Bucs' raily falls short

INDIANAPOLIS — Vinny Testaverde's greatest passing performance was an unsatisfying one.

The Tampa liay quarterback completed 25 of 42 passes for a career-high 469 yards and two touchdowns Sunday, but a 21-point rally in the fourth quarter fell short, giving Indianapolis a 35-31 triumph that left both teams 2-5 on the

Dodgers take 2-1 Series lead

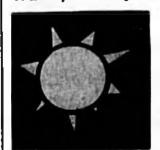

LOS ANGELES — In Game 2 of the World Series, the Los Angeles Dodgers did not have to use Kirk Gibson. Orel Hershiser was around to provide all the offense they would need.

With the hero of Game I resting his sore knee. Hershiser took over Sunday night and collected three hits. He scored the game's first run and doubled in another on a hit-and-run play, and the Dodgers had a 6-0 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

Oh yes, Hershiser also excelled on the other end of the 60-foot 6-inch distance. The right-hander, who threw a record 59 straight scoreless innings in the regular season, extended his postseason string to 19 1-3 by allowing just three singles and permitting only three Athletics to advance as far as second base.

Local police approve of new 'career criminals' law

By SUSAN LODEN Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County prosecutors and police hope a new law that could double prison sentences for "career criminals" will deter crime here.

"We're after the creme de la creme; the baddest of the bad," said Stephen Ptotnick, Seminole County's chief trial prosecutor. He is coordinating the new program for the state attorney's office in Seminole County.

Plotnick said the objective is to make the strongest cases against those criminals who repeatedly commit crimes and pose the greatest threat to the community.

Since 1983, sentences have been set by a formula established by the legislature. Lawmen and prosecutors say that has resulted in sentences that are too lement in the case of career eliminals.

Although statistics on career criminals — repeat offenders, in Seminole County are not available, a National Institute of Justice study shows that on the average in California, Michigan and Texas, repeat offenders given early release committed an average of 187 crimes per year. Half of the inmates said they committed fewer than 15 crimes a year But 10 percent said their annual crimes totaled more than 600.

The problem, according to law enforcement ufficials, has grown along with the use and sale of narcotics. Sanford Police Churt Steven Harriett said the old sentencing system is ineffective, especially when trying to deal with dring traffickers.

"Lets store them out of society Harriett said of career countries. It they can't fit in — and they vedemonstrated they can't — lets — See Law, Page 5 A

New law a sticky subject

From staff and wire reports

Seminole County law enforcement spokesment said today that enforcement of the state's new law banning obscene bumper stickers will not have a high priority with them.

Their comments reflect the attitudes of law enforcement officials all over Florida who are troubled by the difficulty of defining obscenity.

Sanford police Capt. Charles Fagan said his department has not yet seen the full text of the law but he anticipates problems enforcing it.

The department will enforce the law as they do said.

Sheriff John Polk said today, "We're going to handle it very delicately, "When we find something, we're going to have to get a definition from the court or the state attorney's office on what is obscene. The definition of obscenity varies from community to community. Citations will be given other laws, but "it won't have a high priority," he

People won't be going to jail for this."

Altamonte Springs police spokesman dell Hawkins said today that his department act on specific complaints if they can identify and locate a driver with such a bumper sitcker. However, Hawkins said, Altamonte Springs officers would then refer the case to the state, because patrol officers would have a hard time defining what is

Child abuse registry plan criticized

From staff and wire reports

Critics of Florida's child abuse registry say the reputations of innocent people are being tarnished because it is too easy to be labeled an accused child abuser and names are not always kept confidential.

But a Seminole and Orange County-area child care official said the registry nevertheless serves a vital function in the protection of children.

Although allegations exist that people listed in the registry but later cleared of wrongdoing have suffered damaged reputations. Dorothy Dukes, information director of the Community Coordinated Chaild Care (4C) agency, said even if people are cleared of one complaint, subsequent complaints may reveal abuse.

"Who knows how many people who were found unfounded may go back and abuse a child 2," said Dukes, who is based in Orlando. "I don't know which is better, let children continue to be abused or to do something about it running the risk of damaging somebody's reputation."

Dukes said 4C often uses the registry to check backgrounds of potential child care workers in the day care centers used by 4C. The 4C service is a referral agency to bulp pay for day care for children of low-income families.

Dukes said she has heard of cases where the registry was used for the wrong reasons.

"I have seen cases where disgruntled husbands have tried to get spouses in trouble by calling in a complaint," Dukes said. "When you call in a complaint, you have to register your name, so maybe that helps discourage some of those comilaints."

State not on line with EPI report

The failure of the United States to close its huge trade deficit cost the country as many as 5.1 million jobs during last year alone, the Economic Policy Institute reports.

However, an international trade specialist with the U.S. Department of Commerce, said Central Florida has enjoyed a surge of jobs due to overseas trading.

Tye seen an increase due to the (weak) position of the U.S. dollar, said Jack Marshall, an Orlando-based international trade specialist with the commerce department.

"The local marketplace has export awareness."

Marshall said that local businesses ship citrus, phosphare, electronic components and dozens of other products overseas. He said local job and sales statistics were not available.

In a study titled "Trading Away Johs," the non-profit organization concluded the $170.3 billion deficit in 1987 meant the millions of employment positions were lost to foreign competition, 60 percent of them in manufacturing and the other 40 percent to related industries.

