the media report."

The authors are social scientists S. Robert Lichter and Robert Rycroft of George Washington University, Stanley Rothman of Smith College and Linda Lichter of the (non-profit) Center for Media and Public Affairs in Washington. They first selected at random, from "Who's Who," the names of 679 energy scientists and engineers, and polled these individuals on their attitudes toward nuclear safety issues. Then they analyzed news coverage of those same issues, for the entire period from 1970 to 1983. on the three commercial TV networks, in the three major news magazines and in the New York Times.

Based on what you have seen in media reports, would you have guessed that five-sixths of those energy experts rate the safety risks that presently exist in U.S. nuclear power reactors as "acceptable"? What's more, three out of four favor "rapid nuclear development," and would themselves be perfectly willing to live near a nuclear reactor. And two out of three are "very confident" that they already know how to solve nuclear safety pro-

To listen to the media - and, sion and news magazines. A full 60 percent of all media judgments on specific nuclear safety issues have been negative.

> The media achieved this impressive slant by picking very carefully the "experts" they chose to cite. Critics of nuclear power outnumbered supporters by more than 2-to-1 in news magazines, and by a positively awesome 5-to-1 on the television networks.

Are such statistics merely a byproduct of the ancient journalistic rule that "good news is no news"? That may conceivably have something to do with it: The media would positively adore a total "meltdown," purely for its theatrical value; but alas, there has never been one. (Even the ham-handed Russians, in botching Chernobyl, apparently avoided that.) After nearly 40 years, In fact, it remains the striking truth that there has never been so much as a single radiation-related death at an American nuclear power plant.

The media know this: they merely choose not to stress it. The study described above found that, of all the media investigated, only U.S. News and World Report's coverage was, even by a narrow margin. pro-nuclear. The New York Times' coverage was anti-nuclear by a similar "slight" margin. As for ABC, NBC. CBS. Time and Newsweek, their news coverage "was tilted in the anti-nuclear direction by wide margins," according to the study.

JACK ANDERSON

Bargain Hunters Can Shop Pentagon

By Jack Anderson And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON - Rep. Jack Brooks, D.Texas, the cigarchomping World War II Marine veteran who heads the House Government Operations Committee. rarely takes no for an answer especially when he's dealing with the brass hats at the Pentagon.

While some colleagues go for the casy headlines with horror stories of overpriced coffee pots and toilet lids - and then drop the crusade when the press loses interest - Brooks pursues the less glamorous examples of Pentagon waste. And with a unique combination of stubbornness and wry humor, he perseveres until he gets satisfaction.

Brooks explains his outrage at the Reagan administration's spending priorities in one succinct sentence:

"They're wasting tax dollars while they're cutting our school lunches."

Brooks's most recent target is a little-publicized Pentagon satrapy called the Defense Security Assistance Agency. Typically. Brooks translates the highfalutin' title into "the world's biggest arms dealer." It's this agency that arranges sales to foreign countries of such military hardware as Stinger missiles and automatic rifles.

In an average year, these sales total nearly $13 billion. But Brooks's committee investigators have dug into the agency's activities and concluded that hundreds of millions of dollars are thrown away each year - perhaps as much as $1.7 billion just since 1981. They shared their findings with our associate Donald Goldberg. Some examples:

- Federal law requires buyers of major weapons to pay at least a fair nal and Pentagon audits showed that the Pentagon gives the weapons away more often than not. For instance, research costs of $94 million on Harpoon, Maverick D and TOW 2 missiles were never charged to the buyers.

- In a survey of $2.4 billion in missile sales, the Pentagon inspector general found that the arms had first been underpriced by $4.6 million - and then underbilled by an additional $10 million.

- Undercharges totaling $90.3 million for one kind of jet engine were uncovered, and of $41.3 million for another model.

- Besides sloppy bookkeeping and inadequate control mechanisms that allow careless waste. Brooks discovered that the Pentagon has frequently granted waivers on costs for selected foreign buyers. Between can only review small samples of 1977 and 1984. more than $1.7 the total."

share of their cost. But congressio- billion in weapons costs were deliberately waived for Egypt. South Korea and five NATO countries.

