According to Mills, the new system will meet the Florida Department of Education's new standards for indoor air quality that will provide 15 cubic feet of air per student.

Handy Way on hold?

By J. MARK BARFIELD Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A controversial convenience store site near the Wektva River "probably won't" be developed, said a senior official of the store builders.

Don Davis, in charge of real estate development for Miller Enterprises Inc., said Wednesday it may not build a Handy Way store on a 1.55 acre tract of land on west State Road 46 south of the Lower Wekiya River State Preserve. Miller had fought for five years to preserve the commercial development rights on Their battle ended favorably last month when the Florida Supreme Court refused to hear the state's appeal. Tuesday, Seminole County commissioners granted Miller an additional year to file a final site plan for the land. Davis said the company hasn't decided whether to develop the site, and may not.

"We don't know what we're going to do there," said Davis. probably won't develop it."

When asked if a convenience store without gas pumps could be economically viable. Davis answered "In our opinion, no. We have a few stores without gasoline, but we don't like it."

Davis said the extension was sought to preserve development options for the property. In December 1990, county commissioners approved a convenience store plan for the site, but prohibited gasoline

Davis said Miller owns one-acre commercial site at Lake Markham Road and is reviewing development options for that property.

Davis' statement surprised Albert Katz, who owns a portion of the five-acre tract flanking Longwood-Markham Road.

MIAMI - A magistrate has denied bond to an Irish businessman accused of plotting to smuggle U.S.-manufactured night vision goggles to Iran.

Prosecutors said Thomas McGuinn, 57, of County Sligo, was a flight risk because he had travel documents, a pilot's license

But U.S. Magistrate Linnea Johnson on Wednesday ordered McGuinn held without ball until his next hearing, scheduled for April 7.

McGuinn, who operates Mac Aviation (Ireland) Ltd., is accused of violating U.S. export laws by attempting to smuggle into Iran 200 pairs of the Litton night vision goggles, which can be used by military pilots.

PENSACOLA - The son of slain abortion doctor David Gunn urged thousands of rock music fans in this city where his father was murdered to support abortion rights at a concert featuring the group Pearl Jam.

"You all have the voice." David Gunn Jr. told the crowd on the eve of the first anniversary of his father's death. "We are the majority. We have the power to take our country back" and to defeat those who "want to take our choices away from us."

About 10,000 people packed the Rock for Choice concert at the Pensacola Civic Center on Wednesday night. Approximately 600 abortion opponents attended a Positive Life Rally sponsored by several churches in response to the concert.

The concert was the first of several events planned here to remember the first doctor in the nation to be killed in connection with an anti-abortion protest.

An abortion opponent shot the 47-year-old physician from Eufaula, Ala., three times in the back as he arrived for work at Pensacola Women's Medical Services last March 10 Anti-abortion activists were picketing on the opposite side of the clinic.

Crime solutions may disappoint

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Proposals to add prison beds and make felons serve most of their sentences may hinder the ability to fight crime in Florida, a new report says.

"Some of the most popular 'solutions' being discussed are likely to have a disappointing impact on crime in Florida," said the report, set to be released today by the Florida Chamber of Commerce.

Florida had the nation's highest crime rate in 1992, but the state's criminal justice system is moving in the right direction, the report concluded. Violent crimes have fallen below 1990 levels while property crimes declined between 1989 and 1992.

TULSA, Okla. - It looked like one of those cases that are nearly impossible to solve: the apparently random shooting of a young httchhiker.

But the first police officer on the scene Friday noticed a cryptic mix of letters and numbers on Donald Beartrack Jr.'s bloody arm - DER-352 - written once in ink and again with a marker. A lock combination? "Maybe some kind of ritual symbol, like devil worship?" wondered Sheriff Gerald Coleman "There was all kinds of speculation.

On a hunch, authorities searched Oklahoma motor vehicle records. They found a match. And by the next day, three men traced to a 1993 Ford Mustang were under arrest in the slaying.

Investigators said DER 352 was the license number of the car that picked up Beartrack. Howard Russell Murray, 21, The 17-year-old apparently realfied he was in danger and scrawled DER-352 on his arm just before he was shot twice in the head at close range.

The arrests would have been nearly impossible without what amounted to a tale told by a dead man, the sherill said.

"In 28 years, this is the first time I've ever seen anything like this," Coleman said.