Moreover, compared with the rest of the economy, the lost jobs tended to pay higher wages; there were 2.5 million lewer positions worth more than $400 per week because of the trade deflett, according to the study issued Sunday.

The government last week reported the deficit for 1988 running toward $138.5 billion. Republican Vice President George Bush has attempted to focus on the improvement while his Democratic White House rival. Massichusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, has emphasized the record highs under the current administration.

Speedy predicts seven weeks of snow

Police probe girl's scalding death

United Press International

RUSKIN - The mother of a nine-year-old girl who was scalded to death last week at the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind said she can't understand why her daughter would have gone into the shower.

"My biggest question is, my daughter was afraid of hot water," Robin Williams told The Tampa Tribune. "Why did she get in that shower?

Williams' daughter, Jennifer Driggers, was scalded to death in a school shower Thursday night after an attendant left her alone in a bathroom with two older deaf and retarded girls, officials said.

The death ientatively has been ruled accidental, although investigations by the police, state health officials, the medical examiner and the school continue. Jennifer suffered first- and second-degree

The school's adult attendant left Jennifer with two deaf girls, ages 12 and 17, who had the mental capacity of second-graders. Hutto said. The attendant, 29-year-old Jennette Gadson, has been put on administrative leave pending the outcome of the investigations. Gadson declined to be interviewed.

Hutto said Gadson, who was hired in February 1987 and has a good working record, was following procedures when she lest Jennifer in order to attend to other children in the Vail Hall dormitory.

"If that's their normal procedure, there's one child that's dead because of that normal procedure," Williams said.

Hutto said the two girls re-enacted the events leading up to Jennifer's death for police Friday. According to their account. dennifer stood up after Gadson left the room and removed her clothes.

She then entered the shower, where she turned on the water and began to pretend she was washing, Hutto said. 3he reached up and turned the shower's one water knob so only hot water would come out.

He added that 130-degree water could kill a person in a minute. There were no bruises or other injuries on her body, McConaghie said.

Jennifer's death was the latest in a series of tragedies at the school.

In January 1986, a 4-year-old boy injured his neck and spinal cord while playing with another student. He was hospitalized and died a few days later, said school apokeswoman Mary Jane Dillon.

The school has been troubled this year by the arrest in April of dormitory teacher Charles D. Johnston, who is charged with molesting 17 deaf boys. Johnston's case is scheduled to go to trial in November. Dillon

Study: Life expectancy of Americans to rise

United Press International

LOS ANGELES - The overall life expectancy of American men could rise to 87 years by the year 2040, while the average American woman could live to 92 during the same period, a new study said.

The study released Sunday also showed the number of Americans over age 85 may grow to nearly 24 million in the next 50 years, twice as many as previously expected and 10 times the current level.

By the year 2040, the population in the United States over age 65 may catapult to 87 million, or one-quarter of the entire U.S. population, a figure 20 million higher than what the census has projected and three times the current level, the study said.

The study by the University of Southern California and the National Institute of Aging, an arm of the National Institutes of Health, was reported in The Los Angeles Times.

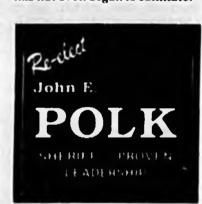

There are many variables in population projections, but the major difference between U.S. Census Bureau figures and the new, higher projections is the optimism that the USC and national institute researchers share about medicine's ability to prolong life over the next 50 years, the papers said.

Unlike the census projections. which assume that there will be no overall decline in the death rate, the USC and national institute projections predict a decline in the mortality rate of 2 percent a year. The Times said.

Edward Schneider. USC's dean of gerontology and one of three authors of the study, told the newspaper that the statistics reveal government and families could face "some very complex magnitude of which this nation has not even begun to estimate."

Hispanic leaders say Cisneros still has a future in politics

United Press International

SAN ANTONIO - The chairman of a national Hispanic political group says Mayor Henry Cisneros' acknowledged relationship with a political fundraiser should not keep Cisneros from continuing his political career if he chooses.

The four-term mayor, following published reports of rumors of an affair during his 19-year marriage to Mary Alice Cianeros. acknowledged Friday that he had a "very close" relationship with political fund-raiser Linda Mediar, 39, of San Antonio.

Cisneros and Mediar, who is separated from her husband. have declined to describe the nature of the relationship. Cisneros said he had no plans to seek a divorce from his wife, and Mediar would not say if she planned a divorce.

Cisneros has played heavily on the themes of home and family in his exceptional political career, and Tony Bonilla. chairman of the National Hispanic Leadership Conference. said the recent disclosures "will bring him down a notch or two and take him off his pedestal."

But Bonilla said Cieneros should be able to continue his political career if he wants to do

"I think that the recent developments are consistent with the era that we're living in." Bonilla said in Corpus Christi. "At one time, divorces, extra-marital relationships and things of that sort were almost an unforgivable indlacretion.

But there are many public officeholders wo have gotten divorced and many who have gotten divorced because of another woman. Time heals, and the people are rather forgiving. He is still the same person he was when he was high on everybody's list as one of the potential emerging Democratic leaders."