Another recent target of Brooks's bird dogs is the Pentagon's costly habit of letting defense contractors keep government equipment furnished to them for arms production. For example, a New Hampshire company was found to have more than $47 million worth of government-owned electronic gear in its warehouse, some of it having been there for 15 years. The company was charging the Pentagon storage fees - $79,000 in 1985.

"Just how much government money is wasted every year in the Defense Department's chronic mismanagement ... may never be fully known." Brooks said. explaining: "Government auditors

A Defense Strategy For Florida's Children

By Jack Levine

It is common belief that the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) has had a great fall. Governor Graham, the legislature, seven grand juries, and hordes of editorial writers cry out in chorus, "How can Humpty Dumpty be put together again?"

It's my opinion that HRS is not broken; it's just in a desperate state of disrepair. Simple lack of upkeep is HRS's biggest problem. Florida severely neglects its own defender of the neglected.

Florida spends less on the needs of our people than all other states. The hearing-impaired infant, the disabled teenager, the battered wife, the alcoholie father, and the infirm grandmother get less help in our state than in "poor" states - less than Arkansas, Kentucky or Mississippi. Our sunshine state is te twenty-first wealthiest, yet our handicapped citizens live in the shadow of neglect.

Florida spends less on the needs of our people than all other states.

Florida's Department of HRS is asked to do so much with so little, then gets blamed when tragedy strikes. The death of a sick baby boy in an overerowded foster home brought an extensive investigation, reprimands for HRS workers, and a reorganization proposal.

But the fact is that Florida's upkeep allowance for a child in foster care is just $8.40/day. It costs more to kennel a pet dog in our state than to care for a neglected child. There lies both the tragedy and the opportunity for change.

What can be done? Ours is a modest proposal - a simple name change. The Department of HRS should be immediately renamed The Florida Department of Defense. This single act would bring about a phenomenal transformation of attitude in the budget committees of the Florida Legislature.

Why the name change? For starters. let's think of HRS's worker recruitment and retention problem.

Florida Defense Department could use these recruitment promotions -"We're looking for a few good men and women: it's not just a job. it's an adventure." This would entice the courageous few who seek to serve the defenseless. Helping others "be all they can be" is the challenge of the new Defense Department.

HRS workers are sent to the front lines with little or no training. There's not a general alive who would go into battle with such inexperienced personnel. Florida Department of Defense workers will receive eight weeks of basic training. We would institute an ROTC system that supports the education of family professionals, then obligates them to three years of service in a strategic command outpost.

Strategic bases of operation would be sited in areas experiencing advancing enemy offensives like infant mortality. child neglect and homelessness. Tactical support would be available on call - medical care, child day care, and safe shelter would be an SOS away. Unanticipated cost overruns on defense contracts to procure day care slots would be acceptable given the emergency nature of unsupervised children.

The Florida Department of Defense would receive funding to procure the most advanced technology to efficiently and effectively fight the war against human misery.

Our proposal is a Security Through Active Response (STAR) defense plan. There is no more important function of government than the protection of its people. The depertment must be afforded the funding necessary to insure the security of our state. Jack Levine is executive director of The Florida Center for Children and Youth. P.O. Box 6646, Tallahassec.

Managing Hearing Loss

It's very easy for us to think we're stupid and losing our mental capacity. says Margaret Saunders.

"That's one of the things that's very disconcerting when you have a hearing problem. You feel stupid, and you also think you are stupid, because you have to ask them to repeat often, and you sometimes misunderstand and give inappropriate answers.

"I went through that. It takes a conscious effort to remember that it's really a hearing problem, not an intellectual problem.

Saunders is a member of the Cleveland branch of Self-Help for Hard-of-Hearing People, Inc. SHHH, whose members come from all age groups. Is a national organization for those who can't hear well, although they aren't deaf. It also seeks to educate the public about hearing loss.