Police said it appears that Beartrack - a quiet, lanky. 6-foot-4 basketball player at an Indian boarding school - was on his way to his mother's home in Talequah when he was picked up by the three men. They

of alleged Russian spy payoffs

Ameses fight government seizure

By ROBERT BURNS Associated Press Writer

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - Accused spy Aldrich H. Ames and his wife are citing "severe hardship" and the financial dependence of their young son in fighting the government's seizure of $2.2 million in alleged spying payoffs from Russia.

The Ameses were expected in court today when U.S. District Judge Claude Hilton hears arguments on the government's motion to renew an order barring the couple from using any of the $2,2 million held in 12 banks and brokerage accounts in the United States and abroad.

The existing order was due to expire today. The couple has been in jail since their Feb. 21 arrest on charges of spying for the Soviet Union and later Russia from at least 1985 to 1994.

Ames, a 31-year CIA veteran, is accused of passing national secrets to Moscow in exchange for payoffs and the promise of retirement in Russia. His wife, Rosario, is accused of aiding

Both are lighting the charges. In documents filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, lawyers for the couple said the government could not show that its interest in controlling the Ameses' assets outweighs the couple's need to support their five-year-old son, Paul, who "depends on his parents for all of his financial needs.'

Ames' lawyer, Plato Cacheris, wrote that the son "is already enduring the nightmare of having both of his parents incarcerated, potentially for the rest of their lives."

The boy is staying with family friends in northern Virginia, defense lawyers say. "The Ames child is well taken care of by family members" and does not need financial support from the couple, prosecutors told the court. Ames' lawyer argued in his brief that there was no reason to believe the Ameses were capable of spiriting assets out of the court's jurisdiction as long us they are in jail. In an unusual move, prosecutors also have asked Hilton to order the couple to take $2,245,311 from foreign accounts and hand it over to the court. Prosecutors said that is "the minimum amount of esplonage proceeds that the defendants are charged with having earned" by spying for Moscow since 1985. The government wants to control the money so it can be forfeited if the Ameses are convicted.

The defense opposed the bid to repatriate the couple's assets. Cacheris wrote, "there is no record of the source, amount or value of assets allegedly located in Switzerland or Colombia,' Mrs. Ames' native country.

Mrs. Ames' attorney, William Cummings. endorsed Cacheris' arguments.

Prosecutors replied that they know at least $28,000 is in one Swiss account and believe much more is in others. They said less than $600,000 is in the Ames' domestic accounts so repatriation of the money held abroad is necessary.

Last week the Swiss government refused U.S. requests to freeze the couple's bank accounts or confiscate and turn over bank account documents, because spying is a political crime not covered by a 1973 U.S. Switzerland legal assistance treaty.

Ames carned $350,000 from the CIA between April 1985 and November 1993, Mrs. Ames worked before they were married and the couple acquired wedding gifts and family heirlooms before any spying is alleged to have begun. Cacheris said. "The government cannot demonstrate ... that the Ameses' assets are the proceeds of captonage activity," as esplonage laws require,

But the government replied. "Rosario Ames admitted to the FBI that all the vast unexplained wealth inconsistent with her husband's salary came from the Russians." They said his salary checks had been "spent on a regular basis" and none of the funds came from an inheritance.

Violence Free Community Month

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called sons of God." (Matt. 5:9)

Schools all over the country are becoming a battleground.

While Seminole County does not face the dangerous situations that are found in some other districts, the violence still exists. Students, fortunately rarely armed, often turn to physical resolutions to their conflicts. During the month of March, however. school district officials are trying to drive home the violence-free message they teach throughout the year.

In celebration of Violence Free Community Month, the district is promoting the message that "the Choice for me is violence free."

We praise those who are trying to change society's frightening acceptance of violence as a solution to conflict.

Our future depends on the young people who will soon be the leaders of society. It is our responsibility to teach them the art of negotiation, the value of mediation and the necessity of peace.

We applaud those who are making an effort to do so in our schools.

The organizers of the Violence Free Communities celebration are encouraging supporters to wear white ribbons in support of the peaceful celebration.

We hope to see white ribbons everywhere this month, but we hope that the lessons of peace are remembered long after the ribbons are packed away for another year. Our future will be better for it.

Creative financing

Oh, my aching back! If any of you out there in never-never-land ever wondered about the "creative financing" that appears to be quite prevalent In today's real estate market, you ought to try to understand the "creative figuring and financing" of the "new and improved" Social Security and Medicare Insurance, payments and premiums.