State Sen. Frank Tejeda, who has employed Medlar as a fund-raiser, said Saturday that most residents of San Antonio will not condemn Cisneros, the first Hispanic elected as mayor of a major U.S. city, "When we elected him, we elected him to the mayor's office. We didn't elect him to sainthood," Tejeda

Medlar, in an interview published Sunday by the San Antonio Light, said she hopes the publicity will not overshadow Cisneros' accomplishments

"I hope that the public listens to Henry and really gives him some time," Medlar said. "He was trying to work out some personal problems that would hurt people the least. He was not given an opportunity to do that."

"I consider him to be very caring, very warm, a sensitive person who's a very capable person in his leadership role in the city," Mediar saidHomeowners Insurance? One name says it best.

The run-and-hide campaign tactics

"He can run, but he can't hide," heavyweight champ Joe Louis once said of a fleet-footed opponent. Louis was right - he nearly always won - but he only had to cover small patch of real estate: American voters heir unelected surrogates, the news-

Lia, have a tougher job trying to corner Loerge Luch and Michael Dukakis. Both are running but they are also hiding, and it's the voters, not peaky reporters, who are the

When Bush held a news conference the other day, it was his first in two weeks. The vice president keeps the few reporters on his plane mostly at arm's length. When he arrives at a campaign stop, the news hounds are kept at shouting distance, and Bush has learned well from his mentor, Ronald Reagan. how to cup an ear, smile and shrug his shoulders in amiable incomprehension. Audiences are screened to minimize the danger of hecklers, who, when they do get past the palace guard, are quickly hustled out of sight and carshot.

It's no longer unique to the Bush camp. Frustrated by having to spend much of his time with the media scraping off the mud Bush huris at him. Dukakis has been forced to adopt the same strategy, one refined to an art form in the Reagan White House. Most Americans now know it well: Pick a theme-of-the-day, set up photo opportunities to dramatize it, and let the media take it or leave it. Fearful of being out of step with their competitors, most in the media take it. Results: what's now called "soundbite" campaigning.

Nothing in the Constitution requires candidates to talk with the news media, or to submit to the perils of real debate, as opposed to the earefully acripted events that now pass for debate. But if reporters only rarely get a chance to ask questions, if voters are force-fed only what the candidate's handlers want them to hear, if the candidates themselves can't get a fair shot at each other, what is the country left with? Television spots that avoid issues that might not play well in Peoria or Turlock and which, at best, distort an opponent's record or, worse, deliberately lie

The candidate's aren't entirely to blame. The media could ignore the daily boilerplate and the cheap-shot attacks and concentrate on substance: Refreshingly, some, both on TV and in the print media, are now doing that. Voters, no matter how turned off they are by Bush's klutzy demogoguery or Dukakis' stiffness, need to pay close attention, to look past the contrivances and evasions and soberly assess these two less-than-perfect men. Like it or not, one of them is going to be president less than four months from now.

Dukakis says no responsible politician can make a flat no tax pledge, and the history of campaign promises certainly supports his argument. Anyone who votes for Bush solely or the basis of the tax issue is like a pilot who buys an airplane with a money back guarantee if it Dukakis's promise to crack down on tax evasion comes with a plan to double the number of Internal Revenue Service agents. A lot of people agree that tax cheaters ought to be caught and made to cough up what they owe, but completely aside from the question of whether a million IRS agents could do the job. it inight be hard to convince honest citizens that the newly hired tax collectors will not simply concentrate on easy marks like themselves who make nickle and dime mistakes on their returns.

What this beds down to is the conclusion that no matter who wins the election, there are going to be some broken promises when the winner faces up to the problem of the deficit.

Quayle's diminution unsound

McLEAN, Va.-Why is this man smiling, this man in the Indianapolis Colts V-neck sweater. faded slacks and ancient sneakers? Yes, he has spent a pleasant Sunday with his children. But It is dusk and another week of hear-buiting is about to begin, with him cast as the bear? So why is Dan Quayle stpping 7-Up, not something more fortifying?

He is a human eye of a hurricane, preternaturally tranquall. But elsewhere this has been just another manic Sunday.

The newspapers are full of stories about how Quayle is Dukakis' last, best hope. On a morning interview program he has been compared, not for the first or even just the 101st time, to Bob Forchead, an airhead congressman in a comic strip. On the same program there was comment on a Vanity Fair magazine article quoting a former classmate of Quayle remembering Quayle as a law student.

Quayle and he, said the classmate, saw Robert Redford's movie. "The Candidate." together. Afterwards, over a steak dinner and for 11 hours, they discussed the movie-Quayle, according to the classmate, said he is more handsome than Redford and that with skilled packaging, he. Quayle, could go far in Quayle says the story, like much written about him, is rubbish. He did not see the movie until years later, a few weeks before he won election to the Senate.

Does the constant drizzle of criticism, to which I have contributed, bother him? "Sure it does, but these people do not know me." But actually what bothers many, like me, who know Quayle, and know him to be better than he has seemed, is that he seems to have passively allowed himself to be putty in the hands of handlers. The Quayle of the campaign trail and the debate with Bentsen is not the Quayle of the armed services committee on the Senate floor during the INF Treaty ratification.

Regarding directions from the top of the ticket, a running mate's duty is clear: take direction. But the diminution of Dan Quayle has been accentuated by the operatives in the Bush campaign.