At a recent meeting. SHHH's Cleveland members spoke about their hearing impairment and others' reactions to lt. To communicate better, we used an amplification system that consisted of a transmitter and receiver, plus a stethoscope-like device that was plugged into the ears.

"If people notice you're wearing a hearing aid." said Rita Sotu. "they feel it corrects the hearing problem like a pair of eyeglasses." But, she said, "it only amplifies sound, which causes many problems. I may hear a word or a sentence, but I'm still not sufre what was said, because I miss certain tones.

"And people don't have enough patience with that." she said.

"I do a lot of bluffing," said Maria Bowerfind, who is in her 50s and has had a hearing loss for years. "Sometimes someone will tell me a great tragedy and I will say. 'How marvelous. You have to go a lot by facial expression, and I get very tense trying to guess what mood I should be in.

"Often sentences will come to you a moment later when you suddenly piece gether the parts," said Fred Ball, "So you're always one or two sentences behind."

'I think a hearing loss is as frustrating for other family members as it is for the hard of hearing," said one woman. and others in the group agreed.

time, it's unlikely I'll hear it the second. third or fourth time," said Saunders, "because there are certain sounds that don't come through. "And although we're teaching ourselves not to pretend we heard not to just let it pass - after the third time someone repeats something. I'm tempted to just let it pass, because I am afraid of aggravating the other person.' Ball recommended that those who have problems communicating with a hearing-impaired relative attend an SilliH meeting with that person.

"They can get acquainted directly with what someone with a hearing loss is experiencing." he said. "Then they can go home with a better relationship and can tolerate the petty problems that come when you miss words because it has to work both ways: They have to be fair to you, and you have to be fair to them."

Reagan Nuke Attack Plan: You're On Your Own

By United Press International The Milwaukee Journal

Were the scenario not so plausible, the Reagan administration's proposal to evacuate only local and state government officials to emergency shelters in the event of nuclear attack would lend Itself to mordant humor.

Far-fetched as the scenario may seem, the unthinkable could become thinkable if the Federal Emergency Management Agency adopts a plan to build 3,400 shelters for local and state government officials around the nation. Everybody else, the agency acknowledges, would need "to assume greater responsibility for their survival protection." Translation: You're on your own, pal.

The policy that government officials are somehow worthler of saving than everyone else is a dubious proposition. A better case can be made that doctors, other health-care workers and emergency-service personnel should get priority in any shelter program. After all, this is the group that would have the most pressing duties after a nuclear attack. The carnage caused by such an attack would be so vast as to make the government's role of minimizing looting irrele-

Chicago Tribune

The Polish government, with that rollicking humor so typical of communist regimes, has offered to send a CARE shipment of 5,000 blankets for the homeless of New York City. Government spokesman Jerzy Urban announced the offer at his weekly news conference, and plainly thought it was uproarious.

This was an official response to a U.S. Senate vote after the Chernobyl nuclear explosion: The senators voiced concern over the radioactive tainting of Poland's fresh milk and urged the administration to send 50,000 tons of surplus powdered milk to replace it. ...

Ideally, of course, the blankets should be accepted promptly and with thanks. Not only would that deflate the Polish government's joke: it would help some people who need help, which ought to be the main concern of governments everywhere. But Mayor Edward Koch's huffy response was that New York's homeless already are provided food and shelter each night - which makes clear that his government has pretty much the same priority as Poland's. St. Paul (Minn.) Ploneer Press-Dispatch

Presidential candidates, knowning that hungry reporters are testy reporters, have been known to feed them. For example, when journalists cooled their heels in a local hotel two years ago waiting for Walter Mondale to emerge from a meeting. they cooled their gullets and filled their guts with food and drink supplied by Fritz.

This piece of electoral practice is recalled because of the arrest last week of a Twin Cities man for having supplied some senior citizens with a couple of bucks' worth of Twinkles and Kool-Aid during his losing campaign for Minneapolis City Council last year. Some people are calling this a travesty of justice. We agree. The only fair solution is to stick Mr. Mondale behind bars, too.