My electronic calculator nearly went on strike with a picket line at my front door, no less, when it felt that I was subjecting it to "cruel and unusual punishment" in trying to decipher the government's "new math" used to arrive at my four) new monthly payments both from and to the U.S. Treasury. Yes, we're both on Social Security and

Back in December, we received our annual notices of the new amounts of Social Security payments, reflecting the COLA increase and the new Medicare insurance premiums that would become effective Jan. 1, 1994.

Whoopee! We got a whopping 2.6 percent COLA increase in gross monthly SS payments. At least that's what the notice read. It also reflected a noticeable increase in the Medicare insurance premiums that are deducted from the gross to the net. Hmmm! Maybe, Just maybe, I ought to take a closer look at this.

Let's sec. Take my old gross and multiply it by 1102.6 percent to get the new gross. Right? Okay, let's do it! Now what? How come that result is different from the stated new monthly gross on the form? Let's try my wife's old gross multiplied by 102.6 percent. And we get...what the hell? That's different too.

OK! Let's try a different tact. Let's subtract the old gross from the new gross to get the COLA increase. Wallahl Success at last! Finally got a winner. Let's try my wife's figures. Wowee! Another winner, Gawd! We're on a roll. Now ! know our separate increases.

Quick! Let's subtract the old Medicare premium from the new premium...and we get a $4.50 increase. Now, that doesn't seem to be tooo bad. Hmmm! Better do some more figuring.

Something is beginning to smell — and it's not apple pie. Let's divide the old Medicare premium into the new premium increase...and we get ... an increase...of 0.1229. Hey! That's 12.3 percent. My Increase was 2.6 percent. Their increase was a whopping 12.3 percent, Lordy, Lordy, pass the Preparation H. Now I "know" that I'd better check some more.

Let's try dividing Grandpa's new COLA SS increase into the new Medicare premium increase of $4.50...and we get...0.20 which translates to 20 percent. Twenty percent! Holy crim-a-nillies! They give me a 2.6 percent COLA increase in SS and immediately take back 20 percent of it as increased Medicare premiums. Calculator - don't fail me now. We've just gotta check Grandma's figures. Divide Grandma's new COLA. SS increase into the new Medicare premium increase of $4.50 and we get...0.428...which translates...to...what the heck do you mean, 42.8 percent? Grandma got a 2.6 COLA increase in SS and immediately lost 42.8 percent of it as increased Medicare premium cost. What a crock that is!

At funerals, the man/woman of the cloth says "the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away."

Grandpa says, "The government giveth and the government taketh away...only the government taketh away a hell of a lot more than it giveth to begin with." Nelson B. Tullar

ou can call him 'True North'

The opponents of Oliver North's candidacy for the Senate in Virginia know very well that he is going to win the Republican primary, but they are already scheming to defeat him in November, when he will run against the badly battered Democratic Incumbent, Charles Robb.

One can understand, if not exactly sympathize with, the liberals' anxiety to beat North. For one thing, he is one of the solidest all-round conservatives ever to run for the United States Senate, and as a relatively young man could be expected to be there a long time.

Far more important, however, North is forever identified with the Iran-Contra controversy, and his election to the Senate would poke a huge hole in the liberal-Democratic effort to depict that affair as some sort of unforgivable assault on American constitutional processes. What an Irony it would be if Sen. Inouye, who presided so pompously over the joint congressional investigation of Iran-Contra, found himself in the Senate subway sitting next to his new colleague from Virginial

So our liberal media have already devised and launched a pre-emptive strike against North, designed to smear him so thoroughly that his defeat in November will be, as nearly as possible, assured.

the media's anti-North campaign is "Har." Liar, Har, Har. CBS's Bob Schleffer, a longtime hewer of wood and drawer of water for liberal causes managed to insert the word "flar" (or 'lie'') in what seemed like almost every sentence of his half-hour Interview with North on "Face the Nation." And a media chorus promptly followed suit.

What is the basis for the charge? Insofar as there is any. it involves Col. North's role in the Iran-Contra affair. and in particular his dealings with Con-certain facts about American involvement in the Iran-Contra affair from various members of Congress during briefings that were wholly Informal and not under outh.