Quayle is weary of the "handwringers" in the Bush campaign and has told his wife, Marilyn, "We're just going to have fun these last four weeks." Too much fun has been wrung from politics by handlers who shuff out a candidate's confidence.

Politics is like a sport in that a politician, like an athlete, needs room for the spontaneous. instinctive action that is a sign of confidence. The Bush campaign, after being terrified in New Orleans, surrounded Quayle with hordes of hired guns, like a piece of glass packed in Styrofoam peanuts. This is a good way to convince the candidate, and the public, that he

Handlers relish the role of intermediaries between the candidates and reality. meaning the media. Candidates fade into the wallpaper as handlers and journalists feed each other's self-esteem, the handlers handing out allowed himself to be putty in the handsof handlers bits of inside baseball, the journalists interpreting these nuances which attest the eleverness of the handlers. Journalists have privileged insight into the working of the little motor of history, and the handlers are portrayed as the rubber hands that make the motor whir. If this is Tuesday, this must be Toledo, and if this is 1986, this must be Quayle's plane. However, four years from now, just as four years ago, the candidates will be different (they are almost dispensible), but the permanent part of the process, the handlers and the media, will be back at the same stand, doing business together.

Quayle anticipates a Bush victory and time for "rehabilitation" (his word). But for now the nagging question is Did his campaign have to be so diminishing? Could be have done worse if, instead of being handed over to rented handlers who are not inclined to respect the people who rent them, he had been sent out to be more than an echo of Bush's dismal campaign for the office of national sheriff?

When on his own in the Senate (where he does not employ a speechwriter), he has shown more mastery than Bush has of arms control and other national security matters. But instead of allowing us to hear the best of him, he has been sent baying after Dukakis in the Bush-league manner, "helped" by handlers who have taken too much to heart a famous movie-no, not "The Candidate," "The Manchurtan Candidate."

KGB killed Iranian talks

WASHINGTON - The scaled records of the Iran-contra investigation suggest that a Soviet KGB agent may have played a role in sabotaging President Reagan's secret overtures to fran in 1985-86. The president sought to establish a relationship with fran's Speaker of the Parliament Hashemi Rafsanjani who responded by sending his nephew on a hush-hush mission to Washington in September 1986.

The report states that the trusted nephew. All Hashemi, told White House aides on a very secret basis" that the KGB may have compromised the U.S. approach to Tehran in May 1986. A U.S. delegation headed by ex-National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, established contact with Mousen Kangarlu in the Iranian prime minister's office, then flew to Tehran for exploratory talks. A "memorandum of conversation' detailing Hashemi's secret discussions with the White House 'He wanted to inform us that within Kangarlu's network they have strong suspicions that there is a KGB agent. perhaps even one of the people who met with the McFarlane delegation in Tehran.

North brought up the KGB threat again later in the discussions

Hashemi wanted to establish a "joint committee" as the first link between the United States and revolutionary Iran. Lt Col. Oliver North, speaking for the White House, agreed that such a committee was "not a bad idea." But he raised concerns about "KGB efforts to penetrate any relationships we might establish with the government of Iran. ... The problem is we have to set up (the committee) some place so that it won't be penetrated by the KGB. We are very concerned about communications links and the Soviets' ability to intercept them."

North brought up the KGB threat again later in the discussions. The memo says this about the meeting: "We are concerned, North pointed out, about Soviet penetration of the frantan military and their intelligence appuratus. We don't know who they are, but we know there are some agents working there.

Whether an undercover KGB operative blocked President Reagan's efforts to reestablish ties with Iran cannot be proved. But it is assumed that the KGB was doing all in its power to prevent any reconciliation between the United States and Iran, Iran dominates the Persian Gulf, which has been described as the Western world's jugular vein. Half of the West's oil travels through this strategic

That is the reason Reagan tried to open a dialogue with Rafsanjani, who was reported at the time to be the leader of the pragmatists. The hope was that Rafsanjant would replace Ayatollah Khomeini, end Iran's diplomatic isolation and seek a peaceful settlement of the Persian Gulf war.

When the McFarlane mission failed, the White House turned to Richard Second, a retired Air Force general who previously had engaged in James Bond-type operations around the world. He flew Belgian commandos into the Congo, helped the Central Intelligence Agency run its covert war in Laos and advised the Shah of Iran on how to build an air force. Secord had contacts at the subterranean level of diplomacy, including people with access to the Khomeini regime.

He secretly opened a new back channel to Tehran and arranged for the Iranian delegation, led by Rafsanjani's nephew, to visit the White House. This led North to write, "Why Dick (Secord) can do something in five minutes that the CIA cannot do in two days is beyond me...'

Stocks open slightly higher

NEW YORK - Stock prices moved slightly higher in moderate early trading today after recovering from a modest pullback at the opening beli.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 17.07 last week, was up 1.42 to 2134.60 at 10 a.m. The index fell about five points in the opening minutes.

Advances led declines 451-430 among the 1.398 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Volume was moderate, smounting to about 17.72 million shares during the first 30 minutes of trading.

The market posted a new recovery high last week and then quickly retreated amid concerns over the trade deficit and the declining

Last Monday the Dow gained about nine points to close at 2158.96, the highest closing level since last October's market collapse.