The Boston Globe

Individual black teachers in Jackson, Mich. not the concept of affirmative action - were the losers May 19 in a Supreme Court ruling ... in a case involving a Jackson plan that would have protected the jobs of black teachers by laying off whites with more seniority.

Some credit for the looseness of the decision probably belongs to the Justice Department. which ... argued: "Henry Aaron would not be regarded as the all-time home run king and he would not be a model for youth if the fences had been moved in whenever he came to the plate." The problem is that the administration's bootstrap theorists have not realized that an equal opportunity - like not having the fences moved farther out - is precisely the point.

If blacks were not discriminated against ... there would be no need for preferential treatment programs. That, sadly, is not the case ... Happily. the justices seem to understand the point better than the administration.

Dalias Times Herald

It would be a terrible tragedy if the U.S. Army discovered one day that its own munitions were being used by terrorists to injure and kill innocent civilians. But such a calamity is entirely possible because of the sorry job the Army does in controlling its own stockpile of weapons ...

Although the Army claims that it has begun to tighten its control of munition supplies, much more needs to be done to combat the flow of such weapons into unauthorized hands. By its own estimate, the Army has "lost" at least $20 million in munitions within the past year. ...

There have been countless ... examples of weapons making their way through Army supply lines. Some of the worst leaks reportedly have occurred at military bases in West Germany and South Korea. If arms dealers and survivalist groups somehow can obtain American military supplies, it should be obvious that terrorists eventually will be able to do so, too.

The Army must not allow that to happen.

The Scattle Times

It is no longer startling when President Reagan trips over an occasional fact, but the clarifications are getting more intriguing. Take the latest: After addressing a group of high school students from North Carolina in Washington. D.C., the president was asked by a student about his greatest achievement.

"Right now," he replied, "the fact that both the Senate and the House have passed tax-reform legislation for the income tax." He made three references to the bill's having passed the Senate.

Oops. The measure still has to clear the Senate. Explaining the misstatement to reporters later. presidential assistant Dennis Thomas said: "He's just an optimistic person. ..." Al Kingon, Cabinet secretary, went Thomas one better. Kingon quipped: "He's just precognitive." The dictionary will tell you that precognition is clairvoyance relating to an event or state not yet experienced.

A little precognition can't hurt in the White House. Nor can a smattering of precision.

The Indianapolis News

The revolutionaries who helped kick Maurice Bishop out of power in Grenada now claim they can't get a fair trial on the charges that they murdered the former prime minister. Naturally they blame all this unfairness on the United States.

The 18 defendants are the soldiers and political leaders whose alleged power grab in October 1983 climaxed with the murder of Bishop and ended six days later when U.S. troops were ordered to the island. The defendants ... deliver long speeches in court, complaining about prison conditions and accusing witnesses of being part of a U.S. plot to influence the outcome of the trial.

The irony of their protest is the fact that, in Marxist revolutions such as Grenada endured, the opposition seldom gets to sit through a trial, fair

...THE HOPE

OUR COMMUNITY,

Over The Dam

But that doesn't always solve the issue. Water does not disappear. It DOES GO somewhere! It is neither destroyed nor vanished. It turns up elsewhere. Problem issues are seldom solved by letting them go "over the dam." They have a tendency to turn up somewhere else, and often more severe than when first met. I have a feeling that there are few REAL problems in life. What we call problems are only unmet opportunities begging for attention. But if left alone by "putting off facing them." or (what's worse) ignoring them, opportunities ultimately become problems.

Water does go "over the dam." but problems have a way of "damming up" inside of us. causing havor with emotional health and wrecking meaningful relationships. Look to God and your religious institutions for real solutions for your problems. Why not

Four Townes Unity Minister Nancy Henson Is Ordained

A reception celebrating the May 14 ordination of the Rev. Nancy Henson at Unity Village. Missouri. was held Sunday. May 25 at the Deltona Inn. The board and congregation of Unity Church of Four Townes. Orange City, were joined in the celebration by the original sponsoring ministers from Unity of Daytona Beach, Lee and John Byrns.