Even this, however, might seem at least dishonorable, if one chose to disregard the circumstances. In those circumstances, however, North's failure to tell the whole truth to certain members of Congress seems, on the contrary, the only honorable thing he could do.

Remember the years 1985-86. We were deep in a Cold War with the Soviet Union, and President Reagan badly wanted to help the Nicaraguan Contras, who were battling the communist dictators of their country. Congressional Democrats, however, were doing their level best to block such aid. The Constitution is deplorably silent as to which branch of the federal government shall prevail under those circumstances. But there is certainly nothing in it that said the president couldn't privately encourage others (e.g. the king of Saudi Arabia and the sultan of Brunei) to give the Contras aid which the American Congress had refused to provide.

These Republicans and a few renegade Democrats are shocked - shocked! - that Moscow bought off for $1.5 million a well-placed CIA official with the CIA-ish name of Aldrich H. Ames. Never mind that these politicians docartwheels in their cloakrooms when America buys one of Russia's spics.

Washington's shocked - shocked! - demagogues are demanding that we halt all aid to Russia. Never mind that this aid isn't intended to the Central Inreward Russia but to insure ourselves. It is to promote Russia's creep toward democratic capitallsm and prevent a return of the old communist hardliners. That's why President Clinton rightly says the aid should continue.

But there is still more. In bursts of identically worded political exploitation that seems to have been scripted by the same Grand Old Partisan strategist, many Republicans are rushing to the microphones to say that this infurlating spy scandal is an example of "naive" policies of our new Democratic president.

"Nalve," It's the GOP's word of the week you heard it on TV from Sens. Bob Dole of Kansas and Mitch McConnell of Kentucky; and from Dick Chency.

They cite as examples of Clinton's "naivete": (A) When Borts Yeltsin recently gave a tough-sounding speech, Clinton didn't go Copyright When Yeltsin sent a few hundred Russian troops into Bosnia without consulting the West, Clinton put the best public face on It. Soon the Russian troops were putting on United Nations blue berets and easing the Serbs into an uneasy truce - in time to avoid NATO air-strike retaliation that no one wanted.

Those policies weren't "naive." For truly "naive" presidential policies, these Republicans can recall the GOP's recent glory days: (A) When Ronald Reagan tried to bribe Iran by sending it weapons in the hopes that the terrorist regime would free U.S. hostages. (B) When George Bush (and his defense

> For a fine example of congressional natvete. senators who complain that the CIA was blind to Ames' new lavish lifestyle — expensive house and car, bought with cash - can consult their mirrors. In 1990, the Senate Intelligence Committee, fretting about invading the privacy of U.S. spies, killed a measure to allow CIA inspections of agents' credit reports.

Or, if these politicos want a prime example of covert naivete, they only need to look at telligence Agency Itself, which several times satisfied its suspicions about the loyalty of Aldrich Ames by giving him lie detector tests.

Which he passed. This all occurred after Reagan's CIA Director William Casey confided to William Safire, his old pal turned super-pundit, that he had no fear about taking a polygraph

As Safire recalled in his column in The New York Times, Casey "winked and said that with some Valtum and a sphincter-muscle trick he learned in the O.S.S. he could flatten the spikes before they appeared on any machine."

Long after we have forgotten whether the spy in our midst was Aldrich Ames or Ames Aldrich. we will remain forever indebted to our friend Safire for sharing with us this tale of Casey's ability to lie-by-the-seat-of-his-pants.

Political courage: What's that?

Perhaps the advancing years mellow me. but I believe I am beginning to see politicians not so much as frauds and fakes as simply overgrown children.

They get up every day and close their eyes real tight and squeeze with all their might and soon they are Uptoeing through fantasy worlds and playing imaginary games with make-believe friends, absolutely convinced that the things they are saying and doing are real and tangible. All through the recent debate over the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, for example, members of Congress kept referring to something they called "political courage." Now realto think up a prototypical oxymoron. would not "political l am beginning courage" be the first words to pop into your head? I mean.

peating it and refer ring to it directly and indirectly -- as if it actually exists. "The only thing that will stop this spending is courage, and courage cannot be legislated into the Constitution." said Sen-Rob Kerrey, D-Neb., one of the few who displays it from time to time. "We don't need constitutional cover to make the tough choices," said Scn. John Glenn, D-Ohio, as he prepared to vote against the amendment.

And so 37 senators, clinging to the fiction that some day, somehow, they will conjure up the "courage" to get our fiscal house in order, voted nay and the amendment went down in defeat.