The market failed to extend the recovery high and slipped back on Tuesday and tumbled Wednesday with the Dow falling

Analysts blamed the pullback on rumors concerning the U.S. merchandise trade deficit figures for August, which were released Thursday morning.

Concern that the data would be disappointing proved justified. The August trade deficit widened to $12.2 billion, up from $9.5 billion in July.

On Friday a trio of generally favorable economic reports was offset by further declines in the dollar and the market closed narrowly

The government said retail sales declined 0.4 percent in September, while industrial production was unchanged. Both figures were below expectations.

In addition, the Producer Price Index rose by 0.4 percent last month, which was in line with market forecasts.

"The numbers tended to confirm the message of the August and September employment data, which is that the economy continues to slow," said Hugh Johnson, head of the investment policy committee at First

For a second degree felony, such as buiglary to a house, the sentence may be upped from 15 years to 30 years. For a thirddegree felony, such as a grand theft or burglary to a business. the sentence may now be 10 years in prison instead of five.

Plotnick said that gain time (where the sentence may be reduced by up to 20 days for each month served) and other sentence-reduction measures will still be in effect even in career-criminal cases.

"I think the concept is great. If carried out as intended by the legislature it will be a great deterrant," Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said.

The state and counties will have to come up with more prison space if it's going to work. It's not going to work with a revolving door prison system. If this is carried out properly it will increase motivation for police." "We get tired of seeing the same old faces time and time again," said Casselberry police classified as a career criminal. Lt. Durbin Gatch, "We keep arresting them and they keep getting off."

> Harriett said he believes taxpayers are willing to pay the price for warehousing these criminals. "Ask a victim of a burglary what the victim thinks should happen to the burglar." Harriett said. He added that citizens want tough action against criminals.

> A "Strikeforce" Florida Citizen's Against Crime survey, in which 405 Floridians statewide were questioned about the prison system in August, indicated citizens favor construction of new tails and prisons and longer sentences for criminals, with less probation for repeat offend-

> Of those surveyed, 74 percent favored construction of new prisons. Fifty-seven percent said judges, not sentencing guidelines, should determine sentences, and 84 percent said habitual criminals should be given longer prison terms without the possibility of early release. Seventy-five percent said more state revenue should be used to build new prisons.

A National Institute of Justice study concluded that each repeat offender once released from prison and back to a life of crime costs society about $430,000 each year, as they continue to commit crimes. In comparison. building a cell and maintaining an inmate for one year costs about $25,000 per prisoner.

Yet even in those confirmed cases, there is often insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution. People often wind up on the list because of unsubstantiated reports, yet the list is consulted whenever someone applies for a job working with children, critics say.

"The way it works in these people apparently get reported (for abuse) and are just presumed to be guilty," said Tampa lawyer Judith Kavanaugh in an interview published Sunday by the St. Petersburg Times.

'HRS workers do these halfbaked investigations and draw half-baked conclusions that don't clear you if you've been abused," she said. Tallahassee lawyer Ron Meyer called the registry a holding pond of damaging information that can spill into public view.

The list is supposed to be carefully guarded.

"One thing I've run into with a great deal of regularity is that these confidential reports just show up everywhere," Meyer told the Times.

The Legislature created the registry in 1971 and it has become a model for other states. Last year a toll-free number was added so people could report cases of suspected abuse. HRS officials mid the program is a way to record allegations of abuse to ensure they will be investigated, and to provide a history of prior reports. Names stay in the registry for seven years when there is enough evidence to indicate abuse occurred. When abuse is confirmed, the name stays on the list 50 years. Names stay on the list for one year if there is no substantiation of abuse.

Less evidence is required to list someone as a confirmed abuser than to mount a criminal prosecution. HRS spokesmen

"Even if the allegation of abuse is not true. It has an aura of truth because it's in an official registry." Kavanaugh said. "Your reputation is tarnished no matter what anyone says."

The system also is under attack in the courts. Two Hillsborough County school principals are suing because they were listed after administering paddlings that left visible marks.

An Escambia County dean of students and a Nassau County principal are also taking the system to court. Myer, their lawyer, claims HRS is using the registry as an indirect way to stop corporal punishment in schools.

HRS is planning a publicity campaign to promote the system, which between January and August of this year screened 52,000 potential child care workers and identified 215 abusers from that group.

The toll free number for reporting abuse is (800) 342-9152.

Dukakis predicts upset United Press International

Republican George Bush vows to keep working hard until Nov. 8, determined to deny presidential rival Michael Dukakis a chance to live up to his prediction that the Democrats "will be the ones celebrating on Election Night.

Relaxing in Denver before returning to the campaign trail in Illinois and Missouri today, Bush said he was encouraged but not overconfident after seeing polls showing his slim lead opening slightly over the Massachusetts governor. The vice president promised to stay the course in the last three weeks of the White House race and with that in mind he refused at a brief news conference Sunday to answer repeated questions about specifics of his budgetary plans.

"To suggest that we have to radically after the game plan when you've seen the budget come definitively down in the last couple of years. I don't think I'm going to do that," Bush protested. "I've proposed a specific plan and I'm going to stay with it."