Henson started a Unity study group in the Deltona Community Center in 1981. She was a licensed Unity teacher at that time and the group was sponsored by Unity Church of Daytona Beach. Rev. Henson went to Unity School of Practical Christianity at Unity headquarters near Kansas City, Mo., in 1983. She graduated in 1985 and has been serving as a licensed minister, a residency requirement for ordination by the Association of Unity Churches, as she pioneered Unity Church of Four Townes since August 1985.

The nondenominational church has more than quintupled itself since then, growing from seven to an average of 40 each Sunday. The temporary meeting place is in Suite 103, 123 Plaza on Highway 17-92 in Orange City. Services are held each Sunday at 10 a.m. and Wednesday at 7:30 and 8:15 p.m.

Baptists Honor Grads

First Baptist Church Markham Woods, 5400 Markham Woods Road, Lake Mary, will recognize graduating seniors in the 10:45 a.m. service this Sunday. Dr. Bob Parker, pastor, will speak. At 6 p.m., the film Questions Parents Ask will be shown in the auditorium. The film is 60 minutes of excerpts from different sessions that deal with some of the common frustrations of parenthood given in a taping of a nationally syndicated television show of Dr. James Dobson. Dobson is associate professor of pediatrics at the University of Southern California School of Medicine and author of a number of best selling books on the family.

Final Film Scheduled

The sixth and final film in the newly released film series Turn Your Heart Toward Home by Dr. James C. Dobson will be shown twice this Sunday at First United Methodist Church located at 419 Park Ave., Sanford. This film is entitled The Heritage. It presents Dr. Dobson's remarks on the four traditional values to help assure happy, healthy, strengthened homes and family relationships in years to come. The films are shown in the church's fellowship hall on Fifth Street at 9:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Childcare is provided for each session in the church nursery. The showings are open to the public.

Community Circle Formed

Women of Williams Chapel Missionary Baptist Church. Williams and Marker streets. Altamonte Springs, have established a community Christian circle to promote Christian love in the community through fellowship. Bible study, and lending a helping hand wherever possible. The circle meets on the second and fourth Sundays of the month at 6 p.m. at the church. It is open to all women of the community.

Pastor Appreciation Day

The Church of God of Prophecy, 2509 S. Elm Ave., Sanford, will honor its pastor, Bishop Steven L. Gilmer, and his family this Sunday at a Pastor Appreciation Day. Elizabeth Griffith is in charge of the program. Lunch will be served in the social hall following the service.

Teaching Mission Slated

Jimmy Carter On Foreign Policy:

Justice Is The Moral Base

By David E. Anderson UPI Religion Writer

Former President Jimmy Carter says there is a difference between the ideals of Christians and the ideals of a nation but the two can be related.

Even so, he said in the inaugural lecture of the Messiah College Annual Lecture on Religion and Society, on entering the White House, the devout Christian will be in something of a quandry.

In the lecture, printed in the current issue of The Reformed Journal, Carter said the "highest calling of a Christian is to exhibit love in one's life."

"But a nation is not able to exhibit that kind of calling." he said. "A nation cannot demonstrate sacrificial love.

When I was president of the United States, I could not deal with foreign countries on the basis of sacrificial love." he added. "I would have been impeached had I always exhibited as president that high a standard. I did not have the right to sacrifice the interest of American citizens for others."

Instead of love. Carter said, highest ideal of the nation is justice.

Using justice as a touchstone, Carter outlined what he called a "moral base" for U.S. foreign policy with with four elements: a commitment to peace, a fervent will to pursue negotiations, a concern to alleviate suffering and to be a champion of human biblical teaching all are equal. There is no distinction between Jew and Gentile, between male and female, between rich and poor, between Russian and American.

"It takes a lot of moral courage to wage peace instead of war." Carter said. especially when it comes to dealing with adversaries such as the Soviet Union.

"That is a startling and disturbing thing for Americans to hear." he added. "We are no better in the eyes of God than people in other nations."

Carter also said a nation such as the United States must have "a fervent will to pursue negotiations and he cited his recent trip to Central America and the situation there as an example.