It's all a game the career politicians play so they can continue buying the goodles that keep them in office whether they have the money or not, and it's been going on almost continuously since World War II. Only eight budgets have been balanced in the past 48 years, none in the past 25. We have run up a national debt of $4.5 trillion, on which we are paying $800 million a day in interest, and we continue to stack it up at the rate of half a billion dollars a day.

The pols have tried everything from smoke-and-mirrors to statutes to budget summits, and nothing has curbed their appetite for spending. For more than a decade, they have been toying with the amendment that would require a balanced budget, and every time it gets brought up it gets shot down with allusions to this non-existent thing they call "courage."

When the Senate narrowly rejected such a proposal in 1986, know what the opponents said? They said all that was needed to solve the deficit problem was a little "courage. When the House defeated a balanced budget amendment in 1992, know what Sen. Robert Byrd, D.W.Va., had to say about it? He said, "What we really need is a constitutional amendment that says, 'There shall be some spine in our national leaders." Last year, Byrd wrote: "The bottom line is courage. I do not see how a constitutional amendment will give us politicians any more spine than we now have."

So how much spine does the average polhave? During the recent debate, Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., proposed an alternative with a pork exemption clause that would have forbidden spending limits on such things as buildings and highways. Sen. Ted Stevens. R-Alaska, complained that balancing the budget would force cuts in agriculture programs. And Appropriations Committee Chairman Byrd, the prince of pork, whined last fall that the amendment would "most certainly end public investments in roads, airports, waterways, education, civilian research and development and defense planning" and much more.

WASHINGTON - The U.S. economy is riding the crest of the biggest quarterly surge in a decade, which will help speed its growth in 1994 at the fastest pace in six years, according to a survey of top economists.

The consensus of 51 analysts polled in early March by the newsletter Blue Chip Economic Indicators forecasts economic growth of 3.6 percent, which would be the strongest since a 3.9 percent advance in 1988.

The forecast, released today, followed the government's report that the gross domestic product shot up 7.5 percent at an annual rate in the final three months of 1993, steepest since a 7.9 percent Jump in the first three months of 1984.

The GDP, the total output of goods and services within the United States, grew 3 percent in "Many of the 35 economists who raised their forecasts this month cited the unexpectedly large 7.5 percent surge in fourth-quarter growth and the apparent momentum the economy carried into the first quarter of this year," Editor Robert J. Eggert wrote in the newsletter, published in Sedona.

The economists represent banks, businesses, forecasting services, universities and Wall Street firms.

A separate survey released Wednesday by the Federal Reserve appeared to confirm a moderate expansion in January and February, despite the California carthquake and winter storms in the East and Midwest.

The Fed also said in its "beige book" summary that "only limited price pressures" were reported by its 12 regional banks, which concluded the survey on Feb. 28.

The survey found hiring and business investment plans in almost every district, especially In automobile- and construction-related markets.

"However, streamlining and caution continue to temper general gains in manufacturing employment," the summary

The Blue Chip forecast of 3.6 percent growth this year was even stronger than the analysts' 3.3 percent consensus in February and is 0.6 percentage points above their January projection.

Eggert said it was "one of the largest two-month gains witnessed in our 17-year history of surveying." But he said the optimism paled somewhat for 1995, when the consensus sees economic growth slowing to 2.8 percent.

Besides momentum from the fourth quarter spurring growth this year, analysts cited improved Job prospects, a 1 percent Increase in wages and salaries in January and continued strength in auto sales and orders for durable goods.

The Blue Chip analysts agreed the economy could not sustain the robust 7.5 percent pace of the October-December quarter. but still would expand at a healthy 3.1 percent rate in the first three months of 1994.

The consensus forecasts inflation this year at 2.8 percent. little changed from the 2.7 percent increase in the government's Consumer Price Index in 1993. That was the lowest since

"However, prospects for the CPI in 1995 rose a tenth of a percentage point (from the previous survey) to 3.3 percent," Eggert said.

Unemployment was projected to remain at 6.5 percent this year before sliding to 6.2 percent in 1995. The jobless rate fell to 6.5 percent in February, from 6.7 percent a month earlier.

For Clinton, trust is at stake as aides head to grand jury

By JOHN KING An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON - Beyond the complex legal and ethics questions of the Whitewater affair, the stakes for President Clinton rest in a more basic principle, best summed up by his new White House counsel: "Trust is the coin of the realm."