He pledged to comply with newly approved anti-drug legislation if elected, appointing as a Cabinet-level narcotics "czar" his own running mate. Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle. Under President Reagan, Bush has held a similar position as vice president - failing completely, according to Dukakis.

The Democrat, battling polls and perceptions suggesting Bush is bound for victory Nov. 8. pressed onward aggressively Sunday by telling a festive rally at Boston's Fancuil Hall that his rival apparently never has uttered the most important words a national leader must be able to say: "This is wrong."

"I may not express my feelings as eloquently as some," Dukakis conceded to the crowd, "but does anyone doubt what I would have said if I was in the room when they made those decisions to sell arms to the ayatollah, to put (Panama's Gen. Manuel) Noriega on the payroll, to veto civil rights and women's rights or to choose people like Dan Quayle, Ed Meese, James Watt

'I would have said three simple words: "This is wrong." the three-term governor continued. "When they put Nonega on the payroll. The New York Times knew he was selling drugs. NBC knew, the CIA knew and the National Security Council knew. But George Bush said he didn't know.

The hometown rally was the first Sunday campaign event in weeks for Dukakis, who lashed out at GOP predictions of a clear Bush victory ahead. He declared he would not roll over for the vice president - and as if to prove his point, his aides had him flying today into the critical state of Ohio, where Sunday The Columbus Dispatch and The Cincinnati Enquirer endorsed Bush.

"The Republicans want to put you to sleep," Dukakis told the Faneuil Hall crowd. "They're already celebrating: they're popping champagne corks in

'But I've got news for those Republicans. We're going to be the ones celebrating on Election Night, because we're in a fight for America's future, and you'd better believe I'm not going to walk away from that fight and I'm not going to walk away from the commitments of a lifetime.

"I started this campaign 18 months ago as an underdog and I enter the last three weeks of this campaign as an underdog."

Campaign manager Susan Estrich added later during an interview: "We started as an underdog and we've always done our best as underdogs. We've been written off time and time again and we've come back each time. So we look forward to the challenge of the last three weeks. There's no question that we're behind, but we're within striking distance and we're going to fight very hard."

Nearly 700,000 professional jobs would be created if the country balanced its trade figures, the study asserted in what it termed a surprising finding.

Eliminating the trade deficit would create 2.7 million jobs because of higher exports and another 2.4 million because of lower imports, with all regions regaining more jobs by expanding foreign markets than by limiting imports.

The study found machinery and other heavy manufacturing and electronics industries would stand to gain the most from an improved trade balance, just as they have suffered the most from foreign competition.

In the Northeast and Midwest, a balance of trade would benefit machinery and metal manufacturing most in terms of employment, the study found. The South and the West would realize the greatest rise in jobs in business services.

in the presidential campaign. Bush has opposed protectionist legislation or mandatory reduction in trade imbalances with countries such as Japan and West Germany that have large surpluses with the United States. Dukakis also does not favor protectionist policies but would back, under some circumstances, tougher measures to force open foreign markets. He maintains the nation can meet competition by increasing productivity through government participation with business and labor in education, training and planning.

United Press International

* LOS ANGELES - In losing the first two games of the World Series, the Oakland Athletics have been limited to four runs, a 159 batting average and one round of forearm bashing. The Athletica' trademark of oclebration surfaced after Jose Canseco's grand slam in the second inning of the opener. But there was no bashing Sunday night as Oakland couldn't produce a run to celebrate, falling 6-0 to the Los Angeles Dodgers. Dave Parker, the Athletics' cleanup hitter, had the only three hits - all singles - off Orel Hershiser. That was as many as Hershiser had against the Athietics. Oakland has not scored in 17 of its 18 at-bats in the Series. Since Canseco's grand slam, the Athletics have managed just six hiis and have not advanced a ginner to third base. They trail the Dodgers 2-0 with Game 3 Tuesday night in Oakland. Parker pointed to his team's five-day layoff following its sweep of the Red Sox in the AL playoffs as a possible reason for the slump.

'We had the week off, I don't know if that has affected us," Parker said. "We're the type of ballelub that can score runs; we just haven't been doing it here. Even though Hershiser has pitched shutouts in his last two starts and closed the season with a record 59 scoreless innings. Parker said: "We haven't seen any devastating pitching out there. No one has punched out 10 or nine guys in a row."

Oakland Manager Tony LaRussa, feeling his team beginning to tense up, canceled a mandatory workout Monday.

"In the last couple of innings I decided we wouldn't work out," he said. "The guys could probably use a day off.

The Athletics are counting on Welch to fare better than Game 2 starter Storm Davis. In his 3 1-3-inning stint, the right-hander surrendered two hits to Hershiser and a three-run homer to Mike Marshall on an 0-2 pitch in the second inning.

"I was trying to strike him out." Davis said of the pitch to Marshall, "I was hoping either he would go for the high pitch or I would try to get him on the next pitch."

Davis surrendered a single to Hershiser on a 3-2 pitch, and that triggered a five-run outburst. Hershiser then reached the Oakland starter for an RBI double in the third, and Davis left for Gene Nelson.

"For Orel, everything is magic now," Davis said. "He is throwing shutout after shutout and swinging the bat. He's an outstanding athlete and he's doing everything right."