"One thing I found was that all sides were eager to resolve their differences in a peaceful way." he said. "They were looking for some avenue whereby they might communicate with one another without being embarrased."

But he said that throughout the region there "the general feeling ... that the foreign policy of the United States is a major obstacle to peace."

The commitment to alleviate suffering, he said, is not simply a matter of handouts.

"It is letting people around the world know that they have friends here in the United States of America and that we are not a bunch of big shots trying to push them around - that we really care about them." Carter said.

Carter said that being a champion of human rights is not just "apple ple and motherhood and waving the flag on the Fourth of July.

"Human rights is an issue that cuts like a razor blade," he said. "It is difficult. It opens up wounds among those who are between us and our allies."

Finally, Carter said, that "although a nation can't measure up to the highstandards of an individual human being, a nation's ability to achieve justice is dependent upon the individual American's willingness to achieve agape (self-sacrificing) love.

"And if we lower our own individual standards as citizens ... then our nation's

But the Challenger disaster has done more than prompt a presidential investigation: it has triggered a complete reassessment of the role of manned spaceflight and renewed a long-simmering controversy about the relative merits of manned space operations vs. use of expendable, throw-away

Military space operations have been crippled by the shuttle accident and back-to-back failures of unmanned Titan 34D launchers. With both programs grounded, a backlog of highpriority national security payloads is building that cannot be delivered to orbit.

As a result, the Defense De- within NASA that led to partment has suggested NASA restrict future shuttle flights to scientific cargoes, relegating commercial satellites to expendable rockets.

Shaping Pelicy

But in the meantime, NASA is an agency struggling without a clearly defined national space policy in the wake of the Challenger loss. The commission report will play a major role in how that policy ultimately will be shaped.

"It's going to be a fat report and the main thrust of the Rogers Commission report we'll have to respond to favorably," Fletcher said.

"I can't say we'll respond to all the details. They've given us some indication of what some of the major recommendations will be and we will respond to all of them. In fact, we've tried to anticipate some of them and are moving in that direction.'

Panel chairman William Rogers, a former secretary of state and attorney general, has made no secret of his disgust over what he called a "clearly flawed" decision making process

Challenger's fatal flight. The commission report is expected to military payloads and major focus heavily on recommendations for change.

Those changes include the establishment of independent panels to review key NASA decisions and a reorganized management structure to improve communication within the agency to make sure top NASA managers know of concerns raised by lower-level engineers.

Milton Silveira, NASA's chief engineer, has recommended wide-ranging changes to do just that, including a "hot line" that would allow engineers afraid of repraisals from superiors to voice their concerns if something is amiss.

Path To Catastrophs

In one sense, the chain of events that led to the Challenger disaster began on Dec. 17, 1982. when a special waiver was signed, changing the classification of the rocket joint's O-ring seals from "criticality 1R" - the "R" stands for redundant - to "criticality 1."

This marked formal acceptance by NASA that if the first considered the seals redundant O-ring failed, the second seal during the crucial half-second could not be counted on as a after ignition, during the "bulgbackup, a key point because ing," or "joint rotation," despite which a single failure results in catastrophe.

"When the change for the criticality 1R to 1 on the solid seals came to headquarters, this office was not involved in signing off on it." Silveira said. "If I had been here at the time and knew that we were going to do that I would say OK, we might accept this for a few flights but can consider this a 1R or a 1." you need to work like mad to get that situation changed.

"I think if we had done that at that time and understood as much about how it works as we do at the present time, we would have stopped flying and said hey, we're not going to fly until it's fixed."

But Lawrence Mulloy, manager of the rocket program at Marshall when Challenger was launched, told Rogers he always

'We were relying on the redundancy, yes." he said during a May 2 hearing. "We showed that we had redundancy that, should the primary O-ring fail (during ignition), the secondary would function."

But in an earlier hearing. commission member Sally Ride. a shuttle astronaut, told a Morton Thiokol official that commonly held "judgment" was flawed by definition.