For all his policy successes, Clinton has never enjoyed a comfortable trust level with the American public, a product of personal controversies and of the new style, and generation, of leadership he brought to the nation's capital. Not to mention the general scorn the public has for

Now, whatever reservoir of trust the president has built up is at risk as White House aides are called before a grand jury to determine whether they meddled in the investigation of an Arkansas savings and loan run by the Clintons' partner in the now famous Whitewater Development Corp. Clinton says he is confident the aides did nothing wrong, although he acknowledges their meetings with Treasury Department officials to discuss the investigation could be construed as Clinton hired new counsel Lloyd Cutler this week to make sure that doesn't happen again to impose a strict ethics structure on a White House that admittedly didn't have one. It is the worst, but hardly the first, example of a loose management structure causing Clinton trouble.

But Cutler's assurance that such lapses won't happen again, at least on the ethics front, doesn't relieve Clinton of his Whitewater worries.

The procession of a half dozen aides before the grand jury, beginning today, will generate more Whitewater headlines, taking time and attention from health care, welfare and Clinton's other policy priorities.

Clinton says he offered the aides simple advice: "Just tell them what happened."

Being called before a grand jury doesn't imply wrongdoing, a fact sometimes lost in all the fury over Whitewater.

'It certainly means the prosecutor thinks you have something to tell him that will be of interest," sald attorney Joseph DiGenova, a former federal prosecutor in Washington. "But it is not necessarily a bad thing."

But the rules of law are quite different than the

"The public hears the words 'grand jury' and it makes the hair stand up on the back of the neck,' said Democratic Sen. John Breaux of Louisiana. Still, he said his constituent mail is focusing on health care and welfare reform and crime, not Whitewater.

"I don't think among the public or on Capitol Hill there is any erosion of trust or support for the president, but there is an increase in concern." Breaux said in an interview.

On this point Republican leaders agree, for

"I think it is a distraction but it hasn't reached the point where the White House can't function," Senate GOP leader Bob Dole said.

While the Arkansas portion of the investigation could take a year or more, what Clinton needs most is to put any questions about White House meddling - and the accompanying comparisons to Watergate - to rest, the sooner the better.

On that front, if in fact there were, as Clinton insists, no White House shenantgans, it appears the president has an unlikely ally in special counsel Robert Fiske.

Flake, a former Republican prosecutor, said Wednesday that his investigation of the White House meetings and contacts with regulators could be concluded in a few weeks, a couple of months at most

And he said the White House was being "very responsive and cooperative" to his requests for documents and information.

DiGenova, like Fiske a former Republican Justice Department appointee, took Fiske's comments about timing as a likely portent of good news for Clinton.

"It probably means that he has reason to believe that there was no intention to obstruct the investigation but just wants to make certain." DiGenova said.

After word of the White House meetings surfaced, Fiske issued his subpoenas with a speed that caught many in Washington by surprise. But DiGenova said Fiske was right on the mark. After all, there are stakes for him as well.

"He needed to send a signal that he was going to be flercely independent, and that these people were in a dangerous area, that they had to stop this brazen disregard for the investigative process," DiGenova said. "If they get that message, then Fiske was doing them a favor because they have looked terrible and this is a very unforgiving town when it comes to trust and credibility.

To hear a chagrined Clinton discuss the controversy this week, it sounded as if the message had been received: "There is nothing more important to me or to this administration or to our ability to carry out the agenda of change and renewal that brought us here than to secure, maintain and deserve the trust of the American

Baseball: Lyman runs streak to 4

By TONY DeSORMIER Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD - Now that his team has won four games in a row, Lyman High School baseball coach Bob McCullough feels it's time for him to do a little coaching.

"It's the coach's job to keep a streak like this in perspective," said McCullough after the Greyhounds improved to 5-3 with a 7-1 win over 5A-District 4 for Spruce Creek. "There's a lot of baseball left to

"It's important that we have some success like this early. It helps the guys develop some confidence in themselves. But it's early yet. The pitchers haven't developed any consistency and everyone's still settling in.

McCullough couldn't help but be pleased with the solid effort turned in by the Greyhounds Wednesday night as they supported the complete-game performance of winning pitcher Tommy Dixon (2-1) with timely hitting and solid defense.