The Athletics overcame a five-run deficit in Game 3 of the AL playoffs. But that was against Mike Boddicker, not Hershiser, who in his previous start four days ago had blanked the New York Mets on five singles in

After striking out the side in the fourth. Hershiser doubled in a run in the bottom of the inning. Griffin reached on an infield single and Hershiser - on a hit and run play - punched a double just inside the right-field

He thus became the first pitcher to collect an extra-base hit in the Series since Rick Rhoden of the Dodgers in 1977. That was one more than Oakland has collected in its last

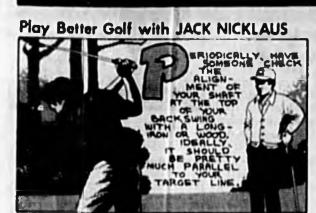

14 innings. In an effort to regain their hitting stroke, the Athletics second in the AL in runs and homers this year - were given permission to miss today's

The Dodgers, to be sure, would love to keep playing.

Holtz, Miami still No. 1

United Press International

SOUTH BEND, Ind. - Notre Dame football coach Lou Holtz doesn't believe the Fighting Irish are the nation's best football team even after their 31-30 triumph over top-rated Miami.

"They didn't play like it, but I still believe they are probably the best football team in the country," Holtz said of the Hurricanes "We're a very good team, though. I've never been prouder of my players." The No. 4 Irish withstood their greatest aerial assault to end Miami's 36-game regular season win streak, the lifth-longest in NCAA history, Saturday's nationally televised loss also snapped Miami's 20-game road winning streak that spanned four years and snapped the nation's longest winning streak in all games at 16.

Miami quarterback Steve Walsh completed 32 of 51 passes for 424 yards, a personal record touchdown. and school's second-highest total pressured by Irish defensive end Frank Stams, threw three inovers. Walsh tossed an 11-yard touchdown pass to Andre Brown safety Pat Terrell's deflection of a 2-point conversion pass scaled Miami's fate.

"We had to make them pay for throwing," Holtz said, "We had to get some turnovers and we did it was a game of big plays made by a lot of big people. Usually when you have a game with this much hype, it disappoints. This was a great game. with a lot of mistakes that were caused by great plays."

Stams knocked loose two fumbles from Walsh, recovered another fumble and tipped a pass that Terrell intercepted and returned 60 yards for a

"Those were just good deever. Walsh, who was constantly fensive plays by them." Walsh said. "They were persistent in their pass rush and they came terceptions and lost two fumbles and they got to my arm. I should as Miami committed 7 turn- have been able to fool them a little more and get rid of the ball, It was a tough loss. We could with 45 seconds to play, but have won the game. We played well and they played great. It's difficult to win when you turn the ball over seven times.

Miami coach Jimmy Johnson felt his team should have won despite the turnovers.

"As many mistakes as we made, and we made a ton of them, we should have won the ball game," Johnson said, "We made too many mistakes, but we shouldn't have let it come down to that. We had too many young guys making decisions, too many young guys touching the football. Some turned it over-They're disappointed. They're sick. I'm sick.

Football

It was again the Patriot defense, though, that pulled together and shut out the Silver Hawks in the second half that set up the win. Brantley has outscored to last three opponents by a score of 93-19 and hopes it can continue to dominate in that fashion for the final month of the season and possibly into the playoffs. Lake Howell's sophomore Marquette Smith finally broke open on a long touchdown run of 73 yards and led his team with 142 yards on the ground Smith kept the Brantley defense honest all night long and that opened things upfor the Lake Howell offense in the first half. In Leesburg it was the Yellow Jackets taking command early before Seminole gained some momentum and nearly took the game away from them. Leesburg built a 28-0 lead before Seminole's Jimmy Franklin bolted down the sideline on a 63-yard scoring run that snapped a string of 11 scoreless quarters for the Tribe

Seminole kept the momentum going and closed the gap to 34-22 and had the ball at the Yellow Jacket 10 yard line when time expired. A late score on an interception put Leesburg up 34-14. Seminole came right back, though, and put the ball in the endzone with a little less than a minute remaining for the game's final Seminole will take the week off before traveling to Oviedo to play the Lions.

This Friday, Lake Brantley will host DeLand in a District 5A-4 clash. Lake Mary will host Lake Howell in another District 5A-4 battle while Lyman will travel to Spruce Creek in a very key District 5A-4 matchup.

Over in Orange County, a very interesting race is developing in District 5A-5. Evans. Apopka and Winter Park all stand at 3-0 in the district. The first big meeting between the big three will come Oct. 28 when Evans plays at Winter Park.

Finding a solution to paraproriasis

DEAR DR. GOTT: I get sent from one dermatologist to another, looked at, get a shrug and a bill. I have parapsoriasis. How would you treat it?

DEAR READER: Parapaoriasis refers to a group of skin diseases characterized by raised, red and scaly lesions. The rash produces no symptoms. It is highly resistant to treatment. Although I am not aware of any appropriate therapy for this condition. I welcome comments from dermatologists who might have some auggestions.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Skin: Eczema and Psoriasis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure the metnion the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter, 12, started her period three months ago. But recently, she's been bleeding and spotting every 5 to 10 days. How long should we let this go on before putting her on hormonea?