"It sounds to me like you're exercising some kind engineering judgment on whether you she said. "I just don't think the system allows that.

"I think that once something is classified as a criticality 1, that sets a red flag in everyone's mind that that's an extremely dangerous situation and I'm just not sure you're allowed to go back and rationalize it as, well. during this 100 milliseconds we may have a secondary seal, we may be allowed to consider it a redundant seal."

O-ring damage had been noted on several flights, but it had been considered minimal. However, after Challenger's April 29, 1985, flight engineers found that a primary O-ring had suffered "blowby." meaning hot gases had passed it, and the secondary manager of the Marshall shuttle ring had been eroded 75 thousandths of an inch.

Pushing The Margin

That history of continually pushing the margin in the lack of firm data to show danger existed ultimately led NASA to a pivotal meeting on the night of Jan. 27, the night before Challenger was launched.

Engineers at the Kennedy Space Center, the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., and the Morton Thiokol plant in Brigham City, Utah, held a two-hour teleconference on whether to proceed with the launch the next morn.

Morton Thiokol engineers unanimously recommended a delay because of the potential impact of expected freezing weather on the performance of the rubber O-ring scals in the booster joints.

Ehrlichman: Trying To Set The Record Straight

The China Card, by John Ehrlichman, (Simon & Schuster, 523 pp.,

John Ehrlichman says it's not that he despises Henry Kissinger and Alexander Haig, but he felt it necessary to be historically accurate in making them sound so sleazy in his new novel.

Most of the president's men who went to jall in Watergate have kept a low profile in the decade since they got out of the slammer. Not Ehrlichman, the former No. 2 Nixon White House aide, who has turned author and is now on the talk show circuit boosting his new book. The China Card.

The novel is the story of how the hinese recruited a young lawyer in Nixon's old law firm who, in his desire tosee normal relations restored with the United States, becomes a mole inside the White House for Chou En-Lai.

In the process Ehrlichman takes the reader into the Oval Office to witness the inner maneuverings as Nixon. Kissinger and Haig plot their foreign policy to reopen the door to China.

Ehrlichman depicts Kissinger and Haig as men who put their egos above service to their country and men who in ordering wire taps on White House aides probably committed crimes as serious as any in Watergate.

"I portrayed them that way because that's the time of the plot," said Ehrlichman in a recent interview, "It wasn't just my recollection. I talked with some people on the National Security Council staff so I could double check my recollection. There was a lot of things I didn't know about how things worked over there. "I think they (Kissinger and Haig) were genulnely motivated to accomplish what the president had mapped out as a foreign policy. But they lived in a world where everything is suspect. I think Ehrlichman shows Nixon playing games on Kissinger. At one point in the book, when it is obvious Kissinger badly wants to go to China to set up the subsequent presidential visit, the president says maybe he will send former Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York. It is only after the meeting that a depressed Kissinger remembers Dewey has been dead for some time.

"His humor is not deft, but Kissinger was the butt of it quite often." Ehrlichman said. "Some of it was

"I think just the fact of it was very hard on those people," he said, "I know Saffire has never gotten over it." he said. referring to William Saffire, the New York Times columnist who was a Nixon speechwriter whose telephone was tapped because Kissinger thought he was leaking national security secrets to the

UPI Political Writer Absorbing Look At A Great Newspaper

Worldly Power - The Making of the Wall Street Journal, by Edward E. Scharff (Beaufort Books, 320 pp., $18.95).

It has no comics, no TV listings or sports section. It is devoid of local news, recipes or even photographs.

Despite those apparent handicaps, the Wall Street Journal is the largest circulation newspaper in the country.

Though staid in appearance, the Journal's history often has been tumultuous, with a cast of characters who made sure the paper never stood still. Edward Scharff captures it all, with an engrossing account of an institution that was a true journalistic pioneer.

The Journal had an inauspicious beginning in 1889 as a four-page concoction of inconsequential news briefs and brokerage ads. Not until the Depression would the newspaper finally realize business was indeed news and that reporters could no longer be the pawns of the industries they covered.