The Greyhounds showed just how opportunistic they can be on offense as they struck for five runs on one hit in the bottom of the first, taking advantage of five walks in the inning (three with the bases loaded) and a hit batter.

"That was good to see," said McCullough. "We got their pitcher on the ropes early and we didn't let him get out of it with any cheap outs. We forced him to get quality outs and he couldn't."

Tribe girls net enough wins to top Greyhounds

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - While they didn't play every match, they played enough. Or, to be precise, they won enough.

The Seminole Fighting Seminoles claimed a girls' tennts dual meet victory over the visiting Lyman Greyhounds at the Sylvan Lake Tennis Center Wednesday afternoon by winning all four of the matches that were completed before the rain fell.

Since team victories are decided on a best-of-seven (five singles matches and two doubles matches) format, the Tribe had built an insurmountable team advantage with their four wins in singles play. The remaining three matches will not be made up. Aubrey Nelson got Seminole rolling with an 8-4 decision over Jamie Mendelsohn in the No. 1 singles match. At No. 2, Tiffany Soderstrom bested Lyman's Liz Knutson. Miranda Westmark knocked off Angie Mateos 8-5 at No. 3 while Blanca Stevenson outlasted Erica Graber 8-6 in the No. 4 match.

While the boys also managed to get four matches in before play was interrupted, they were deadlocked

For Seminole, Oscar Cannonizado rushed by A.J. Kahn 8-1 in No. 1 singles play while Matt Durhain outlasted Kevin Chaulk 8-6 at the No. 4 position. Lyman's wins came at No. 3 singles, where Chris Connor topped Eddie Vargas 8-6, and No. 5 singles, Jake Urban doubling up Joe

The No. 2 singles match between Seminole's David Edwards and Andy Garcia of Lyman was still underway while the No. 2 doubles See Tennia, Page 2B

Questions abound as FSU opens spring drills

By BRENT KALLESTAD Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Coming off his first national championship. Florida State coach Bobby Bowden opens spring practice Saturday looking for a lot of answers if he hopes to win two straight.

Bowden's teams have won 76 games in the last seven seasons. contending in each of those years for a national title. And 1994 may be no different.

"We're sure going to give it a good go at a repeat," said Bowden, who must find replacements for both starting running backs, a tight end, three key receivers, a half dozen top defenders and Heisman Trophy quarterback Charlte Ward. "You can't hardly replace a Charlie Ward because they just don't come along," he said. "But whoever we have at quarterback will be a very good football player." In addition, Bowden brought in three new assistant coaches the biggest staff shuffle since his arrival in 1976. "We've lost a little maturity, but I think we're better off in the long run," said Bowden, whose youngest son Jeff joined the staff to handle the wide receivers.

"Thank goodness we have the offensive line back," chuckled Bowden, who is counting on the Seminole defense to give his inexperienced skill players time to develop once the season

Rising Junior Danny Kanell goes into spring practice as the No. 1 quarterback with classmate Jon Stark at No. 2 and redshirt freshman Thad Busby competitive

Kanell, who started against Maryland last season while Ward nursed sore ribs, has completed 65 percent of his passes for 634 yards and eight touchdowns without an interception as a backup.

Bowden was so impressed with Kanell's five touchdown performance at Maryland it's likely the Seminoles will retain the shotgun offense designed for Ward.

Kez McCorvey, who caught 74 passes for 966 yards and six touchdowns, again will be the team's go-to receiver. With Matt Frier, Kevin Knox and Tamarick Vanover gone, rising sophomore Andre Cooper's nine catches ranks second among returning wideouts. Bowden is looking for fifthyear sentor 'OMar Ellison to pick up some slack in the receiving corps. A high school running back, the 6-1, 205 Ellison has caught just 15 passes for 213 vards.

"He can be the key," added Bowden. "The talent all there. It's just a matter of him getting consistent. Warrick Dunn will go into spring as the top tailback while Zack Crockett and Pooh Bear Williams are 1-2 at fullback. "That could be our strongest position," said Bowden.

They're both players." And for a little more antee to this year's spring practices. Bowden has opened up the starting placekicker job between sophomore Scott Bentley and sentor Dan Mowrey. "Bentley goes in number one," sald Bowden. "We'll let it be

DEAR ABBY: My sister, who has always loved to read, recently came for a visit. We now live many miles apart and hadn't seen each other in quite some time. She stayed with another family member, but we made arrangements to spend the day together.