DEAR READER: The menarche (beginning of menstruction) is often marked by extreme irregularity. Maniyoung girls take up to a vo before their menstrual periods become regular. Although your daughter may be exhibiting a fairly typical pattern, I believe that she should be checked by a gynecologist to make sure that no abnormality is present. The doctor will probably adopt a wait-and-see attitude for several months, but I think you need confirmation that your daughter's frequent bleeding and spotting is normal, physiological variation. Hormone pills are rarely necessry in this situation.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've heard that calamus root is beneficial in lowering blood sugar. Are there any toxic effects?

DEAR READER: Calamus root, from the plant Acorus calamus, has been used as a flavoring agent and insect re-pellent because of its aroma. I am unaware of any reputable scientific study showing that calamus root has any medicinal value, especially in lowering blood sugar.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Today's declarer found himself in one no-trump with less than half the high cards and very few important spot-cards.

South naw that if the defense played with reasonable accuracy, he wouldn't have time to set up the hearts. The defenders would get at least two spades. three hearts and two diamonds the hearts, his diamond entry would probably be gone.

Declarer therefore looked elsewhere for tricks. If he could get three clubs, he would have six tricks, for one down. Since playing on hearts could lead to three down, declarer decided to hold his losses.

This was excellent thinking Faced with a nearly hopeless contract. South didn't charge ahead blindly but considered possible goals and selected a practical one.

Declarer won the spade lead and played the ace and jack of clubs. East did his best by holding off with the king point was to play his low club and hope West would capture the jack. If West had started with doubleton king, he would have to take it. But with more than two clubs. West could duck if he wished, and South knew that West was a good defender who would do just that.

South had one last option. He overtook dummy's jack with his queen and then led the three. which dropped East's king - an exciting six tricks for down one.

What South did was to weigh the chances of West's having doubleton king against the chances of East's having tripleton king. Since a 4-3 split is more likely than a 5-2 split. South's play was correct.

Readers scorn live-ins' tasteless wedding

DEAR ABBY: This concerns "Making It Legal." the woman who had been living with her boyfriend for 11 years, had two children with him and a third on the way. She said she had always dreamed of a big church wedding, but her family thought a quiet, intimate wedding with family and friends would be more appropriate under the circumstances. You agreed with her family.

Then you were bombarded with letters saying. "You were wrong-why shouldn't she have the kind of wedding she's always. dreamed of?" So you flipflopped. You blew it. Abby-you were right the first time!

The sad fact is, we are living in a tasteless society. People accept invitations and don't show up. Others fail to RSVP, then show up bringing extra guests! Also, there's a new bit of comedy at the wedding dinner-the bride and groom grind wedding cake in each other's faces. (Shades of the Three Stooges!)

I don't fault the clergy performing these farces in their will return to the fold But, it still is Do you have the courage

These "after the fact" weddings are reminiscent of the oldvaudeville days when the big. boffo, hilarious skit consisted of the bulging bride, her white sattn gown stratuting at the scams, followed by Pappy with churches. PATTY IN PITTSBURGH DEAR PATTY: Yes, and it will probably please you to know that many other readers wrote to berate me for my "ultra-liberal" flip flop regarding who should be entitled to marry in a church. I stand by my answer-the second-

DEAR ABBY: I don't usually write letters, but I had to write this one. My husband and I went down to the Detroit Animal Control the other day to check on a dog we adopted. While we were there, a lady came in with a beautiful little mongrel mutt that appeared to obey her very well. She said she wanted to turn the dog in because it had chewed up her shoe! They told her that they would probably have to put the dog to sleep because they had all the dogs they could handle, and not enough people are adopting pets these days!

Abby, that lady actually left the dog there and walked out! The poor little thing got a death sentence for chewing up a shoe! When I see all those sad, homeless animals in cages, pleading with their eyes for someone to take them home, I could just cry, Please print this. It may be an incentive for someone to adopt a homeless animal.

JANE LA ROSE, MICHIGAN DEAR JANE: The problem goes beyond providing an incentive to adopt a homeless animal. Pet owners should have their animals spayed or neutered to prevent them from breeding indiscriminately.

Every year an estimated 7.5 million dogs and cats are "put to sleep" to gentle cuphemism for 'killed") because their owners do not want to be bothered

How much more humane it would be to have prevented their births

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I bought a lovely home in a very nice neighborhood a year ago. We have three children. ages 6, 4 and 2 years old, 1 am 29 and my husband is 30-quite. young to have so much going for

So why am I writing? Our nextdoor neighbor has proposi-Boned me to have sex with him-The fact that Lain married with three children domn't seem to bother him He says married woman are safe sex partners (safe from AIDS, etc.)

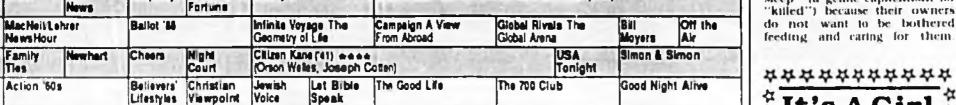

I have herpes. Do you think if I told him, he would leave me alone? He is very persistent.

I love this house and don't want to move, I haven't told my husband about this because I don't want fostart an uproar What do you advise?

DEAR NO NAMES: Tell your neighbor that his proposition is grossly insulting, and if he mentions it again, you will tell your husband. And never intaddisclosing your medical history. It's none of his business.