Dragging the Journal kicking and screaming into the modern age was Barney Kilgore, who became managing editor in 1940 at the age of 31.

Kilgore, who is portrayed with almost mystical reverence by Scharff, had been Washington bureau chief during the Depression. He was determined to make sure it did not breathe its last.

He wanted the Journal devoted to everything connected to finance, with articles written so that those not in business could still be in the know.

Kilgore encouraged reporters to provide more analysis and interpretation. Such freedom eventually bred the Journal's famed page one features, which usually had more to do with monks in Scotland and witches in New York City than the vagaries of The Street.

Kilgore's reign set the scene for a group of disciples who eventually would take stewardship of the Journal, leaving much of their mentor's handlwork intact.

Scharff, a senior editor at Institutional Investor, provides an absorbing look at such Journal luminaries as Vermont Royster, Fred Taylor, Bill Kerby and Dan Dorfman - warts and all. If anything, the paper thrived on volatile personalities whose immense talent and idiosyncrasies made the paper great. To understand them is to understand the Journal.

If Scharff does come up snort, it's in his giving short shrift to Foster Winans, the reporter who gave a broker advance word on what would be in the Journal's influential "Heard On The Street" column.

This is a small glitch in an otherwise admirable book, one that spares no quarter in giving the business to a newspaper that thrives on minding everyone else's financial business.

"Now, your Emissaryship." Mugsy began, "let us proceed with our little business. As you and your associates are without doubt aware, I and my associates are desirous of a small adjustment in your shipments of certain equipment to this country."

"How much of a reduction did you have in mind?"

"I and my associates were happy. It reminds me of that thinking that a 20 percent reduction would be welcome."

"And if I refuse?" Mr. Matsuhiro asked nervously.

"These new shearing machines are amazing." Mugsy comes the opportunity to corre-replied absentmindedly. "I have spond with readers. Write him at often been curious about what the Evening Herald.)

might eventuate if a thieving, conniving, price-cutting weasel, that is to say a trading partner, should ever become so unfortunate as to get trapped in one."

At that point, a low hum started coming from the machine.

'Where do I sign?"

Mugsy smiled happily as we drove back to his office. "Free trade, Timmy my boy.

Voluntary agreements. You know no one hates protectionism more than I and my associates. This is so much cleaner. So much nicer. Everybody agrees. Everybody is nice little business I operated back when we were in school. Remember that?"

Big, Little 'Brothers' Build Friendship Bond

Elliott And Win by Carolyn Meyer (Atheneum, 187 pps., $12.95).

Carolyn Meyer is an excellent character stylist and humorist. Her newest young-adult novel, for those in grades 9 to 12, is rich in both qualities. It also packs a potent message about preconceptions and prejudice.

Chicken salad, gazpacho and walnuts with Parmesan cheese is definitely not 14-year-old Winston Kelley's idea of a great lunch. Macaront and ketchup sandwiches are more his style.

Nor is his host. Elliott Deerfield, a bachelor who adores opera, loathes baseball, and doesn't own a TV, what Win was hoping for when he signed up with Los Amigos, a big-brother program.

Worse yet, Win can't ignore his disagreeable friend Paul's snide remarks about Elliott's sexual orientation: "No wife? He likes opera! Likes to cook! Oh. come on, Winston. Don't tell me you haven't figured out Elliott is gay.' Yet despite Paul's negative influence, Winston, a decent kid with a good deal of sense and sensitivity, is lonely and desperate enough for a father figure to give Elliott a chance.

The contrasts between Win, a culturally deprived boy whose mother works several jobs to support the family, and well-off Elliott, a stuffy, but wellintentioned man whose disciplined, orderly life is the antithesis of Win's chaotic one, make for some wonderfully wry moments.

There are some harsh moments too -Paul's caustic remarks about homosexuals and cruel jibes leveled at Win's other friend, self-conscious, big-bosomed Heather Key.

Elliott's sexual orientation is never revealed. Nor does it matter as the story progresses. What's important is the wondrous growth of respect, friendship and trust between an especially odd pair.
